DR. M. B. CULLUM BACK IN MAYOR'S CHAIR AFTER ABSENCE OF TWO YEARS---FRIENDS PAY RESPECTS

NO POLICIES TO ANNOUNCE

List of Appointees Will Go to Council Tuesday Night.

Mayor Faces Task of Correcting Evils of Which He Complained.

Belief That Chief Troyer Will Be Retained Continues to Grow.

Declaring that he has no policies to announce at this time nor the names of any appointees to make public, Dr. M. B. Cullum assumed the reins of the mayor's office at the city hall this morning, after an interim of two years.

The mayor had nothing to give out in the shape of an interview. He was too busy receiving congratulations and callers to think up anything for the reporters. A continual stream of people passed to and from his office all forenoon.

Dr. Cullum, before taking the chair, stated that he would be confronted with a most difficult task. He said during the campaign that the city was in worse shape than it ever was, and that he would have a great deal to overcome to put it back upon a normal basis.

He has said that the moral conditions have been under no check, but that vice has been allowed almost a free hand, running rampant through the business and residence sections in the central part of the city, principally, but not overlooking the suburbs.

What his steps will be to correct this alleged condition is problematical. The matter will rest largely in the

MAD RUSH FOR THE YUMA LAND

Nine Hundred Men and Women Eager to Test Luck in the Drawing.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 1.—When the land officials threw open the doors of Shrine auditorium today the place was stormed by more than 900 men and women frantic to make entries for the 173 40-acre farms in the Yuma irrigation district. It was the most eager land rush ever seen here. Leading the crowd were 100 men and women who had camped about the big building all last night.

The distribution of the farms, however, lies altogether in the realm of chance. They will be distributed by means of a drawing March 20. The auditorium remained open only an hour —from 8 to 9 a. m. Nearly every state in the Union is represented by the land seekers. For some of the choicest tracts there were scores of entries.

TAFT NOT TO BE QUOTED

Agreement Reached on Pinchot's Testimony in Land Office Inquiry.

Former Forester Reads Letters From Roosevelt and the President.

Washington, March 1.—After a brief executive session of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation this morning, it was announced that counsel for Mr. Pinchot would not press for a ruling on the point as to whether witnesses would be allowed to testify as to conversations with the president. The subject was thereupon dropped.

When the committee met today in the senate office building there was pending the question as to whether Gifford Pinchot should be allowed to give his version of conversations had with President Taft. The question came up Saturday soon after Mr. Pinchot had read a preliminary statement in which he made sensational charges against Secretary Ballinger.

Would Accept Letters.

Mr. Vertrees, counsel for Mr. Ballinger, interposed the suggestion that a ruling should be had as to whether Mr. Pinchot, and probably other witnesses, should be allowed to recast conversations with the chief executive. Mr. Vertrees said there was not the slightest objection to the introduction in evidence of letters written to or by the president. The attorney contended, however, that if the committee permitted witnesses to give their version of conversations at the White House, it would put the president in the embarrassing position of either remaining silent or appearing before the committee as a witness. The latter alterna-

Roosevelt Party Escapes But Hosts Fall Prey to Disease.

French Doctor Who Dined With the Americans Monday Is Dead.

Gondokoro, Soudan on the Upper Nile, March 1.—Roosevelt's luck has attended the American hunters and scientists, and this time they may be congratulated upon their escape from the African fever that has followed in the wake of the expedition. Col. Roosevelt and his immediate associates sailed for Khartum yesterday.

Dr. Roderic Presch, a French medical missionary, who lunched with Mr. Roosevelt yesterday, died suddenly of

BETHLEHEM PLANT CONTINUES IDLE

Striking Steel Workers Scare Others From Going to Their Work.

South Bethlehem, Pa., March 1.—The striking employes of the Bethlehem Steel company today again succeeded in almost completely tying up the great plant, only a few hundred men reporting for work. The town remains quiet, but it is still under heavy police protection.

The failure of the company's loyal men to report yesterday was due principally to fear of being attacked by strikers or sympathizers with the walkout.

MEETS, LOVES, LOSES AND SHOOTS WOMAN AND TURNS SUICIDE—ALL IN TWO HOURS.

Chicago, March 1.—After an acquaintance of two hours, during which time he proposed marriage and was rejected, Frank Marsh of Dillonvale, Ohio, shot and probably fatally wounded Grace Hall here today and then killed himself. He was 27 years old and she was 30. The woman lived at 2222 Wabash avenue, and it was there that the tragedy took place.

CLAMOR FOR SETTLEMENT

Philadelphians Demand That Labor Trouble Be Brought to an End.

Sixth Death as Result of Violence Occurs in That City.

Philadelphia, March 1.—Powerful influences are being brought to bear on the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company to bring an end to the strike. The big department stores, which have suffered along with hundreds of other business houses, are known to have demanded that the transit company shall not involve the city in a great labor struggle.

A conference was held today in the offices of the company by Charles O. Kruger, president of the traction corporation; State Senator Clarence Wolf, vice president; George H. Earle, Jr., the city's representative on the board of directors, and Richard Y. Cook, a prominent financier.

Appeal is General.

There was a general appeal for arbitration today. Newspapers demanded it; various organizations were clamoring for it, and citizens generally were calling for an end of the trouble at once.

Determined to demonstrate ability to operate without the assistance of the striking motormen and conductors, the transit company today again increased the number of cars in use on the various lines. The traction officials

FLYING FRENCHMAN IS HARD TO CATCH

Federal Marshal Is Chasing Paulhan With Wright Brothers' Injunction.

Memphis, Tenn., March 1. — Louis Paulhan is leading G. P. McDavit, deputy United States marshal of New York, a merry chase. McDavit is endeavoring to serve the order obtained by the attorneys for the Wright Brothers restraining the aviator from continuing flights in this country. From New York McDavit went to Phoenix, Ariz., where he missed Paulhan by several hours. Going from there to Oklahoma City, the deputy arrived a half hour too late. Then he came to Memphis, but his search was fruitless and he left for St. Louis early today to continue the quest.

Writ Is Suspended.

New York, March 1.—Judge Hand in the United States circuit court has suspended until March 12 next the preliminary injunction which he granted last week to the Wright company against Louis Paulhan, the aviator. This action was taken to allow counsel for the Frenchman time to prepare and present appeal papers.

Under the suspension order Paulhan is required to file a bond for $12,000 conditioned upon paying the Wright company any profits Paulhan may realize from aeroplane flights and any damages that may be sustained by the complainant from the date of the injunction pending the appeal in the event of affirmation.

CITY'S CAMPAIGN FOR PURE MEAT RESULTS IN SECOND ARREST AND REVEALS SHOCKING CONDITIONS

STILL AFTER FOOD TRUST

New Jersey Prosecutor Sets Grand Jury at Work on Storage Inquiry.

Extradition of Indicted Packers Is Likely to Be Sought By Garven.

New York, March 1.—Investigation of alleged cold storage evils was resumed today by the Hudson county grand jury which last week indicted the so-called beef trust, its constituent firms and individuals, directors and officials.

Additional indictments may be the outgrowth of the renewed probing, as Prosecutor Garven, the New Jersey official who pushed the beef trust cases to indictment, has indicated that he means to get at the bottom facts of the situation and secure indictments against every individual believed to be responsible in any way for trade restriction and artificial booming.

A move by the prosecutor towards cancelling the charters of the New Jersey meat corporations which have refused to submit their books and records to the grand jury is looked for.

There were early indications, too, of activity in connection with the meat indictments already found. In view of the reported intention of some of the indicted men to refuse surrender it was epected that proceedings to test the extradition laws as affecting their cases would be instituted.

Will Seek Outside Arrests.

The sheriff will report shortly which of the corporations and their officers indicted are now in his jurisdiction. Copies of the capiases and indictments against those elsewhere will then be sent to the police of the counties where they live. If the police decline to make arrests, the governor of New Jersey will make requisitions for extradition.

Menominee Man's Injury Fatal.

Menominee, Mich., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Pouquett, injured by the explosion of an oil lamp yesterday, died last night.

JEALOUS LOVER BEATS RIVAL WITH REVOLVER; KILLS GIRL AND SELF.

Kansas City, Mo., March 1.—Miss Grace Gayou, aged 19, was shot and killed last night by Louis Hillson. She was entertaining Jack Doyle, Hillson's rival, in a store where she was employed. Hillson saw them and climbed through a window, clubbed Doyle senseless with a revolver, shot the girl, and then rushed to the sidewalk and killed himself.

TEMPORARY HEAD OF DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST

BRIG.-GEN. WALTER HOWE.

Gen. Howe, ranking colonel in the Coast Artillery, is in temporary command at Governor's island of the Department of the East. Gen. Howe has been in command at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, until his recent transfer. He had command of a detachment of Indians who were freindly to the whites in the Sioux campaign in 1876.

SIX "SLIDES" BURY PEOPLE

Hundreds of Men Are Working to Rescue Idaho Victims.

Known Dead From Series of Avalanches Now Number Thirty-One.

Spokane, Wash., March 1.—Working desperately, and almost exhausted, hundreds of miners today are trying to dig from packed ice, snow and wreckage the dead and injured thought to be buried in the six Northern Idaho avalanches which have caused death and destruction in the last two days.

The death list, which included nineteen yesterday, has reached thirty-one today, and it is believed that more dead will be found in the cabins which housed the families of the miners.

At Mace, where the first avalanche struck, eleven are known to be dead and eight are badly injured. Sweeping down the mountain side the great mass of snow and earth crushed the cabins and small houses like egg shells, burying the occupants in a mass of logs, snow and earth.

Thirty Saved Alive.

Not until the sun strikes the mountain of snow and wears the huge mass away will the list of dead be known.

So far thirty men, women and chil-

Commission Man Arrested, But Enters Plea of Not Guilty.

Health Commissioner Says Campaign Will Be Vigorously Pushed.

Investigation of the commission house of the Macbeth-Gardner company at 206 West Michigan street by J. H. Lee, deputy government inspector, and Dr. Patton, head commissioner, yesterday afternoon revealed shocking conditions, it is claimed.

Thirty-eight carcasses of sheep, which had begun todecay were discovered in the place, and it is the belief of the authorities that it was the intention of the company to sell these after "doctoring" them to remove the evidences of the decay as far as possible.

When first discovered by Inspector Lee the carcasses were being sent to a "freezer" which is owned by one of the largest meat dealers on the head of the Lakes. That the intention was to freeze the rotting meat before the health office it for sale is the belief of those who have looked into the case. It is said that the freezing process would remove the smell to a large extent.

Other reports of violations of the ordinance that are sickening, have

ENJOINS THE NEW GRAIN SCHEDULE

Judge Kohlsaat Forbids Enforcement of Twenty-four Hour Rule of Roads.

Chicago, March 1.—A writ of injunction has been issued by Judge C. C. Kohlsaat of the United States circuit court enjoining the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company and every other railroad company doing an interstate business and entering Chicago from placing in effect a new schedule time allowance for the unloading of grain from cars.

The Chicago Board of Trade and a number of grain firms are the complainants, and the principal allegation of the bill is the contention that the defendant railroads have conspired against the complainants by seeking to reduce the loading and unloading time of grain shipments and by this means are attempting to increase freight rates.

The new schedule provides that the grain be disposed of inside of twenty-four hours after inspection and that it be unloaded within the 48-hour limit.

Hearing on the case was set for March 15 before Judge Kohlsaat.

CANADIAN NORTHERN ACCEPTS ITS FRANCHISE

Road Agrees to the Terms Offered By the City.

Line Must Be Built Into Duluth Within Three Years.

The Canadian Northern has accepted the franchise granted by the city council to its subsidiary corporation, the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific Railroad company. The acceptance was filed with H. W. Cheadle, city clerk, this morning.

The company agrees to all the terms of the ordinance, which was passed Feb. 7 last, giving it the right to enter the city over the route selected by its engineers through West Duluth.

Under the terms of the franchise the company agrees to pay street assessments for all public improvements upon streets or avenues abutting its holdings. It will also raise the Oneota street bridge as a viaduct, bearing all the expense of doing the work and maintaining it afterwards. Another condition is that round houses and ma-

LAW WAITS WHILE NEGRO TAKES NAP

Policeman Jabs Him With Hat Pin After Forty-Six Hours of Sleep.

Kansas City, Mo., March 1.—John Fulcher, the champion long-distance sleeper of the Southwest—so-called because eight years ago he established a record of 120 hours—awakened last night from a little nap of forty-six and one-half hours.

It's not Fulcher's fault that he did not come closer to duplicating his record. An ambitious policeman, after waiting several hours for the sleeper to awaken so that the officer could serve a warrant charging Fulcher with arson, prodded the dozing man with a hat pin. However, to the champion's credit it must be said, he did not come out of his slumber with a start. No, indeed. Three minutes after the officer stabbed Fulcher, the sleeper lazily crossed his legs and then arose, remarking that some people never were content to let anyone sleep.

"It seems I'll never get a good sleep again," mused the prisoner after the warrant was read.

The case of Fulcher mystifies physicians. When he recently slept five days the man took no nourishment. He is colored.

WILL LIVE AT COST OF HIS SON'S LIFE

Kansas Man Is Attended By Doctors While Youth Dies of Poison.

Salina, Kan., March 1.—Andrew Dell yesterday gave up his life to save that of his father, Enoch Dell. Death was caused by the drinking of a tonic in which strychnine had been placed in the belief that it was quinine.

The father prepared the medicine, and to assure his son that the tonic was properly made, tasted it first. Both men soon became violently ill. When a physician arrived the son insisted that the father be cared for first. The doctor complied, but when he turned his attention to the younger man it was too late, and the son died in great agony within an hour.

Enoch Dell, it is stated, will recover.

MAN DRIFTS ACROSS THE GULF OF MEXICO.

Galveston, Tex., March 1.—Alone on an empty barge, Peter Nelson was carried across the Gulf of Mexico and landed on the coast of Tamaulipas. It took eight days for the trip, a storm driving the barge rapidly. Nelson had two day's rations when he started. He arrived here last night by rail.

Get Their Price From Tri-State People After Long Fight.

W. M. Hubbard Is Replaced as Local Manager By D. M. Neill.

After a most picturesque fight, extending over several years, the Duluth stockholders in the Zenith Telephone company have been given the price they held out for, and have sold their interests in the company to the Tri-State Telephone company of Minneapolis, the independent long distance concern.

The Tri-State company now has a controlling interest in the Zenith company, and assumed control today, W. M. Hubbard being succeeded as manager by D. M. Neill of Red Wing, who will act temporarily.

The four Duluth men most interested were W. M. Hubbard, S. Loeb, William Harrison and George W. Buck. What price was paid for the holdings was not made public, but it was satisfactory, and is understood to have been almost as much as the original investment.

"We are satisfied with the price."

DEFECTIVE PAGE

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"When a large part of the work that was done in the homes by the women during the early life of the nation, was taken from the homes to the factories, then it was that woman, who had the ability and desire to express herself in some form of work, sought about for a manner to expend her leisure. Just at that time came a flood of fancy work. There was spatter work and wax work and work in hair and embroidery to no end. A little later she took up the cultural idea in clubs and their various phases have since resulted."

So said Mrs. Darling, a member of the faculty of the Stout Manual Training School of Menominee, Wis., in an address yesterday afternoon before the members of the Duluth branch of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae and a few guests at the home of Miss Duncan of 2216 East Second street. Mrs. Darling's theme was the modern tendency of education to supply the education that in other days was a part of the training that every daughter received in her own home from her mother. "The arts and crafts of home making were understood in those days by almost every housewife," said Mrs. Darling, "and her daughter learned by precept, example and imitation, the things that she most needed to know in fulfilling the life of the average woman as homekeeper. With the coming of greater leisure that resulted when much of the work that was formerly done in the home became a part of the world's work, girls were educated in cultural methods that took no recognition nor arranged for any preparation for her special work in the world. But a change is being brought about. The home, where the life of the average woman will be expressed, is coming to be looked upon as a business organization, a social unit and an ethical force, and it is in great part upon its success as a business organization that its value as a social unit and an ethical force will be fully realized. No one can be an efficient head of any organization without preparation. It has been considered disgraceful for a man to assume the responsibilities of the head of a household without preparation for providing for it, and it is coming to be looked upon as the same for a woman to become the disburser of funds, unless she has the knowledge to bring adequate results."

The extent and variety of demands that are made upon a woman who efficiently directs the working of a home and family, were pointed out by Mrs. Darling and the course of study, which is provided at Stout school, called the Home Makers course, was told of in detail. The young women of the course study the history of the family and its evolution to bring to them a sense of the dignity of their ultimate place in the world. House selection, sanitation and decoration, hygiene, physiology, anatomy, chemistry, dietics, child psychology, discipline, a knowledge of plumbing, a knowledge of textiles, the knowledge of being an intelligent consumer and purchaser all enter into consideration in the course of study planned at Stout school in the home makers course.

Mrs. Darling's talk was listened to with much interest. The lecture was followed by an nformal social hour.

NATIONAL WORKER.

Florence Will Speak at Commercial Club.

Mrs. Florence Kelley, national secretary of the Consumers' league, who will deliver a free lecture in this city Friday evening of this week at the Commercial club, is attending the annual convention of the league, being held today and tomorrow at Milwaukee. Mrs. Kelley will give an address this evening at the session at Milwaukee, her subject to be "A Ten Years' Program of the Consumer's League."

Mrs. Kelley has had a broad experience in work relative to the labor conditions of women and children, she [illegible] much of her experience [illegible] for ten years has been most active in the work of the Consumer's league, whose chief purpose is to interest women in insisting upon securing goods that have been manufactured under sanitary conditions and the workers employed in the production paid a living wage and working only a certain number of hours a day, paid for over time and conditions surrounding their labor, hygiene. The list of merchants who produce goods under these conditions are placed on the "White List" of the Consumers' league and the members of the league ask for and insist upon getting such goods.

Mrs. Kelley will make her first visit to Duluth at Friday's meeting. Many times during the past, plans have been proposed to bring her here, but her work has been pressing and she is in great demand as a speaker and until now was unable to come.

The lecture Friday evening in Duluth will be under the auspice of the Women's Council of the Commercial club and will be given at the rooms of the Commercial club. The lecture is free and men and women are invited to attend whether members of either organization or not.

Mrs. Kelley will go from here to Minneapolis and St. Paul to deliver addresses there.

FEARED FORMER NURSE WOULD TAKE LIVES OF HER CHILDREN

MRS. JOSEPH HARRIMAN AND CHILDREN.

Mrs. Joseph Harriman has just had her former nurse, Miss Augusta P. Mallet, sent to the insane asylum for fear of injury to her children. Miss Mallet developed delusions before going into the Harriman household. She thought she was being persecuted. After her dismissal she wrote many letters to Mrs. Harriman complaining that she was pursued by a "little yellow man" and that her life was in danger. She wrote also to Mr. Harriman's sister and others. Mrs. Harriman feared some danger to her children and took steps to have her locked up. She was sent to the insane ward of Bellevue for observation.

THE EVENING STORY

THE TAMING OF BUD SLOANE

By Augusta F. Conway.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"I tell you, Be[illegible]d Capt. Carew, as he stood in t[illegible]house of the steam-freighter Corsair, it's no use talking. These fellows are rough, and God knows what they will do when they get mad. No, I think you'd better get off the boat when we get to Duluth and take the train back home."

"Oh, Daddy!" pouted Betty. "You know I think it would be lots of fun to tame them."

"Tame them, eh?" laughed Capt. Carew. "I'd like to see anybody tame them. You don't know them roustabouts as well as I, Betty. Why, girl," he continued, an angry frown appearing on his good-natured, weather beaten face, "there's Bud Sloane, as I shipped aboard at Cleveland—darn his hide; I wish I'd never seen his ugly mug—he's the bird that's making all the trouble. He's a scrapper from away back; always looking for trouble, and usually finding it."

"Well, Daddy, if you knew his reputation, what made you take him on?"

"Had to, or put out without a mate," answered the captain. "You see it was this way. Stevens broke his arm when we were unloading, and of course he's got to lay up for a while. I hunted high and low for a mate; Sloane was all I could get, so on a pinch I took him, and here we are with him stirring up trouble among them roustabouts for more pay, right out in the middle of Superior at that, where they think they can bully a fellow into giving in to them. I'll show them they can't. And what's more," thundered the captain, giving the wheel a vicious whirl, "I won't give them another cent, I'll be darned if I will."

"Oh, look, Daddy, here comes Bud now with some of the men. You never mind, Daddy," said Betty, with a determined air, pushing her lithe, young body before her father's angry form, "I'll talk to them."

"You get back, Betty, till I give them a piece of my mind," growled the captain, his eyes snapping ominously.

"You get back to the wheel, Daddy, and never mind me. You'll only get yourself all worked up. I want to talk to Bud myself," with a mischievous toss of her dainty head.

"Betty, child!" cried her father, as he seized her arm, "don't be foolish; get back [illegible] good girl. They might—"

"No they won't," laughed Betty, merrily, as she shook him off, and jumped quickly to the door just as Bud Sloane with his contingent of sulky roustabouts, stopped suddenly at its entrance, on beholding the dainty form of Betty poised there.

"Oh! 'good morning, Mr. Sloane,' cried Betty, smiling her most bewitching smile, "isn't it a lovely morning, isn't it?" she flashed on the bewildered Bud.

Bud balanced his huge form first on one leg, then on the other. His shrewd gray eyes, like the daring Betty noticed, had the shadow of an amused twinkle in their bold gaze.

"The morning's all right, I guess, Miss Betty," he said. "But I didn't come here to talk about it. I want to talk to your old man."

"Well, you can't, that's all," flashed Betty, her soft brown eyes challenging the bold gaze of the gray. "You can say what you've got to say to me. I won't have him annoyed by your men and their foolish whims."

Betty's cheeks flamed crimson when the man laughed.

"It's a pretty little bird," he said, just the faintest suggestion of an amused smile curling his lips, "but it's wings need clipping; they soar too high. You just stand aside, miss, I don't want to trouble you with my little talk. Come little bird," he went on, disdaining the proud little figure with the tolerant glance one gives a child, "you'd better fly away."

Miss Betty's soft brown eyes glowed black up into the disdainful grap.

"You coward," she panted. "How dare you!"

"Aw, shut her off, Bud!" drawled out one of the listening roustabouts. "Shut her off, and talk turkey to the old man, if yer goin' to."

In a twinkling, the horrified Betty saw the speaker's lank form sprawling on the deck, while Bud Sloane, his massive jaws drawn taut, stood over him with clenched fists.

"Oh!" she cried, 'don't hurt him."

Bud laughed at the sound of her anxious voice. "Don't worry, Miss Betty," he said, "I won't have no fuss before you. I'll take these chicks of mine away and teach them what's due a little lady like yourself, Miss Betty."

The wondering brown eyes suddenly sank beneath the admiring glance of the gray.

"What's the matter, Betty?" said her father, hurrying to the door.

"Oh, nothing, Daddy," cooly replied Betty. "Mr. Sloane," she continued, with a gay little laugh of recollection, "was merely teaching his pupils manners."

"Bud didn't lay a finger on you, did he? 'Cause if he did, I'd lick him, big and all as he is."

"Why, you ridiculous old Daddy, of course he didn't. I'm not afraid of him. I think he would be quite nice if—if he was tamed," laughingly cried Betty, seizing the bewildering captain around his waist and waltzing him across the wheelhouse floor.

A few days later, as Betty was taking her usual walk on the deck before breakfast she was conscious of the unmistakable sound of voices raised in anger floating down from the wheelhouse door. She stood for an instant listening to the rapid flow of wrath-laden words.

"I tell you captain," thundered Bud Sloane, his huge fist swinging in the air, "I won't take that wheel unless you come to terms, so that's all I've got to say."

"And I tell you, Bud Sloane," shouted the captain, his weather-beaten face streaked with purple, "I'll see you in h— first. I've stood here for 24 hours now, and I'll drop in my tracks before—"

"Oh, Daddy, dear," interrupted an agitated Betty, running to his side and winding sympathetic arms round his neck, "you'll make yourself sick. You know the doctor warned you—"

"Why, Betty, child," broke in the captain, his voice sinking to an ashamed whisper, "did you hear me swear?"

Betty did not answer him. She turned her soft eyes, glistening with a dew-like moisture, on the anger-distorted face of Bud Sloane.

"Oh, Mr. Sloane," she said, reproachfully, "how cruel of you to let poor Daddy stay at the wheel so long, and all because—" Her voice died away in a little sob, the fresh bloom of her cheek flamed to a vivid red as the brown eyes sank beneath the worshiping glance of the gray. Bud stood for an instant in an attitude of indecision, shook his huge bulk, stretched his hand out to the captain, and said:

"I'll take the wheel right now, sir. You go and get a bite to eat with Miss Betty, then turn in for a long spell. I'll run her straight and true, sir if I have to smash the whole blamed crew to do it."

To Capt. Carew's surprise, he heard no more about the wage question. Also Bud Sloane developed a willingness and eagerness to please which delighted the captain, who praised him to the dainty Betty, who bewildered him by a marked indifference in Mr. Sloane's welfare.

However indifferent Betty chose to be, certainly she could not complain of that same trait in Mr. Sloane. He wooed her at every opportunity, seeming to gain fresh impetus from her scornful treatment of him, till Betty declared she would tell her father.

"Of course we will, Miss Betty," said the irresponsible Bud. "I want everything to be fair and square; nothing underhand, eh, girl."

"You take too much for granted, Mr. Sloane," said Betty, severely. "I think it very improper to be always fighting."

"I've cut that all out, Miss Betty. I'm going to be—well, I'm going to be a model of propriety from this on."

Just then two roustabouts lounged by with a sneer on their faces, evidence of their contempt for the mate. Bud lurched before them; his muscular arms swinging in a threatening manner.

"Don't you dare screw that ugly phiz of yours like that, Sam Barnes," said he, "'Cause if you do, it's liable to get knocked straight again."

"Bah!" spat Sam, "Bud Sloane's knuckling to a woman. He's—" Sam never finished his sentence, for Bud put his power of speech out of commission. When the storm had blown over, and his partner had fled, Bud found himself confronting a scornful Betty, who walked past him with her head held very high; leaving Bud behind, swearing softly at his huge fists.

Bud kept out of Betty's way, devoting himself strictly to his duty, till Capt. Carew, delighted by Bud's untiring energy, confided to an apparently uninterested Betty that he was the best mate he had ever had.

When the boat got to Duluth, Bud sought out Betty in the cabin. Her brown eyes flashed when his huge bulk obstructed the door; but Bud never wavered.

"I came to ask your pardon,' said he, twisting his cap with nervous brown hands, "before I leave for the West. "I've concluded to take myself out there and begin over again. I don't blame you a bit, girl," his big voice breaking a little, as he pictured the future without Miss Betty's bewitching form flitting tantalizing near him. "You are away above such a rough lump as me. It seems I can't keep my fists from knocking them roustabouts down, so I just thought I'd—"

"Stay here, now didn't you?" inquired a radiant Betty. "Father thinks," continued this bewitching Betty, whose face glowed beneath the man's worshipping eyes, rose red, "we might—if you—if you still want to—get married—Bud."

ARE WATER METERS MADE BY A TRUST?

The board of water and light commissioners tried to buy 1,000 meters in order to effect a saving. Only three kinds can be used in Duluth because of the high pressure in some localities. When the bids from the three concerns making them were opened all were identical. They were ordered thrown out. The board will continue to buy them in small lots as needed as heretofore.

Pinchot Explains Wherein He Claims Ballinger Deceived Taft.

Letter He Received From the President About Glavis Is Read.

Washington, March 1.—There was a surprising development in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation when Gifford Pinchot announced to the committee that he based his charges that Secretary Ballinger had been guilty of making statements to the president that were "absolutely false in three essential particulars," not upon a letter from Mr. Ballinger himself, but upon a letter written by J. T. Ronald, a former law partner of Mr. Ballinger, to Dr. Lyman Abbot.

Mr. Pinchot said a copy of this letter with annotations was forwarded by Mr. Ballinger to the president. Pinchot admitted, when questioned by the committee, that the three statements in the Ronald letters, which he declared to be false, had previously been covered by a letter written by Mr. Ballinger himself to the president, in which Mr. Ballinger had given what the witness admitted was a true statement of the facts.

Mr. Pinchot said he did not attempt to reconcile these two facts.

Before this development the interest of the morning session had centered in the announcement by Mr. Pinchot that he would not press for a decision as to whether he should be allowed to give his version of the conversations with President Taft and the introduction in evidence by Pinchot of a long letter written to him by President Taft in September last.

Letter Written Last Fall.

The president's letter to Mr. Pinchot in full was as follows:

"Beverly, Mass., Sept. 13, 1909.

"My dear Gifford: I enclose herewith a letter which I am about to send to Secretary Ballinger for such use as he sees fit, in reference to the charges made by Glavis against Secretary Ballinger, Pierce, Dennett and Schwartz. I have reached this conclusion only after a full consideration of Glavis' statement and their answers to it; but I never reached a conclusion based on a stronger conviction than this one is.

"Glavis seems to be a man who has acquired but one idea and who has allowed his suspicions to grow to such a point as to be altogether disingenuous in the statement of evidence which he adduces to sustain his attack upon his superiors.

Expected Congressional Action.

"I have made no reference to you in this letter, which will probably be made public, because I do not wish to bring you into the controversy at all. I have advised Mr. Ballinger and his subordinates that I wish your name left out of the matter in their answers and references, should it become necessary, as it is not unlikely, to send the whole record to congress.

"I am aware from the tone of your letter and from your conversation with me that you did not give to Mr. Ballinger the confidence and trust which I do; and in this respect I think you do Mr. Ballinger injustice. I think you have allowed your enthusiastic interest in the cause of conservation and your impatience at legal obstacles and difficulties to mislead you in this regard, and that Glavis himself has led you to regard as suspicious a number of things which, when weighed in the light of all the circumstances now known, are lacking in evidential force to sustain such a serious charge as that of bad faith against officials who have heretofore shown themselves to be entirely trustworthy.

As to Glavis' Charges.

"I write this to urge you that you do not make Glavis' cause yours. You had no access to the records which Glavis had access to, and you did not know the explanation for some of the things that he pointed out as suspicious which he ought to have made known to you and to me. I cannot for a minute permit him to remain as a subordinate in the interior department or in the public service. It would be fatal to proper discipline.

"On the other hand I wish you to know that I have the utmost confidence in your conscientious desire to serve the government and the public, in the intensity of your purpose to achieve success in the matter of conservation of natural resources, and in the immense value of what you have done and propose to do with reference to forestry and kindred methods of conservation, and that I am thoroughly in sympathy with all of these policies and propose to do everything that I can to maintain them, insisting only that the action for which I become responsible, or for which my administration becomes responsible, shall be within the law.

Prevent Hasty Action.

"I write this letter in order to prevent hasty action on your part in taking up Glavis' cause or in objecting to my sustaining Ballinger and his subordinates within the interiar department as a reason for your withdrawing from the public service.

"I should consider it one of the greatest losses that my administration could sustain, if you were to leave it, and I hope that you will not think that my action in writing the enclosed letter to Secretary Ballinger is reason for your taking a step of this character. When a man has been unjustly treated as Secretary Ballinger has been in the manner pointed out in the letter a copy of which I send you, it is my duty as his chief, with the knowledge that I have of his official integrity and his lack of culpability, to declare it to the public and do him justice, however great inconvenience may arise in other respects.

Was Greatly Disturbed.

"I have been greatly disturbed by the public discussion carried on in the press, from which it is inferred that your bureau is arrayed against the interior department, and that material is being furnished for both sides from official sources. I was especially distressed by McHarg's reported interviews, though I believe he now repudiates any criticism or slurring remarks concerning President Roosevelt. He was an efficient officer, but he talked too much and wildly and his withdrawal relieved me.

"I must bring public discussion between departments and bureaus to an end. It is most demoralizing and subversive of governmental discipline and efficiency. I want you to help me in this. I can enforce team work if I can keep public servants out of newspaper discussion.

"Very sincerely yours,

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

Mr. McHarg was reported to have said that "Roosevelt believed himself to be the Lord."

HERALD NEWSBOYS' QUARTET MAKES HIT IN SINGING AND DANCING ACT

THE HERALD NEWSBOYS' QUARTET.

Last night at the Savoy theater, four newsboys, who sell The Herald on the street every day, appeared on the stage and made a hit with the audience. They did a song and dance act that was really good and they were forced to respond to several encores.

"Gee, but who'd a-thought we'd a-come to this," said one little fellow just before he went on the stage last night. "My father said I'd always have to work with my hands, but I guess its me for shaking the brogans and the warble act," said another of the quartet.

Mr. Ellison, manager of the Savoy, has been drilling the boys for a month and he says they have talent to a marked degree. He will have them appear at the Savoy and Princess theaters in Duluth and the Savoy at Superior and after a little experience, he says he expects to book them on Keith & Proctor's circuit.

INDIAN CHIEFS PROTEST ON HIGH COST OF LIVING

On Way to Washington to See "Great White Chief."

Will Also Ask That Other Grievances Be Redressed.

Four Indian chiefs are in Duluth today on a mission that the white man has in the past considered particularly his own—they are on their way to Washington to protest to President Taft against the increased cost of living.

Here they are: Chiefs Day-bway-wain-dung, Pay-baun-we-che-waish-kung, Mah-jish-kung, May-zhuc-keaune-quaib, and Frank H. Pequette, interpreter for the royal Redskin delegates to the president.

The five men are from the Fort Bois agency of Nett lake. On Feb. 12 the tribe met in solemn council and protested against the price of meat. When it was pointed out to the Indians that the white man was also protesting against the prices of food, they decided to go to Washington and raise their voices against the increased cost of living.

The Indians will speak to the president through the medium of interpreter Pequette, for only one of the Indian chiefs can speak any English.

The Indians were an object of great interest at the St. Louis hotel, where they stopped over between trains. One of the chiefs wore a "plug" hat with becoming pride. They smoked American cigars with relish after the dinner, and to the many questions that were shot at them from the crowd that encircled their chairs in the lobby, the Indians would only vouchsafe gutteral sounds.

In addition to the protest against the increase of the price on meats and lards, the Indian representatives will ask that the treaty of 1886 be fulfilled and that the Indians be paid the money due them, in a lump sum.

Big Men in Their Tribes.

All of the Indians are famous in the tribal history of the northern part of the state. They are big men in their tribes and have been selected because of their family history and "social" standing at Nett Lake.

They have dressed for the occasion, and according to Mr. Pequette, want to make an imposing front at Washington. Each of the chiefs is looking with interest to the meeting with President Taft. They haven't exactly figured what they are going to say to the big chief of the white men, but the interpreter says the talk will be strong and to the point.

White men here may be exceedingly pleased to learn that poor Lo has raised his voice in the battle against high prices. It made a great hit with some of the interested people who questioned them regarding their mission to Washington.

In addition to their protest against the price of food, the chiefs will present for consideration the following claims:

Article I asks that the stipulations of the treaty of 1866 be fulfilled and that the Indians be paid the money accruing to the tribe by that treaty, for improvements and annuity money still due them as per that contract.

Article II sets forth a claim for the land now in the forest reserve in the northern part of St. Louis county, Minn., the chiefs stating that they never ceded said land to the United States, as at the time of their making the treaty with the United States, this area was considered a part of Canada; and to establish this allegation they quote the provisions of the original treaty between the United States of America and His Britannic Majesty of Nov. 30, 1782, this treaty seemingly leaving out the timber tract in question, as it is surrounded by water on all sides except where a very narrow portage connects it with the main land of the United States. The Indians' plea here is very plausibly stated.

Article 3 asks that no other tribe or band of Indians be allowed to share in money accruing from the interest on the general fund belonging to the Chippewas more in proportion to the population than the Bois Fort Chippewas do; that is, that all the Minnesota Chippewas should share alike in the benefits accruing from the general fund.

Article 4 asks why the annuity payment varies from year to year, and why it decreases instead of increases as they were told at the signing of the treaty that it would.

Article 5 asks that an alloting agent be sent to allot the Bois Fort children not previously alloted; also that the poor allotments be changed for good allotments, as some allotments are all swamp.

Article 6 wishes that when the government abandons its school lands at the agency at the time of the abolishing of the agency, the school lands will fall to the Indians whose houses occupy them at that time as town lots. The Indian village is built on the lands reserved for the school.

Article 7 treats of the Bush-ko-kog-on reservation of six miles square that was given to Pay-baum-we-che-waishkung and his band by the treaty of 1866. Most of this land has been taken from the Indians and most of the rest has been stripped by the timber men, it is alleged by this article.

The Indians petition that the government live up to the stipulation of the treaty, and that the members of the Bush-ko-kog-on band be reimbursed for the lands and timber taken from them by the abrogating of said treaty of 1866 without their consent.

Article 8 asks that the money accruing from the sale of timber and lands on their respective reservation, the Bois Fort reservation, should be distributed for the benefit of the Bois Fort Indians only, that she same should not be put in the general fund for all the Chippewas in Minnesota, as has been previously done.

Article 9 reads: "We request that when people come here in the hunting season, that they ask permission of the agent. We wish further to state that our agent, Mr. Albert B. Reagan, is seeing that whiskey is not brought on the reservation, which is a good thing, and we further ask that he be instructed that white hunters do not bring whiskey on the reservation when they come to hunt. We request further that the agent be authorized to search their luggage in case it should be suspicioned that they have liquor with them.

Article 10 treats of the selling of heirship lands and asks that half of the value of the land sold be paid to the Indians at the time of the sale instead of paying them $10 per month as previously; the rest of the price paid for the land to be paid the Indians as the government may direct.

Article 11 asks that the promises of the government as to improvements at the present agency be fulfilled in the immediate future as they are needed in the carrying on of agency work in the civilizing of the Bois Fort Indians.

PERJURY CHARGES IN FRITCH TRIAL

Sensational Developments Mark Murder Case at Detroit, Mich.

Detroit, Mich., March 1.—Interest in arguments of counsel, made today in the trial of Dr. George Fritch on a charge of administering treatment that resulted in the death of Maybelle Millman last fall were practically ignored in the minds of the followers of the trial in the sensational charges of perjury and subornation of perjury made at yesterday's sessions.

Most startling of all, even though it had been forecasted, was the charge by Frank M. Knott, husband of the principal witness for the defense, that Mrs. Knott knew nothing of the incidents that occurred in Dr. Fritch's office on the day Miss Millman died. Mrs. Knott had testified that she was in the office and knew positively that the Millman girl was not there. Her husband swore yesterday that she had told him she was to get $200 for giving such testimony, and that if he would join her in it there would be $520 in it for ....

"Others Doing It."

To his warning not to perfure herself she replied with a smile:

"That's all right; there's lots of others doing the same thing."

Mrs. Jennie Cunningham and another woman testified yesterday that two of the women who had testified for the defense had admitted to them that they were not in the office on that day, and Mrs. Cunningham added that Mrs. Ida Putzig told her, "Jennie, I've got a check for $32 to help out the little doctor."

She said that on being warned not to swear falsely, Mrs. Putzig said that she would "swear a blue streak for Dr. Fritch."

WINDOW ONLY MEANS OF EXIT

Forced to climb through a window in order to escape death from an early morning fire at her home, 1212½ West Superior street, Mrs. Timothy Cosgrove had a thrilling experience today.

Fire broke out at the Cosgrove home early this morning, and before she woke up the flames had cut off escape by means of the door. The house was practically destroyed by the flames.

BIG DAY FOR THE BOWLERS

Outside Teams Roll Most of the Games at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., March 1.—This was the first big day of the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress at the Wayne pavilion. Thirty-two pairs, seventy-two individuals and fourteen five-men teams, were on the schedule.

It was the first day upon which the out-of-town bowlers predominated, only a few Detroit men being on the list. Among the cities represented on the alleys were Pittsburg, Huntington, W. Va.; Cincinnati, Madison, Wis.; Flint, Mich.; Erie, Pa.; Winnipeg, Man. and one five from Chicago.

Two five-men teams,—Saratoga and Venice—from distant Manitoba, and the Donohues under the leadership of "Jiggs" Donohue, the former first baseman of the Chicago and American league baseball teams, attracted a great deal of attention from the bowling enthusiasts.

Al and Tony Schwoegler of Madison, Wis., winners of the doubles championship at Pittsburg last year, with the unprecedented score of 1,304, were the center of interest as they defended their title in one of the early squads.

WILL LET CENTRAL BUILD ITS BRIDGE

Senate Passes Bill Granting Permit for Interstate Structure.

Washington, March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Clapp this morning secured the passage in the senate, of his bill granting consent of congress to the Wisconsin Central Railway company to construct a railroad bridge across the St. Croix river, between Wisconsin and Minnesota, at a point in St. Croix county, Wis., and Washington county, Minn.

Senator Nelson today introduced a bill authorizing the village of Taylors Falls, Minn., and the village of St. Croix Falls, Wis., to construct a bridge across the St. Croix river. The proposed bridge is to be a free wagon and foot bridge, connecting the two villages.

"Faust" on the Phonograph.

The March Victor records are notable even in the lists of the wonderful records before announced by the company. An entire act of "Faust" is announced with Geraldine Farrar, Enrico Caruso and Marcel Journet of the Paris opera, who came to this country especially to sing this record.

The final act of "Faust" is one of the grandest of operatic compositions, and its rendition by these three great artists is thrilling beyond any power of description. The scene is in three parts; the first and second being sung by Farrar and Caruso; the third by these two artists and Journet.

Another superb record, which was made only after numerous difficulties had been overcome, is the great "Miserie" scene by Caruso, Alda and the Metropolitan opera house chorus.

While Journet was at the Victor laboratory, he also sung a number of new solos, and three of them appear in the March list and show his full and resonant voice to perfection. A favorite duet from Martha is also rendered by Journet in connection with Caruso. Leo Slezak, the giant Czech tenor ho has made a phenomenal success at the Metropolitan, presents three additional records—a beautiful spring song; the lovely Pastorale, by far the best of the tenor numbers in Prophete; and the ever welcome Celeste Aida, now issued for the first time in German.

There are also several big features in this month's popular records. One of them is the record by Commander Robert E. Pearry on the "Discovery of the North Pole" in which the great explorer gives an absorbing description of his journey to the apex of the earth. The three new records by Harry Lauder, added to the new Lauder series, are sure to make a hit.

There are many other records for the month that will create great enthusiasm.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HIBBING MILITIA TO BE INSPECTED

Company M Will Be Passed Upon By Officials Tuesday Evening.

Hibbing, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—This evening Company M will undergo a regular inspection at the armory conducted by Lieut-Col. Gerlack of St. Poul and Capt. Buggie of the Twenty-seventh infantry, Fort Snelling.

The home of Nick Dockman of the Penobscot location was burned to the ground Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The fire started from an overheated stove. Dockman is said to have carried $500 insurance.

The Iron Range Lodge of Perfection No. 8 A. A. S. R., southern jurisdiction, has elected the following officers: F. A. Wildes, venerable pastor; J. A. Robinson, senior warden; W. N. Trennery, junior warden; S. L. Holtzlander, orator; G. H. Thompson, almoner; George Eubanks, secretary; J. L. Stewart, treasurer.

At the meeting of the Royal League the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. L. Lewis, archon; E. C. Booth, vice archon; Ed. Tatro, scribe; C. M. Bates, collector; E. Abbott, treasurer; Dr. Dryden, Max Rogalsky and L. O. Kirby, trustees.

Sunday afternoon Miss Sumner and Miss Ingalls entertained a number of their friends at luncheon in the green room of the Hibbing cafe in honor of Miss Russell of Superior. Music was furnished by Olsen's orchestra. Those present were: The Misses Swain, Bollinger, Pinkerton, Russell, Sumner and Ingalls.

S. O. Geiser has left for International Falls for a few days on business.

J. A. McIntyre returned home Monday noon from Duluth and Virginia.

Miss Ernia Young, who spent Sunday in Duluth with her parents, returned home Monday noon.

Mrs. A. Mallough returned home Sunday evening after an extended trip to the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kearney left Monday on an extended trip through the Western states.

VIRGINIA BOARD MUCH INCENSED

Indignant Over Report on School Affairs and Demands Explanation.

Virginia, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report on the clerk and treasurer's books of this school district made by County Examiner A. J. Wasgott and Capt. Theodore H. James has been gone over by the board of education. The report is said to have been so full of errors, misstatements and derogatory insinuations that the board has summoned Mr. Wasgott to appear before it on Friday evening next, to defend his position taken in the report. Two months previous to his last examination of the books of the district, Mr. Wasgott made an examination of the books dating from 1905 up to July, 1909, and in his report following gave the district a clean bill.

In view of his position then and the position he has taken in the last report, the board does not consider the later any report at all, but a jumbled up mass of errors, misstatements, insinuations and statements derogatory to the character of the members of the board.

Wasgott Must Explain.

The members of the board are incensed over the contents of the report, and they want Mr. Wasgott to appear before them and explain. The board claims that the books of the district are kept in an efficient manner and that every cent expended can be accounted for, also that the affairs of the board and the management of the schools are open and above board, that there has been no graft as insinuated, or willful waste of money in running the schools, and that its officers and members stand ready at all times for a thorough investigation.

Wasgott's report involves a number of prominent citizens, who will be on hand at the meeting to defend their positions and seek for a full and complete explanation of the statements made in the report. Friends of the board and of the schools are indignant over the report, and the meeting Friday night should be interesting.

LOGGER IS CRUSHED.

John Woods Having Relatives in Grand Rapids Loses Life.

Bemidji, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coroner M. E. Ibertson has returned from the logging camps of William Gibson, east of Kithi lake, in the southeastern end of Beltrami county, where he was called to examine the body of John Woods, who was accidentally killed. The coroner found that death had been caused by an accident, and deemed it unnecessary to hold an inquest. The body was shipped to Grand Rapids, Minn., for burial. Woods having a brother and a sister residing at that place.

Woods was driving a team at a dangerous point where logs were being landed, and in some manner got in the way of some timber and was killed, his head and arms being crushed, and death ensuing almost instantly.

LA RUE MINE IS VERY BUSY PLACE

Stripping and Other Operations at Nashwauk Property Going on.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The La Rue mine is doing an extensive amount of work this winter under the superintending of William Hart, formerly of Hibbing, who has been engaged by the Hanna company, which recently leased the mine from the Pittsburg Iron Ore company.

The Butler Bros., strippers, who have the contract to uncover the ore body at the old No. 2 shaft, have two shovels engaged with day and night shifts, and their dump shows the enormous amount of dirt that is being taken out.

Work at the No. 1 shaft is progressing, and new drifts are being extended which will be used next summer. The No. 3 shaft, which is composed of two compartments and located southwest of No. 1 shaft, is progressing rapidly, considering the small force of men employed. In the course of two months' time it will be completed and ready for use.

John White, an employe at the Butler Bros.' stripping, was seriously burned about the face, caused by the explosion of a gasoline torch Saturday night. Mr. White is now in a critical condition at the hospital.

HAS LOTS OF DOORS.

Two Harbors Saloon Is Well Provided With Entrances.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Patrons of Peter Lager's saloon here, which is in the limelight because of allegations that the place is not being run in accordance with the laws, can have no trouble in entering or leaving, as it is said to have five doors. This developed from an investigation made by members of the city council. Lager was to have appeared before the council at the regular meeting last night, but was unable to do so, and the examination into the charges against him went over.

The council decided to purchase for $490 the chemical wagon that has been tested.

EXPECT OPPOSITION.

People Opposed to Virginia School Board Are Active.

Virginia, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is expected there will be opposition manifested at the special bond election to be held at the Roosevelt high school next Saturday, from 2 to 5 p. m., to vote on the $15,000 bond issue, which carried once, but has to be voted on again because of a technicality. Friends of the board fear an effort at the last minute to defeat the proposition by certain enemies of the board, and there promises to be a heavy vote polled by the friends and enemies of the board. The money derived from the bonds is to be used completing the new technical high school.

ONLY ONE OVERLOOKED.

All of Other Coleraine Village Officials Are Renominated.

Caleraine, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—All but one of the present village officials, William J. Stock, recorder, were renominated at the caucus just held, Simon H. Forsberg receiving seventy votes to twenty-three for Mr. Stock and three scattering. President M. Curley was renominated without opposition, as were Trustees Mott, Nelson and Goodwin. Walter C. Bollinger was renominated treasurer and Harry J. Cooper justice of the peace.

JUDGE BRADY'S FAMILY HAVING SICKNESS SIEGE.

Hibbing, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge T. F. Brady's son, Thomas Brady, Jr., who has been sick for the past ten days with ailment of his throat and stomach, will probably undergo an operation today. Mr. Brady received a message Monday afternoon from Madison, Wis., telling of the serious illness of his mother. He will probably be called to Madison.

CHISHOLM 500 CLUB IS ENTERTAINED IN HIBBING.

Hibbing, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Nels Nelson of Chisholm and Mrs. Olson of Hibbing entertained the Five Hundred club of Chisholm Saturday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock in honor of Mrs. Nelson's sister, Miss Margaret Jenson, of Sebeka, Minn., at the home of Mrs. Olson at 101 Washington street. Five hundred was played at four tables. Mrs. E. R. Casey carried off the first honors, a cut glass dish. The second prize, a brass candle holder, was awarded to Mrs. John Kritz. Mrs. R. S. O'Neal secured a bedroom picture for the foot prize. A delicious lunch was served from 4:30 to 6 o'clock in the beautifully decorated dining room of the Olson home. Those present from Chisholm were: Mesdames R. S. O'Neal, E. A. Rydeen, W. M. Conely, Frank Austin, E. J. Casey, Dan La Doux, Jr., Ed Freeman, M. Harris, L. Tallor, A. L. Cumming, Fred Murt, M. Meyers, G. L. Train and Jones. Hibbing guests were: E. A. Barrett, John Kritz, Robert Geiselman and Miss Jenson of Sebeka.

MORE SALOON MEN FINED.

Two Eveleth Booze Dispensers, Mixed in Scandal, Get Theirs.

Eveleth, Minn. March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Renni, a saloonkeeper, familiarly known as "Joe, The Red," was haled into court yesterday on the charge of selling liquor to a minor, Paul Pachiano, and fined $50 and costs which he paid. On a charge of buying the pool and billiard balls from Paul Pachiano, which the latter stole from the Elks hall, Renni pleaded guilty and was given a fine of $10 and costs which he paid.

The case against Caesar Caplinelli, another saloon keeper who was convicted Friday of selling liquor to Pachiano, was tried for buying the pool balls Pachiano had stolen and was fined $10 and costs, which he paid.

EVELETH CITY COUNCIL.

Has Several Matters to Be Acted Upon Today.

Eveleth, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many interesting subjects will be discussed this evening by the city council. The council will hear local citizens interested in paving Grant avenue.

The application of Frank Steblay for renewal of liquor license, as Steblay was recently tried in municipal court on the charge of selling liquor to a minor, will also be considered.

The proposition of changing the present water charging system to a meter system and the using of slack instead of lump coal at the pumping station will also be acted upon. The building of a quarantine hospital and the liquor license raising matters will also be considered.

EVELETH NEWS NOTES.

Eveleth, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Forty Elks left on a special chartered car for Hibbing last evening to attend the banquet given by the Hibbing Elks and also assist in initiatory ceremonies.

DR. M. B. CULLUM BACK IN MAYOR'S CHAIR

hands of the police department, causing renewed interest in the mayor's appointment of a chief.

Mayor Cullum stated this morning that he has not had time yet to find out where he is at. He expects that it will take at least a couple of weeks to get on to the routine, after which he will take steps towards inaugurating new policies.

The mayor said that he will send his list of appointees to the city council next Tuesday night when that body meets to organize for the coming year. Until that time he has nothing to say on the subject.

His secretary will likely be John H. McCall, formerly advertising manager of the Silberstein & Bondy company. He has excellent qualifications for the position and has a wide acquaintance in the city.

Bert Fesler will be city attorney. His assistants are said to be Oliver S. Andreson and Walter Dacy, both young local attorneys of ability. Mr. Andreson, it is said, will be assistant to Attorney Fesler, while Mr. Dacy, it is claimed, will have charge of the city's criminal prosecutions.

Much pressure is being brought to bear on Mayor Cullum to retain Dr. F. J. Patton as health commissioner and Chief Troyer as the head of the police department. During the two years he has had charge of the health department Dr. Patton has made an excellent record, cleaning up dairies, bakeries, meat shops, inaugurating a municipal system of garbage collection and making improvements which have been of permanent benefit. He was also been very fair and impartial, granting favors to none.

May Retain Troyer.

The belief is growing that Chief Troyer will be kept where he is. The sentiment expressed is that no one could be found in the city who could fill the place as well as the present incumbent. Chief Troyer served four years under Dr. Cullum during his previous administration so that his qualifications are as well known to him as any one in the city.

T. F. McGilvray will be retained as city engineer and it is thought that S. M. Kielley will be reappointed building inspector. Both are Democrats and held over during the recent Republican administration. No name was sent to the council for Mr. Kielley's place and the council refused to confirm E. K. Coe as Mr. McGilvray's successor.

Dr. Cullum will also have to fill some places on the various boards of the city, including the board of fire commissioners, the water and light board, the civil service board and the library board. None of these positions have salaries attached to them.

R. E. Patterson, successor to James Preston, president of the board of public works, resigned, was on the job this morning for the first time. He is a Republican and has one year to serve. Mr. Preston was appointed by Mayor Haven. Dr. Cullum will have a vacancy to fill on the board, the term of O. G. Olson having about expired. Mr. Olson says he will not accept a reappointment. He has been on the board six years. This leaves Andrew J. Meldahl the only remaining member. He was appointed a year ago and has two years to serve. The appointment does not require confirmation by the council, which, however, must approve the bonds.

EARN THEIR A. B. IN HOME TOWN HALLS

Massachusetts May Adopt Educational Plan For All the People.

Boston, Mass., March 1.—A college education without going to college, at a price so low as to be within reach of all is the plan of a bill which has just been signed by Governor Draper. The bill incorporates the trustees of "the Massachusetts college," who hope to raise $500,000 in addition to the $100,000 already in their hands to put their project into execution.

The plan is to give college instruction in various towns and cities, using the town halls for lecture and recitation rooms. The degree of B. A. will be given after about seven or eight years of this "university extension" study.

AMERICANS WILL HOLD BERLIN EXPO

Original Plans Will Be Carried Out, According to the Directors.

Berlin, March 1.—The American exposition will be held here this summer, as originally planned. The directors held a conference today over the suggestion of the American commissioners that the exposition be postponed until 1911 and then converted into an American-German exposition. General Manager Willner was authorized to cable to the American committee the decision of the directors, and in doing so to explain that the recent statement authorized by the ministry of the interior, outlining the government's attitude toward American exhibitors, was considered satisfactory, and that in the light of all the circumstances any obstacle to holding the exposition as recently planned had been removed.

FILES HIS AFFIDAVIT

Senator George R. Laybourn Wants Another Term in State Senate.

Declares Himself for Reapportionment in Speaking of His Platform.

State Senator George R. Laybourn yesterday filed his affidavit for the Republican nomination to succeed himself as state senator from the Fifty-first district. The district comprises a part of St. Louis and also Lake and Cook counties.

Mr. Laybourn is serving his second term in the state senate. He is one of the oldest members of that body and is considered one of the strongest Northern Minnesota members on the floor.

Besides being a member of the principal senate committees, including the committee on taxes and tax laws, municipal legislation, insurance, elections, reapportionment, he did valiant service in the fight against the tonnage tax.

Mr. Laybourn, in speaking of his platform, said this morning:

"My platform has always been and still is to promote and protect the interests of the state in general and those of St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties in particular. Reapportionment is the big issue this year. I favor it strongly and to take effect at once. I favor a bill of this kind even though it would cut the term of the newly elected senators in two, making the time two years instead of four."

Although the election is some months off the senator is getting his guns in shape for the coming campaign and from this time on will wage a vigorous campaign.

tive Mr. Vertrees deemed to be undesirable.

George W. Pepper, representing Mr. Pinchot, had agreed that the summoning of the president would be undesirable, but had declared that the conversations were necessary as the foundation for further testimony.

Pinchot to Name Witnesses.

There was no indication this morning as to how much longer Mr. Pinchot would remain on the stand. He will be succeeded by others called by him to substantiate the specific charges he has made against the secretary of the interior. Among these witnesses, it was announced, would be officers in the government reclamation service.

When the public hearing opened, Attorney Pepper began to question Mr. Pinchot as to the sequence of events following July 1, 1909, when the former forester said he first heard of the Cunningham claims through forest officials in the West. When he heard what his subordinates in Washington had done at Glavis' request, looking to the postponement of the hearing of the Cunningham claims, Mr. Pinchot said he approved thoroughly.

Letter From Roosevelt.

Asked if there was anything unusual in the interference of the forest service, Mr. Pinchot read a letter signed by President Roosevelt on May 17, 1905, directing the secretary of the interior to co-operate with the forestry service as to lands in forest reserve and to adopt the service's findings as far as possible.

The witness next told of his interview with Glavis at Spokane, on Aug. 9, 1909. The meeting was not by appointment, and Mr. Pinchot said he possibly had met Glavis once before, he was not sure. Glavis laid all his evidence before him, Mr. Pinchot said, and spoke of publishing the whole story.

Tried to Avoid Scandal.

"I was deeply impressed by what Glavis said, and urged him to go to the president. I did this because I thought a scandal would arise, as it since has arisen, and I thought the president ought to have an opportunity to protect himself and his administration."

Mr. Pinchot read in evidence the letter of introduction he gave Glavis to the president. In this letter he said he had known Glavis for several years. The witness explained again that he thought he had met Glavis once before. At any rate, he said, he had known of him for several years. As to Law Officer Shaw's going to Chicago to assist Glavis in the preparation of his statement to the president, Mr. Pinchot said the impression had gone forth that Shaw had assisted Glavis in preparing an article published in a weekly paper. This was not true, the witness declared, for such an article could not have been in contemplation when Shaw was with Glavis.

Letter From Taft.

After being in Spokane, Mr. Pinchot said, he went for a vacation off the southern coast of California with Senator Flint.

The witness here read into the evidence the full text of a letter written to him by President Taft from Beverly, Mass., Sept. 13, 1909, at the same time he wrote to Secretary Ballinger exonerating him from the Glavis charges. In this letter the president expressed renewed confidence in Mr. Pinchot, but urged him not to make Glavis' cause his own. He referred to Glavis as disingenuous and as a man who had let one idea run away with his judgment. The president expressed regret that Mr. Pinchot did not share his confidence and trust in Mr. Ballinger. Mr. Pinchot also read his reply to the president, dated Nov. 4, 1909, in which he renewed his criticism of Secretary Ballinger.

Talked With the President.

Mr. Pinchot said he talked with President Taft about the Ballinger-Glavis matter in Salt Lake last September.

Mr. Pepper here publicly announced that Mr. Pinchot desired to acquiesce in the view of Mr. Vertrees, that conversations with the president should not be repeated. The witness declared, however, that he was breaking no "seal of confidence" in giving out letters to and from the president.

Mr. Pepper read a communication which was written Nov. 6 last to President Taft by Former Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield, and in which the latter sharply criticised Mr. Ballinger.

Letter From Garfield.

"The claim that I acted illegally," said Garfield, "is based entirely upon the fundamental difference between my policy and that of Mr. Ballinger. I felt free, under the supervisory power and executive discretion of a cabinet officer, to take action in the interest of the people, so far as there was no prohibitory provision of law. Mr. Ballinger seems to take the position that he will not act, even in the interest of the people, unless there is a specific permissory or mandatory provision of law."

The Garfield letter then proceeded with a detailed explanation of what had been done in the matter of water power withdrawals in his administration.

Letter From Ballinger.

There was next read Secretary Ballinger's reply to President Taft regarding the Garfield and Pinchot letters. In this letter Mr. Ballinger said:

"I am convinced that much of the animus against me is due to the fact that I have had to find so many of my predecessor's acts were without warrant of law."

TRAILED BY THE FEVER

fever at noon today.

At a camp adjoining that occupied by the Americans here an English sportsman is seriously ill, following a trip to Kampala, the capital of Uganda and one of the places at which the Smithsonian African scientific expedition stopped.

District Commissioner Stricken.

The district commissioner of Gondokoro, the British officials of which were most active in entertaining their American guests, has been stricken with the fever and today is confined to his bed.

Mr. Presch did missionary work in Africa for ten years, during which time his health was gradually undermined by the debilitating climate. His collapse today is attributed to a weakened condition that could not resist an attack which he might have survived a few years ago.

When Col. Roosevelt and others of his party left here on the steamer Dal yesterday they were all apparently in good health and little the worse for their rough experiences.

NINE THOUSAND TAKEN IN FINES

Danville, Ky., Is Waging Hot War on Bootleggers and Blind Tigers.

Danville, Ky., March 1.—Recent raids on "blind tigers" in Danville and vicinity have resulted in more than 250 arrests, with convictions in 155 cases and fully a hundred more cases to be tried.

Fines already assessed for violations of the liquor laws aggregate $9,000, besides workhouse sentences imposed.

Danville is one of Kentucky's "dry" spots, and in the effort to enforce the laws even the trains are watched. When persons arrive who are thought to bear a resemblance to "bootleggers," the strangers are searched before being allowed on the streets. Private flasks frequently are confiscated, and in instances where the "flask" has been unusually large, the owners have been added to the overflowing population of the town jail.

KING PETER CLIMBING.

Servian Ruler May at Last Be Received By Europe.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—The Novoe Vremya announces authoritatively that King Peter of Servia will visit St. Petersburg the coming spring. This will be the monarch's first reception by a foreign sovereign since his accession, and probably will lead to a general lifting of the ban by European courts, from which King Peter has been excluded because of the circumstances attending his elevation to the throne.

ELLIS GOING TO OHIO.

His Successor in Department of Justice Not Yet Named.

Washington, March 1.—Wade H. Ellis, assistant to the attorney general, who has been chosen as chairman of the Ohio Republican state committee, will leave Washington for Cincinnati and Columbus tonight. He expects to return Saturday.

Attorney General Wickersham is not yet ready to announce the name of Mr. Ellis' successor. Nominally, Mr. Ellis' connection with the office expired today, but he will continue to perform some of the necessary work until the appointment and qualification of his successor.

FIREMAN KILLED BY FALL.

Drops Ten Stories While Fighting Flames in New York.

New York, March 1.—In fighting a fire which enveloped the top part of a 12-story Murray street building occupied by printing firms, Harry Burgess, a fireman, accidentally strode into the elevator shaft and dropped ten stories. He was picked up dead. The Rudder Publishing company suffered $25,000 damage by the flames.

Another fire caused a scare in the Sterling hotel on Seventh avenue. Fifty guests were stampeded to the street in scanty attire.

The Slim Woman Is Winning

The day of the slini woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers.

This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly.

These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, and they are, also, the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of 12 or 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmola Company, 491 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

DULUTH WAS FORMER HOME OF CASWELL

William Caswell, Formerly in Photograph and Real Estate Business Here, Dead.

Called in Grand Forks and Funeral Will Be Held There Wednesday.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral will be held here of a pioneer Minnesota and Dakotan, William Caswell, who died at his home here Sunday following several months' suffering from paralysis. Mr. Caswell, previous to the time he took up his residence in Grand Forks, made his home in Duluth, where for many years he was a prominent business man, leaving that city for Winnipeg and later coming to Grand Forks.

While a resident of Duluth Mr. Craswell was engaged in the photograph business, and he also handled real estate to a great extent. His marriage to Miss Charlotte Atkinson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atkinson of Detroit, Mich., occurred in Duluth. On leaving that city Mr. Craswell went to Winnipeg, remaining there only a year, after which he came to Grand Forks. Winnipeg and Grand Forks were not then connected by railroads, and he made the trip on the Red river in one of the pioneer day steamers that plied that stream. He has made his home here ever since that time.

AUTOMOBILIST OF ST. PAUL INDICTED

Frederick Camp Must Answer for Causing Death of Mrs. Thompson.

St. Paul, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frederick H. Camp has been indicted by the Hennepin county grand jury on a charge of manslaughter. The indictment was returned to Judge W. E. Hale yesterday. It accused Mr. Camp of causing the death of Mrs. D. R. Thompson, 2125 James avenue north, who was struck by an automobile Sept. 17 last year.

Mrs. Thompson was killed as she alighted from a street car at Crystal Lake and Ilion avenues north. She stepped from the car, turned back to get her suit case from the conductor, and then backed away.

At that moment an automobile occupied by Mr. Camp and a party of friends struck her and hurled her to the ground. The machine was stopped and witnesses carried Mrs. Thompson to a nearby lawn. She died shortly afterward.

Mr. Camp is manager of Wonderland park

IS SUSPENDED DOWN IN WELL

Farmer Living Near Flaxton, N. D., Has Close Call From Drowning.

Flaxton, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Suspended from cleats in the curbing on the side of a well, nearly 130 feet below the surface of the ground, T. J. Kinsalla, a farmer residing near here, had a frightful experience. Kinsalla, while endeavoring to repair some damage in the well, went down quite a few feet, and while at work lost his footing, falling. His clothing became caught in the cleats just above the water line, checking his fall and saving his life. For several hours he maintained his position just over the water, and was finally rescued by a neighbor who had seen him go down in the well, and who thought that something must be wrong when he did not return to the surface.

BEMIDJI DITCH CONTRACT.

Is Awarded to Peter Nehl of Sebeka for $2,300.

Bemidji, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Auditor Hayner has let the contract for the construction of judicial ditch No. 2, which is within the limits of the city of Bemidji, and for the construction of which several contractors offered bids. The contract was let to Peter Nehl of Sebeka, whose bid was for the sum of $2,300.

Three others offered bids as follows: Carl Heffron, Bemidji, $3,000; Kahle's Contracting company, Little Falls, $2,445.13; A. D. Peterson, Brainerd, $2,331.

It is estimated that the ditch and its laterals will drain about 200 acres of land adjacent to the city and part within the city limits. The ditch will especially drain some 140 acres of land belonging to Carl Heffron, and Mr. Heffron states that he will put in tiling on the larger part of this land. According to the state drainage engineer, George Ralph, the ditch and the tiling will so drain the land that the same will be in condition to till within ninety days after the ditch and tiling are in place and completed.

BOARD PRICES SOAR.

Restaurant Men of Houghton Boost Meal Ticket Prices.

Houghton, Mich., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Beginning today, the high cost of living strikes the "hamand" belt of Houghton, as the meal ticket restaurants have boosted prices. Board is $25 per month for straight feed, and the meal ticket will be quoted at $6, a raise of 100 per cent. Single meals are 35 cents, thus keeping pace with the raise in haircuts. All of the restaurants and dollar-a-day hotels in Houghton unite in the new schedule.

PROSPEROUS WISCONSIN FARMER CUTS THROAT.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., March 1.—Bert Robinson, a prosperous farmer, aged about 50 years, committed suicide yesterday at his home in the town of Edson, near Boyd, by slashing his throat with a razor. He is survived by his wife and five children. He came to Chippewa county two years ago from Waupaca, Wis. He was a brother of Peter Robinson of this city. So far no reasons have been divulged for his deed.

POKER PLAYERS FINED.

Five Sandstone Sports Haled Into Court for Manipulating Cards.

Sandstone, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of arrests have been made for gambling in one of the "dry saloons." Two of a quintet brought before the justice of the peace pleaded guilty to the charge of playing poker and paid their fines, while the remainder will stand trial, March 9.

The "broken heart" social given by the Good Templars last Saturday night for the benefit of John Lundquist, an invalid, was well attended. About $40 was realized.

LAST MEETING SUNDAY.

Sandstone's Union Temperance Gatherings to End Then.

Sandstone, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The union services are drawing to a close and next Sunday evening at the opera house will be held the last meeting of the anti-saloon workers before the village election takes place on the following Tuesday. Every effort is being made by the "drys" to keep the saloon out of Sandstone another year.

Rev. J. A. Johnstone, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church here, now of Minneapolis, and who was chiefly instrumental in causing the town to go "dry" last year, spoke to the large audience Sunday night and Charles Scanlon, secretary of the Board of Presbyterian Temperance Work of New York city, will address the people here next Sunday.

WOULD SEGREGATE LINES.

Kellogg Is Against Railroads Owning the Steamship Lines.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank B. Kellogg, special attorney for the United States government in the Standard Oil case, in an address before the Twin City Traffic club last night, advocated government legislation that would prevent the ownership of steamship lines by railroads, which destroys competition and results in high traffic charges.

"What is the use of this country spending $500,000,000 on the Panama canal so that steamer lines may compete with railroads and reduce prices, if the steamers are controlled by the railroads?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

He said that there is only one steamship line operating independently on the seaboards that is an independent trade factor.

Mr. Kellogg said that the proposed amendments to the interstate commerce law would render the commission's function, more efficient and prevent long litigation.

ACCUSED ONE DISCHARGED.

No Evidence Redtke Sent Poison to Litchfield Girl.

Litchfield, Minn., March 1.—Leo Radtke, bachelor, 35 years old, arrested on a charge of sending poisoned candy to Minnie Luthens, 20 years old, who is said to have rejected his attentions, was discharged from custody, when his case came before Judge Bacon here. County Attorney Sexton said that upon examination of the alleged evidence against Radtke he had concluded there were not sufficient grounds to maintain an action.

Radtke, when questioned by the judge, denied emphatically that he had sent the candy.

LONG PRAIRIE WATER TANK GOES TO PIECES.

Long Prairie, Minn., March 1.—The hoops on the water tank perched on a high hill overlooking the town weakened by rust, broke yesterday morning, and with a report heard all over town, the village's water supply broke from its bonds.

About $500 damage resulted, and until the tank can be replaced, the town's fire fighting ability will be seriously crippled.

MILWAUKEE CONCERN HAS HEAVY FIRE LOSS.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The big plant of the Milwaukee Stamping Works, Sixty-fourth and Pullen avenues, West Allis, was almost destroyed by fire early this morning. The loss may reach $50,000.

The plant manufactured hardware specialties. About 100 men were employed.

WOMAN HANGS SELF NEAR FERGUS FALLS.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 1.—Karen O. Aarhus, aged 56 years, hanged herself at her home ten miles north of here Sunday. She had gone out to milk a cow and was found hanging from a rafter in the barn. She and her husband went to Norway last year and he did not wish to return. She came back alone and has been melancholy ever since.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Negaunee—The board of education has decided to close the schools on the evening of Wednesday, March 23, for the Easter vacation, and to reopen them on Monday, the 29th.

Ishpeming—Dominick Papa, one of Ishpeming's best known Italian residents, died suddenly Sunday morning while attending a meeting of the Ishpeming Italian society in the Convent hall. Papa was about 60 years of age and is survived by six adult sons and daughters. He conducted a shoe repairing business.

Marquette — Richard and George Hicks were enrolled at the branch prison Sunday, having been sent up from Pontiac for burglary, under sentence of from seven and one-half to fifteen years. These two were brothers of Monroe Hicks, the Pontiac hotel keeper who was recently sentenced to Jackson, and were implicated with him in wholesale robberies.

Negaunee—Miss Bessie Gilbert of this city and William Tippett of Ishpeming were united in marriage Friday afternoon at the Mitchell Methodist church parsonage, Rev. D. C. Plannett, the pastor, performed the ceremony.

Houghton—Nick Minkinen, an epileptic, who has been detained at the county jail for some time and who has been known among the prisoners as the only man in jail who had papers to prove he was not crazy, has been returned to the county infirmary.

Hancock—Amabile Laverni, the Hancock girl who refuses to live with her parents because she says they abuse her, was taken before Judge Bentley in the juvenile court Saturday on a charge of being a wayward child, made by her parents. The court sentenced the girl to the Adrian industrial school, but suspended the sentence and placed her in the custody of the county agent.

Rockland—Edward Perron's blacksmith and wagonmaking building here was destroyed by fire early Saturday. The firemen managed to save much adjacent property.

Dollar Bay—A musical chorus has been organized in the Dollar Bay high school which is composed of both boys and girls. The chorus rendered two numbers at the meeting Friday, and will also appear next Friday evening at the Swedish hall.

Hancock—Rev. Dr. D. D. Martin, field secretary of Albion college of Albion, Mich., conducted four special evangelistic services at the Hancock M. E. church, Friday and Saturday evening. He addressed large audiences Sunday.

Calumet—George Martin, former township treasurer of Calumet has announced his candidacy for the nomination and election to the office of township clerk at the coming caucus and election. The election will take place during April. Mr. Martin has been a lifelong resident of Calumet and is well known.

Lake Linden—Henry Marcotte is the latest to announce himself as a candidate for office in the township of Schoolcraft. The term of Henry Dullinger expires this spring. Mr. Marcotte has been induced to make the run by a number of his friends and should make a good showing.

Hancock—The Metz Cloak & Millinery company of Hancock changed hands Saturday. The purchasers are the New York & St. Louis Salvage company, M. B. Selvey, manager, who purchased the entire stock now situated in the store formerly occupied by the Metz Cloak & Millinery company.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Lankin, N. D.—In an election held Saturday, the people of the Lankin and Galt school districts overwhelmingly turned down the proposition of consolidating, there being only four votes favorable to the plan. The vote was left entirely in the hands of Devils Lake, N. D. A humane society has been organized with these officers: Vice president, S. L. Wineman; delegates, Mrs. H. M. Creel and Mrs. S. L. Wineman; directors, Mrs. Falger, Mrs. Creel, Mrs. Wineman, Mrs. Rodenbach, Miss Wineman, L. J. Wehe, Carl Baarson and S. L. Wineman. The election of a president was postponed until the next meeting.

Bismarck, N. D.—Maj. Steadman, U. S. A., has returned to the city, his furlough having expired. He will be the government representative in North Dakota, in connection with the government control of the militia under the Dick bill.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Mrs. Cerinda Lord, aged 74, wife of E. C. Lord, and mother of Mrs. T. Y. Stevenson and George Lord of this city, and an army nurse, passed away at the family residence, 1002 West Fifth street, on Wednesday afternoon with heart trouble.

Fargo, N. D.—Dr. C. C. Creegan of Fargo college has left for the East, to be gone for about six weeks. He will visit New York and Boston and other points in the Eastern states in the interests of the college and will secure a head for the art department, which is to be one of the departments of Fargo college next year.

Litchville, N. D.—A deplorable accident occurred here on the W. Reidman farm, ten miles north of town, when a 3-month-old baby boy of Andrew Wachter, who is renting the farm, was scalded with hot coffee about the face and arms in such a manner that death resulted.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The Public Health league will hold a meeting on Thursday evening, March 3, in the auditorium of the Public Library building. Drs. Ruediger and Grassick will speak on "Tuberculosis" and Dr. Williamson will read a paper on "Visiting Nursing, Its History and Purpose."

Minot, N. D.—A deal has been consumated whereby W. M. Smart purchased the stock of A. I. Arrivee in the Farm Mortgage & Investment company, thereby becoming the heaviest stockholder in the concern.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—Hale and hearty and very much up-to-date, Mrs. Louise Bright, a pioneer of sixty-eight years' residence in Milwaukee, celebrated her ninety-third birthday in the house she entered as a bride, 193 South Water street, Thursday. Mrs. Bright came to Milwaukee in 1842.

Tomahawk—What was probably the largest pine tree in this part of the state was cut at the John Oelhafen logging camp near here. The tree scaled 4,000 feet of white pine and was estimated to be worth about $150.

Ashland—A syndicate of wealthy Illinois farmers has formed a pool and purchased over 4,000 acres of land in this vicinity. They will begin clearing it at once, and believe they have one of the most fertile pieces of land in Wisconsin.

Oshkosh—Oshkosh fishermen are interested in the resignation of Calvert Spensely of Mineral Point as one of the members of the state fish commission, and say that this section of the state should be considered in the appointment to fill the vacancy.

Marinette—That none of the fish spawn, or at the most a small percentage only, live after being removed from the hatchery cans and placed in the waters at Green Bay, is the opinion of Capt. James Larson, a veteran fisherman and steamboat man. He backs up his statement with figures in which he takes the whitefish for an example.

Port Wing—A new fishing and packing plant will probably be established at Port Wing during the coming summer by Kansas City capitalists. A site for a fish dock has already been secured and it is expected that the dock and necessary buildings will be completed in time for use this year. The site is 400 feet long by 225 feet wide.

Kenosha—Charles N. Frost, aged 66 years, president of the Frost Manufacturing company, and one of the best known of the manufacturers of Kenosha, died at his home in this city at an early hour Sunday morning, after a long illness from diabetes.

Madison—State Bank Commissioner M. C. Berga on Saturday issued a charter to the Farmers and Merchants bank of Kilbourn. The capital stock is $20,000. R. D. Barney is president and A. C. Tennison cashier of the new bank.

Milwaukee—Mrs. Henrietta Friend, widow of Meyer Friend of Milwaukee, died on Saturday in Frankfort on the Main. Mrs. Friend was a sister of Mrs. Recha Eisen, this city. Twelve years ago Mrs. Friend left Milwaukee to live in Frankfort on the Main, and had resided there since.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

International Falls—Telephone service between International Falls and the Loman railroad camps at Nakota has been established by the local exchange, its heavy copper wire having been strung for that distance. The Loman extension will be made as fast as the clearing of the right-of-way will permit. The service will prove a boon to the settlers.

Littlefork—It is stated that E. J. Holler, formerly of this place, has successfully passed the required examination and that he will be appointed as immigrant inspector at some point in the near future.

Mankato—Mrs. Anna Thygesen of Rochester died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Anderson, here. She was born April 6, 1837, in Denmark, and was one of the first settlers in Rochester, where she was well known and had many friends.

Cass Lake—A notice has been received by the United States land office here granting homesteaders a leave of absence of three months from Jan. 28, 1910. Entrymen who avail themselves of this leave of absence cannot claim credit for residence during the time they are absent under such leave.

Badger—Lars A. Hedlund, aged 59, one of the substantial farmers of the town of Skagen, died at his home west of town Feb. 22. He emmigrated to the United States with his family in 1890, coming to Grand Forks. He moved to Roseau county in 1894, settling on the present homestead.

Grand Marais—The following are the delegates named by the governor to represent Cook county at the state conservation congress: Lee Anderson of Tofte, Chris Murphy, Perry Nelson, Elling Olson, Hans Gulbranson, William Ellquist and John Nelson, all of Grand Marais; John Westlund, John Eliason and Knute Saegrove, all of Hovland; I. B. Gaskill of Schroeder, C. A. Hokanson of Lutsen.

Winona—Winona's recruiting station for the United States marines, which has been in charge of Sergeant George Bannard, has been closed and Bannard transferred to the Pacific coast, where he will have charge of another recruiting office.

Baudette—Work at the site of the Engler Lumber company's sawmill at Baudette, which has been delayed somewhat awaiting the arrival of the large timber from the coast, is now in full swing again. The timbers have arrived, and the work will now progress at a rapid rate.

Deer River—The Commercial club has elected S. J. Moran and George Ruby as delegates to the county organization convention of the Northern Minnesota Development association, which will be held at Grand Rapids March 10.

Crookston—Mrs. O. E. Booher probably lost the sight of her left eye in a strange manner. She was trying to pull a nail out of the wall by a string that was attached to it. The nail came out suddenly and imbedded itself in her left eyeball, inflicting a painful and dangerous injury. It is hardly thought that the eyesight can be saved.

Moorhead—The Moorhead high school basket ball team won from Frazee Friday evening by a score of 26 to 6. The first half ended 11 to 6 in favor of Moorhead and in the second half Moorhead blanked her opponents and added 15 points to her own score.

Aitkin—The affairs of the town of Aitkin are in prosperous condition, according to Town Treasurer Frank Dotzler. Last year at this time the indebtedness of the town was about $2,200, while today it is only $1,678.25, represented by outstanding warrants.

Hill City—Aitkin county now has a third incorporated village, the people of Hill City having last week by their votes decided to incorporate.

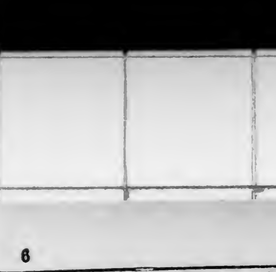
Consumption and Cold Checked

Mrs. Susan Gautier did not know what a real night's rest was until she used Juffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Now she feels like a new woman and sleeps better than she has in years.

Read her interesting letter: "I had lung and stomach trouble for 30 years and tried all kinds of medicines that were recommended for consumption, but received little benefit from them. I was completely run down. In May I had a bad hemorrhage from my lungs, came very near bleeding to death and could not sit up. My doctor advised me to use plenty of stimulants. A few days before I had the hemorrhage I had seen an advertisement recommending Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a cure for consumption. I wrote for your Medical booklet and a bottle of whiskey to try. I had not taken it three days before I could feel its beneficial effects. Now I can sleep all night without coughing, while before I did not know what a good night's rest was, and I have a good appetite, do all of my own housework and feel better than I have in a great many years I know it is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey that has done me so much good, and I would not be without it. I can't find words to express what your medical whiskey has done for me." Mrs. Susan Gautier, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 7, Washington, N. C.



Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating tonic and stimulant. It aids in destroying disease, and by its building and healing properties assists in restoring tissues in a gradual, healthy, natural manner. It is a wonderful remedy in the prevention and cure of consumption, pneumonia, grippe, bronchitis, coughs, colds, asthma, malaria, low fevers, stomach troubles and all wasting, weakening and diseased conditions, if taken as directed. You should have it in your home. It will help you.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. It's an absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey, and is sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00 a large bottle. Write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for doctors' advice and a valuable illustrated medical booklet, containing testimonials and rare common sense rules for health, both sent free.

WEST END

DELEGATES TO MEETING

West End Will Be Represented at County Option Convention.

Churches and Temperance Organizations Send Members to St. Paul.

West end churches and temperance organizations have chosen delegates to the county option convention, which will be held tomorrow at St. Paul. The convention is expected to pack the big Auditorium at the Saintly City with delegates from all over the state and not a few will be from Duluth.

The object of the big state meet is to stimulate sentiment throughout Minnesota for the passage of a county option bill by the next legislature. There will be a number of prominent speakers including the governor and a few of the leading state politicians. The meeting is for one day only.

Most of the delegates for the big temperance meeting left this afternoon for the Twin Cities, although some will not go until late this evening. Among the churches and societies at the West end who sent delegates to the convention, which is to be held under the auspices of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, are the following:

Bethany Swedish Lutheran church—John Swenson and Herman Olson.

Swedish Mission church—Rev. John J. Daniels and John E. Smedberg.

First Swedish Baptist church—Rev. Swaney Nelson and Carl Person.

Duluth Union Temperance society of the West end—A. Thoren and H. T. Lundgren.

North Star lodge, Independent Order of Good Templars—Carl G. Carlson and Carl Carlson.

Morning Star lodge, I. O. G. T., of West Duluth—Peter Borgstrom and John Bodin.

Lysglimt lodge, I. O. G. T., of West Duluth—L. A. Simonson and Peter Posness.

POLES PROTEST AGAINST NEW ACT

West End Lodge Opposes Proposed Amendment to Immigration Laws.

Protesting against the repealing of the immigration act of Feb. 20, 1907, Lodge No. 566, Polish National Alliance of the United States, an organization of Duluth Poles at the West end passed the following resolution, a copy of which has been sent to congress.

The resolution is as follows:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of Hayes 'to further regulate the Imm..

"Whereas a bill has been introduced in the house of representatives by Mr. Hayes 'to further regulate the immigration of the aliens into the United States;'

"Whereas the said bill contains the following provisions:

"1. The levy of $10 for every alien entering this country;

"2. The requirement of the possession of at least $25 by each immigrant.

"3. The requirement of the production of a certificate of good character signed by and under the seal of the proper authority.

"4. The repeal of section 40 of the immigration act of 1907 establishing the division of information under the authority of the secretary of labor and commerce.

"Whereas, The said provisions of the said bill are highly objectionable as having a tendency to impose heavy and useless burdens upon the honest and deserving immigrants, which could become useful tillers of the American soil;

"And, Whereas, The provision which requires from every immigrant a certificate of good character under the seal of local authorities would constitute a barrier for every honest, liberty-loving Pole from the Russian empire seeking an asylum in the United States, as no Russian official would ever give such certificate to a man or woman favoring any liberal reform in the empire of the czar.

"Resolved, That we, Lodge No. 566, Polish National Alliance of the United States of North America, do emphatically protest against the passage of the said bill and respectfully petition your honorable bodies to refuse to enact any law, amendment to law or any joint resolution having for its object the repealing of the immigration act of Feb. 20, 1907.

SPLENDID BILL AT THE BIJOU

The New Vaudeville Program Pleases Large Audiences on First Night.

It would be a hard matter to pick a headline attraction at the Bijou theater this week. Every act is a feature itself. If it be necessary in so strong a bill to set one aside as the big hit, Zip, the baby elephant, might be termed a feature of the features.

Although termed a baby elephant, Zip seems to know more than the ordinary grownup—that is, among elephants, of course. Zip does everything but talk, and he seems to understand that, even when hurled at him in a rapid-fire manner. He drinks, smokes a pipe, and at the end of his act bids his friends good night and goes to his rest in a little iron bed, pulling the covers over himself. Zip plays drunk and seems to enjoy it. The little fellow passes out programs at the entrance to the theater and is very careful about frightening people. Zip's turn was much enjoyed last night.

Lew and Nellie Shaw play billiards for the benefit of the audience, and after the game, which consists of ten points, Mr. Shaw accomplishes some very difficult trick shots. A fine view of the table is gained by the audience by means of a very large mirror placed at the rear of the stage. Every move and every shot is in plain view of the audience. Mrs. Shaw is said to be the champion woman billiardist of the world.

Earl Morse is this week singing "Garden of Roses." It is well rendered, and the slides are unusually good.

Mattie Lockette, the original "Mary Jane," has a line of "kid" talk that gets across. They come fast, but no figuring is required to see Mattie's jokes. Last night the audience got one laugh ahead, and held the advantage until the end. Her burlesque on stage dancing made a decided hit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dowling appear in a one-act skit, "A Snap Shot." The Dowlings have been seen in Duluth before and they had the same play at that time. Their act is well worth witnessing a second time, however.

As real old-style comedians, Will Thomas and Mart Fuller are a big hit. They sing and talk. Their singing is good, and particularly the song called "Kelly" seemed to please. Some of their jokes are new.

The performance concludes with moving pictures which are both instructive and entertaining.

Lyceum Notes.

The recently organized Franklin Stock company will open an engagement at the Lyceum tonight, the bill being the old favorite, "Under Two Flags." There will be three performances, tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night, at popular prices.

For the first time in this city David Warfield will appear at the Lyceum for an engagement of three nights and a matinee, commencing Thursday, March 3, offering his most notable success, "The Music Master." David Belasco will send with Mr. Warfield a company of excellence, many members of the cast being the same as those who appeared with Mr. Warfield in New York.

This tender drama made a remarkable impression on the American public. It is in three acts. Charles Klein is the author. Mr. Belasco took the manuscript in hand, altered it, and made it the thoroughly human play it is today. The story involves the life of an old German musician of culture and refinement. In Leipsic he occupies an honored position as composer and conductor. His happy home life ends tragically when he returns from a successful performance of one of his symphonies to find his wife and baby gone, with a false friend, to America. He follows and sixteen years of privation and suffering are spent in the poorest quarters of New York. The old, eminent musician of Leipsic, who had musical Germany at his feet, is now forced to play in a dime museum. In all his adversity the old man retains his good nature, and his sweetness and philosophy brighten the paths through which he passes. David Belasco has lavished his best art and thought in this little symphony of life, and Warfield has lifted it into the realm of the classics.

HORSE THIEF'S WIFE WORKING FOR PARDON.

Devils Lake, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Hartley Schaffer, wife of the horse thief who was convicted in Devils Lake a year ago and sentenced to a term of five years in the North Dakota penitentiary, hopes for a pardon. The record attained by Frank McDonald, the pardoned convict whose testimony was the principal foundation upon which the state built its case against Schaffer, is such that it is believed that the application for a pardon will be given thorough consideration by the state board when presented.

THE EXAMINER MAKES REPORT

Has Only Words of Praise for Members of Courthouse Commission.

Public Examiner A. Schaefer of St. Paul yesterday submitted to County Auditor Halden a detailed report of examination of the accounts and records of the courthouse building commission.

"After making a careful audit of every item of receipt and expenditure which entered into the construction of this courthouse, I am convinced that, so far as the records disclose, there has not been any misappropriation of public funds," says the examiner.

Mr. Schaefer praised the commission for the economy displayed in the erection of the building. The new structure contains 2,224,000 cubic feet of space and the total cost was $393,225.48, making an average cost of 43.3 cents per cubic foot. "The amount," states the report, "compares favorably with the cost of other buildings. The capitol building at St. Paul cost 56 cents per cubic foot."

The commission consisted of W. C. Agnew, Neil McInnis, P. J. Ryan, John Sundeen and L. D. Campbell.

DIVINE HEALING AT THE BETHEL

Woman Cured of Tumor By Divine Power in Bethel Services.

Divine healing, as in use at the Bethel in Duluth, is having results, according to the latest issue of the Bethel Record. The Bethel does not repudiate medicines entirely, but declares medicines are of divine origin and necessary to the welfare of mankind. "But medicines and material means are absolutely unnecessary to accomplish the healing of those who trust God for healing," says the Record.

An instance of the success of divine healing at the Bethel, is given in the Record as follows:

"A woman came into our service with a tumor on her left side. She had suffered constantly from it for years and for four years she had not been able to sleep on her left side. One of Duluth's best physicians had treated her during a long period, but the tumor continued to grow and the pain increased. On the afternoon above mentioned she came to the altar at the close of the service and as she kneeled in prayer we annointed her with oil in the name of the Lord and prayed definitely for the healing and removal of that tumor. The pain instantly ceased and has not returned for one second since. That night she slept on her left side and experienced no pain. The lump has been gradually disappearing and from present indications will soon entirely disappear."

WILL SPEAK IN TWO CITIES

Governor to Talk at St. Paul in Morning and Duluth in Evening.

Governor A. O. Eberhart will speak in two cities tomorrow. In the morning he will address the big county option convention at the Auditorium in St. Paul. In the evening he will arrive in Duluth, and at the First Swedish Baptist church, Sixth avenue east and Third street, he will deliver an address on "The Church and Citizenship."

Governor Eberhart's address will be given under the auspices of the Luther league, and is part of the program in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the church. The governor comes to Duluth to fill an engagement made by the late Governor Johnson, who promised to come to Duluth and speak at the church, but death cut him off before he could fulfil the promise.

When taken into custody he had six bottles of the fluid in his coat.

To Stop a Cough In a Hurry

With this recipe you can make a pint of cough remedy at home in five minutes. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Put 2½ oz. of Pinex fifty cents' worth) in a clean pint bottle, and fill up with Granulated Sugar Syrup, made as follows: Take a pint of Granulated Sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir for 2 minutes. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. The taste is very pleasant—children take it willingly. Splendid, too, for colds, chest pains, whooping cough, bronchitis, etc.

Granulated Sugar makes the best syrup. Pinex, as you probably know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway White Pine Extract. None of the weaker pine preparations will take its place. If your druggist hasn't the real Pinex, he can get it for you.

Strained honey can be used instead of the syrup, and makes a very fine honey and pine tar cough syrup.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

SIX ALDERMEN BECOME PLAIN CITIZENS AGAIN

The "Old" City Common Council Passes Out of Existence.

One of Last Acts Is to Revoke Christopher Saloon License.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Revoked David Christopher's saloon license.
Authorized more bids for an addition to No. 3 fire hall.
Ordered the installation of six sanitary drinking fountains.
Received new smoke nuisance ordinance.
Asked for further smoke nuisance investigation.
Received personal injury claims.
Approved appointment of David Nelson as deputy building inspector.
Authorized bids for new fire alarm system.
Awarded contract for printing annual reports.
Hired two more nurses for new contagious hospital.

The old city council passed out of existence last night at the city hall, and the new body of city fathers will hold the first meeting next Monday night.

The departing members said their farewells with jest and laughter, glad to join the ranks of the citizens, who can stand on the outside and criticise those who are making the city's laws.

The aldermen who left last night are: A. G. McKnight of the First ward; George J. Bloedel of the Second; Thomas Trevillion of the Fourth; John Olson of the Sixth; J. J. Moe of the Seventh; and J. E. Foubister of the Eighth. Aldermen Moe and Trevillion were absent.

Alderman Moore, as the oldest member of the council, started the ball rolling after the routine business had been transacted, by reviewing the work which the council has done the last year. He declared that much has been accomplished and that the members who are leaving can be proud of the parts they have taken in forwarding the improvements. He said that in the last year, $200,000 worth of conduits have been laid in the city, the largest amount of this kind of work ever done in Duluth. Other things accomplished are the securing of funds for the Tischer creek bridge, the purchase of the new fire engine for West Duluth, the Piedmont avenue extension, the provision of $50,000 worth of park bonds and $50,000 worth of bonds to swell the permanent improvement revolving fund, the London road viaduct, the establishment of a system of municipal collection of garbage, the establishment of a "Great White Way," the pavement of four streets, the grading of six streets, the bettering of lighting in the suburbs, the closing of the St. Croix avenue district, the granting of the best railroad franchise ever given by the city, the prevention of telephone tolls to Superior, the establishment of many building line easements in the residence districts, the completion of the new city hospital, and the revocation of Christopher's saloon license.

Haven Gives Talk.

Mayor Haven delivered a pretty "speechlet" on his last day in the office of the chief executive. He complimented the city fathers upon the expedition with which they have looked after the city's business, declaring that no other council in the United States has a higher class of men to govern its affairs. He thanked the members for the assistance they have rendered him the last two years, making ten years he has been an officer of the city. He went on to say that one of the best things about the council is the absence of party politics in considering the matters which come up before it. He looks for more to be done in the next year or two than ever before. He called attention to the fact that several new amendments to the charter have been passed, providing more funds with which to work.

E. M. Morgan, assistant city attorney, who has done most of the council's legal business, warbled one of the neatest swan songs of the evening. He declared that he would be glad to join the ranks of the outsiders once more, in order that he might put in a "kick" whenever he felt like it. He took a rap at the last delegation to the legislature from this part of the state. He said that great things were expected of the delegation of good and mighty men, but that when the time for action came they were found to be "more common than the uncommonly common council." He explained that since that time his respect for the council grew.

Aldermen Bloedel, Olson and Foubister delivered parting shots at the men with whom they have been legislating for the last year and James A. Wharton, alderman-elect from the First ward, took advantage of the occasion to "jolly" all the aldermen who were coming, remaining or going. A rising vote of thanks was extended to President Frank Jordan, who in turn thanked the members for the assistance which they have lent him since he took the chair.

No one appeared in behalf of David Christopher, who had been summoned to show cause why his license should not be revoked. By a unanimous vote his right to sell liquor on the premises at 228 Lake avenue south was recalled. Court records of his convictions were made part of the council proceedings. Christopher was reported by the police as having a bad place, and it was claimed that he was a source of constant trouble, which could only be stopped by stopping the sale of liquor.

G. G. Hartley protested against more money being expended upon improvements in Michigan street. He declared that it was time to open Superior street and relieve the congested condition of the traffic, instead of hampering it by tearing it up. The complaint was caused by the awarding of the contract for the sewer from Eighth to Eleventh avenues west in Michigan street, which is now in course of construction.

Dr. F. J. Patton, health commissioner, sent in a copy of a new smoke ordinance making the emission of dense smoke a nuisance punishable by a fine of not to exceed $100, with the alternative of a jail sentence. He also asked that with the passage of the ordinance a licensed fireman or engineer, who has had at least five years' experience, be authorized to take the position of smoke inspector. The ordinance had its first reading and will come up again later.

The health commissioner was requested to investigate what has been done to remove the smoke nuisance by the Northern Pacific railroad. The company had a man here for a month instructing its firemen in the proper way of firing. If the company has managed to secure a decided improvement, other railroads and owners of office buildings will be asked to do the same.

The fire department committee declared that the fire alarm system is antiquated and getting worn out. Upon its recommendation the council authorized the board of fire commissioners to advertise for bids for the installation of a new system. The council also authorized the board to readvertise for bids for the addition to No. 3 hall at First avenue east and Third street. In addition to the hospital, the plans must provide for a wagon and blacksmith shop, the cost not to exceed $11,000.

Alderman J. E. Foubister's ordinance compelling city employes to pay just debts was passed without a dissenting vote. Under the ordinance an employe who does not meet his obligations will be discharged and garnishment three months in succession will be prima facie evidence that the employe is not doing so. The ordinance was the butt of many jokes last night but it met with general approval.

The board of public works was instructed to purchase sanitary drinking fountains to be installed at Second avenue east and Superior street, Lake avenue and Second street, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, Garfield avenue and Superior street, Central avenue and Ramsey street, and Fifth avenue west and Michigan street. All are prominent corners and selected with a view to giving service to a large number of people.

The request of John Roswell for compensation for two years' service as a special policeman on the St. Croix avenue dump, was rejected. Some of Roswell's compatriots were present, speaking both for and against the allowance. One man wanted to know why he had taken care of only his lot and not the entire dump.

Noble Sampson, sealer of weights and measures, sent in a communication thanking the council for the consideration he has been shown the sixteen years he has held his position. He explained that as the time to sever his connections as an official had arrived, he wished to express his appreciation of the many courtesies accorded him. After the meeting he passed a box of "smokes" which met with the approval of the city fathers, as they were made in Duluth.

Mrs. Pauline Stitt notified the council that she demands $2,000 damages as the result of injuries sustained in a fall at Tenth avenue east and Third street on a slippery walk. Mrs. A. E. Blackman asked that she be given $100 as partial recompense for injuries received in a fall at Fifth avenue west and Michigan street through alleged neglect of the city in failing to keep the walk clear of obstructions. She said that as a result of the fall she became totally blind for a short time and was taken to the hospital in that condition.

Capt. Bogardus Again Hits the Bull's Eye.

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well-known kidney medicines all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subject to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers." Sold by all druggists.

D. A. R. ROW MAY BE CARRIED INTO COURT.

Washington, March 1.—Ignoring a letter of dismissal sent to her by Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Miss Agnes Gerald reported for work as usual at the headquarters of the society here yesterday. This Miss Gerald did upon the advice of her lawyer, who has intimated that he believes Mrs. Scott is liable for damages in attempting to dismiss his client and that Mrs. Scott did not have the power to dismiss Miss Gerald.

Insubordination was the reason given by Mrs. Scott in her letter to Miss Gerald for the attempted ousting. The case, it is said, may be carried to court. Miss Gerald's mother is said to have campaigned for Mrs. Story, who was defeated at the last election for the presidency-generalcy by Mrs. Scott.

Will Not Serve Negroes.

Denver, Colo., March 1.—There will be no negro delegates among the 1,500 persons who will attend here Thursday the inaugural of the Laymen's Missionary movement. Many negroes accepted invitations, but the caterer told the committee in charge, he had a contract with his white waiters stipulating that they would not be called upon to serve negroes.

The committee then made other provisions for the negro delegates, but the latter announced today that they would not attend.

ALL QUIET IN LABOR WORLD

Continuation of the Seamen's Strike Only Cloud in Sky Over Duluth.

No Difficulty Expected in Closing Contracts and Hiring Men.

According to present indications the only labor difficulty likely to disturb the prosperity of the Zenith City this spring is the continuation of the strike of the lake seamen.

Few contracts are likely to cause disputes, according to labor leaders. Workmen are not making demands for higher wages and there seems to be general satisfaction among laborers. There was some talk recently of a demand of high wages from the carpenters, but this feeling of unrest seems to have disappeared. Carpenters get from 40 to 60 cents an hour, according to their ability, or to the arrangements they can make with their employer. Some carpenters under the prevailing open shop make more than the union scale and others do not earn as much.

The seamen, according to their leaders, will probably keep up their fight. The strike last summer was practically a flash in the pan, as the lake carriers moved an enormous tonnage down the lakes, although they were somewhat inconvenienced. This year it is expected that the tonnage to be moved will be greater than last year, and will probably set a new high record for lake traffic.

The demand for labor just now is poor. This is the dull season of the year. About half of the men in the building trades are employed, but the outlook for outside, as well as inside, men is excellent. In a few weeks there will be considerable work for painters, decorators and carpenters at the Orpheum, the new Holland hotel, the Alworth building, the new Washington grade and manual training school and other structures.

Many men will be needed at the docks and on the rights-of-way of the railroads, which every spring must give considerable attention to the condition of their tracks. There is always a large amount of ballasting and track repairing to do each spring, especially in this climate. The labor offices are not filling many large orders, nor are there many jobs open now. The dull season will soon be over, however, and the labor agencies will have about all the work they can attend to.

IN THE DAY'S WORK AT WASHINGTON

Taft Praises the Jews.

Washington, March 1.—A large committee of publishers of foreign language newspapers called upon the president yesterday to protest against the enactment of the Hayes and Overman bill, which proposes to restrict immigration severely by the imposition of educational tests, increase of the head tax, exclusion of immigrants with limited means and the requirement of a certificate of admission from their government. The president told his callers that he had had no opportunity to acquaint himself with the nature of the bill. He said if the measure should be passed, he would give the committee a further hearing before he acted upon it. He took occasion to praise the spirit of patriotism which he said he had found among Jewish immigrants on the East side of New York.

Railroad Bill Progressing.

The court of commerce feature of the administration railroad bill was adopted by the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. This, it is believed, paved the way for a complete agreement on the administration bill.

Aldrich Bill Passed.

The Aldrich bill providing for a commission of senators, representatives and civil appointees to be called by the president to supervise the business methods of the executive departments was passed by the senate.

Postal Bank Bill May Pass.

The difference among senators regarding the provisions of the postal savings bank bill have been so reconciled that it is now believed its passage is assured when the vote is taken next Thursday. The compromise was agreed upon at a conference held yesterday in Senator Carter's room. Mr. Smoot will introduce a number of short provisions which are intended to prevent the withdrawal of the postal money from local banks and its investment in a common center.

Fish Denounces Rules.

"Without a majority of three members of the committee on rules no matter can even be considered in this house," shouted Representative Hamilton Fish of New York after he had told of his inability to get action on a parcel post resolution in the house. "This is not a representative government," said Mr. Fish, continuing to denounce the rules.

Pacific Coast Monopoly.

Secretary of War Dickinson proposes that the anti-trust law be invoked to break up the monopoly which the Pacific Mail company and the Harriman trans-continental lines have on business between Pacific coast points and the Isthmus of Panama. Members of the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals discussed the advisability of recommending legislation that would reach the merger. Several senators pressed the secretary for his opinion of the surest way to break up the Pacific mail monopoly. He said that the surest way would be for the government to build ships and operate them, but he would not say that such a course would be the wisest way. He said that the question was a legislative one and he did not care to indorse government ownership. No decision was reached on the subject.

AMERICAN WOMAN OUSTS AN OFFICER

Draws Revolver on Nicaraguan Who Forces Way Into Her Home.

Managua, Nic., March 1.—Frank Sweetzer, an American resident of Matagalpa, has visited Rear Admiral Kimball and protested against the forcible entry of his house by a Nicaraguan officer, who attempted to recruit his servant. The servant resisted, and a scuffle ensued, the officer drawing his sword. Mrs. Sweetzer intervened and ordered the officer to leave the house. He made an insulting retort and the woman secured her husband's revolver and covered the man, who hastily backed out of the house.

The Nicaraguan government has expressed regret at the incident and the officer has been disciplined.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

One secret act of self-denial, one sacrifice of inclination to duty, is worth all the mere good thoughts, warm feelings and passionate prayers in which idle people indulge themselves.

—Cardinal Newman.

WHO OWNS THE UNITED STATES?

The other day the Wall Street Journal published an analysis of financial control showing that J. Pierpont Morgan is dominant in corporate business that has a capitalization of $10,000,000,000, or nearly 10 per cent of the entire wealth of the country.

One man out of ninety millions controls 10 per cent of the wealth. Remarkable, isn't it? And worth thinking about by a people whose right to work for wages and to get wages enough to live upon depends upon the character of the control of this wealth.

But that isn't the whole story, by any means. Moody's Magazine, which isn't a "muckraking" magazine and is published for investors, not for Socialists, comments thus upon the showing made by the Wall Street Journal: "It is a wellknown fact that in railroads, industrial concerns and in public utility enterprises the so-called Rockefeller interests represent a larger aggregate of capital than do the Morgan interests.

"And, further than this, these two big interests are themselves quite directly allied and are becoming more closely cemented in both their plans and motives as the years go by.

"And outside of these two great groups are half a dozen other smaller groups of capitalists which between them represent in corporate control easily $15,000,000,000 more of capitalized values.

"These outside groups are identified, both in interests and other important ways, with either the Morgan or Rockefeller group, and thus we may, in presenting an exhibit of concentrated control of corporate undertakings, fairly state that a capitalized valuation of probably $35,000,000,000 is concentrated in the hands and under the control of not more than a dozen men."

Thirty-five per cent of the nation's wealth,—and that means the people's wealth, because the people created it,—in the hands of a dozen men who are closely allied in motives and methods!

Nor does that tell the full story. Moody's Magazine estimates the total capitalization at par value of the country's corporate wealth at $43,000,000,000. Of this $35,000,000,000, or 80 per cent, is in the control of a dozen men who work together. And these men are not philanthropists or patriots, but men greedy of power who are contriving to create—have created, in fact—the greatest power that ever existed in the history of the world.

People laughed at Senator La Follette when he made a showing not so alarming as this in a speech in the senate, and called him a disturber, a Socialist and a Populist.

This aggregation of corporate control involves the power of life and death over smaller business activities. It involves the power of life and death over the workers of the nation. It proposes to use this power for the selfish purposes of the few who control it, and it commands the government of the nation to keep its hands off.

Are the American people, who rebelled against the infinitely less irritating tyranny of a stupid king of England, and who rose in arms against the power of a slaveland, [illegible]ocracy, likely to submit to having the price holders' [illegible] for their labor, and the price they shall receive [illegible] of that labor when they need them pay for the products [illegible]her, fixed by the dozen men to keep body and soul toge[illegible] power and are using it who have gathered up this terrific [illegible] for their own benefit?

ALDRICH AND ECONOMY.

Senator Aldrich said the other day that if he were running the government he could save $300,000,000 a year, and the amount of comment called forth by his remark probably is far in excess of what he had expected.

Perhaps the neatest is that of the New York Evening Post, which says: "He is."

Aldrich IS running the government. He is the Boss of the Republic, or rather he is vice regent for the real boss, Special Privilege.

The admission, therefore, that the government could be run at a saving of $300,000,000 a year is an admission that Aldrich has not been doing his duty to the people; but that is an insignificant matter. He does not owe this power to the people of the United States except indirectly through their negligence in failing to surround him with senators who would take that power away from him, and he owes and admits no allegiance or responsibility to the people.

Where the admission is going to hurt, however, is with the party which makes Senator Aldrich's power possible. It has had full control of the government in all its branches for practically forty years. It has had nothing but its own will to hinder it from doing its full duty. But it has been so busy doing the errands of Special Privilege that it hasn't had time to be economical. So it is possible for the man highest in power in that party to say that the government is wasting $300,900,000 a year.

Curiously enough, that amount is about what the government gets out of the tariff. The tariff costs the people ten times that much each year, but the government only gets 10 per cent of what it costs. Sometime it might be worth while to figure out what the government could do with that tax of $2,700,000,000 a year if it got into the public treasury instead of into the treasury of Special Privilege.

As might have been expected, Senator Aldrich's innocent remark hasn't set well with his Republican colleagues. The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Record reports this incident: "Later in the afternoon Senator Hale took Aldrich off in a remote corner and gave him the largest piece of his mind that the Maine senator has ever donated at one time. He told Aldrich he had made the most stupendous blunder of his public career, and that his words would be hurled from the stump with telling effect during the campaign. He said the declaration made it seem that the Republican party had squandered billions of dollars during the period it has remained in power, if the present ratio of useless extravagance is $300,000,000 a year. Hale was mad through and through, and it was a fierce scolding he handed out to his associate in bossing the senate."

It is rather awkward. Here is a campaign coming on, and the chief figure in the administration's party generously gives the enemy for campaign material the admission that the Republican party is squandering $300,000,000 a year of the people's money. The tariff, as we have said, costs the people $3,000,000,000 a year. Of that amount $2,700,000,000 is worse than squandered; it is taken from a needy people and given to an organized Special Privilege that already is burdened with more wealth than is good for it or for the republic. The remaining $300,000,000 goes into the public treasury; and Senator Aldrich, who ought to know, says that it is squandered.

Surely here are matters worth thinking upon.

AN EXTRA SESSION?

The Herald has a communication from J. J. Opsahl of Bemidji, a member of the legislature, urging his plan for an extra session of the state legislature to pass upon reapportionment and the proposed good roads amendment.

He proposes that efforts be made to get the returns from the federal census in advance of the regular reports, and that when these are secured the governor be asked to call a special session of the legislature. He believes that if the session is called before the county and state conventions are held the politicians would be inclined to be good, and would be likely to grant Northern Minnesota what it needs in order to get its votes.

It had not been expected that the results of the coming federal census would be available short of six months. It may be that by extraordinary efforts it would be possible to get informal returns; but it may be, also, that the fact that the returns are informal would give the legislature an excuse for failing to act upon them; and be sure the legislature would be eager to find such excuse.

If the matter of reapportionment were to be decided by the state conventions, there would be no difficulty in securing action by bringing political pressure to bear.

But the trouble is that it is the legislature, not the conventions, that must act, and that senators and representatives from Southern Minnesota would not be interested so much in how Northern Minnesota is going to vote as in how the people of their own district are going to vote. If every voter in Northern Minnesota were hostile to a senator from Southern Minnesota it wouldn't affect his own chances of re-election in the slightest degree. If the legislature were called together in the beginning of a campaign every member would be playing politics for all he was worth, and it wouldn't be state-wide politics, either, but personal and local politics. We wish we could have faith that the present legislature is capable of doing justice, but we haven't a bit.

Judged by its record of a year ago, not much of benefit to the state in any way could be expected from another session of the present legislature, and Northern Minnesota would better take its chances with an entirely new legislature, into which it can inject a new spirit of aggressiveness and determination by a careful selection of its own representation.

A PRETTY STATE OF AFFAIRS.

The chief benefit of waterways lies in the competition they offer to railroads which tends, or should tend, to keep rates and service reasonable.

The greatest waterway in this country is that of the Great Lakes, and it is upon that great thoroughfare that the commercial supremacy of Duluth depends to a large degree.

Yet it has been shown by the traffic commission of the Duluth Commercial club, as related in The Herald last evening, that the railroads have deftly throttled lake competition, thereby robbing Duluth of her heritage of cheap water transportation.

By the ownership of lake lines, the railroads are enabled to dictate lake and rail rates, and the difference between lake and rail rates is being narrowed so greatly that lake rates are no longer so attractive as they were. The ultimate object, of course, is to divert traffic to the rail thoroughfares at higher rates by ridding the railroads of restrictions of water competition.

If independent boat lines were established, furnishing service at fair water rates, it is stated that they could not get fair traffic arrangements with the railroads. They would be available for business between lake ports, but not for business between inland points by way of the lakes.

In short, the railroads have quietly brought about a situation that se[illegible] competition, thereby depriving and that has stifled wate[illegible] water rates made possible the people of the benefit of cheap[illegible] dollars in improvsible by the expenditure of millions of [illegible] ing the rivers and harbors of the Great Lakes.

Of course this situation is not to be tolerated. It is natural enough that the railroads should have sought to bring this situation about, but it is not natural to expect that the people will permit it to continue.

Clearly, what is needed is some government authority sufficient to compel the railroads to make fair joint through rates with independent lake vessels.

It happens that the interstate commerce commission is asking congress for just that kind of power.

The traffic commission of the Duluth Commercial club, therefore, did rightly in indorsing the requests of the interstate commerce commission, and the public affairs committee did rightly in concurring in this indorsement.

Commercial bodies in inland towns, which have quite as direct an interest in this matter as Duluth, will be asked to take similar action, and they undoubtedly will do so. The members of congress from every district interested will be asked to vote for the extensions of power asked for by the interstate commerce commission, and the measure to that end needs all the help it can get.

The present condition is insufferable, and every effort to overthrow it is worth while.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

ANOTHER WHO WANTS TO BE SHOWN.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have been waiting a few days in the hope that Mr. Cook would voluntarily shed some light upon his statement "that a family of six could live upon $26 per month if the rent paid was not too high."

I assume that Mr. Cook has had some experience or at least possessed some information or data regarding the subject before making his statement and should think that he would be glad to share it with others. It would be of great benefit to well-to-do and poor alike. If Mr. Cook is not sufficiently altruistic to divulge his knowledge for the common good, then in the name of the poor, I demand that he do.

"MISSOURI."

Sawyer, Minn., Feb. 28.

SHOULD BEGIN AT HOME.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Reform as well as charity should begin at home. The Commercial club has declared against the smoke nuisance in the downtown district, and at the same time the chimney of its own building belches forth clouds of soot all during the day to cover pedestrians in the vicinity. It seems to me that the Commercial club should first do away with the smoke from its own fires and then it will be in a position to talk to others.

MR. HARTLEY HAS NO REASON TO KICK.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If the men with money cannot be with us common people in the fight against the higher cost of living, why do they feel forced to take the opposite side, and through newspaper articles tell us that the cost is no higher today than it was some years back? I was much interested in a statement today by G. G. Hartley of this city in the morning papers. Now, if I had Mr. Hartley's money, I wouldn't be on the kicking list either, and I dare say that thousands of others here in our fair city would take a chance on the high cost of living, should Mr. Hartley, in a generous mood, turn over to them his bank account. It seems to be those people who have been fortunate who uphold present conditions and try to quiet the rest of us. If Mr. Hartley had to come down to—say, $17 a week—he would, I think, be at the head of the procession with as heavy a stick as could be found in the entire mob. Now, I don't harbor any ill feeling against those who have money. I am glad they have it and are able to live with no discomfort to themselves. I do object, however, to being told that it is all a joke and that we who have a struggle to get along should not murmur. The whole thing has been gone over in the newspapers so often, and it has been proven so thoroughly beyond the shadow of a doubt that we are these days being squeezed to the limit, that I will not here endeavor to prove my statements. I have thousands of backers right here in the city. I should like to have Mr. Hartley figure the cost of living of a family of five, and then if it fits the wages he names, submit it to the newspapers. We kickers are always open to suggestions.

CHARLES H. A.

Duluth, March 1.

Keep a Cow, Says Governor Hadley.

If every family would keep a cow, the living problem would be solved.—Governor Hadley of Missouri.

"Keep a cow," says Mr. Hadley,
"If you would reduce expenses."
We would do it very gladly
If we could; but, sadly, sadly,
Being chiefly in our senses,
We must ask this Hadley, "How Can our family keep a cow?"

We don't live in Jefferson City,
Mr. Hadley—more's the pity;
For it is a dreamy village
Full of gardens fat with tillage,
And with pastures fresh and fine,
Where you drive your "lowing kine."

Nay, we live (be still!—my heart meant
Not to flutter thus with pride)
In a five-room bath apartment
On the upper western side,
By the Hudson, near the Drive—
Recollect it, bath and five;
Four flights up by elevator;
And the only dumb brute there
Is the very dumb waiter,
Which is oft our dumb despair.

We should like to keep a cow, sir,
But you'll have to show us how, sir,
You can pasture in a flat
Such an animal as that.

True, our neighbor, who is smitten
With the mania for pets,
Keeps a parrot and a kitten,
Much, indeed, to our regrets;
And there is another neighbor
Who is quite content to labor
With a bulldog on a rope
When she takes him out for scope,
But a cow—well, Hadley, now
We're afraid there'd be a row
If we came around some morning,
Absolutely without warning,
Leading by her nose a heifer,
Hairy as a Kansan Peffer,
With her horns a foot in length
And a Samson in her strength.

We are very much afraid
That a pet like her, O Hadley,
Wouldn't please the kitchen maid—
Though I'd do the milking gladly!

True, the roof might do for pasture—
But to get the critter up there?
You can go there now and cast your Eyes upon our neighbor's pup there;
But a cow—now, you'll allow
'Twould be different, for a cow!

As to feed—we raise no clover
In our window boxes yet,
Though we'll go and look them over
In behalf of such a pet
For her forage. As for corn,
Which is food for cows and man,
Well, we raise it in the can
On the doubly dumb dumbwaiter,
Sometimes on the elevator—
Which evokes the darky's scorn.

But, alas! we're playing hob
Here with agricultural notions;
Cows prefer it on the cob,
Not in fried and buttered potions.

After all, dear Mr. Hadley,
Being from Missouri, you

We entreat you, Hadley—do!
We [illegible] how to keep a cow
Now—show us [illegible] are at.

Luxury.

Puck: Though luxury is something which only fools go in for, the incidental crumbs thereof are what feed the multitude. It is proof that Providence doesn't wish the multitude to go hungry when fools with a knack for making money keep on being born.

If all men were wise, and luxury therefore a thing unknown, we might still be fed, after a fashion, but the sum total of happiness would be less. Nobody would be happier except those few who have been permitted, by trial, to discover what a poor thing luxury is, while the rest of us, having nobody to envy, would be miserable.

The New Baby.

Lippincott's: Teacher—I shall not keep you after school, Johnnie. You may go home now.

Johnnie—I don't want to go home. There's a baby just come to our house.

Teacher—You ought to be glad, Johnnie. A dear little baby—"

Johnnie (vehemently)—I ain't glad. Pa'll blame me—he blames me for everything.

THE WEATHER.

Today was delightful, and March came in like a lamb. Whether the old superstition about its going out like a lion will be borne out remains to be seen. The temperature last night was 24 deg. and the thermometer at one time showed 32. There is no thaw in prospect, for the temperature will drop again tonight to about 5 deg.

Fine weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 6:43 and it will set at 5:53, giving eleven hours and five minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Barometric depressions of moderate intensity are central over British Columbia, Manitoba and from Missouri southward to Northern Louisiana. During the past twenty-four hours these disturbances caused rain in Oregon and Washington, snow in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the Mississippi valley and over Lake Superior, and rain over the Ohio valley, Tennessee, Eastern Gulf and Atlantic states, besides higher temperatures throughout the lower Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the Lake region. High pressures off the Atlantic coast and over California and increasing pressures in the Northwest caused colder weather over the latter district and in North Atlantic states.

"Indications favor somewhat colder temperatures at the Head of the Lakes tonight."

Following were the maximum temperatures for twenty-four hours and the minimum for twelve ending at 7 a. m., today:

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Should a man use perfumery?"

"Well, a trace of gasoline is permissible nowadays."

New York Herald: Willie, what is a dromedary?

Willie—Please, ma'am, a dromedary is a two-masted camel.

Boston Transcript: Visitor: Fat men, I notice, are quite thick in Boston.

Hubbie—Fat men are thick wherever you find them.

Meggendorf Blaetter: Daughter (reading)—In winter many of the animals get thicker fur coats.

Father—Hush, not so loud. Mamma is in the next room.

Street and Smith's Good News: Mother (looking over her boy's shoulder)—Your spelling is perfectly terrible.

Little Son—This isn't a spelling lesson; it's a composition.

New York Sun: Othello had just smothered Desdemona. "She wouldn't give me the Chautauqua salute," he complained. Thus we see the tragic effects of slighted heroism.

Judge: Commondress—Why has Miss Susan's battery ceased firing?

Staff Officeress—Misunderstanding of orders. The quartermistress sent up the wrong powder wagon.

Washington Star: "Even if the suffragettes had their way," said the philosophic person, "your wife would come to you for information before she went to vote."

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton, "she would probably ask me if her hat was on straight."

Cleveland Leader: "He's an honest man, isn't he?"

"Scrupulously. He's a vegetarian by principle, but he's started eating meat this week for fear that the strike was going to give the poor retailer the worst of it."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Young Chuggins gave his rich old uncle an aeroplane for his birthday."

"Why, it wouldn't be safe for the old man to go up in it."

"Don't you suppose young Chuggins knows that?"

Yonkers Statesman: Patience—They say she got all her furniture on the installment plan?

Patrice—She did. She has had four husbands and she got a little furniture with each one.

The Lake Superior Iron Manufacturer and Trade Review is the name of a new publication which will soon make its appearance at Ashland, Wis. Messrs. Maxwell and Hannaford of the Bessemer Iron Spirit will be interested in the enterprise. Prof. Winchell of Minneapolis will be editor-in-chief.

Charles Y. Rogers, a resident of Lake avenue south, is in trouble for not heeding a district court subpoena, which came from Anoka. Deputy Sheriff Kenna got service on Rogers. The latter did not obey it, and then the sheriff of Anoka county arrived and captured Rogers, who is now in jail at Anoka on a sentence of $60 fine or ninety days' imprisonment for contempt of court.

County Commissioners Butchart, Bonhan and Jefferson have left on an extended tour of observation of county jails, before awarding the contract for the erection of the cell work of the new St. Louis county jail. They will go first to Rochester, Minn., and then proceed as far south as St. Louis. They will return about March 12. It is expected that the successful bidder will pay the expenses of the trip.

The Duluth & Northern railroad, the successor to the rights of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Southwestern to cross Indian reservations and rivers, will build a part of its line this year and expects to reach Winnipeg eventually. It is intended to build ore docks near Oneota.

W. B. Silvey and L. J. Hopkins have returned from a 200-mile snowshoe trip in the Vermilion range district. They killed two caribou and one bear on the trip—so they say.

THINGS ARE NOT WELL.

From a sermon at Plymouth church, Brooklyn, by Rev. Newell D. Hillis: Things are not well in this country at the present moment. At the very time when nature and God gave last year fifteen billions of wealth, at this time there is more restlessness and fear than ever before. Our president said last night that there never was a better tariff law, and the other speakers said that all was well. Men who own millions lift up the noble chant. Though nobody seems to agree with me, I know that all is not well. When you have lectured in twenty states, and in five months met forty or fifty great audiences, and talked with hundreds of merchants, small bankers in Western and Northern states, editors, ministers, educators and leaders of the working people, you will not guess, but you will know as I know, that last winter the majority were certain of the future, but last summer they hoped, that later they found hope and fear struggling together; that in September they began to fear and that now there is a mood of hopelessness that will end in reaction; perhaps the milk that slopped a year ago last November one way, will slop to the other side of the pan, and who knows but that way lies financial want and social distress?

Today, on account of the cost of living, the working people have the back against the wall. The best tariff ever? Yes! For the few who are protected, but in view of the fact that immediately eight or ten of the necessities of the common people, when thus protected, rose 20 to 25 per cent, the best tariff meant that the protected iron interests immediately added five hundred millions to their values; that one firm of the beef trust within three months distributed twenty millions of surplus to themselves; another protected industry last Friday cut a melon of twenty millions more, and on these necessities of life for the enrichment and protection of these eight or ten groups, already plethoric and gorged, the working people have had to give up at least a fifth of their income.

The people of this country, outside of a little rim of the East, know that things are not well. They are apprehensive lest the selfish, lawless few at the head of certain great businesses go to such lengths as to finally create a political and industrial reaction that will carry us toward some extreme of free trade, in the face of the fact that we must raise a billion dollars taxes to support our government, which would mean industrial depression and social distress. The political corruption in Albany increases the restlessness and anxiety. Think of it! Good laws defeated in a legislature for so many thousand dollars handed to the leader. Interests protected in Washington, and the men in charge of the interests saving a million or two dollars, never having had a business outside of the senatorship in thirty years. Leaders and would-be leaders of the house, reeking with profanity, vulgarity and exuding sycophancy to corporations at every pore.

If the men who are perfectly sure that everything is all right, that the tariff is the best ever made, will leave New York and Washington and go into the West, or appear on fifty great platforms that I could mention in as many great cities they will discover that there are not cheers for that sentiment.

The common people are not always right, but in terms of many months the common people are almost never wrong. And the common people and the middle classes and the leaders of thought in small communities all over the land are all but a solid band in the conviction that just now things are in the hands of the selfish few and that the institutions of the country ought to be democratic for the many. I do not often refer to political matters in this pulpit, but, believing that every citizen should be true to his conviction and identify himself with the cause of the poor and with their plea for justice and equity, I am speaking for those who stand with the back against the wall and are becoming bitter at a time when the cost of living makes the situation well nigh unbearable.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

[illegible] get a [illegible] that two quarters in Remembe[illegible] jingle more merrily your own pock[illegible]agles do for you for you than two [illegible] in another man's.

A man is cross with his [illegible] breakfast, so as to strike a fair [illegible] age on how amiable he was with his friends at supper the night before.

A woman can have more sentiment aroused in her by stopping to look at a baby cap in a shop window than by going to the most thrilling play that ever was acted.

Should Be Kept at Home.

Haverhill Gazette: Nowadays a dollar doesn't go as far as it used to, and what's more, it doesn't find the way back.

BOOST NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

Put It in the Platform.

Hibbing Tribune: If Minnesota's great political parties want a practical platform, the Tribune suggests to them that they appropriate bodily as such a platform the resolutions adopted by the Northern Minnesota conference at Bemidji.

Reapportionment, 1 mill tax for road purposes, loans of state money for development purposes, extensions of state drainage, $100,000 appropriation for state advertising, district agricultural schools, taxation of state lands—here is a platform built of planks upon which every man in the state should be proud to stand, and if the party that comes into power will adopt and enforce as the party policy these issues, more will be accomplished for Minnesota than was ever before accomplished for the state by any administration or any legislature.

Action Should Follow.

Detroit Record: The success of the convention held at Bemidji last week is regarded with much satisfaction by all those who are interested in the development of that vast and rich territory comprising the counties of Northern Minnesota. The attendance of over 300 men, representing thirty counties and an area of more than one-half of the state, and undeveloped agricultural and other resources capable of making homes and affording a means of livelihood for many thousand of families, will, if followed up, result most beneficially. That these men met for a purpose, definite and thoroughly understood, is apparent. The resolutions adopted state clearly the needs of this section, and the permanent organization effected gives promise that the movement so auspiciously inaugurated to secure them will be followed up by insistent and concerted action.

Northern Minnesota Is Grateful.

Littlefork Times: Northern Minnesota is grateful to the Bemidji boosters who paved the way for a long pent-up conviction assuming a definite and effective form. It is grateful to the city of Bemidji for the welcome extended.

Was a Hummer.

Middle River Pioneer: The development convention at Bemidji on Thursday and Friday of last week was a "hummer." Three hundred delegates representing thirty counties were present, and about everything of importance to Northern Minnesota was discussed. The greatest stress, however, was brought to bear upon the question of reapportionment, and judging from the unanimous, vigorous, outspoken sentiments of the delegates in favor of aggressive action, there is liable to be "something doing" when the legislature convenes again. There was not as much consideration given to the proposition of the investment of state monies in county drainage schemes as we would have liked, but still the matter was not forgotten.

The Only Way to Get It.

Ada Index: The Index is heartily in favor of the suggestion made at the Bemidji convention that all members of the legislature from the northern part of the state should unite and block all legislation until a fair reapportionment bill is passed. It appears to be the only way we can secure the fair representation that is provided for in the state Constitution. Northern Minnesota would progress much faster if it was separated entirely from the southern half.

It Means Business.

Royalton Banner: The development congress held at Bemidji a few days ago is reported as an enthusiastic gathering of those interested in the development of the best portion of this great state. Should it prove of value for nothing more than making a decided movement toward reapportionment at the coming session of the legislature, enough has been accomplished to cause much rejoicing among the people of the Sixth, Eighth and Ninth congressional districts.

MINNESOTA GAINS BY IMMIGRATION

Reports Show 3,081 More Arrived in 1909 Than in 1908.

With Minnesota as their destination, 3,081 more aliens entered immigration ports of the United States in 1909 than in the previous year. Croations, Slavonians, Finns, Italians and Scandinavians made the increase. Figures from the annual report of Dennis J. Keefe, commissioner general of immigration, as culled by Charles W. Seaman, inspector in charge of the Minneapolis immigration office, show that fewer professional men immigrated to Minnesota than in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, but that nearly 200 more skilled mechanics were among the arrivals. Minnesota was eleventh in the rank of states in the amount of immigration. Heretofore the rank by years has been as follows: 1904, ninth; 1905, eleventh; 1906, tenth; 1907, twelfth, 1908, twelfth.

Altogether, 34,996 Scandinavians were admitted to the United States in 1909, 2,207 more than in 1908. In the year ending June 30 last, 751,786 aliens were admitted, 10,411 were debarred and 2,124 were returned in three years after landing.

The Minneapolis office covers Minnesota and the two Dakotas, and, aside from the routine business, it has deported aliens in previous years as follows: 1905, 23; 1906, 12; 1907, 20; 1908, 28; 1909, 39. This does not include deportations from Duluth.

According to the annual report of R. K. Campbell, chief division of naturalization in Minnesota, the twelve federal and eighty-five state courts empowered to naturalize aliens, made the following showing:

	1909.	1908.
Declarations of intention filed	4,887	5,127
Petitions for naturalization filed	2,402	2,453
Certificates issued	2,315	1,699
Certificates denied	282	216

T. V. Powderly, chief, division of information, reports that work is under way with the Minnesota state board of immigration for its co-operation in distribution of immigrants. He says further:

Applications for farm laborers coming from Minnesota have been transferred to the state board of immigration, and in turn the division is being notified of opportunities for farm and ordinary laborers in Minnesota. The result so far is satisfactory, and it is expected that effective co-operation will follow."

POPE PIUS LIKES IRELAND'S STAND

Pleased With Prelate's Prompt Statement Regarding Fairbanks' Incident.

Rome, March 1.—Archbishop Ireland's prompt statement in regard to the Fairbanks incident and the Vatican has been much appreciated here. Cardinal Merry Del Val was the first to receive and took it personally to the pope, who was most pleased and had it carefully translated into Italian. Having read it, he said that the archbishop of St. Paul, with his usual frankness and broadness, had rendered a great service to the Roman Catholic church as well as to Protestants in America in putting what took place during the visit of the former vice president to Rome in the right light and preventing it from degenerating into a controversy between the followers of Rome and those who do not adhere to her in the United States.

Pius X. in speaking further on the subject, said that it was most fortunate to have in America a prelate enjoying the authority of Mgr. Ireland, exercising such an influence on Roman Catholics and Protestants alike that his judgment was not doubted, and that his countrymen bow to his opinion as that of a superior man on whose views they can depend.

"It is consoling and satisfactory," the pope is reported to have exclaimed, "to think that no matter what happens, on the very instant in which complications arise I can depend upon the right note being struck in St. Paul, Chicago or New York, wherever Mgr. Ireland is."

DULUTH MEN SELL STOCK IN ZENITH TELEPHON CO.

was all that Mr. Hubbard would say on this score.

The fight to keep the Tri-State company from freezing the local men out has been a long and picturesque one. The story was related recently in The Herald.

The Duluth stockholders held undisputed control until one of their number "sold them out," in the words of the others, and gave the Tri-State people a majority of the stock. The company, it is alleged, attempted to freeze the other local men out entirely, and at one time the stock was considered almost valueless. One of the four men mentioned above, it is claimed, had charged his stock off the books as profit and loss and no longer considered it an asset.

But the fight was not given up. By a clever move a year ago the Duluth men got control of the Zenith City Telephone company, a holding corporation in Maine, and voted its stock in a block at the annual meeting of the Zenith company. This coup kept them in control of the situation a year. The trick was repeated this year with the assistance of an injunction and some legal byplay which has never been fully explained, and the Tri-State people saw no prospect of getting control of the Zenith company for at least another year. They therefore decided it would be cheaper to give the Duluth men their price and buy them out. This was done today, and the Tri-State company is now in complete control. E. H. Moulton of Minneapolis, president of the company, is here today closing up the deal.

chine shops be built in the city limits and that the Lake Superior terminals be located here.

The road enters the city from the west, coming in along the edge of the hill through Fairmont park. The yards will be located just east of the park with the lines running thence to the docks at the foot of Forty-ninth avenue west, parallel to Cody street, to Central avenue and then describing a double curve to the bay. The passenger and ore lines will separate near Grand avenue.

The compromise route suggested by ex-Mayor Haven is being considered by the engineers. Under it the road keeps south of Cody street and parallel to it until it intersects Grand avenue, going through No. 8 fire hall.

The company is also bound to erect a passenger depot west of Forty-ninth avenue, and to give the city ten acres of ground in exchange for the three acres which are taken in coming through Fairmont park. The ten acres will be used for park purposes and the park commissioners believe that the city is getting good value received by the trade.

All the street crossings in the residence section to Grand avenue will be of steel and concrete or stone, while the body of the trestle will be of wood. Some of the avenues will be depressed in order to give traffic a clear road.

The franchise binds the company to have the line completed inside of three years. It was stated recently that the company wants to begin work immediately and it is expected that the road will be in operation long before the expiration of the time limit, although no rails may be laid in the corporate limits this year.

declared that no settlement involving a recognition of the car men's union will be considered. It is reiterated by the company's spokesman that arbitration is not needed to settle the strike.

Both the labor leaders and the city administration are preparing for the expected sympathetic strikes. Director of Public Safety Clay in an interview today said that he did not regard the proposed extension as a "bluff."

Will Increase Police Force.

He told of the plans of increasing the police force in anticipation of further trouble.

The labor unions having decided on a general strike unless the city takes some steps to force the company to arbitrate, the sessions of select and common councils Thursday afternoon are being looked forward to with interest. It is considered almost certain that some member will put forth an arbitration resolution, but whether the political organization in control will agree to action cannot be predicted.

McNichol Could End It.

State Senator James P. McNichol, the Republican leader of Philadelphia, and William S. Vare, who stands next to him in leadership, are in Florida, having left here with a party of friends before the strike began. It is believed that Senator McNichol could end the strike if he cared to interfere.

The several locals of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators have indorsed the general strike order, and all painters connected with the organization are instructed to stop work Saturday morning unless the strike is settled by arbitration.

Sixth Death Occurs.

Another death due to the strike occurred late last night. Benjamin Gibson, a wounded negro, died in the Douglas hospital. This brings the number of strike fatalities up to six.

The eleventh day of the strike opened wet and foggy, making walking more disagreeable than ever. The street cars are carrying more passengers than last week, but the number is far below normal.

CITY'S CAMPAIGN FOR PURE MEAT RESULTS IN SECOND ARREST

reached the ears of Dr. Patton. Only this morning a prominent citizen told him of practices that are alleged to have been followed in some of the commission houses. It is claimed that they sold veal very much too immature for consumption; that the places were far from sanitary, and that poultry and other meats which have begun to spoil have been treated to cover up the defects, and then distributed to retailers for sale.

The department has jurisdiction of the meats and poultry handled in the commission houses of the city, and they will be compelled to keep their places clean and to quit selling any products that are not wholesome. The condemnation of the thirty-eight sheep is said to be only the first step in a campaign of cleanliness and pure food, which will be waged equally vigorously against the commission houses as well as the retail butchers.

C. E. Van Dervort, manager of the Macbeth-Gardner company, was arrested this morning charged with violating the health ordinance. He entered a plea of not guilty and his trial was set for next Tuesday in municipal court.

Dr. Patton declares that the carcasses condemned yesterday were in a shocking condition. Although not timid, and not unused to unusual conditions, he stated that the sight of the sheep carcasses took away all appetite which he might have had for his dinner last evening.

It is said that the carcasses are now being fixed up so that they can be sold for fertilizing purposes.

dren have been rescued from the Mace slide by the miners, who are still working in shifts trying to succor those that may be alive beneath the crush of snow and timbers.

At Burke, where the second slide occurred, a few hours after the one at Mace, five people are known to be dead and two badly injured. So chaotic is the condition in the small mining town, however, that the list is believed not to be complete.

The saddest incident at this place is the death of the whole family of Albert Newman. He, with his wife and two children, without a second's warning, were buried in the avalanche.

James Rogers, after working for several hours aiding the workers to rescue himself from the slide, was released, but his injuries caused his death a few hours later.

At Carbonate Hill.

At Carbonate Hill, where the third slide occurred, two persons are dead and half a dozen injured. It is not known how many more are dead beneath the wreckage. The Carbonate hill accident was not so great in extent as others in the Coeur d'Alene district, but the force was equal and swept everything in the way.

A fourth slide at the North Franklin mine, near Burke, played a peculiar freak. Two men were sleeping in one room of a bunkhouse and the front part of the log structure was empty. The avalanche tore the whole building to splinters except the one room in which the two men were sleeping and rushed down the mountain side and piled up in the gulch below, not a hundred yards from a group of cabins containing many families.

BRAINERD SHOPS WORK FULL TIME

Welcome News Comes Fully Month Earlier Than Usual.

Brainerd, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific shops here went on to full time today, fully a month earlier in the season than usual.

The change affects about 800 men, the boiler makers and helpers being already on full time.

The car shops and store department are now working ten hours and the locomotive shops nine hours. Both shop men and business men are elated at the early resumption of full time.

There has been no reduction of force during the winter. The appropriation for a new foundry, double the present capacity, has been approved, and it is reported the old foundry will be added to the car shops. This will add 300 to 400 men to the pay rolls, it is expected.

TRY PASS SWINDLER.

Greek Alleged to Have Defrauded Railroad to Face Jury.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a term of the district court which opened here today several important criminal cases will be tried.

Among them is that of A. Toscas, the Greek charged by the Great Northern railroad with attempting to secure transportation under false pretenses; Robert Allen, charged with sodomy; John Falk and Lyman De Pew, charged with embezzlement, and Gilbert Loftus, charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Church Circuit Opens.

Cooperstown, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the Cooperstown circuit of the United Lutheran church was opened in this city today with a very satisfactory attendance, and will continue till tomorrow. Before the organization adjourns, several matters relating to the administration of church policies in this circuit will be discussed. Plans are on foot for extending the work of the church in different directions, and means of carrying out this plan will probably be reached.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

GREAT NORTHERN WRECK.

One Passenger and Five Trainmen Injured Near Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 1.—One passenger and five trainmen were injured early yesterday about four miles east of here when Great Northern Train No. 5, running between the Twin Cities and Minot, was derailed. The injured:

William Scott of St. Cloud, engineer, scalp wounds and wrist crushed.

Fireman Pogreba of St. Paul, leg crushed.

C. E. Bohall of St. Paul, mail clerk, back, hips and right foot bruised and crushed.

Roy Ellingwood of St. Paul, mail clerk, hurt about the neck, arms and hips.

Frank S. Reed of St. Paul, baggageman, head bruised and left hip and left wrist cut.

Mrs. Leidl of Palmero, N. D., was the only passenger injured. She sustained bruises and cuts and was taken to Barnesville for treatment.

FARM ALL CUT UP.

North Dakotan to Secure Nice Sum From Railroad Company.

La Moure, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.—With a verdict of $544.50 rendered as the value of land taken a jury in the case of The Midland Continental Railroad Company vs. W. H. Ka Dell returned a verdict of $2,760 for damages that would be suffered the remainder of the farm owned by the defendant if the railroad runs across it.

The actual number of acres that the company wants is just a little over twelve, and with the cost of that land, together with the damages, it will mean an expenditure of over $275 an acre for the ground that will be used as right-of-way. Ka Dell already has the Northern Pacific railroad running across his farm in one direction, and the placing of the Midland line over it would cut it up in very bad shape, which was the reason for the high verdict.

FREE FLESH BUILDER

Any Man or Woman Can Now Be Plump and Well Developed.

50-CENT PACKAGE FREE

Just because you are thin and underweight, do not think you have to stay in that condition.

Thanks to a new discovery, you can be plump, symmetrical, well developed and vigorous with the bones covered with good solid flesh, the hollow places filled out and the cheeks and face made plump, full and attractive.

And the beauty of it is, it will not cost you a penny to see whether this treatment will do all this for you or not, as a full-sized 50-cent package will be sent you by mail without charge if you simply write for it. (See coupon below.)

There is no strenuous exercising required, no drastic diet necessary. All you have to do is to take, four times a day, a little tablet of Sargol, the new flesh-building principle, then weigh yourself once a week to note the increase as the pounds pile up.

This new treatment increases the red corpuscles in the blood, strengthens the nerves and puts the digestive tract into such shape that your food is assimilated and turned into good, solid, healthy flesh instead of passing through the system undigested and unassimilated. It is a thoroughly scientific principle, this Sargol, and builds up the thin, weak and debilitated without any nauseous dosing. In many conditions, it is better than cod liver oil and certainly is much pleasanter to take.

Simply cut out the coupon in this notice and send it with your name and address and 10 cents to pay distribution expenses to the Sargol Company, 170 H, Herald Building, Binghamton, N. Y., and you will receive by prompt mail a regular 50-cent package without charge and without incurring any obligations.

COUPON.

This certificate and 10 cents to help defray distribution expenses entitles the holder to one 50-cent package of Sargol, the home treatment which makes thin folks plump and attractive.

MONTANA MAN KILLED.

Toying With Automatic Pistol at Dance When Shot.

Miles City, Mont., March 1.—John O. Daly was killed at a dance at George Thoet's ranch. William Broaddus, brother-in-law of Daly, was toying with an automatic pistol. Daly asked to see it, and Broaddus, in handing it to him, accidentally pulled the trigger. Another version is that he tossed the weapon, which struck the floor and went off. The coroner is investigating.

CANNOT SHORTEN ROUTE.

Soo Surveyors Unable to Shorten Prior Survey.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., March, 1.—A surveying crew of fifteen men engaged in laying out a new right-of-way for the Soo line, is working west of this city to locate a shorter route between here and Colfax. W. M. Everts, chief locating engineer for the Soo, is in charge. The surveyors have found that they cannot make the Chicago division of the Soo any shorter than the survey made by the Wisconsin Central four years ago, which figured strongly at that time on a shorter route from St. Paul to Chicago. The crew has just finished the survey for a shorter main line between Spencer and Owen, and will take Abbotsford off the main line. The surveyors have also found the country in this vicinity abounding in difficulties on grades and cuts that nullify all attempts at shortening in many localities. The survey from here calls for as direct a line as possible to New Richmond, where the Soo will run directly west to the St. Croix river to a new bridge to be constructed for both the Chicago division and the Montreal division of the Soo. Both roads running east from St. Paul will use one bridge over the St. Croix instead of the bridges at Somerset and Osceola. Work on the roadbed of the new main line of the Chicago division will begin near here this spring and it is estimated that about three years will be required to complete the big task on the entire division.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

SAINTS WIN LAST GAME

Duluth All Stars Lose Close Hockey Game By Score of 5 to 3.

Soft Ice Results in Slow Game for Last of Series.

Last evening the Phoenix hockey team of St. Paul took the fourth straight game from the All Stars of Duluth, winning the last game of the series by the score of 5 to 3.

Warm weather and soft ice made the last of the games between the two teams slower than the other games. The ice was in soft condition when play was called, so that fast skating and clean handling of the puck was made difficult.

Duluth made a good getaway and scored two nets before the crack St. Paul team succeeded in registering a goal. Then St. Paul increased the speed of play and at the termination of time in the first half the score stood 3 to 2 in favor of the visitors.

In the second half the visitors increased their speed and showed better team work. The defense work of the forwards also stiffened, and Duluth found it very hard work to register the last score.

Wharton scored the first goal, after a brilliant piece of individual work by Cummings. He carried the puck from near the Duluth goal down the ice and passed to Wharton, who shot the goal. Clarke scored soon after the first net had been shot, receiving the puck on a pass from Cummings.

Fred Bawlf made the first goal for St. Paul. Tierney shot the second goal by a clever piece of individual work, carrying the puck down the ice and registering in a scrimmage. Fred Bawlf registered the third goal of the first half and placed his team in the lead.

Leonard scored both of the St. Paul nets in the second half, while Cummings and Clarke were jointly responsible for the last St. Paul goal. Cummings shot the goal, or at the goal, the puck bouncing off Hodgman's skin guards. Clarke met the puck on the rebound and drove it into the net.

The games may result in an annual series between the two teams. The test of spirit has prevailed throughout the series, and the members of both teams are heartily in favor of a continuance of the athletic relations. Manager Sexton of the Phoenix team stated that there was a strong probability that a series of games would be arranged for next season.

The Phoenix team may meet the Mohawk hockey team of the Copper country, which is one of the strongest organizations in the red metal country. It is also possible that games may be secured the present season with the Cleveland or Pittsburg teams, as the St. Paul boys wish to clash with some of the best teams of the country.

The lineup and score of the contest:

Duluth.	Position.	Phoenix.
Fenton	g.	Hodgman
MacKenzie	p.	Dellinger
Watterworth	c.p.	Tierney
Cummings	r.	Leonard
Clarke	c.	F. Bawlf
Wharton	r.w.	Fitzgerald
Taylor	l.w.	C. Bawlf

Referee—Sexton, St. Paul. Judge of play—Dreitz, Duluth. Timekeepers—Long, St. Paul; MacCrea, Duluth. Goals—St. Paul, F. Bawlf 2, Tierney 2; Duluth, Wharton, 1, Clarke 2. Penalties—None. Time of halves—20 minutes.

ZBYSZKO WILL MEET LEHTO

Polish Champion Must Throw Finn Twice in an Hour.

Houghton, Mich., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Zbyszko, the Polish champion will meet Carl Lehto, Finnish champion in the Laurium hockey rink tonight. Zbyszko weights 235 and Lehto 200 pounds. The Pole agrees to threw the Finn twice in an hour or the latter takes the match. Lehto will be challenged at the ringside for Ordemann of Minneapolis. The rink accommodates 6,000 people and is nearly sold out in advance.

DUNBAR DEFEATS LABATT.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1— Bob Dunbar of St. Paul last night defeated Labatt of Minneapolis for the Merriam medal, emblematic of the state curling championship, by a score of 13 to 11. The game was a close one from start to finish and was decided in the thirteenth end.

David Wins First.

Mike David defeated E. Beers last night in the first game for the city pool championship, the score being 200 to 157. The winner made the high runs of 25, 18, 15, 14; Beers making runs of 21, 13, 12 and 11.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE)

Gracious sakes no! Joe McGinnity out of baseball!

He is still playing the great national game. He is with Newark, which is in the United States. He is pitching, as in the days of yore, and occasionally he wins those double-headers.

Nowadays, if any of the other pitchers were not feeling fit, it became a regular matter of course for Joe to go into the box and pitch the game. And if there happened to be two games that afternoon, Joe would pitch the whole matinee. There was nothing small about the old boy.

But despite all the whole-souled work of the McGinnity person, McGraw never liked him any too well. For one thing, McGinnity had managerial aspirations, and it was rumored that he wanted to run the New York club from the shade of the bench.

"Muggsy" used to work Joe all afternoon on the hot and sultry days, and they do say he grinned maliciously when Joe began to slow up and lose most of that stuff that made him famous. Joe was let out at the time he forgot to put something mysterious on the spheroid, and, as has been stated before, he is at Newark.

Never possessing the brilliancy of Mathewson, McGinnity was nevertheless one of the greatest pitchers of the earlier period of baseball. He graduated from the school that produced McGraw and Jennings. The old Baltimore bunch were all great and thorough baseball players, and Joe was one of the greatest of the squad.

He was supposed to be the inventor of the "rise" ball. Whatever he had on the ball, he used to get away with it. One of the attributes that made McGinnity famous, was the fact that he could and would go into the box day after day. On many occasions he has worked in two extra inning games, winning them and seeming as strong as ever at the finish.

Joe is a part owner of the Newark team at the present time. Orth, the kid catcher who used to be with Winnipeg, will be with his team the present season. Though Joe looks older as the seasons roll by, he is still a great old hurler, and is getting away with his games. He is one of the greatest pitchers in the Eastern league, and is also one of the great characters of baseball.

At last the oracle has spoken. We are going to have a baseball meeting There are signs of life in the little league. Mons. Elliott has come to the surface and stated that the league members will really gather in conclave and with serious purpose will discuss the affairs of the baseball family.

Something might as wel be told Mr. Elliott right at this moment. The critics up at this end of the league sometimes like to hear baseball facts, and it is not pleasant of the president to keep all his information to himself. A fact now and then will help sustain the interest and will give the fans a line on the game.

Mr. Elliott might keep the fans of the Northern parts in better humor by coming to the surface with a fact or two, occasionally.

After reading some of the things that are being written regarding John Lawrence Sullivan at the present time, one wonders how he managed to ever win a fight. Let somebody start something and there will always be a bunch to follow. One Bat Masterson, is the latest literary sheep to jump the hurdle of criticism and take a Spencerian fling at the "Big Fellow."

Sullivan had his faults, and he may have made some mistakes, but there is really no occasion for every writer in the country riding his frame. It is time to call a halt to the unkind things that have been said about the old boy. His hair is white, and when a man is old, boys, there should be a softening of the vocabulary.

Slowly the sporting scenery is being set for the baseball comedy, or drama, which you will. The summer stuff is on the way, and it will not be long before the umpire will be telling the teams to play ball. Some of the teams will need a lot of instruction in that line, too.

With several of the big teams in their spring training hangouts, thoughts of baseball are hastened. The corner lotters will be the next to appear.

The governor of Michigan has put his foot down on the fighting game. Which fact leads to a suspicion that the state executive must have seen the recent Schreck-Ross vaudeville stunt.

And speaking of Michael Cassius Schreck, a headline says he is training. The editor who penned the caption must have been ignorant of the habits of the Schreck party.

Frankie Neil's father should speak seriously to his son, advising him to stop fighting. Frankie has ceased to be a factor in the fight game. He is so bad that Abe Attell can beat him.

A rumor says that Young Corbett is coming back to the ring. It has been said that New York is live and up-to-date town. However, you never can believe all you hear.

In Pittsburg they are betting that Hans Wagner bats over .300 the present season. They are sure thing bettors in the Smoky City.

A bet was made yesterday that Duluth wins the pennant—a good investment for rising young financiers.

Norman Pinder is colored and hopes that Jeffries will whip Johnson. This is encouraging to the white race.

Newt Randall will leave for work, March 17.

"Si" Bennett may be seen with one of the Pacific Coast teams the present season.

DECISION FOR MURPHY

Owen Moran Protests and Crowd Jeers Eddie Smith.

Both Men on Feet Fighting at End of Twenty Rounds.

San Francisco, Cal., March 1.—With both men on their feet after twenty rounds of desperate fighting, Referee Eddie Smith declared "Harlem" Tommy Murphy of New York winner over Owen Moran, England's champion lightweight.

The decision was jeered and Moran frantically protested, claiming he had been robbed. The fight took place at Dreamland rink here last night.

Murphy scored first blood in the ninth with a stinging left smash to the nose, and Moran evened this up by cutting Murphy's right eye in the thirteenth. With these exceptions, however, the fighters bore no marks of punishment after their twenty stirring rounds of milling.

Moran had the advantage during the first half of the battle. He forced the pace and several times pushed Murphy outside of the ropes.

The fifteenth was the best round of the fight and marked the turning point in favor of the New Yorker. He jarred Moran frequently with left hooks and left swings to the jaw, Moran countering with rights to face.

In the eighteenth round, the Harlem fighter dazed the little Englishman with a succession of right and left chops on the jaw. Moran, however, came up strong in the last round and forced the fighting and at one time had Murphy in distress. The fight ended with both men strong and fighting hard. Referee Eddie Smith promptly declared Murphy the victor. His decision did not meet the approval of the big crowd.

Moran was favorite in the betting at odds of 10 to 6. The general opinion of fight followers is that neither Moran nor Murphy is a worthy foe for Champion Wolgast.

DATE IS SET FOR MEETING

Minny League Managers Will Gather at Red Wing on March 13.

John C. Elliott, president of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league, has issued a call for the meeting of the managers, on March 13, Red Wing, Minn., is the place chosen for the meeting.

Red Wing will be one of the towns to be taken into the league, and the meeting is held there for the purpose of arousing greater interest in the affairs of the league. As is intimated in The Herald of Saturday, the March meeting will have to do with the schedule, and also the taking into the league of Red Wing and Rochester, both of which towns have raised the guarantee and are ready to receive their franchises.

It is the general belief that the schedule of the coming season will call for at least seven more games than the playing season of last year. It is stated that the season will start a week earlier and close on Labor day, as it did last year. Duluth and Superior will start in the southern territory and reach home a little over a week after the season opens.

KLINGEBEIL SIGNS CONTRACT.

Pitcher Will Be Tried Out With White Sox on Training Trip.

Henry Klingebeil, who twirled for the Superior team last season, but who is the property of the Duluth team, yesterday signed a contract with the Duluth club. Klingebeil has been with the holdouts and is one of the last of the Duluth squad to sign.

Klingebeil will be reported with the rest of the recruits at Cleveland, in April, and if he works well on the spring trip will be given a chance with the White Sox.

In a letter received today from Darby O'Brien by Al Kuehnow, the "Irish Orator" states that the birds are twittering down Ohio way and the kids are practicing on the corner lots. Darby writes that some of the White Sox recruits have already begun to get the kinks out of their arms.

ESSON IS EASY FOR FRANK GOTCH

Scotchman Fails to Make a Showing Against Champion Wrestler.

Chicago, March 1.—Frank Gotch had an easy time in disposing of Jimmy Esson, calling himself the champion of Scotland, in a wrestling bout at the Coliseum last night. Esson was on the defensive throughout, being unable to "get behind" the champion at any stage. The first fall was won by Gotch in 11 minutes, 25 seconds, by the use of the toe-lock, while the second fall went 13 minutes, 23 seconds, Gotch winning it with a chancery and crotch hold.

CENTRAL VS. NELSON DEWEY

Duluth Basket Ball Team Will Meet Strong Superior Quint.

Central's strong basket ball five will play Nelson Dewey tonight at the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Earlier in the season Nelson Dewey defeated Central by a very close score. The Duluth team has been showing very good form of late and the members of the team are confident of winning the contest of this evening.

The high school boys took two games from Ashland and showed the best form of the present season. The teams will line up this evening as follows:

Duluth.	Position.	Nelson Dewey
Boyle, Kelly	f.	R. Jordan
Harris	f.	E. Conley
Waldron	c.	Lundgren
Johnson	g.	H. Jordan
Solhelm	g.	F. Conley

The sophomores and freshmen of the High School Interclass league will hook up this afternoon at the boys' department gymnasium. The two teams are tied for first place in the interclass series and a warm game is predicted. The two teams will line up as follows:

Sophomores.	Position.	Freshmen.
Cook	f.	Harris
Osman	f.	Kerns
Mars	c.	Brown
Jeronimus	g.	Lawrence
St. Claire	g.	Huttle

COACH MAY BE CHOSEN SOON

Duluth Boat Club Officials Are Negotiating With Three Men.

It is expected that a definite decision will be made in the matter of a rowing coach some time the present week. Officials of the club are in negotiation with three men at the present time, and it is believed that an agreement will be closed within a few days.

Officials of the club will not give out the name of the men who have been tendered the position, as yet preferring to wait until an agreement is closed with one of the men.

If the present plans of the boat club officials are carried out, the coach will come here before the opening of the rowing on the bay and instruct some of the candidates on the machines. There are a number of men working on the rowing machines at the present time, and the squad will be increased the present month.

Several rowing matters and some very important matters connected with the organization of the motor boat department of the club may be acted upon at a meeting this week.

MADISON FIVE LEADS BOWLERS

Colonials Roll 2,803 in American Tournament at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., March 1.—The third day of the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling association ended with 2,803 the high mark among the five-men teams, 1,160 the best in the doubles and 623 leading in the singles.

The Colonials of Madison, Wis., were the sensation of the five-men squads, with a grand total of 2,083, with 891, 1,019 and 893. This was the highest total and their 1,019 in the second game was the high game of the series. All of the men of the five rolled consistently but not brilliantly, C. Lukensmeyer leading with an average of 206 1-3, and a high game of 243.

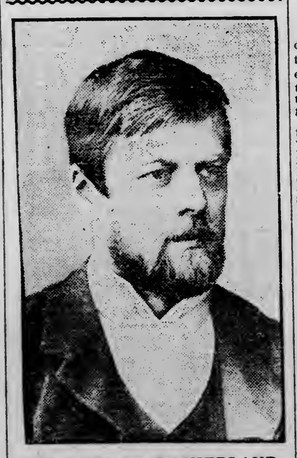
The Blue Ribbons of Erie, Pa., rolled into second place with 2,695 and the Kandy Kids of Madison, Wis., took possession of third place with 2,647. Four other teams passed the high mark of the first two nights, 1,475—held by the Knights of Columbus No. 2 of Detroit.

Otto Wahl of Cleveland proved to be the star of the day, rolling into first place in the individuals and taking second place in the two-men event with his partner, J. Grabner. He rolled Sunday night with the press five of Cleveland and has an average of 186 3-5. His work yesterday was excellent but Sunday's indifferent showing lost him the chance for one of the grand average prizes.

G. T. Mowat and E. Johnson of Detroit were the leaders of the two squads that bowled in the two-men event. Rolling in the second squad totaled 1,160.

Wahl was the leader of the three squads which inaugurated the individual event. He rolled three consistent games of 191, 188 and 257 for 636, an average of 212. J. Gruber of Cleveland, a team-mate of Wahl, was second for the day with 628, while still another Cleveland roller, S. Forester, was third with 578.

MAY CHALLENGE FOR AMERICA'S CUP



THE DUKE OF SUTHERLAND.

The Duke of Sutherland proposes to challenge for the American cup with a yacht of moderate size. Yachtsmen in New York believe the idea is a good one. A seventy-footer built for this race would be of use afterward; while the ninety-foot freaks are valueless after the big cup race.

WILL DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP

Adams and Big Duluth Hockey Teams to Play Third Game.

Tomorrow evening on the Adams rink in the West end the hockey championship of the city will be decided between the Big Duluth and Adams teams, which had the best standing in the City Amateur Hockey league. Each has won one game in the championship series.

Injuries received by the players in the games with the St. Paul team may have a decided influence on the result of the contest, for several of the players are injured and both teams may be forced to change their lineup.

The winner of the game this evening will win the championship of the amateur league. The teams are evenly matched and the game is expected to be very close and interesting.

Below is the probable lineup of the two teams:

Big Duluths.	Position.	Adams.
Wood	g.	Pearling
Kelly	p.	Nelson
A. Wood	c.p.	Erickson
Blaine	c.	A. Olson
Cummings	r.	A. Grenner
Ostegren	l.w.	H. Grenner
Wharton	r.w.	E. Olson

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE.

Physical Director of the Duluth Y. M. C. A. Heads Novel Movement.

A. B. Wegener, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., is responsible for plans for a Sunday school athletic league, which may be organized in Duluth. He proposes that senior and junior athletic classes be organized in each Sunday school of the city and that the activities of the league extend to all branches of sport.

Mr. Wegener has started similar movements in other cities in which he has worked and he expects success here. Meets and games between the different schools will arouse interest in both the athletic and Sunday school work and he says the league will be productive of great good.

GOLF TOURNAMENT DATES.

Open Events at Philadelphia Cricket Club in June.

New York, March 1.—All dates for the national golf championships of 1910 was fixed yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee of the United States Golf association. Four new organizations were elected to membership.

The open tournament will be at the Philadelphia Cricket club, June 17-18; the amateur tournament at the Brookline, Mass., Country club, Sept. 17-17, and the women's title will be played for at the Homewood Country club, near Chicago, Oct. 10-15.

CHICAGO FOOTBALL DATES.

Gophers Will Play at Marshall Field Oct. 27 This Year.

Chicago, March 1.—Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago last night announced his gridiron schedule for next fall. The schedule follows:

October 8, Indiana at Marshall field; Oct. 15, Illinois at Urbana; Oct. 22, Northwestern at Marshall field; Oct. 27, Minnesota at Marshall field; Nov. 5, Purdue at Marshall field; Nov. 12, Cornell at Marshall field; Nov. 19, Wisconsin at Madison.

The schedule is subject to the approval of the board of physical culture.

COOK ON THE SQUAD.

Duluth Boy Working With Baseball Men at Dartmouth.

A letter received from Mack Cook by C. C. Colton, states that the Duluth boy is working with the baseball squad in the Dartmouth baseball cage. The letter also contains the information that "Hank" Boyle, the former Central high football star, will work out with the football squad this spring.

Mack writes that young Boyle is considered a find at Dartmouth, and that he is counted upon to make the team next fall. Mack is expected to make good in baseball.

HANDICAPS FOR WOMEN.

Metropolitan Golf Association Arranges First Official List.

New York, March 1.—The first official handicap list ever compiled by the Women's Metropolitan Golf association appeared today. Names of more than 100 players are given, with the ratings ranging all the way from plus 1 to 25.

Mrs. C. T. Stout of the Richmond County Country club, a former national and metropolitan title holder, is at plus 1. Miss Julia R. Mix of Englewood, present champion of the association, and Miss Georgiana M. Bishop of Brooklyn are at scratch.

An increasing tendency toward one-day tournaments made a handicap list imperative.

Money at Saratoga.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., March 1.—Saratoga will be the real Newmarket of America this season. The Saratoga Racing association has mapped out a program which calls for the distribution of $250,000 among owners of races. This is about $50,000 more than last year. Twenty-eight stakes are down for decision, entries closing on March 28. The meeting will last for twenty-one days, beginning Aug. 4.

Entries Are Closed.

Louisville, Ky., March 1.—Entries to the stake events to be run at Churchill Downs closed today. The returns received by Lyman H. Davis, secretary of the new Louisville Jockey club indicate that all previous records have been broken. Final payments on the nominees to the Kentucky Derby also were made today.

Willie Hoppe Leads.

Kansas City, Kan., March 1.—Willie Hoppe defeated Ora Morningstar in the first two games of their 1,200-but, 18.2 exhibition billiard match here yesterday and last night. The scores were 300 to 148 and 400 to 233. Hoppe made a high run of 105 in the night game.

Athletics Go South.

Philadelphia, March 1.—Split into two squads, the Philadelphia American league baseball players left today for Southern training grounds. Led by Connie Mack, manager of the team, the youngsters under contract went to Atlanta, Ga., and the regulars left for Hot Springs, Va. Both squads will merge at Atlanta on March 12.

Mueller to Milwaukee.

According to a letter received by A. W. Kuehnow from the Milwaukee team manager, McCloskey, it is very probable that Otto Mueller, last season the star catcher of the White Sox, will be tried out with the Brewers this spring. It is believed that Mueller will have a very good chance of becoming one of the Milwaukee regulars. Hostetter, who was ill the greater part of last season is expected to be able to catch for the Brewers the present season.

Athlete Leaves School.

Arnold Olson, a member of last year's football team and one of the best athletes in high school, has left the hill-top institution. Last season was the second year of football for Olson. His leaving school will be a loss to athletics that will be severely felt.

Rhodes Scholars Win.

Oxford, Eng., March 1.—L. C. Hull of Michigan, a Rhodes scholar, won the 100-yard dash yesterday at the varsity sports in 10 1-5 seconds. G. F. Putnam of Kansas, another Rhodes scholar, won the weight-put, with 37 feet 5 inches.

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"As an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wiltshire of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact, I know of no other preparation that meets so fully the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croup and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended." For sale by all druggists.

DEALER IN OLEO GIVEN SIX YEARS

Judge Landis Also Fines Him $15,000---Congressman's Name Mentioned.

Chicago, March 1.—Federal inquiry into methods of disposing of oleomargarine was ordered by Judge K. M. Landis of the United States district court yesterday after he had sentenced one of four dealers who had been indicted for violating the oleomargarine regulations to six years in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth and fined him $15,000. The man was William Broadwell. The cases of the other three, Edward Broadwell, Samuel Driesbach and Daniel Bortz, were continued until Thursday.

"It has been disclosed that probably not less than $15,000 and possibly more than $20,000 has been lost by the United States government as a result of Broadwell's activities," said Judge Landis in sentencing the dealer. "Whenever arrested he has given bonds and then violated the laws again next day. It was a willful defiance of the law. His bond has been supplied by a manufacturer of the commodity which he sold illegally, a proceeding which I regard it my duty to say is highly significant."

Backed by Congressman.

Thomas Dudman, a purchasing agent for an oleomargarine concern, said that when he acted as bondsman for the indicted man he expected to be indemnified, in case there was any loss, by his employer, William J. Moxley.

Mr. Moxley is at present representative in congress from the Sixth district of Illinois.

RAILROADS ARE SETTLING TAXES

Apparently Abandoned Idea of Fighting Gross Earnings Tax Further.

St. Paul, Minn., March 1.—The Great Northern and the Chicago Great Western railroads apparently will not make any effort to reopen the gross earnings tax case which was decided against them in the federal supreme court a week ago, for both roads yesterday paid the full 4 per cent tax upon their gross earnings for the year 1909. It is expected that they will also pay the back taxes which were in dispute.

The gross earnings of the railroads in the state show an increase of about 17 per cent over 1908. All the roads have now reported and paid their tax, except the Burlington and a couple of switching roads, which will add about $20,000 to the $3,619,107.40 already paid into the state treasury.

For the year 1908 the taxes were $3,155,027, but of this $149,855 was in dispute, the Great Northern asserting that it was obliged to pay only 3 per cent on part of its line and the Chicago Great Western 2 per cent.

The gross earnings for 1909 were $90,477,686 in the state, in addition to which there is about $400,000 not reported. The earnings in 1908 were $77,857,681.

A Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process and that is absolutely essential to health and strength. The problem of a good appetite is easily solved if you will keep on hand and serve regularly with your meals a good malt tonic, such as Golden Grain Belt beer. Try it and be convinced. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

CLEVELAND HAS WON 3-CENT FARE FIGHT.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 1.—The receivership into which the Cleveland street railways were thrown in November, 1908, was ended at midnight last night, and with it the successful struggle of the people for a 3-cent fare. After the last night car traversed its route the property was formally turned over to the Cleveland Railway company, which has succeeded in raising the half-million dollars interest fund as directed by the courts.

MacCracken to Retire.

New York, March 1.—The venerable Henry Mitchell MacCracken, one of the best known educators in the country, is going to retire as chancellor of New York university on his seventieth birthday, Sept. 28 next. At the same time he will resign as professor of physics. After serving the university for more than twenty-five years, Dr. MacCracken made known his intention to retire in a letter read at the quarterly meeting of the university council yesterday.

Conductor Is Rewarded.

Montreal, March 1.—For heroic work in the rescue of passengers from the wreck of a Canadian Pacific train at Spanish river bridge on Jan. 21, in which over forty lives were lost, Conductor Thomas Reynolds was today given a gold watch and a check for $500. In making the presentation, President Shaughnessy said it was the company's recognition of Reynold's appreciation of a duty of a railroad man, which called for self-sacrifice and devotion.

Beer vs. Other Tonics

The government's ruling compelling manufacturers of medicines to state on their labels the constituents of their products, has revealed the fact that most tonics contain a very large percentage of alcohol, often 50% and more.

Beer on the other hand contains but little alcohol, (about 3½%), and its medicinal properties are derived from two of nature's products—hops and barley.

Fitger's Beer

CHALLENGE IS ISSUED

Girls of Irving School Want to Debate on Woman Suffrage.

Team May Debate With Cloquet High School Girls Soon.

A standing challenge to any high school team in the state which will take the negative side of the much-debated question, "Is Women's Suffrage Desirable for Minnesota?" has been issued by the suffragettes of the Irving Industrial high school at West Duluth.

If the challenge is not accepted, it is understood that an effort will be made to get a debate with other schools in this vicinity on any other question. Arrangements are now being made to send out a challenge to some of the range towns for a debate. The question has not been decided upon.

There is some talk at the Irving school of a debate with the Cloquet girls who were defeated last week in a debate at the Central high school on the "Initiative and Referendum" question. If the Cloquet team will accept, this arrangement would be preferred to any other.

Both teams have been defeated by the Central high school, and it is thought neither would have an advantage. The West Duluth team which debated with the Central, however, might be changed and a new one selected by a preliminary contest. These details are being worked out by Principal S. A. Foster.

The work in debating has been a feature at the Irving school for the past two semesters. The senior class has held several debates, and there have also been a number of interclass affairs. The seniors are now planning on holding a mock trial at the school some morning. The civics class will visit the municipal and district courts in session to get a better idea of court procedure.

MINISTER EXPECTS SUPPORT.

Rev. D. G. Cole Says He Doesn't Think Matter Will Go to Courts.

Regarding a published rumor that the trustees of the Plymouth Congregational church, Fifty-fourth avenue west and Bristol street, would resort to the courts to prevent Rev. D. G. Cole from preaching in the church, after being dismissed, Rev. Mr. Cole had the following to say today:

"I do not think that the trustees will care to go to such a length. Public sentiment is against them and many people knew that the whole thing is a piece of malice.

"For instance when I asked that my salary be paid me at once, one person who has worked against me for a long time spoke up and said 'Make him wait two months for his pay.' My friends will stand by me."

BUSINESS VENTURES.

Prosperity of West Duluth Reflected in New Concerns.

In anticipation of the resumption of heavy business in the spring, a number of new business offices and concerns are now establishing themselves in the business section of West Duluth.

Today, the West Duluth Commission company opened up a store at 521 Central avenue in a building that has been vacant for several months past. The promoters of the company are Joseph Sherwin and G. Koors.

Frank E. Watson, who has up to this week been employed as manager of the real estate department of the Lucien A. Barnes company, has started up in business for himself. He will be located in the Woodward block.

R. B. Gilmore of Gilmore & Co., blacksmiths at 5512 Grand avenue, has sold out his interest in this concern and has again entered into partnership with E. Richard. The new firm will be known as Richard & Gilmore and will operate a shop at 312 North Fifty-sixth avenue west.

AT THE CURLING CLUB.

Play Is Rushed So That Events May Be Finished.

Three games will be played this evening at the Western curling rink in the Burns event. They are as follows: Wade vs. Miller, Rockwell vs Ellis and Macauley vs Evered. Beginning tomorrow evening "double-headers" will be played in order to finish the events before the close of th season.

Last night Hewitt took Keyes into camp by a score of 12 to 9 in the Hendrickson event. Wade defeated Olson in the Bagley event, 11 to 10, and Holland bested Evered, 11 to 7, in the Burns event. Tomorrow night Holland's "kid" rink will go to Superior to meet Miller's juvenile aggregation of that city.

Date Is Changed.

The date of the "experience" social of the Ladies' Aid Society of the West Duluth Baptist church has been changed from March 17 to March 18. A program will be arranged for the occasion and refreshments will be served. Each member of the society must earn a dollar, and when she presents it to the society she must tell how she earned it.

Entertains for Friends.

Monthly Card Party.
The regular monthly card party given by the Women's Relief corps, will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in Memorial hall at the new courthouse building. "Five Hundred" will be played.

Prompt Justice.
George Adams was meted justice in rapid style this morning. He was arrested for stealing a suit case and some clothes from Joe Lawrence on the Bowery at 11 o'clock. Five minutes later he was arraigned in police court, where he entered a plea of guilty. The court heard the report and gave him $75 and costs or sixty days. He didn't have the cash and in a quarter of an hour from the time he was arrested he was getting ready for the county jail.

Case Is Dismissed.
Mike Flannery, arrested recently on a charge of petty larceny on complaint of Charles Thompson, who claimed he stole a set of harness worth $25 from him, was discharged in police court this morning. He claimed that Thompson gave him the harness while intoxicated. He then sold it to a local dealer.

A QUIET DAY IN COPPERS

Firm Tone Develops Before the Close of the Session.

Dullness that amounted almost to stagnation, characterized the copper market at the opening today. As the session advanced interest became more lively and as there was no pressure on values, the light buying movement which developed, caused an upturn in most of the leaders. The market closed strong being supported by good buying from new quarters and considerable short covering.

The London market was quiet but Americans were higher and the confidence acboad injected a good undertone into the American situation. It was reported that the new business of the United States Steel corporation is running close to production, and that it is expected to exceed capacity befor the end of the month. The delay in the forthcoming decision in the American Tobacco case and the abandonment of the British budget by the government until after Easter, removed two disturbing factors from the market, temporarily at least.

Bisbee wired that the Powell shaft of the Calumet & Arizona has been abandoned and that the machinery is being removed. Yukon Gold, the Guggenheim Alaskan proposition that was floated by Thomas Lawson, declared its regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. Ojibway stockholders were due to pay an assessment of $1 today. Helvetia called for an assessment of 50 cents. Live Oak stockholders will be required to pay $2 a share in the near future for development work. The copper metal market is stronger, all grades in London advancing fractionally today. The local market was quiet with trading well distributed.

Butte-Ballaklava sold in the East at $10 and here at $10 and then at $9.87½; Copper Queen brought 60 cents; Red Warrior $2.43¾ and $2.37½; Shattuck $20.25, $19.25 and $19.50; Warrior sold at $11.12½; Butte & Superior at $2.56¼; Calumet & Montana at $1.12½; Calumet Corbin at 75 cents; Calumet & Sonora at $20.12½ and $20; Cliff at $1.50; Rawhide Royal at 5 cents; Tuolumne at $4, and Amazon-Montana at $5.62½ down to $5.37½. GOOD FEELING PREVAILED

Tri-State Telephone Company Has Good Will of Former Owners.

"The taking over of the Zenith Telephone company by the Tri-State company, means that the independent concern wil have ample financial backing," said Harlan P. Roberts, attorney for the Tri-State company, who is in the city today, attending to the details of the transfer. E. H. Moulton, president of the Tri-State company, and D. M. Neill of Red Wing, the temporary manager of the Duluth company, are also here today.

"I do not know what improvements may be necessary to the plant. I understand that good service has always been given, but if any improvements are found necessary, they will be made.

"The best of good feeling prevailed between the two parties to the transfer, and the Duluth men retire with nothing but good will toward the new owners." In this latter statement, Mr. Roberts was borne out by W. M. Hubbard, the former local manager.

FOUR YOUNG MEN HAVE ICY BATH

Four young men, whose identity is unknown, had a very thrilling experience last evening while ice boating on the bay. They were thrown into the open water near the canal entrance and succeeded in reaching firm footing only after a desperate struggle.

At the canal entrance the snow has blurred and made indistinct the line of open water. Uable to see the dangerous place, the men ran the boat right into the open water.

They were instantly drenched to the skin. One of the men let go of the boat and struggled to get on the firmer ice. He sank once, but finally got a firm hold on the jagged ice and pulled himself to a place where the ice would sustain his weight.

The others kept their hold on the boat and by the help of their companion, were pulled safely to firm ice.

Aside from the shock of an ice cold bath, the men were not injured by the experience.

STEENERSON CUT SHORT BY SPEAKER

Minnesotan Wants to Reply to Charges in Ship Subsidy Paper.

Washington, March 1.—Representative Steenerson of Minnesota arose in the house today on a question of personal privilege and attempted to reply to an attack made upon him in a publication printed in the interest of ship subsidy. After an extensive reading of the objectional matter, in which various charges were made against Mr. Steenerson, because of his opposition to ship subsidy, Speaker Cannon was not convinced that the subject was one that warranted the personal explanation desired by the Minnesota member. Upon the suggestion of Mr. Payne of New York, the entire subject was allowed to go over until next Thursday, when Mr. Steenerson will again take the floor on the same question.

Mr. Steenerson desired to make extended reply to the charges against him.

THOUSANDS OF HEALTHY MEN

Throughout this entire section of the country owe their present health and happiness to the skillful methods, vast experience and masterly knowledge of the learned specialists of—

Progressive Medical Association of Duluth.

For 25 years these learned Scientists have been successfully treating the ailments and diseases common to man—years ago they dropped all other branches of medical practice and surgery—bending all their energies towards attaining a more complete knowledge of this one branch which they had decided to specialize in. How well they have succeeded is eloquently told by the thousands of unsolicited testimonials sent by grateful patients whom they entirely cured of diseases and ailments, many of which had been of several years' standing, others of which had been given up as hopeless by other physicians, by the fact that every day, from early till late the offices are crowded with men on the road to health, by the fact that so thoroughly sure are these Specialists of their ability, that with every accepted case A Legal Guarantee to Cure Is Issued.

Think it over and submit your case to them today—consultation is free, and for one fee you are treated until cured.

ALLEGED WHITE SLAVERS ARE HELD TO GRAND JURY

Two Men and Two Women Bound Over By Municipal Court.

Mrs. Costin Tells of Detention in Resort Near Ely.

Charles Bushey, alleged white-slaver, was bound over to the next grand jury, by the municipal court yesterday afternoon after a preliminary hearing in which Mrs. Blanch Welsh Costin, who is alleged to have been brought into the state by Bushey, was the only witness put on the stand by the state.

This morning Daisy Redfield, alleged keeper of the resort to which the Costin woman was taken, was bound over to the grand jury on two charges, one being that she derived her livelihood in part from the earnings of a prostitute and the other that she detained Mrs. Costin for purposes of prostitution. Dottie Holliday, housekeeper employed by the Redfield woman, and Henry Palmer, the bartender, were also bound over on the charge of detaining Mrs. Costin. All are out on bonds.

Mrs. Costin declared that Bushey induced her to leave her home in Ironwood, Mich., for Ely on the pretext that she was to be given work at high wages in a store or hotel. She stated that he paid her fare and gave her no intimation of the fact that she was being brought to a lonely halfway house in the woods for immoral purposes.

She claimed that he bought her meals and that when she got off at the Ely depot she was told that they were going to a hotel a short distance from the city. She asserted that when they reached the place, she was taken inside by Bushey, who instructed one of the inmates to show her to a room and provide her with house clothes. She was not asked to go into lengthy details of the life she led in the place.

The woman made an excellent witness. M. H. McMahon, attorney for Bushey and the others arrested at the house, attempted to have her admit of other excursions reflecting upon her past life, but she stoutly denied most of them. She admitted some allegations. He tried to show that it was not the first time she had been in an immoral resort and that she had been to different places with men other than her husband.

A new feature of the state's law against the so-called white slavery was brought out in court this morning. It appears that the section of the law relating to a person being supported in part by the earnings of an immoral woman was designed to reach men. But the Redfield woman has been bound over to the grand jury on the same clause. It is said that "landladies" can be reached effectively by the law.

The hearings in the cases produced no sensations. Mrs. Costin told her story in a straightforward manner, answering all questions put to her. It was shown that she could have probably run away from the place had she wanted to take chances of getting lost. There is no fence about the house and the road which passes it runs between Ely and Winton.

PRIZE WINNERS

At North Dakota Dairymen's Recent Association Meeting.

Jamestown, N. D., March. 1.—In the creamery class at the state dairymen's association meet here last week there were twenty-four entries, besides some that were delayed by trains not reaching here in time. The judges commented favorably upon the packages, as the buttermakers worked under extremely adverse conditions, due to the sudden cold weather, cream being delayed in delivery and frozen. The test was severe.

Those ranking over ninety in the creamery class were: J. H. Hein, New Salem, winner of first prize; M. J. Johnson, Kenmare, 93¾; Hugo Dornson, Kenmare, 93¾; B. F. Schulz, 92½; H. C. Streeter, 92; B. F. Schulz, 92½; H. C. Jenson, Galesburg, 92½; W. A. Gerson, Glen Ullin, 92; Paul Hoerz, Youngtown, 91½; Hanse Larson, McKenzie, 91; F. W. Pawleson, Casselton, 91; Otto Gaebe, Blue Grass, 91; Only those above ninety are given.

In the dairy class, first prize was won by Mrs. P. J. Husfloen, Haywood, scoring 91½. She also has taken first prize at Fargo in two successive years, 1907 and 1908. Frank Pentray, Jamestown, scored 91; Mrs. C. M. Chrisdotherson, Ypsilanti, 9-; Mrs. C. L. Young, Gand Gackle, 90½; Mrs. H. Larson, Grand Forks, 90.

SAVE CARGO WITH MAGNET.

New Orleans Men Pick Nails Out of Sunken Steamer.

New Orleans, La., March 1.—An ingenious method has been adopted for the recovery of a cargo of nails, which went down on a sinking steamboat here a few weeks ago. A huge electric magnet, attached to hoisting gear, is lowered in the water. The electric current is turned on and the kegs of nails are hoisted out one by one, clinging to the magnet. Fifteen thousand kegs of nails went down in the river. Sixteen hundred kegs full already have been recovered.

PENALTIES ARE HEAVY

Law's Hand Will Fall If Corporations Failed to File Returns.

All Companies in Duluth Believed to Have Complied With Law.

Officials of corporations, if any there be, who failed to make a statement to the collector of internal revenue under the provisions of the excise law provision of the new tariff law, or who made false returns as to the business of the corporations with which they are connected, may well quake, for the vengeance of the law will fall on them.

The new corporation tax law provides that any corporation failing to make the proper returns may be subjected to a fine of from $1,000 to $10,000 and any officer making false returns shall be punished by a fine of not to exceed $1,000 or by imprisonment for not to exceed one year, or by both.

It is not believed that any corporation officers in this section of the state have laid themselves open to the heavy penalties which may be imposed under the new law. Yesterday was the last day for filing the statements, and it is believed that all corporations having their main offices in this part of the state have complied with the law and sidestepped trouble.

It was not without murmuring and loud protestations that the companies obeyed the law. When the act was first passed, a loud wail went up all over the country. Immediately on the first steps of enforcement being taken test cases were rushed into the courts all over the country. The first test case to go to the United States supreme court was one from Vermont and it was certified to the court about Feb. 1. The supreme court justices took their usual February vacation and a decision has not yet been rendered in the case.

Corporation officials were in hopes that the supreme court would render a favorable decision in the case before March 1 and they consequently held off in filing their returns. As March 1 drew near and no decision was handed down, the officers of the various companies began to get busy. They prepared their returns and promptly filed them and Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Otto Gaffvert says that he believes every corporation in this section, without exception, made the statement required by law.

The corporation officials still have hope of being relieved from the workings of the new law. Should the United States supreme court decide the Vermont case in favor of the corporations, all steps already taken under the new law would be declared illegal, statements filed would probably be returned to the corporations and the first assessment under the law would not be made. At any rate, corporation officials decided that the wiser course would be to file the statements and hope for a favorable decision rather than to fail to file the statements and take chances on the penalty in case the decision of the supreme court is in favor of the government.

Stiff Neck.
Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side, or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all druggists.

SURVEYORS ARE BUSY.

Two Parties Running Lines in Vicinity of Plaze, N. D.

Williston, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crew of Great Northern surveyors that is working on a line in the vicinity of Plaze, and which is supposed to be a continuation of the Ayr cut-off, have now reached Nessen, Williams county. Nessen is in the southeastern section of the county, and it would appear that the line is being run directly into Williston. The survey work through Southern Mountrail county has already been completed, and indications are that the line will be built before very long.

In addition to the crew of Great Northern surveyors, there is also a crew of Soo surveyors working in the Plaze district, the two railroads evidently being engaged in a race for the new country that will be opened on the Fort Berthold reservation before long, and which bids fair to become vastly important from the railroad point of view.

SUPPLY WORLD WITH IRON.

Brazilian Comes to Negotiate for Exportation of Ores.

New York, March 1.—Gen. F. M. De Souza Aguiar, commissioned by the Brazilian government to study the iron and steel industry of the United States with a view to the establishment of a wholesale exportation of Brazilian ores to this country, has arrived in New York. Before leaving for Pittsburg, to begin the first stage of his investigations, he gave out the following statement:

"Steelmakers all over the world are considering the future and wondering where the good ores of tomorrow are to be found. Brazil can solve the problem. Brazil has vast deposits of high grade iron ore and what is more important, enormous quantities of manganese ore, so necessary in the manufacture of the best steel. These deposits are in the state of Mines Geraes, 300 miles from Rio Janeiro, handy to the coast and with a government railroad to the capital.

"If we find a paying demand at present, the ore can be delivered at American ports in unlimited quantities. Once we begin exporting we shall take over the task of supplying the demands of both America and Europe."

HITS AT THE DRUG HABIT.

Senator Cullom Has Bill to Regulate Sale of "Dope."

Washington, March 1.—To minimize the dangers of the sale of "habit-forming" drugs, Senator Cullom has introduced bills in conformity with suggestions made by the American members of the international opium commission, which met at Shanghai in February, 1909. Regulations are provided to govern the importation, sale and manufacture of all forms of poisons included in the list of recognized "habit-forming" drugs.

NAVIGATION WILL OPEN LATE

Heavy Ice on Lower Lakes Will Prevent Early Start.

That navigation will be late in opening this year is the opinion of a local marine man who returned to the city today after a visit at the principal lower lake ports.

The marine man says that in the lower lakes there is more ice this season than in several seasons past. The rivers and channels are frozen solid, and much warm weather will be required to enable the boats to begin running by May 15.

The ice at lower lake ports is piled up until it looks as though the sun would never be able to make clear water, according to the local man.

"The vessel companies," he said, "are very anxious to get started, and the boats will begin to run as soon as the weather conditions will permit. The outlook is the best in years for a rush season, once the waters open up, but at this time it looks dark for an early opening.

"Last year the strike tied things up for some time, and this year it will be the ice. Always something to block the marine man's game."

OPENING OF NEW TERM OF COURT

March Term Will Begin With Call of Calendar Wednesday Morning.

Tomorrow the March term of the district court will open.

The call of the calendar will be the first proceeding and the grand jury will then go into session.

There are many cases to come up for its consideration and it is expected that close to twenty indictments in all will be returned.

Among those to be considered are four white slave cases, two murder cases and many cases against persons for minor offenses. There are no robbery or assault cases to be considered. Most of the cases to be taken up are for larceny in the various degrees.

Passing from a very light term, the new term will loom up unusually large. A great number of civil actions from last term will be tried and the calendar will therefore be the heaviest in some time.

It is expected that the case of the state against Ralph Jones, charged with the murder of Walter Whitehead, will be one of the first cases to be taken up before the judge that will preside over the criminal trials.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

HEARS MRS. SWOPE AGAIN.

Grand Jury Calls Her for the Tenth Time at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., March 1.—Mrs. Logan O. Swope today made her tenth appearance before the grand jury that is investigating the Swope mystery. The county prosecutor was not willing today to state just when the grand jury would release her.

Dr. B. C. Hyde's attorneys are anxious to obtain Mrs. Swope's deposition in the civil suit that is pending in connection with the Swope case, but she will not go before the notarial court until the grand jury investigation permits.

Prosecutor Conkling announced today that Walter S. Haines of Chicago and Dr. Victor Vaughan of Ann Arbor, Mich., would be the last witnesses called by the grand jury.

NINE HURT ON FERRYBOATS.

Collision Occurs in Fog on the Delaware River.

Philadelphia, March 1.—Nine persons were injured today by a collision of ferry boats in a dense fog on the Delaware river. The accident occurred at one of the Pennsylvania railroad slips near Market street. The ferry boat Camden, while crossing the river from Camden, N. J., with 600 passengers, lost its bearings and crashed into the ferryboat Wenonah, which was about to leave a slip.

The Camden's cabin was crushed in and one passenger suffered a fracture of a leg. The others caught in the crash were injured by splintered wood and fragments of glass. A panic resulted on both sides, but the passengers were quickly assured that neither craft was in danger of sinking.

DRUGGIST WHO ERRED ABSOLVED FROM BLAME.

Valley City, N. D., March 1.—In view of the findings of the coroner's jury, together with the fact that relatives of Mrs. McFadgen, deceased, of Rogers, absolve him from any blame in the matter, the authorities have decided that no criminal proceedings against J. C. Bennett, the Sanborn druggist, whose error in filling a prescription resulted in the death of Mrs. McFadgen, should be taken. He was discharged from custody and returned to Sanborn.

Mr. McFadgen is sinking steadily and there is small chance of his recovery.

RAINY RIVER'S MAYOR MAY BE DISQUALIFIED.

Baudette, Minn., March. 1.—An effort is being made to disqualify Mayor Carson of Rainy River, who was elected to the office about a month ago. The charges being brought him are that he hired men and teams to convey voters to the polling places on election day, and that he loaned money to certain parties to pay their taxes so that they would be eligible to vote.

Both these practices are contrary to the law in Canada.

THE ZENITH BOARD AWARDS PRIZES.

At the meeting of the Zenith board of the junior class at the high school yesterday afternoon, Miss Mildred Prudden was awarded the first prize for the best frontispiece. Stanley Lamb was awarded the prize for the best poem, and Palmer Bevis, it was decided, had written the best story.

The meeting held was the final one before the junior section of the publication goes to press. Those present were: Palmer Bevis, editor of the junior section; Miss Mary N. Goodhue, Stanley Lamb, Elenore Aske, Mildred Prudden, Elsie Final, Marion Mooney, Eben Spencer and Bruce Sibbald.

Herbert Paul won the second prize with his football story entitled, "Yal" and Robert Buck's story, "Bennet" won third prize.

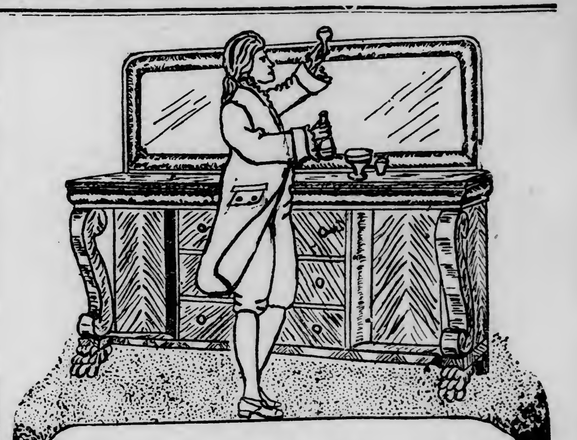
Hurt Taking Children to School.

Brinsmade, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—While taking his children to school, R. W. Loken of this place was thrown over the front of the sleigh, striking his head against the tongue, and knocked unconscious. The horses then ran away, but the children in the sleigh escaped without injuries.

Convicted Man to Penitentiary.

Granville, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. E. Slavins, convicted in McHenry county recently of attempted rape, has started to serve his sentence of five years in the state penitentiary. Slavins, when taken to prison, was accompanied a portion of this distance by his wife. The convicted man will make an application for a new trial, but inability to secure bonds pending the appeal resulted in his being committed to the state prison.

The Herald prints today's news today.



True Colonial Reproductions In High-Grade
Furniture

Of the many prevailing periods in furniture shown at the present time, the Colonial period is perhaps the most in favor among people desirous of furnishing their homes with furnishings that bespeak dignity, restfulness and harmony.

The reproductions of the Colonial period shown on our display floors, are true conceptions of the originals in every detail. The designs are exact copies of the pieces used in the Old Colonial days, in fact, they are taken from the original pieces.

We offer you an opportunity to make your selections from a magnificent showing of this popular style in furniture. Your choice is not limited to a few pieces that only tend to give you a faint idea of the possibilities of furnishing your home with Colonial period furniture.

HOMESEEKER

Don't make the awful mistake of selecting the wrong location.

A healthy climate and congenial surroundings are vitally important.

Don't settle in a far away district where all the conveniences of life are lacking.

Minnesota offers you more than any other state. Our Northeastern Pine Country settlement in Pine county, with its good roads and telephone lines all over, located on the Twin Cities & Lake Superior Electric line, half way between the Twin Cities and Duluth and Superior, presents the grandest opportunity for farming or dairying or stock raising that can be found anywhere.

TURNER IS IN DULUTH

Ridicules Idea That He Is Working Against Insurgents.

Republican League Organizer Says His Mission Is Educational.

Jesse F. Turner, organizer of the National Republican league, an organization of which John Hays Hammond is president, arrived in Duluth yesterday afternoon and today has been busy in getting leaders of Duluth Republican clubs interested in the idea which is being carried into execution in practically every part of the country.

Mr. Turner states that the idea is not to boost Mr. Hammond for president, though he admitted that many people had questioned him along that line. He stated that the idea was to work along educational lines, and that from the bureau of the league in Washington literature would be sent out in the near future. Mr. Turner also stated that it was the intention of the league to issue a national Republican magazine in the future.

Mr. Turner was asked regarding the story which was sprung while he was in St. Paul. There it was reported that he was sent out from Washington to work in the interests of Taft harmony in the party ranks, and against the insurgents.

"It is absurd and ridiculous," declared Mr. Turner today. "The idea is simply to organize a national movement more for education than any ulterior political motive. The organization is not for the purpose of boosting Mr. Hammond. He is far too big a man for that and would not lend his name to any such movement.

"I am here to see the leaders of the Republican party and some of the leading members of Duluth's political clubs. I will have them appoint committees, and in April the state organization will be perfected and officers elected at a convention to be held in Minneapolis. I expect that Duluth will send representatives to this convention. The state organization will work in harmony with the national organization, and thus there will be a great opportunity for education along political lines.

"There will be a meeting in Minneapolis Thursday evening, and I hope that Duluth will send a representative to this meeting. The movement has met with success in all parts of the country, and especially in the West, and I am sure that it will be successful here. Republican leaders have looked with favor on the movement, and as soon as the object is known and thoroughly understood, it has met with hearty co-operation from leading workers of the party."

Mr. Turner called upon a number of the leading party workers here. He also met some of the club workers today, notably some of the members of the West Duluth Republican club, the Garfield Republican club and several of the members of some of the Scandinavian Republican clubs.

He will give them an idea of the plan of the organization, he says, and let them work with the other committees that are being appointed in other parts of the state. He believes that by the time of the April convention the movement will have been thoroughly started.

MAY ATTEND CONVENTION

Duluth Will Be Well Represented at County Option Gathering.

E. C. Clemans and Others Are Already in St. Paul.

E. C. Clemans, district superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league and several other temperance workers and advocates of Duluth, went to St. Paul last night to be on the ground early for the big county option convention, which will be held in the Auditorium at the capital tomorrow.

Many delegates to the convention went to St. Paul this afternoon and others follow tonight. By tomorrow morning when the big convention opens, Duluth and all of Northeastern Minnesota will be well represented in the gathering which is expected to do much toward furthering the ends of temperance in Minnesota.

Nearly every church and every temperance organization in Duluth will be represented at the convention. Many people without credentials will attend as individuals to hear the speeches and add to the cause by their presence and enthusiasm.

The convention will easily be the biggest thing of its kind ever held in Minnesota and it is expected to have a very noticeable effect on the next campaign, especially as to the contests for seats in the legislature. At the meeting tomorrow, Governor Eberhart will speak and he has been called upon to declare himself on the county option question. Other prominent state politicians are also on the program.

The county option advocates expect that the big auditorium will be filled for the first time tomorrow. The building, which has a capacity of 10,000 people, was not quite filled on the occasion of the Taft meeting there during the last campaign, and that was the biggest crowd ever in the building. For tomorrow's gathering, reserved seats have already been made for 7,000 seats, and it is expected the crowd that will gather for the big meeting of the day will crowd the immense auditorium.

The convention is intended primarily to arouse interest in the county option campaign and the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, under whose auspices the meeting is to be held, will form plans for a vigorous campaign to secure men in the legislature who will pass a county option law. E. C. Clemans, the superintendent of this district for the league, will open a downtown office immediately after the convention and he will lead a vigorous campaign in favor of candidates for the legislature who will declare themselves in favor of county option.

WHAT IT COST TO BE ELECTED

Mayor Cullum Spent Most Money of Candidates at City Election.

The successful candidates at the recent city election have all taken their oaths of office and filed statements of their expenses as required by law.

Dr. M. B. Cullum elected mayor, spent more than any of the others, his total expense being $219.25, of which $165 went to the Democratic committee, $30.25 for cards, etc., $14 for canvassers, and $10 for filing.

Ex-Mayor Haven spent $142.25. It cost him $22 for advertising, $48 for clerk hire, $49 for canvassers and $13.25 for cards.

Of the aldermen, L. A. Barnes let go of the most cash, getting rid of $179.90, of which $50 went to the Republican city committee and $100 for advertising. Frank Makowski was next with $108.75. James A. Wharton spent $41.50. Frank Jordan, $40; H. P. Curran, $61.30; John Hogan, $42.50; J. D. Bergstrom, $82; and William Bernard, $58.50.

ROAMS ABOUT ON PRAIRIE; FOUND CRAZY.

Grafton, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wandering about the prairie at night alone, and neglecting to care for his stock, Andrew Olson of Latona township, this county, was picked up in a pitiable condition by the officials. Olson, who is 61 years of age, had apparently been in the best of health and soundest of mind up to about two weeks ago, when he began to act queerly. His night roaming on the prairies resulted in arrest, and last night he was taken to the state asylum for the insane at Jamestown.

Missing Man in Jail.

La Moure, N. D., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred O. Kilen, who last December suddenly disappeared from La Moure county, is again in this section but is behind the bars. Kilen was captured by Sheriff Cruden at Minneapolis and brought back to face trial for grand larceny and passing worthless checks.

One Year for Assault.

La Moure, N. D., March 1.—George Wooddell, convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon, was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary by Judge Goss.

WHEAT HAS REACTION

Profit-Taking After Bulge Causes Prices to Ease Off.

Crop Damage Reports Are Dominating Factor in the Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 1.—Wheat eased off today in a stubborn market in which offerings were light. Profit-taking after yesterday's bulge was the primary cause of the reaction. May opened at $1.15½, lost ¼c, sold at $1.15⅜, then at $1.15¼-⅜, $1.15⅛, $1.14⅞-7/8, up to $1.15⅛ and down ⅛c, up to $1.15¼ and back to $1.14⅞-1.15, then at $1.15 and down to $1.14⅞-1.15 at the close. July opened at $1.15½ asked and lost ⅛c, sold up to $1.15⅜, down to $1.14⅝-¾, at $1.15⅛-¼ and then at $1.14⅞ and closed at $1.14¾-⅞.

The flax market was quiet and dull. May opened at $2.18 bid and sold off ½c then at $2.17, $2.17¾ and at $2.17, closing with offers at that price. July was $1.70½ bid.

Rye, oats and barley were unchanged. Cash was ⅝@½c over the near option.

Profit-taking at the start caused prices to sag, and although values were easy the remainder of the day, buying was good and offerings were light. The market acted stubborn, and in the face of the continued crop damage reports and the hesitancy of shorts to assimilate new commitments, values were fairly well sustained, despite the feeding out of long wheat. At the top prices of the day the market encountered some stop-loss orders, which contributed to the halt of the upturn.

The decline was temporarily checked in the early hours. Holders of July downs bought generously and the market showed a tendency to react favorably. Profit-taking continued intermittently, however, and the market resumed its downward march. A pronounced buying movement would have caused a sharp upturn, probably on account of the strained position of the market and the tendency of traders to follow it either way.

Crop scare reports are the dominant factor and these will continue to be the chief influence in the market for some time. Weather reports are interesting the market all over the world and traders are kept on the anxious seat. All this contributes to a good scalping market. Damage reports continued to come in heavily from the Southwest. They were not backed by buying orders to such an extent as yesterday.

A wire from Kansas City said that F. D. Coburn, secretary of the Kansas state agricultural board, had estimated damage in six counties at 50 per cent. The dispatch added that cinch bugs, the greedy, the growing plant. Anybody who knows Coburn doubts that he made such a statement. Cinch bugs usually do not appear in Kansas until the latter part of May or the forepart of June. A broker, who reported heavy rains in the Southwest on Saturday, wired today that drouth is killing the wheat plant. Such reports as these have a tendency to make traders doubt that the damage has been much more than nominal. Conservative people are slow to believe that great damage has transpired and think it impossible for any one to tell much about the crop. The weather in the next sixty days will have an important bearing on the outcome.

Kansas can assume a loss of around 25 per cent and still produce as much wheat as last year when the spring and winter crop aggregated 87,000,000 bu. For the last ten years the average loss has been 8.5 per cent. The highest extreme has been 15.2 per cent.

Owing to bad roads in the Northwest receipts at elevators, which are about full, show a falling off. The government report on farm reserves will be given out next week and will have considerable effect on values. The average supplies in farmers' hands for ten crops have been 23.8 per cent, the highest being 29 per cent and the lowest 21.1 per cent, or 206,644,000 bu, and 162,565,000 bu respectively. The average for ten years as applied to this year would give reserves of about 175,500,000 bu, compared with 143,-660,000 bu last year. The visible supply this week was about unchanged from last week. It will be recalled that in this period of last year the visible supply was greater than now by about 14,000,000 bu. From March 1 last year to July 1 the visible showed a sharp falling off, declining from about 38,000,000 bu to about 11,-000,000 bu. Primary receipts in the last seven months ending with March have been about 15,000,000 bu in excess of the receipts last year. This increase has been readily absorbed and there is not much doubt as to the ability of the country to take care of the difference between the current crop and that of the previous year.

The milling demand for cash wheat which has been extremely light for several days showed a slight improvement today. Minneapolis reported a fair market. No. 1 northern brought ½@½c over the near option. Great Northern and Northern Pacific cars, it was said, were difficult to sell. Spot wheat was scarce here and the cash market was inclined to be somewhat stiff. Winnipeg reported a good cash demand from millers. Prices were about 1c over the spot values at Fort William. Cash wheat is tied up by the mills and while receipts have been liberal, stocks do not accumulate rapidly. Consequently, practically every sale of May wheat is a short sale. Attempts by bears to replace their wheat have invariably turned the market upward as when they endeavor to secure that which they have sold they find that the wheat has disappeared. This condition is an important element in the speculative aspect of the market.

Some sales of flour were reported today and a Consolidated elevator at Minneapolis was reopened. Jobbers are fairly well supplied, and from a milling viewpoint the situation does not seem especially bullish. An immense amount of flour is still in transit from the Northwest to distributing centers. Consumption is heavy, but there appears to be plenty of flour on hand. The cash situation cannot be regarded with undue favor by those traders who are bullishly inclined.

Any increase in cash prices, some traders believe, will bring out additional supplies from the country. Further pressure will develop on any pronounced upturn in the price for July delivery, especially if it turns out that the growing plant has not been seriously damaged.

Foreign markets were stronger, reflecting the advance here. The demand for La Plata was better, and New York wired that the United Kingdom was inquiring for Manitoba wheat for March and April shipment. Bids advanced 1½c. Ames-Brooks said the export trade is at a minimum and that the outlook is far from favorable.

MARKET GOSSIP

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—"Wheat at the start displayed a firm undertone with values ½@⅝d higher, being influenced by the firmness of American cables yesterday and later March advanced a further ¾d on small deliveries on contract and an improved demand for La Plata parcels which are firmly held at 3d advance. The distant months were under pressure of favorable reports from India and predictions of larger shipments from Argentina and Russia. It is expected that the European visible supply will show a heavy increase for the week. At midday, the market was irregular with shorts holding March steady and a penny higher and pressure in the distant months with offerings larger and ½d higher than yesterday. Corn was unchanged. There was a steady undertone due to the improved demand for spot."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Opening Wheat Prices Are Lower, But Recovery Follows.

Chicago, March 1.—Wheat prices this morning backed away from yesterday's closing splurge. Initial figures were ⅞c off, but in the first hour much of the early decline had been recovered. Bullish sentiment was encouraged by continued crop damage reports. Stories of ravages by cinch bugs were added to the recent tales of injury by thaw and frost. May opened unchanged to ⅜c lower at $1.15⅝@1.15⅝, sagged a trifle, recovered on buying by bulls, and steadied near the high point. The more distant futures followed the course of the May delivery.

Later in the session the market weakened on a lessening demand for cash wheat and reports discrediting crop damage statements. Fluctuations were wide, from 1c to 1⅜c. May moved between $1.15¾ and $1.14⅜. The close was weak on the lower levels with May ¾@¾c off at $1.14¾@-1.15.

Corn opened ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower and quickly developed a strong tone on buying orders with which commission houses flooded the pit. Offerings were light notwithstanding the recent accumulation of stocks. May advanced from 66@66⅛c to 66⅝c. Opening figures for May delivery were ⅛c higher to a shade lower than yesterday's close.

Through the first half of the session, corn advanced, May running up to 66⅝c. Later large offerings from Longs took the edge off of the market and May sank to 65¾c, the other futures dealing with it. The close was weak on the low point with May ¼c off at 65⅞c.

Trade in the oats pit was fairly active but early fluctuations were narrow. Pit traders were the principal buyers. Commission houses were the sellers. May opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 47¼@47⅛c.

Provisions made another sharp advance adding 7½@45c at the outset. May pork scored a new top record of $25.00, a price 45c above yesterday's close. Outside buying was a feature of the early trading. Opening prices for the May product were: Pork, $24.80 @25.00; lard, $13.30@13.27½, and ribs, $12.95@12.97½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Easier Tone Prevails in Wheat and Close Shows Falling Off.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1.—An easier tone prevailed in the wheat market today. Liberal receipts, a weaker cash situation and an increase of 4,113,000 bushels in the world's available supply were encouraging factors to the bears. Crop damage reports continued to come from the Southwest. Local elevator stocks of wheat increased 250,000 bushels for three days. May opened ⅛c lower than yesterday's close and after selling at $1.15, the recent high point, gradually declined ⅝c and closed ⅜c lower. July at times sold at a premium of ⅛@¼c above May, bnt the majority of the time prices on both options were the same. Minneapolis today received 358 cars of wheat against 126 a year ago, Duluth 78 cars, against 91, and Winnipeg 184 cars against 211. May opened $1.14⅞-@1.14⅞; high $1.15; low $1.14⅞; closed $.14¼. July opened $1.15; high $1.15; low $1.14¼; closed $1.14⅜.

Cash wheat was easier. The supply was in excess of the demand, consequently premiums were large. Mills bought only choice wheat arriving in cars that could be reloaded East with flour. Elevators were fair buyers at bottom prices. No. 1 northern sold from the even May price to 2c lower, and No. 2 northern at 2c discount below the No. 1 northern. Closing prices on track: No. 1 northern, $1.14⅜-1.15¼; to arrive, $1.14@1.15¼; No. 2 northern, $1.12@1.13¼; to arrive, $1.12¾-1.13¼; No. 3 wheat, $1.07@1.02; No. 3 yellow corn, 58¾@59½c; No. 3 oats, 45¾@45⅝c; No. 2 rye, 76¼@77¾c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,475 tons. The situation was unchanged. Demand was fair, shipments heavy and prices firm. Bran in 100-lb sacks, $22.00@22.50.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Early Advances Well Held, But the Trading Is Very Dull.

United States Rises Above 83 and the Close Is Irregular.

New York, March 1.—The opening demand for stocks today was languid and only sufficient to cause small fractional advances. There were a few small declines. After the execution of the accumulated orders the ticker came almost to a standstill.

Room traders succeeded in forcing Union Pacific and St. Paul a point under yesterday's closing, and Reading as much below the latter's high price. The low prices attracted new buyers again, and there was a brisk rally all around, to about the opening level.

Prices advanced on light transactions until International Harvester gained 2½, Pittsburg C. C. & St. Louis preferred 1¼ and New York Central, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo, St. Marie, American Car and General Electrical, Southern Railways preferred declined 1. Bonds were irregular.

Intense dullness succeeded the earlier demonstration of strength, but the market held well, and a few specialties showed further strength. Following the announcement of the foreclosure sale, Third Avenue dropped 1⅛ to 7½, the low record figure.

The market closed irregular. United States Steel rose above 83 and a number of industrials became strong. Prices were shaded slightly with profit-taking sales.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

MILLIONS IN THE STATE TREASURY

St. Paul, Minn., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state treasurer has today nearly $4,000,000 in cash, more than $2,000,000 of which will go into the revenue fund.

Today was th biggest day in the history of the office so far as the receipts of money is concerned. Over $1,800,000 was received up to noon and it was expected that nearly a million more would come in during the afternoon. The biggest day last year brought in $1,275,-000.

The increase is due largely to the increase in gross earnings taxes and the fact that the Great Northern and the Great Western paid their taxes on the 6 per cent basis, following the decision of the United States supreme court.

The back taxes due under that decision have not been paid, but doubtless will be turned in within a few days.

On the gross earnings tax the roads paid in 1909, $2,972,792.55, and this year it already amounts to $3,615,075.29. Before the day closes it is expected that the gross gain will reach $700,000.

MEN ON HILL ROADS HAVE ENDED VOTE

Peoria, Ill., March 1.—In the absence of the grand master, W. S. Carter, of the locomotive firemen and enginemen, who is said to be in Washington, C. P. Smith, a member of the board of directors, said he could neither confirm nor deny the report from Minneapolis last evening that a strike would be called today unless the Great

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION —OF— BERTRAM-WRIGHT LUMBER COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, the undersigned, do hereby associate ourselves together and agree to become a corporation, under and by virtue of the provisions of Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year 1905, and the amendments thereto, and do hereby adopt and sign the following Articles of Incorporation:
ARTICLE ONE.
The name of this corporation shall be "BERTRAM-WRIGHT LUMBER COMPANY." The general nature of its business shall be to buy and sell lumber, either at wholesale or retail, to maintain lumber yards, to operate saw and planing mills and to manufacture lumber, lath, shingles, sash, doors, moldings and other articles of wooden manufacture necessary and incidental thereto, and to buy and sell all other kinds of building material.
To buy, lease or otherwise acquire, maintain and operate saw and planing mills and lumber yards, and to purchase, lease or otherwise acquire timber lands necessary in operation and handling of a general retail and wholesale lumber business.
To purchase, lease or otherwise acquire lands and buildings for the erection and establishment of manufactories and workshops, with suitable plants, engines and machinery. To manufacture, buy, sell, import, export and generally deal in machinery of all classes and descriptions.
To buy, sell, exchange and generally deal in real property. To make and obtain loans on real estate and other securities. To buy, own, hold, transfer, sell and deal in bonds, notes and mortgages and other property and securities.
The principal place of transacting the business of this corporation shall be at the City of Duluth, in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, but said corporation shall have a branch office at the City of Minneapolis, in the County of Hennepin in said State, and may carry on its business and exercise its rights in any other part of said State or of the United States.
ARTICLE TWO.
The date of the commencement of this corporation shall be February 21st, 1910, and the period of duration of said corporation shall be thirty years from said date.
ARTICLE THREE.
The names and places of residence of the incorporators of this corporation are as follows: W. T. Wright, Duluth, Minnesota; F. W. Strang, Duluth, Minnesota; W. E. Bertram, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
ARTICLE FOUR.
The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a Board of three Directors, all of whom shall be stockholders and shall be elected each year by the stockholders, at their annual meeting, and each director shall serve until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The names and addresses of those composing the Board of Directors until the first election are as follows: W. T. Wright, Duluth, Minnesota; F. W. Strang, Duluth, Minnesota; W. E. Bertram, Minneapolis, Minnesota; and they shall hold their offices until the first annual meeting of the stockholders.
The date of the first annual meeting of this corporation shall be on Monday, March 7th, 1910, at ten o'clock A. M., at the general offices of the Company, at which meeting a full Board of Directors shall be elected. Thereafter the annual meeting of this corporation shall be held at the general offices of said corporation on the second Monday of January of each and every year, at ten o'clock A. M. The first meeting of said corporation shall be held without notice. The Board of Directors shall have the power to fill all vacancies occurring in said Board and in the offices of the Company, and the persons so elected shall hold their offices for the unexpired term, or until their successors are elected and qualified.
The officers of this corporation shall be a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. The office of Secretary and treasurer may be held by the same person. The Board of Directors may create such other office or offices as from time to time may be necessary.
The President and Secretary of this corporation are authorized to execute any and all instruments necessary to be executed by this corporation, and to attach the seal of the corporation thereto, upon authorization of the Board of Directors.
Until the election and organization of a first Board of Directors, W. T. Wright shall be president, F. W. Strang shall be Vice President, and W. E. Bertram shall be Secretary and Treasurer of this corporation.
ARTICLE FIVE.
The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00), which shall be paid in at such times and in such amounts and in such manner as the Board of Directors shall determine. The number of shares into which said stock is to be divided is one thousand (1,000), and the par value of each share is One Hundred Dollars ($100.00).
ARTICLE SIX.
The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject is Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00).
IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have hereunto set our hands and seals this 21st day of February, 1910.

THE HERALD CONTINUES TO GAIN IN THE WEST END

Herman Olson, the Newsdealer at 1823 West Superior Street, bought and sold during the month of February 36,428 copies of The Herald, or a daily average of 1,301

Mr. Olson is only one of several dealers selling The Herald in the West end and in addition Herald carriers cover the residence portion in its entirety.

The Herald carrier records show that there is scarcely a home between Lakewood and Fond du Lac in which The Herald is not a daily visitor.

COUNTY OPTION DELEGATES SHOUT THEIR DISAPPROVAL OF EBERHART AS GOVERNOR

PRONOUNCEMENT AGAINST HIM IS ROUNDLY CHEERED

State Executive's Speech at Convention Fails to Meet Approval.

Governor Says He Will Take No Action Not Directed By His Party.

Promises to Sign Bill If It Is Passed---Rachie Hits at Brewers.

St. Paul, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two thousand delegates to the county option convention, in session at the Auditorium today, expressed themselves loudly as opposed to the position taken by Governor Eberhart. The demonstration of disapproval came when Elias Rachie said:

"We should not be satisfied with a candidate for governor who is willing to sign a county option bill if passed and who will do all in his power to prevent its ever reaching the legislature so that his signature won't be called for.

"We must have a man who is heart and soul with us, and will work heartily and constantly for it."

This direct challenge of Governor Eberhart's good faith brought a demonstration that nearly lifted the roof.

Followed Governor's Speech.

Mr. Rachie's speech followed immediately an address by the governor, who refused to take a stand for county option at this time.

"There should never have been any doubt about my being here to welcome these delegates," said Governor Eberhart, addressing the convention.

"It has been said that it would be an embarrassing position for me, and that is true. But I know of no gath-

FRENCH RAILROAD MEN MAY STRIKE

Dissatisfaction on One Road Causes Threats on Other Lines as Well.

Paris, March 2.—Threats of a general strike of firemen and engineers on the State railroad are due to dissatisfaction of employes of the Western railroad, which recently was taken over by the state. M. Millerand, minister of public works, posts and telegraphs, has offered to make certain changes, but the employes were not appeased.

Early today the engineers on the State railroad, after several hours' discussion, voted in favor of a strike unless an increase in wages was granted. The National Union of Railroad Employes subsequently decided that if necessary the members would support the engineers by calling a general strike.

MORE MEN AT WORK AT BETHLEHEM

Strikers are Keeping Away From the Steel Plant There.

South Bethlehem, Pa., March 2.—Confidence in the ability of the authorities to maintain order and protect men brought an increased number of workers to the Bethlehem steel works today. There was an entire absence of strikers near the plant.

The state police have been withdrawn from the streets and are stationed within the steel works and in front of the company's main office. Sheriff's deputies, however, are patrolling the town.

HYDE'S STENOGRAPHER CALLED BY GRAND JURY.

Kansas City, Mo., March 2.—Miss Bessie Coughlin, formerly employed by Dr. B. C. Hyde as a stenographer, testified today before the grand jury that is investigating the Swope mystery. Four negro servants in the Swope home also testified. The grand jury probably will consider the case for several days longer.

SEINE RISING AGAIN AND FLOODING CITY.

Paris, March 2.—The continued rainfall has raised the level of the river Seine to 21 feet 5 inches today, almost equalling the flood maximum of 1882. The water is again pouring into the mouths of the sewers. The weather, however, is gradually improving and the authorities believe that the river will not rise further.

BIG TIMES OVER TEDDY

People at Ports Along the Nile Give Him Big Receptions.

One Thousand Natives Give Exhibition Dance at Mongalla.

Gondokoro, Soudan, on the Upper Nile, March 2.—A native runner from the province of Mongalla reached here today with news of the enthusiastic reception which Col. Roosevelt and his party are receiving at the ports on the Bar-el-Jebel, where the steamer Dal is making stops.

As the steamer drew into Lado, the Americans witnessed the pleasant sight of an immense American flag flying above the landing. Drawn up upon the wharf was a guard of honor composed of ninety native Belgian soldiers. Maj. Remke, the Belgian commandant, gave a lunch to the Americans.

Bigger Time Yet.

At Mongalla a still greater reception awaited the visitors. At the pier were 200 Sudaneze soldiers, who acted as an escort to the party when they left the steamer and visited the town. Last night Col. Owen Conly, governor of Monagla, gave a dinner for Col. Roosevelt and all of the others of the party. Later they were entertained with a dance given by 1,000 natives, who, armed with shields and spears, gave an exhibition of frantic enthusiasm over the presence of the white guests. Col. Roosevelt planted a tree in the center of the town to commemorate the visit.

The party planned to proceed at daybreak on the steamer Dal to the vicinity of Lake No.

MINE WORK IS LIVELY

Extensive Improvements Are Being Made at the Kennedy Mine.

Cuyuna Range Property Is Getting Into Shape to Ship Ore Soon.

Deerwood, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work at the Kennedy mine in Cuyuna is progressing very rapidly. The permanent air compressor is at the present time being installed. The new Sullivan hoist is expected at any time coming from Moose Lake. It is a ten-ton hoist and will handle two five-ton skips. The new boilers have all been bricked in and preparations are now being made to erect the steel smokestack, which, it

WOMAN STABBED FOR TESTIFYING

Masked Man Attacks Witness in Bank Robbery Case.

Norfolk, Neb., March 2.—Mrs. E. S. Stansfeld was attacked by a masked man at her home early today and severely stabbed.

"I told you to keep your mouth shut," snarled her visitor, who by knocking had summoned her to the back door of her residence. Saying this, he plunged a dagger into her body twice and escaped. The wounded woman will recover.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Stansfield gave testimony which aided in convicting Harry Joyce of robbing a bank at Hadar. He was sentenced to twenty years in prison. She received warning that if she testified she would be killed.

BOLD HOLDUP IN HEART OF CHICAGO

Two Men Rob Express Wagon Driver---Get Off With Only $35.

Chicago, March 2.—In true Western style, two armed bandits held up F. A. Racine, driver of an Adams Express wagon, only a short distance from the union station today.

The robbers are believed to have been under the impression that the vehicle was a money wagon and to have planned to make a big haul. However, the wagon was empty and all they secured was $35 belonging to the driver. The robbers escaped.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS

Ohio Floods Are Causing Loss and Suffering---Rain Still Falling.

Streets of Herkimer, N. Y., Are Turned Into Rivers By Freshets.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 2.—Fully a thousand persons homeless, other thousands living on the second floor of their home, traffic impeded and business demoralized in many places is the situation in Ohio today as a result of the recent floods. Although high water has receded somewhat in many river valleys, the danger in others yet remain because of ice gorges.

A bridge was washed away at Defiance. Mechanicsburg is still under water. Boats only can be used in the greater part of Warren. Water is slowly creeping up on the business section of Napoleon. The Cuyahoga has inundated Clairion and Warwick.

Rain still prevails in the southern part of the state and will add to the flood in the Ohio river valley. At Zanesville several hundred families have been driven from home, and the suffering is acute. Great danger continues to lurk about the gorged Sandusky river at Fremont.

WILL REMOVE TO CANADIAN SOO

Head Offices of Northern Navigation Company to Be Transferred.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is stated on good authority that it is the intention of the Northern Navigation company to remove its head offices to the Canadian Soo. A representative was in town today and has secured options on several sites. A laundry will be constructed and the Soo made the distributing center for coal and all food supplies. A transfer of all the offices will follow later, it is understood.

JAMES J. HOGAN IS TAKEN CRITICALLY ILL.

Torrington, Conn., March 2.—James J. Hogan, former Yale football captain and lately a member of Street Commissioner "Bill" Edwards' force in New York, is critically ill here with kidney trouble. Hogan was taken suddenly ill shortly after his arrival home a few days ago. A specialist has been called from New York to attend him.

Send Guards to Guadeloupe.

Paris, March 2.—Fifty republican guards and ten sub-officers were despatched by the French government from St. Nazaire to Guadeoupe today. The force will be used in restoring peace that has been disturbed by the strike of sugar cane cutters.

TWO ARE ARRESTED FOR SAFE ROBBERY

Tie Inspector and Express Night Clerk Accused of Taking $6,792.

Parkersburg, W. Va., March 2.—G. T. Carpenter, tie inspector of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was arrested here today, charged with complicity in the robbery of $6,792 from the United States Express company's safe Saturday night. This is the second arrest in the case, J. H. Hector, night clerk of the company, having been taken into custody last night.

Philadelphians Work Harder as the Crisis Draws Near.

Transit Company Continues to Refuse Terms of Arbitration.

Philadelphia, March 2.—As the time draws nearer for the general sympathetic strike of all organized labor in Philadelphia in support of the trolley men, pressure being brought to bear on the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company to submit to arbitration is becoming stronger.

Menace of a general strike and the consequent prostration of practically all lines of industry has stirred up business men and large employers of labor. Efforts to have the company accept arbitration in some form were renewed today with vigor. The ultimatum issued by the Rapid Transit directors that "the company has not changed, and will not in any manner

MURDERS GIRL IN LOUISVILLE

Man Who Claimed to Be Her Husband Shoots Her on Street.

Louisville, Ky., March 2.—Under a bright arc light in the residence district of this city, Arthur Miles last night shot down and instantly killed Miss Bessie Stiff and then engaged in a pistol fight with two policemen who came running up. He temporarily escaped, only to be arrested at a railway station as he was about to board a train.

Miles' wife came to Louisville yesterday from Erin, Tenn. The dead girl had been staying at her sister's home, and had told the family she was married.

The slayer has been posing as the victim's husband.

SIXTY LIVES ARE LOST IN CATASTROPHE IN ROCKIES

Spokane Limited and Transcontinental Fast Mail Are Plunged Into Abyss.

Snow and Rocks and Trees Bury Wreck After Fall of 150 Feet.

Cascade Tunnel Region Scene of Disaster on the Great Northern.

Everett, Wash., March 2.—Hurled with the trains in which they were sleeping down 150 feet to the bottom of a canyon at Wellington, at least sixty persons lost their lives yesterday morning when a huge snowslide swept the Spokane Limited and the Transcontinental Fast Mail trains on the Great Northern from the tracks and a few seconds later buried them beneath a mass of rocks, snow, trees and earth. Some of the buildings in Wellington also were swept away by the rush, but the city itself, contrary to early reports, was left standing.

Rescue work was begun at once by the railroad employes and citizens at Wellington, and messengers were dispatched to the nearest towns with hurry calls for aid, telegraphic communication having been broken off by the series of snowslides of the last few days.

Some of the passengers were taken alive from the cars as the rescuers dug through the debris, but all were more or less injured. The total death list may not be known for days.

One of the trains, the Spokane Limited, had been stalled at the mouth of the Cascade tunnel since last Wednesday.

Most of the dead and injured are believed to have been passengers on the Spokane express, forty of whom were on the train at the time of the disaster. Besides these thirty workmen who had been engaged in the battle against the drifts that had been holding the two ill-fated trains imprisoned in the mountains since Feb. 24, were sleeping in the day coaches.

The avalanche rolled down the mountain at 4:20 a. m. The two trains, three locomotives, four powerful electric motors, the depot and water tank were spun off the ledge and deposited

SAYS GERMANY WOULD OUST STANDARD OIL

—Copyright by George Grantham Bain.

DR. PAUL SCHWARZ.

According to Dr. Schwarz, editor of Petroleum, a German trade paper, Germany has declared war on the Standard Oil company and intends, if a sufficient supply from independent sources can be obtained, to start a government monopoly to drive the Standard Oil company out of Germany. Dr. Schwarz intends to investigate the oil conditions in this country and Mexico with a view to making a report to his government.

LEFT MONEY BEHIND HIM

What Duluth clubman crept into a Turkish bath parlor near Forty-second street and Sixth avenue, New York, one night during the Hudson-Fulton celebration?

Whoever he was, he left behind him $100 and a gold watch, when he left in the morning, and now the proprietor with rare honesty is trying to locate the owner.

According to the letter received by the secretary of the Commercial club, two men entered the bath parlors late one night during the celebration. An attendant heard them talking about Duluth, and referring to "the club," which might mean either the Kitchi Gammi club or the Commercial club. Whether they had been enjoying the celebration not wisely but too well, deponent sayeth not, but in the morning when they left, one of the men forgot to take with him his valuables which he had deposited in the small iron box provided for the purpose. The proprietor waited for the man to return to claim his property, but he failed to do so.

The only clue to the identity of the two men was their conversation regarding Duluth and "the club," so the proprietor wrote to Secretary Eva of the Commercial club, telling him the story, and asking him if possible to locate the man. It is a rather difficult task among the 1,000 members of the Commercial club.

STRIKE TIES UP MANILA SHIPPING

Idle Men Plan to Move to Plantations About Hawaii.

Manila, March 2.—Following the refusal of the owners to grant a series of demands, the crews of the interisland steamers struck today, tying up the vessels and so holding back the mails. It was said the strike was instigated by Dominador Gomez, former president of the Nationalist party. The conflict breaks a two-year pact entered into by the owners and crews last fall.

Some of the idle men are planning to go to the Hawaiian plantations, the agents for which are offering a bounty in order to obtain laborers.

TWO COLLISIONS IN NEW YORK HARBOR

Thick Fog Makes Conditions Dangerous for Shipping in That Vicinity.

New York, March 2.—Enveloped in thick fog, New York harbor and the waters nearby are full of peril to mariners.

The British steamer Sidra, with sugar from Cardenas, Cuba, was in collision outside the harbor with the Norwegian fruit steamer Minnesota, and sustained a broken bow and other damage. The extent of the Minnesota's injury is not known.

About twenty miles southeast of Barnegat, N. J., the schooner Republic from Porto Rican ports for New York, was struck by the Royal Mail Steam Packet company's steamer Tagus from Kingston, Jamaica, for New York. It was necessary to call the assistance of the Republic, the Tagus standing by meanwhile.

ONLY 60 PER CENT FILE SCHEDULES

Corporations are Slow About Making Returns Under New Tax Law.

Chicago, March 2.—Returns from all sections of the country up to last midnight show that not more than 60 per cent of the corporations doing business in the United States filed schedules with the internal revenue collectors in compliance with the publicity clause of the new corporation tax law, according to the Record-Herald this morning. Of the schedules filed before midnight, more than 85 per cent were accompanied by a protest.

Iowa is the only state in which complete returns were made, it being said that all of that state's 5,400 corporations had been heard from.

In the Chicago revenue district Collector Hertz said he had received a few more than 12,000 schedules from a total of 20,000 corporations doing business in the district. There was an eleventh-hour rush at the collector's office, almost 5,000 schedules being filed in the afternoon and night.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

FALSE ARREST IS CHARGED

Claiming that he was falsely imprisoned, J. E. Worthington has begun suit in the district court against O. G. Shalvaker for $3,250.

The plaintiff, who caused the papers in the action to be filed this morning with Clerk J. P. Johnson of the district court, states that he entered the employ of the defendant in the capacity of a buyer of furs.

He claims his employer had him arrested on the charge of embezzlement. The charge did not stick, according to Worthington's complaint, and he wants damages.

OBITUARY

C. M. Hart, president of the Iowa State Bar association, died in Des Moines, Iowa, March 1, of paralysis. He was one of the lawyers defending J. C. Maybray.

Count Goetz von Seckendorff, former court marshal of Germany, died at Berlin March 2, aged 68 years. He officiated as grand master of the court to the late Dowager Empress Frederick, and was instrumental in arranging the great English art exhibition held in Berlin two years ago. Count von Seckendorff, upon the death of the Dowager Empress Frederick, received by her will numerous tokens of the esteem in which he was held by her. At the same time an authoritative denial was given of the early report that the dowager empress had been secretly married to the count.

REPUBLICANS WILL MEET

West Duluth Club Will Consider Plans of New Organization.

When the West Duluth Republican club meets in regular session, Saturday evening at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms, it is probable that the main topic under discussion will be the proposed consolidation of the various ward clubs throughout the city, as has been suggested by Jesse F. Turner, organizer of the National Republican league, who is in Duluth, this week.

Alderman L. A. Barnes of the Eighth ward, who was former president of the West Duluth Republican club, was chosen temporary chairman of the new organization at a meeting held yesterday at the new courthouse. A special committee appointed by Mr. Barnes is in session this afternoon at the office of one of the committeemen to consider the advisability of carrying out Mr. Turner's suggestions.

The committee comprises H. W. Coulter, Bert Marshall, David Fredin, J. W. Cumming and L. A. Sulcove. The latter is president of the West Duluth Commercial club. The result of the conference this afternoon may be taken up for discussion at the meeting of the Republican club Saturday evening.

CIRCULATION IS SHOWING INCREASE.

The February report of the West Duluth branch of the public library shows a gratifying increase over the records of a year ago. The circulation during the past month was 3,075, as compared with 2,268 in February, 1909, and the daily average attendance during the month past was 214 against 148 a year ago. Sixty-two new cards were issued during the month. The library is open on week days from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 8:45 p. m. and on Sunday afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock.

With the Curlers.

Three games are scheduled this evening in the Burns' event and one in the Bagley affair at the West Duluth curling rink. In the former, Macauley will meet Iltis, Clark will clash with Rockwell, and Zauft and Olson will play. In the Bagley race, Keyes will meet Method.

Last evening Wade defeated Miller, 11 to 5, and Macauley took Evered into camp, 10 to 8, both games being played in the Burns' event. In the same event Rockwell forfeited a game to Iltis.

BROTHERHOOD FORMED.

Organization Is Effected at West Duluth Baptist Church.

A Brotherhood of Men has been organized at the West Duluth Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Grand.

A meeting was held Monday evening, officers elected and an executive committee named to draft a constitution and set of by-laws. W. L. Smithies, president of the Brotherhood at the First M. E. church and W. B. Patton, president of the First Baptist Church Brotherhood were speakers at the meeting.

At the election of officers, Arthur Bruley was chosen as president. Charles E. Dahlquist was selected as vice president and Robert Dunn was elected secretary-treasurer. The executive committee was named with the following members: Arthur Bruley, Forrest Kent, A. C. Ritchie, George P. Smith and W. H. Pickering.

INJURED BY FALL ON ICY SIDEWALK.

E. Filiatrault of 919 North Fifty-sixth avenue west was injured last evening in a fall on a slippery sidewalk, just as he was about to cross Central avenue near the Northern Pacific tracks.

He fell heavily to the walk striking his forehead on the curb. A deep gash was cut in the forehead between the eyes and he was also injured on the left side.

Mr. Filiatrault will be confined to his home for several days on account of the accident.

Program Is Arranged.

All arrangements for the musical, which will be given Friday evening at the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street, have been completed by the committee in charge of the affair. A good program has been arranged by Mrs. B. H. Smith and Ray W. Abbott. Those who will take part are: Miss Maude Gilbert, William Bergland, Miss Borgil Dahl, Miss Eva McLyman, Miss Gertrude Smith, H. E. Weinberg, Mrs. Ethel Kunerth, John Matheson, Miss Loretta O'Gorman, Miss Mabel Fulton and Charles O. Applehagen.

Iukusich Is Discharged.

John Iukusich, boardinghouse-keeper at 110 South Central avenue, who had himself arrested early last week on a charge of conducting a "blind pig" was dismissed, when arraigned in municipal court yesterday afternoon on account of the failure of the prosecuting witnesses to appear against him. Iukusich caused his own arrest to spoil the revenge of certain other members of the Austrian colony at West Duluth, who were arrested a short time ago at the instigation of Iukusich.

West Duluth Briefs.

J. P. Shannon of 508 North Fifty-eighth avenue west is reported to be dangerously ill today at his home in West Duluth.

Lenten services will be held this evening at the St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran church, Sixty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street. The services will be conducted in the German language by Rev. W. Sievers.

The West Duluth branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union will be entertained tomorrow afternoon at the Bethel home, 430 Sixth avenue east. The subject is announced as "Spiritual Uplifting," with Mrs. D. J. Gray as leader.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. Hassinger of Grand avenue and Raleigh street.

At a meeting last evening the trustees of the Asbury M. E. church decided to make a number of repairs to the church during the coming year. The roof of the church was ordered reshingled at once.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church was entertained at a social tea this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kerr of 4013 West Fourth street. Mrs. Peterson assisted in the entertaining.

The Young People's Society of the St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran church will be entertained tomorrow afternoon at the home of Miss Emma Will of 2201 West Twelfth street.

Money to loan on good first mortgages, 6 per cent. No delay. Scott-Kreidler company.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Johnson, who have been residents of West Duluth for the past fifteen years, left yesterday for Minneapolis, where they will make their future home.

Rev. W. G. Boyle, pastor of the Asbury M. E. church, is in St. Paul today attending the state convention of county option advocates.

Mr. and Mrs. William Paradise of 815 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Lackey of Tower, Minn.

Coeur d'Alene Opening May 2.

Washington, March 2.—The date of opening the Coeur d'Alene lands in Idaho and the Flathead lands in Montana has been changed from April 1 to May 2. The classification and appraisement of the Couer d'Alene lands was not completed in time for the opening on April 1.

IDAHO FRUIT FARMS

Get an irrigated fruit or general purpose farm in the famous "Snake River Valley of Sunny Southern Idaho."

No hard storms, blizzards or cyclones. Apples, pears, peaches, prunes, grapes, cherries, strawberries and all small fruit produce wonderful returns. The finest prunes sold in the New York market come from Southern Idaho.

This country produces enormous yields of all varieties of vegetables corn, oats, barley wheat and fruits. Idaho fruits, from this and other sections, have received the highest awards at all notable and national expositions during the last few years. Bearing orchards yield their owners from $500 to $1,000 an acre annually. While waiting for your orchards to come into bearing you can raise sugar beets, potatoes, onions, alfalfa or any other crops you choose, between the rows. This can be done the first year. Alfalfa yields from 6 to 10 tons per acre and is worth $10 per ton at the farm or can be used in feeding cows, hogs, sheep and horses.

You can acquire this land either by homestead entry, under the "Corey Act" (and any entries you have previously made under any of the other land laws of the United States, does not bar you from entry under this act), or you can purchase from previous entrymen. You can locate by "power of attorney" and no residence required till six months after water is turned on. Perpetual water rights go with this land and you can hire your improvements made by other parties, if you choose.

Further particulars furnished if you desire.

Pleads Not Guilty.

Lin Belgium, who was arrested late yesterday by Patrolman Walker, and who is believed by the police to be the man wanted for the theft of $12 in cash from a Cumming avenue boarding house, was arraigned in municipal court this morning. He pleaded not guilty and the case was adjourned for a week. In default of the bail asked, the man was remanded to the county jail.

Big Injury Suit Filed.

Andrew Semen yesterday filed suit, through his guardian, against the Northwestern Fuel company, asking $30,000 damages from the fuel concern as the result of injuries which he alleges to have sustained while in the employ of the defendant company. While at work as a laborer at the dock, he met with an accident in which he struck his head against the side of a wheelbarrow. From that time, it is claimed that the man has been demented. The case will come up in the next term of the Superior court.

Jury Says "Not Guilty."

A verdict of not guilty was returned last evening by a jury in the federal court in the case of the United States vs. Whitney Bros. Company. The defendants were charged with having blocked navigation in Howard's pocket with some cribbing and other material. The defense made the claim that the cribbing was so placed that navigation was not blocked.

Badges Are Awarded.

Sergeants J. C. Clemens and Martin Ackerson of Company I were last evening presented with handsome "Expert Riflemen" badges by Capt. Rossiter, following drill at the armory. The badges were awarded for notable work on the Camp Douglas range last summer.

Attending Convention.

W. E. Maddock, superintendent of the city schools, is in Indianapolis, where he will attend the annual convention of the superintendents' division of the National Educational association. He is scheduled to read several papers and will actively participate in the business of the meeting.

Normal Team Victorious.

By a score of 18 to 16, the Normal school basket ball team administered defeat to the Blaine high school team last evening in a fast game played at the Blaine gym. Both teams were at their best and the contest was exciting from the start. The annual game brought out a large number of basket ball fans.

Carlton County to Organize.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A travelers' aid worker was established at the Union station this morning to succeed Miss Gift, who resigned a short time ago and left for her home in Kansas. Miss Bertha B. Ridge of the Deaconness home, who has been working in the Duluth district as a visiting deaconness, has been temporarily placed in charge of this work. The Young Women's Christian association is responsible for the worker and the help which is provided strangers coming to the city, and especially young girls, is considered most important. Miss Ridge will be in charge for a month and at the end of that time a permanent appointment will be made.

SPLIT IN RANKS.

Suffragettes Disagree on Naming Lobbyist.

New York, March 2.—It became known in New York last night that a serious split has occurred in the heretofore solid ranks of the suffragettes in this state. One faction objects, it is said, to the fact that Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has retained a lobbyist to work in the interest of suffrage at Albany. Mrs. Clarence Mackey has aided with the faction against Mrs. Belmont, it is said, and has resigned from the legislative committee of the New York State Suffrage association.

ST. PAUL CONFERENCE

Of Women Relating to Conservation Congress.

Governor Eberhart has called a conference of women at the state capitol for Friday morning of this week. At the conference plans for the first Minnesota conservation and agricultural congress to be held at St. Paul March 16, 17, 18 and 19 will be discussed. Four women have been appointed as vice presidents to the congress by the governor. They are Mrs. C. G. Higbee, president of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Margaret J. Blair of the department of domestic arts at the agricultural college, Mrs. Jay Cooke Howard, Minnesota member of the national D. A. R. committee, of Duluth and Mrs. Mary E. Starkweather, assistant commissioner of the state labor bureau.

Shakespeare Class.

The regular meeting of the Shakespeare class of the Twentieth Century club will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the club room of the library. The reading and discussion of "As You Like It" will be completed, with Miss Mary Shesgreen as leader. At tomorrow's meeting the plays to be studied next year will be discussed.

IS RECEIVED INTO BOSTON SOCIETY

JULIETTE VAN WYCK FREMONT.

Miss Juliette Van Wyck Fremont, granddaugliter of Maj.-Gen. J. C. Fremont, the "Pathfinder" is a popular addition to the society set in Boston. She left a wide circle of friends in Washington when her father, Capt. John C. Fremont was transferred to be commander of the Boston navy yard. Miss Fremont was educated in Europe and has spent a large part of her time abroad.

The meeting will begin promptly at the hour set.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Bethel Rescue Home at 431 Sixth avenue east. The leader for the afternoon will be Mrs. D. J. Gray and the subject will be "Spiritual Uplifting."

Cecilian Society.

The regular meeting of the Cecilian society will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. K. A. Ostergren of 5726 Oneida street. The program will be as follows:

Selections from Beethoven's ninth symphony, Mrs. Storey, Mrs. Beckwith, Miss Lynn and Miss Smith. Analysis, Mrs. Stocker.

Meeting on Thursday.

The meeting of the women's council will be held tomorrow morning at the clubroom of the library at 10 o'clock. The meeting is changed from Friday in order that all details of the Florence Kelley lecture may be arranged. The members of the council are requested to note the change of the time of meeting.

FASHION ISSUE

Will Tell in Detail of 1910 Styles.

The confusion of the average woman's mind relating to spring and summer gowning will be cleared up in great part when The Herald fashion number is issued. The great fashion issue of the spring will be published Monday evening, March 14, and there will be styles of gowns in suits and dresses and hats, of course, and lingerie and shoes and motoring things and dresses for informal affairs and formal occasions.

The latest accessories for the spring and summer girl of 1910 will be told in detail. Negligees will be shown in picturesque profusion; the newest coiffure styles will be pictured and described. And then for the woman, if there be any such, who has lost a little of her earlier interest in personal adornment, there will be hints for the household that may be followed in the annual renovation. And as a mere concession there will be a few pages devoted to telling of the newest styles for man, he who thinks he is without vanity or interest in the latest things to be worn. That portion of the fashion sheet is bound to be well studied, however.

The fashion issue will be out March 14.

Women's Meeting.

The regular women's meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Lake Avenue Bethel. The speaker will be Mrs. Anna Gooch, and Miss Ferguson will sing.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Marble will leave Saturday for the West.

Samuel Loeb is at Minneapolis, where he attended the wedding of Miss Edith Burton to Harry Conhaim.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wolvin and son, who are traveling in the West, were at Grand Canyon last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Morgan have arrived in the city from their wedding trip and will be at home after April 1 at 1729 East Fourth street.

Dr. A. W. Ryan and F. W. Paine have returned from a ten days' trip through the East.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Farmer have returned from a short trip to Minneapolis.

The Rev. Alexander Milne returned last evening from Minneapolis, where he attended a meeting of the directors of the Minnesota Congregational Missionary society.

Mrs. Fred Scott and Mrs. Charles Baker, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hobbs of 1421 East Superior street, returned yesterday to Minneapolis.

Mrs. John P. Gordon, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Adams at Santa Barbara for several weeks, will return to Duluth next week.

Miss Lydia Poirier is now at Los Altos, California.

Water-Soaked Linens.

The sale continues—rich prizes for all. Salt water didn't hurt them a bit. Come tomorrow, Gray-Tallant Co.'s.

NO RECRUITS WANTED.

Army Ranks Filled and Only Former Soldiers Will Be Taken.

An order received from the war department yesterday afternoon by Lieut. A. W. Watts, in charge of the Duluth recruiting office, orders that the acceptance of all applicants for the service, except those who have been former soldiers, be stopped.

The reason is that the service is filled at the present time, and until there are a number of men mustered out of service there will not be room for any more recruits.

CHINA YIELDS.

Revokes Decree Forbidding the Exportation of Grain.

St. Petersburg, March 2.—Yielding to the pressure brought to bear by Russia, Japan and Great Britain, China has revoked the decree forbidding the exportation of grain from Tsitsikhar province, preliminary to a general revocation of the prohibition throughout Manchuria.

Salt-Watered Linens.

We are selling four cases at prices less than we usually pay for them. Gray-Tallant Co.

Postal Receipts Gain.

St. Paul, Minn., March 2.—Edward Yanish, postmaster, has reported that the postal receipts at the St. Paul postoffice during February, 1910, were $95,390.50, against $83,054.21 during February, 1909, showing an increase of $12,336.29, or nearly 15 per cent.

Adopts Commission Plan.

Abilene, Kan., March 2.—The commission form of government was voted in by a majority of four to one here yesterday. Less than one-third of the registered vote was cast. The legality of the election probably will be tested in court.

Don't Miss the Fabric Show.

The finest of silks and dress goods are now on display on the third floor at Gray-Tallant Co.'s; none like them elsewhere. All invited to see them—no attempt made to sell them.

TO HAVE WRITTEN HISTORY.

Late Fargo Attorney Left an Uncompleted Assignment.

Fargo, N. D., March 2.—For many years, Frank J. Thompson, the well-known Fargo lawyer, who was buried Sunday, was a director of the Western Masonic Mutual Life Association of Los Angeles, Cal., and for several years past has been the first vice president. News has just been received that at the last annual meeting held in the middle of this month, that a resolution was unanimously passed requesting Mr. Thompson to prepare for the next annual meeting a history of this insurance organization for the first twenty-five years of its existence, which would be completed in February of next year.

IF you are thinking of having any artistic papering done this season in which you intend using an exclusive imported paper, it will be to your interest to call at Cowen & Zimmerman's at 531 East Superior St., at once and make your selections, as the best designs are being rapidly sold out.

WASHBURN POISONING CASE HARD TO SOLVE.

Washburn, Wis., March 2.—It looks as though the mystery in the Behrand poisoning case of a month ago in which the mother and one child lost their lives, and the rest of the family had a close escape from death, will never be solved. No trace of poison of any kind was found in the stomach by the University of Wisconsin chemist. All food found in the house at the time was tested for poison, being fed to animals, but no bad results followed. The coroner's jury which has been investigating the case adjourned today.

THIRD DAM AT ST. CLOUD.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 2.—A. G. Whitney says bona fide operations will be begun on a dam across the Mississippi river between this city and Sauk Rapids before July 1. Six years ago congress granted Mr. Whitney permission to build the dam. The time limit has expired and now a bill for a two years' extension has been introduced by Senator Nelson. This provides that work must be begun before July 1.

This will make the third dam across the Mississippi at this place.

DOMESTIC WOES HEARD

Divorce Actions on March Term Calendar Taken Up.

Desertion and Cruelty Chief Causes of Connubial Unhappiness.

The divorce mill began grinding this morning in district court.

The first case to be considered by Judge Cant, who is this term hearing the cases, was that of Eli Newton, 50 years old, against his wife, Maggie, 35 years old. He alleged desertion and was granted his decree.

They were married at Rock Creek, Minn., Dec. 8, 1891. The plaintiff claimed that on March 26, 1900, his wife deserted. She now resides at Cathlamet, Wash. One child, a girl, 7 years old, resides with the mother. Newton lives at Carlton, Minn.

The case of Annie Sarvari against Eric Sarvari was being considered when court adjourned for recess.

Mrs. Sarvari claims in her complaint cruel and inhuman treatment. She says that the drink nabit got the better of her husband but that she tried to live on with him and show him the error of his ways. She did this, she claims, until she saw that it was of no use. The couple were married at Sparta in September, 1907.

She gives specific instances in her complaint and alleges that in March, 1908, he attacked and choked her. She states that he called her vile and indecent names and she gives other instances of ill-treatment.

There are a number of divorce cases to be considered at this term of court. They will be rushed through as fast as possible and the jury cases will be taken up Monday.

A General Invitation.

Duluth is having an opportunity to see the finest fabrics of the season. They are now on display on the third floor at Gray-Tallant Co.'s. All are invited to see the display.

VETERAN ENGINEER OF OMAHA SHOOTS SELF.

Altoona, Wis., March 2.—William Babbington, an old and respected Omaha local engineer and resident of Altoona, shot himself Sunday, inflicting a dangerous wound, but there is hope of his recovery.

Mr. Babbington was painfully injured in an accident last October, when his engine tipped over, breaking several of his ribs; and he was injured about the head, and though he had been able to be up and around he did not fully recover, and though his devoted wife and family did everything possible for his comfort, he did not seem to rally from the shock received in the accident.

It was during a fit of despondency he attempted to end his suffering.

DICKINSON ATTORNEY SHOOTS SELF FATALLY.

Dickinson, N. D., March 2.—Joseph E. Messersmith, a young attorney, shot himself through the temple, Sunday, with a .32-caliber revolver, in the kitchen of his home. He was alone at the time, having preceded his wife by half an hour from the residence of his sister, Mrs. L. A. Simpson, wife of State Senator Simpson, where they had been for tea. Messersmith told his wife that he would go over and fix up the fire, so as to have it warm for her and the baby, when they came home.

The deceased was the only son of E. F. Messersmith, one of the pioneers of the city, and attended the state university at Grand Forks some years ago. Poor health is given as the cause of suicide.

Convicting Horse Thieves Costly.

Williston, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Convicting horse thieves is no minor or insignificant job in Williams county, as is shown by the statements of expense in the several cases that have just recently been concluded. The trials of "Kid" Trailor and "Kid" Mathews, both of which took place at Minot, but for which Williams county must pay, cost, a total of $1,643.17. In addition, there is also considerable expense in Williams county for service of papers, etc.

Deserting Cadet Arrested.

Kansas City, Mo., March 2.—Edward Madison of Baltimore, Md., who deserted from the engineering corps at the West Point military academy in 1906, was arrested in Kansas City, Kan., yesterday. He was recognized by Joseph Brady, undersheriff of Wyandotte county, who had seen his picture, sent out by the war department.

GET THE RIGHT ENGINE

A good boat equipped with a poor or worn-out engine is more of an aggravation than a pleasure. The inconvenience of breakdowns, probably miles from home—the expense of repairs, which only give temporary relief, the continual worry and anticipation of trouble—all tend to rob Motor Boating of pleasure.

Do you intend to run your boat that way this season, or will you wisely install an engine which will more than double the enjoyment of our outings?

Might as well have the best, costs no more than the others, the difference lies only in Quality, Workmanship and Improvements. Let us show you the best—the best engine for any and every purpose—proven best by actual tests right in the waters of the St. Louis river and bay—best for endurance, best for speed, best for any purpose desired.

Working models of every variety of engine we handle, are being exhibited in the store—in actual operation. Come in and see just the engine that YOU want for YOUR boat.

BAR LIBRARY HAS DEFICIT

Lawyers Take Steps to Pay Off $5,000 Indebtedness.

Suggestion That Library Be Sold to County Is Not Favored.

This morning the members of the Duluth Bar Library association met to discuss the destinies of the association.

While no definite steps were taken, it is probable that the library will soon be installed on the fifth floor of the courthouse, where a big room was set aside especially for its use by the building commission.

The association's treasury has a deficit of some $5,000. This indebtedness must be paid off before the library is moved from the present quarters in the Torrey building. A subscription list was passed around among the lawyers this morning, and although there was but a handful of the members present, $1,200 was subscribed in a short time.

Some of the attorneys were in favor of keeping the office at the present location and others thought that the better course would be to move it to the courthouse. Many schemes were presented to take care of the indebtedness, but it was finally agreed to see how far the members would go toward paying it off by subscription.

County Attorney John H. Norton suggested that the library be offered to the county commissioners, who, he thought, could be induced to buy it. The library is said to be worth about $20,000. Mr. Norton said that he thought that the library should be owned by the county so that young attorneys, who had not the money to purchase stock in the association, would have the privilege of using the library.

Others thought that the county commissioners did not so well know what was wanted as lawyers themselves and did not in the least favor allowing the county to gain possession. A committee from the association will take the whole matter up with the commissioners some time next week.

At the time the courthouse was being built the building commission told the association of its plans for a home for the library and asked the attorneys to help out in the matter of letting their wants be known as to racks and other furnishings. The county at that time was willing to go to considerable expense to furnish the room. The association, it is claimed, did not make known what was wanted and the matter, with the exception of the lights, was allowed to drop. It is thought, however, that the county is still willing to furnish the quarters for the use of the association.

It is very probable that within a few weeks the library will be installed at the courthouse, but it is highly improbable, according to the members, that the county will be asked to purchase the library. The Bar Library association has eighty-two members.

ering in Minnesota which I would more readily address.

"I am glad that the wealth of Minnesota does not lie in the mines, lands and timber, but in the purity of the homes, the efficiency of the schools and the sanctity of the churches. I am sure this state stands for what is best, cleanest and purest."

Debt to the State.

Continuing the governor said:

"This state owes me nothing. On the other hand I owe the state everything—the best manhood, the best brains and the best service I can give her, and this service I shall always give."

In the following statement the governor told the delegates what his position is on the county option issue at the present time:

"The county option movement is a non-partisan movement, and every delegate to this convention is commissioned as a non-partisan delegate. I have been requested to state to this convention what shall be my position as to county option and consequently what, in my opinion, should be the position of the Republican party with reference thereto.

Would Compel Party Action.

"Every fairminded person will admit that my declaration at this time as to whether I shall or shall not favor county option in this state will force me to make that declaration good in the Republican state convention, or be eliminated from its consideration. It means that I must use the office of the chief executive of this state to force the Republican state convention to adopt my view, irrespective of what the majority might desire.

"In other words, it would compel me to use the executive department of this state to attempt to dictate to the Republican party its position on this question which is neither right nor in keeping with our ideas of popular or party government.

"The forcing of the executive department of this state into the county option contest means even more than that. Under our Constitution the legislative and executive departments are entirely distinct and independent, and any undue interference on the part of the chief executive in matters of legislation is not only wrong in principle but disastrous in results.

Not His Right.

"I am well aware that where a political party has pledged itself to the enactment of certain reforms it is not only permissible but proper for the chief executive representing that party to urge legislative action to carry out such reforms, but in advance of any such declaration by a political party or by the people at large, the chief executive has no right to use the influence of his office to dictate legislation.

"If my declaration at this time for or against county option does not mean what I have stated, then it means merely a play to the galleries for the purpose of satisfying one side or the other, a position altogether unworthy of anyone occupying the highest office in the gift of the people.

"There is only one consequence which my entrance into the county option fight would make certain, and that is such a division within the ranks of the Republican party as would redound solely to the advantage of the opposition.

No Benefit From Statement.

"No one has been able to suggest any benefits to the county option movement which my declaration at this time would bring about, but on the other hand, judging from past experiences, it is safe to assume it would result in the division and possible defeat of a party which has given us all the temperance legislation now on our statute books.

"I have given this matter very careful consideration and sincerely and earnestly believe that it is my duty to await and support the platform of the Republican party, and in case a county option law is passed by the legislature while I am governor it will receive my approval and, together with all other laws of the state, be enforced."

J. M. Johnson Chairman.

J. M. Johnson of Canby was unanimously chosen chairman and E. C. Quist of Red Lake county was named as secretary.

Following the governor's address Mr. Johnson introduced Elias Rachie. Mr. Rachie said he hoped the convention would resolve not to support for election any candidate who did not stand squarely for county option. This statement immediately following Governor Eberhart's speech, in which he refused to take a stand for county option. Is looked upon as a direct slap at the governor.

Thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in Minnesota to defeat county option," he said. "Maybe there is a reason. If this plan were adopted it would mean millions of dollars of loss to the breweries and distillers, and so they can afford from a monetary standpoint to pay well to control political conventions and legislatures."

Welcomed by Youngdahl.

P. J. Youngdahl, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the league. He said:

"I was never prouder of the citizenship and manhood of the North Star state than I am at this moment. A meeting such as this presages victory. In every line of your faces I see such signs of victory, courage, determination that this cause cannot suffer defeat in the campaign at hand."

He welcomed them on behalf of the boys, the womanhood, and on behalf of four-fifths of the men of this state, who are helpless because of the inconsistent laws of the state."

He continued: "We have called you together that the politicians may get their ears to the ground and learn that there is a temperance movement in Minnesota that cannot be ignored."

A tribute to E. T. Young brought forth a burst of applause, which was equaled when a moment later he mentioned the name of Governor Eberhart.

No Ticket Likely.

It is highly improbable that any ticket will be put in nomination, though there may be an effort along this line by some of the more radical delegates. The convention will declare itself strongly in favor of supporting only such candidates as stand unequivocally for county option.

The hall was decorated with eleven American flags and red badges were worn by the delegates.

Members of the last Minnesota house and senate had seats on the platform. Prominent among them was Jacob F. Jacobson, whose appearance was the signal for thirty seconds of applause.

While the delegates were taking their places the noisy delegation from Kandiyohi county sang an entirely modern version of "Marching Through Georgia." The Lyric male chorus from Gustavus Adolphus college sang a Swedish number to the entire satisfaction of the audience. Applause brought forth another song.

The Western Union Telegraph company will accept telegrams by telephone from any person whose name appears in the telephone directories. Five trunk lines maintained. Both 'phones No. 51.

Constipation Should not be neglected. It leads to more serious troubles. It shows that the important functions of the liver are imperfectly performed. The best medicine to take for it is the mild, gentle and purely vegetable cathartic

CAMPAIGN FOR MEMBERS

Duluth Camp of Sons of Veterans Issues Call to Eligibles.

As Memorial day approaches the Duluth camp of the Sons of Veterans for the Fifth division of Minnesota, is making a determined effort to bring into its membership all eligibles in this vicinity. A call has been extended to all those whose father or grandfather on either side was in the Union army to become members of the camp and there is expected to be a great increase in membership in the next three months.

As the ranks of the Grand Army are diminishing the perpetuating of the memory of those who died in the Civil war, a task that has been the Grand Army's is falling on the sons and daughters of the members of the G. A. R. The Sons of Veterans are anxious to secure all eligibles to join the local camp, in order that the work may be better carried on.

Creates Island Dioceses.

Rome, March 2.—The pope has created four dioceses in the Philippine islands. These are Zamboanga, Tugegarao, Lipa and the islands of Samar and Leyte, with the apostolic prefecture of Palawan.

Every Man and Woman Suffering From Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Hacking Cough and Throat or Lung Trouble Should Write at Once.

Consumptions Daily Monument.

Every 30 Seconds, Someone Dies From Consumption 2 Die Each Minute 120 Each Hour, 2,880 Each Day, and 1,000,000 Each Year.

Dr. Hill Says:

"Consumption is positively and absolutely curable and preventable. All authorities agree that this is so. I say it can be cured in the privacy of your own home, and I am proving it day after day. I say it is no longer necessary to travel away from home and friends. I am treating right today, cases of advanced and desperate consumption, which had been given up by their friends and advised to move to another climate, perhaps to die. But they have remained at home under my 'Rational' Treatment, with results that would quicken the heart of any man to see.

Dr. J. LAWRENCE HILL
Snapshot of the Doctor taken a few days ago.

Every one who has weak lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes or Catarrh in any form, Chronic Bronchitis, Asthma, Chronic Hacking Cough, Loss of Flesh, Night Sweats, Hemorrhages, soreness or pain in the chest or under the shoulder blades, or any other deadly symptom of Consumption, should send for a trial package of Dr. Hill's New Rational Remedy. This treatment quickly checks further progress of the disease and produces new resisting power, appetite, flesh and robust health.

Prominent Michigan Men Endorse Dr. Hill.

A small army of prominent professional and business men, and men in public life highly recommend Dr. Hill as a physician, able and reliable and as a prominent citizen of Michigan. It is a brilliant list, containing letters from such men as the Mayor of Jackson, Mich., the Judge of the Probate Court, the Sheriff of Jackson county, Mich., the Judge of Police Court, President of the Union Bank, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., the Prosecuting Attorney of Jackson County, the City Treasurer, five prominent physicians, ministers of the First Congregational, First Baptist Churches, and the Rector of St. Paul's Church, all at Jackson, Mich., in Dr. Hill's home town. But this is not all. A rival city, Battle Creek, Mich., adds its enthusiasm. The Superintendent of Schools, the Chief of the Fire Department, the Chief of Police, the Alderman of the Fifth Ward, including lawyers, physicians and merchants residing in Battle Creek, write ringing letters of endorsement.

Consumption at 63 Cured by Dr. Hill.

"I think I owe it to all sufferers of lung and throat trouble and consumption to tell them a sure way to cure themselves right at home with little trouble," says E. S. Stroth of Angola, Ind.

"Over two weeks ago I was a weazened-up wreck, a consumptive at 63. Three lung specialists passed me up. Every day I would cough up about a pint. I had chills and fever every afternoon. I could hardly eat, even the plainest food, coughed nearly all night, and was down to 137 pounds when I hit on the cure. Well, you see me now. I weigh 166 pounds, frisky as a boy at 66, can do a big day's work, and eat like a prince.

"Now, I must give credit where credit is due. Dr. J. Lawrence Hill, Jackson, Mich., the well known lung specialist of America, cured me. That was two years ago. I have just had my lungs examined again and there is no trace of consumption, nor danger of its returning. Dr. Hill makes a specialty of treating throat and lung sufferers at a distance who have not the means of visiting his office personally.

"I wish every reader of your paper who has weak lungs, catarrh of the bronchial tubes or catarrh in any form, chronic bronchitis, asthma, chronic hacking cough, loss of flesh, night sweats, hemorrhages, soreness or pain in the chest or under the shoulder blades or any other deadly symptom of consumption to send to Dr. Hill for his trial package."

Cured in 2 Months.

Feb. 17, 1909.—Dr. J. Lawrence Hill, Jackson, Mich.—Dear Sir: I feel it my duty to write to you as to the condition of my health when I commenced taking your treatment for consumption. I was in a very bad shape. I had tried doctors and all the medicines that I thought would help me, but all these did me no good. Then I decided to try you. After using your treatment a few days I began to improve, and after using your treatment two months I am about well.

Thanking you for what you have done for me, and wishing you long life that you may do good to others, I remain, yours as ever, J. A. Blythe, Dadeville, Ala., R. F. D. No. 3, Box No. 32.

N. B.—You can use this if you wish or see fit at any time.

Saved From the Grave.

Johnsonville, Tenn.—Dear Doctor: I received a letter from you a few days ago and was glad to hear from you. It finds me feeling very well. I am getting along the finest kind. My chest does not hurt me now. I am glad I commenced taking your medicine. If I had not taken it I would have been in my grave by this time. I do not regret the money I have spent. I tell all my friends about your great treatment and tell them that you saved me from death. Yours, Sarah Rogers.

One Man Killed and Other Escapes When Train Hits Wagon.

Accident on Road Near Brevator Fatal for Patrick McConnell.

By a miraculous trick of fate Ed Torgerson escaped unharmed, while Patrick McConnell, 25 years of age, who was riding beside him on the same wagon, was almost instantly killed by a Great Northern train near Brevator, Minn. yesterday morning.

McConnell's body was badly crushed but Torgerson has scarcely a bruise, being tossed out of harm's way in a manner which has not been explained. McConnell's body was brought to the undertaking rooms of Flood and Horgan on East First street last night. Dr. J. A. McCuen, county coroner, will probably hold an inquest over the remains.

The men both worked for the Northern Lumber company and it is thought that they were driving over a crossing when struck by the engine. Little is known of McConnell. It was stated that his home was at Silon, Wis., but no such place can be found on the map.

INSPECTION OF MILITIA BOYS

Regular Army Officers Will Look Over Three Duluth Companies.

The annual inspection of the militia companies of Duluth will begin tonight when Company C and the Third Regiment band will pass under the critical eyes of Col. Gerlach of St. Paul, U. S. A. (retired), and Capt. Bugge of Fort Snelling, Twentieth Infantry, U. S. A.

Three nights will be given to the inspection of the Duluth companies. Tomorrow night, Company E, under the command of Capt. George F. Stiles, recently elected to command, will be inspected, while Company A will undergo inspection Friday night.

The three companies are confident of making a good showing at this inspection. The inspection by officers of the regular army is an annual event and means much to the militia boys. Company C is under the command of Capt. Knowlton, while Capt. Franklin commands Company A.

SLEEPING PASSENGERS ON TWO TRAINS HURLED INTO CANYON BY BIG SNOWSLIDE

in a twisted mass of wreckage at the foot of the mountain.

Snowslide a Mile Long.

The noise from the snowslide, which was a mile long, could be heard throughout the valley, and Supt. J. H. O'Neill, who was directing the work of the night shift, marshalled his men and hurried to the rescue.

Groans and cries for help coming from the jumbled heap at the bottom of the deep canyon indicated that many imprisoned in the wreckage were still alive, and the rescuers worked with a feverish haste to release them. As fast as the injured were removed they were taken to the hospital at Scenic, three miles away by mountain trail, but ten when the long winding course of the railroad is followed.

Told Story of Disaster.

A messenger was dispatched at once for help. The first news of the disaster was brought by John Wentzel of Wellington. He staggered into Skyhomish, eighteen miles from Wellington, yesterday and gasped out his story:

"All wiped out. Nothing but smooth snow where the tracks stood, and the trains were dumped into the canon."

He was so exhausted from his long fight against the snow that it was several hours before he could give a coherent story, but, bit by bit, Wentzell's disjointed utterances were pieced together into a connected narrative. The avalanche came without warning. Wentzell, who was at W. R. Bailet's hotel, ran out in time to see the billows of snow settling over the tracks where the train had stood.

Women and Children Carried Out.

Later Wentzell saw men carrying women and children from the partly buried coaches which had been carried down the side of the gulch. He thought that eight women and children were carried out while he looked on.

"Some of them moaned, and we knew therefore they were living."

Bailet moved his family back into the tunnel for safety.

The hotel, the saloon and the store were untouched. The little railroad station was swept by the edge of the avalanche, which had grazed the huddled houses and wrecked the trains standing directly in the path.

Messages telling of the disaster were sent to Everett, and relief trains bearing physicians, nurses and workers came up.

Rescuers' Path Blocked.

Owing to previous slides which have blocked the road and swept away portions of the track, the rescue trains can get no further than Scenic. From there the rescuers have to find a way on foot over the snow.

Another train bearing wrecking equipment and carrying undertakers and more workers left Everett late last night. A third train with workmen and provisions enough to last 500 persons ten days, was sent east this morning. Communication with Scenic is frequently interrupted by slides, and it is difficult to get complete details of the disaster.

The names of all the passengers caught in the avalanche are not known here. Men who tired of the delay in the mountains and walked out to Skyhomish says that fifty-nine travelers remained at Wellington Monday night. Only forty of these slept on the train, the others staying at the railroad hotel and nearby cottages.

Among the passengers who were on the train are the following:

James McMeny.
A. G. Mabler.
R. H. Bethel.
George L. Davis.
Charles S. Eldinge.
——— Davis and child, all of Seattle.
Mr. and Mrs. Beck and three children, Pleasanton, Cal.
Mrs. M. A. Covington, Olympia, Wash.
Mrs. William Starrett and three children, Victoria, B. C.
——— Johnson, a stockman of Trinidad, Colo.
——— Cohn, Everett, Wash.
Alexander Chisholm, Rossland, B. C.
John Mackie, Moyie, B. C.
G. Heron, Vancouver, B. C.
Mr. and Mrs. William May, Chemainus, B. C.
Rev. Thompson, Bellingham, Wash.

Escaped by Walking.

Seattle, Wash., March 2.—John S. Rogers of this city was one of the snowbound passengers on the Spokane express, who weary of his long wait for relief, walked out to Skyhomish. Mr. Rogers left Wellington the night before the disaster and arrived in Seattle last night. He gave an account of the wait of the passengers for relief and scenes about Wellington prior to the avalanche.

"Wednesday morning we were stopped at the east portal of the Cascade tunnel," said Mr. Rogers. "We stayed there until Friday night. A few hours later an avalanche wiped out the station and the bunkhouse where we ate, killing two men. We pulled through the tunnel as far as Wellington, which is about a half mile beyond the west portal. Conductor Pettit was in charge of our train, and he proved a hero throughout those trying days. There was plenty of food, but only enough coal to maintain in our coaches the heat absolutely necessary because of the sick people aboard. For this reason we abandoned a plan to run our train back into the tunnel.

Under Menace of Snow.

"Sunday I saw a slide come down east of the hotel, carrying all obstructing timber along in a resistless wave of snow. Sunday night a slide at the east portal filled a fifty-foot gulch across the track.

"The menace of that great snow cap was a pall on the spirits of all of us. Throughout the entire time it had snowed continuously with terrific winds driving the drifts.

"On Monday night eight of us decided to wait no longer and we set out to walk to Skyhomish, where after arduous efforts we at last arrived safely."

river and West Canada creek, which have inundated the streets of Herkimer, were still so deep today that transportation was impossible except by boats. An effort will be made to blow up the ice gorge in the Mohawk.

The New York Central railroad division between Utica and Albany is temporarily abandoned. All the New York Central trains are running on the west shore tracks.

Throughout the night Herkimer was in darkness, the gas and electric light plants being rendered useless by the flood.

People are put to the most desperate straits for drinking water. Fully a third of the houses are uninhabitable. As far as possible other homes have been thrown open to the sufferers. Hundreds of people are seeking safety in neighboring towns or on the higher ground about the village.

Bad Conditions at Albany.

Albany, N. Y., March 2.—The ice jam at Van Wie's Point, just below this city, yielded to pressure from above last night, but the mass collected again near Coeyman's, about twelve miles south of Albany. Flood conditions today were worse than ever.

change its attitude with respect to arbitration already outlined in its reply to the ministers' association," has not disheartened those who are working for peace.

Look for Political Action.

Both branches of city councils meet tomorrow afternoon and some action by the political organization in power is not unexpected.

While the efforts to bring about peace are being made, organized labor is going ahead with arrangements to carry out the general strike order of the Central Labor union. There are some unions, however, that because of trade agreements are not enthusiastic in the calling of the sympathetic strike. Indications are that the general strike order will not be unanimously obeyed.

Each day the Rapid Transit company has more cars in service than in the previous twenty-four hour period. The public, too, is patronizing the cars in increasing numbers. Violence for the present, at least, has practically disappeared, but the city remains heavily policed.

PLAN IMPROVING THE BIG RIVER

Minnesota Improvement Company to Act Independent of Legislative Aid.

St. Paul, Minn., March 2.—The Minnesota River Improvement and Power company, which was recently organized by residents along the Minnesota river from its source to its mouth, has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The capital stock is $1,000,000.

The aim of the association is to do the work on the river that the residents have for some time been asking the state and Federal government to do. Under the decision in the "pork barrel" case, the state cannot spend money for internal improvements, and the people along the river have grown tired of waiting for the government to improve the river and stop the annual overflow and flooding of the bottom lands. The association proposes to clean out the channel where necessary, to build impounding dams in the upper part of the river which will hold the waters and possibly to develop water power from these dams and encourage navigation on the river.

The incorporators of the company are: W. H. Gold, Redwood Falls; Mike Ferch, Odessa; F. W. Murphy, Wheaton; A. K. Kaercher, Ortonville; H. H. Sorlein, Granite Falls; J. S. Mitchell, Morton, and F. W. Meibell, Belle Plain; F. H. Warner, St. Paul; J. H. Diers, Blakely; L. A. Fritsche, New Ulm; C. A. Johnson, St. Peter; T. J. McElligott, Appleton; W. F. Nelson and L. W. Collins, Minneapolis; George Atchison, Mankato.

In addition to the names attached to the articles of incorporation, the association expects to have the aid of several hundred farmers and people living in the cities and villages along the river.

Woman Suffrage Voted Down.

Annapolis, Md., March 2.—The bill permitting women to vote at municipal elections in Baltimore was killed in the house yesterday by a vote of 67 to 24. This action, it is believed, also seals the fate of another bill granting woman state-wide suffrage.

Burn Slaves' Descendants.

Guthrie, Okla., March 2.—The Oklahoma house of representatives has passed the Taylor election law which prescribes the qualifications of those who may vote on constitutional amendments. The measure disqualifies any one whose father or grandfather was a slave. This clause, it is understood seeks to reduce the negro vote. The bill has passed the senate.

THIRD AVENUE ROAD SOLD FOR $26,000,000.

New York, March 2.—Before a motley crowd, the Third Avenue railroad was sold under foreclosure proceedings yesterday and was bid in for $26,000,000 in behalf of the reorganization committee representing the holders of the first mortgage debentures. The railroad has had a checkered financial career and is now in the hands of a receiver. Third Avenue shares on the stock exchange were quoted at 7½ yesterday. Eleven years ago, when dividends were paid at the rate of 7 and 8 per cent annually, the stock sold at 242.

How Good News Spreads.

"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," write B. F. Tolson, of Elizabethown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. The effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 5c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by all druggists.

Married Misery

People often rely on nature unaided to correct evil but it doesn't. One aim of corrective medicine should be to do away with married unhappiness. At the bottom of a deal of misery is found lack of cheerful yielding. Mean selfishness is as surely due to ill-health as famine is to failure. Ungovernable temper—a third fault—is largely the outcome of stomach disorder. All these causes disappear when stomach and liver are keyed to a finely balanced tone. The first sign of on-coming Biliousness, Indigestion or Headache, should suggest old Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. No other known medicine contains so complete a curing-power for disordered stomach and torpid liver—'Twill avert many a conflict between man and woman.

Take pains, however, not to insist too strongly on having your own way except with the druggist—insist that he give you Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Constipation is always aggravating. A costive person is hardly fit to associate with—while free and easy bowel action tends to make the grouchy grumbler a cheerful optimist, lovable and full of hope. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, taken now and then, move bowels gently once a day. That's enough.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NOT GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Paul Thompson Is Tried for Shooting Girl During Charivari Party.

Efforts to Dismiss Case After State Presented Evidence Failed.

Bemidji, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the assault case of the state vs. Paul Thompson brought in a verdict of not guilty after being out some three hours.

The verdict was somewhat of a surprise, as the belief was prevalent that the jury would possibly bring in a verdict for a lesser degree of assault than first, but few though t the verdict would be not guilty.

Bemidji, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial of Paul Thompson, charged with assault in the first degree, in having shot Hazel Farrier, during a charivari in this county, on last Halloween night, began yesterday before this jury, as follows: L. W. Aldrich, Fred Peterson, C. C. Copp, Martin Slokke, Jacob Detling, William Carlson, L. C. Kirkpatrick, Ben Anderson, Olger Brandon, I. B. Olson, Andrew Hendrickson and O. C. Hoff.

City Attorney McKusick opened the case for the state, giving briefly an account of how the case was started as a result of the shooting of Hazel Farrier, and telling the jury what he intended to prove.

Hazel Farrier, the young girl, who lost her right arm as the result of the shooting gave a straightforward story as to how the party with whom she went to Thompson's house, was a charivari crowd; and she stated positively that she identified Thompson as being the person who had shot her; and how she had been taken to a hospital at Winnipeg, where her arm had been amputated.

Elmer Moorhead, Harry Farrier, William McAney, Vincent Menzies and Daniel McAney, who were members of the charivari party told of the shooting.

Blamed Man in Crowd.

Mr. Cisco testified that Thompson had spoken to him, while in the Beltrami county jail, concerning the shooting, and that Paul had said there would have been no shooting but for a certain party who was in the crowd about his house, but that Paul did not mention who the party was.

A. B. Hazen testified to Thompson having said practically the same thing to him that he had to Mr. Cisco; after which the state rested.

C. R. Middleton, who is defending Thompson, in conjunction with State Senator Peterson of Moorhead, moved that teh case against the defendant be dismissed and Thompson be given his liberty.

Mr. Middleton based his motion on the grounds, first, that the indictment did not charge a public offense; second, that the evidence offered on the part of the state did not prove the offense sought to be charged, beyond a reasonable doubt, and did not establish any offense; and that there was nothing to show any intent on the part of the defendant to commit such an offense.

The motion was denied by the court. Mr. Middleton addressed the jury and stated that the defendant had but a few witnesses.

Alleged Blind Piggers.

John C. Cumlins and G. F. Rowley, who were indicted on he charge of conducting an unlawful drinking place at Graceton, in the northern part of the county, were arraigned and pleaded guilty and their cases were continued until the next term of court, on motion of the defendants, and the court denied, for the present, the application for separate trials of the accused.

Charles and Fred Yonkers withdrew their pleas of not guilty to the crime of larceny in the second degree, for which they had been indicted, and entered a plea of guilty to the crime of petty larceny, and the court sentenced them to the county jail for a period of thirty days.

The grand jury met again this morning, having adjourned last Saturday until Wednesday.

NORTHLAND GIVEN TELEPHONE BONDS

Ashland College Is Recipient of Another Substantial Present.

Ashland, Wis., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The treasurer of Northland college yesterday received a donation of twenty-two bonds of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, the par value of which is $1,000 per share. The bonds are now worth $1,400 each, which brings the value up to $30,800. In addition, a tract of 1,100 acres of land was recently given the college, and before the annual meeting next June it is expected that a permanent endowment of $100,000 will be announced.

HOMES FOR THE GIRLS.

To Be Sought By Fargo Boarding-house Association.

Fargo, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interest is shown here in the Boarding House association movement. It is estimated that between the students in the different colleges, the clerks that do not live at home and out-of-town stenographers, there are at least 1,000 girls in Fargo who are boarding. Some of these have splendid homes, others are less fortunately situated. The association is composed of the leading workers of the city. It is non-sectarian and not affiliated with any other organization. The women will send a committee to the Commercial club and seek co-operation. Next Sunday evening they are to have two meetings at churches, one on the North and the other on the South side of the city, to be addressed by President Worst of the agricultural college, Director Perley of Fargo college, and Former Justice Engerud.

RAILROADS ARE MAKING MONEY

Lines in Minnesota Show Big Gain in Their Gross Earnings.

St. Paul, Minn., March 2.—Railroad earnings in Minnesota during the calendar year 1909 were $90,987,228, a handsome increase over 1908, when the gross earnings were $77,875,680.

The taxes upon last year's business were $3,639,489, every cent of which has either been paid into the state treasury or will be paid tomorrow morning. A year ago the taxes were $3,115,027, but of this amount $150,000 was in dispute on account of the Great Northern and the Chicago, Great Western claiming a lower rate than 4 per cent. This disputed tax and similar amounts for four years back of taxes that are still unpaid, although the supreme court decided a week ago that it must be paid.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETS.

Gatherings Announced for Southwestern North Dakota Points.

Bismarck, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—By special arrangement with the executive board of the North Dakota Sunday School association, Rev. John Orchard, general secretary of the organization, will continue in charge of the work till the state convention is held here in May. Rev. Mr. Orchard's resignation was due to take effect March 1.

A series of Sunday school conventions for the southwestern part of the state have just been announced, as follows: Gladstone, Stark county, March 20 and 21; Wilbeaux, Billings county, March 26 and 27; Steele, Kidder county, April 7 and 8; Cooperstown, Griggs county, April 9 and 10; Mandan, Morton county, April 14 and 15; Underwood, McLean county, April 28 and 29; Elbowoods, Fort Berthold reservation, April 30 to May 3; Napoleon, Logan county, May 5 and 6; Manning, Dunn county, May 28 and 29.

ON TRIAL FOR ARSON.

Jack Daly Is Facing a Jury at Rugby, N. D.

Rugby, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jack Daly, who was arrested in Canada, is on trial here for arson. Evidence so far adduced against Daly is circumstantial, but it has been shown that he was absent from home at the time of the fire which he is charged with starting, occurred. A charge of obtaining money under false pretenses is also lodged against him.

Following the Daly cases, those of Ida and Frank Moline, charged with killing their husband and father, will be called, after which the Krenzel cases, in which two boys are charged with stealing wheat, will be tried.

NAMED FOR LINCOLN

Will Be New Dakota County If It's Created.

Medina, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The movement recently launched here for the division of Stutsman county, and the organization of a new county out of the western half of the present county, is an indication of how rapidly this part of the state has been growing in recent years. The movement was inaugurated because of the fact that there is a very great population in this section of the county and it is believed that the time is ripe for a smaller county, which could be operated with less cost to the taxpayers.

If the new county is formed, it will be known as Lincoln, and Medina expects to be the county seat. Petitions are already being circulated over the county, asking that the election be called.

TO ENTERTAIN DEBATERS.

North Dakota University to Do Honors for Visitors.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota university is making elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the members of the Manitoba debating team when they come here Friday to debate against the North Dakota team. At 1 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a general mass meeting, at which members of both teams will deliver addresses to the students. The debate commences at 8:15 p. m., and at its conclusion there will be a banquet in honor of the visitors. This is the eighth annual debate between the two institutions.

HOLDING INQUEST ON VICTIM OF ACCIDENT.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Upon the demands of the acting vice consul of Norway, Major A. I. Bergh, an inquest into the cause of the death of Haskell Olson was started here this afternoon before Judge McLoughlin. Olson was killed Monday afternoon by falling from the Great Northern bridge. The demand for the inquest was made in order to have a clear record of the case, as there are possibilities of a suit for damages against the railroad company. Olson had a family in Norway dependent upon him.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The several criminal cases that were scheduled for trial at this term of district court will in all probability be continued over until the next term. Among the cases on the calendar is that of A. Toscas, the Greek interpreter charged with attempting to obtain money under false pretenses by means of railroad passes. The fact that it is impossible to get several important witnesses at this time makes the continuance necessary.

May Open Northwood Mills.

Northwood, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a mass meeting of the citizens of Northwood, held last night, it was decided to make a thorough investigation into the feasibility of reponening the roller mills here. The mills have been closed for a number of years but it is believed that there is a splendid field for them at the present time.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

Cleveland, N. D., Man Drops From Sight After Receiving Much Coin.

Jamestown, N. D., March 2.—S. A. Stern, a butcher of Cleveland, is in Jamestown, striving for a clue to the whereabouts of his brother, Ed. R. Stern, who disappeared several days ago, while carrying a considerable sum of money in his pockets. Foul play is suspected by the relatives of the missing man, and it is understood that a reward has been offered by the family for news of him.

E. R. Stern recently sold a large tract of land north of Cleveland and was last seen just after he had cashed a check for over $400. He said at the time that he had left his little daughter in Cleveland and expected to take a vacation to his old home in New York state and a visit in the Twin Cities and Aberdeen. For this reason, little was thought of his absence for a week, but when nothing was heard of him, inquiries were sent to the different places he intended to stop. Nothing had been heard from him in any of them.

FORMAN, N. D., PLANNING TO HOLD WINTER FAIR.

Forman, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Forman is laying plans for the entertainment of the farmers, and the holding of a grain growers' convention March 12. It will be conducted along the lines of a winter fair, with prizes offered for the best exhibits in the different lines. President J. H. Worst and Prof. H. L. Bolley of the agricultural college will be the principal speakers at the convention.

COPPER TENT MACCABEES

Of Calumet Have Their Annual Election of Officers.

Calumet, Mich., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Copper Tent No. 85, Knights of Maccabees, one of the strongest fraternal organizations here, have the following officers: Knight commander, Charles H. Sandquist; lieutenant knight commander, W. H. White; record keeper, Will Nekervis; chaplain, Olaf B. Norum; sergeant, Arthur Knowles; master at arms, C. Jilbert; first master at guard, Will Harvey; second master at guard, Alfred Harvey; sentinel, J. B. Hendrickson; picket, Lew Hall; trustees, Messrs. Trevarthen, Axel Fahlen and J. W. Nara.

ASHLAND ELKS' MINSTREL SHOW PROVING SUCCESS.

Ashland, Wis., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the direction of Holly Shepard the Elks of this city put on a big minstrel show Monday and Tuesday nights and will repeat the performance this evening. This is the third annual minstrel show of the local Elks. Last evening a large number of Elks from Bayfield and other places took in the performance, the evening train being held for them until after the show.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Eau Claire—Walter Smith, aged 24, apparently a roamer, was given four months in the county bastile by Justice Merriman for trifling with a gum machine at Fairchild and in the depot waiting room. Whether it was gum or pennies he was after it was not ascertained.

Madison — State Bank Commissioner M. C. Bergh on Monday issued a charter authorizing the Germantown State Bank of Germantown, Washington county, capital $10,000, to do business. Ulrich Huber is president and Phil G. Duerwaechter, cashier.

Waukesha — The Rev. Cornelius Loose, 88 years old, died on Sunday at his home on College avenue, after a short illness. He was born in Pennsylvania in January, 1822. As a German Evangelist minister he occupied pulpits in Pennsylvania and Virginia. In May, 1908, he removed to this city but gave up the ministry.

Whitewater — Herman L. Ekern in Trempealeau county, is bearing down upon P. H. Johnson, superintendent of the county insane asylum near Whitehall, to become a candidate against Assemblyman Albert T. Tweesme of Gainesville. Thus far, it is said, Mr. Johnson has given the leaders who have conferred with him little encouragement.

Baraboo—City Treasurer I. L. Humphrey died on Monday, aged 72 years. He was born in New York, and for many years was a hardware merchant here.

Gays Mills—Lacking but two months of attaining his 101st birthday, Miles Carlin, a native of Ireland, died here.

Madison — The American 'Phone company which last year paid a tax of but $25.72 into the state treasury, claiming that it could not be assessed higher than its then valuation because its business was interstate, on Monday paid into the treasury $8,031. State Treasurer Dahl has appeared before the tax commission and succeeded in having the assessment raised.

Spooner — A congregation, to be known as the Evangelical Lutheran Congregation of Spooner, Wis., has been organized. The Rev. M. F. Mommsen was called to serve as pastor.

Sheboygan — Carl Pergande, aged 78 years, was found dead in bed, having been suffocated by gas escaping from the coal stove in the house.

Wausau — Frank Zielsdorf was appointed chief of Wausau's fire department to succeed Henry G. Miller, who retired Dec. 15.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Hancock.—Mrs. John Wayrynen, aged 43 years, died at her home on Minnesota street, Sunday afternoon after a short illness. She is survived by a husband and four children. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon from the Finnish Lutheran church of Hancock, with interment in the Lakeside cemetery.

Calumet.—The sons and daughters of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Fink of Calumet have presented to the Calumet M. E. church a very fine individual communion service, in memory of their mother. The service was used for the first time Sunday, and it is very much appreciated.

Hancock.—The Hancock high school basket ball team vanquished the boys' team from L'Anse last Saturday afternoon in the match played at the Amphidrome. The score at the finish was 42 to 20 in favor of Hancock, and at the finish of the first half the tally stood 25 to 16.

Houghton.—J. H. McFadzean, general agent in Duluth for the Chicago-Duluth Transportation company, is in Houghton getting acquainted with his old friends here.

Laurium—About thirty of William T. Martin's friends surprised him at his home on Tamarack street, Laurium, Saturday evening, the occasion being the fortieth anniversary of his birth.

Hancock—The Band of Mercy of the Quincy school is arranging to give another rhetorical program on Friday, March 25. There will be no Easter vacation at the Quincy school and the summer vacation will consequently commence a week earlier than at the local schools.

Houghton—Beginning next Sunday morning at high mass and continuing daily throughout the following two weeks, Rev. M. Johnson and Rev. Thomas A. Tracey, Jesuit missionaries, will conduct mission services in St. Ignatius' church. The first week will be for women and the second for men.

Calumet—Sam Tapson, wife and son left Sunday evening for Duluth, after spending some time here with relatives.

Houghton—A report was received in Houghton Monday of the death at Toledo, Ohio, of Dr. A. Overfield, a former resident and old settler of the village, has not lived here for several years. Details concerning the death and time and place of burial were not obtainable.

Calumet—Charity lodge, Knights of Pythias, has made arrangements to give a skating and dancing party in the Palestra on Tuesday evening, March 8. The Tamarack band has been engaged to furnish music.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Stillwater—Death came Monday to Miss Alice Gertrude, aged 27, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Neal. She had been an invalid for a number of years with anemia and became seriously sick some weeks ago.

Crookston—Floyd, the 6-month-old son of Mrs. Pherson of South Crookston died Sunday of pneumonia after an illness of about a week's duration. The funeral was held Monday afternoon, the interment being in Oakdale cemetery.

St. Cloud—John Becker, one of the old pioneer settlers of Richmond, died suddenly at his home Saturday morning from pneumonia and old age. Deceased was 83 years of age and has lived in this section of the country most of his life.

St. Cloud—According to a report received by Clerk of Court H. J. Limperich from the state bureau of vital statistics, the population of Stearns county has been increased the past year by a total of 1,262 births, while in the number of deaths the population has been decreased 434, leaving a net natural increase of 828 in the county.

Brainerd—The Minnesota & International railroad had a wreck Sunday afternoon which was fortunate in that but one was hurt but was expensive in the way of damage and equipment and freight. A car on a northbound extra jumped the track about a mile this side of where the passenger was wrecked a couple of weeks ago.

Little Falls—A party of twelve residents of Freedhem left Tuesday afternoon for Muskogee, Okla., where they will live. The members of the party have disposed of their property in Morrison county and will make their homes in the South.

Fergus Falls—Perhaps the highest price ever paid for land, without buildings, was that paid by R. E. Barnes of Waverly, Iowa, when he bought thirty acres lying north of the city from C. D. Wright for $3,000 through the agency of C. D. Baker.

Winona—Because John Thopmson, prominent Winona county farmer residing a mile and a half south of Lewiston, placed too much confidence in his hired man, Samuel Thompson, who entered his employ only a month before, he is out the tidy sum of $500 in cash, and there is little chance of seeing the color of that money again.

Spooner—Osiris lodge, A. F. & A. M., received this week an addition supply of furnishings and has now as tastily a furnished lodgeroom as is to be found in any rural community in the North country, if not in the state.

Cokato—Due to extended illness, Andrew Ostlund, an aged farmer, living near here, Saturday morning attempted to end his life by shooting. During the absence of his wife, who attended to duties in the barn, Ostlund took a rifle with him to a room upstairs and shot himself in the stomach. The shot, however, did not seem to have any serious effect.

Marshall—At Balaton, this county, a petition was circulated for license, but only two men could be found who would sign it. Balaton used to have two saloons, but for five years has been dry, and the dry sentiment has gained each year. The question will not come to a vote.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—The petition of Verner R. Lovell for mayor was filed Monday. The petition of W. C. Laizure for treasurer was filed Monday, it was that of George Denis and H. T. Hansen for alderman from the Sixth, and J. M. Nelson for alderman from the Seventh ward.

Williston, N. D.—W. B. Overson of Williston is in Washington urging the enactment of the bill introduced last week by Senator McCumber, postponing the time of payment for water rights on the Williston irrigation projects.

Fargo, N. D.—The Elks added another bunch to the membership of No. 260 Saturday night. After the initiation there was a banquet and this was followed by a social session, for which several vaudeville attractions were furnished by George Webster, manager of the local vaudeville booking concern.

Minot, N. D.—The papers in the damage suit against the Minot Light & Telephone company, brought by the estate of Joseph Wentz, who was killed by an accidental contact with a live wire, has ben filed in this city and will come up for trial in the near future. The damages are placed at $20,000.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Julia Regina Torrson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Torrson, 418 North Seventh street, died Sunday morning after an illness of but few days. Croup was the cause of her death. The little girl was 2 years of age.

Bismarck, N. D.—There is a well-founded rumor in the city that mandamus proceedings will be brought against the members of the city commission, if they refuse to follow the directions of the voters at the recent bond election to issue bonds in the sum of $50,000 for the erection of a city hall.

Drayton, N. D.—The second annual bonspiel held at St. Thomas on Monday and Tuesday of last week was a decided success. This was participated in by two rinks from Bowesmont, two from Drayton, four from Crystal and five from St. Thomas.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Friends in the city and at the university will be delighted to hear of the honor that has been bestowed upon Miss Clara Bull, daughter of Mrs. Webster Merrifield, at Vassar. Miss Bull has been elected marshal of the Daisy Chain, the most honorary position of the year.

THE BEST ARE NONE TOO GOOD.

The Herald has laid emphasis for years on the need that Northern Minnesota send its strongest men to the legislature, and its insistence upon that point two years ago awoke St. Louis county to the point where it dragged out the best men it could lay its hands upon and sent them to the legislature, much against their will.

Never has the need of strong men been greater than it will be this year. Northern Minnesota proposes to march upon the next state legislature unitedly, and to demand of it the justice that has long been withheld. The North is united, organized, determined. The demand for reapportionment and for a business-like policy of handling state lands is backed, this time, not by the passive good will of all parts of Northern Minnesota, but by the united and organized and strongly determined will of the people of a great empire.

So far as public sentiment is concerned, therefore, Northern Minnesota never has been better equipped.

But this public sentiment, united and organized and determined though it is, will lack opportunity for expression unless it is represented in the legislature by the very best and strongest men that can be found in Northern Minnesota.

The kind of men that is needed probably will not care to bother with going to the legislature. They will view with alarm the prospects of going through a campaign and then undergoing three months of work for the public at the state capital. But that mustn't be allowed to count. They must be impressed with the idea that it is their duty to themselves and their section, for this one time at least, to sacrifice inclination to public service.

The weakness of the present primary election law is that it places the initiative upon the candidate, and the men that are needed in the legislature from Northern Minnesota will not like that part of it. Public sentiment should center, in each community, on the strongest men in sight, and find a way to express to them the demand that they become candidates. This may be by petition, by public meetings or by newspaper publicity.

But Northern Minnesota's cause is too vital, too weighty, to be trusted, this time, to men of mediocre capacity. It calls for the best and most earnest efforts of the best men available. The work will require not only force, but tact; and men of force and tact must be chosen to do it. It cannot be accomplished by bulldozing, yet it will fail if the attack lacks energy.

From St. Louis to Roseau, from Mille Lacs to Wilkin, the counties of Northern Minnesota should seek out and force into the lists their strongest, ablest, firmest and most capable men. The best will be none too good. It will be an uphill fight against heavy handicaps, and only by a decided superiority in individual capacity can the numerical inferiority of the representation of Northern Minnesota in the next legislature be overcome.

INVESTIGATION IS INSURANCE.

The local health authorities are to be congratulated upon their vigilance in investigating the conditions of the local meat supply. As to those already apprehended, their cases will be tried in the courts, and they should not be tried in the newspapers or even in public discussion. If they are innocent, the trials will disclose the fact. If they are guilty, the trials will result in proper punishment.

The chief thing of public interest is that the general effect of these disclosures will be to put the meat business in Duluth in the same condition of cleanliness and sanitation that the health department has succeeded in achieving in the milk business. In all probability the great majority of local dealers in meat, both wholesale and retail, have regularly observed reasonable rules of decency. The present investigations are an insurance that all of them observe such rules hereafter. The people are paying enough for meat to be entitled to good meat, and the health department is doing its duty when it takes steps to see that that is the kind of meat the people get.

THE ISSUE IS NOT SECTIONAL.

The fight between people and privilege has come to bear something of the look of a sectional division, wholly because practically all of the senators and representatives in congress who are breaking away from the party organizations that stand for privilege come from the West, while most of those who constitute the strength of the organization of party and privilege come from the East.

The late Governor Johnson's famous speech on this subject has been generally misconstrued, and most of those who are familiar with that speech take it for granted that he viewed the conflict as one between East and West. He did not, however, and he did not say so. He viewed it as it is, as a conflict between people and privilege, and he recognized as clearly as anyone that the appearance of sectionalism is due to the fact that in the West the people are less burdened with bosses, less hampered in their expressions of political preference and less shackled by partisanship than the people of the East. This is partly due to the primary election laws of the West, and partly to the greater independence of merely partisan considerations that prevails in the West. And while it will take longer, the time is coming when the people of the East will be as free of partisan confusion and as independent of the bosses as the people of the West. The vote in Massachusetts last fall showed that plainly enough.

Ray Stannard Baker, "America's star reporter," who is analyzing the political situation for the American magazine, shows clearly that even the people of the East are ripening for revolt. He says that there are three stages in the political revolution, the city stage, the state stage and the national stage, and that the East is still struggling in the first two stages.

"In Massachusetts," Mr. Baker says in the March American magazine, "both a city and state struggle is going on. The center of conflict recently has been in Boston, where the people have made a successful effort to change the charter. They have wholly wiped out partisan lines in municipal elections. In several other Eastern states—notably in New Hampshire; in New York, with Hughes at Albany; in New Jersey, where Colby, Record and Fagan are leading the progressives—the conflict has been definitely carried into state politics, with a characteristic struggle for supremacy in the state Republican organizations. In no Eastern state, however, has the old machine been routed as it has in several Western states; and in no Eastern state can the insurgency be said to have reached the national stage. No Eastern state, thus far, has elected a progressive senator or congressman, though a number of Eastern congressmen, like Gardner and Lovering of Massachusetts and Fowler of New Jersey, have been inclined to act with the Western insurgents in their fight on the house rules.

"The new national political consciousness as it expresses itself in the Middle West, then, has not been sufficiently awakened in the East to express itself in electing representatives. The Eastern states, it seems to me, are politically from two to five years behind the Middle West. The same sort of struggles which were going forward in Wisconsin and Iowa a few years ago are now going on in New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey."

This is hopeful news, because it makes it clear that the struggle, though belated, is in progress. The presence of large corporate interests with a direct control of political machinery will delay the expression of the people of the East longer than that of the West was delayed; but it is coming, and when the people of the East, already awake, have found how to use the power of the ballot, matters will move more rapidly than they are moving now.

WILL TAKE NO CHANCES.

The statement in the local columns of The Herald last night of the penalties provided for corporations which fail to heed the call for reports under President Taft's corporation tax law makes it clear that there will be few, if any, corporations that do not make the required returns, even though not a penny of the tax ever is collected and kept.

And yet, in view of all the facts about this law, indignation at being compelled to go through the motions of compliance is excusable. The corporation tax, as everybody knows, was simply a device to head off an income tax law. President Taft advocated it because of the publicity it provides for corporation affairs, yet congress carefully saw to it that this publicity should come to nothing by failing to provide means to assemble it and put it in intelligible form. Though the men whose business is incorporated naturally object to publicity when their competitors who are not incorporated are permitted to keep their affairs to themselves, the publicity feature of the law was its only feature worth while; and congress, as we have said, has seen to it that even that part of it shall amount to nothing.

And even though President Taft, who is a good lawyer and a good judge, believes that the law will stick, other lawyers who are just as able as he is are firmly convinced that it will not stand the test of the courts. If they are right the result will be a sad commentary on the president's argument, in favor of this law and against an income tax law, that the latter would be held up in the courts and receipts delayed by litigation.

THE RIGHT SORT OF PLEDGE.

St. Louis county already has in the field two candidates for state senatorships, and both have pledged themselves, as all candidates in Northern Minnesota should be pledged, to work for a reapportionment bill even though it involves cutting their four-year terms to two years.

The chief obstacle to reapportionment in the next session will be that the senate members will have just been elected for four years, and if they pass a reapportionment bill effective at once they will have to run for re-election in 1912 instead of in 1914. Northern Minnesota cannot hope to win its rights, therefore, unless every senator it sends to the legislature is pledged to disregard this personal inconvenience in his action upon reapportionment.

On the other hand, if all the senators from Northern Minnesota are pledged this way, and if all the members from Northern Minnesota in both houses are pledged to make reapportionment the dominant issue, to be settled before any other legislation is enacted, a reapportionment bill will pass, and Northern Minnesota will come into its own at last.

PRAISE WELL EARNED.

The state public examiner, after making a detailed examination of the accounts of the commission which built St. Louis county's beautiful new courthouse, has reported them to be without blemish, and he has gone out of his way to praise the commission for the good sense and economy it has showed.

This praise is well earned. The members of the courthouse commission have rendered splendid public service, and since the appreciation of their fellow citizens is all the reward they can hope for, it should be given without stint. They worked without pay and gave their best experience and judgment to this public service. The result is highly creditable to them and to St. Louis county. A splendid, sightly building, constructed without a taint of graft or extravagance, is the monument to their faithful service, and there could be none better than that.

The Herald has said something like this before, but because it is so common to hear criticism of such public-spirited work and so uncommon to hear due praise, it is glad to take the occasion to say it again.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THE GOVERNOR AND THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will Governor Eberhart assist county option?

That depends upon the platform of his party.

He will not be more progressive than his party.

That party action is necessary in the securing of reform activity that will be successful, is shown by the attitude of Governor Eberhart. At Faribault, where he spoke Feb. 21 to the city union of men's clubs, he was asked some pointed questions by Dr. A. T. Ishkantian, who is working in Goodhue and Rice counties along temperance lines.

After his address he was asked: "If you are nominated for governor, will you work against the liquor traffic?" To this the governor replied: "My past record will prove that." He was again asked: "But if you are again nominated for governor, will you take a strong stand against the liquor traffic?" He answered: "That will depend upon the platform of the Republican party."

The moral is clear. The political influence of a good man is no greater than his party platform, unless he works against the party leaders. He will not work against the party leaders if he places party ahead of a principle in issue.

The non-partisan or omni-partisan method cannot secure action on any issue; that is, favorable action, if the party leaders do not want it or are non-committal.

GEORGE L. BRIGGS.

"DO IT FOR EVELETH."

To the Editor of The Herald:

The need of a curfew ordinance in this city is quite apparent to an observer. You may go into a theater hall at the last show and there find boys of all ages annoying and making it unpleasant for the rest of the audience. You may go into a bowling alley after midnight and there find boys of tender age "setting up pins."

I would call this child labor, and what kind of labor is harder than the bending of the little backs, hour after hour, unfitting the child or children for the work next day at school? And you may often detect the presence of cigarettes, bought, no doubt, by money so hard earned. Now I would suggest that there be a curfew ordinance strictly enforced and that theater managers should not permit boys under 16 to enter the last show, and that police officers should see that no child is permitted on the streets, or in any public place, after 9 o'clock. And that any one found guilty of giving or selling cigarettes to children should be punished with a severe penalty.

A MOTHER.

BUTCHERING THE BUTCHER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Some time ago Mr. Wilson, secretary of agriculture, published a report stating that the retail butcher made a profit ranging from 38 to 60 per cent or fresh meat. Each little city had a dozen butchers with their expenses to keep up and one outfit could do the work so much cheaper. This caused the meat trust to look closely into the matter. Now they want to close out the retail butcher, just as the tobacco trust closed out the small tobacco dealer. The meat boycott comes in handy for the trust. The little middleman will get frozen out in short order and the meat trust won't have to buy him out or compete with him either. Just watch Mr. Trust skin the little butcher. Besides, the farmer was getting too independent. He was getting 7 and 8 cents a pound for his meat. It was about time to take a fall out of him. When the trust gets through with him, he won't be able to buy a wheelbarrow. This meat boycott is working all right—for the trust. See if they don't make a "clean up" on the little "individuals." GEORGE M. BECK.

WHERE WILL THE FLY LIGHT?

To the Editor of The Herald:

Once upon a time—the time being now—there was a wise man, his countenance fringed in patriarchic white, and he stood upon a rocky ledge of the hill back of Duluth's business center. He had lived a strenuous life; business success had been his; money he had in plenty, and his hobby was doing good to others. As his gaze swept the skyline of the nearby skyscraper, the harbor and the elevators, he perceived in the hazy distance a perfectly level hay meadow, and, perchance, over and across said perfectly level hay meadow he thought he saw an imaginary hair line that might some day grow up to be a belt line. As he gazed long and hard, there flitted across his mind a panoramic procession of times and seasons, years and cycles, slumps and booms, but while reflecting on the scene before him, a twinge of sadness crept across his brow, and involuntarily an audible expression fell from his lips: "What fools these mortals be!" Just then the sun peaked from behind a cloud and, tracing the said imaginary hair line over and across the said perfectly level hay meadow, he perceived that the said line was over fourteen miles long; that it had two sides, making twenty-eight miles; that the said twenty-eight miles were supposed to represent length of side track facilities; that said side track facilities were just as available at one point as at any other point along the said imaginary hair line over and across the said perfectly level hay meadow, and while he gazed he pondered and pondered—where, oh where, would the fly light when it had so much territory on which to light, and involuntarily the same expression fell from his lips: "What fools these mortals be!" Then his gaze returned to the sky line of Duluth's skyscraper, and he could not but feel, "Give a calf all the rope it wants and it will soon hang itself." Thus, my brother, men may come and men may go; lambs grow wool and lambs get sheared; but a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. The steel plant is in Duluth, and the world wags on the same old way, forgetting until too late P. T. Barnum's famous expression. RADIUM LIGHT.

THE WEATHER.

Fur coats have been laid away, at least for a time. Yesterday was a beautiful day, with the sky clear and the sun bright and spring-like breezes made one forget that the winter is supposed to be long and dreary. The rain or snow threatened did not materialize last night. Today the sky is overcast, but the temperature is high enough for comfort and the weather man promises a continuance of the mild weather. The lowest temperature last night was 20 deg. above zero.

Mild weather prevailed a year ago today and there was a considerable fall of snow.

The sun rose this morning at 6:46 and it will set at 5:54, giving eleven hours and eight minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Temperatures are generally moderate to mild throughout all districts except that colder weather prevails over the greater part of the Lake region. Ontario and Eastern Manitoba as a result of higher barometric pressures. A disturbance of moderate strength is central over Alberta. During the past twenty-four hours this depression has caused an increase in warmth over Alberta, Saskatchewan, Montana, the Dakotas, Wyoming, Nebraska and Colorado, and rain in Montana, Washington and Oregon. The depressions central Tuesday morning over Manitoba and Arkansas have disappeared, but in the meantime they were the principal cause of light to copious rains in Atlantic states, and scattered snowfall in the Lake region. The barometer is highest over Nevada and Utah.

"Indications favor more or less cloudiness and generally mild temperature at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours.

Following were the maximum temperatures for twenty-four hours and the minimum for twelve, ending at 7 a. m., today:

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Meaning Eberhart, No Doubt.

Ortonville Herald-Star: It seems to be the ethics of candidates for high office that if they are in favor of any issue they are permitted to say so, but if opposed it at once becomes a "legislative question" and mum is the word.

A Power for Progress.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: Let us pause just a moment, tardy in so doing though we be, to say a word of tribute for the name of Sidney M. Owen. But a few years ago the policies which he advocated so earnestly were ridiculed and branded as socialistic. Yet he lived to see the day when his theories became the theories of progressive men. He was honest and loyal and sincere. He was no politician but a mighty power for good. He helped make the world better.

Lots of Slate-Breakers These Days.

Princeton Union: "The kitchen cabinet has already made up its slate," says a contemporary. It is much easier to make up a slate than it is to estimate the number of persons who carry a sponge for slate-cleaning purposes.

Are Feeling Differently.

Northome Record: We notice that the people are beginning to feel differently about the congressional situation in the Eighth district with reference to Congressman Miller. Those who were first to criticise Mr. Miller and his work have lately changed greatly in their attitude toward the young congressman. They are beginning to believe in his ability to make good, which he will surely do if given a fair chance.

For the Good of the State.

Fergus Falls Wheelock's Weekly: Putting aside all questions of party expediency, and looking loyally to what is for the best interests of the state of Minnesota, it is clearly the duty of the Democrats to nominate Hon. John Lind for the governorship. The state knows this, and any other nomination will be received with a coldness akin to that which has greeted many of the Republican nominations of recent years. Mr. Lind has served the state before, and in every position he has shown the integrity, zeal and intelligence which mark a statesman of the highest type. Mr. Lind does not wish the office, but the state needs him more urgently now than it ever has in the past, and a man with his strong sense of duty could not refuse the nomination which a united party should—nay, must—tender him. The menace of Governor Eberhart's nomination as the best politician that the machine Republicans can select calls for patriotism on the part of Democrats, not policy work. Governor Eberhart must be confronted by ex-Governor Lind, for the state's own sake, not for the sake of any party.

Anti-Eberhart, Pro-County Option.

Mora Times (Rep.): The meeting of the Minnesota Editorial association at St. Paul last week brought out the fact that Governor Eberhart is not a very strong favorite with many Republican editors, also that the county option sentiment in the rural communities is strong and will be an active issue in many of the legislative districts this fall.

Here's a Hopeful Cuss.

Thief River Falls News: It begins to look as if there would be other delegates to the next Republican state convention besides Dar Reese and Ed Smith.

Saving.

Life: From the general business standpoint, exclusive of special interests, the chief objection to postal savings banks is that, by providing absolute security, they encourage people to save.

It is not good business to encourage people to save. When they save they do not spend, and when they do not spend some one goes without a profit.

Business requires us all to live right up to the limit of our resources, with a large dole of credit into the bargain.

The only thing that keeps us going at all is the fact that we have to keep on handing out our meager savings for the necessaries of life.

That Cry of Paternalism.

Chicago News: When all other arguments have been found ineffective to stop a piece of legislation demanded by public sentiment, reactionaries who oppose any measure of progress shout "Paternalism!" The postal savings banks bill having started on its way to passage through the national senate, this cry is raised at once in opposition by the protesting lungs of Senator Bailey of Texas and a Wall street banker.

Senator Bailey asserted in the senate last week that he would prevent a vote on the postal savings bank bill at the present session if he could do so without actually resorting to filibustering. He added: "Once this legislation becomes a part of our fiscal system I predict it will not only never be repealed, but the precedent established will be used to further other invasions of the private and corporate rights of individuals."

Senator Bailey undoubtedly is right in his prediction that postal bank legislation, once enacted, never will be repealed.

The wail of the Wall street banker is to this effect: "The postal savings bank comes to us from abroad, where it is legitimately in line with the theory of paternal government, which, instead of encouraging the individual to work out his own salvation, destroys his independence and his initiative, and invites him to fall back upon the government for assistance in poverty and old age. Any scheme that savors of paternalism is wholly antagonistic to the genius of American tradition."

The effect upon the individual citizen of the postal savings bank system is the very opposite of what this banker affirms. Its tendency is to promote habits of thrift and to encourage saving, so that the citizen, in his old age or at times of misfortune, will have his own accumulated funds to draw upon and will not be obliged to appeal to charity.

In asking the government to make provision for the safe keeping of his small savings the citizen of moderate means is demanding no more than his fellow citizen of larger means already receives, in theory at least. The method alone is different. The government supervises the banking institutions patronized largely by the well-to-do, with a view of protecting the money of the depositors. Why do not the enemies of postal savings banks apply the term paternalism to governmental activity of this kind?

Give government protection to the small savings of the poor as well as to the large accumulations of the rich. That is not paternalism—it is simple justice.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When we turn the other cheek it's of brass.

A girl loves admiration enough to marry the man who gives it to her.

Frankness is so unusual to a woman that when she uses it it is a mask.

Man wants but little here below, and if he gets it, somebody takes it away from him.

A man will spend $1 on a cab in the rain to save 5 cents worth of shine on his shoes.

Marse Henry Wants to Know.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The name of Senator Guggenheim becomes prominent in the investigation. By the way, why is Senator Guggenheim?

INTENDED TO BURN MEAT

Accused Commission Man Denies Charge Placed Against Him.

Invites Public to Inspect Establishment at Any Time.

"We invite the public to inspect our establishment at any time," said C. H. Van Dervort, manager of the Macbeth-Gardner company's Duluth branch, arrested yesterday morning on the charge of having violated the health ordinances.

He is charged with having thirty-eight mutton carcasses in his possession unfit for consumption. The accusation has been made that the intention was to freeze them to partially destroy the odor and then dispose of them.

Mr. Van Dervort states that he could do nothing with the sheep carcasses until they had been checked up by the auditor. After that had been done, he says that they were to have been destroyed in the incinerator. He doesn't deny that they were below grade, but declares emphatically that but one side of the story has been told.

"I have been in and out of the commission houses in the city every day," he said, "and I have found no bad conditions. The matter has been greatly exaggerated in my opinion. The places have been sanitary, and I am sure that they are all as open to inspection as ours."

Mr. Van Dervort thinks that J. H. Lee, deputy government inspector, exceeded his authority in the matter. He states that he was informed of the situation and doesn't understand why he swore out the warrant causing his arrest. The case will be tried in municipal court next Tuesday, Attorney Albert Baldwin appearing for the defense.

Too Much.

There is too much of some things in this old world of ours and not half enough of others. WEST END

WANT CENTRAL PARK IMPROVED

West End Club Will Ask Board to Act This Year.

At a meeting of the Sixth Ward Improvement club last evening several committees were appointed to look after the welfare of the ward. One was delegated to confer with the park board, another to look up the matter of street light, and another the sewers.

The club will attempt to induce the park board to improve Central park this year. On this committee are J. W. Lent, J. R. Randall and F. R. La Brosse.

It is also claimed by the club members that a number of the hillside streets and alleys need more lights. The committee looking the matter up comprises E. K. Helam, Joseph Bempke and David Nelson.

The matter of sewers on the hillside was left to a committee comprising the following members of the club: J. R. Randall, Charles Anderson and Nels Pearson.

FOUND GUILTY AT MOCK TRIAL

Kangaroo Court Furnishes Amusement for Emerson School Alumni.

Ed Becker drew thirty days on the rock pile last evening after being found guilty of chicken stealing at a mock trial held at the Emerson school under the auspices of the alumni association. The trial was a success and formed a good entertainment for a large audience which gathered at the school building last evening.

Frank McGinnis presided as judge. Becker was arraigned on a charge of pilfering from the hen coop of Miss Margaret McCarthy, who was represented by John McGinnis, her attorney. The counsel for the defendant was Frank Page. The other court attaches were: George Frink, sheriff, and Fred Troff, deputy sheriff.

The jury in the case was comprised of the following: Misses Myrtle Perry, Mabel Fix, Mary Dryden, Alice Gould, Effie Lindahl, Lillian Laskey, Catharine Cullen, Hattie Wilson, Herbert McMeehan, Fred Huttle, Simon Berg and Ralph Page. A number of witnesses were called, among whom were Mrs. Ed. Becker, John Millk, Glen Goldberg and Carl Lindquist.

WILL LET CONTRACT FOR NEW CHURCH.

The contract for the superstructure of the new First Swedish Baptist church, which is to be erected this year at Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will probably be let tomorrow evening at a meeting of the congregation and building committee at the church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

The basement of the new edifice was completed early in the winter. The building committee plans that work shall be started on the superstructure at once. The bids for the work have been opened, and it is probable that the contract will be awarded tomorrow.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS CHOSEN.

The annual Sunday school meeting of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church was held last evening at the church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street. Officers for the ensuing year were elected and plans for the next twelve months were talked over.

John J. Moe was elected superintendent of the Sunday school and the other officers were chosen as follows: P. L. Morterud, assistant superintendent; Fred Hanson, secretary; Miss Kate Aronson, treasurer, and Harold Peterson, librarian.

West End Shortrails.

The choir of the First Norwegian Danish M. E. church will meet for rehearsal Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Olesen of 320 North Nineteenth avenue west.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. John's English Lutheran church was entertained this afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. F. Brigatfelt of 1805 West Second street.

Mrs. Fred Olson of 104 North Twenty-eighth avenue west will be hostess to the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's Swedish Episcopal church at her home tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Knute Westberg of 2115 West Third street will entertain the Ladies' Aid Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church at her home tomorrow afternoon.

T. H. Iverson of 2010 West Third street has as his guest, his sister, Miss Aneta Iverson of Carlton.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Norwegian Danish M. E. church will serve a New England supper this evening at the church parlors. An apron sale will follow the supper.

Miss Lizzie Patterson, who recently underwent an operation at St. Mary's hospital, is said to be recovering.

The Boys' Club of the Central Baptist church will be entertained this evening at the home of Albert Glover of 1904 West Second street.

Mrs. Jane Morrison of 2824 West Third street is ill with a paralytic stroke at her home. She is 60 years old and is the mother of Mrs. Margaret Close and Mrs. Lucy Penhale.

The Epworth League of the First Swedish M. E. church will be entertained tonight at the home of David Larson of 2117 West Fourth street.

Three of the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Evans of 413 North Nineteen and a Half avenue west are confined to the house with scarlet fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wilson of 20 Exeter street, are the parents of a daughter, born yesterday.

HOGS BRING $10.10 IN CHICAGO MARKET

Three Carloads Sell at the Advanced Price Per Hundred-Weight.

Chicago, March 2.—The price of hogs advanced still further here today, three car loads of porkers bringing to the seller $10.10 a hundredweight.

The federal grand jury which has been investigating the alleged "beef trust" held a session today lasting only a few minutes and adjourned again until Monday. In this way any witnesses who may wish to appear before the investigating body and who have not already done so will be given an opportunity to give testimony. Twenty-three witnesses for whom subpoenas were issued have not appeared.

Another Fargo Fire Station.

Fargo, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—For many years the business houses on the South side have clamored for a fire station. The old one is located on the North side and there have been annoying and serious delays sometimes in reaching South side fires, because the tracks were blocked by slow-moving trains. After several months a site was purchased and the excavations are now in progress.

MARSHAL SHEA AGAIN ON JOB

Deputy Marshal, Said to Have Been Active Against Him, Out.

Fargo, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a vacancy in the force of the deputy United States marshals as a result of the return of United States Marshal Shea from a month's trip, which included taking Andy H. Jones to the federal prison at Leavenworth, where he will serve a ten-year term for bank wrecking at Rugby. While absent Mr. Shea visited Washington, where he was reappointed and confirmed.

There was some agitation against his reappointment by political enemies, and one of the deputies was charged with playing double. The force is short Deputy Quist, who had been in the office four or five years.

WANTED IN CALIFORNIA.

Claude Baker, Alias Dan Smith, Caught in Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—After evading the California authorities for several months, Claude Baker alias Dan Smith was arrested here. He is charged with escaping from the state school at Whittier. A California official is en route for him.

INSURGENT RANKS GREATLY DEPLETED

Nicaraguan Rebels Cannot Stand Pressure of Their Losses.

San Juan del Sur, Nicaragua, March 2.—Deserters from Gen. Mena's force who have surrendered to the government division at Acoyapa report that Gen. Chamorro arrived at San Vincente yesterday with sixty horsemen, the remnant of the army of 1,500, with which he reached Tisma.

They also state that when Gen. Mena and Gen. Zeledon learned of the disaster to the insurgent troops at Tapitata and Tisma, the two commanders decided to retreat immediately to Rama. The ranks of the insurgents are reported to have been greatly depleted, as the news brought by Gen. Chamorro caused consternation among the rank and file and resulted in wholesale desertions.

Gen. Vasquez now probably occupies San Vincente.

Coffee Fatally Scalds Baby.

Litchville, N. D., March 2.—The 3-month-old baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wachter, residing ten miles north of here, was scalded with hot coffee in such a horrible manner that death resulted after thirty-six hours of intense suffering.

FRANCE SENDS ITS REPLY.

Makes Some Suggestions as to an International Court.

Paris, March 2.—The French government has replied to Secretary Knox's proposal to the powers looking to the establishment of a permanent international court of arbitral justice, accepting the proposition in principle but making certain suggestions which the French government believes will bring all the other powers into accord. Before replying to Secretary Knox's note the French government obtained opinions on the subject from M. Bourgeois, Baron d'Estournelles de Constant and M. Renault, the French members of the permanent Hague tribunal.

The exact nature of the French suggestions accompanying the reply has not been disclosed.

Take Scandinavian Students.

New York, March 2.—Harvard university has decided to accept, on favorable terms, a liberal number of exchange students from Scandinavian universities who may be nominated by their respective universities and recommended by the American Scandinavian society.

TAFT IS INTERESTED.

Tells Visitors He Likes Idea of Uniform Good Roads.

Washington, March 2.—President Taft today expressed deep interest in the movement for uniform highway improvements throughout the country and for co-operation between the states in establishing good roads. He made the statement to the executive committee of the International League for highway improvement. The committee desires the president to indorse legislation looking to the co-operation of the states in building national interstate highways.

NO MORE MISERY IN THE STOMACH

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Vanish in Five Minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Billiousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

EVELETH DECIDES TO PAVE AVENUE

Matter Long in Dispute Has Probably Finally Been Adjusted.

Eveleth, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The matter of paving Grant avenue from the north city limits to the Fayal road has probably been finally settled after a long discussion, as the council decided last night to ask for bids on the various kinds of paving offered.

The license of Frank Steblay, recently convicted for illegally selling liquor, was revoked. The question of transferring Caesar Capitinello's license at Alkral Brothers went over to the next meeting.

The application of Solomon Sax for a transfer of his license to Enderich & Adams, and the applications of Marshall Johnston, Mat R. Turk and Joseph Thlabault, for a renewal of their licenses were all granted.

Adopt Telephone Ordinance.

The telephone ordinance was given its second reading and the maximum rate to be charged set at $40 per year for business places and $19 for residences. The telephone company is is to maintain an independent line from the pumping station to the fire hall free of charge, the city paying one-half the charges for the installation of the system.

The bids for hauling slops, submitted by W. P. Vietch, $175 per month, and Axel Lindgren, $205 per month, were referred to the board of health. The report of the chief of police showed a total of $687.50 in fines collected for the month of February.

Pastoret & Lawrence company's request for a payment of $1,000 on their water tank contract, was accepted.

The bill of Dr. C. W. More for $435 for the care of Anton Ledlher and William Piel, two contagious disease cases, was referred to the board of health.

The failure of the postoffice department to grant free dellvery was discussed and a resolution adopted asking why the boon is not granted.

The payroll for the month of February, with the exception of G. Finnegan's claim for an entire month's salary as fireman and the claim of F. Labelle, fireman, who was relieving Finnegan who was recently suspended from the fire department, was allowed.

The request of City Clerk D. P. MacIntyre for a leave of three weeks' absence was granted, and his position will be filled during his vacation by the deputy clerk.

CLAIMS EAGLES PUNISHED HIM

Carpenter Sues Nashwauk Lodge for Damages for Alleged Initiation Hurt.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Adalor Racine, a Grand Rapids carpenter who has been working here for A. L. Le Vasseur, has brought suit in the district court at Grand Rapids against John C. Lewis, a local attorney, the secretary of the aerie, and about fifteen members for $2,500 damages claimed to have been sustained during an initiation last January.

According to the allegations Racine makes in his complaint, he appears to have received a "run for his money." He claims that his arms and legs were made fast by straps and buckles and that he was then put on a table and excessive amounts of electricity applied to his person.

He was afterward taken from the table and his shoes removed. Sandals were then put on his feet which were connected with wires so that an electric current could be forced through him. He alleges he was made to dance until he was so exhausted that he could not stand. He claims that after this ordeal and while still suffering from the brutal treatment he had received, a large sack was put over his head, his arms being sill strapped to his sides. While in this situation he was suddenly thrown forward and, being unable to save himself, fell violently to the floor receiving a number of injuries, including a fractured rib.

ALLEGES BURGLARY.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Harding has preferred charges of burglary against B. B. Bartow, a well-known logger. Bartow will have a hearing before Court Commissioner Pratt March 9. Harding claims he has a contract with Martin Bros. of Duluth to get out a lot of logging material yet early in the season they took possession of his outfit, placing Bartow in charge. Harding claims Bartow broke into a blacksmith shop belonging to him and removed several articles.

MAKI ACQUITTED.

Found Not Guilty of Holding Up Man Near Gheen.

Virginia, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the highway robbery case against John Maki brought in a verdict of not guilty, after being out only a short time. Maki was charged with having held up and robbed John Hill, a Finlander, who had been employed in the lumber camps near Gheen, taking from him $75. Hill claimed that another man was implicated but did not know his name nor could he locate him.

The case of Jacob Paul against the Virginia Work People's Trading company is now on trial. Paul brought suit against the trading company to recover the sum of $500, which he claims is due to him from the said company as a balance on the stock of goods sold to the company when the latter took over the business.

Accaplo Fuccurillo, who was found guilty of murder in the second degree of Loul Grillo at Gilbert in December of last year was taken to Duluth today by Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately, where he will remain until sentenced by one of the judges of the district court there. The law fixes the punishment for the crime a life-term in the penitentiary.

COUNCIL CANNOT SETTLE TROUBLE

Rival Special Municipal Judges of Virginia Must Go Into Court.

Virginia, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Special Judge J. H. Fleming sent in a communication to the council last night asking the council not to recognize or indorse the election of R. C. Pickering as special municipal judge. Mr. Fleming was elected special municipal judge two years ago for a term of four years, but as the new charter called for the election of all municipal officers at the election held last month, the offices of both judge and special municipal judge were voted for at this election. Mr. Fleming claims that under the statutes he is entitled to serve out the term for which he was elected, and protests against Mr. Pickering qualifying for that office. City Attorney George F. Shea said the matter was outside the jurisdiction of the council and that it must be decided between Fleming and Pickering, or let the courts decide.

Meat Inspector J.P. Chalmers reported he had found all markets in the city in good condition with the exception of the Booth market and the Macbeth & Gardner Mesaba market.

The municipal court fines for the week ending Feb. 26 were only $11, the smallest amount collected during the history of the court.

The curfew ordinance received its second reading without change. The ordinance prohibits children under the age of 16 years from being upon the streets after 9:30 o'clock at night from April 1 to Nov. 1 and after 9 o'clock at night from Nov. 1 to April 1, unless having a reasonable excuse. The parents of children offending are subject to a fine of $10 for each offense.

The ordinance creating sewer district 3 H also received its second reading without change. The new district will take in several streets in the southern part of the city which are now without sewer connections.

President Osborn stated that he had been informed from a reliable source that the Oliver Iron Mining company was having a sewer dug at the Sauntry location to connect with its club house to be located there, and which would run into Virginia lake, and instructed Aldermen McNell, Carlson and Boylan to investigate the matter. Mr. Osborn said that a sewer connection was needed at that location, but that he wanted the company to go at it right.

FRANK ANSLEY RENOMINATED

Present Head of Hibbing Village Board Is Again a Candidate.

Hibbing, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a large attendance at the village caucus last night and considerable interest manifested. W. J. Ryder was chairman and V. L. Benoe and Judge Biordie tellers. Neither Frank Ansley nor Dr. Welrick, the leading candidates for president, were present. Both were nominated and Ansley received the more votes and was declared the nominee. William O. Barrett and P. Kearney were nominated trustees, A. H. Kleffman received the nomination with the majority of about 150 votes over P. M. Bardessono, who had about the same number of votes more than the present incumbent, Miles Gansey. A. D. Smith was indorsed as nominee as village treasurer over D. D. McEachlin. Denis Haley, whose name did not appear in the caucus, will also undoubtedly go to the polls on election day. T. F. Brady was indorsed as the candidate for the municipal judgeship. Mr. Brady received 337 votes to J. E. Bell's 74. T. S. Sillman was unanimously nominated as special municipal judge.

The following were nominated by the Stuntz township caucus:

For supervisor, Mike Danahy; clerk, Charles Calligan; treasurer, John Hunter; justice of the peace, Mike Roth; constable, Harry Cole. Judge T. F. Brady was chairman of the caucus and Victor Benoe was secretary. The following caucus committee was named: Peter McHardy, James Butchart and John Kleffman.

VIRGINIA BRIEFS.

J. W. Murphy has returned from a business trip to Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Klabechek entertained a company of friends Monday evening.

Eli La Sarge spent the first of the week among the border towns on business as auditor for the Fitger Brewing company.

John A. Keyes of Duluth is in attendance on district court.

Miss Mabel Newhard of Carey, Ohio, has succeeded Mattie Dunagan as librarian.

Henry Brush, who has been in the city the past several weeks, left today to resume his position as steam shovel man at the Kinney mine near Biwabik.

COURTHOUSE PLANS WILL BE CHANGED.

Virginia, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Andrew Hawkinson has returned from Duluth, where he attended a meeting of the county poor commissioners, of which he is a member. Incidentally he interviewed a number of the county officials in regard to the proposed changes to be made in present plans for the new courthouse for Virginia. The mayor stated that the officials appeared to favor such changes and they probably will be made.

Virginia School Election.

Virginia, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The polls will be open from 2 to 8 p. m. Saturday next for the special election to decide upon issuing $150,000 in bonds to provide funds for completing the new technical high school.

NO RETURN OF ASTHMA

Work of New Specific, Ascatco, Is Shown to Be Permanent.

Those who are watching the remarkable results accomplished in the cure of asthma by the new specific, ascatco, find in reports just obtained, from cases cured some years ago, undisputed evidence that its work is permanent.

Miss Mary H. Sampson, 52 Oak street, Mobile, Ala., makes this statement on December 12, 1909, three years after her successful experience with ascatco: "I took the treatment in the winter of 1905 and 1906 and have never had the least symptom of asthma since." W. H. Harman, 313 North Eleventh street, Richmond, Va., says: "I took ascatco about five years ago, and have never had a return of asthma since. I had been suffering for five years, and the doctors could do nothing for me."

Thousands of like experiences have now become known and are so impressive that ascatco is increasingly demanded by those who are seeking freedom from asthma. Just how ascatco will act in any individual case may be easily determined, as the Austrian Laboratory, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city, will send a trial treatment by mail free of charge to any one who will write to them for it. For the regular treatment ascatco may be procured at the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, the A. E. Holmberg Drug Co., in Superior, and other leading drug stores, in both the 50-cent and $2 sizes.

EVANS DIVORCE CASE.

Deer River Logger Being Sued at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 2—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Stanton has resumed his session of district court here. There are about thirty cases to be tried, among them being the divorce case of Evans vs Evans, in which the woman seeks separation from her husband, a well-known logger living near Deer River. She alleges cruel and inhuman treatment.

Among other acts of brutality on her husband's part it is claimed that he struck her on several occasions and also applied profane and abusive language to her.

Recently she applied to the courts for a temporary injunction to restrain Evans from cutting and disposing of timber from certain lands in which she claimed to have an interest which he is asking the court to make a decree on in her favor upon trial of the divorce case.

WANT PEARY PUT INTO HIGH CLASS

Friends of Explorer Would Rank Him With Grant and Porter.

Washington, March 2.—The proposal that congress bestow on Commander R. F. Peary, the discoverer of the North Pole, a gold medal and a vote of thanks as a reward for his service, has led the sub-committee of the naval committee having the matter in charge, to look up history and ascertain how many persons have been granted this honor. Investigation shows that but a dozen civilians and military and naval heroes have had congressional honors bestowed upon them.

The civilians were Cornelius Vanderbilt, he presented $800,000 to the government for use in time of war, and John Gleadall of the steamship Atlantic for heroism at sea.

The military men who have been so rewarded are Generals Grant, Banks, Burnside, Hooker, Meade, Sherman, Sheridan, Terry, Thomas and Hancock; Commodore Ringgold, Lieut. Col. Bailey, Capt. Rogers, Admirals Porter, Farragut, and Dewey; Capt. Winslow and Lieut. Cushing.

Members of the committee expressed themselves to the effect that in their opinions the friends of Commander Peary had placed considerable value on the thanks of congress.

Long Flight Fails.

Little Rock, Ark., March 2.—The balloon New York, aboard which Clifford B. Harmon and his aide, George B. Harrison, set out from San Antonio Sunday night in an attempt to better the long-distance balloon flight record, landed near Velonia, Ark., late yesterday. The abandonment of the flight, it is stated, was because of an impending storm.

Clergymen Oppose Navy Increase.

Boston, Mass., March 2.—A remonstrance against a further increase of the American navy, signed by 500 clergymen of Boston and vicinity, representing all denominations, has been forwarded to Washington to be presented to congress. The remonstrance points to the high cost of living and urges international arbitration.

Stanley, N. D., Ambitions.

Stanley, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—A population of 3,000 persons is what the Stanley Commercial club hopes to obtain for this city before the close of the present year, and with that end in view, a population committee will soon be appointed to have charge of the proposed campaign. This committee will be charged with the work of placing Stanley in a favorablue light before the world at large, and every effort will be made to bring about the result aimed at.

FOR CONSTIPATION

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Gives Satisfactory Relief.

If you suffer from constipation in any form whatever, acute or chronic we will guarantee to supply you medicine that we honestly believe will effect permanent relief if taken with regularity and according to directions for a reasonable length of time. Should the medicine fail to benefit you to your entire satisfaction we promise that it shall cost you nothing.

No other remedy can be compared with Rexal Orderlies for the easy, pleasant and successful treatment of constipation. The active medicinal inodorless, tasteless and colorless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other valuable ingredients, it forms a preparation which is incomparable as a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy, and are notable for their gentle and agreeable action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience, and may be taken at any time, day or night.

We particularly recommend Rexall Orderlies for children and for delicate or aged persons, because they do not contain anything injurious. Unlike other preparations, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the habits acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics, and harsh physic, and remove the causes of constipation or irregular bowel action that are not of surgical variety.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. We know of nothing that will do you so much good. They are prepared in tablet form in two sizes: 36 tablets, 25 cents, and 12 tablets 10 cents. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Duluth only at our store—The Rexall Store, E. M. Tredway, 108 West Superior street.

MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD

Important Matters to Come Up for Consideration Friday Night.

At the regular monthly meeting of the school board Friday evening of this week, the adding of three grades to the work in the Radisson school on Park Point, the building of an addition to the Oneota school in West Duluth and the erection of a new building in the Oneota district will again come up for discussion. From the present outlook, they are the only important matters to command the attention of the board.

At a joint meeting of the committee on schools and the committee on maintenance of buildings and grounds last Saturday, the people interested in the three questions were heard. People from Park Point told the members of the committees that there are twenty-two children on Park Point attending other schools or not attending school at all, on account of but five grades being taught in the Radisson school. Ten more children will complete the Radisson school work this year. They asked that the Radisson be graded for a full grammar school course.

The people interested in the proposed addition to the Oneota school say that the present building is not only crowded, but it is in a shaky condition, and needs the addition as a brace. They claim that the school was never built to the extent of the original plans and it should be completed at this time. They do not oppose the erection of the proposed new school.

Mr. Magner said at the committee meeting Saturday, that the committee on maintenance of buildings and grounds is negotiating with three different people for a site between Thirty-eighth and Forty-second avenues west, above Third street, and the committee may have something to report at the meeting Friday night. The need for the new school is growing, as the district above Grand avenue is building up rapidly and the children now have to attend either the Oneota school, which is crowded, or the Bryant school, which is some blocks distant.

The committee on schools, which is considering the adoption of a means for fumigating the books in school rooms in which cases of scarlet fever or any other contagious disease are discovered, reported at the last meeting that they had about decided upon a plan of fumigating, which will very likely be adopted. The committee will probably have something further to say on the subject Friday night.

FROM DULUTH TO MEET HIS BRIDE

Titled Traveling Man Pulls Off Romance at Chippewa Falls.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Farwell Gascoigne of Evanston, Ill., and Miss Florence Mathews of St. Paul were married Saturday afternoon at the rectory of Christ Episcopal church, the Rev. George Hirst officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by the rector's wife and Emmet Horan, Jr., of Eau Claire, a former roommate of the groom at the University of Wisconsin, both being members of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

The bride is a daughter of J. N. Mathews, a wealthy St. Paul broker, and she stole away from St. Paul Saturday morning and arrived here at noon.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gascoigne took an interurban car for Eau Claire, where the bride caught an Omaha passenger train for St. Paul, reaching her home at 5:30 p. m., without letting her parents know that she had been out of the city. The husband continued on his business trip. He is 25 years old and his bride is 22 years old.

Gascoigne is descended from a royal French family, it is said, and is heir to a title in France, but prefers American business life traveling for a Chicago men's furnishings house and is well-known all over the Northwest. He was prominent in university circles at Madison. He arrived at Eau Claire Friday night from Duluth and came to this city Saturday morning.

The bride is a granddaughter of the senior member of the firm of Finch & Van Slyck, one of St. Paul's largest clothing firms, and an heiress to considerable wealth.

J. P. BOYLE TO SPEAK.

Irish of Duluth Will Honor Memory of Robert Emmet.

The Irish of Duluth will do honor to the memory of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot, at a free entertainment in the cathedral auditorium Friday night of this week. The affair is under the auspices of Division No. 1, A. O. H.

The speaker of the evening will be James P. Boyle of Eveleth, assistant county attorney. There will be other speeches, Irish music and songs. Robert Emmet, in whose memory the entertainment is given, is one of Ireland's most honored heroes. He was executed in Dublin, Sept. 20, 1803, for his part in a revolutionary uprising.

OLD TOBACCO USER IS ONE YEAR PASSED 100.

Winona, Minn., March 2.—James Hogan of Homer township, in this county, will be 101 years of age on Friday. For twenty years he has been a cripple from rheumatism and his hearing is impaired. He has been addicted to the use of tobacco all his life. He was born at Ballymore, Ireland, but settled with his parents at Brooklyn when 11 years of age.

BALLOONIST LEAVES STATE PENITENTIARY.

Stillwater, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. W. Webster, a balloonist, was discharged from the state prison Monday at the end of a term of three years for stealing a watch and a ring from a woman in St. Paul. He says he may go to the northern part of the state or to New York, to follow his avocation.

Dwight J. Myars has been received at the state prison under a sentence of two years for forgery in Minneapolis. Nicholas Segelhurst has commenced a term for a year for grand larceny in Otter Tail county.

Edmore, N. D., Plans Election.

Edmore, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edmore farmers are considering the question of organizing an elevator company, and at a meeting to be held here soon will definitely decide the matter. There is now no farmers' elevator in this section and the field is therefore very good.

MINE WORK IS LIVELY

is expected, will be in place about next Wednesday.

Work on the 90-foot steel head frame for the new five compartment shaft is progressing very nicely and it is hoped by the officials that this will be completed soon and in operation.

Will Increase Force.

The mining company have increased their working force at the mines to about 125 men and they expect to double this number by the end of the summer.

There is approximately 14,000 tons of merchantable iron ore in the stock pile, and this is being added to daily from the numerous drifts which have been opened up.

A steam shovel together with some dummy engines are busily engaged in grading the yards at the mine, and making room for the accomodation of fifty cars. This shovel will also be used in preparing a place for the large coal trestle which is to be placed in such a position that the coal may be dumped from the cars into a chute leading directly to the boiler rooms; this will then obviate the unnecessary handling of the coal so many times.

The company has also twelve two-ton tram cars on the way from the factories; these are to be put into commission in the different drifts underground.

Soo Bringing in Freight.

A Soo freight came into the mines with twenty freight cars all loaded with machinery for the improvements being done. While the new railroad does not make any attempt to run regular freights into the mines, they have a contract to run 120 cars of machinery and mining equipment during this winter. When this contract has been completed the work of ballasting will be commenced and no attempts will be made to travel over the rails, only as the ballasting is completed.

The six wells which were put down by the Bullock Bros., who are old range drill men, have been turned over to the company at Cuyuna. The average depth made in each well was approximately 160 feet, and a fine flow of pure water was in each case obtained. This firm will now resume its old style of drilling and exploration work for iron ore. They have made arrangements to start drilling on the north side of the river from the Kennedy mine in Rabbit lake.

CRISIS NEAR IN FOOD TRUST WAR

Prosecutor Garven Says He Will See Deneen Personally.

New York, March 2.—When the cases of the indicted meat packers were taken up by the prosecutor's forces in Hudson county, New Jersey, today, there were indications that definite moves expected to bring matters to a crisis would shortly be forthcoming.

Prosecutor Garven said that most of the indicted men had been in the state within two years and that he would try to get all the defendants here.

"When Governor Hort signs the requisition papers," said the prosecutor, "I shall go personally before Governor Deneen of Illinois and request him to sign the extradition papers so that the men can be brought here."

Sheriff Kelly today received the capiases for the individuals and summonses for the corporations named in the indictments.

FINANCIAL WORRY IS BLAMED FOR MURDER.

Aberdeen, S. D., March 2.—While Mrs. John A. Anderson sat in her home thirty miles west of here, her husband shot her above the eye, killing her, and then ran to a neighbor declaring his wife was sick. He was later captured by a posse. Worry over financial matters is believed to have inspired the deed.

Lynching in Georgia.

Vidalia, Ga., March 2.—Will Williamson, a negro who early yesterday morning attempted to criminally assault a white woman and fatally stabbed her husband, was lynched by a posse of citizens last night at Peroso, five miles from here. His body was riddled with bullets. The negro was trailed by bloodhounds.

Certain Proof Will Be Made That Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Cure Stomach Trouble.

A Trial Package Sent Free.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made to give to the system, through the digestive tract and the stomach, the necessary chemicals not only to digest food, but to enrich the fluids of the body so that it may no longer suffer from dyspepsia or other stomach trouble.

We will send you a quantity of these tablets free, so that their power to cure may be proven to you.

Thousands upon thousands of people are using these tablets for the aid and cure of every known stomach disease. Know what you put into your stomach, and use discretion in doing so.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain fruit and vegetable essences, the pure concentrated tincture of Hydrastis, Golden Seal, which tone up and strengthen the mucous lining of the stomach, and increase the flow of gastric and other digestive juices; Lactose (extracted from milk); ux, to strengthen the nerves controlling the action of the stomach and to cure nervous dyspepsia; pure aseptic Pepsin of the highest digestive power and approved by the United States Phamacopoeia.

One of the ablest professors of the University of Michigan recently stated that this Pepsin was the only aseptic pepsin he had found that was absolutely pure—free from all animal impurities; Bismuth, to absorb gases and prevent fermentation. They are deliciously flavored with concentrated Jamaica Ginger—in itself a well known stomach tonic.

Liquid medicine lose their strength the longer they are kept, through evaporation, fermentation and chamical changes, hence Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized as the only true and logical manner of preserving the ingredients given above in their fullest strength.

If you really doubt the power of these tablets, take this advertisement to a druggist and ask his opinion of the formula.

It is due your stomach to give it the ingredients necessary to stop its trouble. It costs nothing to try. You know what you are taking, and the fame of these tablets prove their value. CONVINCING PROOF

OF THE VIRTUE OF

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

What is the use of procrastinating in the face of such evidence as the following letters represent? If you are a sick woman or know one who is, what sensible reason have you for not giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? For 30 years we have been publishing such testimonial letters as these—thousands of them—they are genuine and honest, too, every one of them.

Mrs. S. J. Barber says:

"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine in the world for women—and I feel it my duty to let others know the good it has done for me. Three years ago I had a tumor which the doctor said would have to be removed by an operation or I could not live more than a year, or two, at most. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, and took 14 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today the tumor is gone and I am a perfectly well woman. I hope my testimonial will be of benefit to others." — Mrs. S. J. BARBER, Scott, N. Y.

Mrs. E. F. Hayes says:

"I was under the doctor's treatment for a fibroid tumor. I suffered with pain, soreness, bloating, and could not walk or stand on my feet any length of time. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice, followed her directions and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. To-day I am a well woman, the tumor was expelled and my whole system strengthened. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 1890 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Mrs. George May says:

"No one knows what I have suffered from female troubles, neuralgia pains, and backache. My doctor said he could not give me anything to cure it. Through the advice of a friend I began to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the pain soon disappeared. I continued its use and am now in perfect health. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a God-send to me as I believe I should have been in my grave if it had not been for Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." —Mrs. GEORGE MAY, 86 4th Ave., Paterson, N. J.

Mrs. W. K. Housh says:

"I have been completely cured of a severe female trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and want to recommend it to all suffering women." —Mrs. W. K. HOUSH, 7 Eastview Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, etc.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

SAFEGUARD TAFT BILLS

Party Leaders Will Fight Hostile Amendments to His Measures.

Standardization of World's Harbors Is Proposed—Capital Doings.

Washington, March 2.—After a two-hour conference with President Taft yesterday leaders of congress announced that they would oppose all amendments to the several administration bills when it became apparent that the amendments were offered in a spirit of hostility to the main purposes of the proposed legislation. There were present at the conference Senators Aldrich and Crane and Speaker Cannon.

The discussion at the White House had special reference to the interstate commerce bill. The president was disturbed by reports that efforts would be made in the senate to amend the bill in such manner as to destroy the main ideas of the administration, and that there was danger of the house committee's adopting some of the amendments which are advocated by Chairman Mann and which Attorney General Wickersham has said would be inimical to the measure.

It was stated that position assurances could not be given that no amendments would be adopted, but that a determined contest would be waged against all suggestions coming from an unfriendly source.

Would Standardize Harbors.

Representative Moore of Pennsylvania wants to standardize the harbors of the world and to that end has introduced a joint resolution in the house directing the secretary of state to invite all maritime nations to an international conference to fix the maximum depth for dredging rivers and harbors.

"If the maritime nations of the world can fix a maximum depth of waterways, a limitation will have been placed upon the size of vessels engaged in the world's commerce as well as those men of war that are growing to such monstrous size," said Mr. Moore.

More for the Judges.

Another effort will be made during the present sesion of congress to increase the salaries of the judges of all federal courts. For that purpose Representative Moon of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill fixing the salary of the chief justice of the supreme court at $18,000, associate justices at $17,000, circuit court judges at $10,000 and United States district judges at $9,000. A delegation of New York attorneys headed by Former Senator Spooner, is advocating the proposed increases.

Change Extradition Laws.

A bill which if passed will declare the members of the "beef trust" recently indicted in New Jersey fugitives from justice and compel their extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for alleged illegal combination and monopoly, has been introduced by Representative Henry, Democrat of Texas, a member of the house judiciary committee.

The Henry bill provides that the demand of an executive authority of one state upon that of another state, and accompanied by a copy of an indictment, shall be "indisputable proof" for the authorities to act upon. It also provides that the order for the arrest of a person wanted under those conditions "shall not be inquired into, noticed, disputed, or invalidated in any court or tribunal of the state or territory to which such person has fled or in which he is found, nor shall any such court or tribunal have any power to release such person for any cause."

J. A. PATTEN TO QUIT BUSINESS

Wheat King and Brother and Partner Bartlett to Retire.

Chicago, March 2.—"I have made enough money. I am going to quit."

These words, spoken by James A. Patten, wheat king and cotton monarch, came as the explosion of a bombshell at the close of business on the board of trade.

Mr. Patten supplemented his announcement by saying that he would retire from active business July 1 and that with him would retire W. H. Bartlett, head of the firm, Bartlett, Patten & Co., and George W. Patten, brother of James A. Patten, and another member of the firm.

The aggregate wealth of the three is variously estimated at between $20,000,000 and $35,000,000.

The house of Bartlett, Patten & Co. will be reorganized and the younger members of the firm will carry on the business as at present, with capital left in the copartnership by the three men now about to retire.

The tremendous influence that James A. Patten has exerted on the grain and cotton markets of the world will be felt no more.

"Bartlett and my brother also have enough money. We've been busy making it; now we are going to enjoy it," added the senior Patten.

AUTHOR HITS NEW YORKERS

F. Hopkinson Smith Says Gotham Is Worst Mannered City.

New York, March 2.—Since F. Hopkinson Smith, the author, told the Southern society the other night that New York is the worst-mannered city in the world, he has been in receipt of hundreds of letters of praise and confirmation.

"I am beginning to believe," he said, "that in making what I thought to be at the time a very casual and quite undisputed remark, I really voiced a widespread dissatisfaction.

"People here not only ignore good manners, but they seem to violate them deliberately. Chicago is not thought an academy of the graces, but the trouble in Chicago is not boorishness, but hustle. People rush into you, brush by you, forget you in the peculiarly hurried life of that city, but there is not there the peculiarly pigeish, cold, selfish brutality and bad manners that has grown up in New York. Chicago has a heart in the right place.

"In part the blame here is on the masses of newly freed foreigners we have with us. These people have been crushed in the iron hand of social caste at home and when they come to this land of liberty, where there is no restraint on them, they take pains to show their liberty.

"But the fault does not end there. Our young men of what we call society are worse than the most boorish subway guard. Hundreds of dear young girls invited out have to go home in the care of a maid when the time for the german comes, because the men will not dance and the girls shrink from the humiliation of being thought wall flowers. Where are the men who should be waiting on them? Upstairs in the dressing rooms, smoking cigarettes and drinking brandy and soda, while they say, 'aw, we don't want to dance.' The miserable young cads! They know the girls can't dance alone.

"Let no one suppose that manners have no place in the world's business. Suppose King Edward were to open parliament by shouldering his way into the house, kicking over a chair, pushing a minister out of the way, and then, with his knuckles on his hips, to shout, 'Now, fellers, here's the program!'"

GIRL JUSTIFIED IN KILLING AGENT

Estelle Stout of Chicago Is Acquitted of Charge of Murder.

Chicago, March 2.—Estelle Stout, 20-year-old girl on trial for the murder of Henry Hornberger, a picture frame agent, whom she shot and killed on Dec. 1, 1908, has been acquitted.

Miss Stout, who declared that she killed Hornberger in defense of herself and sister, Mrs. Lucile Chambers, was exonerated by a coroner's jury shortly after the tragedy. Hornberger's widow, however, refused to accept the coroner's verdict and took the case to the criminal court.

Miss Stout is an orphan and the youngest girl ever tried for murder in Chicago. She said Hornberger called at the home of her sister and tried to collect charges on a picture which he claimed her sister had ordered enlarged. The sister refused to pay the bill, according to testimony, and after an argument the agent struck her several times. Miss Stout said she then went to the aid of her sister, and after Hornberger had threatened to kill them, shot him through the heart.

BATTLESHIP IN COMMISSION.

South Carolina Is Ready for Service in the Navy.

Philadelphia, March 2.—The battleship South Carolina was placed in commission at the Philadelphia navy yard yesterday with Capt. Augustus F. Fechteler in command. The South Carolina and her sister ship, the Michigan, are the most powerful vessels in the navy. The new ship will sail on Sunday for Hampton Roads and later will proceed to Charleston, S. C., where she will be given a handsome silver service.

ORDERS DISTRIBUTION OF THE GUNNESS ESTATE.

Laporte, Ind., March 2.—The final report of the executor of the estate of Mrs. Belle Gunness, who was accused of many murders in Laporte and who was burned to death with her three children in her home April 28, 1909, was approed yesterday by Judge Richter, who ordered that the $3,238 which remains after the payment of the funeral expenses of one of the victims, be equally distributed between the three heirs. The total value of the estate was $8,689.

"UNDER TWO FLAGS."

Franklin Stock Company Gives Good Presentation at the Lyceum.

The Franklin Stock company gave a capable presentation of "Under Two Flags," at the Lyceum last evening. "Under Two Flags," is old, but it has not lost its charm. It is a thrilling war drama, with a love story that holds the interest. Capably presented it is well worth seeing, and the Franklin company presents it capably, for a large audience was well pleased last night. The company is well cast and well balanced. The preformance will be repeated tonight, and a matinee was given this afternoon.

GREATNESS JUST COMES.

Nobody Knows What Gives Actor His Hold, Says Warfield.

"I have often wondered what is it that makes an actor great," said David Warfield, who will tomorrow night open an engagement for four performances of "The Music Master," at the Lyceum. "No one knows. It is called the spark, but that doesn't explain it. If you can do it, you can; if you can't do it; you can't; that's about as near as I ever got to solving the question.

"Some say that wide and varied experience, with deep emotional trials, is the source of the actor's art. Do you mean to tell me for a moment that a man who had suffered the tortures of hell in jail for twenty years is any nearer being an actor for his experience? Why, on the stage he would cease being a convict at all.

"Others say the secret is just to be natural. That's another joke. Plenty of actors act naturally, but nothing comes of it at all. They don't get hold of you. No, it is all a mystery, as much so to me as any one.

"Another peculiar aspect of acting is that it is not mere imitation, as so many people think. If, for instance, I were to play the part of a waiter, and were to study a particular specimen of the class in this hotel and then try to be like him on the stage, I would fall utterly. In some way or other I would have to be myself, while being the waiter too. Acting is an art. I didn't use to think so, but I am convinced of it now. Mere imitation or photography in acting is as repugnant as in the art of painting. Everything that is great in both of these arts, must be colored with the personality of the artist.

"Acting is as difficult of accurate description as the fire a young reporter was sent out to cover. When he came in he wrote a short paragraph saying that the fire had occurred, and wound up by saying: 'The scene that was presented, baffled all description.' The editor was furious and ordered the reporter to write the scene. The reporter replied that it baffled all description by a writer who was only getting $15 a week.

"But of this I am absolutely certain. Character is the important thing. The public doesn't care for plays that are technically great unless they offer lovable or attractive or great characters. Great plays die, but great characters live on for generations, on the stage. Witness Jefferson's "Rip Van Winkle" and many others. Apart from the music of his poetry, Shapespeare lives because of his great characters. His plays are often weak in construction."

FORM CITY CLUB IN EMBRYO

Representatives of Republican Clubs Meet With Jesse F. Turner.

A temporary organization of the Republicans of Duluth was effected at a meeting of about thirty representatives from the different Republican clubs of the city at Memorial hall, in the courthouse, yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called at the instance of Jesse E. Turner, organizer of the National Republican league.

Mr. Turner explained that the intention of the league is to have city clubs affiliated with state organizations, and the state organizations affiliated with the national league, of which John Hays Hammond is president.

All of the Republican clubs of the city were represented at the meeting yesterday. L. A. Barnes was chairman of the meeting and William A. Anderson, secretary. The only definite action taken at the meeting was the appointment of one member of each club represented to attend a meeting to be held in Minneapolis Thursday evening for the organization of a state league. L. A. Barnes appointed as delegates R. D. Haven from the West end club, L. A. Sulcove from the West Duluth club, W. A. Anderson from the Svea club, and E. H. Conkey from the Garfield club.

HOPE TO FIND BODIES

Of Two Men Drowned in Mississippi Near Winona.

Winona, Minn., March 2.—The early opening of the Mississippi river is being awaited by the relatives of William E. Smith, who disappeared early in the winter, and Frank Kerlin, who disappeared a couple of weeks ago, in the expectation that at that time the bodies of these men will come to the surface, after having been held under the ice all the winter.

Search for both of these men has been made in all places where it is considered they would likely be found, without the slightest trace of them, and the conclusion reached as to both is that, in some manner, they must have got into the river and been drowned. Relatives are desirous that if any bodies come to the surface of the river in spring when the ice moves out, that they be notified and have a chance at identification. In the case of Mr. Smith it is particularly desirable that this identification be made, because he carries some life insurance.

Railroad Grants Increase.

Baltimore, Md., March 2.—Conferences between officials of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and representatives of telegraphers of the system culminated yesterday in an agreement declared by both sides to be very satisfactory. The operators were granted from 8 to 9 per cent increase in pay and valuable working concessions. About 1,500 operators are affected.

Nip That Cold Right Now

You can knock it out in short order with Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey and now is the time. Get a bottle before it gets a good start.

Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey goes right to the cause of the cold and removes it by cutting the gathering mucous and killing the germs of "cold." Then it soothes and heals the irritated parts, stopping the tendency to cough almost instantly. There are no habit forming drugs in Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. Mostly nothing but real old-time pine-tar and delicious honey, scientifically blended with sassafras, rhubarb and a few other such things.

Made by a known scientific process with contents shown on the bottle. The standard for 20 years. The largest selling cough and cold medicine in the world, because the best.

You need Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey right now and you ought to keep a bottle of it in your house always.

Children love the taste of it and it can't hurt them.

Take a little every time you sneeze, shiver, "sniffle" or feel "full in the head."

CONFER WITH THE MAYOR

New Executive Busy Planning Administration and Considering Appointments.

Dr. M. B. Cullum, who yesterday entered the mayor's chair after an absence of two years, is busy consulting with prominent Democratic leaders and several informal meetings have been held since the election, to take up various matters confronting the new administration. The situation in Duluth is regarded as being rather critical in some ways, and considerable thought is being devoted to the several phases in order that no serious mistake may be made at the outset.

Those in the confidence of the administration are not doing any talking. They are keeping what they hear to themselves. Considerable curiosity is being manifested as to the policies that will be followed, and a few of the appointments which will be made, but as yet it appears that no one outside the very innermost circle, has been able to get a definite line upon them.

A petition which is getting many signers is being circulated for the retention of Chief Troyer. It was started by a well known member of the board of trade, and before it is closed it will probably go through a large part of the city.

Little doubt is expressed but that Chief Troyer will remain as the head of the department. In quarters where it was stated with much confidence immediately after the election that he would be let out, it is now thought that he will hold over.

The question will likely be put up in the same manner as it was some years ago, when certain people tried to get the scalp of another police officer. Much pressure was brought to bear, many different allegations being made as reasons. The matter was brought to a head with an invitation for those demanding his discharge to bring any charges they had against him to the mayor. The understanding was that if good grounds for his removal could be shown he would be decapitated but when the time arrived there was nothing doing. If anything can be shown against the record of Chief Troyer warranting his discharge, it is said that he will be a plain citizen in a short time, but if not, that he will stay where he is.

The health commissioner is still in doubt. There is no abatement of the pressure to retain Dr. F. J. Patton, but at the same time the candidacy of several Democrats is being urged. Among those mentioned have been Dr. D. D. Murray, the former incumbent, Dr. Webster of Lakeside, Dr. Jern, Democratic candidate for county coroner against Dr. McCuen at the last election, and Dr. Oredson of the West end. Dr. Murray and Dr. Webster are mentioned more than the others. Dr. Murray was in the office four years and established a favorable record, giving a good administration.

It is now stated that O. G. Olson may reconsider his decision to refuse another appointment as a member of the board of public works. The Democrats are not at all pleased with the idea of having two absolutely new men in the place, with the third man having but one year's experience. Mr. Olson has been strongly urged to accept the appointment, and it is thought he will do so, remaining in the office part of the term of three years at least.

SPINA BOBS UP ONCE MORE

The troubles of Spina have bobbed up again.

The residents will seemingly not be content until they have their village incorporated.

The fight has been on for some time before the county commissioners, who refused to approve the petition, and the latest step was taken this morning when Judge Cant ordered the commissioners to approve the petition or show cause in court at a special term to be held March 12, why they should not.

The action is entitled: "Fred Erickson against the St. Louis county commissioners," and it names each commissioner.

Erickson, who is a resident of Spina, and who with many others signed the original petition which was turned down by the commissioners, some time ago applied to the court that a writ of mandamus issue commanding the commissioners to approve the petition and cause notice of the holding of an election to be posted.

The villagers claim that on Jan. 4, 1910, they presented to the county commissioners the petition which was drawn up in due form and it was turned down, they claim.

In his ruling handed down this morning, Judge Cant says that the petition was turned down without apparent reason. eH says the commissioners had no legal right to refuse parent reason. He says the commissioners had no legal right to refuse parent reason. He says the commissioners had no legal right to refuse to be posted, or appear in court and show cause.

GOOD TONE TO COPPER MARKET

Today's market was of old-time proportions, from a bullish standpoint.

It resembled those halycon days of last August, when a market was no market at all unless the leaders advanced from 2 to 3 points, with the specialties hitting the high spots.

It appeared that in the morning the professionals sold stocks short, and that covering helped the market toward midday. This induced a buying movement that carried the entire list forward. The public didn't participate to any great extent. The first liquidation may sweep the foundation from under values, and prices probably will ease off considerably. But that does not concern today's market, which was a hummer. The activity was entirely speculative. It seemed that the longs, after a few days' idleness, were testing the strength of the shorts.

"Butte-Alex Scott has made the biggest strike ever made on the Butte hill," said Martin Rosendahl on his return from Butte today. Mr. Rosendahl was accompanied on a visit to the Butte-Alex Scott property by N. F. Hugo, William J. Bates and A. J. Perrin.

"The strike is the biggest of the kind ever known in the camp," continued Mr. Rosendahl. "The vein is twenty feet wide in general and wider in places and is rich in bornite and chalco-pyrite. It is on the 1,400-foot level and the big strike was made in the drift, sixty-five feet from the shaft. The vein is so rich that a man can stope down thousands of dollars' worth in a few hours. All the other veins are mere sprinklings compared with the one just struck. This is no dream. It's a beautiful certainty."

The surface plant of the Keating Gold Mining company in the Radersburg district of Montana will be in operation about the last of this month. The new machinery includes an electric hoist and an air compressor. High-grade ore is now being mined. Ten cars recently sent to a reduction works gave an average net return of $10,000.

GOVERNOR WILL SPEAK IN DULUTH

Governor A. O. Eberhart will arrive in Duluth this evening to be the principal speaker at the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the Luther League of the First Swedish Lutheran church, Sixth avenue east and Third street. "The Church and Citizenship" will be his subject.

After his arrival on the 7 o'clock Northern Pacific train, he will be driven to the residence of Rev. Carl Solomonson, pastor of the congregation, who will entertain the governor at dinner this evening. Gov. Eberhart and Mr. Solomonson were former schoolmates at Gustavus Adolphus college and close friends during their school days.

The exercises at the church this evening will commence at 8 o'clock. Watson S. Moore will preside. Among the other numbers on the program are a solo by Frof. Emil Swenson of the Pilgrim Lutheran church of Superior and selections by the choir of the First Swedish church.

CHILD EATS POISON INTENDED FOR RATS

Grand Forks, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Iva Lou Craver, aged 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Craver of this city, who up to last summer resided at Renville, Minn., died last night at 12 o'clock from eating Rough on Rats.

The child had obtained the poison at the home of a neighbor licking it from a piece of bread while alone in the kitchen. She lived seven hours after eating the poison. The family is in poor circumstances at present, Mr. Craver having been sick all winter on account of an operation.

Houghton, Mich., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two large business blocks were destroyed by fire this morning at Greenland, Ontonagon county, near here. The loss is from $25,000 to $30,000, partially covered by insurance. This covered the main buildings of the town.

TO STRAIGHTEN MATTERS UP

"I came back to straighten things up," said Malcolmn Stewart, the young man wanted on a charge of embezzlement from the Universal Milling company. Stewart arrived in Duluth today with Sheriff Bates, who brought him from Butte, Mont. Stewart will not talk much and he seems to regard the whole matetr as a joke. He is the man who jumped through a car window and escaped from Sheriff Bates when he was being brought to Duluth from Minneapolis a year ago last fall. He was recently arrested in Butte and held for the Duluth authorities.

Deputy Sheriff Michael Horgan also arrived here today with John Rapson, who is wanted at Virginia for the alleged embezzlement of funds from the White Sewing Machine company, by which he was employed.

HAD TRIP IN AEROPLANE

"Andy" Perrin, general agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, returned today from a trip through the cities of the West.

During his trip, Mr. Perrin visited Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Butte and many other cities on the coast and this side of the Rocky mountains.

While in Los Angeles Mr. Perrin tried the flying machine game, being invited to ride in a machine owned by one of the entrants in the recent Los Angeles tournament. Mr. Perrin stated that it didn't seem so bad when the machine was skimming over the open country, but when it cut through a section of the city and sailed over buildings, the full dangers of the sport were realized by him.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

ROLLS INTO FIRST PLACE

A Madison, Wis., Bowler Leads Individuals at Detroit Tournament.

Greater Bellevilles of Belleville, Ill., Do Best Five-Man Work.

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—A new leader in the individuals and no change in the holders of first place in the two-man and five-man events were the results of the fourth day of the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress.

George Oakey of Madison, Wis., rolled into first place in the singles with 642.

The best work of yesterday in the five-man event was done by the Greater Bellevilles of Belleville, Ill., with 2,689, which put them in third place. The Krumpers of Cleveland rolled 2,658 and are in temporary possession of fourth place.

Oakey leaped into prominence by virtue of a 237-game for his third effort after gathering 193 and 212. His average for three games, 214, is the best recorded thus far in the tournament. Oakey is a member of the Colonials of Madison, who rolled into the lead of the five-man event last night with 2,803.

Scherer and Huster of Erie, Pa., shot 1,145, the best total of the day in the two-man event and went into second place.

LOS ANGELES IS AFTER THE FIGHT

One Capitalist Offers to Put Up $100,000 of the Guarantee.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 2.—Richard Ferris, who managed the recent aviation meet here, yesterday sent the following telegram to Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason.

"Will you consider legitimate proposition to bring the Jeffries-Johnson fight to Los Angeles if guaranteed $150,000. Answer."

Ferris says one local capitalist is ready to put up $100,000.

Ferris' offer is to pay Gleason and Rickard $150,000 for the contracts with Jeffries and Johnson, which involves them in the sum of $101,000, and also to assume all additional indebtedness incident to the holding of the fight in Los Angeles. Ferris also asks for one-third interest in the moving pictures held by Gleason and Rickard.

BEERS WINS SECOND.

Takes Pool Contest From Mike David By Clever Playing.

Ed Beers won the second game of the city pool championship series last evening, defeating Mike David the title holder, by the score of 243 to 158, the score of last evening making Beer's total for the two games 400. Beers ended the contest by an unfinished run of 32, and his play throughout the second game was fine. Beers made runs of 38, 29, 26 and 17. David made runs of 36, 26, 14 and 11.

The contest will be completed by two games a day, 100 balls being played in the afternoon and 100 in the evening.

Championship Game.

On the Adams rink in the West end this evening, the championship of the City Amateur Hockey league will be decided between the Adams and Big Duluths. Each team has won one game of the post season deciding series, so that the winner of the game tonight will be entitled to the city title.

THE NEW BANTAMWEIGHT CHAMPION OF THE WORLD

FRANKIE CONLEY.

Frankie Conley of Kenosha, Wis., now claims the bantamweight championship of the world. He defeated Monte Attell at San Francisco on Washington's birthday, knocking him out in the forty-second round. The fight was scheduled for forty-five rounds.

PIRATES SIGN HARRY CAMNITZ

Brother of Howard Will Get Try Out With World's Champions.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 2.—Another signed contract has been received at the headquarters of the Pittsburg team of the National league. Harry Camnitz, a pitcher who was taken from the McKeesport team of the Ohio and Pennsylvania league, has attached his autograph to the document. He is a brother of Howard Camnitz, the pitcher who is still with the holdouts.

Others who have received contracts, but have not yet signed them, are Hans Wagner and Frank Dobson, infielders; Sam Leever and Lefty Leifield, pitchers.

CARL ALROTH HOME.

Crack Amateur Skater Made Excellent Showing at St. Louis.

Carl Alroth, Duluth's crack amateur skater who won honors in the indoor ice events at St. Louis and who made a great showing in the Milwaukee event, has returned to the city, having resumed his position with the Oak Hall Clothing company.

Never has a Duluth skater made such a good showing as that made by Alroth. By his record he has shown that he is in the same class with Lamy, probably the fastest amateur skater in this country. His showing at St. Louis was the most brilliant of any of the skaters attending the meet, and he made a clean sweep of the events in which he was entered.

Loses Handicap Match.

Calumet, Mich., March 2.—Zbyszko last night lost a handicap match to Karl Lehto, Finish champion. Zbyszko agreed to throw Lehto twice in an hour but did not get a fall in that time.

GEORGE GANO IS SOLD TO SAVAGE

Minneapolis Stock Food Man Pays $30,000 for the Famous Trotter.

Lexington, Ky., March 2.—George Gano, 2:03¾, the famous trotter, was sold yesterday by C. D. Tinsman, Baton Pardee and S. W. Gleason of Pennsylvania to M. W. Savage of Minneapolis for $30,000.

The horse is now at Macon, Ga., and will be delivered to Mr. Savage Sept. 1. George Gano was champion money winner of harness horses in 1909 and is by Gambette Wilkes out of Credelion.

A NEW RECORD IS ESTABLISHED

Thor Johansen, Swedish Runner, Goes Marathon Distance in 2:36:55 1-8.

New York, March 2.—Thor Johansen, the Swedish professional runner, established a new indoor Marathon record in the Sixty-ninth Regiment armory last night by going the full distance 26 miles, 385 yards in 2:36:55⅛ over a ten-lap track. Dorando's best time made at Madison Square Garden was 2:44:55 1-5.

The Swede in his magnificient race defeated Jim Crowley, a former amateur, and Hans Holmer of Quebec. The killing pace forced Holmer out after twenty miles and from then on Johansen simply romped away from Crowley to victory.

May Turn Professionals.

New York, March 2—Announcement was made last night that Melvin W. Sheppard of the Irish-American Athletic club and Harry Gissing of the New York Athletic club, will sail for England early in April to remain abroad all summer to compete in foreign track events. It is said they may turn professionals.

Leave on Spring Trips.

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—The St. Louis American league team left last night for Houston, Tex., for spring practice. The party numbered thirty-nine. George Stone, the veteran outfielder, and Olson, an infielder, are among the holdouts.

SUPERIOR TEAMS LOSE

Central High School Quint Wins Easily From Nelson Dewey.

Y. M. C. A. Team Defeats Cooper Alumni By One-Sided Score.

Four basket ball contests were decided yesterday afternoon and last evening in the city. Central high school secured a full measure of revenge by defeating Nelson Dewey high school of Superior by a score of 49 to 25; the sophomores defeated the freshmen in the afternoon; the first team of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the Cooper alumni of Superior, and the second team of the local institution went down to defeat to the second team of the Superior school.

Earlier in the season the Duluth Central high school was defeated by Nelson Dewey by the aggravating margin of one score. The contest was a very hearbreaking one to lose, and the local high school quint has been looking for revenge. The opportunity came last evening.

In both halves of the game, which was played at the boys' department gymnasium, the Central team showed its superiority over the Nelson Dewey five. The local team led in the first period, and only once during the game did it look as if the visitors were dangerous. Harry Conley, guard on the visiting high school team, threw four baskets shortly after the second half opened, sending chills of apprehension down the spines of the loyal Central supporters.

The local team excelled both in team and individual play. Waldron and Harris each threw eight baskets, while the speed of the Central boys and the team work was above that of the Superior team.

The result of the game of last evening gives the Centrals an excellent chance to win the championship of Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, as the team is playing a very fast game at the present time.

The score at the end of the first half was 36 to 10, in favor of Duluth. Superior braced up in the second half. Russell Jordan was laid out by being shoved against a brick wall, and at certain times of the game roughness stood out prominently.

Larry Boyle was shifted to forward near the close of the game and shot two baskets in quick succession.

The lineup and score:

Duluth.	Position.	Nelson-Dewey.
Harris	f	A. Connelly
Johnson	f	Ray Jordan
Waldron	c	Lundgren
Boyle	g	H. Connelly
Solheim	g	Jordahl

Bjork

Referee and umpire—Schofield and Wallace. Goals from field—Waldron 8, Harris 8, Johnson 3, Solheim 1, Boyle 2, H. Connelly 5, Ray Jordan 3, Russell Jordan 2.

The Cooper Alumni team was defeated by the score of 36 to 14 by the first team of the Y. M. C. A. The local quint proved too fast for the team from across the bay, and at no time during the game was the result of the contest in doubt. The Y. M. C. A. five showed improved teamwork and the members of the team shot with more accuracy than the visitors.

Peters was the star of the local team. Slack also played a good game. Erickson put up the best game for the visitors. The game was played in the big gymnasium of the association, and was witnessed by a large crowd.

The line up:

First Teams.
Y. M. C. A.	Position	Cooper
Peters	f	Olson
O'Donnell	f	Cook
Forgette	c	Erickson
McLean	g	Stein
Slack	g	Berg

The second team of the association met with a reverse in the contest with the second team of Cooper Alumni. The game was close throughout, the Superior finally winning out by the score of 16 to 12. Johnson and Lathrop were the stars of the second game, Anderson's work standing out for the visitors.

The lineup:

Second Teams.
Y. M. C. A.		Cooper.
Dorworth, Clark	c	Haskell
G. Johnson	f	Campbell
W. Johnson, Bethune	c	Anderson
Lathrop	g	Billis
Dunning, Glass	g	Waseen, Oslond

Skelton and Bushnell were the officials in both games.

• • •

The sophomores won the game played at the boys' department in the afternoon. The second year men scored fourteen baskets, while the freshies were caging eleven. The contest was slow, Mars being the only player who could make baskets with any degree of accuracy. Harris played the best game for the freshmen, while Mars and Jeronimus showed class for the winners.

The lineup:

Freshmen		Sophomores.
Harris	f	Osman
Kerns	f	Cook
Brown	c	Mars
Huttle	g	Jeronimus
Lawrence	g	St. Clair

Officials—Wallace and Batchelor.

NEW RULES TO COVER POST-SEASON SERIES.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 2.—Only players and teams contesting in the world's championship series will hereafter be awarded pennants and emblems by the National baseball commission, according to an announcement made by that body, late yesterday. Hitherto, all series between National and American league teams under the auspices of the commission have been so noticed.

The division of receipts from these bye-series, is hereafter to be made upon the same basis as the world's series, instead of allowing the interested clubs to divide the money as they may see fit.

At the instance of President Murphy of the Chicago National club, a change was made in the drafting rules by which minor league clubs are given five days in which to accept or reject offers of the return of a drafted player when the player is about to be disposed of to a minor league of the same class.

The application of William Dwyer, a first baseman to be declared a free agent because of reported purchases and releases of his contract between the Chicago Americans and the Des Moines leagues, was rejected. Dwyer claimed that he was being "covered up," but the commission held that the testimony was against this contention.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE)

Along about this time of the year the condition of a great pitcher's arm becomes a matter of worry for a maanger. In planning his campaign for the coming season, it would be interesting to know just how much Hughey Jennings was depending on William Donovan, or "Wild Bill," as he is better known by thousands of followers of the game.

A "masseur" is at the present time working on the salary wing of the genial hurler. Last year Donovan was of little use to the Tigers until the fag end of the series. He was used in only one of the games against Pittsburg, for the simple reason that the once great heaver could not stand the strain of working in more than one game.

Donovan has signed his contract and the mildness with which he came into the Tiger bungalow would indicate that the figures called for a nice sum and that William will not be one of the keen students of the increased cost of living.

The officials of the Detroit club evidently believe the smiling one will be there in the efficiency front row the coming season. But it is very doubtful if Donovan was offered a contract that called for longer than one year. He is lucky if he didn't get reduced from the position as one of the prominent American league salary drawers.

Donovan has been pitching for quite a few years and his best years have passed. His arm has been very rebellious these late seasons. He is trying to humor it for another season's work. Dr. Harvey Parker, who used to be a baseball player, says the case is serious. He has promised nothing.

If Jennings can't "count on "Wild Bill" he may be hard hit in the early part of the race. It was the great work of George Mullin that gave the Tigers the lead in the early part of last season's pennant hunt. If Donovan gets away bad, he is very likely to have a disastrous season. Jennings has every reason in the world to feel nervous.

Another "champion wrestler" has fallen before the prowess of Frank Gotch. Jim Esson, the Scottish champion, was the man made to feel what it means to grapple with a man who always does something just a little before you do it, and does it is an infinitely superior manner.

The Scotchman really thought he had a chance with the Humboldt man. He was so serious and put so much Scotch stubbornness into his argument, that he made some of his followers of wrestling believe that he would give Gotch a lot of trouble.

Gotch had little trouble in beating the braw lad, and now the students are wondering just what chance Zbyszko has with the man who has revolutionized the mat game.

There is really little left to write about Gotch. It is only necessary to say that there has never been another wrestler like the former Iowa farmer and it is generally believed that Gotch could have beaten Muldoon and Whistler, former great American mat exponents, in the same ring.

Unless age and natural overstrain impair the great ability of the Iowan, it is probable that they will continue searching in vain the world over for a man who can force the Gotch shoulders to the mat.

Honey Mellody won from Young Jack Johnson in twelve rounds at Brocton, Mass. Mellody had been out of the ring for some time, too. Can you see the point? Here, indeed, is some cause for encouragement for those superstitious ones who are watching for favorable signs in the case of Mr. Jeffries.

A sport writer tells that Battling Nelson will endeavor to force Ad Wolgast into another battle. Any impartial critic reading carefully the account of the fight would naturally think that Wolgast would be the man to do the forcing in the case.

Battling Nelson has decided that it is necessary to go to Hegewisch and cheer up the hearts of the downhearted populace. Pat missed a very good chance to cheer a week ago.

It is said that the new rules make the umpire's duty clear. In times past it would seem that it was the ump's duty to run, if he had a family dependent upon him.

Tonsolitis Tommy Ryan has decided to re-enter the ring. Here is another case where Dr. Osler will receive a rude slap on the wrist.

They are planning to abolish football in Iowa. It might be a very good thing for the reputation of the state schools, for Iowa has not won a game since Minnesota thumped her gloriously in 1902.

Cyclone Johnny Thompson is so sure that he will beat Battling Nelson that he has invited his parents to be present to witness the trick. It would be a mean trick for Johnny to fall down on the old folks at the last moment.

MALLOY WILL BE MANAGER

Former La Crosse Outfielder Will Lead Red Wing Team.

At a meeting last night of the directors of the Red Wing Baseball club at Red Wing, Mike Malloy, last season left fielder for the La Crosse team, was elected as manager of the Red Wing team.

It is said that Malloy will go on the job immediately and will begin to line up players for the new club.

Malloy is a good player, and has been known throughout the league to be a man who used his brains in playing the game. It was probably this qualification that won him his present berth.

IMPROVEMENTS AT ATHLETIC PARK

Grandstand and Fence Will Be Repaired This Year.

Work on the improvement of the grandstand at Athletic park will be started as soon as the weather will permit, according to the statement by Manager A. W. Kuehnow. The sanitary conditions of the stand will be improved and several alterations and improvements will be made in the seating arrangements.

The fence will be repaired and whitewashed, and the general appearance of the grounds altered.

Two uniforms will be worn by the White Sox the present season. As befitting pennant winners, and also due to the added importance that the league will have with its expansion into an eight-club affair, it has been decided that the Sox will have a gray uniform while playing at home, and will attempt to win games away from home in blue baseball attire.

Manager Kuehnow stated that Duluth would be willing to dispose of some of the players that would not be used by the team, to either Red Wing or Rochester, or both of the new league representatives, should either of the teams find it difficult to secure promising playing material.

Duluth has signed enough players to compose three teams, and it is very probable that some of these players will be seen with either of the two teams, which, being organized late in the season, may find it difficult to secure sufficient players.

JOHN D. JR., RESIGNS STEEL TRUST SEAT.

New York, March 2.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has resigned as a director of the United States Steel corporation and is succeeded by Henry Walters of Baltimore, chairman of the Louisville & Nashville and Atlantic Coast line system of railroads and a close friend of J. P. Morgan. Mr. Rockefeller stated that the only reason for his resignation is that the holding of stock in the company by the members of his family is not sufficiently large to justify his giving any time or attention to the affairs of the corporation.

SAY SHEPPARD IS INNOCENT

Claim Man Who Killed Himself Was Assailant of Moorhead Girl.

Fargo, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Is Frank Sheppard, the negro boy held for assault on Miss Erickson of Moorhead innocent? is a question the police are endeavoring to solve. George W. Nordby, who killed himself last Saturday, had mailed a letter to the chief of police of Moorhead which indicates he was the assailant of the girl and killed himself through remorse or fear. His letter is so rambling that it is far from conclusive. Sheppard's friends contend that it means a complete exculpation of the prisoner.

THEIR NEW ADDRESSES

Fairbanks in London.

London, March 2.—Charles W. Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks have arrived for a fortnight's visit in London. many entertainments have been arranged for them.

Morgan in Naples.

Naples, March 2.—J. P. Morgan, the American financier, has arrived here on the steamer Cedric. He appears to be in good health.

Santiago, Chile, March 2.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook and his wife have left here for Buenos Ayres.

LANDS TO BE OPENED FOR EARLY SETTLEMENT.

Washington, March 2.—The general land office is clearing up the lists of allotted lands in the vicinity of Deer River and Cass Lake, with a view to opening for homestead entry the latter part of this month about 40,000 acres of agricultural lands. These lands were formerly embraced in the federal forest reserve but were released under terms of a bill which Senator Clapp had passed. It is said that there will be about 250 good farms created out of the tract to be opened.

DAVENPORT'S WIFE IS GRANTED A DIVORCE.

New York, March 2.—A decree of separation was granted in the supreme court here yesterday to Mrs. Daisy B. Davenport from Homer C. Davenport, the well-known cartoonist. The decree, which was granted by mutual agreement of the two parties, gives Mrs. Davenport the custody of the couple's three children and $400 a month alimony.

Improving Warrond Harbor.

Washington, March 2.—For improving the harbor on Rainy Lake at Warroad, Minn., Senator Nelson has introduced a bill appropriating $7,700. Chief Engineer Marshall has approved a report for an improvement contemplating the enlarging of the harbor basin so as to make it possible for at least a dozen vessels to anchor there in time of storm. The landings are also to be extended.

Only Gloved Hands Pick "Sunkist" Oranges

We use great care in picking the famous "SUNKIST" ORANGES.

Each "SUNKIST" ORANGE is picked from the tree and packed in the box by a gloved hand. No orange that falls to the ground is packed under the "SUNKIST" label.

"Sunkist" Navel Oranges Are Seedless

We grow 60 per cent of all the California oranges. Three-fourths of all the lemons. Most of them are sold in bulk, but the choicest selections of this great quantity are wrapped in the "SUNKIST" label, so that if you would be sure that you get the choicest pick, insist upon the "SUNKIST."

Beautiful Orange Spoon FREE

Some dealers may claim the oranges they sell are the famous "SUNKIST," but that they removed the wrapper. Insist on your dealer giving you oranges and lemons in the "SUNKIST" wrapper. If you do this we will give you a beautiful orange spoon—one of Rogers' best standard AA quality. Just send us twelve "SUNKIST" orange or lemon wrappers, with six 2c stamps to pay postage, packing, etc., and receive one of these beautiful spoons by return mail.

The choicest quality of lemons also go under the "SUNKIST" label. You can easily secure a whole dozen of these beautiful orange spoons. Get a dozen "SUNKIST" oranges or lemons today.

S.S.S.
CURES BLOOD POISON

The only way to cure Contagious Blood Poison is to REMOVE its cause. Trying to kill the germs within the system, or counteract disease cells in the blood with powerful mineral medicines, not only results in failure, but also weakens the more delicate and vital tissues, and allows the original trouble to attack other portions of the body.

It is solely on the principle of removing the cause by purifying the blood, that S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison, and it does this because it is the most perfect and thorough of all blood remedies. It does not work on the principle of killing one poison by taking another, or trying to dry up the germs in the blood, but it cleanses the circulation and REMOVES the last vestige of the contagious infection.

Contagious Blood Poison is the most insidious of all diseases. It begins in an insignificant manner, usually the appearance of a tiny pimple or sore being the only outward evidence of its presence. But down in the blood the treacherous infection is at work, and in a short time the victim finds his body is affected from head to foot. The mouth and throat ulcerate, skin eruptions break out, sores and ulcers appear on the body, yellow splotches disfigure the skin, the glands in the groin and neck swell, and as the poison becomes more thoroughly saturated into the blood the hair and eyebrows come out.

Contagious Blood Poison is too dangerous to trifle with. Medicines which merely check the progress of the poison for a time and leave the insidious germs smouldering in the blood, have brought misery and disappointment to thousands. Faithfully they took such treatment for months, perhaps years, only to find when it was left off that the vicious disease was ready to crop out again in all its former destructiveness.

COVERED WITH SORES.

I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do me no good I had spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S.S.S. I was greatly improved, and was delighted with the result. The large red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger and my appetite greatly improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass. H. L. MEYERS.
58 Clinton St., Newark, N. J.

The only possible way to cure Contagious Blood Poison is to remove the cause. This is just what S. S. S. does; and it is the one medicine that absolutely and thoroughly cleanses the blood of every trace of germs and virus of the disease. S. S. S. goes into the circulation, and while removing the cause makes the blood pure, fresh and healthy. This causes a general upbuilding of the entire system, and when S. S. S. has made a cure the patient experiences a change to vigorous, robust health.

S. S. S. is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks. It does not contain the slightest particle of Mercury, Potash or any other mineral substance to upset the stomach, affect the bowels, or inflame any of the delicate membranes of the body. On the other hand, it is a fine tonic, made of botanical ingredients that aid the system in every way to overcome the effects of Contagious Blood Poison. We have a book on Home Treatment which we will send, together with any medical advice free to all.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Market Closes Fractionally Lower After Sagging Throughout Session.

Flax Market Dull But Firm With Light Offerings.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 2.—Wheat declined at the close today on liquidation after an upturn at mid-day had carried values back to the opening. The bulge around noon was caused by a buying movement in Chicago July. The market, although stubborn, could not resist the pressure of profit taking which later forced it downward. May wheat opened fairly firm with offerings at $1.14⅞ and the option sold at $1.14⅝ then up ⅛c and down to $1.14⅜ and up to $1.14⅞@1.15, the high quotation for the day and down to $1.14⅜ and then at $1.14¼@1.14⅜, closing at $1.14⅜. The July option opened with offers at $1.14¾, sold at $1.14⅝ and up ⅛c and then slumped toward the close to $1.-14⅛, closing at that price.

The flax market was dull. Offerings were light and were quickly absorbed. May opened at $2.17 bid, gained ½c and then sold at $2.18, lost ½c and closed $2.17½ bid. The September option was not traded in at the opening. It closed at $1.70⅛ after offers had been made at $1.71.

Rye and barley were unchanged from yesterday. Oats closed ¼c off and cash wheat was ½c over the near option. May durum and July each closed 1c off.

In a stubborn market, wheat declined from the opening on scattered liquidation, but toward midday values firmed and the market regained the opening level on buying, chiefly in July and some covering by shorts. Crop damage reports caused considerable outside business.

Cables were lower but the American markets are not affected by the foreign situation, and the opening here was about on a level with yesterday's close. The profit taking which caused yesterday's decline continued, but in smaller lots. The trade was light and offerings were scarce. Shorts were afraid to express their convictions, if they had any, and traders hesitated to sell a market that in its strained condition was subject to the influence of the slightest buying either way. The crowd trailed along and when speculative interests began acquiring July around midday the professional element lost no time in following, although commitments were light.

There is no sustained long interest in the market, which remains a scalping affair, subject to nervous fluctuations and extremely sensitive to such influences as the crop scare reports which are pouring in from the West and Southwest. May is oversold and is susceptible to congestion. July is a weather proposition and as long as so many crop damage reports continue to come in at a time when values are high with a tendency toward buoyancy, the scare reports cannot be overlooked or ignored. The short interest in May is considerably reduced and the long interest in July is heavy. Half of the contract stock has been shipped out of Chicago, which increases the bullishness of that market's technical position. As other markets are trailing Chicago, the situation elsewhere is correspondingly tighter. With buying orders accompanying crop scare reports there is little disposition on the part of traders to fight any prospective advance in July.

The mills control practically all of the available wheat and so far as old wheat is concerned they are in a position to dictate prices. The milling demand is slack, although an improvement is looked for. A small Minneapolis mill was reopened today, leaving about ten still closed. Two others will probably be opened tomorrow. The eastern car shortage is more serious than ever and the congested transportation situation is not improving. Minneapolis has shipped more than 3,100,000 barrels of flour since Jan. 1, or about 1,000,000 barrels more than for the same period last year. The mills, it is said, will soon begin turning out flour to take care of stocks at the Head of the Lakes, preparatory to the opening of navigation.

The foreign situation was weaker and there is no export business from here. The Buenos Aires future market is depressed. World's shipments continue liberal.

The farmer is not marketing as much stuff as a few weeks ago and receipts show a big falling off.

According to the estimate of the Kansas City Star the farm reserves of wheat March 1 were 183,000,000 bu, 40,000,000 bu greater than the government's official report at this time last year. The government's report for this year will be issued next week.

George B. Ellis, secretary of the Missouri state board of agriculture, says that there has been considerable damage to wheat in Southwestern and Western Missouri and Eastern Kansas. Most of the damage, he said, has been done by upheaving. Some fields, he thinks, have been damaged as much as 25 per cent.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—"Wheat market had an irregular opening, with March unchanged and the distant months off ⅛@¼d. Following the opening and during the entire morning March was well supported, with offerings light and prices advanced ¼d, due to the fact of there being no tenders on contract. The distant months after the opening lost an additional ⅛@¼d, with the undertone heavy. Selling was in the way of profit-taking by recent purchases due to weakness in the Buenos Ayres future market and larger cargoes offering. It is the belief that supplies in the future will be liberal. The market at midday was irregular, with March ¼d higher and May and July ⅝d lower than yesterday. Corn was unchanged, with the market neglected. Russian market mild with copious rains."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Open Easier and Commission Sales Are Made.

Chicago, March 2.—Wheat prices were easier in the early trading today, opening a shade to ⅝c lower all around. Scattered commission selling was the principal feature in the first hour, and prices sank slightly below the opening level. May declined from $1.14⅞ to $1.14½. In spite of the easy tone, there was a strong undercurrent of bullish sentiment, and more crop damage reports from the Southwest. May opened a shade to ¼@⅜c lower at $1.14⅝ to $1.14⅞.

Following a rally induced by additional crop damage reports the market fell off on liberal offerings, and closed weak. May went up to $1.15⅜ on the swell, and fell off to $1.14⅛. The other futures had wider variations. Prices all around hugged the low point at the close, May finishing ⅜c off at $1.14½@1.14⅝.

Corn exhibited more initial firmness than wheat, starting unchanged to ⅛c higher, and in the first hour adding a slight fraction to the early high point. May showed less activity than the distant futures and sold between 65⅝@65¾c and 66c. There was some commission selling. Buyers were scattered. May opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 65⅞c to 66c.

The market later sagged slightly. May moved between 66 and 65¼c. The close was weak near the low point, with May ½c off at 65⅜c.

Oats were quiet and steady throughout the first hour, although prices sagged slightly. May opened a shade to ⅛c lower at 47½@47¼c to 47⅛c and held within that range.

Provisions made another gain in the early trading, July pork outstripping May with a top notch at $25.10, an advance of 22½c. A good market for lard and ribs gave those products an uptilt also. The monthly provisions statement showing light stocks, as well as continued high prices for live hogs, were the bullish factors. Opening prices for May products were: Pork, $25.00; lard, $13.45; ribs, $13.00@12.97½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Rules Easier on Liquidation and News.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 2.—Liquidation made wheat rule easier today. Foreign markets were steady to slightly lower. Local receipts were liberal and cash wheat was weaker. Damage reports continued to pour in from the Southwest. Local elevator stocks of wheat increased 350,000 bu for four days. May opened steady with yesterday's close, and after fluctuating in a range of ¾c, closed ½c lower. July was relatively firm. Minneapolis today received 317 cars of wheat against 279 a year ago; Duluth, 38 cars against 103. 21, and Winnipeg, 79 cars against 103. May opened $1.14¼; high, $1.14⅜; low, $1.12⅝; closed, $1.13¾. July opened $1.14¼; high, $1.14⅜; low, $1.13¾; closed, $1.13¾.

Cash wheat was easier. Offerings were in excess of the supply. Milling demand continued slow and elevator interests were fair buyers. No. 1 northern sold for the even May price to 1½c above and No. 2 northern at a 2c discount below the No. 1 northern. Closing prices on track: No. 1 northern, $1.14@1.15; to arrive, $1.14@1.15; No. 2 northern, $1.12@1.13; to arrive, $1.12@1.13; No. 3 wheat, 1.06@1.11; No. 3 yellow corn, 57¾@58¾c; No. 3 white oats, 45⅛@45⅜c; No. 2 rye, 76¾@77¾c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,726 tons. There was no change in the situation today. Demand was good, offerings fairly liberal and prices unchanged. Bran in 100-lb. sacks, $22.00@22.50.

Dullness continued to feature the flour market. Demand was slow, only occasional sales being made, and these mostly of special brands. Shipments were fairly heavy and prices held firm. The Cotton Market.

New York, March 2.—Cotton opened unchanged to 4 points higher and soon showed a net advance of 5@10 points with near positions relatively firm in response to firm Liverpool cables and covering by yesterday's sellers. Trading was quiet at the start, but offerings increased on the advance and the market during the middle of the morning became more active. Prices eased off on rumors that some of the larger bull interests were taking profits.

Spot closed quiet 15 points higher; middling uplands, 15.00; middling gulf, 15.25. Sales, 1,183 bales. Futures closed steady; March, 14.73; April, 14.71; May, 14.77; June, 14.54; July, 14.51; August, 13.91; September, 13.47; October, 12.59; November, 12.42; December, 12.44.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Heavy Orders for United States Steel One of the Features.

Sustained Strength of the Metals Is Another Bullish Factor.

New York, March 2.—Opening business in stocks today was small and prices generally higher. Erie first preferred advanced 1⅝, National Railways of Mexico first preferred 1¼, Amalgamated Copper 1 and Reading and Colorado Fuel large fractions. Gains otherwise were restricted to small fractions.

Profit taking drove Reading a fraction below yesterday's closing and cancelled nearly all of the advance in Amalgamated Copper. An active demand for the Western railroad stocks, Eastern trunk lines and United States Steel turned the market upwards. Trading became very lively on the rally, and broadened considerably, with prices in general materially above yesterday's final figures. Ann Arbor gained 3½, Erie first preferred 2½, Reading and Wisconsin Central 1½, Pennsylvania and Rock Island 1¼ and Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Pacific Mail, Westinghouse Electric, Railway Steel Spring and American Woolen preferred 1.

United States Steel encountered enormous orders at 84 in the course of its rise. Its aggressive advance through that figure to 84⅝ was influential in rising prices throughout. Conspicuous gains were Reading and Erie second preferred 2, St. Joseph & Grand Island 1; St. Paul preferred 5; New York Air Brake 5¾, Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper 1⅝, Rock Island preferred and Northern Pacific 1¼, National Lead 1⅜, and numerous others a point or more. United States Express declined 4. The demand had time to abate on noon. Bonds were irregular.

Realizing sales reduced Reading about ½ and sent the whole list backwards somewhat, but there was a later hardening all around when United States Steel moved up to 84¾. American Smelting also improved 1⅜. Toledo St. Louis & Western preferred 2; Amalgamated Copper 2¼ and Railway Steel Spring preferred 3.

The market closed firm. Realizing sales weakened the market temporarily, but the sustained strength of the metals revived it. American Sugar lost 1½; Vulcan Detinning preferred rose 5; Western Maryland certificates 1¾ and American Locomotive 1⅝.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

THREW LAMP AT HUSBAND

Battering down two doors of the frame building in the alley between Superior and First streets near Fifth avenue west shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, Patrolmen Wanvick and Connors burst into the room just in time to see Mrs. Louisa Carroll hurl a lighted lamp at Martin Carroll as the climax of a family quarrel. Both are colored and it is claimed that the difficulty started in Superior, where they had been during the evening.

The lamp exploded, but the policemen managed to extinguish the flames before much damage was done. Neither of participants was injured seriously, although from the wild screams which they heard the blue coats thought that some one was being murdered by inches.

The man has a wooden leg, and in court this morning he alleged that his wife started after him with it, after he had retired. This the woman strenuously denied.

"Judge, your honor, he had it on," she declared. "He had it on," she continued in a higher pitch. "He had it on, I don't care what kind of a sentence you give me." She worked herself to the state where she began shedding copious tears.

When he heard the sob squad called into play, Carroll was inclined to take back part of his story. He wasn't sure whether or not he had his wooden leg on, but he was certain that he was disrobed. At all events, he claimed that if he had his wooden leg on, it wasn't laced up and he didn't have the customary strap over his shoulder. The court continued the case until this afternoon for disposition, both having entered pleas of guilty to being disorderly.

The drunk with the most visible cash who has been in the police station for many a day was booked up last night. He was Solomon Kangas, and after his name was entered the fact that he had $260 in cash in his clothes, together with two certificates of deposit for $3,400, was learned. Kangas says that he has saved the money from his earnings and was on his way to a town in Wisconsin from Fresno, Cal. He is 55 years of age and when he admitted that he had "too many on board" he paid a fine of $5. He had most of the money and the certificates sewed up in the lining of his clothes.

Fred Johnson, arrested several days ago for carrying concealed weapons, was discharged in police court yesterday afternoon. He recently lost his wife, and when the police learned that he had been acting queerly with a gun in his possession, they feared that he might take his life.

Ozier Kenville kept Detectives Schultz and Irvine busy all morning looking up people whom he suspected of robbing him of $45 last night. Several men and two women were brought in, but there was no evidence against any of them. The police think he was too drunk to know whether he was robbed or not. He went to sleep in Little Jake's rooming house on the Bowery and was so much intoxicated that he started to undress in the hall, it is claimed.

MARCH TERM IS OPENED

With the call of the calendar this morning by Judge W. A. Cant, the March term of the district court opened.

Sixty-six jury trials and forty-four court proceedings remained for trial after the calendar had been called. Fourteen cases were continued and twelve were stricken from the calendar.

Judge Cant is the presiding judge at this term of the court and the grand jury assembled before him this morning. They were charged and immediately went into session. There are at this session some twenty cases for the consideration of the grand jury, and they are expected to make their first report tomorrow.

The names of the grand jurors are: James McMartin, Oscar Lonegren, D. H. Costello, Edward F. England, Howard E. Elden, Blythe H. Ober, Elmer N. Whyte, W. G. Baldwin, George A. Wieland, Robert B. Whitesides, Douglas C. Moore, Harold Figraeus, A. C. Jones, E. G. Bush, Gust A. Henderson, E. D. Field, James F. Gordon and A. Gilman.

Owing to the discontinuance of the elevator service in the building, pending repairs, everybody this morning walked the many winding flights of stairs up to the fourth floor, where the court rooms are located. The first day of a new term naturally brings many people to the building, and the stairs today were used more than since the building was first occupied. "Almost as bad as climbing to the bar library in the Torrey building," said one attorney.

Within a few days the petit jurors will be summoned, and then the real grind of the March term will begin.

JACOBSON SLAPS AT EBERHART

St. Paul, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—"A good many people are trying to dodge this issue. They say it is too delicate a question to be discussed or that it should be relegated to the consideration of the legislature," said J. P. Jacobson of Madison, Minn., addressing the county option convention today. "They tell us it may create dissension, particularly in the Republican party. But I tell you we are going to talk and fight openly, and win out or go down with our banners waving."

This was one of many slaps that Mr. Jacobson gave Governor Eberhart. The Lac qui Parle man could not get away from the fact that the chief executive had refused to take a definite stand, and time after time he referred to those who are trying to temporize or pass the responsibility on to the legislature.

Again he took a fling at the governor when he said:

"This time the opposition will be unable to nominate a lieutenant governor who will declare he is fair on this question and then give us a temperance committee that will give us one vote out of nine."

RAILROADS

STRIKE NOT EXPECTED

Telegraphic advices received today tell of the great danger of a strike of the engineers and firemen of the systems of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. Locally, according to the opinion of officials of both roads, it is believed the telegraphic reports are somewhat exaggerated.

Both K. M. Nicoles and D. M. Philbin, superintendents of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, respectively, for the Lake Superior districts, are out of the city today. At the Great Northern office it was stated that the firemen of that road are batting today to determine whether they will strike for increased wages. The local Northern Pacific officials could throw no light on the situation.

The information was given out in Supt. Philbin's office that no serious trouble was anticipated by the local officials of the Great Northern. No reason is given for the belief that a pacific settlement of the pending difficulty will be reached, but it is said that there is good ground for believing there would not be serious trouble.

Among the railroad men it is not believed that there will be a strike. It is generally believed that the railroad companies will refuse the requests of the firemen and engineers, but it is doubtful if the men will strike. It is said the railroads will refuse all demands for increased pay and will be prepared to face the consequences. The strike of the switchmen is cited as what may be expected.

There is very little authentic information to be gathered locally. However, it was learned today that the threatened strike includes all the lines west of Chicago, and not merely the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, as was stated in the telegraphic report.

For some reason local railroad men do not look upon the situation as seriously as they might be expected to view a threatened strike of both engineers and firemen. Not a railroad man seen today stated that he believed there would be a strike. They characterized the reports as exaggerated.

BUSY MONTH FOR RAILROADS

The report of the Lake Superior Terminal association for February shows that 27,065 cars were tracked at the local terminals last month. This was against 22,848 cars for the same month a year ago. Manager James Kelly attributes the increased number of cars to the natural increase of business.

He also states that next month will probably be one of the busiest months in the history of the terminal association, for the reason that there will be a large number of cars of steel shipped to Duluth next month. These cars will haul material for the steel plant buildings, and it is expected that there will be in the neighborhood of 1,500 carloads received during the month.

A number of concrete mixers of the latest type have arrived and will be placed in operation at the steel plant site.

Willard Is Manager.

D. E. Willard has been made manager of a bureau of information which has been established by the Northern Pacific railroad at St. Paul. Willard will hold the title of development agent. The object of the new bureau will be to assemble and distribute information regarding the country tributary to the Northern Pacific railroad. Mr. Willard was formerly professor of geology of the state agricultural college of North Dakota.

In Probate Court.
In the Matter of the Estate of Ellen M. Edwards, Decedent.
THE PETITION OF Byron H. Edwards having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that Ellen M. Edwards, then being a resident of the County of Wayne, State of Michigan, died intestate, in the County of Wayne, State of Michigan, on the 6th day of November, 1909, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the son of said decedent, and praying that Letters of Administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to T. F. Upham.
IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this Court at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 28th day of March, 1910, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.
ORDERED FURTHER, That this Order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this Order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., March 2, 1910.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)

BUTTE'S STRIKE MAY BE EXTENDED

Sympathetic Walkout in Behalf of the Engineers Is Forecast.

Butte, Mont., March 2.—An amicable adjustment of the jurisdictional labor controversy in Butte seems rather remote. The negotiations between Matt Comerford, general president of the International Union of Steam Engineers, and the Western Federation of Miners, have come to an end and a general sympathetic strike threatens. Mr. Comerford left for the East yesterday.

As the result of a heated mass meeting of trades unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, a committee of seven, representing each union affiliated with the American Federation employed in and around the mines, will wait upon a meeting of the miners' union in an endeavor to lay the foundation for an amicable adjustment. The committee will report the result of their visit at a mass meeting of members of the various trades unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor tonight.

President Comerford offered an absolute surrender to the Western Federation of Miners, but the officials of the latter declared they would not permit six of the most active engineers in connection with the seceding movement to work in the mines of the Butte under any settlement.

Upon this statement the seceding engineers to a man withdrew their surrender and will continue the fight, with a probability of all American Federation of Labor unions employed at the mines, including machinists, carpenters, blacksmiths, timbermen, ropemen and carmen being drawn into the affair, a sympathetic strike now being in contemplation.

GRAND FORKS ALSO BEATS COMMISSION

Vote Is Against Doing Away With Present Municipal System.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Imperfections in the present municipal commission law were blamed for the defeat of the movement in a special election held here yesterday, the vote being 506 against and 459 for the plan.

The forces favorable to the adoption of the plan have been at work for a long time. Only last Friday steps were taken by those opposed to the adoption of the plan to bring about its defeat, and they only held one mass meeting for the discussion of the subject.

Grand Forks is the second North Dakota city to vote on the plan that rejected it. Some time ago Fargo turned it down. Mandan, Bismarck and Minot adopted it, and Valley City and Dickinson will vote on it within a short time.

Under the present law, such features as the recall, initiative and referendum and a few others are lacking, and this was the reason the voters of Grand Forks rejected it.

Three wards of the city were favorable to the plan, while the other four were opposed to it. The vote by wards follows: First—Yeas, 95; nays, 90. Second—Yeas, 58; nays, 61. Third—Yeas, 26; nays, 46. Fourth—Yeas, 30; nays, 72. Fifth—Yeas, 92; nays, 80. Sixth—Yeas, 89; nays, 85. Seventh—Yeas, 68; nays, 72.

BALLINGER AND PINCHOT COMING

Both are Sure to Attend Conservation Congress at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unqualified indorsement of the Minnesota Conservation and Agricultural Development congress to be held in the St. Paul auditorium, March 16 to 19, is given by Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester for the federal government, in a letter addressed to Governor Eberhart relative to the famous conservationist's address on forestry to be delivered March 19.

"It seems to me," declares Mr. Pinchot, "the Minnesota state conservation meeting is one of the most important events in recent years, as setting an example for conservation for all other states along so high a plane that it will be difficult to surpass it much in the future." Mr. Pinchot adds that nothing but a demand will prevent his attendance at Minnesota's first big gathering of conservationists, and if they make it. Mr. Pinchot says he will ask them to let him off.

"While there is every reason to believe that the senate investigating committee will have finished with the examination of the former chief forester several days before the date of his appearance in St. Paul, Governor Eberhart has received assurance from Washington, that if it should happen that this examination has not been concluded by March 19, some arrangement will be made permitting Mr. Pinchot to attend the conservation congress anyway.

In the same mail with the letter from Mr. Pinchot came one from Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, in which he refers to his address before the congress, announced for March 16, and requests that the title be changed from "National Conservation and the Obligations and Opportunities of the States," to "The Public Domain and the National Obligations and Opportunities Regarding Its Disposition," in view of the address he had prepared for the occasion.

NO HOPE FOR THOSE BURIED UNDER SNOW IN WRECK OF TRAINS

Death List Is Said to Be Sure to Reach Total of Eighty-Four.

Reports That Fresh Avalanche Has Buried Rescuers Is Discredited.

Great Northern Gives List of Victims in Disaster in Rockies.

Everett, Wash., March 3.—Railroad men who have been at the scene of the Wellington avalanche said today that the rescue of any of the persons reported missing would be a miracle, and that the entire number are almost certainly dead, making the total 84.

The report that another slide had descended upon the workers is discredited here, where word would have been received if such a catastrophe had occurred.

The difficulties of getting news are not decreased today. The snow is melting and the mountains are in tumult, with snow, rocks, trees and earth rolling and plunging down the steep places.

It is hoped to have the telegraph line to Scenic Hot Springs restored today.

No Direct Reports Yet.

More than forty-eight hours have passed since the thunders of the high Cascades wrote a new story of the danger of winter travel through the winding mountain passes. In that time no detailed account has been received of what happened when the Spokane ex-

SIX WHO SOUGHT HELP ARE LOST

Men Who Went for Aid for Wrecked Boat Are Still Missing.

Seattle, Wash., March 3.—All hope for the safety of the six men, who started out in an open boat to seek help for the wrecked steamer Farrallon, has been abandoned. The boat crew, consisting of Mate Swanson and five men, three of whom were passengers on the wrecked steamer, left Iliamna Bay, Alaska, Feb. 7, two days after the wreck of the steamer. No word has been received from them since.

HOPES TO HEAD OFF ALL WARS IN FUTURE

THEODORE MARBURG.

At a meeting at the home of Theodore Marburg in Baltimore recently the Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes was organized. Letters were read from President Taft and others approving the plan. Mr. Marburg and his associates hope to establish a method of determining international questions which will promote, if it does not absolutely insure, peace.

FAIRBANKS VISITS BUCKINGHAM PALACE

King Edward Expresses Desire to Meet the Former Vice President.

London, March 3.—Charles W. Fairbanks, accompanied by American Ambassador Reid, visited King Edward at Buckingham palace today. His majesty, on learning that the former vice president of the United States was in London, expressed a wish to meet him. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks will attend court tomorrow, but as that occasion will not furnish an opportunity for an informal conversation, the king received Mr. Fairbanks this morning.

Later Mr. Fairbanks and Ambassador Reid visited the house of commons, where they met a number of prominent politicians.

NEW ATTACK ON FUTURES

Hardwick Amends Scott Bill to Include the Cable Lines.

Prospect Is That the Measure Will Be Reported Favorably.

Washington, March 3.—The anti-option bill hearing was resumed today before the house committee on agriculture and it was announced that Representative Hardwick of Georgia had prepared an amendment to the Scott bill to include cable lines as well as telegraph and telephone lines.

The Scott bill, thus amended, is likely to be reported favorably, so committee members say. The measure would prohibit transmitting among the states and territories and between the United States and foreign nations telegraph and telephone messages relating to contracts for future delivery of grain, cotton or other farm products where there is no intention of actual delivery or receipt, or relating to contracts whereby the right is acquired to demand in the future the acceptance or delivery of these farm products without obligation so to deliver or accept.

Aimed at Liverpool.

Mr. Hardwick's amendment, applying the bill to cable lines, is aimed at the Liverpool cotton market particularly.

Some members of the committee believe that the exchanges will largely readjust methods under the spur of the proposed legislation.

There is a disposition in the committee to differentiate between the grain and cotton exchanges, the former being regarded as having made a much better showing. The Scott bill, however, applies to both, and the indications are that at least twelve of the eighteen votes of the committee will be for that measure.

SAY THEY HAVE GOODS ON GROCERS

Ohioans Produce Wholesale Men's Committee on Retail Prices.

Columbus, Ohio, March 3. — The legislative food probe committee began hearing witnesses today as to alleged price manipulation.

The committee has obtained a circular issued by a national association of wholesale grocers naming a committee on retail prices. Work that such a committee would engage in is alleged to be clearly in violation of the Ohio anti-trust act. Two members of the committee live in Ohio, and are to be placed on the witness stand.

Among the witnesses called is W. H. Cook of Springfield, Ohio, former president of the Ohio Grocers' association.

MAYOR SAYS "HANDS OFF"

Reyburn of Philadelphia Wants City to Ignore the Strike.

Possibility of General Walkout of Workmen Said to Be Stronger.

* Philadelphia, March 3.—Mayor Reyburn will recommend to the city councils this afternoon that no action be taken in the trolley strike, and will call attention to an old law that will permit the courts to handle the situation.

Philadelphia, March 3.—All Philadelphia today is awaiting with anxiety the outcome of the meeting of city councils this afternoon to discuss ways and means of bringing about a termination of the street car men's strike which has been stifling business for the last twelve days. Just what the councils might be able to accomplish in view of the mayor's seemingly unalterable stand against arbitration of any character was problematic.

Resolutions, it was announced, would be offered and adopted, but just what they could accomplish was impossible to foretell. Arbitration had been scouted by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company officials, the city's representatives on the board of directors of the company, and in fact by practically all persons who are connected in an official capacity with the rapid transit company.

Discount Strike Action.

The action taken at the meeting of the central labor union last night, when that organization made final preparations to carry the threatened sympathetic strike order into execution was discounted by the company, which profesed to believe that only a small per cent of the 100,000 or more of union workmen would obey the strike order at midnight Friday.

At a conference held last night be-

MORE DEPOSITIONS IN SWOPE CASE

Sister-in-Law of Late Millionaire Is Sworn in Damage Suit.

Kansas City, Mo., March 3.—Mrs. Logan O. Swope, sister-in-law of the late Col. Thomas H. Swope, was a witness again today before the notarial court that is hearing dispositions in the damage suit brought by Dr. B. C. Hyde against John G. Paxton for alleged slander.

Miss Bessie Coughlin, formerly Dr. Hyde's stenographer, testified before the grand jury today. Dr. C. H. C. Jordan, for whom a warrant was issued yesterday following a complaint that he was practicing medicine without a license, said today that he would show that he had a right to practice. Dr. Jordan is ill at his home and will not be arrested until he is well enough to appear in court.

OPPOSE TAFT TRAFFIC BILL

Clapp and Cummins File Minority Report on Administration Plan.

Hold Court Scheme Fundamentally Wrong and Find Other Faults.

Washington, March 3. — Declaring that the administration railroad bill would impair the efficiency of the existing statutes and that the creation of a court of commerce, which the measure involves, would mean an expenditure "wholly unnecessary," Senators Cummins and Clapp today submitted the minority report of the senate interstate commerce committee.

"As we view the matter," they say, "the court and the expenditure it involves are wholly unnecessary. According to the reports of the interstate commerce commission there arose between the time the Hepburn act went into effect in the middle of the year 1906 and the close of the year 1909, a period of three and one-half years, twenty-six cases, of which the court of commerce would have had jurisdiction had it been in existence during that time; that is to say, less than eight cases per year. It seems to us indefensible to put upon the taxpayers the burden of maintaining such

LAW'S PUBLICITY CLAUSE QUASHED

Want of Appropriation to Enforce It, Given as Reason.

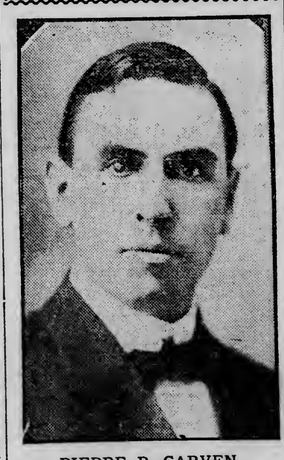
Minneapolis, Minn., March 3.—At practically the eleventh hour for Minneapolis corporations to make reports at the revenue department under the requirements of the new corporation tax law, Deputy Collector H. F. Dains received a ruling from Washington which is said virtually to eliminate that portion of the law to which so much objection has been raised—the publicity clause.

The ruling says: "Congress appropriated $100,000 to carry into effect the provisions of the law. Under general statutes no portion of this appropriation is available for use in the District of Columbia. The returns cannot be open to general inspection in the District of Columbia without the expenditure of a substantial sum of money. If, therefore, it was the intent of congress to make these returns open to general inspection, it will be necessary for it to appropriate a sum sufficient to cover the necessary expense. Until this is done, this bureau rules that the returns made under this law are to be handled just as returns made under other internal revenue statutes."

That this ruling means the quashing for all time of the publicity clause is the opinion of a Minneapolis attorney who has studied the law and followed the objection against it. He also said that the government would accomplish its every purpose without the clause.

NICARAGUAN REVOLT CRUSHED BY DEFEAT OF CHAMORRO'S ARMY

HERE IS THE MAN WHO BRANDED THE BEEF TRUST



PIERRE P. GARVEN.
Prosecuting Attorney of Hudson County, N. J.

Prosecutor Garven is the man who got the brand of an indictment on twenty-one individuals and six big corporations in the beef trust cases in Hudson county N. J., thereby accomplishing what many of his associates believed to be impossible. Now he is conducting a campaign against the storage houses. Next Saturday he will appear in court to argue regarding the obtaining of the books of Swift, Armour and the other packers.

Rebels Can Do Nothing More Than Keep Up Guerilla Warfare.

Division of Country Into Two Republics Is Being Considered.

Downfall of Zelaya Has Satisfied People of the Interior.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, March 3.—The insurrectionary movement, headed by Gen. Estrada, against the Nicaraguan government has been practically crushed. The insurgent campaign in the West has petered out, and nothing is left to the provisionals but a resort to guerilla warfare, encouraged by the desperate hope that the United States may yet intervene in a wish to put an end to the disturbed situation in the republic.

Today for the first time the correspondents and the more prominent personages of this city were told the true situation, which, however, had been suspected for a week. News of the crushing defeat of Gen. Chamorro at Pisma on Feb. 22 was officially confirmed. Chamorro's force was wiped out and barely escaped with a handful of followers. His loss in killed, wounded and captured is given as 800. He estimates his opponents' loss as 1,000. The defeat was due to the giving out of his cartridges.

Kept From the Public.

The public generally is still in the dark, and pinning faith to false reports circulated of insurgent success. These reports have been given currency not only in the city, but have been sent broadcast with the deliber-

LYNCH NEGRO WHO ATTACKED CHILD

Five Thousand Men Take Prisoner From Jail at Dallas, Tex.

Dallas, Tex., March 3.—Allen Brooks, a negro held in jail charged with assaulting a 3-year-old white girl last week, was lynched here today by a mob of 5,000 men.

MANILA STRIKE IS ALREADY ENDED.

Manila, March 3.—The strike begun yesterday by the crews of the interisland steamers ended last night. The men agreed to return to work at the old wages, but with the understanding that certain demands would be made later. The agents of the Hawaiian planters deny having made overtures to the strikers to go to Hawaii.

MORE MEN BACK AT STEEL WORKS

South Bethlehem Strikers Continue to Picket the Plant, However.

South Bethlehem, Pa., March 3.—More men returned to work today at the Bethlehem Steel works than at any time since the violent outbreak of the foreign strikers last Friday. The company expects to increase its force steadily. Picketing by the strikers is still on, however, and the leaders of the strikers are not letting up in efforts to keep the great plant crippled. Two companies of state police and 100 deputy sheriffs are still on duty.

JOHN D.'S MILLIONS TO BE SPENT FOR GENERAL GOOD

—Copyright, 1910, by George Grantham Bain.
JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

Son of Oil King Will Have Charge of the Big Undertaking.

Movement for Rockefeller Foundation Opens in Washington.

New York, March 3.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has, or is to have, a new job—the spending of his father's millions in such a way as to bring the greatest good to the greatest number.

This is the solution of the puzzle that has been wrought in his successive resignations from the active work of the Standard Oil company and the United States Steel corporation. The solution came to light in a measure introduced in the United States senate yesterday afternoon. Young Rockefeller intends to retire from all active business relations that he may be unhampered in the direction of the Rockefeller foundation. The control and direction of the vast sums of the Rockefeller foundation involve a task which will require the undivided energies of young Mr. Rockefeller for years to come.

Sprung In the Senate.

The Rockefeller foundation is incorporated by a bill introduced in the senate yesterday at Washington. It is understood that the purpose is to provide a method for John D. Rockefeller to dispose of his enormous wealth in a manner beneficial to mankind. The bill was introduced by Senator Gallinger and was referred to the committee on judiciary.

The purpose of the foundation is to provide for a general organization to conduct philanthropic works along all lines. The incorporators named in the bill are: John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Fred T. Gates, Starr J. Murphy and Charles O. Heydt. These incorporators are authorized to select associates not to exceed a total of twenty-five, and it is provided that there shall not be at any time less than five.

For Science and Humanity.

The Rockefeller foundation, according to the bill, is organized to pro-

ALBANY LEAGUE AFTER GAMBLING

Civic Body Gets Governor Hughes to Help in the Campaign.

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—The Civic league of Albany has begun a campaign against gambling here. As the opening gun in the warfare, the organization sent a letter to Governor Hughes asking his assistance. Today the sheriff, the district attorney and the state excise commissioner received letters from the governor directing them to "take such steps as are necessary to enforce the law."

THE LIFE SAVER.

A. P. COOK TELLS HOW TO EXIST ON $26 A MONTH

Poor Commissioner Finally "Smoked Out" and Gives Figures.

Says Table Is Only for Those Who Can Earn No More.

	1st Week.	2nd Week.
50 pounds flour	$1.50	$1.50
1 bushel potatoes	.50	...
2 pounds coffee	.30	.30
1 pound tea	.20	.20
5 pounds pork	.75	.75
1 quart syrup	.10	.10
6 pounds beans	.30	.30
4 pounds oatmeal	.24	.24
3 cans milk	.25	.25
0 pounds sugar	.50	.50
Yeast	.10	.10
Totals	$4.75	$4.25

A. P. Cook, county poor commissioner, who recently made the statement before the associated charities that a family of six could live on $26 a month, has been "smoked out."

Since the statement was made his office in the courthouse building has been flooded with letters asking how it could be done. The Herald has also received an average of five and six letters a day asking that Mr. Cook publish his figures on the subject.

It is not the high cost of living so much as it is the cost of high living, according to Mr. Cook, who in presenting the list wishes it distinctly understood that the list is not for persons earning a salary of from $75 to $100 a month. Those people, says Mr. Cook, would make no attempt to live on the amount stated, and the rations are presented just to show that it can be done.

The figures are given for two weeks.

CHIEF WITNESS TURNS SUICIDE

State's Case in Ohio Graft Cases Is Seriously Hampered.

Tiffin, Ohio, March 3. — Walter Dagen, who was expected to be the chief witness for the state in the prosecution of former county commissioners indicted here recently for alleged grafting, committed suicide today. His death will seriously hamper the prosecution.

FOUR GET DIVORCES

Judges Cant and Ensign Busy Hearing Actions for Separation.

Cruel and Inhuman Treatment Basis for Nearly All the Suits.

Before Judge Cant and Judge Ensign of the district court the divorce mill continued its grinding this morning.

Judge Cant granted a decree to Augusta King, 37 years old, from her husband, Carey King, 42 years of age. They were married at Boone, Iowa, during March of 1889. Mrs. King proved desertion, which was the direct cause of the action.

A decree was granted to Minnie L. Leary, aged 36, from her husband, George L. Leary, aged 42. They were married in Brookings, S. D., during November, 1889. She claimed cruel and inhuman treatment. She proved that he was addicted to drink and that while in that condition he proved very hard to get along with. She claimed that on different occasions she was locked out of the house. Leary is a telegraph operator who earns $80 a month, according to Mrs. Leary.

Judge Ensign granted decrees to Carl Johnson from his wife, Anna Johnson, and to Lea Blanchard from her husband, William Blanchard. Johnson got his divorce on grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Blanchard recited a long tale of systematic abuse and cruel and inhuman treatment. She said that her husband had an ungovernable temper and a brutal disposition. She claimed that he often struck her, used vile and indecent language and at times threatened to shoot her. On July 30 last, she claims they quarreled on a public street in the city of Duluth and upon her refusal to give him money, he first struck her and then snatched her gold watch, which she claims he has not yet returned.

The case of Anna Brandt against Carl Magnus Brandt is being heard this afternoon. In her complaint Mrs. Brandt alleges a long and systematic course of ill treatment. She claims that on one occasion she was pulled from her bed by the husband, who tore her clothes and subjected her to other forms of abuse. She claims that he was drunk a large part of the time and that he threatened the children's life as well as her's.

• • •

Horace Michaud withdrew in open court his answer to the action of his wife, Charlotte Michaud, who is suing him for divorce. The case is being taken up this afternoon.

GRAIN ORDER IS PERMANENT

Commerce Commission Enjoined From Enforcing Prohibitory Ruling.

Kansas City, Mo., March 3.—The interstate commerce commission was today permanently enjoined from enforcing an order prohibiting railroads and other carriers from allowing compensation to owners and operators of elevators for elevation and transfer of grain in transit. The decision was filed in the United States circuit court here.

EQUALS SUNNY CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles Has Nothing on Duluth in Weather, Says Westerner.

Duluth has not, as the general thing, the reputation for balmy weather, but there is one man in the city today who will go back to sunny California telling the people out West that the weather in Duluth is little different from the weather that the natives of Los Angeles enjoy.

The man who traveled to Minnesota expecting to find zero weather and drifting snow, and who struck Duluth on a day like today, and asked forthwith why Minnesota people went to California for their spring, is J. W. Cousno of Los Angeles, and he is a guest of the Lenox hotel.

"We have the greatest weather in the world, and when I left Los Angeles the weather was simply divine," said the California man today at the Lenox. "But here you have a brand of weather that cannot be surpassed in any city of the country. They informed me that I would freeze when I came here to this part of the country. I brought a heavy ulster with me, and, believe me, in Chicago I had ample use for the coat. Today I have been going around the streets of your city without any overcoat on—the ulster is too heavy and I did not think it necessary to bring a light coat.

"When I tell them about the brand of weather I have encountered here, they will not believe me. Duluth is known as one of the arctic places. But I can say that there is so little difference in the weather here and in California—that is, the brand of weather I have run into today—that it will hardly pay you to make the trip."

OKLAHOMA AFTER RAILROAD DATA

Sixteen Leading Officials Subpoenaed to Tell of Valuations.

Guthrie, Okla., March 3—Sixteen railway officials, including several of the most prominent in the United States, will be served with subpoenas issued today by the corporation commission of Oklahoma demanding their presence in Guthrie, March 15, as witnesses in the freight rate investigations now in progress here. The presence of these officials is demanded by the state of Okalohma in an effort to get responsible officials on record as to the valuation of the various properties in Oklahoma. The state desires this information in order to contest the findings of a federal injunction issued by Judge Hook in St. Louis, restraining the Oklahoma corporation commission from enforcing the freight rates that have been ordered in Oklahoma during the last twenty-two months.

Accept no substitute for Foley's Honey and Tar. It is the best and safest remedy for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. Remember the name, Foley's Honey and Tar, and accept no substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

OVERWHELMINGLY IN FAVOR OF STRIKE

Men on B. & O. Finish Vote By Rejecting Terms of Railroad.

Baltimore, Md., March 3.—The result of the vote of the conductors and trainmen of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in acceptance or rejection of the company's counter-proposition to their demands for wage adjustments was an almost unanimous rejection of the offer.

The trainmen's general committee will later determine whether a strike shall be declared.

The trainmen overwhelmingly rejected the company's proposal to submit the differences to arbitration, which the company announced it would invoke under the Erdman act.

The trainmen's committee will decide whether a strike shall be declared. In view of the heavy vote favoring resort to this extremity if necessary it was regarded as reasonably certain that such action will follow.

Ninety-nine per cent of the men of the two organizations involved, namely the Order of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, voted to sustain the action of their general committee, in rejecting the counter-proposition and for a strike if necessary, the figures being 5,780 for strike and 137 against it.

Western Wage Standard.

The brotherhood chiefs consider this action as an emphatic indorsement of the movement inaugurated jointly by the two unions to better the condition of the trainmen of the Eastern and Southern associations which they decided would be accomplished by the establishment of uniformity in the wage schedules, taking the Western standard for freight and yard service as the basis.

In explanation of the refusal of the ment to assent to President Willard's proposal to suomit the differences to arbitration under the Erdman act, President Lee of the trainmen's brotherhood declared that railroad men generally view the law with disfavor because he said the decisions of the arbitrators on disputed points have almost invariably been made against the employes. Moreover, he added, the decisions are unnecessarily delayed.

FIREMEN ON INSPECTION TOUR

Make Themselves Familiar With All Large Buildings in City.

The regular inspection of buildings by the fire department in the downtown district is being made. Captains and lieutenants of the different companies make the inspection in order to familiarize themselves with the premises in case of fire.

They learn the location of all stairways, the different exits, the fire protection afforded, the style of the buildings and all other features that might be of help in case of a conflagration. The buildings which take fire generally fill with smoke, making it impossible to see clearly, and with this information the men are able to locate themselves as well as fight the fire intelligently. The captains and lieutenants make the inspections, as at least one of them is on duty all the time. The city is divided into districts for the purposes of inspection.

ADMITS THAT HE MURDERED WIFE

Man Arrested at Mobile Confesses Crime in New York City.

Mobile, Ala., March 3.—Julius Venner alias Alexander Klein, alias Johansen, was positively identified here today as August Peterson, who is alleged to have murdered his wife, Sophie Johansen, in a West Ninety-eighth street tenement house in New York on Feb. 7 last, and concealed the body under the floor of the place. The identification was made by a brother of the murdered woman, who arrived here this morning accompanied by a New York police sergeant.

Johansen, or Peterson, as he says his real name is, broke down completely after the identification and confessed to the killing. He expressed a willingness to return without requisition papers.

MORE DAMAGE DONE IN OHIO

Five Thousand Families Made Homeless By the Floods.

Oregon and Washington Towns Suffer Severely From High Water.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 3.—Because of a steady rise in the Muskingum river at Zanesville, more than 200 additional families were forced to vacate their homes today. Four more inches of water will end local traffic on all the eight railroads. Fully 5,000 persons now have been driven from their homes in this state.

At Warren, where a reservoir formed by the flooded Mahoning river and covering almost twenty square miles threatened that city, the greatest danger appears to have passed. The huge volume of water is being held by an ice jam which is being broken up gradually, letting the flood water escape without damage from the rush.

In Youngstown many factories still are idle, and many small towns and farming sections are reported to be under several feet of water.

Oregon City Inundated.

Vale, Or., March 3.—This city is inundated, and the Malheur river is rising an inch and a half an hour. The railroad bridge across the Malheur is threatened, and the county bridge, twelve miles west of here, has gone out.

River Rising Rapidly.

Aberdeen, Wash., March 3.—The Chehalis river is rising rapidly, and a Union Pacific bridge, under construction, has been washed out on the Gray's harbor branch. Melting snows and warm rains have caused the Cowlitz river to rise to nearly twenty feet above low water. The current is forming new channels and is carrying out many bridge booms and much piling. It is feared that some of the valuable farms on the Cowlitz bottoms have been reduced to sand bars.

THREE FIREMEN HURT.

St. Paul Hose Cart Collides With Street Car.

St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Sherman Wainwright, Driver Arthur Oliver and Pipeman Daniel McGinley, three of the members of Engine Company No. 1, were injured last night in a collision of the hose cart with a Payne avenue car at Seventh and Franklin streets, while running to a fire at Third and Franklin. They are in St. Joseph's hospital.

The doctors said this morning that McGinley was doing very well and that Wainwright and Oliver were doing as well as could be expected. There are no serious complications, and all will recover.

Pipeman James Flaving and Halvor Bergdahl, the motorman on the car, were not taken to the hospital, although injured. Bergdahl was not seriously hurt and will be able to return to work tomorrow.

HEINZE INDICTED FOR FOURTH TIME

Government Renews Effort to Convict Him Under Bank Laws.

New York, March 3.—A new indictment against F. Augustus Heinze for alleged violation of the national banking law was returned today by the federal grand jury here. This is the government's fourth attempt to connect Heinze with certain phases of the alleged misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National bank of which Heinze was president.

Other indictments against the Montana copper magnate in this connection have been successfully demurred to. Heinze is also under indictment, however, for alleged conspiracy to obstruct the administration of justice by spiriting away United Copper company books and papers which were wanted when the grand jury was investigating the charges against Heinze in connection with the Mercantile bank transactions.

RAILROADS

HEAVY TRAVEL IS PREDICTED

Visiting Passenger Men Expect Big Movement to West This Spring.

R. Rovig, Northwestern passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Harry Lewis, assistant general passenger agent of the Soo; T. J. Randall, Northwestern passenger agent of the New York Central lines, and George Lovell, traveling passenger agent of the Wabash, are in the city today.

All of the passenger men state that passenger business is increasing. The indications, according to the agents here today, is that there will be a havy spring travel to the West, of colonists and homeseekers, with a heavy tourist business to the West later in the season.

NORTHERN PACIFIC OFFICIALS HERE

Several general officials of the Great Northern left this morning for Staples in a special train. The party includes G. A. Goodell, general manager; E. C. Blanchard, general superintendent; J. B. Baird, general freight agent; L. M. Perkins, engineer of maintenance; O. C. Green, superintendent of telegraph; William Moir, mechanical superintendent, and H. M. Curry, general master mechanic. The officials arrived last night from St. Paul. Their trip is one of inspection.

Mr. Goodell said that no special improvements are planned for the Head of the Lakes, although there are always improvements under way or planned to keep the physical condition of the property in good shape. The road is now replacing 72-pound rails with 85-pound and 90-pound rails. The entire system will be equipped with the heaviest grade eventually.

ASQUITH TELLS ABOUT BUDGET

Premier Says It Will Be Brought Up After Veto Question.

London, March 3.—What has come to be known as "the mystery of the budget" since Premier Asquith made no mention of the fate of the financial measure when presenting the government's program to parliament is being cleared up.

This afternoon the premier informed the house of commons that the budget would be brought up immediately after the resolutions regarding the lords' power of veto were passed. This does away with the suggestion that two budgets be rolled into one.

Premier Asquith also indorsed the attitude of David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, reiterating that the government would not continue in office unless it was in a position to insure its veto proposal being passed into law.

A LESSON HERE.

Los Angeles Times: An amusing story, albeit one that carries a weighty lesson, was told in Wall street recently of Mr. Harriman.

"He was too absorbed in affairs," the narrator, a broker, said. "He had, one day, an appointment to lunch at 2. Two came, and he was so busy he forgot lunch altogether. He worked on till 4 without intermission.

"At 4, quite naturally, Mr. Harriman began to have a strange interior sense of emptiness, cramp and lightness.

"'Dear me,' he said, patting his waistcoat with his palm, 'I wonder what I ate for lunch that disagreed with me!'"

"ALL LIES" SAYS ALLDS

Accused Senator Denies Everything Conger Said in Charges.

Declares That He Never Even Knew His Accuser's Brother.

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—A flat denial of Senator Benn Conger's charges was made by Senator Allds today in the legislative bribery investigation. Martin W. Littleton, Allds' chief counsel, stopped examination along other lines and questioned the defendant about the conversation Conger professed to have had with Allds before the actual delivery of the alleged $1,000 bribe.

"No such conversation ever occurred," declared Allds.

Littleton reviewed Conger's story that Allds visited him at Conger's apartments here toward the close of the session of 1901, and demanded $1,000 as the price of killing the Malby-Stevens bill which would have limited the amount town boards could appoint for new bridges.

"Mr. Littleton," said Allds impressively in his deepest voice, and with uplifted finger, "there are two lies there; first, the conversation never took place, and I never went to his apartments."

Questioned about his alleged negotiations along the same lines with Frank Conger, the senator's brother, Allds answered:

"I never knew nor met Frank Conger."

Allds took his examination easily.

Williston Library Plans.

Williston, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans for the erection of the James memorial library, provided for in the will of the late Willis James of New York, have been approved by Mrs. James and her son, Arthur James, and there are prospects of an early taking up of building operations. The amount provided for the library building is $20,000.

Great Northern Blamed.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a verdict returned by the coroner's jury investigating the death of Haskell Olson in this city, the Great Northern railroad is held liable. The jury found that Olson's death was caused by defective scaffolding. Olson's family resides in Norway, and it is understod that steps will be taken to secure damages for them.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF WILL—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.
In the matter of the estate of William G. Ten Brook, Decedent.

A certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of William G. Ten Brook, having been presented to this court and the petition of William T. Ten Brook being duly filed herein, representing, among other things, that said decedent, then being a resident of the county of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died testate in the county of St. Louis, State of Minnesota on the 14th day of February, 1910, and that said petitioner is a son of deceased, and the executor named in the said will, and praying that said instrument be allowed and admitted to probate as the last will and testament of said decedent, and that letters testamentary be issued to William T. Ten Brook thereon.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 21st day of March, 1910, at ten o'clock a. m., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter, are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., February 23, 1910.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

SUFFERED MANY YEARS RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

Mrs. George Parker.

Colds and Catarrh.

Mrs. George Parker, 419 Water St., Menasha, Wis., writes: "We have used Peruna in our family for a number of years, and have found it a perfectly reliable medicine. It soon rids the system of any traces of a cold, and prevents serious consequences.

"I began using it for catarrh which I suffered with a good many years, but had not been very serious until recently. Since I have taken Peruna the dropping in my throat has discontinued, and my head and nose are not so stopped in the morning. I am pleased with the results, and shall continue to use it until I am entirely rid of catarrh.

"I heartily recommend it as an honest medicine."

Head and Lungs.

Mr. John McLaughlin, 1419 School St., Chicago, Ills. and his wife express their appreciation of the merits of Peruna in the following words:

"We are pleased to testify as to the merits of Peruna in cases of catarrh. We were both troubled with catarrh of the head and lungs for several years, and did not seem to find anything which would benefit us.

"Finally, on the recommendation of a friend, we took Peruna, and in a short time were on the road to recovery.

"Now we keep Peruna in the house all the time, and when either of us contract a cold a few doses will set us right. It acts as a preventive of catarrh, and is also very fine to build up the strength.

"We believe it to be an honest medicine, well worthy the confidence of the sick."

OPENS 51,200 ACRES.

Government Places Land Under Enlarged Homestead Act.

Washington, March 3.—Approximately 51,200 acres of land in Oregon were today designated by the secretary of the interior as being subject to disposition under the enlarged homestead act, permitting of 320 acres to the settlement. The total amount of land which has been placed within the provisions of this act up to the present time is about 8,611,200 acres.

Withdrawals from entry of public lands by the secretary of the interior today involved tracts in Oregon, Idaho and Utah. Approximately 44,932 acres along the Snake river in Idaho, which it was thought contained power possibilities, and 1,680 acres in Oregon were withdrawn in aid of legislation affecting the disposition of power sites on the public domain.

As a proposed additional to the Wasatch National forest, 800 acres in Utah were withdrawn from all forms of disposal under the public land laws, except the mineral lands. This land was withdrawn at the request of the department of agriculture.

Berlin Expo Date Changed.

Berlin, March 3.—The German directors of the American exposition have decided to accept the suggestion of the American commissioners that the date of the exhibition be postponed from the coming summer to the summer of 1911, and that the character of the enterprise be changed from a strictly American show to an American-German joint affair.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

MISFORTUNE FOLLOWS THEM

Home of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown Destroyed By Fire.

Misfortune has followed closely in the footsteps of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, formerly of the West end, who for the past two years have made their home at San Jose, Cal.

Prior to leaving Duluth for the West, Charles, an 8-year-old son, was killed in a fall while playing with a number of other children at a Sunday school picnic at Lester Park. He fell from a bridge on to some rocks, fracturing his skull.

Yesterday local friends received word from Mr. Brown that fire had completely wiped out their home, and, in fact, everything except the clothes that they wore. The members of the family were away from home for a short time. When they returned their home was in ashes.

Mr. Brown, when in Duluth, was employed as a motorman by the Duluth Street Railway company and lived at Twenty-second avenue west and Superior street. Mrs. Brown is a sister to Rev. J. T. Moody of the Lake avenue Bethel.

DIES IN MINNEAPOLIS.

West End Woman Is Victim of the White Plague.

Genevieve Ives, 24 years old, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ives of 2415 West Ninth street, died yesterday at the Thompson hospital in Minneapolis. Death followed a two years' illness of pulmonary tuberculosis.

The afternoon a brief funeral service was held at Minneapolis, and this evening the body will be sent to Southern Wisconsin, near Madison, for burial.

Miss Ives was well known to many West end people and was prominently identified with activities at the Grace M. E. church. Prior to her last illness she was a school teacher in one of the rural districts near Duluth.

Miss Ives is survived by one brother, Calib, besides her parents.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

West End Club's Dinner Promises to Be Notable Affair.

All arrangements have been completed for the first annual banquet of the West End Commercial club, which will be held this evening at the St. Jean Baptiste hall on Third street, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west.

Among the speakers who will address the club members following the banquet this evening are: Rev. Edward Erickson, C. S. Mitchell, who will talk on a commercial subject; C. P. Craig, whose subject is announced as "Agricultural Education;" Mayor M. B. Cullum, who will give an address on "The Commission Plan of Government;" ex-Mayor R. D. Haven, who will speak on the need of co-operation with the Northern Minnesota Development association, and W. T. Harrison.

Music will be furnished by the Old Virginia male quartet and Charles Helmer's orchestra. The supper will be served by the ladies of St. Clement's Catholic church.

Rehearse for Easter.

The choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church will begin to rehearse its Easter music at a meeting, Friday evening, at the church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street. An elaborate program will be prepared for Easter Sunday.

West End Shortrails.

The Ladies' Guild of the St. Luke's Episcopal church will be entertained at a Lenten tea tomorrow afternoon at the church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street. Mesdames Robinson and McKenzie will be hostesses.

M. M. Horton of 2125 West Fourth street, who recently underwent an operation at St. Mary's hospital, is recovering.

A. Lofgren of 2305 West Second street has as his guest, C. J. Lofgren of Ada, Minn.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Swedish M. E. church was entertained this afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. Johnson of 2316 West Third street.

A. C. Johnson has taken a position as drug clerk at the Lion pharmacy at Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

The Swedish Christian Sick Benefit Society of the West end will meet tomorrow evening at Sloan's hall.

The La Coterie Society of the Second Presbyterian church will entertain at a sleighride party this evening at Lakeside and return. Upon the return, light refreshments will be served at the home of Miss Myrtle Maghan of 2628 West Third street.

Miss Emma Will of 2201 West Twelfth street will entertain the Young People's Society of the St. Stephen's Evangelican Lutheran church at her home this evening.

The congregation of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet this evening with the building committee. It is expected that the contract for the erection of the superstructure of the new church will be let at this time.

A business meeting of the trustees of the First Swedish M. E. church was held last evening. Only routine matters were disposed of.

James Hart of Le Roy, Minn., was a West end visitor yesterday.

The Tabitha Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will be entertained this evening at the home of Misses Wendla and Anna Erickson of 109 Vernon street.

A STEADY BRAIN.

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continued drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is good proof in the following testimonial:

E. S. Moulton, First Ave., Two Harbors, Minn., says: "I was suffering from a pain in the small of my back for a long time. I finally decided to try a good kidney remedy and procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was much pleased with the results of their use, and I am now free from pain and feel better in every way. I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a valuable remedy and am pleased to recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY

How To Save $2 On Cough Medicine by Making it at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, are mostly syrup. To make the best syrup, take a pint of Granulated Sugar, add ½ pint warm water and stir about 2 minutes.

Get two and one-half ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), put it in a clean pint bottle, and fill up with the Granulated Sugar Syrup. This means a full pint of unequaled cough syrup, for about 54 cents. Keeps perfectly. You couldn't buy as much ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

This home-made remedy is pleasant to take, and usually stops even the most obstinate cough in twenty-four hours. It is splendid, also, for colds, whooping cough, bronchial ailments, etc. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The Sugar Syrup is an excellent sedative. The Pinex is the most valuable Pine Extract, rich in all the healing elements of Norweglan pine. Be sure to use the real Pinex itself. Your druggist has it or can easily get it for you.

Strained honey can be used instead of the syrup, and makes a very fine honey and pine tar cough syrup.

It was stated by Senator Gallinger that Mr. Rockefeller already had given away $52,000,000 and that he was seeking a method of disposing of his fortune that would benefit mankind. The foundation is organized on lines similar to the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching. As in the case of the latter institution, the Rockefeller foundation will be authorized to receive and dispense gifts of money other than those obtained from the original endowments, the amount of which has not been fixed.

Will Dispose of Fortune.

When asked regarding the bill, Senator Gallinger said:

"I am not authorized to speak for Mr. Rockefeller. But there is no doubt that he intends to give away his money on a scale greater than any other living man. I am not acquainted with all of the details of Mr. Rockefeller's plan, but it is expected that Washington will be made the headquarters."

Rockefeller Is Silent.

Augusta, Ga., March 3.—John D. Rockefeller, who has returned to the city from New York, was shown the Associated Press dispatch regarding the bill introduced by Senator Gallinger. He smiled and said:

"Just at this time I do not care to have anything to say. I'll wait until I see what they are going to do up there. However, you may rest assured it is not anything that will do harm to anybody."

press was hurled from its shelter at the gateway of the Cascade tunnel and buried at the bottom of the canyon 200 feet below. The only stories of the disaster have come from those who have climbed over the mountain trails.

Made Hysterical by Scenes.

Several men, on leaving the sights of horror at Wellington and arriving at Scenic, the nearest relief station, were unable to describe what they had seen. The perils of their descent of the mountain and the cries of the wounded in the wreckage below the track had made them hysterical.

It is now almost certain that the death toll in the avalanche that carried away two Great Northern trains and seven steam and electric locomotives will total eighty-four.

Few believe that any of the sixty-seven people listed as missing will be found alive.

The rescuers themselves are in a perilous position, as the danger from snow slides is not over. Warm winds, accompanied by frequent showers, are working havoc with the loose snow, which is eighteen feet deep on the level. Frequently avalanches are seen shooting down the steep slopes.

Rumors last night that one of these slides had buried the relief parties cannot be confirmed. No news of such a disaster has been received at Skyhomish, the nearest telegraph office to Scenic.

May Be Unknown For Weeks.

The exact number of dead will not be known for weeks—not until the snow, which is more than forty feet deep in the canyon, has melted. Workmen digging in the snow and wreckage report the finding of dismembered bodies, severed arms and hands. Frequently the first intimation that they are digging near a body comes when they uncover a large patch of blood-red snow.

Undertakers' supplies and more men were sent up on a relief train early today. The bodies will be embalmed and kept at Wellington until the railroad line is open, as it is impracticable to bring them out on sledges.

When the snow, which blocks the tracks, will be cleared away is uncertain. A large force of men is attacking the drifts on the west side. Simultaneously snow plows are being brought from North Dakota to be used in the opening of the line from the east. Rescue parties are working desperately to save at least a few of the passengers in the buried coaches.

Two Coaches Not Found.

The day coach and smoker have not been found. They were smashed as completely as though tons of iron had fallen on them.

One woman was rescued from a Pullman after twelve hours in a prison of snow.

Brakeman Duncan and Conductors Purcell and Clary, who were in one of the cars that was smashed to splinters, escaped with slight bruises. In bare feet they worked for hours helping the injured and saving those caught in the wreckage.

A few facts have been learned of the dead and missing passengers.

Mrs. M. A. Covington of Seattle, who is missing, was on her way to celebrate her golden wedding today.

Mrs. Starrett of Chemainus, B. C., was returning from Shekan, where her husband was killed in a railrond accident last month. Mrs. Starrett and one child was saved, but two of her children were killed.

It is stated that the train was not kept in the tunnel, where it would have escaped the slide, as passengers feared they would be blockaded and suffocated there.

The first news direct from the scene of the disaster was received here shortly before midnight last night when Dr. Cox, one of the Great Northern physicians, returned from Wellington accompanied by three of the survivors. Dr. Cox said none of the injured is seriously hurt. When the party left Wellington, sixteen were in a temporary hospital.

R. M. Forsyth and S. M. Bates, two of the survivors, estimate that not more than twenty of the 110 people who were carried into the canyon by the avalanche escaped death or injury.

A member of the first relief party, who has returned to Everett, says that when he reached the scene all the cars were completely buried. Much of the wreckage was covered by forty feet of snow and all that could be seen was one partly buried electric motor, two locomotives and the wreckage of the rotary.

All that could be seen of the coaches was a steel pipe sticking out of the snow where a car was twisted around a stump, and a curtain that lay on top.

Tells of His Experience.

Forsyth was in a car in which there were five women and seven children. Three women and two children escaped, but the others undoubtedly perished.

In telling of the experience, Forsyth said that it seemed as if the car was lifted bodily from the tracks and was held poised in mid-air. Suddenly it toppled over the edge and rolled down the embankment. Instantly the air was filled with shrieks of the injured. A fearful storm was raging. A high wind was blowing and there was a spectacular electric display.

The first men to extricate themselves from the mass of wreckage set to work releasing those less fortunate. They had no lights and worked by the flare of the lightning, which was almost incessant.

The severed hand of a woman has been found. On a finger was a ring bearing initials which lead the workers to believe that it belonged to Miss Katherine O'Reilly of Spokane, who is listed among the missing.

Buried Six Hours.

S. A. Bates a fireman, was buried under the snow six hours. Other survivors heard his shouts and dug him out before the first party of rescuers arrived.

Trainmaster A. R. Blackburn, who was sleeping in Supt. O'Neil's private car, was taken out of the wreckage alive. He said, "Look out for the others," then fell back unconscious. Station Agent Flannery of Wellington, dug Blackburn out of the snow and started to carry him to a place of safety. A small slide struck them and Flannery was knocked down. Blackburn's body slipped from his grasp and was carried into a small stream where it disappeared from sight.

Later reports indicate that the avalanche swept down the mountain above Wellington at 1:45 a. m., instead of at 4:30. This is the statement of the survivors and is borne out by the finding of watches stopped at that hour.

The following list of casualties has been given out by the Great Northern officials:

Happy, Happy, Use TIZ

A Marvel for Sore Feet. Acts Right Off

Sore Feet? Never After Using TIZ—

Good-bye sore feet, aching feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses and bunions and raw spots.

You've never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold.

It acts at once and makes the feet feel remarkably fresh and sore-proof.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders add other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

If you don't find all this true after trying a box of TIZ, you can get your money right back.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Dept. 490 Dodge Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

JAMES SHANNON PASSES AWAY

A Well-Known West Duluth Man Dies of Old Age.

James P. Shannon, 73 years old, died at 9 o'clock this morning after a lingering illness at his home, 508 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, from a complication of diseases, due to advanced age. He had a wide acquaintance in West Duluth and five of the eight children who survive him are living in the western end of the city.

The funeral will be held privately from the family residence Saturday afternoon with interment at Oneota cemetery. Rev. A. J. Hoag, the pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, will officiate. Mr. Shannon came to West Duluth about a year ago, but some of his children have lived here for many years. He formerly resided at Kingston, Ont.

Besides his wife, he is survived by five daughters and three sons. They are Mrs. George N. Leader of 605 South Sixty-eighth avenue west, Mrs. Archie Boyd of 391 South Seventy-first avenue west, Mrs. Allen Brouse of 4827 West Fifth street, Miss Ethel Shannon of 508 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, Dr. S. S. Shannon of Barnum, formerly of West Duluth; George D. Shannon of Isle Royale, and Hiram Shannon of Spencerville, Ont.

Mr. Shannon was one of the two surviving members of a large family of fourteen and his father fought in the Revolution on the American side. Later he moved to Canada, when the country where he settled was a wilderness.

SERVICES TO BE STOPPED

Plymouth Church Will Be Closed to Rev. D. G. Cole.

Rev. Daniel G. Cole, the deposed pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, Fifty-fourth avenue west and Bristol street, was today ordered by the board of trustees of the church not to attempt to hold services at Plymouth church in the future, according to a statement made this afternoon by H. C. Brown, a West Duluth contractor, who is one of the leading members of the church.

Mr. Brown, who is the church treasurer, states that he has notified Mr. Cole so that he may draw three weeks' back salary due him up to March 1. He was also ordered by Mr. Brown to return the church keys and blackboard which, it is claimed, he has in his possession.

When asked whether the church trustees would attempt to stop the meeting at the church this evening, at which Rev. Mr. Cole is scheduled to speak, Mr. Brown declined to answer, stating that the board would stand firm in seeing to it that no further services were held at the church. The church will be closed temporarily.

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE.

Duluth Will Be Represented at Republican Meeting at Minneapolis.

L. A. Barnes and William A. Anderson left this afternoon for Minneapolis where tonight they will attend a meeting of representatives of the various Republican clubs of the state, who will confer on the matter of forming a state organization. Mr. Barnes is a representative of the West Duluth club and president of the temporary organization of Duluth.

AMATEUR THESPIANS ARE ENTERTAINED.

Miss Florence Salter of 6114 Green street entertained last evening at a party in honor of the members of the "Kingdom of Heart's Content" cast, which presented the play last week at the Great Eastern hall. The rooms were prettily decorated with hearts. Games and music were the amusements of the evening. At a late hour, refreshments were served. The guests were:

Misses Clara F. Goodhand, Myrtle Wendt, Pearl Dondineau, Myrtle Clark, Caroline Sorenson, May Zaiser, Ethel Molyman, Mildred Simonds, Irene Galbraithe and Lillian Stevens.

Messrs. A. F. Dormeyer, John C. Johnson, Gayleord Halverson, Thomas Johnson, William M. Ritchie and Charles I. Towner.

His Skis Were Stolen.

William Axelroad of 328 North Fifty-seventh avenue west last evening reported to the police that boys in the neighborhood had stolen his skis. He claims that he left them on the rear porch of his home and that they were taken yesterday afternoon.

With the Curlers.

Tonight three games are scheduled in the Burns event at the Western Curling rink—Holland vs. Iltis, Miller vs. Zauft and Wade vs. Olson. One game will be played in the Bagley event between Keyes and Rockwell. Last evening Method was defeated by Keyes, 16 to 11 in the Bagley race and in the three games played in the Burns affair, the results were as follows: Clark, 15; Rockwell, 4; Iltis, 16; Macauley, 5; Olson, 14; Zauft, 11.

"ANDY" GRENNER MAY LOSE LIMB

Blood Poisoning Results From Injuries Received in Hockey Game.

"Andy" Grenner, member of the Adams hockey team and one of the members of the Duluth All Stars, who played a series of games with the St. Paul Phoenix hockey team, is seriously ill at his home as the result of blood poisoning resulting from a skate wound he received in the first game in St. Paul.

The young man went to a doctor last night and his condition became so serious that he was not allowed to go home until this morning. Blood poisoning has set in, and the young man's physician has informed him that unless he is very careful he may lose his leg.

Gronner was severely injured by receiving a skate stab in the side of his foot. He did not think much of the injury at the time, but as infection set in, his condition has become alarming. Unless the foot shows a rapid improvement, the young man may be compelled to submit to an operation.

His paintings will be exhibited at the National Arts building and he will occupy a studio there for two or three months. He has already arranged to paint Peary in Arctic dress.

METHODS OF CARD SHARPERS.

Sleight-of-Hand Tricks By Which They Are Able to Fleece Victims.

Philadelphia Ledger: In the card-sharping fraternity there are men who on no account whatever would use mechanical aid when fleecing a victim. Neither would they work with a confederate who employs such. Their motto is: "Don't carry any evidence of guilt about you." And that is why they rely, for the most part, on false shuffles, cuts and bottom deals to enable them to stack the cards, i. e., to place them so that when dealt out the trickster or his partner gets the best hand. This merely details certain sleight-of-hand cleverness. On the other hand, it is highly inconvenient, as a well-known crook remarked a short time ago, "to be found with a 'puncher' (a steel point used for marking cards), 'shiners' (tiny mirrors, by means of which the faces of the cards dealt to an opponent are revealed) or a 'bog' (a V-shaped holder, with a sharp point on one side which can be thrust into the lower surface of the table ledge and made to serve as a sort of shelf to hold cards). "Out West," he continued, "it is Wall street to a popcorn that you would be 'leaded' if any such aids to the gentle art of 'rooking' were found on your person."

Nevertheless, mechanical aids to card-sharping are not only largely used but they are actually advertised for sale. The writer was recently shown as a curiosity the catalogue of a certain Chicago store, in which was listed a reflector, which could be attached to the lower surface of the card table by a metal spur. The mirror was convex and came to the edge of the table so that the cards could be read as they were dealt out. The glass could be set at an angle and turned back out of sight in an instant.

Another very efficient form of reflector consists of a small convex mirror cemented to a piece of cork shaped to fit inside the bowl of an ordinary briar pipe. The "shiner" is carried separately in the pocket until needed, while the gambler smokes the pipe. When he stops to knock out the ashes he presses the glass into the bowl of the pipe, which is then laid down upon the table, with bowl facing toward the owner, a little to the left of where he is sitting. In this position the mirror is visible to no one but himself.

Sometimes tiny reflectors are inserted in the interior of a large quill toothpick, or may be attached to a ring on the finger or glued to the palm. Of course, on account of the minuteness of the mirrors, good eyesight is needed to distinguish the cards as they are reflected. But card sharpers are nothing if not keen sighted.

One of the most wonderful mechanical aids to card sharping was that unearthed in a London gambling den a short time ago. It consisted of a specially constructed table, containing a secret and invisible drawer in the top, which could be opened by a spring worked by slightly pressing the edge of the table. Covering the action with his hands and cards, the sharp dropped the cards he wished to transfer to his confederate into the opening and a second spring shot them along a secret passage to the other side of the table, where there was another secret opening whence the confederate contrived to take them.

It reminds the writer of a marvelous roulette table by which a clever American scoundrel fleeced many wealthy residents of Long Island of thousands of dollars about twelve months ago. The roulette wheel contained a network of electrical wires, so arranged that by the manipulation of switches carefully concealed inside the cash drawer electro magnets hidden within the very structure of the wheel itself would be so thrown into circuit as to draw the ball, which contained a soft iron core, into any group of pockets the dealer might desire.

Endless, however, are the tricks of the professional card sharper. They have all sorts of dodges for marking cards. Giving a card a rough edge by a mere scratching with the finger nail is to them a sure means of identification. Some wear an innocent looking ring, called a trepan, which is really hollow, full of ink, and has a tiny point on the inner side whereby an almost imperceptible dot can be put on a card.

Others perfer to use simply a tiny aluminum or steel tack, which can be affixed instantaneously to the thumb, point outwards, by means of a small piece of court plaster. The shaft of this tack is so short that it is not sufficient to quite pierce the thickness of a playing card; it merely raises a jump on the back of the card.

These mounds are caused to appear on the top right-hand corner and the bottom left-hand corner (which becomes the top right-hand when turned around) so that they are perceptible to the delicate touch of the dealer. The aces and kings are treated in this manner, so that when the sharper, though his eyes do not rest upon the cards, is dealing he can tell immediately by the feel when he comes to one of these cards. If, in correct dealing, it should go to an opponent, he avoids giving it by dealing the card underneath instead.

RETICENCE WHICH COST $5,000.

One of the most remarkable things I ever remember in connection with an auction, says James Boyton, in the Strand, occurred on an occasion when I was offering a leasehold residence for sale. The property was boldly announced as for sale "without reserve," yet in spite of this, and although the auction-room was full of people interested in the property, I was unable to obtain any response, and was obliged to withdraw the property because I could not get even the smallest bid. To my great astonishment I was approached, almost directly after I had announced the property as withdrawn, by a gentleman who asked me whether I would accept $5,000 for it. Needless to say, I immediately closed with him. I doubt whether it would be possible to find a more curious example than this of reticence on the part of those who attend auctions. As the property was offered "without reserve," he could have purchased it had he bid even $25 at the auction, provided he was not compelled to advance on that figure through other biddings.

CERTAINLY ENDS KIDNEY TROUBLE

Backache, Kidney Disorder and Misery in Bladder Vanishes.

Hundreds of folks here are needlessly miserable and worried because of out-of-order kidneys, backache or bladder trouble.

If you will take several doses of Pape's Diuretic all misery from a lame back, rheumatism, painful stitches, inflamed or swollen eyelids, nervous headache, irritability, dizziness, worn-out, sick feeling and other symptoms of overworked or deranged kidneys will vanish.

Uncontrollable, smarting, frequent urination (especially at night), and all bladder misery ends.

This unusual preparation goes at once to the disordered kidneys, bladder and urinary system, and distributes its healing, cleansing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder, or feel rheumatism coming, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape of Cincinnati is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic, and a few days' treatment means clean, active, healthy kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and you feel fine.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store —anywhere in the world.

RED LAKE COUNTY TO BE WELL REPRESENTED.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large delegation from Red Lake county will be in attendance at the conservation and agricultural congress in St. Paul, March 16 to 19. Governor Eberhart has named some sixty delegates from Red Lake county and a large number of these have signified their intention of attending. The subject of drainage and reapportionment are the two absorbing topics of discussion in connection with the meeting and the representatives from the northwestern part of the state will do their utmost to secure some measure of relief in these two directions.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WILL BUILD GREAT DITCH

Grand Rapids, Wis., Firm Is Awarded Big Contract at Warren, Minn.

To Dig Huge Canal Draining Beltrami and Marshall County Lands.

Warren, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Drainage company, composed of Arpin Bros. of Grand Rapids, Wis., has secured the contract for constructing Judicial Ditch No. 11, situated in Marshall and Beltrami counties, at a price of 10.3 cents per cubic yard for excavation and $125 per lineal mile for building a road alongside of same. More than forty bids were opened. A. M. Arpin of Thief River Falls will be in actual charge of the work.

Largest in Northwest.

This ditch is said to be the largest drainage ditch ever undertaken in the Northwest. It is 529 miles long, and will drain twenty-one townships, or a total of 288,000 acres, and will furnish homesteads for about 800 people, as there are that many unsettled quarter sections in the drainage area. More than 5,500,000 cubic yards of earth will be excavated, and the total cost of the construction of the ditch will approximate $600,000.

The contractor agrees to complete the work in 1912.

EASTERN PEOPLE ARE DISSATISFIED

Marquette Man Found General Complaint Against Payne-Aldrich Tariff.

Marquette, Mich., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rush Culver, who returned from a business trip in the East a few days ago, reports that he White Pine in the southeastern part Payne Aldrich tariff schedule.

The big lumber dealers, says Mr. Culver, object to the tariff bill just as found all classes dissatisfied with the mate consumers." He was much surprised to find the East even more dissatisfied with congress and the administration than the Middle West and Northwest.

VAN HISE UPHELD.

Wisconsin University Head Is Absolved of Charges Made.

Madison, Wis., March 3.—Neither anarchism, Socialism nor free love is being taught in the University of Wisconsin or being encouraged in any way by the faculty or officials. This is the grist of a report made by the board of visitors to the board of regents, the supreme governing body of the university.

The report is devoted almost entirely to the recent visit of Emma Goldman to the university and her two lectures here, and dwells especially on the attitude of the university authorities toward the doctrine she advocates and the part one member of the faculty took in advertising the lectures to his classes.

The report is silent regarding the recent visit of Parker H. Sercombe, a former advocate of free love.

Prof. E. A. Ross of the department of political economy, recently granted leave of absence to study social conditions in China, is rapped by the board of visitors, but otherwise the report is a clean bill for President C. Van Hise and the faculty.

MAPLE SYRUP PAYS.

Glidden, Wis., Man Is Planning for Annual Output.

Ashland, Wis., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. X. C. Hannes of Glidden, one of the largest maple syrup producers in the northern part of the state is here, planning on getting in his annual crop of syrup and sugar, which he believes will exceed all previous crops. While considerable syrup is produced at Odanah and south of Sanborn, Mr. Hannes is probably the largest individual producer in the county.

Last spring Mr. Hannes had out on his maple trees over 1,300 sap buckets, he got about 17,000 gallons of sap from which he made 283 gallons of maple syrup, of which over thirty gallons has been sugared off and about 200 pounds of maple sugar has been made.

Mr. Hannes sells his maple products at a good price, as he receives for maple syrup, including can, per gallon $1.50, while he sells the maple sugar for 30 cents per pound cake.

Mr. Hannes has made good use of his maple orchard of about twenty-five acres. He owns an up-to-date outfit including a Champion evaporator 4 by 12 feet with steel arch. He does the work with the help of four of his children and brings the sap together with a eam.

BUTTERNUT HAS FIRE.

Old Ashland County Block Destroyed Monday Evening.

Butternut, Wis., March 3.—Fire Monday evening completely destroyed the old Ashland County bank building, formerly occupied by the Fordyce bank. The upper story was occupied by Dr. Violet who loses all his surgical instruments, medicine library, office furniture, etc. The first floor was occupied by Mike O'Connell's harness shop together with a large wareroom, the contents of both of which were completely destroyed. The general store belonging to the estate of the late Herman Zoesch also had a narrow escape, being badly scorched, the siding being burned through in places. The loss will run from $1,500 to $2,000.

WAUPACA, WIS., MAN IS KILLED NEAR AITKIN.

Aitkin, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Bright, a sawyer working in the McGrath camp at Stremuously as do the so-called "ulti- of the county, was killed Saturday by a falling tree. He was about 45 years old and from letters in his poceklts it was learned that he had relatives at Waupaca, Wis. The body was brought to Aitkin.

DROPS 100 FEET AND STILL LIVES

Man Working in Mine Near Ishpeming Has Miraculous Escape.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Samuel Stannaway, employed as master mechanic at the Michigan mine near here, had a miraculous escape from death. Stannaway was engaged in one of the shafts repairing one of the pumps when one of the pipes fell away, knocking the unfortunate to the bottom of the shaft, more than 100 feet below.

The bottom of the shaft contained 150 feet of water, and into this Stannaway was plunged. Fortunately he retained his presence of mind, and grasping a pipe he raised himself to a point of safety, from where he was later rescued. He sustained a badly cut arm, but was otherwise unhurt.

NERVY DOCTOR IS AFTER MAYORALTY

Member of Posse That Trailed Younger Brothers Seeks Office.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Forks will elect eight aldermen, a mayor, a city treasurer and several other officers April 4. Already one candidate for mayor, Dr. H. M. Wheeler, has appeared in the mayoralty field. Dr. Wheeler is a former resident of Northfield, Minn., where he took a prominent part in the cinase of the Younger brothers years ago, killing one member of the famous gang of robbers.

Dr. Wheeler is a present member of the city council and will resign that position. The other retiring aldermen are H. B. Griffith, George Salisbury, John Lynch, K. C. Hunter, Oscar Knudson, O. T. Ellestad and F. L. Dixon. R. C. Spriggs of the Fifth ward and Charles Alguire of the Fourth ward are already announced for places in the council, while T. J. Hagen has announced himself for the position of city treasurer.

TO CLAIM INSANITY.

Defense Already Skirmishing for Ground in Murder Case.

Rugby, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—It does not seem very probable that the case of the state against Charles Moline, in which murder is charged, will come on for trial at a very early date. The defense is now contemplating asking for a continuance to allow the taking of evidence at St. Peter and Tracy, Minn., for the purpose of establishing the fact that there is insanity in the family. Albert Moline, the defendant's uncle, has on three occasions been an inmate of the St. Peter asylum. His home is at Tracy.

Mrs. Moline, also charged with murder, will plead that her son was insane, and that she gave him the poison that killed his father only to humor him.

FORMER DULUTHIAN IS BURIED AT GRAND FORKS.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of William Caswell, a pioneer of Duluth, Grand Forks and Winnipeg, Man., took place here yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with a very large attendance. The services were conducted in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Rev. J. K. Burleson officiating, and interment took place in Memorial Park. The active pallbearers were W. I. Wilder, D. M. Holmes, Don McDonald, A. J. Fairchild, C. Ward and George Kaneen while the honorary pallbearers were James Elton, W. C. Nash, James Twamley and W. G. Smith.

NEW ROAD ESTABLISHED.

Judge Stanton Acts on Proposed Beltrami County Highway.

Bemidji, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge McCenahan has filed an order establishing a public highway extending through parts of Beltrami, Clearwater and Hubbard counties.

This road will run along the boundary of the towns of Lamers, Jones and Buzzle and the village of Solway in Beltrami county; the towns of Moose Creek, Bear Creek, Itasca, Shevlin and Dudley and the villages of Mallard and Shevlin in Clearwater county, and the town of Fern in Hubbard county.

The case of state vs. Jess Oles, charged with assault in the first degree, was called for trial today.

J. W. Smith, whom Oles is charged with having assaulted, was the first witness. Oles and Smith reside near Spur 105, one and one-half miles north of Farley, and the assault is supposed to have been committed at that place.

A petition has been filed with Judge Stanton for the establishment of a public highway between Beltrami and Hubbard counties, beginning at the interbard counties, beginning at the interbard section of the county line between these two counties on the northeast shore of Lake Plantagnet, running east along the county lines of these counties to the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 32, township 147-33 west.

Judge Stanton has appointed Al H. Jester and August Jachow of Beltrami county and George Frost of Hubbard county as comissioners to establish the proposed road, they to report at the September term of court.

CLOVER BELT CONFERENCE.

Planned to Be Held at Hinckley to Develop That Section.

Hinckley, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A conference having for its object the development of the country lying between Duluth and St. Paul will be held here some time in May at the instigation of the Commercial club.

Invitations will be extended to all commercial clubs, villages and counties between these two cities to send delegates. It is proposed to call it the "Clover Belt Development Conference," and its object will be not only the development of this section, but to work with similar organizations for the development of the state.

The needs of this section are somewhat different from those of both the southern part of the state and the northern part that was recently organized at Bemidji. The counties that will probably be asked to join the movement are Carlton, Aitkin, Pine, Kanabec, Stearns, Mille Lacs, Isanti and Chisago.

Promises of a large attendance have already been received.

KNOWN IN GRAND FORKS.

Superintendent O'Neill Formerly Lived in That City.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. J. H. O'Neill, whose private car was wrecked in the snowslides in the Cascades, is a former resident of Grand Forks. He has complete charge of the operations in the Cascades, where so much difficulty is being experienced. Mr. O'Neill secured his start in the railroad world in this city, taking the position of call boy when he was 16 years of age, and gradually mounting the ladder to the top.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC AMONG THE RUSSIANS.

Washburn, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—An epidemic of diphtheria in the vicinity of Wilton has caused the officials of this county a great deal of concern. The Russians residing in that district have called the disease "throat trouble," and it was not till several families were affected that the physicians were called. Quarantine regulations can hardly be enforced because of the disposition of the people, who believe they are being wrongly persecuted.

CASS LAKER ESCAPES WITH LIGHT PUNISHMENT.

Bemidji, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gus Johnson, who got into trouble at Cass Lake recently, while under the influence of liquor, and held to the Cass county grand jury on a charge of assault in the second degree, was brought to Bemidji and arraigned before Judge Stanton.

County Attorney Funk told Judge Stanton that he had decided that Johnson should be dealt with leniently, as the latter was willing to plead guilty to a less serious charge, which statement was accepted, and Judge Stanton sentenced Johnson to serve a term of ten days in the county jail at Walker.

First White Native Dead.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 3.—Nellie G. Palmer, 53 years old, the first white person born in Eau Claire county, and the widow of a Civil war veteran, died at Orange City, Fla. Her father gave Randall park and Lakeview cemetery to Eau Claire in the early days.

$5,000 For Eau Claire Church.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 3.—Mrs. Peter Truax has handed to the Rev. M. Berson, pastor of the First Methodist-Episcopal church of Eau Claire, a check for $5,000 to aid in the construction of the proposed new edifice to be erected in Eau Claire.

Ishpeming—T. W. Durham, who has held the position of agent of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming Railway company in this city for several years past, has been promoted to a more important place in General Manager Harris' office and will assume his new duties within a few days.

Marquette—Mrs. Melinda Lizotte is dead at the age of 67 years. She had been an invalid for twenty-seven years but death was due to an attack of bronchitis. She came to Marquette from New York state in 1861. Two sons, Henry and Fred survive. Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning from the French Catholic church, with interment in Holy Cross cemetery.

Hancock—The ushers of the Kerredge theater, have formed a Kerredge Ushers' club and it is probable that in a short time they will demand salaries from the management. The following are the officers: President, Cecil Wagner; vice president, R. Anthony; secretary, W. Goldsworthy; treasurer, M. Coon.

Calumet—The Calumet Y. M. C. A. basket ball team and the Crystal Falls team will play a game of basket ball Saturday evening in the Y. M. C. A. gym, the game commencing at 8:30 p. m.

Houghton—After a long illness Miss Mary Quirk died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Johanna Stack in Houghton. Besides Mrs. Stack the deceased is survived by two others sisters and a brother. These are Mrs. Rioux and Mrs. Plunador and Michael Quirk, all of whom live in Lake Linden.

Calumet—Fire caused damage to the extent of $2,000 Monday when a two-story frame building in Mohawk, Fulton location, was gutted. The loss on the building, furniture and stock of clothing is estimated to be $2,000. The building was owned by Isaac Rauhala of Calumet.

Hancock—Ed J. Phillips, who has been station agent of the Keweenaw Central railroad at Copper City since the opening of the road, has resigned to take a position with the South Shore railroad at Ishpeming, where he will be connected with the freight department.

Houghton—The last of the jury cases on the present calendar was disposed of Monday afternoon when the jury in the case of Mrs. Joseph Koskela against John Steinback reported to the court that it had found a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $779.16.

Calumet—The funeral of Stephen Vokich, who was accidentally killed in the Tamarack mine last week, was held Sunday afternoon from the residence of a brother on Seventh street.

Hancock—Elizabeth, the 1-year-and-4-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sarkus passed away at their home on West Quincy street Tuesday morning, as a result of pneumonia.

Houghton—George Ross, agent for the Mutual line in Portage Lake for the past six years, has resigned.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Little Falls—Adam H. Shea, who for the past half century has lived in this county, died Tuesday after an illness and breakdown cosued by old age. Adam H. Sheat was born in Grafton, New Brunswick, in 1832, coming to Morrison county two score and a half years ago.

St. Cloud—Rev. J. T. Atwill has handed in his resignation as rector of St. John's Episcopal church in this city to the senior wardens to accept a position in California.

Fergus Falls—The Red River Milling company by C. W. Kaddatz, president, has filed a claim of $4,478.50 against the city. They not only want pay for the injury to the dam, but for the loss on contracts and loss of profits. The mill is owned by W. Kaddatz, Elmer E. Adams and F. G. Barrows.

Anoka — M. C. Blanchett of Elk River has closed a deal whereby A. C. Morgan of Northfield purchased the Blanchett hotel. The price paid for the business is reported to be $30,000.

Moorhead—At the council meeting on Monday evening Syvert Johnson was appointed city weigher and scaler at a salary of $50 per month, the fees of the office to go to the city. L. D. Evans was appointed city assessor. These were the only changes.

Crookston — Mr. and Mrs. Max Strassburg arrived in the city Tuesday from Huron, S. D. Mr. Strassburg will fill the position of chief clerk in the United States land office, made vacant by the resignation of Pat Fearon, who has taken a position in the law office of W. E. Rowe.

Rochester—Newspapers published outside of Rochester seem to have colored the account of the death of Henry Dumland and with startling headlines dealing with missing money, hint at murder. It was clearly shown that death was due to an overdose of choloroform.

Stillwater—The funeral of Louis Foucher, who was killed at Hayward, Wis., was held Monday at the Catholic church at Hugo. Rev. Jules Purigard officiated. Interment was made at Hugo. The pall bearers were members of the C. O. F.

Mankota—H. C. Ahlers, who for the past two years has been the general agent for the Mankato branch of the International Harvester Company of America, has been appointed general agent for the same company at St. Cloud, Minn., to succeed Col. William Westerman, who will retire on a pension.

Brainerd—The monthly report of the Brainerd public library shows sixty-four new borrowers. There were a total of 1,451 books and 112 magazines loaned during February.

Stillwater—A protest by sixty-nine residents of Oak park against being annexed to the city of Stillwater was presented to the city council. Steps have been taken to that end. The opposition cites as reasons for their course that they want a commission form of government, do not want to be burdened with the cost of municipal ownership of waterworks, and that no provision has been made to give them police protection and better schools.

Minneapolis—The Twin City Rapid Transit company Monday paid into the treasury of Hennepin county the sum of $235,000 personal tax. The total in personal taxes was over $500,000. The sum paid by the trolley company is exclusive of the gross earning tax it will have to pay on its branch to Lake Minnetonka.

Ada—The State Anti-Saloon league held a field day here Sunday in charge of Elias Raeder of Willmar and Carl Walden, lately appointed Northwestern superintendent of the league. Meetings were held in the churches in the morning and in the afternoon meetings were held in country districts.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Devils Lake, N. D.—The Loyal Order of Moose have closed a lease for a term of five years for the new lodgeroom now being completed in the fourth floor of the Opera House block. The new room will be ready for occupancy some time next month, and it will be one of the finest lodgerooms in the state.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Dr. Francis J. McConnell, who will deliver the Hazlett lectures here on March 14, 15 and 16 under the auspices of Wesley college, has been secured to preach at both the morning and evening services at the First Methodist church on Sunday, March 13. Pastors of all denominations and from all cities of the state are invited.

Devils Lake, N. D.—James Bartle, colored, who has been in Devils Lake several months, was arrested charged with "rolling" a farmer from the Warwick country, who came to town to see things a few days ago. The farmer claims that he was taken to a dive on the south side of the tracks and was relieved of a sum of money, said to have been about $100.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Madison—W. B. Hawley, a tea merchant, was found lying unconscious on the floor of his store Tuesday morning. He had been attacked by an unknown man and rendered unconscious. Two hundred dollars in cash and checks which he was about to take to the bank, were stolen from him.

Dodgeville — A total discrepancy of approximately $4,0000 is shown by the report of the special asylum investigating committee made to the county board. The investigation covers a period of twenty-three years, and the committee has been in session fifteen days.

Menasha—The annual convention of the Fox River Valley Library association will be held here March 3 and 4. Miss Lucy E. Stearns of the state library board and Dr. Samuel Plantz of Lawrence college are among the speakers.

Portage—The city council has granted a franchise to the Chicago & Wisconsin Railroad company to pass through the city and to install a local street car line within the city.

Sheboygan—The state convention of the Spanish War Veterans will be held in this city on July 4, 5, 6 and 7, 1910. The executive committee met Monday night and great preparations are being made to make this convention a success.

Sparta — Because her brother refused to take here to town with him, Freda Kedulow committed suicide at her home in Ridgeville, by hanging. It is said that her mind had been slightly deranged.

Sparta—The postoffice at Cataract, ten miles north of Sparta, was entered by burglars, but only about $1.50 in change was secured.

FALLING LOG KILLS A MINER

William Saminio Who Came From Italy a Year Ago Loses His Life.

Eveleth, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald)—Villaux Saminio, a miner, while at work yesterday in the No. 2 shaft of the Adams mine, was killed by the falling of some lagging. Another miner working with Saminio had a narrow escape from death by the falling of the lagging and was unable to warn his partner of the danger in time to save him.

The deceased was 24 years of age and had arrived in this country from Italy. He was single and is survived here by a cousin, John Bertanelli, and brothers and sisters who reside in Italy. His funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the St. Patrick's church.

The accident was the first of it's kind in the Adams mine.

TWO CAUCUSES ARE HELD IN NASHWAUK

Both the Village and the Township Decide Upon Their Candidates.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village caucus held Tuesday evening in the village hall was attended by about 200 people, who displayed considerable enthusiasm over the selection of candidates. Dr. John L. Shellman was chairman, Michael Donovan clerk and George Lindsey and Edward Gaffney tellers. The nominations were made by acclamation. Frederick W. Cram of the Pearson mine was unanimously chosen as president. John H. Carlson secured the nomination for recorder, with no opposition. Mr. Carlson held this office two years ago.

For treasurer William Wivell was a successful candidate. Charles West, John Chianelli and John Lanto were chosen as trustees without any opposition.

M. J. Donovan was a successful nominee for justice of the peace.

For constables, George Maurin, William Hayes, Thomas Vaughan and John Paulson were proposed, but with the withdrawal of Maurin and Paulson, Messrs. Hayes and Vaughan were the successful candidates.

Township Caucus.

The township caucus was held immediately after the adjournment of the village caucus, with Dr. John L. Shellman, chairman; Dr. W. J. Hewson, clerk, and George A. Lindsey and Edward Gaffney tellers.

Paul B. Tvedt was nominated for supervisor for three years without opposition.

M. J. Donovan was the only candidate for clerk and was unanimously nominated.

John T. Ring was nominated trustee. Thomas Vaughan was nominated constable.

For justice of the peace George A. Lindsey and Louis Sherman were named, but Lindsey withdrew.

Oscar Johnston was nominated road supervisor.

John Anderson, John T. Ring and Oscar Johnston were named as a caucus committee for both village and township caucuses for next year.

WAS PRETTY WEDDING.

When Allen Fairbanks Led Miss Willard to the Altar.

Hibbing, Minn., March 3. — (Special to The Herald.)—A pretty wedding took place Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. W. H. Beckstead, when Allen Fairbanks and Miss Grace Willard were married, Rev. Pickard officiating. The bridegroom is a well known Hibbing young man having lived here for several years. The bride came to Hibbing a week ago from Vermont to act as saleslady for the new Island creamery. The couple will reside in Hibbing.

The new Island creamery plant on Third avenue is nearing completion and will be ready for business the last of the week. The company is installing a handsome electric sign in front of its brick block today.

ARMED HOLD-UP MEN GET COIN

F. E. Axt Relieved of $13 and Watch Near His Home.

F. E. Axt of 1129 East Fifth street reported to the police last night that he had been held up at the point of a gun by masked men and relieved of $13 and a watch and chain at the corner of Twelfth avenue east, a few steps from his home.

He had been downtown and was returning home when the two men jumped in front of him from the shadow. One of them forced him to throw up his hands as he shoved the revolver under his nose while the other went through his clothes.

Axt thought he knew who the men were and gave their names and descriptions to the police. He explained that he had seen them watching him change a $10 bill and thought he partially recognized them as the hold-up artists. They were soon located by Lieut. Fritz, Detective Jerry and Sergeant John Roberg, but there was no evidence on which to hold them.

DEEP-SEATED COUGH

CURED IN FIVE HOURS.

New Home-Made Syrup.
(Cut this out.)
From Boston Press.

Progress in medical compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours by the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and thoroughly as to be almost magical. What heretofore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and tones up. Give children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

ate purpose of influencing opinion in the United States and elsewhere, and of attracting recruits from the government's forces. It is now admitted that Gen. Chamorro's campaign was a failure. He had hoped that the interior would welcome and reinforce the insurgent arms. This was possible until the time that President Zelaya resigned. His resignation and the election of President Madriz appears to have satisfied the people of the interior and the West generally, and when Gen. Estrada's army reached the heart of the country they were given a lukewarm reception and little or no aid.

Talk of New Republic.

There is still talk of a new republic comprising the eastern half of Nicaragua. Gen. Estrada may proclaim such a government and appeal to the United States to protect the new republic from invasion by the Madriz government. Additional supplies of ammunition are expected here, and will be used to further a guerilla warfare.

There is a reason to believe that the reports of Chamorro's capture of Granada and the steamer Victoria on Lake Managua were promulgated by President Madriz for the sole purpose of drawing Chamorro into that vicinity.

Still Hope for Intervention.

Chamorro's defeat leaves only Gen. Mena's comparatively small force interposed between the enemy's 1,000 and the east coast. Some of the provisional leaders profess to believe that with Mena's soldiers and such of the depleted insurgent force as could be rallied from the frontier for the defence of a new republic they would stand some chance of success, and that there is a possibility the United States would recognize the new government and forbid further fighting on the ground that the movement of the government forces to the east would be an invasion of one country by another. The experience of the last two months has demonstrated that the revolutionary sentiment in the interior aid did not survive the retirement of Zelaya. Gen. Chamorro, who began the march on Managua, the capital, found himself in the enemy's country and almost alone.

Chamorro's Policy.

He discovered it necessary to adopt a policy of guerilla warfare, aided by great activity in cutting telegraph wires and in making night marches succeeded in deceiving the government and the country generally as to his whereabouts. At times his force was split into small columns which delivered an occasional asp-like stroke. Following this plan Chamorro was reported simultaneously at Matagalpa, at Muymuy, at Boaco, at Comapa and at other places.

a court under such circumstances.

Power of Courts Narrowed.

"The view we have taken is, we think, emphasized when it is remembered that the jurisdiction of the courts over the orders of the commission, as interpreted by the last decision of the supreme court of the United States in Interstate Commerce Commission vs. Illinois Central Railroad, so narrows the power of the courts that in the future it may be safely asserted that there will be fewer attacks upon thes orders than ther have been in the past. The suggestion that the institution of the court of commerce will bring uniformity into the decisions and that it will speed the disposition of cases that may arise is without merit, inasmuch as the supreme court is the final arbiter of the law, and there is no substantial similarity in the facts which the cases develop, nor n the past has there been undue delay in the trial of such cases.

"An inspection of the record will show that the time has been consumed in the preparation of the testimony, and not i nreaching a conclusion after the submission to the courts. Further, it seems to us fundamentally wrong to create a court whose sole work will be the trial of railway cases. Without enlarging upon the subject, we merely remind the senate of the tremendous influences that will inevitably surround the selection of such a tribunal. It is far better for the country that all such controversies shall be disposed of by the regularly constituted judicial ribunals, proceeding in the orderly established way.

Include All Carriers.

In pointing out some of the things the senators think the bill ineffective the senators think make the bill ineffective, the report declares that the measure should include all corporation common carriers and that there is nothing to prevent a holding corporation from issuing all the stocks and bonds it may please. What is termed the most "objectionable and harmful feature" is the proposed departure from the method of defending suits brought by carriers to make inoperative the orders of the commission.

SOUTH ST. PAUL HAS FIRE.

Fourteen Persons Have Narrow Escapes From Death.

St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire which started in the basement of Ed Lawler's saloon, South St. Paul, this morning, got beyond the control of the South St. Paul volunteer fire department and Chief M. H. Ellsworth appealed to the St. Paul department to prevent a general conflagration. Two engine companies and a truck company reached the fire in time to prevent it spreading.

The fire swept up through the three floors of the building. Four roomers over the saloon had narrow escapes and were unable to save their effects.

The blaze burst through the upper windows into an adjoining building occupied by the clothing store of Edward Smith, where ten roomers, one of whom, John McKay, was confined to his bed with a paralyzed leg. The volunteer firemen heard his cry for help and, by rushing through the smoke, carried him to safety. The loss will not exceed $10,000.

A DONNYBROOK AFFAIR.

Operator Knocks Down Sender of Message Who Had a Kick.

Minot, N. D., March 3.—The jury in the case of E. Galeshouse against the Soo railroad returned a verdict of $300 for the plaintiff.

The suit arose at Donnybrook, N. D., where the plaintiff was assaulted by Clarence Holiday, telegraph operator for the road. Holiday, Galeshouse claimed, did not deliver to him a telegram announcing the death of his stepmother in Minneapolis, and as a result he could not attend the funeral. In the altercation which followed the reprimand given the operator, Galehouse was thrown to the floor, his finger broken and his face badly injured.

WHAT WILL CENSUS SHOW

General Opinion Is That the Population Will Be About 80,000.

Estimates Based on School Attendance and Directory Figures.

POPULATION OF DULUTH

Federal census, 1900	52,969
State census, 1905	64,942
Federal census, 1910	(?)

As the time for the taking of the decennial government census approaches, speculation as to the results the counting of Duluth's people will have is rife. That a substantial increase will be shown there is no doubt. Whether that increase will be as large as some people seem to think it will, remains to be seen.

The opinion most widely held in Duluth is that the coming census will show Duluth's population at very close to 80,000, probably a little below, certainly not much over that figure. Little memorandum books distributed at the first of the year by various concerns have lists of cities with the population estimated by the mayor. The mayor of Duluth gave the city a boost by estimating the population at 90,000, which to the minds of many is an exaggerated estimate, while many, basing their belief on directory figures which are unreliable, believe that the mayor's figures estimate the true population.

Very few estimates of the population of Duluth run below 75,000. It is practically certain that the city's growth in tne five years since the state census was taken has been fully as great as it was between the last federal census and the state census of 1905. The growth in population in that five-year period was 22.6 per cent, which applied to the state census figures would give the city a present population of 79,205.

In 1905, at this time of the year, the enrollment in the Duluth public schools was 11,059. At the present time, the enrollment is 12,437, an increase of 12.5 per cent. If that were taken as a fair basis on which to estimate the increase in population of the city, the population at present must be only 73,060. That estimate, however, is probably below the correct number.

The unreliability of directory figures is shown by estimates made on that basis. In the directory for 1905, there were 32,112 names. In that for 1909, the number of names was 41,994, an increase of 30.8 per cent. That per cent of increase applied to the state census figures of 1905, would give a present population of 84,944. But the directory of 1899 had only 21,405 names, while that in 1905 had 32,112, an increase of 50 per cent. On that basis, the population should have increased 50 per cent in the five years, instead of only 22 per cent as it did. The increase in the number of names in the directory between 1899 and 1909 was 96.1 per cent. Applied to the federal census figures of 1900, that would make the present population of Duluth 103,872, which it certainly is not.

All estimates based on such figures cannot but be vain. Duluth's growth has been steady during the past five years. There has been nothing to bring phenomenal growth. New industries have come to the city and workmen have come with them, however. Duluth is a more important city commercially and industrially than it was five years ago. The increased commercial and industrial importance has brought increased population, but not in any such numbers as some people believe. Looking at the matter from every side, the man who bets that the coming census will show Duluth's population at a point between 75,000 and 80,000 should be making a pretty safe bet.

CLAIMS SELF-DEFENSE.

Calumet Man Says He Shot Wife When She Attacked Him.

Calumet, Mich., March 3.—"The whole trouble started through my refusing to purchase some lettuce Sunday evening," said Jo Acotto, in answer to a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, less than the crime of murder, before Justice Fisher.

Acotto was arrested Sunday evening for firing two bullets into his wife's body. He was remanded to the Houghton county jail until March 10, when he will be brought to Calumet to undergo an examination on the charge of shooting his wife.

Acotto stated that his wife wanted him to go out and buy some lettuce for supper. He replied that he had no money, and hot words ensued between the pair. "She advanced upon me with a large table knife," alleged Acotto, "and I fired blindly at her, with no intention of hurting her, but simply to scare her. I hardly knew what I was doing, I was so frightened when I saw her brandishing the knife."

Morgan Goes to Rome.

Naples, March 3.—J. Pierpont Morgan left today for Rome.

DEFENDS HIS POSITION

Governor Eberhart Says Stand on County Option Was Only Fair One.

Takes View of Duluth From Top of New Alworth Building.

"Many of the delegates to the county option convention are heartily in favor of the stand I took, and agree with me in the belief that it was the only stand I could have possibly taken," stated Governor A. O. Eberhart today.

"Most of the delegates to the convention are inclined to take a very intelligent view of the situation. There are some radicals among the delegates, as there are radicals in every movement; yet on the whole I do not think that I made any enemies or created any ill feeling, by the stand I took.

"Under the circumstances, it was the only position I could assume. Those who have considered my position carefully, since the convention, are inclined to agree with me. They realize that I would have been placing the Republican party in an equivocal position by taking any position but the one I did."

Governor Eberhart stated that he would like to announce his intentions in regard to the appointments that are to be made on the board of regents, but there are some facts that must be looked up before any definite decision is made.

The governor intimated that he had no wish to play politics in the appointment of members of the board of regents, and stated that it would be his aim to keep the board out of state politics.

"Political offices are more or less party offices, and to the victor in many cases, rightfully belongs the spoils," said the governor, "but in the case of a board like the state university regents, I am firmly of the opinion that it should be kept out of politics, and that in every instance the best man should be appointed to the place."

When asked if there was anything of political importance or significance in the state at the present time, the governor stated that he had been paying but very little attention to state politics.

"I have been trying to see as much of the state as possible," he stated, "but in no place have I talked politics or made any attempt to make political capital. I am endeavoring to get acquainted with the people of the state. I am beginning to realize that here in St. Louis county you have almost a state, in area, resources and wealth of mineral production. I have been astounded by some of the things I have seen on the range.

"The school systems there have astonished me very much. I had no idea that there was so good. It is to see the needs of the state that I have been visiting different sections of it."

This morning Gov. Eberhart was taken to the top of the new Alworth building, and given a view of the city from the highest point in the state. The elevators ran to within two stories of the top, the governor and the members of the party walking to the roof from there.

"It is the first time that I have ever felt that I have been shown a good view of Duluth," said the governor. "I have been here a number of times, but I have never seen as much of the city as I would have liked to.

The governor left on the 1:55 train for St. Paul.

ORIENTAL LIMITED HAS CLOSE CALL

Hits Avalanche and Nearly Goes Over Precipice Near Spokane.

Spokane, Wash., March 3.—Oriental Limited Train No. 2, eastbound, on the Great Northern railroad, fell a victim to an avalanche of snow and rocks yesterday. One person was killed and twelve injured, some of them seriously. The entire train escaped plunging down a fifty-foot embankment by a narrow margin.

The accident occurred near Milan, a station on the main line twenty-two miles east of Spokane. The train carried 175 passengers.

As the train was rounding a curve, Engineer Alonzo Carle of Spokane and several passengers, saw the great mass of boulders blocking the way. Carle threw on the emergency brakes twenty-five feet before the rocks were reached.

When the train struck gas tanks in the cars exploded. Fire immediately burst out in five of the forward cars and they began to topple over the embankment.

Men Shoved Cars Back.

Conductor B. S. Robertson saw the danger and grasped the only chance to save the rest of the train. Calling for help from the uninjured men passengers, he ran forward and uncoupled the last three cars. With the aid of the passengers these were shoved back out of danger.

The dead:

ED MILLER, Hillyard, Wash., fireman.

The injured:

Alonzo F. Carle, passenger, Spokane; E. F. Swanberg, Mount Vernon, Wash.; Albert H. Fortin, Mount Vernon, Wash.; William O. Elberg, 17 years old, tramp, thrown with the engine down the embankment; B. J. Fahey, Seattle; F. H. Ashley, Seattle, news agent; C. M. Cofinberry, Seattle; H. C. Nelson, baggage clerk, Seattle; P Van Lippeley, mail clerk; John Nelson, mail weigher; Rev. Benjamin Wingel of Chicago, and wife, bruised. Mr. Wingel is 70 years old and is suffering from a wrenched back.

SENATE AND HOUSE

Washington, March 3.—Bills authorizing the issuance of $30,000,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness for the completion of irrigation projects already begun, and providing for the purchase of $10,000,000 worth of real estate in Washington for the future uses of the government, were passed by the senate yesterday.

Senators Heyburn, Bradley and Sutherland spoke on the postal savings bank bill, the last named two favoring the passage of that measure, while Senator Heyburn proposed a substitute for the pending bill.

In the house various bills upon the calendar were considered. The house voted down an appropriation to provide residences in foreign capitals for diplomatic officials.

Asks Prices of Supplies.

The house passed, without a debate, a resolution introduced by Representative Gardener of Massachusetts, calling on the secretary of the navy to furnish to the house prices paid by vessels of the navy during 1909 in the United States and foreign ports for beef, corned beef, veal, pork, bacon, ice, eggs, milk, bread, etc.

Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas was denied the privilege of striking from the record a statement in his testimony before the house committee on public lands in advocacy of the Arkansas "sunk lands" bill, that he would receive a large legal fee if the bill were passed.

According to custom, the senator was permitted to correct the stenographic copy of his statement and when he returned it to the committee al that portion concerning his fee had been eliminated. The committee, in executive session, voted almost unanimously that the senator's original statement should remain in the record.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side, or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all druggists.

tween the business men's representatives and C. O. Pratt, organizer of the street railway employes, Mr. Pratt said that he favored arbitration and would be willing to do almost anything in his power to prevent a sympathetic strike. He suggested that the business men name an arbitrator, the rapid transit company name one, and that these two men select a third, not necessarily a member of the street car men's union.

Little Chance of Arbitration.

But from the position assumed by the company this proposition appeared to stand very little show of even being considered. The mayor was so strong today against any interference by outside persons that he let it be known he would risk an open rupture with the Republican organization rather than give in to the men.

The general opinion among persons who were thought to be in a position to know the feelings of the officials of the company was that there was little hope of averting a sympathetic strike.

An extra detail of policemen was ordered on duty at the city hall to prevent the friends of arbitration from storming the council chamber as was done in 1905, when a monster demonstration was made against the obnoxious lease of the city gas works.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

A LINIMENT FOR EXTERNAL USE.

One of the most valuable qualities of Mother's Friend is that it safe-guards the future health of the mother. It is a liniment to be applied externally to the body, the use of which lubricates the muscles and tendons, softens the glands and ducts, prevents lumps forming in the breasts, and relieves the pain, nervousness, nausea, and other troubles from which so many expectant mothers suffer. When Mother's Friend is used regularly it fits and prepares the system for an easy and natural consummation of the term. Women who massage with this great liniment are always saved much suffering when baby comes, and recover more quickly, and without ill effects. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers.

For Lame Back

HERE'S THE PROOF.

MR. W. H. HAWKINS, Frankfort, Ky., R.R. No. 2, writes: "I have used Sloan's Liniment for backache and sciatica with almost instant relief."

MR. J. W. STEWART, 1216 Chapel St., Cincinnati, O., writes:—"I had suffered with sciatic rheumatism for 14 months when I began using Sloan's Liniment. I got relief at once, and am now entirely well."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is best for lumbago, rheumatism, neuralgia—better than plasters—also for sore throat, croup, sprains, etc.

Prices, 25c., 50c., and $1.00.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MARCH 6. Matt. viii, 2-17: Jesus the Healer.

THE CONNECTION.

After several lessons from the marvelous teachings of Jesus in His great "Sermon on the Mount," we take up three of His deeds of healing.

I.

Leprosy. 2-4.

"And behold, there came to Him a leper and worshipped Him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And He stretched forth His hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou made clean. And straightway his leprosy was cleansed. And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man; but go, show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them."

1. LOATHSOME—There was nothing worse known to mankind. As good as dead, because incurable, the leper was treated as dead. Because constructively dead, he was therefore defiling. Therefore and because the disease was contagious, he was segregated and had to give warning of his presence to any one approaching him. Jesus cured him, actually, really, literally cured him.

2. CEREMONY—The case must be recorded; the ban of ceremonial uncleanness must be lifted—so he must go to the priests to be made ceremonially clean, in order to be restored to his standing in the community and in the sanctuary. Two birds were used, one dipped alive in the blood of the other and that blood sprinkled on the cured leper, this followed by sin offerings and the application of oil to the person. This gave him a bill of health. Jesus always conformed to useful or innocent customs.

II.

The Case of Palsy. 5-12.

"And when he was entered into Capernaum, there came unto Him a centurion, beseeching Him, and saying, Lord, my servant lieth in the house sick of the palsy, grievously tormented. And He saith unto him, I will come and heal him. And the centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldiest come under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man under authority, having under myself soldiers; and I say to this one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it. And when Jesus heard it, He marveled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. And I say unto you, that many shall come from the East and the West, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven; but the sons of the kingdom shall be cast forth into the outer darkness; there shall be the weeping and the gnasing of teeth. And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And the servant was healed in that hour."

1. FAITH—Jesus called this the most extraordinary instance of faith, he had found, although He had evidently been preaching for a year and a half. That faith was surprising, for it was found in a Gentile who had no such opportunity to cultivate it as the Jews had; unselfish, for it was in the interest of another; humane, for it was in behalf of his servant; persistent, for it insisted; humble, for he said I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof; rational, well reasoned, for his argument was perfect. This was the argument: "I am under the authority of Rome and when I speak Rome speaks in me, so that I need only say the word. Therefore, I know that in Thee heaven speaks and Thou needest but to speak the word." Use all the words we can to describe faith, couple them up together and take their combined meaning—confidence, trust, belief, faith. This man's true worth had been discovered by his Jewish friends and they were bearing their testimony to Him.

2. APPROVAL—We can imagine the delight of Jesus and the vision that it brought to Him of the glad day when many Gentiles, of whom this was but the prophecy would be coming to Him for salvation. They would come from the distant points of the moral compass to enjoy equal privileges with the old worthies, in the kingdom of God. But a shadow crossed His vision, for many of His own nation would scorn Him and unfit themselves for a worthy destiny.

The approval is further shown in respecting the humble wishes of the man and treating him at a distance. The argument of the man was irrefragible and miracles are rational to any normal mind, even the much talked of but somewhat evasive "modern mind." To one whom divine powers followed to the earth it was perfectly natural to do what could not be done by those who lacked that power. Disbelief in the miracles of Jesus is unscientific for two reasons: First, it ignores evidences which conclusively establish them. Then it claims to be able to decide on matters which science declares he cannot decide on without evidence.

III.

Fever Cured. 14-17.

"And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, He saw his wife's mother lying sick of a fever. And He touched her hand, and the fever left her; and she arose, and ministered unto Him. And when even was come, they brought unto Him many possessed with demons, and He cast out the spirits with a word, and healed all that were sick, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying, Himself took our infirmities and bare our diseases."

1. HOME—He always loved to be in a home, and we conclude He often visited the kindred of His intimate friends. He always loved to perform deeds that would bring quiet and comfort and harmony and happiness and mutual helpfulness to the home. This is a glimpse into the home of the chiefest apostle. In going with Jesus a large part of the time, Peter was not really neglecting his home, any more than commercial travelers or railroad men or evangelists necessarily neglect theirs. As Capernaum was Jesus' headquarters for more than a year, Peter must have been at home a good part of the time. It was a great joy to Jesus to heal a member of His impulsive, ardent friend's family. That good woman displayed the fine traits of true womanhood in setting about caring for her noble guest. Christ's ministry in the home is always a necessary one, but our answering ministry must seem almost as joyous to Him.

2. NEIGHBORHOOD — Among His neighbors He dispensed His gifts with lavish, loving hand. This healing was preceded by the healing of a demoniac in the synagogue and followed by many more healings as the day was closing. The Sabbath closed at sunset and then all legal restraint on their actions would be gone. They came in crowds to be healed.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

The mere forth putting of the divine will without media or other divine act, is adequate to produce and sustain the universe. The sign manual of Deity is stamped on Christ's works. He rebukes diseases and they cease. He speaks to howling tempests and roaring billows, and there is a great calm. He flings a word into the grave, and Lazarus stumbles out, dazzled, into the light. All creatures, all forces of the universe, are His soldiers; and at the bare word of that "imperator" the embattled and ordered hosts move and act. No grander, truer thought of Christ's sway, its sweep and its manner, can be attained than this heathen soldier had learned from the dreadful instrument of war as a part of which he was at once subordinate and authoritative.—Maclaran.

Do not permit yourself to be mistaken about the remarkable quality in the compassion of our Lord. It was not a nervous irritation at the sight of pain, which everybody (except the human brute, feels by a constitutional necessity. It was that disposition to render help, which, in His case, invariably accompanied this nervous discharge. Nothing is more common than tears in the presence of misfortune; but nothing is so rare as the attendant impulse of assistance. Our Savior seemed driven to rescue the unfortunate by an impulse as irresistible as that which impels people in danger to run away. Without this holy impulse of helpfulness, pity has no moral quality. —Goss.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. Why are not health and holiness as contagious as disease and sin?
2. Why is opposition to the miracles of Christ unscientific?
3. What is the relation between privileges and responsibility?
4. Why is leprosy a type of sin?

PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

County Option Men Intend to Make Issue of That Question.

Instruct Committee to Do Anything Necessary to Elect Optionists.

St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—After repeating their criticism of Governor Eberhart for failing to take an open stand in favor of county option, and after condemning the recent legislatures and the dominant political parties for failing to enact county option and other temperance legislation, the state county option convention yesterday afternoon passed resolutions pledging themselves to use their energies in the different election districts for the election of such delegates to conventions as would aggressively support a county option plank in the state platforms, and to support only such candidates for the legislature and state executive offices as are known to be in thorough sympathy with the county option idea.

The convention did not indorse any candidate for governor, but provided for the appointment of a committee of twenty-seven, charged with the duty of arranging the campaign so that county option men might be nominated and elected throughout the state. If the party conventions fail to adopt the county option plank, the committee is instructed to "take such other steps as will in its judgment best insure the realization of the legislative reform that is our supreme interest in this campaign."

Committee on Resolutions.

The committee on resolutions consisted of K. E. Conley of Rochester; A. C. French of Hills, Rock county; Osmund Wing of Kenyon, E. T. Young of St. Paul, D. F. Swenson of Minneapolis, C. J. Carlson of Cokato, J. F. Jacobson of Madison, L. A. Marvin of Duluth and John Sangstad of Climax, Polk county.

The committee on credentials consisted of O. M. Levang of Lanesboro, Peter Bonde of Willmar, and H. A. Putnam of Ottertail county.

Raps at Eberhart.

The speech of Governor Eberhart was the subject of much comment among the delegates. Not only during the noon hour, but as soon as the afternon session convened, the speakers began to take raps at the governor for his speech, and also for his appointment of men opposed to county option in the temperance committee of the senate.

"I am a Democrat, but I do not need to wait for the next Democratic convention to tell you that I stand for county option," declared Prof. P. M. Magnusson of the St. Cloud normal school, the first speaker of the afternoon. "I am a Democrat, but first of all I am an American citizen, and often every loyality is disloyalty to the country. I am a Democrat only so long as the Democratic party agrees with me.

"People nowadays are using barbed wire instead of rails for fences, and it's getting to be awfully uncomfortable to straddle the fence any longer," he concluded amid storm of cheers and applause.

Hear From E. T. Young.

The address of E. T. Young, former attorney general, was heard with great interest by the delegates present. Mr. Young told them plainly that he was for county option, but he did not believe in prohibition in communities where public sentiment was such that law enforcement would be a farce. Progress, he said, must be slow in order that it may be permanent.

"This is a convention of voters to protest against the domination of the liquor trust in politics of the state," said Mr. Young. "It is a gathering to serve notice what the disinterested and unsubsidized voters wish. The political party that expects to win must make its position clear on this question.

"Public sentiment, when aroused in behalf of a just cause, is an irrepressible force. This is not a question of the right of the individual to use liquor, but how far the government shall license the traffic. If people want to use liquor in their homes, that is a moral question. The public sale of the stuff is a political question.

Right of Regulation.

"The right of the government to regulate or suppress this traffic is not questioned. Some people say that it is an infringement on personal liberty. The government does not care what you wear as long as you clothe yourself decently, and it does not care what you eat or drink as long as it does not destroy your sanity. Intoxicating liquors should be placed with morphine, cocaine and other drugs which destroy the mind and debauch the people. The government must be sober and must exert its influence against intoxication.

"Town option is ineffectual, and the county is the smallest unit with the proper machinery to enforce a provision against the sale of liquor.

"Both political parties and individuals must take a definite stand on this question; they cannot be both for it and against it. And the delegates of the party to the next convention must participate in the councils of the party and assume that leadership which belongs to the majority and not be led around longer by the noses by a dictatorial and pestiferous minority gathered together from the storm centers of reaction.

Accuses the Brewers.

"In the past the brewers have sought to seize the reins of government and control the nominations of both parties They have maintained paid lobbies to get candidates and dictate party platforms.

"In the last legislature we had the spectacle of a leading brewer dictating how much should go to the university and where the normal schools should be located," he declared.

He said that the liquor interests were afraid to let the people of any county vote on the liquor question.

"If it is unsafe to trust the people we had better abandon our form of government," he said.

"I am satisfied that many advocates of prohibition have been a hindrance rather than a help to the cause of rational temperance evolution. But I have tried to do my part towards the enforcement of existing liquor laws, and I heartily favor county option as a practical step in advance."

Mr. Young said he was a Republican and believed that the party must face this and other great questions and settle them right.

Legislature Under Fire.

The attack on the legislature and the governor were renewed by Senator Ole Sageng of Otter Tail county.

"We have heard what a terrible thing this legislature is," he said referring to the talk J. F. Jacobson had made at the forenoon session. "I hope the day is coming when we will have a different kind of legislature. The men who stand right on this issue are likely to be right on all economic questions. First of all we must elect the right man for presiding officer of the senate.

"I say it regretfully that in this respect things have not been what they should have been," he continued after alluding to the fact that he had been a senator the two sessions when Eberhart was lieutenant governor. "During the last two sessions the temperance committees have been cemeteries for temperance legislation. It is a surprise that a man who is responsible for the temperance committees can come here and say they are in sympathy with temperance legislation. If I had been the governor this morning I should have feared that some one would have written on the wall the figures 8 o 1.

Must Steal Enemy's Methods.

"In 1907 the temperance committee made one of the cutest efforts ever planned to cut the vitals out of what little local option law we have. And in 1909 the lieutenant governor reappointed this temperance committee."

Sageng said that the temperance workers must steal the methods of their enemies; "remember your friends and don't forget your enemies." He referred to some of the state officials and makers as "spineless politicians masquerading as statesmen."

E. E. Lobeck, the Prohibition member of the house from Douglas county, said that he was heart and soul for the county option movement. He told how a minister who was with him once in 1907 took the lieutenant governor to task for his appointments on the temperance committee.

"If the house passes the county option bill, what will this committee do with it in the senate?" asked the minister. "I will send it to the committee on public health and pure food," he said that Eberhart replied.

"What do you think of the presiding officer who does not dare trust his own temperance committee with a temperance measure?" asked Lobeck.

Says Committee Got Drunk.

Lobeck said that the members of the committee had been given plenty of liquor, so much that during the closing days of the session one man was in bed four days from drinking bad whisky and another was sick two weeks. a third sat snoring loudly during the sessions of the house and a fourth forgot that he had a wife at home.

A. J. McGuire, director of the state experiment station at Grand Rapids, declared that a movement had been started to remove him from the job because he had taken a stand against the liquor traffic.

"As long as I stayed on the farm and milked cows and planted corn I was all right, but just as soon as I said that for every farmer I have helped the saloon has ruined ten in Northeastern Minesota, they said that I am in politics and must go. My head may be on the block, but I will die in an honest cause."

Frank Nelson, president of Minnesota college, Minneapolis, a former resident of Kansas, said that since the saloons had been driven out of that state a better manhood has grown up, not contaminated by the demoralizing influence of the saloon.

Suffragette Among Speakers.

Representative G. H. Mattson admitted that he was a member of the much-maligned temperance committee, but he was for county option. F. N. Stacy, deputy public examiner, said that he was a Democrat and the convention was the most Democratic meeting he had ever attended. He blamed the Republican party for all the things the county option forces were complaining about.

Miss Wily Dobbin of St. Paul, president of the Political Equality club, addressed the meeting on woman suffrage. She said that the women had always stood for what the men now wanted, and when the women vote they will get county option right away.

The convention passed resolutions of sympathy for Joel Heatwole of Northfield, who was unable to speak on account of illness. There were 1,805 persons who presented credentials as delegates and the committee reported that there were many more who came as delegates who did not present any credentials. Every county except Houston was represented. Hennepin had over 200 and Ramsey over 200. Kandiyohi and two or three other counties had over 100. The officers of the league estimated the attendance at the day sessions at 3,000. The attendance at night was considerably larger.

Hear Seaborn Wright.

At this session Hon. Seaborn Wright, former member of the Georgia legislature and a prominent prohibition worker of that state, was the principal speaker. He was introduced as a born fighter through whose persistent efforts, etxending over a period of twenty-five years, Georgia and other Southern states had forced the open saloons from their borders.

The audience accorded him an ovation when he arose, shouting and waving hats and handkerchiefs, while the band played "Dixie." Mr. Wright made an instant hit by suggesting that the next national ticket be Roosevelt and Folk, "for I see no difference between a progressive Northern Republican and a real Southern Democrat. That would be a prohibiton ticket that every man would vote for."

Mr. Wright stated that the great problem of the South first appeared, when, after the war, 8,000,000 slave negroes, who in slavery had lived enforced prohibition, were turned over to tender mercies of 10,000 licensed saloons. He said that the death knell of the saloon in the South was sounded at that very time, though it took thirty years of hard work to bring it about.

HILL KICKS AT WATER BILL.

Railway Magnate Says City of St. Paul Is Holding Him Up.

St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—James J. Hill strode angrily into the city water office and protested against a bill recently sent him.

Mr. Hill gets a high water service at his residence on Summit avenue, St. Anthony hill. At his gardener's greenhouses below the hill he gets low water service. His gardener hitched the two systems together. The high service pushed through the low service meter several hundred feet per day, whether the water on either service was in use or not.

The water company's inspectors, with mathematic accuracy, added to the increase on the high service the decrease on the low service. The result of the bill was a whopper. Mr. Hill claims the two figures should be subtracted.

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"As an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wiltshire of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact, I know of no other preparation that meets so fully the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croup and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended." For sale by all druggists.

MONEY MUST BE RAISED

To Pay Expenses of the State Conservation Congress.

St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Financial support is the main problem now before the officers of the Minnesota conservation and agricultural development congress which meets here March 16 to 19. It is estimated that the meeting will cost $11,000, and only a small part of that sum has yet been raised.

Minneapolis has been called upon to help St. Paul in raising the entertainment fund, and President H. A. Tuttle of the Minneapolis Commercial club has been made chairman of the finance committee, which has the task of raising the money.

The railroad companies have not contributed, but will do so, and President L. W. Hill of the Great Northern has volunteered to attend to raising funds from this source.

The state has no money available to help pay the expenses of the meeting, and the 6,000 delegates who have been appointed by Governor Eberhart will pay their own expenses. The state irrigation bureau has set aside $1,000 to pay expenses directly in line with its work and Governor Eberhart will pay the cost of printing the proceedings from his contingent fund.

SHEBOYGAN DOCK BURNS.

Loss of Nearly $200,000 By Destruction of Property.

Sheboygan, Wis., March 2.—Fire late last night destroyed Dock No. 1 of the Creiss Coal company, causing a loss of from $150,000 to $200,000. The dock contained considerable coal, but the amount is not known as the head of the company is not in the city. Twenty carloads ready for shipment West were destroyed.

Fargo's Municipal Campaign.

Fargo, N. D., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The three mayoralty candidates are all actively engaged in securing signers to their petitions, but V. R. Lovell was first to file with the city auditor. Former Mayor Sweet and Alderman Hodges will not file for a few days. Under the municipal regulations the first candidate to file gets the first position on the ballot, which is regarded as of some advantage.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR NEW STATE PENITENTIARY.

St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—Minnesota's new state penitentiary is to be constructed by O. H. Olson of Stillwater, and the Hanley-Casey company of Chicago at a total cost of $1,876,347.

The state board of control have awarded the contract for the erection of all buildings and the prison wall to Mr. Olson for $1,322,947, while the Chicago concern will be given $543,000 to supply the mechanical equipment.

EBERHART AND COUNTY OPTION.

That was a ticklish position into which the ardent county optionists of Minnesota gleefully invited Governor Eberhart. They wanted him to tell whether he is for or against county option, and that was precisely the last thing he wanted to tell. They put the question to him pointblank, and invited him to address their convention, thus giving him an excellent opportunity to state his views.

The result was either a masterly piece of diplomacy or an artful bit of dodging, depending upon who tells about it. If the governor's political and partisan friends are relating the incident, they declare warmly that he rose to the occasion magnificently, and disposed of the dilemma in a masterly manner; in the only way it could have been disposed of, in fact.

But if the county optionists are reporting it, they say that it was an out and out "duck," and that his response to their question was meaningless. Very evidently, however good his intentions, he did not please them, for further proceedings in the convention showed that they chose with apparent unanimity to hold the view that the man who is not with them is against them. The speakers assailed him for weakness and for uncourageous opposition to their plan, and the packed auditorium rose tumultuously in appreciation of the onslaughts.

Altogether aside from the merits of the issue of county option, clearly there are weak points in the governor's position. He took the view that it was the governor of Minnesota who was asked his views on county option, when in point of fact it was not the governor of Minnesota who was addressed, but the leading candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, and the man who at this writing seems pretty certain to be the nominee. Intensely and zealously concerned in what is to them a great moral issue, they wanted to know how this candidate stood on that issue, and they believed that they had a right to know.

The governor said, too, that county option is a "legislative matter," and not an executive affair, and while that is partly true, it is no more true of county option than it is of conservation, good roads, reapportionment and other matters less ticklish to discuss, but which Mr. Eberhart discusses with unchecked fluency.

There is a certain element of weakness, too, in the governor's position that he should not declare himself in advance of his party convention. That is likely to be construed as meaning that whatever personal opinions he may have on the subject he is quite willing to smother them at the bidding of the convention. If the convention is for county option, he will be for it, no matter how firmly he may be convinced at present that county option would be a mistake. If the convention is against county option, he will be against it, no matter how well assured he may be at this time—privately, of course, very privately—that county option is a vital need of the state. The old idea that personal opinions must give away to the party dictum is not so strong now as it was, partly because of the discovery that so many party dictums originate in the will of bosses working for selfish interests.

However, the fact remains that the county optionists wanted to know how Candidate Eberhart stands on the issue of county option, and that they did not find out. Candidate Eberhart argued very convincingly that a positive stand taken by him at this time would split his party, and thereupon the county optionists proceeded to demonstrate that his failure to take a positive stand has split his party.

Extremists on both sides to the contrary notwithstanding, men may differ honestly on this question of county option even though they do not differ on the moral and economic benefit of curtailing the abuses of liquor. Those who believe that men cannot be made good by law are as honest in their belief as those who believe that the extinction of the saloon by legislation will produce a millennium of temperance. But men who have opinions, though radically opposed, may respect each other's beliefs, and have very different ideas about those who have no beliefs, or having them, fear to divulge them.

WHERE WERE THE DIRECTORS?

The other day the dispatches told the story of a bookkeeper in an Eastern bank who had robbed the institution of $144,000 by a system of theft ingenious enough to have made him a good deal of money if he had directed it along legitimate lines.

When the young man was arrested and the full story came out of how he had fed his dissipations out of the bank's funds until he had wiped out the surplus and undivided profits and made the bank insolvent, some interesting details were divulged.

It appears that the young man had for some time been living upon a very elaborate scale. He had an automobile, and he employed a chauffeur. He denied himself nothing, apparently. He was having a good time regardless of expense, and though it was necessary to give full hours to the bank in order that he should not be separated from his base of supplies and in order that nobody else should be put on his books, he had plenty of time to give to pleasure, and apparently unlimited money.

The public which witnessed the young man's rollicking career must have assumed that the bank was very generous with its employes, or that he occupied a high, responsible and lavishly paid position.

In point of fact, this interesting young fool was paid $12 a week for his work as bookkeeper.

Of course the public, which saw him in automobiles and scattering money profusely, didn't know about that. But the directors surely did know about it, and the mystery of it is why they didn't also know about his scale of living, and if they did know about it, why they didn't grow suspicious.

Evidently the blame is not wholly the young man's. But there is so much blame to be bestowed in a case like that that there is plenty left for him. Twelve dollars a week isn't much to pay a man who is in a position to steal a fortune, but that isn't the slightest excuse for his stealing it. In this case the young bookkeeper, when arrested and brought back to face the music, seemed to look upon his small pay as a sort of justification for this stealing. It isn't any such thing. He who steals on $12 a week is quite as guilty as he who steals on $100 a week.

If you put your well-filled purse on the front porch before going to bed, and a thief came along, he would steal the purse.

But the thief would be none the less a thief because, in making his theft easy, you had proved yourself an ass.

IF!

If the object of government were the preservation of the Republican party, with all its ugly knots and burls of Special Privilege and treason to free government, William Howard Taft would be widely acclaimed as a great president.

For that appears to be his conception of why he is in the White House—to save the party. His duty to the country and its people seems to be with him a secondary consideration. He looks upon the widening breach in his party as evidence of a merely partisan disaffection, and he seeks to close it by throwing his weight with the organization that has made that breach by its stupid, sullen, stiff-necked and arrogant attitude toward the problems of the day. He does not recognize that the spirit of his party that gave it being lives today in the "insurgents" whose "heterodoxy" he rebukes, and in the rank and file of the party membership which follows in thought and will follow with its votes those leaders whom he deems his enemies and the enemies of his party. He does not realize that this widening gap between true Republicanism, that Republicanism which stands for human liberties and justice, and false Republicanism, that Republicanism which stands for wealth in the mass and cares not a hang for the welfare of the masses, is as irreconcilable as the fight between good and evil. He lays the flattering unction to his soul that by diplomacy and purposeless good fellowship he can heal this breach and restore the old-time unity, and he does not realize that if he succeeded by bribing or browbeating those members of his party who stand for progress, he would bring about a united party doomed to precipitous and well-deserved extinction.

He deems La Follette and Dolliver and Cummins and Clapp and the critical newspapers and magazines to be his enemies and the enemies of his party, when they are its only real friends.

He deems Aldrich and Cannon and their like his friends and the friends of his party, when they are his and his party's deadliest enemies. His party has nothing to fear from its leaders who boldly declare for human rights. It has much to fear from the leaders who are its Judas-friends, and who fight against progress and to preserve the party's devotion to the profit of plutocracy at the expense of the people.

But if the object of government were the preservation of the Republican party and its doctrine of laissez faire, William Howard Taft would be widely acclaimed as a great president.

A FITTING RECOGNITION.

For twenty-six years Dr. Cyrus Northrop has been president of the University of Minnesota, and he will retire from that high place next July, full of honors, to a well-deserved rest from labors that have been full of purpose and achievement.

It is proposed to erect a men's building at the university as a tribute to its retiring president. A movement to that end is now on foot, and shortly it will be state-wide. It should succeed, for surely there could be no finer tribute to President Northrop than to add to the facilities of an institution to the upbuilding of which he has given his ripest years.

When Dr. Northrop became president in 1884, though the foundations had been well laid during the presidency of Dr. W. W. Folwell there wasn't a great deal to the institution. When Dr. Northrop arrived there were but two buildings and only one college, for though previous to this time the colleges of agriculture and engineering were in theoretical existence, practically they were mere modifications of the courses in the college of science, literature and the arts. The total registration for the year prior to Dr. Northrop's coming was 289, and it is now about 5,000. Growth has been steady, and today the University of Minnesota is in the first rank of American institutions of learning. From three buildings in 1884 the university has grown until it has nearly fifty, including the agricultural college at St. Anthony park. The faculty has grown from nine to nearly 400. Since 1887 the university has grown twelve times as fast as the state.

The plans for the proposed memorial building provide for all the various activities of the men of the university, including all of the strictly men's organizations. That it is needed is shown by the fact that utterly without knowledge of the movement to provide it in his honor, Dr. Northrop has included in his last commencement address, to be delivered next June, a special plea for this building, which he regards as the most needed addition to the university at the present time.

The movement is not new. It was started two years ago, before it was known that President Northrop was to retire, and at that time the male students pledged $24,000 in less than a week. With the thought that it is to honor "Prexy," it is believed that this sum will be largely increased by the students.

Certain definite backing has been promised the movement, and it will be so conducted that it will be brought to the attention of all who are likely to contribute, and especially to the alumni of the university wherever they may be located.

The service of President Northrop has added glory to the name of the commonwealth, and this proposed recognition of his splendid services is so fitting that it seems certain to receive unqualified support from all parts of the state.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THE NEGRO CLUBS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The most helpful act ever done for the negro people of Duluth was done by the police in closing the so-called "clubs," conducted by several negro men of the city, last week. These clubs allowed drinking, gambling and other misdemeanors to be carried on illegally.

These clubs also served as a meeting place for those who shunned work, and a dragnet for those who had a few idle hours to recuperate for work.

The right kind of a club would be a Godsend to the negro men of Duluth. A club provided with a good reading room where the many helpful magazines and papers could be read and discussed, and where a gymnasium and swimming pool and bathrooms could be used at will, all these would tend to elevate and bring us shoulder to shoulder with our white bretheren.

A club of this order, if conducted in a part of the city where negro men of repute would not feel ashamed to be seen entering or coming out, would be highly indorsed and patronized. It is now time for the negro to awaken to the fact that he is what he makes himself. A NEGRO CITIZEN.

Duluth, March 2.

CHISHOLM SLIGHTED?

To the Editor of The Herald:

The Duluth News Tribune in its issue of Feb. 28, contains a very interesting and instructive (?) article under the caption of "Hibbing Not Worrying About the Ore Supply." In this article it is clearly applied that the Leonard, Clark, Monroe-Tener, Shenango and Hartley, are mines directly adjoining and contained within the Hibbing district. As a matter of fact, not one of the above mentioned mines is in the Hibbing district, the Monroe-Tener, Leonard, Shenango and Hartley being Chisholm voting precincts. The article is illustrated with a picture of the Monroe-Tener open pit "near Hibbing."

This instance is but one of the many in which Chisholm is purposely or unintentionally misrepresented and slighted.

It would apear to the casual observer that a paper which devotes so much space to frantic howls for "fair play" from the railroads should follow out its much advocated policy of a "square deal" in writing up the articles concerning the several prosperous towns up on the range. Thanking you for space in your valuable paper, I am yours respectfully.

ARTHUR J. HAYES.

The Higher Philanthropy.

Thrilled with the joy of pity,
Glad of the chance to give,
Show us a "stricken city,"
We'll make the dying live!
Gracious! A flood in Paris!
Heavens! An quake in Rome!
What craven tight-wad tarries?
We have no poor at home!

How can an old-world nation
Shelter its own reft sons,
Keeping its reputation
Armies and ships and guns?
Barren of food and money,
Its "Help!" cry shakes the dome.
Send them our milk and honey!
We have no poor at home!

Pelee has spilled some lava!
Mexico's rivers rise!
Terrible breeze in Java!
Instant need of supplies!
Man the relief ship speedy
Guess Uncle Sam'll show 'm
How quick we aid the needy!
He hain't no poor at home!

Earthquake in Wall street? Panic?
Banks and factories close?
Digger, driver mechanic
Idle?—Ah yes, one KNOWS.
But—starting a fund? Why, pastor,
That's only a bugbear gnome!
It isn't a REAL disaster;—
We have no poor at home!

Rise in the river of prices,
Threatening homes and lives?
Famine, by mann's devices?
Plague, that a Trust contrives?—
Rubbish! That's just a blunder!
Take us across the foam;
Show us some blood and thunder!
We have no poor at home!
—Chester Firkins in Puck.

Lawyers and Newspapers.

Law Notes: Of imaginary causes of action there is no end, and much fanciful litigation is a weariness of the flesh. Now comes the report of a lawyer of Toronto who brought a suit to enjoin a newspaper from continuing to omit his name from the published report of court trials in which he appears as counsel. The defendant had already been guilty of at least one such offense. The grievance was that the complainant was being denied the benefit of the advertising which the mention of his name would mean. The high court of Toronto, to which the suit was brought, refused the injunction, ruling that a newspaper in publishing the reports of trials has the right to make such reports as brief as it pleases, and print just so much thereof as it desires, so long as it does not cast aspersions on anybody in such a way as to bring itself within the law of libel. We can find no fault with this decision and do not see upon what grounds the complainant based his hope for legal redress. We recently printed in another column of this paper a statement of a decision wherein it was held that a reputable express company doing business in a certain community had a right to enjoin the omission of its name from a directory furnished to shippers in the community and claiming to give the names of all reputable companies doing business therein, but there the inference from the omission was that the complainant was not a reputable company, and the injury was substantial and real. The Toronto attorney could find no comfort from this case. Indeed, he seems to have been having his innocent joke far afield of any judicial precedent or legal principle. The name of the lawyer who manages a case deemed of sufficient importance to be reported in the newspaper columns naturally forms a part of the news, and contributes to its human interest, but the attorney's right to this gratuitious advertisement will have to be safeguarded by the desire of the newspaper to give its readers the news and not by legal redress. We may next expect to hear of a case in which a newspaper seeks to enjoin some lawyer who furnishes news items for the purpose of advertising his name in connection therewith.

Not Bad.

Cosmopolitan Magazine: It was at a little northwestern town in New South Wales. A traveling Englishman stood on the veranda of the public house watching the sun go down across the black soil plains in a splendor of purple and gold.

"By jove!" he exclaimed to an impassive bushman who was lounging against a post. "That's gorgeous, isn't it?"

The bushman slanted his head a little and looked critically at the glowing west. "Not bad," he drawled; "not bad—fer a little place like Boggabri."

The Three Golden Balls.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The insignia, or coat of arms, of the Medici family, which was possessed of great wealth, and of consequence enormous political importance, in medieval Italy, was a mace with six gilded balls attached. The family tradition was that an ancestor had taken this from the staff of a giant whom he had killed, but the unreasonable popular opinion of the time professed to believe that the balls represented pills, the family name indicating that its first members had been apothecaries. However, this may have been, there is no doubt that money lenders about the beginning of the fourteenth century appropriated three of these balls as a suitable sign to indicate their place of business, and have retained it ever since.

THE WEATHER.

Who longs for the sun-kissed slopes of California or the balmy breezes that blow o'er the Gulf states? Surely nobody who happens to be in Duluth during this delightful weather. There's a touch of spring in the air, and even though one knows that spring is not here, that cold weather and raw winds will come and that this is a touch of spring and no more, one can forget and enjoy it while it lasts. The lowest temperature in Duluth last night was 24 deg., while at one time yesterday the mercury was up to 40.

A year ago today was clear, bright and mild.

The sun rose this morning at 6:44 and it will set at 5:56, giving eleven hours and twelve minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Slight barometric depressions are central over Western Canada and Western Mexico, the principal result being the rather mild temperature in all districts. Further rains have fallen over Oregon Washington, Southwestern Montana and Atlantic states during the past twenty-four hours. The barometer is high over the Rocky mountain states and the Mississippi and lower Ohio valleys. Flood conditions prevail over the greater part of the Ohio river and its tributaries.

"Indications favor a continuance of generally fair and mild weather at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours.

Following were the maximum temperatures for twenty-four hours and the minimum for twelve, ending at 7 a. m., today:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, March 3.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Friday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges—Partly cloudy weather tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; moderate northeast to southwest winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, March 3.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Upper Michigan—Generally fair tonight and Friday.

North and South Dakota—Fair tonight and Friday; moderate temperature.

Iowa—Generally fair tonight and Friday; warmer in northeast portion.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy tonight and Friday; warmer in north and west portions tonight.

Minnesota and Montana—Partly cloudy tonight and Friday; moderate temperature.

Early Morning in the Harbor.

There's a gleam across the Basin and a hearty hale "Hello"
Borne out upon the morning o'er the fields of ice and snow;
There's a wisp of smoke curls upward from the chimney, that reflects
The love and cheer abounding in the home below the decks;
There's a movement of the shadows and the clanging of a bell—
The keeper's way of saying to his neighbor "All is well"—
Then a medley of answers from the vessels left and right,
And golden dawn has conquered all the somberness of night—
Then it's "Howdy, Mister Captain,
And our best respects to you—
And the same to Missus Captain,
And the little Captains, too!"

There's a gleam from off the shoreline where the city dwellers yawn,
That like the head of friendship reaches out across the dawn—
There's another and another, 'til a thousand seem to glow
And greet the vessel keepers out beyond the ices and snow;
They are greetings from the landsmen,
safe from Fate's capricious slips,
To men who court the danger of the
pathless sea and ships—
Each a message sweetly burdened with the love of men for men,
And hopes for love and safety when the seaway calls again—
It says "Howdy, Mister Captain,
And the best of luck to you—
And the same to Missus Captain
And the little Captains, too!"
John D. Wells in Buffalo News

"Pussyfoot" Johnson.

Victor Rousseau in Harper's Weekly: In August, 1906, Johnson was appointed by Secretary Hitchcock, at the suggestion of Commissioner Francis E. Leupp, to be special agent in Indian territory, for the purpose of stamping out the sale of intoxicants to Indians. In 1808 he was made chief of the service, and, after Indian teritory attained to statehood as part of Oklahome and ceased to be under federal jurisdiction, Johnson's duties were extended to cover all Indian reservations throughout the country.

When Johnson went down to the scene of operations, he found four courts and eight judges, with 6,000 criminal cases awaiting trial. It was evident that he might kick his heels in patience until the day of universal judgment, before his own cases could be adjudicated. That would have disheartened most men, but here was where "Pussyfoot" began. With a big six-shooter, a steel hammer, and a jimmy—the last two being used for opening boxes, barrels, and other packages of liquor—he started out on what he describes as a "knock-down and drag-out" proposition. During a period of something more than fourteen months he effected 2,135 separate seizures, made 1,142 arrests, burned up the paraphernalia of 76 gambling houses, sold under libel proceedings nearly 100 horses that had been seized bringing liquor into the territory, and destroyed the following quantities of intoxicants: Alcohol, 389 gallons; Choctaw beer, 1,652 gallons; cider, 4,821 gallons; bitters, 5,914 bottles; beer, 109,754 pints; wine, 402 pints; whiskey, 46,236 pints; other liquors, 194 pints. The total value of the property destroyed in these raids amounted to $118,520.

Stung, But Unaware.

Ramsey Benson in Life: If the plain people don't know they've been betrayed it's their own fault. They spend all their time reading the murders on the first page and don't get in where the editorials are.

And if they knew, there probably wouldn't be anything done about it, party spirit being what it is.

That's what parties are for, to keep the masses to their proper economic function of pulling chestnuts from the fire for the politicians and their friends. By their instrumentality it becomes possible to fool enough of the people enough of the time so that a tariff by Rhode Island and for Rhode Island need not perish from the earth.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

•••William D. Brace of Washington has arrived on a short visit with his brother, E. R. Brace.

•••A verdict of $4,000 has been returned in the United States court against Wolf & Truax. Last August a boy named Walsh, living at Thirteenth avenue west, stole from them a dynamite cartridge and pounded it so that it exploded, putting out one of his eyes. Suit was brought against the contractors for $20,000 damages, and a verdict of $4,000 was given.

•••The last regular session of the old city council attracted a large crowd. The comptroller's report showed estimated receipts of $197,750 from the county treasurer and licenses for 1890. The report of the treasurer for the year showed a balance of $52,094 on hand.

•••Jacob Hector has just been appointed master of the steamer Dixon, vice Capt. Martin Wheeler, whose long and arduous services have earned him the rest he now intends to take. Capt. Hector has been fish warden for this district, and he will resign that office.

•••Mitchell & McClure are looking for a site for a sawmill to be erected at West Duluth, and it is said that two other large companies are trying to purchase sites here.

•••Nearly every frequenter of the city hall has noticed Mrs. A. B. Burke, the faithful janitress. She is one of the oldest settlers at the Head of the Lakes, having arrived at Superior in 1857, before "there were a half dozen chimneys in the county." Her husband immediately set about building his house, but the only place where dry lumber could be had was at "Bill Nettleton's mill in Duluth." Mrs. Burke speaks in the kindest terms of Capt. R. G. Coburn, whom she calls a public benefactor, and but for whose open-handed generosity many people still living in Duluth and Superior would have starved. Mrs. Burke lived for twenty-three years in Superior and then came to Duluth, where she has since resided.

FOR NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

It Must Succeed.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: From fourteen Southern Minnesota counties, thirty-four representatives go to the state legislature. These counties cast 53,828 votes, an average of 1,584 votes for each representative. From thirteen Northern Minnesota counties come nine members representing a voting population of 30,580 or one to each 3,390. Re-apportionment is the issue with Northern Minnesota people and it will be their issue until the arrangement that leaves 50 per cent of them without representation is rectified. Here's to their success.

Was a Rouser.

Sandstone Courier: The Northern Minnesota convention at Bemidji last Thursday and Friday was a rouser and is the first step toward the coming of Northern Minnesota into its own. Reapportionment was the leading subject of discussion and it is now certain that this will be taken up by the next legislature.

They Meant Business.

"Live Wire" Koll in Cass Lake Times: I have been at conventions and on committees thereof, since I was a boy; they have been of all kinds for a great many different kinds of purposes, but a more positively in earnest set of men with ideas and the power to express them than those it was my fortune to work with on the committee of resolutions at Bemidji last week, it has never been my good fortune to meet.

Put It In the Platforms.

Ada Index: Since the Bemidji convention all the big daily papers editorially agree that Northern Minnesota has been treated shamefully by the legislature in refusing reapportionment and other laws to develop this section. As one paper says we have been neglected by all except the tax gatherer. It is a question whether the state has the right to tax us when we are denied the rights guaranteed us under the Constitution, and it is time every county in the North stood together to get what we are entitled to. We should not wait for the next legislature, but should get together at the coming state convention and have our demands incorporated in the platforms and in case of failure we would know what to do.

The Demnads Are Reasonable.

Princeton Union: It is to be hoped that much good to Northern Minnesota will result from the Bemidji convention. Thirty counties were represented in that convention. It was a thoroughly representative assemblage and the resolutions and recommendations adopted should carry much weight. The proceedings throughout were harmonious and enthusiastic. The people of Northern Minnesota want a square deal and that they will insist upon having. First, they will demand the representation they are entitled to in the legislature at the next session, in accordance with the spirit and letter of the Constitution; secondly, they will insist upon the state contributing its share towards the improvement and enhancement in value of its own property; thirdly, a square deal for the settlers. These demands are reasonable and should be acquiesced in by the people of the entire state.

It's a Band Wagon, Now.

Cass Lake Times: It is to laugh to read the editorials in the Minneapolis Tribune and the Pioneer Press in favor—in favor mind you, of the reapportionment of Northern Minnesota. Presumably all the other recalcitrant papers will now fall into line, and the first thing we Northerners know, these papers will be taking credit for having made recognition of the North country possible. Doubtless some of them will go so far as to claim the demand for reapportionment originated in their own brain baskets, and this too after years of the most violent opposition to any kind of development for the northern portion of Minnesota. But they see the band wagon and true to their own dominating natures they each covet the baton of the drum major, hence the kaleidoscopic change. And we who win may laugh.

It Had a Real Purpose.

Eveleth Star: There is no party in Minnesota that has ever held a political convention where enthusiasm abounded with such fervor and will such a genuine ring as that of the Northern Minnesota Development convention held at Bemidji.

Give Me the Roses While Living.

Fargo Forum: The song published below was written by the late Frank J. Thompson of Fargo. Mr. Thompson left the request that this song be sung at his funeral, but owing to the fact that it had not been set to music that could be used on the organ this was impossible.

The sentiment expressed shows the spirit of the kindly man whose philosophy of life was exactly that expressed by the words.

The silent feet, the roses rare,
The heavy perfume on the air;
What needs the heart that beats no more,
The show of love when life is oe'r?

The joy we bring let's bring today,
And not the morrow's silent way;
Why give in life the thorns to bear
And wait 'till death for roses rare?

The heart that feels the trembling tear,
The startled soul awake in fear,
Doth need the love we wait to bring
When sorrow needs no offering.

Let's give our music, song for song,
While hearts may know the touch of wrong.
Wait not till sleep has soothed the care
For love to bring his roses rare.
L'ENVOI.

Somewhere, from the roses, may be,
Somewhere from the crowd and the throng,
Somewhere from the soul of it all
I feel in my spirit this song:
What is the heart if it sing not?
What is the soul if it clings not?
What is this life but hunger,
Waiting for love asleep.
Give me the roses while living.
Not in the sighs of your grieving,
Not in a touch of slumber,
Not with the eyes that weep.
Give me the sunlight 'afalling,
Voices in tenderness calling,
Love by its mystic number
Waken his watch to keep.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Washington Herald: "You seem to have gotten your boys interested in mythology very nicely."

"Yes; I explained to them that Hercules held a championship."

Woman's Home Companion: Teacher Jimmy, you look very pale this morning. Are you ill?

Jimmy—No, ma'am. Ma washed my face this morning herself.

Chicago Tribune: "Instead of boycotting beef, why don't you accustom yourself to eating the cheaper cuts?"

"There are no cheaper cuts. There are only the expensive, the more expensive and unattainable."

Judge: "And why are you so enthusiastically in favor of woman suffrage so suddenly," asks the husband.

"Why, my goodness gracious, John! Didn't you read in the papers that Mrs Divorced-Twice, the leader in the best society, has taken up the crusade?"

Catholic Standard and Times: "The huckster who used to cheat us so," said Mrs. Byers, "has been arrested."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Naylor, "I hear he's in a peck of trouble now."

"Well, I do hope that peck isn't short measure at any rate."

Chicago News: "I see you have marked 'Nicaragua' on de gatepost," interrogated the tall tramp on the roadside. "Does that mean de farm is a good place for scraps?"

"No, pard," responded his up-to-date chum of the ties, "dat means it is a good place to keep away from."

Chicago Record-Herald: "We've got to cut down our expenses," said Woodby, "we are living in a style that makes everybody think my income must be twice as big as it is."

"Well," his wife replied, "what more do you want, seeing that there is no chance for you to double your income?"

Judge: Mrs. Benham—You have torn my train!

Benham—That's all right; your train is long enough to be in two sections.

Yonkers Statesman: Waiter—And how did you find that chop, sir?

Fat Customer—I really don't know how I happened to. It was pretty small, now, wasn't it?

St. Louis Star: "What did she do when he kissed her?"

"Slapped him on the cheek."

"And what did he do about the other cheek?"

"Kissed that, too."

Cleveland Leader: "They are going to lock Jones up for the good of the community."

What's he done?"

"He's talking of setting Browning's poems to Richard Strauss' music."

Boston Herald: "Have a cigar, old man?"

"Ah! A new arrival over at your house?"

"Yes; an uncle of mine blew in from Pittsburg last evening."

Philadelphia Record: "You should hear in mind," said the publisher, "that four-fifths of the people who read novels are women."

"That's why I call my new story 'The Last Word,'" replied the novelist, "every woman will want it."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man's idea of a good wife is if she thinks he's a grand husband.

A big lie is no more of a sin than a little one, but it's easier to see through.

The only fault a woman has to find with a looking glass is it doesn't lie enough.

Only One Message.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The lady of the house where they use a "party line" told the new maid to repeat to her any message. Then the lady went shopping. When she returned she summoned the maid.

"Did you receive any message for me, Jane?" she inquired.

"Only one, ma'am. I thought I heard th' bell ring, ma'am, an' I took down th' receiver, ma'am, an' just then a voice said, 'Listening again, are you, you old snoop?'"

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The Women's Council will hold a meeting once each month instead of a bi-monthly meeting.

The individual clubs of the city will be asked to interest themselves in providing seeds for children of the various schools and arranging for flower shows in the autumn.

A committee will be appointed to make arrangements for an active campaign to promote the cleanliness of the city.

These matters were decided at a largely attended meeting of the Women's council which was held this morning at the library. The council is constantly growing and it is at present truly representative of the women of the city, almost every woman's organization in Duluth being represented by its president and one other delegate. Mrs. R. N. Marble, vice president of the council presided at this morning's meeting.

Mrs. J. L. Washburn was elected president of the council since leaving the city for her winter home in South Carolina, and at her written suggestion the committees of the council have been renamed. There will be three general departments for the work, civic, educational and industrial and under one of these heads will come the sub-committees and any work undertaken. There will be in addition the finance and press committees.

The matter of a cleaner city was discussed in detail and a committee will be named to wage an active campaign for the general cleanliness of Duluth.

The Women's club of Minneapolis has placed advertisements in the street cars of that city urging the citizens to unite with them in doing all possible for the cleaning of the city and this method was approved at the meeting this morning and it is possible that some such plan will be followed here.

Miss Poirier reported briefly of the Associated Charities. She asked the co-operation of the members of the council and the clubs they represent in discouraging begging from door to door. The practice is prevalent in Duluth, and the Associated Charities and the police are anxious to have it discontinued. "With the Associated Charities in the city there is no need for giving money at the door or giving clothes," said Miss Poirier. "We know of one man who collected no less than $64, and he is utterly unworthy of the help that individuals are giving him. He has three children working, and besides received a large sum of money as damages for the injury which he makes a feature of in his appeals for help. We know, also, of two women who solicit clothes from door to door, and Duluth women will be giving the first aid to the associated charity work by refusing money and clothes to such appeals at the door. It is to organize charitable work that it may be effective that we are formed into a society, and this first help must come from the citizens."

The lecture by Mrs. Florence Kelley, which will be given tomorrow evening at the Commercial club, was spoken of. Mrs. Kelley is being brought to Duluth by the Women's Council and will speak under the auspices of that organization and the Commercial club, and there is great interest in the woman and her work. Mrs. Kelley is the author of several books and many magazine articles and is a speaker in great demand. She has been secretary of the National Consumers' league for ten years and was re-elected to that position at the annual conference held this week at Milwaukee. The lecture tomorrow evening will be at the Commercial club at 8 o'clock and is free to men and women.

NATIONAL WORKER

Mrs. Florence Kelley in Free Lecture Here.

"The Consumers' league is trying to get food that is pure for the stomach and clean for the conscience," said Mrs. Florence Kelley, secretary of the league at the annual meeting held this week at Milwaukee, "and the latest effort is to get full weight and measure by co-operation with state and city sealers, the officials who test weights and measures.

"This has been taken up particularly by the league in New York. We have allowed the use of the label of the Consumers' league on milk bottles in Oregon, on condition that the milk sold be pure and the working conditions reasonable.

"Another matter of great importance which the league will take up, is work to prevent slave-grown cocoa from being received into our markets. At present about all of the slave-grown cocoa is dumped on our shores, as both England and Switzerland refuse to allow such cocoa to come into their ports."

Representatives from all over the United States, including delegates from Oregon, Missouri, Ohio, New York, the whole of the executive board from Illinois, with the exception of Miss Jane Addams, Chicago, were in Milwaukee for the National Consumers' league annual convention.

Mrs. Kelley will arrive in Duluth tonight to speak at the Commercial club tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Commercial club and the Women's Council of this city.

This will be Mrs. Kelley's first visit to Duluth, but her work as a writer and speaker is known to many Duluthians. She has addressed the students of the Eastern colleges on many occasions and many Duluth women heard her during their student years. She has also spoken at large federation meetings. Mrs. Kelley is most closely identified with the work of which she has been secretary for ten years, and she is also a vice president of the National Women's Suffrage association. She is an authority on the condition of labor among women and children workers in America.

The lecture Friday evening at the Commercial club will be at 8 o'clock, and is free. Men and women are invited to attend.

Luncheon at Club.

Mrs. Florence Kelley, who will speak here tomorrow evening, will be the guest of honor at a luncheon at the Commercial club tomorrow at 1 o'clock. The officers of the Women's Council have been invited as guests at the affair.

MRS. A. J. DREXEL AND DAUGHTER, MARGARITA.

This is a late portrait of Miss Margarita Drexel, whose engagement is announced. She is pictured with her mother, who is one of the youngest looking matrons in society in Philadelphia. Preparations for the wedding of Miss Drexel are already under way. It will take a long time to prepare the elaborate trousseau.

RENE VIVIENNE

Has Returned From Berlin to America.

Miss Rena Vivienne, who has been studying in Berlin for two years, has returned to America, called here by a special cable from the Savage offices, and is now with her mother, Mrs. Smith, in New York. No plans for her further professional life have been announced, but it is anticipated that Miss Vivienne will soon be featured in one of the Savage productions. Duluthians who have seen and visited with Miss Vivienne since her return, are enthusiastic in praise of her continued growth in her artistic life and anticipate great things for her future.

WASHINGTON RECITAL

Mrs. Clarence B. Miller Plays There With Success.

Mrs. Clarence B. Miller of this city, was the pianist at a recent recital of the Washington Musical club, one of the most exclusive musical organizations of the capital, and she was most cordially received. Mrs. Miller presented the program with Miss Patton who sang before the Matinee Musicale two or three years ago, while she was in the city, a guest of Mrs. Lee Farmer.

MINNESOTA PARTY

Is Delightful Event of New York Hosts.

A number of Minnesota people were entertained at a delightful musicale in New York recently, by Miss Jennie Ralston and George Ralston, who formerly lived in Duluth, at their home at Riverside Park. A number of the guests are in the East studying music, others of them have achieved success in their professional life. Among the Duluth people present were Miss Ann Worthington, the stage name of Miss Mollie Woods, known to many Duluthians and Miss Rena Vivienne and her mother; Mrs. Smith, who is now in New York; Mrs. Fred Reynolds and her daughter, Miss Gladys Reynolds; Miss Daisy Bassett, John Koneczny, George Suffell and Fred J. Home Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Rosella Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harmony Bartlett to Percy Payne took place Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents at Fifty-seventh avenue east. The house was prettily decorated in pink carnations and ferns and the service was read at 7 o'clock by the Rev. Hunt of the First Christian church. The bride wore a pretty white gown and carried a bouquet of violets. Mr. and Mrs. Payne will be at home after March 10 at 525 East Sixth street.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Boston of Two Harbors, Minn.; Miss Olga Ketchison of Milnor, N. D.; Fred Bartlett of Laurel, Miss.; Mrs. Perry Payne of St. Paul, Mrs. S. Payne of Spooner, Wis., and Mrs. Camp of Denver, Colo.

Hosts at Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Whyte entertained the members of their bridal party and a few other guests at dinner last evening at their home on Eighteenth avenue east. The hostess wore her bridal gown and the guests who were attendants at her wedding in the autumn wore the gowns of that occasion. The appointments were in yellow and covers were placed for the following guests:

Misses—
Swift,	St. Clair,
Ostrom,	Rebecca Bailey.
Paine.
Messrs—
Brewer,	Welch,

WOMEN TEACHERS

Are Discriminated Against in Matter of Pay.

"Equal pay for equal work" long has been the demand of women teachers in the United States, says Grace C. Strachan, president of Interborough Association of Women School Teachers, city of New York, in the Delineator for March. Year after year, as their profession has been reduced more and more to a science in the widespread effort to improve the public schools, the great army of devoted women, whose calling means more to the future citizenship of the country than any other of the learned professions, have become restive under the most patent injustice. Work has been increased, but the pay has not been adjusted so that it could be accepted as just compensation. There has been always discrimination in favor of the men members of the profession.

Take another instance. It is a well-recognized principle that the supervisor should be paid a higher salary than the person supervised by him. Yet in New York's remarkable schedule of salaries the maximum salary of an assistant to principal, if a woman, is $1,600, though she supervises male teachers who receive as high as $2,160 and even $3,000.

Again, to be principal one must have had at least ten years of experience, must have passed an examination, which records prove to be very difficult, and must have waited often as long as four years for appointment from an eligible list. Supposing a most unusual case—that a woman becomes a principal in her twelfth year of service, her salary of $1,750 as such, is $205 less than that of a male teacher, also in his twelfth year of service, who may be teaching a "baby class" and is $650 less than that of a male teacher of a graduating class.

Her maximum salary of $2,500 is only $100 more than that of a male teacher who may have a small class of girls in the graduating class, while she may have the responsibility of a school of 3,000 pupils and the supervision of sixty teachers. A male principal of the identical school would receive $1,000 a year more than the woman.

PARIS TEACHERS

Are Capable, Mediocre, or Poor—Mostly Poor.

William Armstrong, in the Woman's Home Companion, says: "The methods and evidenced results of French vocal training cannot be so pleasantly regarded. As a people, we have suffered too great a multitude of unfortunate experiences to let the situation go without plain speaking that the American girl may know, as she too often has not known, true conditions in Paris.

"It is estimated that there are 5,000 vocal teachers in Paris; they manage to thrive, and mainly on the money of Americans. The number of really great singers the French teachers have sent us in return for the outlay of many thousands, is practically nil.

The two most distinguished exceptions are Miss Mary Garden and M. Renaud of the Manhatta opera house. But again, the great success of both artists is due mainly to their admirable acting.

"Of those achieving notable successes at the Metropolitan opera house and studying in Paris, Madame Melba, Madame Eames and Madame Calve made their debuts from the classroom of Madame Marchesi, a German, while M. Plancon studied with Sbriglia, an Italian, who made M. Jean de Reszke a tenor.

"Yet the procession to French teachers grows each year in volume, unaffected by any thought of discouraging statistics.

"A new arrival in Paris will calmly assert, without questioning or experience, that it is the only place in the world to study; go out the next morning and arrange for lessons with a teacher whose name she has heard or read, or possibly engage hours with a stranger of whom she has done neither, but whose expressed opinion of her voice is more flattering than that of any other she may have visited.

"The old fetish that every teacher of music who is a foreigner must consequently be a good teacher, which long ago vanished in America, appears still to hold sway with our country people once in Paris. To be known there as vocal teachers seems but too often an all-sufficient recommendation."

THE EVENING STORY

THE ETERNAL BOND

By George T. Eaton.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

When Lawyer Billman and his wife took a little 2-year-old baby girl into their home there was a buzz of excitement in the neighborhood. The Billmans were childless. But even so, the neighbors felt that the affair was unusual at least, and that some explanation should be forthcoming. The busy inquiries elicited the information that the baby had been found by Mr. Billman himself, and brought home to Mrs. Billman, with a request that she take it and rear it.

Then there were quiet shakings of the head and whispered doubts as to the relationship of the lawyer with the child. Some of the more interested ones even expressed sympathy for Mrs. Billman, and rather criticised her as being weak and a dupe.

Little Ethel, as she was called, grew and flourished under the good care of Mrs. Billman, until she became a beautiful child of 6—at once the pride and despair of the neighborhood. Other pretty little ones there were, but none to hold a candle to the dainty Ethel. At the Billman home she was simply worshiped. Mr. Billman, who never had been particularly fond of children, unbent under the sunlight of Ethel's nature, and became passionately fond of her; and as for Mrs. Billman, she was never happy while away from the little one.

Lawyer Billman was very busy with a mass of papers when a rustle arrested his attention and he glanced up to behold a tall, stylishly dressed woman with a regal carriage, standing before him.

"Mrs. Van Dorst!" he exclaimed, after a moment of stupefied staring. "Pardon me, but I did not get your card."

"No, I did not send it in," she replied, calmly. "I walked past the door boy. I wanted to be sure to see you, and did not propose to be put off by a servant. Mr. Billman, I want my baby. I have recovered my health, and am going to establish a home for myself and the little one."

"But, my dear madam, you forget that the child was placed where she is by direction of Mr. Van Dorst, in whose possession she was."

"But she is mine, and I will have her," cried the woman, with a menace in every tone and gesture. "I have been deprived of her for four years, and supposed Ernest took her to Europe with him until a few days ago I learned that he had employed you to put her in the hands of strangers. Where is she? Tell me, or I will tear the information from you with my finger nails."

"You forget, madam," replied the lawyer, with dignity, "that in this matter I am acting as the attorney for your husband, and it would be the most flagrant breach of trust to give you any information whatever.

"This is especially true," he added, more gently, and with a touch of pity in his voice, "inasmuch as I have on my desk a letter instructing me to bring suit for divorce and to secure for him the custody of the child."

"He can never do it," she replied, with deadly calmness, although her eyes blazed like diamonds. "No, not even with your help. He can have his divorce, and welcome. But not the little girl. I don't know anything about courts of law, or anything of that sort, but I will find a way to prevent it if it ends in a tragedy."

Then, melting into tears, she threw out her arms and said: "Is she alive? Is she well? Tell me, oh, if you have a drop of human blood in you, tell me."

The lawyer's eyes were suspiciously moist as he replied in tones as steady as he could command:

"She is well, Mrs. Van Dorst, and in the best of hands, where everything is being done for her—and I think I may say she is happy."

"I thank you for so much of comfort," she replied, as she swept from the office. Then, turning at the door, she added: "I warn you and your client that I will defeat you in this villainous plot. My husband's suspicions are untrue and cruel, and while I will not fight his divorce, if it does not involve the loss of my child, I will fight him and you and the law and everything in the universe with every weapon in a desperate woman's power before I will submit to the loss of my baby."

A few weeks later a sturdy, tanned, well-groomed young man invaded Lawyer Billman's office carrying with him the smell of the ocean and the atmosphere of a domineering spirit. He was a handsome fellow, with all the marks of birth and breeding—and the suggestion of willfulness born of indulgent parents and admiring friends. His strong, handsome features were marred only by the juxtaposition of the eyes which suggested jealousy and suspicion.

"Well?" he said.

"I have followed your instructions," replied the lawyer.

"How long will it take?" demanded the client.

"I do not know," replied the lawyer. "She will fight the case to the bitter end."

"Fight the case!" exclaimed the other. "She told me she wouldn't live with me under any circumstances."

"But she will not consent to your having the child," replied Billman.

"The child!" flared up the other. "Does she think a descendant of the Van Dorsts is to be permitted to grow up among a lot of actors and montebanks?"

"She will fight," said the lawyer, calmly. "She has employed Hirsch. It will be a fierce and a long fight—and I fear a fearful scandal."

"My God, my poor mother!" cried the other, pacing the room. "Fool that I was to marry an actress. Well, go ahead, and help me reap the whirlwind."

"Ernest," said the lawyer, in a very different voice than his, the professional one, he had been using, and rising and placing his hands on the younger man's shoulder, "are you thinking at all of the little girl in this matter—of Ethel?" and Billman's voice had that in it which would have caused great surprise in any court where he practiced.

Van Dorst looked at him in surprise. "What do you mean?" he asked.

"The scandal will hit her harder than any other person," Billman replied, steadily. "And she is such a sweet and dainty little thing. "I tell you, Van Dorst, before we go ahead in this matter, you must come and see the girl. And we will do it now." This latter in a tone so decisive that Van Dorst found himself carried off his feet for once in his life, and before he recovered was in a cab rushing rapidly toward Billman's home.

Billman conducted Van Dorst directly into the nursery, without waiting on ceremony. Opening the door, what was his surprise (to say nothing of the emotions of his guest) to see Mrs. Van Dorst sitting in the middle of the room holding Ethel in her arms, the little one's arms wrapped about her neck, with Mrs. Billman and the nursemaid weeping silently in different sides of the room.

As Billman entered the room and his wife caught sight of him, she arose and with snapping eyes, said: "Mr. Billman, if it's your business to steal babies from their mothers, to satisfy the malice of jealous husbands, you had better quit and go into some honest business—or else go into your own road without me. I can take in washing and earn an honest living."

The woman with the child had also arisen and stood with the little one's arms still around her neck. Her blazing eyes had caught and held those of her husband.

"Ernest," she said, quietly. "You are not going to hae her. Before that can happen, I will kill you or her or all three of us. Make no mistake about it. Your bitter injustice to me I will endure, but you shall not part me from my baby."

"Injustice!" exclaimed Van Dorst, throwing back his splendid shoulders. "Injustice. When I saw you hand a note to that cheap vaudeville actor, Linn—and you promised you would cut out the whole actor crowd when we were married. Explain that if you can."

"I will never explain anything to you as long as I live," replied the woman, in low, tense tones.

"Then I will," snapped Mrs. Billman. "She was sending some money to a poor, dying old man who had been her friend and preceptor when she was a child, and her guardian and friend all the time she was on the stage. Oh, you men—and then talk about brains."

At this moment Ethel, who had been sizing up the situation with the philosophy of childhood, said, demurely: "Papa, come here; I want to kiss you."

Van Dorst looked searchingly at the child for the first time, and his quick perception took in her rare beauty. The defiance faded from his eyes, and he started toward her.

At this particular psychological moment Lawyer Billman found himself being hustled very rapidly and very certainly out of the room, and once outside he found his good wife beside him somewhat winded and very indignant at the obtuseness of men in general, and of Billman in particular. He also observed as a peculiar fact that the nursemaid seemed to have beaten them to the door, and was already on her way downstairs. To all of which circumstances the lawyer gave great and profound thought that night, and from which his wife had arrived at before she started to get him out of the room, and which had also apparently crossed the mind of the nursemaid at about the same time.

There was no divorce suit.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

THREE GAMES EACH SERIES

Superior Wants Four-Game Rule of League Changed This Year.

Jack Corrigan Will Manage Rochester---Ground for Park Secured.

If a report that has received circulation in Superior is true, Secretary Cheverall of that club, who will represent the Superior organization at the Red Wing meeting of the league directors, has a tentative schedule all framed up.

According to the information wafted from Superior, Cheverall has planned for three-game series the coming season, instead of the four-game series that were played last season. His reason for wishing the change, is that there will be two more teams in the circuit the present season and the teams will draw better in a three-game series.

The genial Superior secretary also plans to have Superior at Red Wing and return home for the first game on Decoration day. The plans of the Superior man are fine, but a tentative schedule has already been worked over somewhat, and it may not be to the liking of the man from across the bay.

Superior and Duluth will both ask that the guarantee of attendance be increased to $50, at the present time the guarantee is $35. Wausau and some of the other towns at the southern end of the circuit will oppose the attempt of the Head of the Lake towns to have the guarantee increased.

Both Duluth and Superior lost money on the trips last season, while they led the league in attendance. It is for this reason that they will attempt to have the attendance guarantee increased.

La Cresse and Eau Claire claim that an increase of the guarantee to $50 will mean that they will have to pay the visiting teams from a deficit fund. In other words, these towns claim that $35 just about represents the visiting team's share at the average game.

It is announced that Jack Corrigan, a veteran, will manage the Rochester team the coming season. Down at Rochester they say that Corrigan knows so much baseball that the little knowledge he dcesn't know could be tucked under the hide of a baseball, which is sure some boosting for Jack. However, it is early in the season.

Ground for the new baseball park has been purchased. Five acres lying just outside the city have been secured, according to a Rochester report, and work on the grounds will begin in the near future.

Down in the southern end of the circuit, according to news received this morning, they are overjoyed that Red Wing and Rochester will be members of the league, believing the move will greatly strengthen the Minnesota-Wisconsin organization.

THINKS IT'S EASY MONEY.

Sailor Jack Willing to Meet Virginia Wrestler in Duluth.

Mose Brown, a welterweight wrestler of Virginia, has sent an indirect challenge to Sailor Jack of this city. He intimates that he would like to meet the sailor for a liberal side bet. The near-challenge further states that the Mose person has the backing of plenty of ready money.

If Brown is really willing to meet the marine, he will have no difficulty in getting a match. The sailor has some important matches in sight, but is willing to take on Moses Brown as a fill in.

Curley and "Barrell."

Curley Ulrich, sometimes referred to as the "Pride of Superior," and "Barrell" Smith, who insists that his proper cognomen is Burrell, may be matched for a range meeting. Both men have expressed their willingness to meet. They have fought twice in the past, the first fight being a draw and Curley having a knockout to his credit.

LEADERS ARE UNMOLESTED

No New Records Are Made in the Detroit Bowling Tournament.

Madison Man Still Heads Individuals With Score of 642.

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—There was no change of the leadership of the three events of the annual tournament of the American Bowling congress as the result of a prolonged attack on the pins yesterday. The average scores were high, and new teams appeared in second place in the five-men and two-men classes.

The Elks No. 31 of Syracuse, N. Y., jumped into second place in the fives by virtue of being the leader of last night's squads. They rolled a total of 2,787. Guido Ravenberg was the best of the Elks, with 165, 244 and 200. Greenwald's five of Akron, Ohio, made a good showing, with 2,720, which gave them third place temporarily.

In the doubles Meyer and Smart of Cleveland led the day's rolling with 1,149, which gave them second place. Patterson and Funcke of Belleville, Ill., got 1,148 and are third.

F. M. Boughton of Detroit was the star of the singles and rolled into fourth place with a total of 625. He started well enough to jump into the lead with 217 in the first game, but slumped in the last two getting 209 and 199. Three others shot above the double century average. H. J. Ouelette of Chicago went into sixth place with 607. M. Meyer of Cleveland was next with 606, while R. J. Bergman of Chicago rolled into ninth position with 602.

The tournament leaders follow:

The two-men teams — Moaat-Johnson, Detroit, 1,160; Meyer-Smart, Cleveland, 1,149; Patterson-Funcke, Belleville, 1,148. Scherrer-Huster, Erie, Pa., 1,145; Maeder-Ebner, Pittsburg, 1,127; Gruber-Wahl, Cleveland, 1,113; Wirthlin-Young, Cincinnati, 1,112; Gibson-Mitchell, Winnipeg, 1,112; F. Lush-C. Lush, Cincinnati, 1,111; McDonald-Ferguson, Detroit, 1,110.

Individuals—George Oakey, Madison, Wis., 642; Otto Wahl, Cleveland, 636; J. Gruber, Cleveland, 628; F. M. Boughton, Detroit, 625; F. W. McClay, Huntington, W. Va., 619; H. J. Ouelette, Chicago, 607; H. Tamagni, Detroit, 606; M. Meyer, Cleveland, 606; R. J. Bergman, Chicago, 602; F. W. Kehl, Madison, Wis., 586.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE)

It was recorded in the sporting record, not so long ago, that "Rube" Waddell had signed the pledge. Two or three years ago Mr. Waddell would not have thought seriously of joining the white ribbon class; now, perhaps, it becomes a matter of salary.

The "Rube" is not as good as he used to be. And what a truly great pitcher the standby of Connie Mack used to be! It was never headwork with the erratic Southpaw, and he depended almost entirely upon wonderful speed and dazzling curves. The present season may be his last in the big league arena of baseball.

Not so long ago, perhaps it was just before he took the pledge, "Rube" and Mike Schreck were keeping chummy company. Waddell was training Michael Cassius for one of his numerous fights with Tony Ross. That is really one of the humerous little incidents in the strenuous life of the "Rube."

The pair gave the natives of New Orleans the strangest exhibition of training that the Southern city has ever seen. They did all of their training in front of the St. Charles hotel bar, and people wondered and marvelled, when informed that the portly Schreck person was training for a fight and that his trainer approved thoroughly of the course.

The Waddell chap is most funny. No one has ever come anywhere near figuring him out. Connie Mack kidded himself into believing he had the real dope on the "Rube." Then came the famous incident of the world's series with the New York Nationals. Much depended upon Waddell. He was counted upon to oppose the great and only Christy Mathewson. ——He went fishing.

He has gone along long for a man who uses the arm nearest the heart, and then, too, his habits have been "agin" him. The big man may be serious in his intention about cutting out the beer and stronger stuff, if he is capable of being serious about anything, but most of the fans will have to be shown. Waddell is about as steady and dependable as an Indian loaded with reservation stimulant; he may stay with the sprinkler right into the exciting part of the season and then desert the good old ship without a moment's warning.

The manager who handles, or near-handles, the once star of "The Stain of Guilt" company, is deceiving himself cruelly when he believes he has obtained a line on the characteristics and foibles of the Reuben. He is interesting because he does the unexpected. There is nothing of the conventional about Mr. Waddell.

In his diamond career he has rushed into innumerable fires and rescued humans as well as redhot cook stoves. He has gone fishing when his services were in pressing demand. He has disappeared for days and turned up in some obscure village, playing with the town team. He has done many things and they have been stood for simply because he was great, a genius, and genius is quite different from the common clay.

Now it may be quite different. Let the "Rube" show that he is going back, that he is not the terror that he was in the days of yesterday, and it is very doubtful if managers will stand for the eccentricities of the one with the funny hat.

Perhaps the season about to open will be the last of Waddell as a national baseball character. Perhaps Uncle Joe Cannon and "Rube" Waddell will mark chapter for historians, by retiring from public life together.

"Rube" will have his getaway with the St. Louis Americans, who are being managed at the present time by Jack O'Connor. Jimmy McAleer did not have any too much success with Waddell last season, but perhaps O'Connor has been the one manager whom fate was waiting to put next to the character curves of "Rube" Waddell. We shall see what we shall see. And, by the way, there are a great many fans who will be keenly interested in the showing the mentally woozy Waddell will make.

Disintegrating Dane, is the name they are calling Nelson on the coast. They were calling him worse names than that the night Jamaica Britt beat him in twenty rounds, and Bat still claimed that he could beat Gans, should he be given another chance to get into the ring with the Baltimore smoke.

Nelson finally received his chance, and you know he won. He may get another fight with Wolgast—and it will be the wonder of the age if he does win. Nelson may be disintegrating and all that stuff, old fellow; but there will be some of those long end guys in the Gans fight, who will hesitate to plunge with John G. Gates' prodigality against the Danish citizen.

Every now and then you will read of American students at Oxford winning a few of the events in the athletic contests. Any time that the events upon the athletic menu are not croquet, archery, strawberry picking or playing "button, button, old chap," the American athlete does generally win. We won most of the real athletic events on the recent Olympian program. Some of the sewing and stitching events, were taken by the English representatives.

LINDSAY WINS WRESTLING BOUT

Emil Peterson Quits After Losing First Fall---Out of Condition.

Hibbing, Minn., March. 3.—Emil Peterson of Buhl, former heavyweight champion of the Northwest, was beaten in two straight falls here last night by Harry Lindsay of Nellsville, Wis.

The first fall was secured in 38 minutes, Peterson forfeiting the second fall after 30 minutes on the mat. The match was one of the best ever seen here. Peterson claimed that he was not in condition.

Peterson was the heaviest and the stronger of the two men, but Lindsay possessed the more science and was quicker than the Buhl man.

"Kid" Jones and "Kid" Shea put on a boxing match, Shea going out in the second round.

A Championship Meet.

Omaha, Neb., March 3.—Lieut. O. F. Michaelis, secretary of the Omaha Athletic club yesterday received a telegram from President J. J. O'Connor of the American Amateur Athletic union announcing that the indoor meet at the Omaha auditorium beginning April 1, has been designated the championship indoor meeting for Western United States for 1910. This means that winners of contests in that meeting will be given the title of champion of the West.

Hockey Game Postponed.

Mild weather conditions yesterday, producing soft ice, caused a postponement of the championship hockey game between the Big Duluths and Adams team, scheduled for last evening. The game has been postponed until Sunday afternoon. It will be called at 2:30.

SAILOR GETS BIG MATCH

Dick Shepperd of Pipestone Will Meet Sailor Jack in Finish Contest.

Winner of Bout Will Meet Young Miller for World's Title.

Dick Shepperd of Pipestone, Minn., and Sailor Jack will be matched within the next two weeks to wrestle for the privilege of meeting Walter Miller, world's welterweight champion wrestler, for the world's title.

A letter received today from Shepperd contained the information that he is willing to meet the local crack, and the date of the contest will probably be set for some time within the next two weeks.

Shepperd is the boy who gave Miller such a great match in St. Paul recently. He is one of the greatest welterweights in this country, and if Sailor Jack succeeds in defeating him, he will be in a position to ask for a match with Miller, generally conceded to be one of the greatest little wrestlers the world has produced since the palmy days of George Bothner.

The Sailor is anxious to meet Shepperd for a defeat of the Pipestone man would entitle Jack to a meeting with Miller. Miller has already announced his willingness to come to Duluth in the event of a victory for the marine there would be no doubt of the championship match being staged.

Sailor Jack is confident he can beat Shepperd. He is also sure that he will give Young Miller the contest of his life, if he is successful in disposing of Shepperd.

Those who saw the Sailor work in his match with Mauritz Harris are confident that he is one of the best welterweights in the entire country. In his match with Harris, Jack showed strength, a wide knowledge of the fine points of the game and a speed that was too much for Harris, who has always been considered a very fast man.

Young Miller has beaten all of the good welterweights in this country with the exception of the marine. There are only a few more men for him to meet, and most of these are larger than Miller. If Sailor Jack shows his class in the match with Shepperd his contest with Miller will attract attention from wrestling fans all over the country.

BOWLING SCORES

A league record was set in the games between the Three Winners and Floan & Leveroos teams of the Commercial Bowling league on the Central alleys last evening, four of the games being over 1,000 pins, and the winning team getting three of the high score games.

The games last night break all local records, no Duluth team having bowled three successive games over 1,000 points. Added to the work of the Three Winners as a team was the fact that not a member of the winning team failed to roll over 200 points in at least one of the three games. The members of the team were in fine form and gave a great exhibition of the game.

Bethune captured the high average of the evening, 212 2-3, Wedge of the losing team rolling 243 for the high score. The winning team ran up a total of 3,039 pins.

The score in detail:

Three Winners.
Otterson	164	215	201
Brown	212	177	193
Bethune	220	218	200
R. C. Berini	208	181	214
C. R. Berini	199	215	222
Totals	1,003	1,006	1,030
Grand total			3,039
Floan & Leveroos.
Listy	215	172	216
Wedge	243	187	187
Jepson	183	176	169

Beers Increases Lead.

Ed Beers further increased his lead in the two games played yesterday afternoon and evening for the city pool championship. In the afternoon games David scored 104 to Beers' 100. In the evening games Beers again assumed the lead, scoring 100 points while his opponent was scoring 84.

The total score stands, Beers, 600; David, 546. A total of 1,000 balls will be played. The games are being played in the afternoon and evening.

INVESTMENT IN RELIGION PAYS GOOD DIVIDENDS

Church Men Needed in All Walks of Life, Says Eberhart.

Governor Says Life on the Farm Must Be Made Attractive.

Governor Eberhart last night assisted the Luther League of the First Swedish Lutheran church in celebrating its silver jubilee by appearing at the church and delivering a lecture on "The Church and Citizenship."

The governor said in the opening that he was fairly well acquainted in the northern part of the state and particularly in Duluth. He said that it was always a pleasure to visit here; assured his hearers that he was extremely friendly to the northern part of the state; and said that he had often thought he had made a mistake when some years ago he had a chance to locate here and passed up opportunity.

The governor proceeded and said in part:

"Duluth is rich in future possibilities. Duluth and the surrounding country have everything to look forward to while some of the older parts of the state have been developed almost to the limit. The growth of the city and your part of the state cannot be over estimated. I am glad to notice among my friends here tonight, Senators Laybourn and Pugh, who have done much for the northern part of the state at heart and it has been my pleasure to labor with them for your advancement.

"Many people might think that the governor could find enough to keep him busy at his desk and he might be and is often times criticised for traveling about from place to place at different times of the year. I think, however, that it is a part of the needs of the several portions of the state, especially those ports which have not yet reached the zenith of their development. Such territories need more than the other portions of the state and the only way to learn their needs is to visit and find out the particular things wanted in order that the development may be continued.

Religion In Politics.

"Religion plays an important part in politics. Good clean men make good clean politics. The church makes good men and if those men would take an active interest in the affairs of the nation, state and municipality, our politics would be much cleaner. I do not mean to say that politics is becoming worse. On the contrary, I think it is growing better. Better men are taking an interest and while the revelations made during the past few months are startling, I think it goes to show that the conditions are growing constantly better. Otherwise fraud would not be exposed. We are beginning a new era of politics and after all the investigations are over, we begin again to build up for clean, united, prosperous government by all the people.

Church Men Are Needed.

"So, I say get the men interested in the church. Church men are good in any walk of life. We need them in politics. We should not invest in religion through our wives and sweethearts. We should speculate in religion for ourselves. An investment in religion pays big dividends. It makes the young man and the young woman pure, clean and of noble character. It builds the home and the social relations. In short, the church is doing a noble work and may that good work be continued on and on for years to come.

"The church should be as the home. The women should not be allowed to do all the work. The men should take more of an interest. They should be drawn in more to the church work. In church work men's clubs are a splendid idea. Men gather at the meetings to talk of things that are of interest to all and the result in civic betterment. The church as a church I think, should not mix to a very great extent in politics. The church has, however, given the men their training and these are the men who distinquish between right and wrong and vote accordingly.

"The great problems that come up for settlement by the heads of the various high departments are the direct cause of selfishness by the people. Were the people all church people, and lived up to their principals of religion, there would be no selfishness and the problems, to a very great extent, would be done away with. The only institution in the world today that can remedy evils and turn people back to the right way is the church. Much depends on her and she is progressing and doing a noble work.

"The scandal in our politics is becoming less and virtue is advancing. People generally are good and have the good of their country at heart. They will not stand for corruption.

Back to the Farm.

"The immigration of our country people to the cities is one of the most alarming movements of this time. One hundred years ago but 6 per cent of our people lived in the towns and villages. The next census will show at least 35 per cent living in the city. We must interest the boy and the girl on the farm and give them the enjoyments of city life, which they crave. We must keep a great part of the population on the farm.

"Why is it that a graduating class at almost any of our high schools consists mainly of girls? The boys have dropped out, for they did not find what interested them in the schools. I favor an industrial education. I favor an educational system, so that the boys may be interested until the end of their education has been reached. Boys going out from school at an early age struggle at great disadvantage. We need no more common labor, we must have more skilled labor. The year's part of the state has made great advancement in its school system. On the range, where I have visited, I have found that in many instances the schools were better than the older and better established schools in the southern portion of our state. You, up here, have awakened to the conditions to a greater degree than in many other places.

The Cost of Living.

"The high cost of living is a serious question. The boys should be taught useful arts and the girls should be taught domestic science. Every precaution should be taken to overcome the high costs. Down at the agricultural school at Midway they serve meals at a cost of 7 cents each. That shows what domestic science will do.

"There are many things to be said along this line and the question of the farm, but I have tonight time only to skim the surface. The time will come, I think, when the population will go back to the farm. We cannot blame the boys who wish to come to the city. They have shorter hours and greater opportunities. It is up to us to interest them on the land and show them that they can do better there.

"We have many institutions these days that are doing a great good. The Y. M. C. A. is one of these institutions. Remember this: Industry, honesty and perseverence lead to success.

"After all, dollars do not count so very much. It is the feeling that we have been of some use on this earth and have done something for humanity."

Governor Eberhart was introduced to the audience by Watson S. Moore.

PRAISE FOR COMPANY C

Regular Army Officers Are Pleased With Showing of Militia.

Other Two Duluth Companies Will Also Be Inspected.

Col. Gerlach, retired, U. S. A., of St. Paul, and Capt. J. Bugge, U. S. A., of Fort Snelling, complimented Company C, Third Infantry, M. N. G., highly after the annual inspection at the Armory last night.

After the equipment of the company had been inspected and the militia boys had spent nearly an hour in floor drills under the eyes of the regular officers, both Col. Gerlach and Capt. Bugge declared that there is little room for improvement. "Some militia companies may be as good, but none better," says Col. Gerlach. "The company could improve only by field service," said Capt. Bugge.

A large crowd gathered to see the inspection, in which Company C and the band took part. The large crowd in the gallery cheered often when the company went skilfully throug:. some particularly difficult evolution, and the selections by the band were met by loud applause.

The inspection of equipment came first, and the quartermaster's supplies, knapsacks, blankets, clothing, guns, belts, bayonets and other equipments went under a thorough scrutiny, and all were pronounced satisfactory. The band was given a thorough inspection and then gave several selections during the inspection of the militia company. The band consisted of twenty-six pieces under the command of Lieut. R. M. Weaver.

The final drill, which lasted almost an hour, was a fine piece of work. Company C, with seventy-two members in khaki uniforms, went through the different movements with grace and precision. March formations, platoon drill and firing drill were all carried out with a degree of excellency that appealed to the crowd in the galleries as well the inspecting officers. The applause which greeted the different movements was testimony to th gallery's appreciation.

The company was under the command of Capt. F. D. Knowlton, with Lieut. C. Flodin and Lieut. F. K. Wood as secondary officers.

Tonigth, Company E under the command of Capt. George F. Stiles, recently elevated to first commanding officer, will be inspected, and tomorrow night, Company A, Capt. Franklin commanding, will pass in review before the regular army officers.

Quits the New Theater.

New York March 3.—John Corbin, literary director of the New theater, admitted last night that he has resigned, his resignation to take effect at the end of the present season, about June 1. He declined to discuss his reasons.

ICE CONDITION ON THE LAKES

First Report Is Issued By the Lake Marine Service.

The first of the weekly ice reports, issued each spring by the lake marine service of the weather bureau, has been received in Duluth.

The summary and the detailed conditions on Lake Superior follow:

"The reports from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau and Canadian meteorological service indicate that the ice fields over Lake Superior are extensive and moving with the winds. Over Whitefish bay the ice is heavier than usual. The St. Mary's river is solid. In Green bay the ice ranges from 15 to 23 inches and appears to be well covered with snow. In Lake Michigan broken ice fields are reported along the west shore south of Milwaukee and along the east shore as far north as Manistee. Extensive fields are reported over northern portion. At the Straits the ice is not as heavy as usual, but it is solid and extends from Bois Blanc island west to beyond Waugoschance. In Huron the fields are reported to the north and east of Middle island; a small field off Oscoda and over the extreme southern portion. St. Clair river is solid from about the tunnel south to Lake St. Clair. The ice is solid in Lake St. Clair. Detroit river is open to about Twenty-fourth street and solid from there to Lake Erie. Extensive moving fields of ice are reported over Lake Erie; some open chanenls along shore are reported on the south shore. In Ontario there are few extensive fields reported. The harbors at Charlotte and Coburg are reported open.

"In comparison with the same period last season there appears to be more ice in Superior and Michigan, less in Huron and more in Erie.

The usual details follow:

Lake Superior.

"Duluth: The harbor ice is twelve inches in thickness: the field ice in the lake extends beyond vision.

"Two Harbors: There are three inches of floating ice in the harbor; ice fields two miles from north shore extend beyond vision both cast and west.

"Port Arthur, Ont.: The harbor ice averages nineteen inches in thickness; solid ice extends beyond vision in the lake; the ice breaker Whalen is keeping channel open.

"Portage Canal: Harbor ice ranges from seven to sixteen inches in thickness; broken fields in the lake extend beyond vision.

"Eagle Harbor: Harbor ice about fifteen inches in thickness; the fields in the lake are well windrowed and extend beyond vision.

"Houghton: The harbor ice is fourteen and eight-tenths inches in thickness and solid.

"Marquette: Harbor ice seventeen inches in thickness; high southerly winds of Friday night moved the fields in the lake out of sight.

"Munising: Harbor ice sixteen inches in thickness; the ice field extends beyond vision.

"Grand Marias, Mich.: Thickness of ice in harbor twenty-two inches; the harbor ice is solid; heavy field ice in the lake about one mile wide; no ice visible off Sable Point; open water off Deer Park with some ice along shore.

"Whitefish Point: Whitefish bay solid with thirty-inch ice; ice fields in lake as far as can be seen.

"Sault Ste. Marie: The harbor ice is fifteen inches in thickness; heavy snow on the ice."

SAYS TAFT WANTS CANNON TO RETIRE.

Beverly, Mass., March 3.—"That Speaker Cannon would retire I believe to be the uppermost wish of the president," Representative Augustus P. Gardner, one of the leaders of the "insurgents" in congress told 200 of his constituents at a dinner of the Beverly Republican club last night.

"Mr. Cannon has reached an age where his mind is not adapted to viewing correctly present day conditions," said Mr. Gardner. "If a split in the party is to be avoided the speaker must retire. When this takes place, the rules will be changed so as to prevent the present use of the speaker's power."

Strike at Butte, Over.

Butte, Mont., March 3.—The striking mine engineers last night voted to return to work. This marks the end of the strike.

Hear Slezak

sing "Celeste Aida" in the

Edison Phonograph

The New York Tribune says:

"Mr. Slezak dominated every scene, and his clarion voice rang out superbly in the climaxes. He sang the Celeste Aida with effectiveness, and the Nile scene with fire and passion, yet always with regard for phrase."

The New York American says:

"It is but a trifling with words, of course, to say that he was the greatest Rhadames that ever appeared on the American Stage. The house was crowded and the standees out in force; yet it was Slezak, not Caruso, who sang the principal tenor role."

These comments represent the consensus of opinion of all who heard Slezak at the Metropolitan in the role of Rhadames. Could you ask for better evidence of the fact that Slezak is the greatest lyric tenor since the days of Tamagno?

He sings the "Celeste Aida" and the great arias from Verdi's "Otello" exclusively for the Edison Phonograph. The Slezak Records are Edison Grand Opera Amberols—playing longer than any other Records made.

The AMBEROLA, the newest and highest type of Edison Phonograph combines the rich, tonal beauty of the Edison Phonograph with a cabinet that is a masterpiece of craftmanship. It is charmingly designed and finished and comes in either Mahogany or Oak to harmonize with surroundings in any home. It plays both Standard and Amberol Records. It has drawers for holding 100 Records. The price is $200. Other types of Edison Phonographs, $12.50 to $125.

See and hear the Amberola at your dealer's—and be sure to hear Slezak sing "Celeste Aida."

RECEIVER FOR MERRITT

Involved Stock Broker Files Voluntary Petition in Bankruptcy.

Liabilities of $75,000---Only Assets Causes of Action for $108,650.

Fred H. Merritt, a Duluth stock broker, who became involved in financial difficulties last summer when Butte-Alex Scott hit the toboggan, today filed a voluntary petition in bankrupcy. He fixes his liabilities at $75,000, of which $43,315.75 is in definite claims and $31,684.25 estimated in unadjusted accounts. Mr. Merritt fixes his assets at $108,950, of which $108,000 is in a cause of action in a suit now pending in district court against Martin Rosendahl, $650 in a cause of action in a suit pending against N. E. Lugoff in municipal court, and $300 in wearing apparel and personal property claimed exempt.

Mr. Merritt's heaviest creditors, whose claims are definite, are Miller & Co., New York, $12,249.99; C. B. Aske, $8,795.75; N. S. Mitchell & Co., $2,594.07; M. W. Lee & Co., $6,826.25; Paine, Webber & Co., $4,158.09; Joseph Brierton, $4,743.25. All of those named are stock brokers and there are a number of other brokers and other persons holding claims for smaller amounts or unadjusted.

Mr. Merritt's suit against Martin Rosendahl, filed recently, gives the alleged cause of his financial difficulties. He claims that Rosendahl commissioned him to buy Butte-Alex Scott at a certain figure and after he had executed the order and the stock had dropped in the market, Rosendahl had refused to accept it. He claimed that he was subjected to a loss in the amount for which the suit is brought.

MORE REBELS DROP WEAPONS

American Furnishing of Arms Is All That Keeps Nicaraguans at War.

San Juan del Sur, Nicaragua, March 3.—News is received of the surrender of 280 of the insurgents under Gen. Chamarro and Gen. Mena. The remnants of the Provisional forces are in full flight, and it is declared here that if the United States government would stop the importation of arms at Bluefields, the war would end at once.

After occupying San Vincente, Gen. Vasquez sent a strong column in pursuit of the rebels over the trail towards Lamanga. The insurgents had fled, abandoning ammunition, medical supplies, provisions, saddles and all camp implements. Gen. Chamarro and Gen. Mena and the other chiefs were trying to reach Rama.

When the pursuing column arrived at the edge of the wooded country this morning 200 revolutionists, who had reached the spot shortly before, surrendered. The prisoners included all grades, from captain down.

Eighty revolutionists surrendered at Acoyapa last night.

DR. FRITCH IS FOUND GUILTY

Convicted of Manslaughter for Death of Mabelle Millman.

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—Dr. George A. Fritch was today found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death last summer of Maybelle Millman of Ann Arbor, whose dismembered body was found in Ecorse creek.

QUIST NOT LET OUT.

Report Marshal Shea Had Removed Him Was Trifle Premature.

Fargo, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report printed in several newspapers that United States Marshal Shea had removed Deputy Marshal Quist because of disloyalty to his chief, is declared to be premature. It is currently reported Quist is to lose his job, but official announcement has not yet been made to that effect.

WHOLE COLONIES PERISHED.

Stray Stories: A commencement has been made in a most remarkable and long talked of enterprise. This is nothing less than the transplanting of the Lapps from Lapland, where they are a dying race, to Labrador, where it is hoped they will flourish and increase.

Whether these hopes will be justified or not remains to be seen. Similar experiments in the past have seldom been wholly successful, and some have resulted disastrously.

The Doukhobors, for instance, who in 1899 were transported to the number of 8,000 or 9,000, from their homes in Southern Russia to the Canadian Northwest, were for a time in dire straits. They also behaved erratically, marching naked through the snow and abandoning their flocks and herds to the wolves. They are now, however, reported to be settling down and doing better.

On the other hand the attempt made some eighty years ago to transplant the Roskolnikis of the Don country to a new home that was supposed to have been found for them in Eastern Turkestan resulted in one of the most ghastly tragedies.

The huge caravan lost its way in the desert and was never heard of again, the probability being that hunger and thirst, with the attacks of nomad robbers, were responsible for the deaths of the entire party.

Equally dreadful was the fate that befell the 10,000 Jutlanders transplanted to the east coast of Greenland by Queen Margaret of Sweden. At first they flourished exceedingly. Villages were founded, churches and schools were built and a bishop was appointed.

Then one year the ice pack broke loose from the remote Northern seas and came to a standstill along the coast opposite the settlements in a belt fifty miles broad.

All communication with the open sea was thus cut off. The settlers were unable to obtain supplies, and in the end they perished down to the very last man.

REACTION IN COPPER SHARES

Market Declines on Profit-Taking After Wednesday's Advance.

Profit-taking on yesterday's bulge caused the stock market to lose most of yesterday's advance today. Trading was light and the activity was almost entirely professional. The market remains a scalping affair, and there is no indication of a prolonged movement either way. There is said to be a heavy short interest out, which will prove a factor in advancing prices if it is forced to cover on any bulge.

The metal market is much stronger. The United Smelting company and the American Smelting & Refining company, which sold electrolytic at 13½c to be delivered in thirty days, have withdrawn this price. It was reported today that 5,000,000 pounds of copper had been sold at 14 cents for foreign shipment.

Liquidating pressure has ceased, for the time being at least, and tentative operations by bearish speculators have brought rather meager results. On the other hand there is lacking any strong inducement to buy stocks. Under such circumstances trading has fallen away to a nominal volume, and outside of those shares in which special influences have been at work, prices have been necessarily narrow.

The local market was quiet and was not so strong as yesterday, trading being more restricted. There was more selling pressure than yesterday. The part paid Scott sold at $1.75 and the full paid at $1.75. Savanna sold at $2 and Shattuck at $19.75. Warren was traded in at $2.12½; Butte & Superior at $2.62½ and $2.56¼; Calumet & Corban at 75 cents; Carman at $1.62½; Keating at $2 and $1.93¾; San Antonio at $8.75; Duluth-Toroda at 75 cents; North American at $2.56¼ and $2.43¾; Amazon-Montana at $6 and $5.87½.

Amalgamated sold at $81, $80.87½, $81.87½ and down to $80.12½. Butte Coalition sold at $25.50, $26 and $25.62½; Calumet & Arizona at $74, up ½ point and back to the opening; Giroux at $10, down ¼ point and back to the opening; Greene at $10.75 and down ⅛ point; Lake at $78.50, $79 and down to $77.75; North Butte at $39.50 upto $39.87½ and down to $38.75; Ojibway at $9.50; Superior & Pittsburgh at $14.12½; Warrior at $10.87½; Steel common at $84.87½ down to $84.62½ after selling up to $85.37½.

Harry Hanson, a broker, has left Duluth and when last seen by acquaintances was in Chicago. He is said to have closed all of his trades and is believed to have left the city without intending to return permanently. He departed about a year ago under similar circumstances, but returned later and his financial difficulties were settled.

The Carson City, Nev., News quotes Will Casson, president of the Gruett-Fallon Leasing company, as being "highly elated" after a visit to the Rawhide camp in which is located Rawhide Royal.

Mr. Casson, who is regarded in mining circles as a conservative operator, said that he "believes firmly" in the future of the Rawhide camp. "I have not based my belief upon sentimental grounds that many often have toward a district or a camp, but wholly upon the formation and the ore showings that I have seen and know to be there. Rawhide is looking better all along the line than I has for months past. Every one of the leasers seems to be in ore and are making shipments and extracting ores for milling."

One of the large ore purchasing companies of the West, it is said, intends to take over the Murray mill in the Rawhide district and install a cyanide plant and a sampling outfit. The ores of the district will be run through the sampler and will be paid for, the company reducing the mineral when it so desires.

DEERWOOD HOTEL IS COMPLETE LOSS

Fire of Unknown Origin Does $20,000 Worth of Damage.

Deadwood, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A disastrous fire resulting in the complete loss of the New hotel building occurred Wednesday night at 12 o'clock. It lasted only two hours, and its origin is a mystery. The loss is estimated at $20,000, with insurance of $9,000.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

WARFIELD'S FIRST APPEARANCE.

DAVID WARFIELD.

David Warfield, the actor whom David Belasco saw and appreciated when he was playing low comedy roles, and who has risen under the direction of Belasco to be one of the greatest actors in America, reached Duluth at noon today to begin his engagement at the Lyceum this evening.

In telling about his early life, Mr. Warfield stated that all his early ambition was to go upon the stage. At school poems always stirred him, particularly Thanatopsis. He went home from school one day and recited the poem to his mother.

It was shortly after this that Mr. Warfield secured a part in a benefit that was presented for a San Francisco charity. He was announced to recite "poetic selections."

He stated that his only regret then was that Booth and Irving could not be present, and wondered if the news of his success would be telegraphed to New York.

His turn came. He recited as he thought he had never recited before. But suddenly he stumbled; he forgot; and the shading of the verses caused a laugh in the audience. He saw smiles, became abashed, and terrorized; titters ran through the audience, and the youthful aspirant to stage honors left the stage heart broken.

That was David Warfield's first experience and he was a failure. Through effort and heroic self-sacrifice, he has risen to a place on the American stage excelled by few actors in the profession.

SUPERIOR

BUILDING TRANSFER ROAD.

Preliminary Work Begins on Eastern Section of Steel Plant Line.

The preliminary work toward building the eastern section of the interstate Transfer railway from Saunders to Wisconsin Point, was started yesterday, when a large crew of men in the employ of Contractor King of Duluth, began excavating for the crossing below the Great Northern yards.

A long trestle will be necessary to cross the Nemadji and pile-driving work, for this may begin at once.

Contract Is Awarded.

The contract for the new coal shed at the Northwestern Fuel company's summer at a cost said to be over $50,000 was yesterday awarded to the Heyl-Patterson company of Pittsburg. In addition to this improvement, the company will also extend the western side of the dock, 600 feet.

Government Wins Case.

A verdict in favor of the government was returned last evening by a jury in the United States district court in the action of the United States vs. the Valley Lumber company. The government, according to the verdict, is allowed a judgment of $236 against the lumber concern. It is alleged that the lumber company cut timber on certain government lands in Douglas county.

Boy's Sentence Suspended.

Mike Setik, the young boy, who was sentenced to a year at the state reformatory at Green Bay for stealing from a box car in one of the local railroad yards, will not go to the state institution if he keeps his promise. Yesterday he was arraigned in juvenile court and sentence was suspended for a year. If he behaves himself during that time, the case will be dropped.

Hertlein Is Ousted.

Fred Hertlein, sometimes called "The Mayor of Allouez," who brought charges of bribery against Alderman Stewart McCutcheon, who was acquitted in superior court last week, was yesterday dismissed as Tenth ward street foreman by the board of public works. M. Goetler was appointed foreman.

Teachers Will Attend.

Many Superior educators will attend the eighteenth annual meeting of the North Wisconsin Teachers' association at Ashland, Friday and Saturday, March 11 and 12. Prof. A. D. S. Gillet of the Superior normal school is vice president of the association. Many of the Superior teachers are on the program.

Threatened With Gun.

For threatening Oliver Darwin with a gun on a road near Gordon about two weeks ago, Leslie Lockman, yesterday afternoon drew a thirty-day sentence in the workhouse after he had been arraigned in municipal court. Darwin is fifty years the senior of Lockman and said he interfered with the latter when Lockman attempted to attack a woman.

TAKE PAPERS TO WICKERSHAM

Chicago Prosecutors Will Talk With Him About the Meat Trust Probe.

Chicago, March 3.—United States District Attorney Edwin Sims, James H. Wilkerson, his first assistant and Oliver E. Pagin, government indictment expert, left here for Washington today. The federal attorneys have an appointment with Attorney General Wickersham which is expected to have an important part in shaping the Chicago grand jury investigation of the meat packing industry.

A transcript of the testimony taken, together with record books and, it is believed, rough drafts of indictments, were carried by Mr. Sims and his assistants.

In the absence of the federal prosecutor, the grand jury will adjourn from time to time so as to be in readiness to consider additional evidence if more is submitted, or be in a position to vote indictments when the result of the Washington conference is announced to the jurors.

MAIL PAY BILL IS ORDERED REPORTED.

Washington, March 3.—The Gallinger mail pay bill, to provide for the establishment of mail steamship lines between the United States and South America, the Philippines, Japan, China and Australia was ordered favorably reported today to the senate.

GHOSTS IN A COUNTRY HOUSE.

Lady Ida Sitwell Sure She Saw an Apparition.

The latest ghost story has been told to the London Daily Mail by Sir George Sitwell, Bart. It tells of two ghosts seen at Renishaw, his country place near Chesterfield. Renishaw is an old house, dating from 1625, and more than one ghostly legend is associated with it. Sir George Sitwell's story follows:

"Last Saturday, two ghosts were seen at Renishaw. Lady Ida has been to Scarborough to attend the lifeboat ball, at which she sat up until 4 o'clock in the morning, and had returned home that afternoon. After dinner the party of six—I was absent for a few hours—sat in a drawing room upstairs, Lady Ida on a sofa facing the open door.

"Looking up after speaking to a friend on her left, she saw in the passage outside, the figure of a woman, apparently a servant, with gray hair and white cap, the upper part of the dress blue, the skirt dark. The arms were at full length and the hands clasped. This figure moved with a very slow, furtive, gliding motion, as if wishing to escape notice, straight toward the head of the old staircase, which I removed twenty years ago.

"Unwilling to think that there could be anything supernatural in the appearance, Lady Ida called out, 'Who's that?' then the name of the housekeeper, then to those nearest the door, 'Run out and see who it is; run out at once!'

"Two rushed out, but no one was there. The others joined them and searched the hall and passages upstairs. As they were coming down, one of the party, Miss R., who was a little away from the rest, exclaimed:

"'I do believe that's the ghost!'

"There in the full light of the archway below, within twenty feet of her, just where the door of the old ghost room used to stand until I removed it to put the present staircase in its place, she saw the figure of a lady with dark hair and dress, lost in painful thought and oblivious of everything about her. The dress was fuller than the modern fashion, and the figure, though opaque, cast no shadow. It moved with a curious gliding motion into the darkness and melted away at or within a yard of the spot where a doorway, now walled up, led from the staircase to the hall.

"There is no doubt that these figures were actually seen as described. They were not ghosts, but phantasms—reversed impressions of something seen in the past and now projected from an overtired and an excited brain.

"In both cases the curious gliding movement, the absence of shadow, the absolute stillness of the figures, which moved neither hand nor head, and hardly seemed to breathe, point to that conclusion. Such an experience goes far toward solving the ghost problem. Ghosts are sometimes met with, but they are not ghosts."

Lady Ida, Sir George's wife and sister of the Earl of Londesborough, says:

"I saw the figure with such distinctness that I had no doubt at all that I was looking at a real person while at the same time, although seated in a well lighted room and chatting with friends, I was conscious of an uneasy, creepy feeling.

"I tried to see the features, but I could not. Even before I called out my friends noticed that I appeared to be following something with my eyes. The light in the passage was good, and I could see so well that I could distinguish the exact shade of blue of the dress. The figure was that of a woman of between 50 and 60 years of age, and her gray hair was done up into a bun under an old-fashioned cap. I had never seen a ghost before, nor had I been thinking about ghosts.

Having read of this latest appearance of a ghost at Renishaw, F. Gorell Barnes describes his experiences there. In 1892 he was parliamentary candidate for Northeast Derbyshire and Sir George Sitwell, who was then contesting another division, placed Renishaw Hall at Mr. Barne's disposal.

"My neighbors and visitors," he writes, "told me more than one ghostly legend associated with it and more particularly with the old ghost room mentioned by Sir George in his letter.

"I recall one in particular, that when a stranger slept for the first time at the hall the ghost of a lady was supposed to appear. One visitor, whose name I do not now recollect, told me of a young lady who occupied the ghost room having been found in a state of abject terror and refused to give any account of what she had seen.

"Some weeks before the general election of 1892 my election agent came to stay with me till the election was over. On the night of his arrival we worked till about 1 a. m., lighted our candles and went up the staircase which Sir George describes as having been put in twenty years ago, close to the old ghost room. Near the top of the stairs this gentleman, an astute and clever Sheffield solicitor, stopped short, tapped me on the shoulder and whispered:

"'There's somebody following us up stairs.'

"I went down, examined the stairs, entrance hall and the rooms, without finding anything. I ascended the stairs again, and step for step as I ascended I distinctly heard footsteps following me up to the top of the staircase.

"I returned again to the entrance hall, but I saw no figures as described by Sir George Sitwell. There were no ghosts or phantasms, no reversed impressions of something seen in the past, but distinct footsteps were heard by two over-tired but not excited men."

CANNIBALS VERY NERVOUS.

Beatrice Grimshaw in the Wide World Magazine: There are few native villages around Kerema, Papua, all friendly to the government, which they regard as their chief protection from the mysterious and much-dreaded Kukukuku tribe.

These Kukukukus sound more like something out of a mediaeval goblin story than anything modern and real. They are cannibals, and live high up in the unexplored ranges one can see from the shore. Their neat yam and taro gardens chequer the upper peaks like the tiny squares on a plaid coat, suggesting that the cannibals are industrious and orderly, and fond of a relish with their food. At times they descend in small, active parties upon the tribes of the coast, and stalk them from the shelter of the bush, until an opportunity occurrs of cutting off one or two alone. They are little, quick and cunning, and their death dealing raids often take place without exciting any suspicion on the part of the victims' friends, until gaps among the ranks of familiar faces tell their silent tale.

Not long before our visit they made a descent down to the very beach, hidden by the forest, darted out, captured two of the children playing on the shore, and vanished with their prey before anyone in the village had time to take alram. The other children told the tale; and the magistrate went out, with a handful of native police, to ambush the murderers by night on their way back to the hills, and capture them, if possible. A volley fired in the dark was the only punishment the cannibals received, however, for they discovered the ambush and got away in their usual mysterious fashion before the police could follow up their fire. Traces of blood on the path showed that it had been effective, but the wouded or dead were spirited awy with the rest.

Some of their goods were found abandoned on the track—pipes, spears, betel-nut bags—and, among the other matters, two neatly tied-up parcels, which, on being opened, were found to contain the bodies of a little boy and a little girl, cut into pieces.

Until last year no white man and few natives had even seen a Kukukuku, though they had been the scourge of the district for years. One or two, however, were captured at last, and taken to Port Moresby jail to serve a term of imprisonment. They proved to be small, ugly, active men, very wild and uncivilized, and so nervous that they trembled all over when looked at. A government official said to me in all seriousness:

"Be sure you don't frighten the cannibals; they are very nervous!"—

POPULAR GERMAN ACTRESS WILL SOON BECOME BRIDE

FRITZI MASSARY.

The engagement of Fritzi Massary, a popular actress of Germany and well-known to Americans, and Count Alexander von Talleyrand-Perigord, who was formerly an officer of the Hussars and who is now a clerk in the Deutsche bank, has been announced. The count is reported to be in the United States.

OUT OF LINE.

Chicago News: "Land o' goodness!" gasped Miss O'Reilly, overtaking Miss Freiberg, as she hastened down the corridor after luncheon hour. "I never dreamed I'd get back in time." She drew a long breath, patting her plump chest with a chamois-gloved hand. "I haven't had a thing to eat, either."

"What you been doin' that you had to hustle so?" inquired Miss Freiberg, beginning to unbutton her jacket as the two neared the door of the office. "It's a cold day when I cut out my lunch."

"I'll make up for it at supper time," said Miss O'Reilly cheerfully. "You see my friend and myself are goin' to a show Saturday night. He works out on the northwest side, and I told him I'd run over and get the tickets. I never thought there'd be such a crowd. Why, when I got there the string of people reached clear out to the door. But I says to myself, 'Well, now that I'm here I'll stay till I get them tickets; I don't care what the folks at the office say.'"

"That's the good of bein' engaged," put in Miss Freiberg, enviously. "If they say any thing to you at the office you can just put on your hat and walk out."

"I ain't puttin' on my hat and walkin' out yet awhile," returned Miss O'Reilly, cautiously. "Not till I've saved up enough for my trussoo. But lemme tell you about a woman than come in over there at the box office while I was waitin'. It she didn't get all that room to her. It tickled me half to death," Miss O'Reilly giggled.

"We was all standin' in line, like I said, when in comes a tall dame dressed up like a Christmas tree hat cost $25, if it cost a cent, I bet you. She looks at the string o' people for a minute, and then she braces right up to the window, and she says: 'I want the two best seats you have for Wednesday afternoon.'

"Get in line and wait your turn, please madam,' says the man at the window. 'Next, please,' he says.

"She didn't say nothing. She just flounced away from the window. Then she sees where there's a little space between a woman and the man in front of her, and she thinks she will squeeze in there. Well, that woman moved up so close to that man you couldn't 'a' stuck a paper knife in between 'em, and in a minute everybody in the line was steppin' on the heels of the person in front of 'em.

"Then she tries another scheme. She picks out a real nice lookin' old gentleman and she goes up to him and says, awful sweet, 'I beg your pardon, sir, but I'm in a great hurry. I've got an engagement out on the north side in half an hour, and would you mind letting me step in front of you?'

"The old gentleman took off his hat as polite as you please and he says, 'I'm sorry, madam, but it wouldn't be fair to the people behind me,' he says, 'and I have a very pressing engagement myself.'

"'Humph!' she says, and switches off.

"Well, the next one she tried was a little red-headed kid. 'My boy,' she says, smiling at him like butter would not melt in her mouth, 'I'll give you this quarter if you'll let me step in front of you.'

"The kid looks up at her and he says: 'Not fer me, lady. My boss told me to hurry back.'

"She got as red as a beet, and I seen the man in front o' the kid slip a quarter into his hand.

"Well, by that time, the dame was bound she'd get in ahead o' somebody, so what does she do but write something on a piece o' paper and take a $5 bill and stick 'em in the window? The box office man he put a paper weight on the $5 bill and the piece o' paper without lookin' to see what She'd wrote, and he says, 'Next, please.'

"Say, but she was sore! 'You are extremely impertinent,' she says to the box office man. 'I'm going to report you to the management.' She grabbed her $5 bill out quick.

"The man never even looked at her. 'Do madam,' he says. 'Next, please' Well everybody in that row o' people give a snicker, and the dame she walked out with her coat tails a-switchin' and the plumes on her hat bobbin' up and down, she was so mad."

"Ain't some people got nerve?" commented Miss Freiberg.

COST OF WOMAN'S BONNETS.

Pall Mall Magazine: The importance of feminine headgear is an old story in many minds, but in none is it more interesting than in France, where from time immemorial the women of all classes seem to have given it their particular attention.

The Empress Eugenie and the Princess Mathilde, it is well known, were never women to waste money on frivolities such as poufs sentimentales, although the descendant of Worth, the first man dressmaker in Paris, has many souvenirs of the Empress Eugenie's patronage of their house in its early days. At that time 200 francs was a very high price to pay for a bonnet, and in the records of a fashionable woman of the day are the following details: A white straw bonnet trimmed with lavender ribbon and rosebuds, 100 francs, a wreath of roses for evening wear, 27 francs, and a night cap of fine lace and lawn, 25 francs.

Compare any of these prices with those of today and it will be seen that the increase of late years is considerable. The feather hats of last season were sold for enormous prices, some being as much as 1,000 francs and none being under 300, the most simple of morning hats run between 100 and 150, and an evening coiffure can quite easily mount up to 200.

Yet it cannot be that material is so very much dearer, for the same old record tells us that broad satin ribbon cost from 8 to 15 francs a yard, white crepe 20, and feathers varied between 45 and 100. It must be, therefore, that the work girls are better paid than they were, and in this case we can have nothing to say. unfortunately, however, higher wages always create new wants and there is the same story of poverty to be told all over again.

GAY FARMS OF JAPAN.

Land is so scarce in Japan and the people are so numerous that a farm rarely consists of more than an acre or two. These little farms are divided up into tiny fields.

During the season of the year in which we made our journey, says a writer in the Montreal Standard, one of these fields was filled with sprouting barley, light green in color; another field—perhaps the next—with vetch, a lavender colored, clover-like fodder.

A neighboring field was covered with a dark green grass, from the seed of which a lamp oil is manufactured; another with the pale yellow flowers of the mustard, and scattered here and there fields filled with what looked like a variety of lily—some white, some red, some yellow, but all equally brilliant.

Then to get the complete picture you must imagine patches of flowering azaleas dotting the roadside; towering, round topped camellia trees breaking the sky-line with frequent splashes of bright green, usually in the shade of these trees houses with white plastered walls and red tiled roofs; about the more pretentious of these houses white plastered walls, above which appeared a profusion of palms, roses and strange native flowers; and in the doorways or the garden walls kimono-clad Japanese girls—the kimonos as many and as gaily colored as the gardens that framed them.

BACK YARD STUDIES.

New York Sun: "The leaves on the trees in the range of back yards in view from my study window are turning now," said Prof. von Joggleby, "and fall is here again, season of great beauty and charm.

"My life, to be sure, is devoted to figures, to abstruse calculations, to science, and you might think that naught else could interest me; but on by personal side, as I might say, in those brief periods when I permit myself or which are enforced upon me for recuperation from the strain of my arduous mental labors, I am not unmindful of the beauties of nature, in the changing seasons and I like all the seasons, though best of all I think I like fall.

"Now the leaves turn yellow, golden, russet, red; staid trees that have been green all summer now bedeck themselves with a riot of color, and now they are flinging their gorgeous leaves about in all directions. One has just flown in through my open study window to fall upon my table.

"The cool, keen, frosty air that brings color to the trees brings color to us also and life to our step. We stand up straighter and move more briskly; just to breathe is an exhilaration. And then we have those occasional days when the air is still and hazy and filled with a glow of warmth from the sun, those mellow days that in early autumn nature gives us, in which we may fairly steep ourselves in luxury before we come to the days shorter still when lights gleam early and we are glad to reach our door for the lights and cheer within.

Spring I love, and I like summer; and I like the rugged winter; I like all the seasons; but best of all I think I like fall, with its beauty and vigor.

"But, realy, I must get back to my figures."

THE UNFORTUNATE ONE.

Youth's Companion: Jean Paul Laurens, the famous French painter, was the son of a peasant cart driver of Toulouse. At one time when the painter was at his height of his Parisian reputation it happened that two old women at Toulouse were talking about the Laurens family.

"I see, I see," said one, "there were two boys, weren't there?"

"Yes."

"What become of them?"

"Oh, one's a grocer right here in Toulouse. He does a very good business."

"And the other one?"

"The younger one? He went off to Paris and became an artist."

"Dear, dear! And his father such a good, worthy man!"

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

The mayor, reporting receipt and transmittal to city attorney of notice of injury in the case of Pauline Stitt against the city of Duluth; reporting receipt and transmittal to the city attorney of notice of appeal and order to show cause in the case of N. J. Upham, appellant and defendant against the city of Duluth—received. Transmitting communication from the Chicago Association of Commerce relative to exhibit of International Municipal Congress and Exposition to be held in Chicago in October, 1911—Finance.

City clerk, reporting service of copy of resolution citing David Christopher to show cause why his license to sell intoxicating liquors at No. 228 Lake avenue south should not be revoked upon David Christopher. An opportunity was offered for anyone to be heard, and said Christopher did not appear either in person or by attorney.

Alderman Shartel submitted the following resolution:

Whereas, This Council by resolution passed Feb. 21, 1910, cited David Christopher to show cause why his license to sell intoxicating liquors at No. 228 Lake Avenue South, should not be revoked, and

Whereas, A certified copy of said resolution was on Feb. 25, 1910, duly served on said David Christopher, and

Whereas, By evidence adduced before this Council, it has been shown that said David Christopher was, on July 23, 1909, convicted in the Municipal Court of the City of Duluth, of keeping a house of ill fame at said No. 228 Lake Avenue South; and was on Feb. 21, 1910, again convicted in the Municipal Court of the City of Duluth of keeping a house of ill fame at said No. 228 Lake Avenue South, and

Whereas, Said David Christopher did, as a condition of receiving from this Council a license to sell intoxicating liquors, give bond that he would not allow the place for which he was licensed, nor any room in the same or an adjoining building, directly or indirectly under his control, to be used as a restort for prostitutes or other disorderly persons, and

Whereas, Said David Christopher has failed to adduce any evidence before this Council sufficent to overcome the presumption arising from the aforesaid convictions in the Municipal Court of the City of Duluth, and this Council is convinced that said David Christopher has violated the condtions of his bond and has kept a disorderly and disreputable place;

Now Therefore, Be It Resolved, that the license of said David Christopher to sell intoxicating liquors in the front room of that certain place known and designated at No. 228 Lake Avenue South in the city of Duluth, be and the same hereby is revoked.

Alderman Shartel moved the adoption of the resolution.

Alderman Shartel submitted a transcript of the record in the municipal court of the two cases cited in the resolution.

The question being upon the adoption of the resolution, it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed Feb. 28, 1910.
Approved March 2, 1910.

INTRODUCTION AND CONSIDERATION OF ORDINANCES.

The ordinance submitted by Alderman Foubister entitled "An ordinance providing for the payment of employes of the city of Duluth of their just debts, incurred while employed by the city of Duluth, and providing for the dismissal of said employes for failure to pay such debts," took its second reading.

Alderman Shartel moved that the ordinance be now placed upon its final passage, and the motion was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Alderman Shartel moved the adoption of the ordinance, and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Alderman Moore reviewed the work of the council for the past year, and expressed satisfaction at the character of the work done.

Retiring Aldermen McKnight, Bloedel, Olson and Foubister were called upon, and briefly expressed their kindly feelings toward the out-going council and best wishes to the in-coming council.

Mayor Haven was called upon and congratulated the council upon the work done during the past year, and expressed his appreciation of courtesies shown to him by the council and other city officials.

Alderman McKnight moved that a vote of thanks be extended to President Jordan for the fair and courteous treatment accorded to each member by the president during the past year. Vice-president Hogan put the question calling for a rising vote, and the motion was unanimously carried. President Jordan briefly responded, thanking the members of the council for their co-operation in his management of the office.

Alderman-elect Wharton was accorded the privilege of the floor, and briefly addressed the council.

Assistant City Attorney Morgan being called upon responded on behalf of the city attorney's office, expressing his appreciation of the co-operation of the council with the attorney's office in all matters.

On motion of Alderman Foubister the council adjourned.

H. W. CHEADLE,
City Clerk.

By Alderman Foubister:

AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE PAYMENT BY EMPLOYES OF THE CITY OF DULUTH OF THEIR JUST DEBTS INCURRED WHILE EMPLOYED BY THE CITY OF DULUTH, AND PROVIDING FOR THE DISMISSAL OF SAID EMPLOYES FOR FAILURE TO PAY SUCH DEBTS.

The Common Council of the city of Duluth do ordain as follows:

Section 1. That all employes of the city of Duluth shall pay their just debts, contracted by them while in the employ of said city, as they become due, and failure to pay such debts shall be cause for dismissal from employ of said city.

Section 2. That if the wages or salary due to any city employe be attached by garnishment proceedings three or more times in any three successive months, it shall be prima facie evidence that such employe has failed to pay his debts and is subject to dismissal from the employ of the city of Duluth.

Section 3. That if the comptroller of the city of Duluth, either of his own volition, or at the request of any interested person, shall notify the City Comptroller that the wages or salary of any employe of the city of Duluth has been garnished three or more times in any three successive months, such employe shall be ordered to show cause to the Common Council, on not less than ten days' notice, why he should not be dismissed from the employ of the city. If said employe fails to show that he has paid his such just debts as they become due, or fails to furnish a good and sufficient excuse for non-payment of such debts, the Common Council shall, by resolution, order his dismissal from the employ of the city, and the city clerk shall transmit a certified copy of said resolution to the head of the department or board by which such employe is employed, and such head of a department or board shall immediately dismiss such employe from the employ of the city of Duluth.

Section 4. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

HELLO GIRL AT CLOSE RANGE AS SEEN BY THE LAROR COMMISSIONER

An Intimate Study of the Life of "Central."

"Well, what do you know about that," exlaimed a petite telephone girl after she had been shown a report of Commissioner Neil of the federal labor department, in which he tells all he knows about the hello girl. He has left little for her to find out about herself.

The commissioner has told an eager country many things concerning the young woman who sometimes stirs the ire of nervous patrons. It seems that it is not her fault that one cannot always get the corner grocery in seven seconds, or that Mrs. Smith's telephone is busy because the maid is telling the ice man that she will be there with bells on, and that she hopes he won't try to knock the block off the milk man at the ball, which for the benefit of Mrs. Smith's wash lady, whose husband inconsiderately shuffled off without paying the house rent. "Don't get gay with the hello girl," advises Mr. Neil, "and you'll get better service. She's doing the best she can and nobody can do any more."

The ideal hello girl, the kind that will make a manager do a flipflop, has a calm, clear eye and a good appetite, a steady hand, and a firm set jaw. "They must not be excitable," says Mr. Neil. Of 6,152 applicants in half a hundred cities the commissioner found that 2,229 were unable to qualify, 436 being too young, 11 refusing to work on Jewish holidays, 6 declining to be vaccinated, 169 lacking in personal appearance, and 544 being too small.

A girl under five feet doesn't stand any chance of getting her hands on the black front of a switchboard. No blinking lights or tinkling bells for her. "None of the companies," says the commissioner, "employ short girls. They want girls who can reach. The girl under five feet hasn't any show." The way some companies find out whether a girl is too small is by comparing her with another girl who is more than five feet in height. The applicant doesn't always know that she is getting a physical inspection. In some towns a physical examination is made.

The health of hello girls is good, the commissioner finds, although in the good old summer time they are prone to indigestion from stowing away too many ice cream cones and chocolate drops. Some companies provide hygienic luncheons, which prevent afternoon dullness and headaches that raise hob with the service, when the "peak of the load" is reached. Incidentally, any subscriber who wants to hand out a knowing line of conversation to the hello girl, should read the commissioner's report. It tells about the "side reach," the "up reach," "jacks," "split trick" and a few others.

The telephone girl may not know it, but in some towns she is the subject of an earnest campaign in behalf of the uplift and the higher life. Some girls may want to know why their employers haven't furnished them with roof gardens and lounging places. The commissioner finds that some companies have such gardens and he recommends that more of them be established.

Mr. Neill defends the telephone girl against a peevish public. He says that the average switchboard girl has a hundred telephone call signals to watch. As each call comes in, a light flashes on a signal cap. Many signal lights glow simultaneously and there is a clicking in the operator's ear every time the receiver is moved up and down. With all this confusion in front of her the hello girl has to contend with a supervisor who stands behind her and calls out the numbers to other operators when she fails behind in her work. She is in fear, also, of the monitor cutting in at any minute and reprimanding her.

Under the rules the hello girl is supposed only to say, "Number, please," no matter how much she is abused. When the peevish person begins to scold and ask why in thunderation he hasn't got his number, he is delaying her with the other calls that are coming in, and is not only lessening his own chance of getting quick service but is delaying other people and making life sad for the telephone girl.

The commissioner adds that if folks who delay their morning telephoning until 1:30 and their afternoon telephoning until 5 would remember that these are the heaviest hours of the day, the "peaks of the load," they would get better service and would make life easier for the girls.

Some of the girls may be surprised to learn that these hours of rush are regarded by them as "fun." "They really enjoy the excitement and the exhilaration," says the commissioner who makes this observation. "The loyalty and esprit de corps among telephone girls is greater than in any other industry in the country."

BRINGS SUIT FOR HEAVY DAMAGES

John Nickelotte Asks $10,000 From Great Northern for Injuries.

John Nickelotte, 28 years old, began suit in the district court this morning against the Great Northern Railroad company for $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been received when a car became derailed and fell upon him. The accident occurred near Saunders, Minn.

Nickelotte claims that he was in the employ of the railroad company at the time the accident happened. He alleges that he was walking at the side of the track when a freight train consisting of about forty cars and an engine came along at an excessive rate of speed. He says one of the cars became derailed and fell on him in such a manner that his left foot and ankle were broken, several ribs were broken, his right shoulder blade was badly crushed and his right hand and arm were badly hurt.

As the result of the accident he claims that he was forty days in a Superior hospital. He says in his complaint that previous to the accident he was an able bodied man earning $70 a month.

He alleges that the company was negligent in that the tracks were in poor repair and that the train was being run faster than the law allows.

LOADED DOWN LIKE PEDDLERS

One Alleged Thief Captured By Police, But Other Escapes.

One alleged thief was caught while another escaped from the police last evening after an exciting chase in which several shots were fired at the fugitive by Patrolman Dickman, who with Detective Irvine was attempting to arrest the two.

The men were lugging two heavy grips when approached by the officers. An examination of the contents of the grips revealed about $300 worth of goods such as are carried by general stores in small towns, including pocket books, hair pins, dress goods, laces and women's shoes.

The man under arrest gave his name as Thomas O'Brien, while the one who made his getaway is known as "Satiko." Each had a grip, but Satiko dropped his when he saw the policemen approaching. It is not known where the goods came from.

O'Brien is one of the two men recently arrested for stealing a load of flour from the Universal Milling company and later released on parole, the milling company refusing to prosecute. It is probable that he will be sentenced on the old charge witaout being tried on the last offense.

EXPRESS COMPANIES GET A FAVORABLE DECISION.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 3.—Judge Carland of the federal court has rendered a decision which is a complete victory for the express companies doing business in South Dakota. He holds that the act of the legislature did not give the board of railroad commissioners authority to make the schedule of rates complained of by the express companies, which was a general reduction of 20 per cent from the rates in effect Jan. 1, 1909.

Pressmen Re-elect Berry.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 3.—The biennial vote of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' union for their national executive council, as announced by the board of electors, shows a 65 per cent vote out of a membership of 22,000. George L. Berry of San Francisco was re-elected president without opposition, marking his fourth consecutive election by a unanimous vote. The others elected are: Peter J. Dobbs, New York, first vice-president; Michael H. Flannery, Chicago, second vice-president; Albert B. Kreitler, New York, third vice-president; Charles B. Crowley, Holyoke, Mass., secretary-treasurer.

WOMEN TO WORK FOR CLEAN CITY

Committee of Women's Council Appointed in Important Movement.

At the meeting of the Women's Council this morning, after a discussion of sanitary conditions and cleaning methods in Duluth, Mrs. R. N. Marble, vice president of the council, was requested to appoint a committee, which will work for a cleaner city.

The movement is in line with similar steps taken in other communities, where the women of the city have gone into the work of securing cleaner streets and alleys and a more beautiful city. Civic beauty requires first of all civic cleanliness and the Duluth women will work to secure that cleanliness, to remove from the streets and alleys all unsightly obstructions, and they expect good results from the crusade.

The committee as announced this afternoon is as follows: Mrs. E. R. Holden, Mrs. E. W. Matter, Mrs. A. M. Miller, Jr., Miss Grace Duncan, Mrs. Z. D. Scott, Mrs. J. T. Davis, Mrs. T. W. Hawkes and Miss Ensign.

WILL HONOR ROBERT EMMET

WATCHMAKERS' LORE.

New York Sun: When on one of those cold mornings last week this man came to wind his watch he broke the mainspring, and then he took the watch to the jeweler's, saying incidentally as he handed the watch over that he supposed more mainsprings broke in winter than in summer.

But the jeweler said no; that contrary to the general impression he thought more mainsprings broke in summer. He said that if you took a watch out of a warm pocket and laid it on a cold marble slab it might break the mainspring, but he thought that more mainsprings were broken by electrical disturbances in the air in summer than by cold in winter. He added that a new mainspring might break the day after it was put in, a mainspring being a very fragile, delicate and sensitive thing. If a watch were allowed to run down it might on being wound up again keep a little different time, due to some slight variation then in the spring's tension.

As he was going to have a new mainspring put in this watch, the owner thought that he might as well at the same time have the watch cleaned. It had not been cleaned, he said, in about a year and a half. The jeweler applied a watchmaker's glass to his eye and opened the watch and looked in, remarking then that the watch was last cleaned two years ago, in January, 1908. It seems that when a watchmaker cleans a watch he marks upon it the date of the cleaning in an out-of-the-way place, lightly and in characters so small that they are not discernible except with the aid of a magnifying glass.

This watch, the jeweler went on to say, had kept in good condition though it had not been cleaned for two years, but it would be well to have it cleaned now and it was wise to look after a watch at the end of a year and a half. There is a watchmaker's saying that a man who neglects his watch does so at his own expense, meaning that though the owner may thus fancy himself saving something, yet in the end it may cost him more for repairs.

WHY HE ENDED HIS NAP.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Speaking of the friend who sat in the jury box of the United States court with his hat on the other day, Attorney Francis B. Lee of Trenton told of a little incident that happened in connection with a good Quaker acquaintance of his who lives near Moorestown. One day the Quaker in question went to sleep in meeting and started to snore. For a while the nasal notes were soft and smooth and did not disturb the worshippers, but finally the sleeper let out a few extra links and kicked up such a commotion that a kindly disposed Friend thought it the part of wisdom to awaken him.

"Friend Nathaniel," he whispered, poking the sleeper in the ribs, "I think thee had better arouse thyself."

"What did thee say?" What did thee say?" exclaimed Nathaniel, suddenly starting out of his slumber. "What is the matter?"

"Nothing, Nathaniel," replied the other, without even breaking into a smile, "only thee was snoring a little and I was afraid that outsiders would think that the spirit had moved thee to a trombone solo instead of an expression of thy convictions."

WEARIED OF SMALL TOWN

Two Boys Ran Away From Their Homes in Michigan.

Planned to Join the Navy and Make Tour of World.

Tiring of their home town, Wakefield, Mich., which they considered too much like a farming community, two 17-year-old boys set out for Duluth to get a glimpse of the wide, wide world.

Their intention was to join the United States navy for four years at least, but they got no further than the recruiting station. They were picked up by the police, who had been notified by wire of their coming, with the request that they detain them until further notice.

The boys are John Ozello and Roger Pyack. They did not seem greatly downcast after being brought into headquarters by Sergeant Weber. They said that if their folks want them back home they "guessed they'd go without trying to make any trouble."

Ed Douglas, the last of the men arrested in a series of recent police raids, was found guilty in police court this morning of selling liquor without a license. He was fined $200 and costs, the limit, which he paid.

The woman, May Davis, arrested at the same time in the lodging house near Sixth avenue west and Superior street on statutory charges, was found not guilty and released.

John Sweeney became eloquent in police court this morning when pleading to be given his freedom after being arrested for being drunk. He said that if the court would let him go, he would get to Superior without costing the city a cent as he would walk over on the ice. Once across the bay he said he had a friend who would fix him out so he could get a job. Sentence was suspended.

* * *

Patrick Bohan stated that he was on the way to a hospital to undergo an operation and showed a letter from a physician to substantiate his claims. He felt that he needed a stimulant on the way and lifted a few too many high ones. The court let him go.

* * *

Minnie Blair and Vernie Spalding, held yesterday on statutory charges after being arrested on suspicion of having relieved a man of his money in a Bowery hotel, forfeited $25 bail each in the police court this morning. One said she was a seamstress while the other claimed to be a book agent.

* * *

Louise Carroll, who threw a lighted lamp at Martin Carroll about 2 oclock yesterday morning in the frame building in the alley between First and Superior streets near Fifth avenue west, was fined $10 and costs or seven days in the county jail. Similar sentence was imposed on the man, who was able to pay his fine while the woman had to go to the bastile on the hill. Both are colored.

SAGINAW NIGHT AT TOURNAMENT

Six Teams From Michigan City on the Program at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—Michigan and Ohio bowlers predominated in today's schedule of the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress. For the first time in the present meet two squads of five-man teams were listed to roll at night. The fact that six fives from Saginaw, Mich., were on the schedule caused the officials to head this program "Saginaw night."

Much interest centered in the prospects of the Bonds of Columbus, who won the American Bowling congress championship at Cincinnati in 1908. The five is led by Al (Kip) Selbach, the old rightfielder of the Boston Americans, but only three of the men who bowled at Cincinnati are still on the team.

Two squads of two-man teams opened the day's bowling. They were followed by four groups in the individuals.

Wealth Awaits You

In the fertile lands of the Texas Gulf Coast country.

For an outlay of three hundred dollars—$25.00 down, and payments spread over a term of nearly five years—you can own a ten-acre fruit land—which when planted with Satsuma Oranges, Magnolia Figs and Grape Fruit will net you from $3,000 to $5,000 a year.

Satsuma Oranges—a hardy luscious fruit for which there is an ever-increasing demand, can be grown more successfully on this soil than in California, and they ripen a full two months earlier. Magnolia Figs, a new fruit improved by grafting, until it is almost seedless and skinless, has already almost ousted the old tough-skinned fig from the market.

As An Investment It Is a Rare Opportunity.

Considering the location, the fertility of the soil, easily producing crops netting from $200 to several hundred dollars per acre—THIS LAND—at the rate it is now being bought up by fruit growers and investors—is cheap at $100 per acre, and will in a few years sell up to $200 and $300 per acre, same as in California.

Get in line before these tracts are all gone, investigate this introductory offer today; and a few years from now you will be independently well off.

RAINY LAKE GOLD FIELDS

Road Appropriations Are Secured From the Ontario Government.

Move All Along the Line for Revival of Mining Work.

Mine Center, Ont., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Good news just received from W. A. Preston, member of the legislative assembly in Toronto, indicates that the Ontario government once more remembers that the Rainy lake gold fields are on the map and that the province will profit from their recognition and development.

Cobalt has had the entire Eastern portion of the Dominion of Canada hypnotized for several years. Although many in the East were loyal in heart to the Rainy river district and its mineral resources, the silver flood started by Cobalt sufficed to isolate and side track mining interests in this part of the province.

Loyal citizens and owners of mines have had enough of this depression and neglect. There is a determination to give this great district the merit and prominence it deserves or else hand it back to the Indians for good.

Mr. Preston writes that, through his efforts and the petitions of mine owners, he has secured several appropriations for the repair and completion of wagon roads tributary to Mine Center. Among these appropriations one for $500 goes to the Mine Center and Glenorchy roads. Another $500 will be used to repair the wagon road from the "sandhill" on the Mine Center road to the Foley mine.

This improvement not only will make the Foley mine easily accessible from Mine Center station but will benefit several other properties accessible now only by boat or canoe. It also is hoped and believed that some important plans for the resumption of work at the Foley mine will soon follow this good news concerning road appropriations.

Revival of Mining.

There is a move all along the line for the revival of mining in the Rainy river district. H. A. Machin, member of the legislative assembly from Kenora, (formerly Rat Portage), is back of plans for purchase and operation of the noted Mikado mine on Lake of the Woods.

In the Manitou lake region, north of here, the stamp mill at the Paymaster mine is at work on old dumps of good ore and it is reported that a strong company will further develop and operate the mine.

Some weeks ago the Laurentian mine, famous for its rich ores and very creditable bullion production, fell into financial trouble under the erratic management of Anthony Blum, covering a period of years. Toronto reports say that a strong syndicate in the provincial capital will take over and operate the mine.

W. A. Preston and associates have a number of plans under consideration as to the Olive mine and other holdings but nothing has been conclusively decided. Something definite will be announced before long, it is believed.

Everything is favorable for a resumption of mining in the Mine Center region. The Canadian Northern railway now has a very creditable train service and extensive repairs have been made to the track and roadbed. Mines now are from a mile to ten miles from the railroad that formerly were 100 miles from rail ten years ago when the big boom was on. The one item of transportation, alone, decided whether a property could or could not be worked.

Facilities of today also have a favorable effect on the fuel and power questions. Coal now is obtainable if desired and for some mines the railroad simplifies the cordwood situation. With a reasonable resumption of mining it is very likely that electric power could be transmitted to the district from the power plant at Fort Frances. The Ontario side of that water power has the right to half that power and, today, the cry in Fort Frances is for industries that will utilize the power at a low cost.

News of the Pioneers.

Although most of the Mine Center pioneers are scattered over the face of the earth, some of them are left here and, occasionally, news of those who have sought other fields is heard. L. B. Cleaves made a killing at Cobalt and is spending the winter in California. George H. Hillyer is doing the best he can down in New York. George Randolph and Neil Burger live in Fort Frances. Bill Randolph is in Rainy Lake. A. C. Hubbell, the Merritts, and others, connected with the Golden Star flotation, are in Duluth. Andy Lund is in Western Canada and rich. "Papa" Percival is a confirmed invalid in Toronto. R. H. Flaherty lives in Port Arthur and represents the United States Steel corporation interests. W. A. Preston is a prosperous lumberman and is a member of the provincial parliament. M. C. French is a wealthy oil well owner in Oklahoma. Thomas G. Prideaux and Louis Hammil are merchants in Mine Center. "Maj." A. W. B. Whitely, J. C. Foley, J. W. Thickens and others have gone to the eternal land of gold.

Only a few days ago "Doc" Gardner died and was buried here at Mine Center. He was one of the pioneer prospectors and claim owners in the Mine Center region. He was interested in some of the first sales. Those early successes seemed to dull his energy. He lived humbly and simply in his rule cabin and slowly his hoard disappeared. For some years he was kept by kind men who knew him in the early days. He was very feeble for many months and his death was not unexpected.

Among the noted plungers and boomers in 1898-99 was J. C. Beebe. He was active in starting the old Mine Center hotel. He planned out townsite schemes. He also floated the Emperor mine, near the Lucky Coon and Golden Crescent mines, and interested Hal Watson, the Minneapolis grain speculator, in the project. Mr. Beebe was a hail fellow well met, a plunger and something of a sport. He was a confirmed devotee of the great American game of poker and his motto was "Cheer Up." He left here when the tide began to ebb in 1899 and sought other fields. Word was received recently that he died a few weeks ago in West Virginia, where he was superintendent of the Island Creek Coal company. When here, he claimed New York as his home. News of his death was received with deep regret by all.

Up north of here, in the Van Horne mineral belt, Alex McPhail and Dan Hutchinson have been working on a gold claim about half a mile from the Redeemer mine. They started on a vein ten inches wide, and at a depth of six feet it showed a width of 2½ feet with two smooth walls and ore that runs $2,000 a ton. They brought twenty-five pounds of the rich stuff into Dryden and it was studded and seamed with native gold.

OFFERING BONUSES TO SOO BUILDERS

Contractors Have Large Force Working on Line to Duluth.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 1,000 men are now at work on the Thief River Falls-Duluth branch of the Soo between this place and north of Bagley in Clearwater county. An effort is being made by contractors to complete the grading of the roadbed before the frost leaves the ground and bonuses are offered for rapid work, indicating the desire of the Soo to have the road in shape for the summer traffic. There is no difficult engineering on this whole line, as the portion in Red Lake county traverses a level rich prairie country and in the territory further east in Clearwater and Beltrami counties there are simply a number of ridges of sand and gravel to remove and some swamps to fill in, the latter being shallow ones.

This promises to be a solid road and with few curves and the lowest known grades. As it will prove to be the main line of the Canadian Pacific from Winnipeg to Chicago, it will of necessity have fast trains run over it and the contractors are making the road as substantial as possibly can be done.

Funeral at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ferdinand Nells, who died at Thief River Falls, Minn., early Wednesday morning, will be buried at Grand Forks Friday afternoon. The remains were brought here last night. Mr. Nells was 84 years of age and had resided in Thief River Falls about a year, formerly making his home in Grand Forks.

MAIL SERVICE ON BROOTEN LINE

Closed Pouches From Superior to Brooten Beginning March 21.

Mail service will be inaugurated March 21 on the mixed freight and passenger train running between Superior and Brooten on the Brooten branch of the Soo line, according to Supt. Newton De Forest of the railway mail service.

At first the service will be by closed pouches from Superior, but on the completion of the new Soo station in Duluth the service will be extended to this city. With the completion of the depot it is expected that regular passenger trains will be put on the line and the government will probably at that time also inaugurate regular railway mail service.

For the present, the pouch service will serve the purpose, as all of the towns along the line will be served. The action of the government means much to the people living in the little towns in the recently opened country, as well as to the jobbers and wholesalers of Duluth and Superior, to whom it will give facility in dealing with the merchants of the new towns.

The selections and names of the artists promise a delightful treat with a program different from any heretofore given.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of Kidney or Bladder trouble that it not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Sold by all druggists.

NEWSBOYS' ACT PLEASES MANY

Herald Quartet Is Big Drawing Card at the Savoy Theater.

With a novel singing and dancing street gamin act, the Herald newsboys' quartet is making a big hit at the Savoy theater, where the boys are appearing every night and entertaining large audiences.

The boys are showing real talent. They are perfectly at home on the stage. Their act is so cleverly put on that it might be a scene in the circulation room of The Herald or on the brick pavement in Herald alley. The boys are natural, and the fact adds to the merit of their act.

All day tomorrow the boys will sell The Herald in front of the Savoy theater and they will appear on the street exactly as they do in their act on the stage. After the engagement at the Savoy this week, the boys will appear at the Princess here, and the Savoy in Superior.

BORDER TOWNS ARE PROSPERING

Former Secretary of State Is Now Banker at Spooner.

Albert Berg, former secretary of state, and now a banker at Spooner, Minn., near the international boundary line, is a guest of the St. Louis today.

Mr. Berg says that Spooner and all towns in the northern part of the line, are growing very rapidly. He laid particular stress upon the growth of the region in the neighborhood of Spooner and International Falls.

"We have the largest mill in the state at Spooner," said Mr. Berg. "This is the Shevlin-Mathieu mill. We have two mills there and the town and the country round are prospering. The power plant at International Falls will soon be doing a large business, which will mean the growth of manufacturing in that part of the country."

Governor Reyes Resigns.

Monterey, Mex., March 3.—The state of Nuevo Leon has finally accepted the resignation of Gen. Bernardo Reyes as governor. The general is now living in Paris.

OPEN CITY TO ROOSEVELT

London Court of the Common Council Takes the Action Unanimously.

Ex-President Has Gone on a Short Trip to Hunt Antelope.

London, March 3.—The court of common council today unanimously adopted a resolution conferring the honorary freedom of the city on Theodore Roosevelt, in recognition of "the distinguished manner in which he filled the office of president of the United States, and for the eminent service which he rendered to the cause of civilization and the promotion of amicable relations between foreign nations."

Mr. Roosevelt will visit London in the middle of May.

The document conferring the freedom of the city on its guest will be presented to Mr. Roosevelt in a gold casket at the library of the Guildhall prior to the civic luncheon in the banquet hall, to which the most prominent men of the nation have been invited to meet the former president.

The mover of the resolution and the member who seconded it spoke in eulogistic terms of Mr. Roosevelt, declaring that the city would honor itself in feting the distinguished American "whose heart is big enough to hold the whole world in friendship."

A reception committee was appointed, and was specially charged to see that nothing be lacking to make the event memorable and "worthy of Mr. Roosevelt and his outstanding position in the world."

Another Little Hunt.

Khartum, Sudan, March 3.—Col. Roosevelt and his party left Mongalla today for Lake No, where Mr. Roosevelt may take a shot at antelope. The party is due here about March 17.

Ranch Naples in April.

Naples, March 3.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and Miss Ethel, returning from an excursion to Capri today, found a message from Col. Roosevelt awaiting them. The message stated that Colonel Roosevelt had made no change in his plans. He expects to arrive here during the first week of April and will go to Rome to call upon King Victor Emmanuel and the pope. He will then proceed to Paris, where he is due on April 15.

Beauty Culture.

During the past quarter century what is known as beauty culture has grown to be a recognized profession in every locality, and is now a part of the machinery of modern life. In the last ten years great strides have been made in its efficiency and all its departments. Men and women agree that a good malt tonic, such as golden to beauty. Order of your nearest with their meals enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves, and makes good, sound flesh, which are all aides to beauty. Orders of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

The first week, it will be noticed, one bushel of potatoes is purchased at a cost of 50 cents. The bushel is considered enough for two weeks, and the second week potatoes are not purchased, although the list otherwise is the same as the first week. The third week the first week's list is purchased over again, and during the fourth week the second week's rations are repeated.

$8 for Rent.

The total cost of the rations for the entire four weeks is $18. This leaves $8 a month for rent. Fuel is not provided for. According to Mr. Cook, there is ample allowance for such small articles as salt, pepper and other table necessities.

Mr. Cook says that while the list will no doubt look impossible to most people, he has proof of his figures, for he has been keeping track of the amount of money live on by several families. He says one family on Fifteenth avenue west and another on the hill still further west, live on less than this amount.

People will say, says Mr. Cook, that they wouldn't care to try it. That, he says, is just the reason it is not done more often. It is only for those people who have to get along on the money stated, that the list is given. He does not claim that a family can have any luxuries, but he does claim that the amount can be made to furnish a living and offers the table as proof.

Fifty pounds of flour will make thirty-five loaves of bread. Fifty pounds of flour are allowed twice during the month and that makes a total of seventy loaves. One bushel of potatoes will do the family of six two weeks, he claims. The allowance for coffee, sugar and other articles mentioned is very liberal, he says.

"I have received during the past two weeks many letters," says Mr. Cook and all of them are unsigned. I have been approached on the street and all the letters and all the questions have been: 'Do you do it,' with an air of—'I had you there old fellow—yes, I did.'"

"No, I frankly admit that I don't do it. I don't have to, that is the reason I don't. If forced to it, we could all do it. I have six families that do it; yes, and some of them live on less. I did not include butter in the rations. That was left out intentionally. When forced to do it people use bread and syrup and many other substitutes for butter. People do many things when forced to that they would not otherwise attempt.

"I want it understood that this list is for those that are forced to get along on what they can get. You can't pay big rent, live in the best portion of town, have dainties and early fruits on your table on this amount per month, but you can live."

DALE, MINN., POSTOFFICE IS ORDERED ESTABLISHED.

Washington, March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new postoffice has been ordered established at Dale, Minn., and Andrew L. Jelsing is named as postmaster.

Roosevelt and Clay Honored.

Geneva, Switzerland, March 3.—Former President Roosevelt and Brutus J. Clay, former American minister to Switzerland, were today appointed corresponding members of the Geneva National institute.

Boys Rob Gas Meter.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three boys some time Tuesday night or Wednesday morning broke into the residence formerly occupied by Rev. F. E. R. Miller, at the present time vacant, broke the gas meter open, securing some cash, and they also did other damage about the house. No arrests have been made.

CONTINUES ON DECLINE

Wheat Market Is Weaker Under Pressure of Heavy Liquidation.

Crop Scare Reports Received Are More Moderate in Tone.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 3.—Heavy liquidation in the near option, accompanied by selling in July, caused the market to continue on the decline which began yesterday.

May wheat opened at $1.14½ asked, declined sharply to sales at $1.13¾, $1.13⅞, $1.13⅝ and then $1.12⅞, closing $1.13 bid. The July option opened with offers to sell at $1.13⅞ and declined to $1.12¾-⅞ and closed at $1.13 nominal. Flax was dull opening with offers at $2.17½, selling at $2.17 and closing at that price bid.

Durum was conspicuous for its weakness, closing 2¼c off from yesterday. Rye was unchanged, oats closed 1¼c off and barley 1c off at 58-65c. Cash wheat was ½c over the near option.

Trading was heavy in the distant months, there being much liquidation in May and considerable feeding out of long supplies in July. The market rallied slightly toward mid-day but the pressure to sell was predominant and values continued their decline. Prices went through a readjustment that brought them nearer to an export basis, but owing to the weakness of the foreign situation there were few inquiries and the depressed state of the export trade was unchanged.

Much of the selling was from bulls who acquired holdings some time ago at low prices. The shorts were not noticeably active although there was some short buying around the lowest levels. The accumulation was in the nature of profit taking on lines that were acquired around the top of the recent bulge.

The markets opened soft from the effects of yesterday's decline. The foreign situation did not hold out any satisfaction to the bulls. Values abroad were lower as there was considerable pressure to sell. Argentine offerings were cheaper and shipments from that republic continue large. La Plattas were depressed and buyers held back. The quality of the offerings was objected to, according to a cable.

The corn market was weak and soft as the result of heavy liquidation and the weakness was partly reflected in wheat, the softness of which probably was accentuated by the tumbling corn values.

Many bullish crop reports floated in, but traders took note of the fact that most of the messages were more moderate than usual and that several reports from Nebraska, including a wire from Lyle, who is out for S. B. Chapin & Co., declared that the crop outlook is such as to warrant the belief that the crop has been only slightly damaged. A wire from Kansas City said that the condition of Oklahoma wheat is 85.9 against 93.7 per cent in December. The source of this information could not be disclosed. Weather conditions were bearish. Thawing weather with plenty of sunshine prevailed over most of the Southwest. Where the snow has melted from the wheat the plant is green, said reports from Ohio and Indiana.

Receipts took a sudden jump here, eighty-three cars being on track today with one train to come. The increase is due chiefly to additional shipments of wheat from interior elevators. The firmness of local prices compared with Minneapolis has tended to turn a part of the tide of wheat in this direction. There appears to be considerable wheat in the country yet.

Wheat stocks at Minneapolis increased 475,000 bu in the last five days. Stocks at the Head of the Lakes increased 108,000 bu in four days. Total stocks here are 4,887,000 bu. Values here probably will top the Minneapolis market until navigation opens and possibly until deliveries are made on the May option. Minneapolis receipts have been running several times the amount that has been coming to the Head of the Lakes. The average stores here at the opening of navigation are usually between 6,500,000 bu and 8,000,000 bu. A large amount of wheat will be needed here this spring for lake shipment, and Duluth will have to bid over Minneapolis to get the stuff. The Minneapolis market has a relatively greater pressure to withstand, owing to the large receipts there. The flour business has declined, however, and it is questionable if the demand can hold out. In a few days the Head of the Lakes will begin to receive flour for lake shipment.

Kansas City has sold 100,000 bu of hard winter wheat this week to Old Mexico at a price equal to $1.52 delivered in Mexico. Kansas City also sold 100,000 bu of No. 2 hard and Omaha disposed of nearly 100,000 bu for delivery at Chicago. St. Louis has sold 200,000 bu of soft wheat to Southwestern mills.

James A. Patten gave to New York newspaper men an interesting interview before his departure for Europe this week. He backed up James J. Hill in saying that this is an extravagant nation and that within five years the production of wheat will not equal the demand. He declared the duty should be removed from wheat and said that the people would demand it when this country was forced to go to Canada to replenish its supplies. Manitoba, he declared, could produce 500,000,000 bu annually, if necessary. Mr. Patten said he was a bull in both wheat and cotton. "I'm an optimist, first, last and always," he declared.

—The crops have improved during the week and are looking better, the weather being dryer. France—There are some complaints heard regarding the bad color and rankness of the plant and delay to field work, especially in the west, as a result of heavy rains, and dry weather is badly wanted. Germany—The outlook for the growing crop continues satisfactory, with the weather unseasonably mild; offerings of native wheat are larger. Roumania—The crop outlook is favorable, with the weather mild. Russia—There are a few complaints regarding the scarcity of snow protection to the crops, but on the whole the outlook is normal. Arrivals at the ports are increasing, but some mention is made of light interior offerings. The weather is generally mild. Hungary—The outlook for the winter crops is good; spring seeding is progressing; the weather is favorable. Italy—An official report under date of Feb. 20 states that the crop outlook is favorable with the weather seasonable. Spain—In the center and south the outlook for the growing crops is unsatisfactory, drought prevailing. North Africa—The crop outlook continues favorable. India—New Kurrachee wheat is being offered at a good discount; millers claim that the excellent crop prospects justify cheaper offers."

Benson, Ill., wired: "Wheat in this vicinity looks fair. No corn in elevators here and what is held by farmers will not be sold under 60c and unless they get this figure within thirty days, they will likely hold for 70 cents later on. Some oats in elevators but all oats are being held for 50c. The farmer has obtained this price for the past three crops and expects to do as well this year. Farmers are bullish, particularly on coarse grains and hogs."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Our Argentine agent estimates the wheat shipments this week 4,400,000; last week 2,960,000; last year 5,552,000. Corn 400,000; last week 170,000. There is a tendency among traders in Argentina to reduce the former crop estimates. Wheat market at the start was affected by the increased offerings, prompted by the lower American cables yesterday and the weakness in Buenos Ayres and values were ⅛@½d lower. Following the opening and during the morning the market further declined, prices losing an additional ⅛@½d, with the principal pressure in May. Selling at this time was due to large shipments from Argentina for the week. Free liquidation was in order. There is a general belief here the American damage reports are exaggerated. At mid-day the market was easy and ¼@⅞d lower than yesterday. Corn was steady and unchanged with the market neglected."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Early Trading in Wheat Brings Lowering of Prices.

Chicago, March 3.—Early trading in the wheat pit was on a downgrade. Opening prices were ⅛ to ¾c off, and the sag became more pronounced in the first hour, the selling pressure proving too much for the bulls. Reports on the growing crop were somewhat more favorable, although Southwestern news repeated the stories of damage. Conditions in fields east of the Mississippi river were declared favorable to a large crop. May fell from $1.14⅜ to $1.13¾. Opening prices for May were ⅛@¼c to ⅛@⅝c off at $1.14@1.14⅜. The market fell off still further in the final half of the session on increased offerings, May declining from $1.14⅜ to $1.13. The close was weak near the low point with May 1⅜@1½c off at $1.13⅜.

Corn duplicated the performance of wheat, and on large offerings fell off from ⅜ to ¾c after a weak opening. In the first hour, May ran down from 65¼c to 64½@64⅝c. Opening figures were ⅛ to ⅜c off with May at 65¼ to 65c.

A late decline in sympathy with wheat brought corn prices materially lower than at the start, May dropping from 65¼@65½c, the other futures declining somewhat less. The close was weak with May 1⅜c off at 63⅝c.

Oats dragged with wheat and corn but kept within narrower limits. The larger concerns sold. Pit traders gave support to the near option. Opening prices were ⅛c higher to ⅜c down, with May ½c to ⅝c off at 46⅞ to 46⅝c.

Slightly lower prices for live hogs were reflected in the provisions pit. The dip was 2½ to 25c, pork falling sharply to $24.85. Long were ready with offerings. Opening figures for the May products were: Pork, $24.87½@24.85; lard, $13.45@13.40; ribs, $12.92½@12.90.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Turns Easier Under Pressure of Liquidation.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 3.—Further liquidations made wheat easier today. May opened ½c lower than yesterday's close and fluctuated in a range of 1c, closing ⅜@⅝c below the opening. July was relatively firm. Local receipts were heavy and foreign markets easier. Minneapolis elevator stocks increased 475,000 bu in five days. Snow, the crop expert, estimated wheat in farmers' hands at 172,000,000 bu, which was considered as bearish by the trade. Minneapolis today received 449 cars of wheat as compared with 224 a year ago; Duluth 32 cars against 54 last year and Winnipeg 81 cars against 170 last year. May opened $1.13¼, high $1.13¼@1.13⅜, low $1.12¼@1.12⅝, closed $1.12⅝. July opened $1.13⅜, high $1.13⅜@1.13½, low $1.12⅝, closed $1.12½.

Cash wheat had a firmer undertone today on account of more active buying by elevator interests. Flour mills bought an occasional car of choice wheat that could be reloaded with flour for the East. No. 1 northern sold for the even May price to 1½c above and No. 2 northern for the even May price to 2c under. Closing prices on track: No. 1 northern, $1.12⅛@1.13⅛; to arrive, $1.12⅛@1.13⅛; No. 2 northern, $1.10¼@1.11⅛; to arrive, $1.10⅛@1.11⅛; No. 3 wheat, $1.06⅛@1.10⅛; No. 3 yellow corn, 55¾@56¾c; No. 3 white oats, 43¾@44¼c; No. 2 rye, 74¾@76¾c.

Millstuffs — Shipments, 1,049 tons. There was no change in the situation today. Demand continued fair, shipments heavy and prices firm. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $22.00@22.50.

Dullness continued the feature of the flour market. Occasional sales were reported by millers, but these were mostly for special brands. Shipments showed a falling off and prices bbl. First patents, in wood f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.50@5.70; second patents, $5.30@5.50; first clears, $4.45@4.55; second clears, $3.30@3.50.

Flax—Receipts, 33 cars; year ago, 19; shipments, 5. Demand was strong for both spot and to arrive at 1c above the Duluth May price. Closing $2.18½.

Barley—Receipts, 78 cars; year ago, 51; shipments, 78. The market today was steady to a trifle easier. Demand was good for all grades especially feeding barley. Receipts were fairly liberal and closing prices were steady to 1c lower than yesterday. Closing range, 58@66c.

Duluth Car Inspection.

Wheat—No. 1 hard, 3; No. 1 northern, 2; No. 2 northern, 12. Durum—No. 1, 2; No. 2, 9. Total durum, 11; mixed, 1. Total wheat, 54; oats, 22; rye, 2; barley, 6, last year, 11; flax, 2, last year, 2. Total, 64. On track, 85, one train to come.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, March 3.—Close: Wheat—Spot dull; No. 2 red western winter wheat, no stock; futures steady; March, 8s 1¾; May, 7s 10½d; July, 7s 8⅝d. Corn—Spot quiet; new mixed American northern, 5s 5d; old, American mixed, 5s 8½d; futures dull; March, 5s 4⅝d; May, 5s 4d.

New York Grain.

New York, March 3.—Close: Wheat—May, $1.21; July, $1.12⅞. Corn—May, 74c; July, 74⅞c.

South St. Paul Livestock.

South St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 600; mostly steady, quotation unchanged.

Hogs—Receipts, 2,6$$; 10c lower; range, $9.50@9.70; bulk $9.50@9.60.

Sheep—Receipts, 2,500; steady, unchanged; lambs, unchanged.

GAINS ARE WIPED OUT

And Some Important Stocks Fall Below Wednesday's Figures.

Profit-Taking in Final Hour and the Close Is Weak.

New York, March 3.—Opening prices of stocks today were higher than last night and the dealings were quite animated, but the gains were generally restricted to small fractions. National Biscuit rose 2, Northwestern, American Smelting, General Electric and American Steel Foundries 1 and Baltimore & Ohio ⅝. Missouri, Kansas & Texas preferred declined 1¼.

There was some selling in the railroad stocks under cover of the strength of the industrials, Reading falling below last night's close. Subsequently the whole market moved up briskly to its top prices. On heavy purchases United States Steel reached 85¼ and had a stimulating effect on the whole market. Renewed selling checked the rise before 11 o'clock, and the market became quiet and easier.

Reading's 1½ point rise was of doubtful effect on the general list owing to the realizing sales at other points. Union Pacific preferred declined 1¾ and Toledo St. Louis Western preferred 1. Bonds were firm.

When United States Steel reached 85⅞, the buying movement all around came to a halt and the market lapsed into dullness. Gains, however, were well held.

Bethlehem Steel preferred rose 3¾. Delaware & Hudson and Southern Railway fererred 1¼ and Denver & Rio Grande ferferred, Railway Steel Spring, American Ice and Westinghouse Electric, 1.

The market closed weak at a reaction. Profit-taking became general in the final hour and many important gains were wiped out and not a few important stocks reduced to lower prices than last night.

Butte-Alex Scott

This mine now takes its place among the richest copper mines in the world. The big deposit of high grade bornite ore which is making into copper glance has pinced the Scott where they can begin stoping and earning money fast. Much of the bornite runs up to 45 per cent copper and in the great camp of Butte no mine has ever opened up richer bornite ore. The massive ledge is over twenty feet wide in places and you can break down the rich ore with a hammer. To make you understand I will tell you about meeting Andy Perrin, assistant general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic. I met him on the street at Butte and told him to come with me and I would show him that the people of Duluth did not appreciate what I said about the mine. We went down and I told him to cast his eyes on the greatest deposit of high grade ore he had ever seen in his life and he did. The Butte-Alex Scott mine is a regular bonanza and should easily earn $600 a year on every 100 shares issued. Remember I mean what I say an investment today of $500 should earn for the owner of 100 shares at least $600 every year.

The Butte-Alex Scott is now one of the richest on Butte Hill and if you sell any of your stock you should have your head examined. Tuolumne is earning about $100,000 this month and Scott is getting to be another Tuolumne very fast. Amazon-Montana is doing great work at the mine, and the stock is certainly responding fast. Some are predicting big things for this issue. We have seen the property and it is one of the very best in the Amazon district. We are in the market for Butte-Alex Scott and Amazon-Montana and can pay you above the market for either of these issues.

We can use 1,000 shares of full paid Scott at 7¾, and 200 part paid at 4¾. We can also use 800 shares of Amazon & Montana at 5¾.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE—
Default has been made in the payment of the sum of One Hundred and Seventy ($170.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Hugh E. McIntyre and Mary McIntyre, his wife, Mortgagors, to J. F. Killorin, Mortgagee, bearing date the Seventeenth day of February, 1904, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, on the Fourth day of March, 1904, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., in Book 191 of Mortgages, on page 230, and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.
Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz: an undivided one-half (½) interest in Lot number Forty-five (45), Minnesota avenue, Upper Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said St. Louis County at the front door of the Court House in the City of Duluth, in said County and State on the 16th day of April, 1910, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Hundred Seventy ($170.00) Dollars, and Interest and the sum of Fourteen and 56-100 ($14.56) Dollars, taxes paid by said Mortgagee since the execution of said Mortgage and Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.
Dated February 17th, A. D. 1910.
J. F. KILLORIN.

BALLINGER'S LAWYER PINS PINCHOT DOWN TO DIRECT CHARGES

Cross-Examination of Former Chief Forester Begins at Capital.

Vertrees Demands Straight Statement and Witness Says "That Letter."

Duluth Man on Hand to Testify Before the Congressional Committee.

Washington, March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Samuel J. Colter of Duluth is in Washington, having been summoned here as a witness to appear before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee.

Washington, March 4.—Although interest in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation has been attested by large crowds at all of the sessions of the committee, the crush to get in since Gifford Pinchot took the stand has been such that the handling of newspaper copy out of the room has been at times made impossible.

Louis R. Glavis was the hero of the throng while he was on the stand accusing Secretary Ballinger, but he has gone into eclipse now that Mr. Pinchot is holding the center of the stage.

The Pinchot family has long been prominent in the exclusive society circles of the capital, and since Mr. Pinchot took the stand many of the leaders of this set have been present. Mrs. Pinchot, the mother of the former forester, has been at the hearings almost daily. She usually is surrounded by half a score of friends.

Pinchot Under Fire.

When the committee adjourned Tuesday afternoon last, the cross-examination of Mr. Pinchot had just been started by Attorney John J. Vertrees, representing Mr. Ballinger and the other named officials of the interior department. As soon as Mr. Pinchot took the stand this morning Attorney Vertrees, for Mr. Ballinger, asked him this question:

"Mr. Pinchot, please state one single fact of your own knowledge that reflects upon Mr. Ballinger's conduct, either as commissioner of the land office, or secretary of the interior—not hearsay, not what somebody else said or wrote—but of your own knowledge."

The witness hesitated. Then he addressed Senator Nelson:

"Mr. Chairman: In order to answer that question, because of the nice discrimination it involves, I must ask your permission to refer to a list I have here of the things Mr. Ballinger has done."

"Letter to the President."

The permission was granted and

BANK TELLER IS ARRESTED.

Shortage Is Charged in Bay State Institution.

Boston, Mass., March 4.—John H. Cullen, teller in the Union Institution for Savings, was arrested at his home in Dorchester, early today, charged with shortage in his accounts. Cullen was suspended three days ago. The case was laid before Bank Examiner Chapin, who immediately transferred it to the state police.

Cullen has been connected with the bank for ten years and was regarded as a faithful and efficient employe. He is married and has a small family.

CATTLE LAW UNDER FIRE

Question of Severity of Penalty to Railroads Is at Issue.

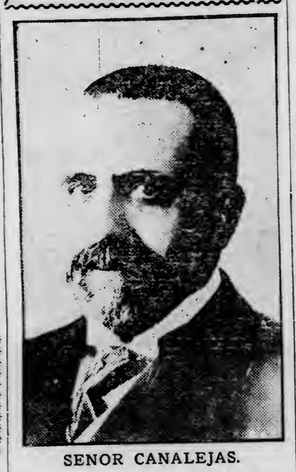
All Common Carriers Interested in Decision of Supreme Court.

Washington, March 4.—How severe a punishment congress has provided for punishing the railroads guilty of violating the so-called "twenty-eight hour law" for unlawful confinement of livestock in transportation was the basis for a stubborn contest today before the supreme court of the United States. Counsel for the government contend that the unit for fining railroads is the separate shipment, while the legal representatives of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad company insist that the unit is the train, no matter of how many separate shipments it is composed. Some features of the case resemble the $29,000,000 Standard Oil case.

The outcome of the controversy will have a far-reaching effect. Many separate consignments of stock are carried frequently in one train, so the sum of the penalty, imposed by the law, will vary from $100 to many times $100, according to the outcome of the litigation.

The Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroad alone appears in this case, but practically every common carrier engaged in interstate commerce in the United States will feel the effect of the decision.

LIBERAL WHO IS NEW PREMIER AT MADRID



SENOR CANALEJAS.

The successor of Senor Moret y Prendergast as premier of Spain is Senor Canalejas, formerly a member of the cabinet. Senor Canalejas has formed a ministry in which all shades of Liberalism are represented. Among the best known members of the new cabinet are Garcia Priete and Senor Romanones.

MRS. ASTOR GETS FINAL DECREE

Report Is That She Will Have $50,000 a Year Alimony.

New York, March 4.—The interlocutory decree of divorce of Mrs. Ava Willing Astor from her husband, Col. John Jacob Astor, was made final today. The final process took place in Justice Mills' court at White Plains with neither of the parties to the suit appearing in court. Mrs. Astor is now in Europe.

Lewis Cass Ledyard, counsel for Col. Astor, offered no objection to the filing of the final decree. Report has it that Mrs. Astor will receive $50,000 a year alimony. The decree will be filed later in the county clerk's office in Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Astor brought suit against Col. Astor last year for a divorce on statutory grounds. The hearing was before a referee and the public did not learn the details of Col. Astor's alleged offenses.

On the eve of the signing of the final decree, Col. Astor gave a magnificent ball last night at his newly modeled mansion in Fifth avenue.

GOOD HYGIENE IN NORMAL SCHOOLS

Dr. Gulick Says They Take Better Care of Students Than High Schools.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 4.—That normal schools are making much better provision for developing and conserving the physical soundness of their students than high schools do, is one of the conclusions in the report on the status of instruction in hygiene in American educational institutions. The report was made today by Dr. Luther H. Gulick, director of the department of child hygiene of the Russell Sage foundation, New York, and was presented at the session of the American School Hygiene association, held in connection with the meeting of the department of superintendence of the National Educational association. Dr. Gulick's information was gathered from replies to circulars sent to all American normal schools and high schools by the United States bureau of education.

CREW SAVED AT SEA.

Men Abandon Sinking Steamer Korea on North Atlantic.

New York, March 4.—The Russian steamer Korea, buffeted by storms on the North Atlantic and pounded into helplessness by heavy seas, was abandoned by her crew on March 1 and left to her fate. She was sinking fast when the men abandoned her. The Korea's crew of forty-eight men were taken off by the Archer line steamer Caledonia and are on their way here.

Grain Company Complains.

Washington, March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota & Iowa Elevator company today filed a complaint against the Rock Island and Great Northern railroads alleging discrimination against it as a shipper in bulk from Sioux City, Iowa, to Lismore, Minn.

Has Bought Its Own Stock.

Boston, Mass., March 4.—The purchase by the American Telephone company of the $2,000 shares of its stock recently sold by the Mackay company was announced here today by President Theodore W. Vail. President Vail says the stock was obtained at a price representing a cash overturn of between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000.

Bowls Over Freight Cars.

Wooster, Ohio, March 4.—The Pennsylvania special due in Chicago at 8:55 p. m., sideswiped a freight train six miles west of here early today, while traveling fifty miles an hour. No one was hurst. Several freight cars were hurled across the track but the passenger train did not leave the rails.

DOUBT RUMOR OF RESCUES

Great Northern Officials Discredit Report From Wellington.

Drenching Rain Increases Danger to Workers at Canyon Wreck.

Everett, Wash., March 4.—A report circulated here late last night that ten persons had been found alive in a car excavated from the mass of snow-covered wreckage at Wellington has caused great excitement here, but is so far unconfirmed. The wire to Wellington was lost during last night's storm, and it is impossible to get word direct from there. The Great Northern officers have received no confirmation of the rumor. Persons who left Scenic late yesterday afternoon had heard nothing of a rescue of imprisoned passengers, and are inclined to doubt the story. The telegraph company expects to get the line open to Wellington today.

Drenching Rain in Canyon.

The storm which started last night and swept down the canyon to Scenic changed into a drenching rain this morning, increasing the discomfort and danger of the men at work digging for bodies.

The Great Northern expects to bring the first corpses out on a train scheduled to leave Scenic this afternoon. The majority of the bodies will be taken to Seattle, where they will be held awaiting instructions from relatives.

Mail From St. Paul.

A statement issued by the railway mail service says that the train left St. Paul, Minn., at 8:15 a. m. on Feb. 21. Mail for Seattle, Tacoma and points in the state of Washington, west of the Cascade tunnel, originating in New York, Washington and Eastern points, Feb. 19, and Chicago Feb. 20, was probably on this train. Other mails involved were those for Alaska and Vancouver and Victoria, B. C.

The Great Northern's costly experiences with snow in the Cascades has caused renewal of the project to build a tunnel at a level 1,000 feet lower than the present opening, with its western opening at Scenic. The proposed tunnel was surveyed years ago by European engineers and pronounced feasible.

FRANCE THE SUFFERER.

Paris Paper Agrees She Would Lose By Tariff War.

Paris, March 4.—The Figaro, in an extended review of the Franco-American tariff situation as set forth by Bernard J. Shoninger, president of the American chamber of commerce in Paris, agrees that France is asked to concede less than the United States offers in return for an exchange of minimum rates and that France would be the greater sufferer if no agreement was reached.

WHY DID LLAMA ESCAPE?

Chinese Officials in Tibet Are Called on to Explain.

Pekin, March 4.—Wen Chung Tao, the assistant resident governor of Tibet, has been recalled by the Chinese government to explain the escape of the Dalai Llama from Lhassa. Amban Lien Yu also has been recalled. Gen. Chao Erh-Feng, as high commissioner, assumes supreme authority in Tibet.

Arbitration Law Has Been Declared Invalid in Former Instance.

Labor Leaders Prepare for Walkout of Thousands at Midnight.

Philadelphia, March 4.—Hope and evidently bright prospects of the avoidance of the calamity of a general strike in sympathy with the street car employes, which burned brightly this morning, has been all but extinguished, and today the labor leaders are preparing for a general strike to begin at midnight tonight, and which they claim will draw nearly 100,000 men from all departments of labor in Philadelphia.

The hope was based on a proposal made to the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company by the strikers last night that both parties unite in an appeal for the appointment of arbitrators by the local courts, under the arbitration act of 1893. It was intimated that the acceptance of the proposal would mean the calling off of the general strike voted early in the week.

Law Is Unconstitutional.

It was learned today, however, that the arbitration act of 1893 was declared unconstitutional during the summer of 1909 by Judge McFarlane of the Allegheny county court, who handed down this opinion in the McKee's Rocks strike arbitration agitation.

If the general strike goes into effect it will be conducted by a committee of ten, with John J. Murphy, president of the Central Labor union, at the head. The committee will meet daily during the continuance of the strike.

It was reported that the city might be plunged into darkness by a strike of the mechanical force of the Philadelphia Electric company, which controls all the public and commercial electric lighting business in Philadelphia. An official of the company, however, explained that very few of its employes are connected with unions. The same condition exists relative to employes of the city pumping stations.

MAN POSTED AS DRUNKARD TAKES HIS LIFE WITH RAZOR.

Waupaca, Wis., March 4.—Crazed by the thirst for the liquor which he could not procure, having been "posted" as a habitual drunkard, Albert Robison, formerly a prosperous business man, committed suicide at Cndott, Wis., by cutting his throat with a razor.

PEACEMAKER SHOT DEAD

Interferes in Quarrel Between Employer and Fellow Laborer.

Gustav Kirsten Kills John Bryan on a Farm Near Butternut, Wis.

Ashland, Wis., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gustav Kirsten, a prosperous farmer living near Butternut, during a quarrel last night with one of his hired men, Frank Sturgeon of Winter, secured a shot gun, and loading it attempted to shoot Sturgeon.

Another hired man, John Bryan, got between the two men and was shot dead.

Sturgeon disappeared in the darkness and Kirsten gave himself up. He is a brother of Oscar Kirsten of Milwaukee. A charge of murder will be preferred.

UNITE TO OPPOSE LABOR FEDERATION

Political and Business Men Form National Labor Alliance.

Washington, March 4.—The National Labor alliance was organized in a secret meeting here last night to oppose the influence of the American Federation of Labor in federal and congressional elections. The meeting was attended by several members of congress who have been opposed by the American Federation of Labor and by members of the Knights of Labor and others.

The plans of the new organization include the raising of a fund to be subscribed by manufacturers and others who have been in conflict with the American Federation of Labor and by congressmen who have had to fight for their political existence because of their attitude on problems proposed by the organized labor leaders.

A national headquarters of the new movement is to be opened in Washington and work of organization is to be spread throughout the United States.

FALLS FROM FIRE ESCAPE

Herbert Webster Will Probably Die as Result of Accident.

Touched Live Wire and Falls Two Stories, Fracturing Skull.

While watching horse races on the ice in the lake, Herbert Webster, aged 18, came into contact with a live wire and fell from the third story landing of a fire escape on the Michigan street side of the building occupied by R. R. Forward's furniture store, second avenue east and Superior street, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The young man's body struck the first story landing. His skull was fractured and his hands were badly burned, indicating that he may have seized the wire to steady himself while standing on the landing.

The youth was picked up unconscious and was hurried to St. Luke's hospital, where he is in a serious condition. Whether he will live is not known, but at the hospital it was said that there is little probability of his recovery.

The young man's home is at 421 Ninth avenue east.

OTHELLO BREAKS WIFE'S APPENDIX

Mme. Alda Has to Have Operation After Playing With Slezak.

New York, March 4.—A decidedly modern tinge was given to the production of Othello at the Academy of Music Tuesday night, when the Moor, instead of merely strangling Desdemona, seized her so roughly that he ruptured her vermiform appendix. As a result of the impromptu modernization Mme. Frances Alda, fiancee of Director Giulio Gatti-Cazazzi, lies in a hospital here recuperating from an operation for appendicitis. Leo Slezak attacked her so fiercely during the production that her vermiform appendix broke. She will not be able to sing again with the Metropolitan company this season, her physicians say.

"It was in the fourth act," Mme. Alda said, as she lay in the hospital. "Mr. Slezak was Othello, and he is something of a Moor, you know. He is 6 feet, 4 inches tall and weighs in proportion."

"I had been suffering considerable pain all through the opera, but hoped to get through all right. I did, too, but when he grabbed me to strangle me, I felt something 'give' down in my side. I almost swooned with the pain, but finally it grew less and I was able to finish the piece."

LAST BODIES ARE TAKEN FROM MINE

Peoria, Ill., March 4.—Richard Newsam, state mine inspector, reported today that sixty-one dead bodies discovered yesterday in the St. Paul mine at Cherry, Ill., were brought to the surface this morning. Mr. Newsam says that this probably will be all of the bodies that ever will be recovered, and that identification is impossible owing to decomposition.

TWENTY-THREE KILLED.

Juneau, Alaska, March 4.—Twenty-three miners were killed early yesterday morning by an explosion at a powder magazine in the 1,100-foot level of the Mexican mine, one of the group of Treadwell gold properties on Douglas island. Eight men were seriously injured, of whom it is feared four will die. The magazine, which contained 275 pounds of powder, was thirty feet away from the place where the men were standing and every man was killed or injured. Most of the miners were foreigners. The mine was little damaged. It is not known what caused the explosion.

PUBLIC BUILDING BILL TO BE REPORTED TO HOUSE

Washington, March 4.—Chairman Richard Bartholdt of the house committee on public buildings, admits that there will be an omnibus bill of between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 reported from his committee. A considerable portion of this will be for extensions and additions to present federal buildings.

Representative Miller will endeavor to secure an appropriation providing for money enough to carry out the original plan for enlarging the federal building in Duluth.

Bleached Bones of Carl Sunne Are Found By an Indian.

His Diary Shows That He Wandered for Days Without Water.

Book, Parched By the Sun, Is Discovered Beside His Skeleton.

First word of the awful death of Carl Sunne, 19 years of age, was received in Duluth today with the return of L. M. Hanson, auditor of the Fitger Brewing company, from the West, where he went to investigate. The unfortunate young man had made his home with Mr. Hanson upon coming to this country from Norway.

Starting out alone on a prospecting trip Sunne was lost in the Amareosa desert in California. His last entries, found in the diary which he had kept up till the moment he became unconscious, show that death was due to thirst. The book, parched by the burning sun, was found beside his skeleton. The remains were discovered by Charles Lee, an Indian runner, who was searching for him.

The notes show that he suffered terrible agonies, wandering about four days without a drop of moisture to quench the insufferable thirst. He retained his faculties a long time, and may have retained a spark of life some time after writing the last delirious message to the world. The words at the end of the record are very scrawling and illegible, and convey little sense.

The young man had two claims at Goldfield, Nev., and it was in furtherance of an irrepressible ambition that he sought the desert in search of valuable properties. He was alone in this country, all his relatives being in Norway, his former home. He left Duluth some months ago, the bones of the skeleton being found Feb. 24.

Mr. Hanson took considerable int in the young man and he kept hi his home at 818 Ninth avenue east he became familiarized with condi in this country and gained a bette derstanding of the language.

RUSSIA REJECTS PEKIN PROPOSAL

Will Not Consent to the Building of Proposed Railroad.

Pekin, March 4.—The Russian government in a formal note submitted to the Chinese foreign board rejects in toto China's proposal for the construction of the Algun and Chinchow railroad.

The Russian note includes the counter proposal of Russia for the extension of the Kalgan railroad by foreign capital to Baikal, Russia building the Siberian section.

The counter proposal, as well as Russia's rejection of the Algun-Chinchow plan, is based upon a promise which the Russian government alleges that China gave in 1898 not to construct any railways north of Pekin without first consulting the Russian government.

China is not cognizant of this alleged promise and feels obliged to delay a reply to St. Petersburg until the agreement asserted is proved or disproved.

TRUE BILLS LOOKED FOR

More Meat and Storage Men Are Expected to Be Indicted in New Jersey.

Warehouse Abuses Are the Subject of Particular Attention.

New York, March 4.—More indictments of meat packers or cold storage men were looked for today from the Hudson county grand jury.

A week ago the jury handed down indictments against six Chicago packing firms and a dozen or more individual directors and agents of the so-called "beef trust." Since then the jurymen have had other phases of the food products situation under examination, with particular relation to cold storage abuses.

Further action against the big packing companies, if any be taken, may have to wait upon decisions by the courts on the prosecutor's demand that the defendants produce record books for grand jury inspection. This question is to be argued before Justice Swayze in Trenton on Tuesday next.

CLAIM IT IS INADEQUATE

Virginia Wants More Than $100,000 for New Courthouse.

Hibbing May Offer New Town Hall for Use of Court.

There may be a warm session of the county commissioners in the board room at the courthouse on March 8.

A delegation of Virginia citizens will try to show the county board that the building to be erected at the range town is by far too small for the needs. The matter of whether or not to pay the $25,000 for the site at that place, will also be taken up for final consideration.

The action of the Virginia people may stir up a merry war between Virginia and Hibbing. The sentiment at Hibbing is that the court should be located at that place, for the citizens argue that more than one-half the cases originate in Hibbing territory.

The laws governing the court on the range provide that court be held at Virginia and that the county provide the quarters. If sessions are held at Hibbing that village must provide the quarters.

At Hibbing a new town hall has been completed and the sentiment of the people seems to favor turning it over to the county for the use of the court.

The Virginia building and site represent an investment of $100,000. The building will cost $75,000 and the site will cost $25,000, that being the amount set by the appraisers at their meeting some time ago. The commissioners feel that Virginia should be well satisfied.

The whole matter will be talked over at the next meeting of the board which takes place Tuesday morning of next week.

The plans for the building have been completed by the architects, Bray & Nystrom. They will be before the commissioners for consideration at the meeting.

The matter of the incorporation of the village of Splint will also be taken up by the county board.

FEBRUARY WAS COLD MONTH

Average Temperature Was 8 Deg. Above Zero in Duluth This Year.

February was a decidedly cold month in Duluth this year, for the average temperature was 8 deg. against a mean for the month for forty years of 13.2 deg., according to the monthly Meteorological summary issued by H. W. Richardson, local forecaster of the weather bureau. The month has been colder in former years, however, for in 1904 the average temperature was 1 deg. and away back in 1875 the average was 2 deg. below zero.

February 28 was the warmest day of the month with a temperature of 33 deg., while the coldest day was Feb. 23 with 22 deg. below. The greatest daily range was 31 deg. Feb. 12, and the least daily range, 10 deg. Feb. 1.

The total precipitation for the month just closed was 1.13 inches against an average of 1.01 inches for the month for forty years. The snowfall this year was 12.3 inches and the greatest precipitation was .33 inch Feb. 15. The snow on the ground at the end of the month measured 13.6 inches.

The prevailing direction of the wind for the month was northwest, and the total movement was 10,132 miles, or an average hourly velocity of 15.1 miles. The maximum velocity was attained Feb. 15, when the wind blew from the northeast at fifty-one miles an hour.

There were fifteen clear days during the month, six partly cloudy and seven cloudy. There was .01 or more on an inch of precipitation on eight days.

SHOT BY HIS FORMER WIFE

Annandale, Minn., Man Is Wounded After Ejecting Youth.

Annandale, Minn., March 4.—Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock William Foster was shot by his divorced wife.

Mr. Foster arrived in town at 2:15 p. m. He went directly to his house, which has been occupied by the former Mrs. Foster since the divorce was granted several months ago. Mr. Foster ejected a young man named McCoy, who has been a boarder there, and soon afterwards was shot by Mrs. Foster in the neck and chest.

Both Mrs. Foster and the McCoy boy have been placed in custody to await examination. Foster's wounds are not expected to result fatally.

WANTS TEDDY TO EDIT SUN.

W. J. Arkell, of New York Admits He Has That Idea.

New York, March 4.—W. J. Arkell, a well-known publisher of Canajaharie, N. Y., who formerly owned a weekly magazine in this city, has admitted that he had attempted to buy the New York Sun and that he had hopes to engage Theodore Roosevelt for editor.

"It is not true," he said, "that the Laffan heirs balked when it was learned that Roosevelt was to assume charge. The truth is that I got in touch with the Laffan people and offered $2,000,000. They replied that they already had refused $3,500,000. There the negotiations ended.

"Later I may try again, but not at $3,500,000. There is a small syndicate of us who believe that it would be advantageous for the country to have Mr. Roosevelt at the head of a big daily paper."

STAPLES PLANT SOLD.

George Moshier Disposes of His Planing Mill and Lumber Yard.

Staples, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Moshier, who has been running a planing mill and lumber yard at this place for about five years, is going out of business. The Dower Lumber company is to purchase the planing and lath mill, lumber and building material stock, buildings and lots at the corner of Fourth street and Fourth avenue. The invoicing is being done this week. The Dower Lumber company will ship a portion of the stock to some of their other yards, some of it will be combined with their stock at this place, and the engine and boiler will be sold. The planing mill and lath mill will be moved to the local yard of the Dower Lumber company and an electric motor will be installed to operate it.

WOODSMAN IS KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS BY TREE.

Cass Lake Hinn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mike Connelly, employed in the Nells camps across the lake was seriously injured while at work. Two other woodsmen were felling a tree a short distance from where he was working and as the tree started to fall the cutters shouted a warning to Connelly. He started to run, but too late, as the tree struck him over the head, inflicting a severe scalp wound, knocking him unconscious for several hours. Medical attendance was summoned and the injured man taken to the hospital at Bemidji.

Duluthians Will Select Own Food in New Restaurant.

Duluth will have one of the largest and latest style of restaurants in the Middle West. The restaurant will be located in the basement of the Torrey building and will be modeled after some of the new restaurants in the East.

It is on the plan where the patron serves himself. There is a long counter where the food is kept hot by a steam system. You select your food, which is all prepared, pay a girl as you walk from the counter into the table room, and you have your meal.

The idea is very popular in the East, because a large number of people can be served in a very short time.

The restaurant will be the largest in the city. It will take up all of one side of the building and will extend through from Superior street to Michigan street.

IN MEMORY OF EMMET

Irish of Duluth Will Gather to Honor the Famous Patriot.

Assistant County Attorney James P. Boyle Is the Speaker of Evening.

Duluthians with Irish birth and descent will tonight observe the one hundred and twenty-second anniversary of the birth of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot, at an open gathering at Cathedral hall under the auspices of Division No. 1, A. O. H.

James P. Boyle of Eveleth, assistant county attorney, will be the speaker of the evening and he will deal with the life and works of the patriot. Misses Margaret and Josephine Murphy of Virginia will, with the violin and the ancient harp of Ireland, accompany their sister, Miss Bessie Murphy in two selections, "Kathleen Mavourneen" and "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls." Other numbers will be solos by Mrs. Leo Ball and Joseph Murphy of Superior, a song by the Cathedral High School Glee club, music by the Crusaders' orchestra and Frank McNally will speak the famous Irish poem, "Kelly, Burke and Shea."

Robert Emmet was executed in Dublin Sept. 20, 1803 for his part in the rebellion of July of that year, in which Lord Kilwarden and several others were killed. Emmet was 25 years old at the time of his death. Five years before, he had been expelled from Trinity college, Dublin for alleged attempts to incite his fellows to rebellion. He traveled to the continent for a time, but on the repeal of the habeas corpus act, he returned to Ireland and continued to work for Irish independence. His activity culminated in his arrest, trial and conviction by the royal commission, which sentenced him to death.

Emmet is one of the most beloved and one of the most widely known of the Irish patriots, who fought and died for the cause which has thus far been in vain. His memory has been kept alive by Irish devotion, but also very largely by his speech made to the lords at the time of his sentence. For the sentiments expressed, for its vehemence of expression, for a strange request that his epitaph be not written until Ireland should be free, the address has been widely quoted and admired, not only by the Irish but by people of all nations.

The concluding paragraph of the famous speech, containing the strange request, is:

"I am going to my cold and silent grave. My lamp of life is nearly extinguished. My race is run. The grave opens to receive me—and I sink into its bosom. I have but one request to ask at my departure from this world—it is the charity of its silence. Let no man write my epitaph—for as no man who knows my motives dare now vindicate them, let no prejudice or ignorance asperse them. Let them and me repose in obscurity and peace until other times and other men can do justice to my character. When my country takes her place among the nations of the earth—then and not till then—let my epitaph be written. I have done."

After Emmet was executed, his body was not turned over to his friends, but was buried in quick-lime as in all cases of execution for penal offenses and treason. The place where his body lies is pointed out to visitors in Dublin as identified. It is marked by a plain, uninscribed slab and the time has not yet come when the epitaph may be written.

STEENERSON GETS COMMITTEE NOTICE

Renews His Attack on Ship Subsidy Interests in the House.

Washington, March 4.—"I am intimidated in my representative capacity as a member of the house!" shouted Representative Steenerson of Minnesota in the house yesterday, charging that large sums of money had been raised by ship owners to influence members of congress improperly in behalf of ship subsidy legislation.

Mr. Steenerson, who is one of the house "insurgents," demanded recognition from the speaker on a question of personal privilege to make reply to an attack made upon him in the "American Flag," published at Cleveland, Ohio, in the interest of ship subsidy. The speaker ruled that inasmuch as the attack had been caused by a private letter written by Mr. Steenerson it could not be brought out in the house.

Wants An Investigation.

Immediately Mr. Steenerson initiated a new demand for recognition declaring that the Merchant Marine League of the United States with headquarters at Cleveland "conspired and associated together for the purpose of unduly influencing congress and creating hostility against all persons opposed to such legislation."

He wanted a committee appointed to investigate these charges to determine whether a conspiracy did exist.

Representative Underwood of Alabama, upholding the contention of Mr. Steenerson, said the allegations involved a question of the highest privilege.

Cooper Steps In.

"If a conspiracy of that kind has been formed," insisted Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin, "it is the subject for a criminal action and should be investigated by a federal grand jury."

Speaker Cannon cited precedents to show that the question raised was not one of personal privilege and on motion of Mr. Payne the entire subject was referred to the committee on judiciary.

INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED

Grand Jury for March Term Makes Its First Report.

The grand jury in district court made a partial report to the court late last evening. Five indictments were returned, one of which is secret, as the man against whom the indictment was returned is not in custody.

Abraham Anderson is accused of forgery in the second degree. Anderson is said to have had in his possession a check on the First National bank payable to O. Olson and purporting to have been signed by A. G. Osman, per K. R. A. The amount of the check was $18.

George Laux will also stand trial for forgery in the second degree. He is accused of passing on Gust Molin a check for $37.45 drawn on the Western State Bank of Duluth. The check was payable to Frank A. Wagner and was supposed to have been signed by F. R. Wade of the Wade Hardware company.

Oliver Joseph Gerow is charged with abandoning his baby.

Milan Sagatovic and Sam Rakac are charged with swindling Wassil Stocki out of $452 in Canadian money. Stocki was on his way to the West to buy a farm when he fell in with the two men in Duluth. He was taken to the Lake avenue viaduct where his money was taken from him by the aid of a very old trick and the two are said to have been responsible for the swindle.

DIES SITTING ON EDGE OF BED

Body of Henry Karhamen Found in Home on Lake Avenue.

The body of Henry Karkainen was found in the bedroom of his home at 324 Lake avenue south yesterday afternoon. The position of the body indicated that he had been sitting on the edge of the bed when he was stricken. An inquest will probably be held.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS

Y. M. C. A. Hopes to Secure 250 in First Ten Days of March.

The Y. M. C. A. has started a campaign to add 250 more members to the rolls of the local association in a ten-days' campaign ending March 10. The hunt has been in progress over three days and it is said that 150 new recruits have been secured. The last 100 will require harder work and the committees having the matter in charge are preparing for strenuous work the next few days.

Visitors will be welcomed to go through the building Monday and in the evening the membership committees will hold a banquet at which further plans will be outlined, following which there will be a vaudevile entertainment in the assembly room. It is desired to bring the total membership up to 1,500.

TAFT HONORS "UNCLE JOE"

Breaks Precedent By Formal Dinner---Host and Guest Do Jig Stunt.

Washington, March 4.—While more than fifty guests looked on laughingly and applauded, Speaker Cannon tempted President Taft last night into a test of terpsichorean agility in the East room of the White House. Both stepping pantile when the trial was ended, but the opinion was unanimous that the honors on fancy steps were even. The dancing followed a dinner given by the president to "Uncle Joe," said to be the first formal affair accorded a speaker of the house of representatives by a president.

The dinner ended, the company went to the east room, which boasts an ample and smooth dancing floor. An orchestra played a gentle waltz and the president led off with Mrs. Joseph H. Gaines, wife of the representative from West Virginia. The speaker, with Mrs. Laughlin, a sister of Mrs. Taft, glided out on the polished floor in the wake of his chief when the dance was on.

Taft and Cannon in "Hoe-Down."

In the intermission, however, when the orchestra struck up a lively tune, "Uncle Joe" stepped briskly into the middle of the room and brought his heels together sharply. There was a patting of gloved hands and voices called encouragingly to Mr. Taft. "I was something of a dancer when I was a youngster."

For answer, the president stepped forward and the two executed several steps of an old-fashioned "hoe-down" that delighted every one. Both were puffing when they finished.

Following the dancing, the president led his men guests to the smoking room on an upper floor of the White House, where an intimate talk was held in which partisan politics is said to have had no place. The women remained in the East Room.

ORDERS PROBE OF THE OLEOMARGARINE TRADE.

Chicago, March 4.—Federal investigation of the oleomargarine industry in this city was ordered by Judge K. M. Landis in the United States district court late yesterday afternoon after the court had listened to testimony given by three men who had pleaded guilty to charges of violating the internal revenue law relating to the colloring of oleomargarine. The name of William J. Moxley, congressman from the Sixth Illinois district, as well as those of other prominent manufacturers of the product, figured in the hearing.

Dr. Hull Out on Bond.

Kirksville, Mo., March 4.—Dr. James R. Hull, charged in a joint indictment with Mrs. Alma P. Vaughn with the murder of the woman's husband, Prof. J. T. Vaughn, by poisoning, was released from the custody of the sheriff yesterday on a $15,000 bond. He returned to his home to await a hearing in May. Mrs. Vaughn, who is now in Texas, was released on a $25,000 bond last Saturday.

THREE KILLED IN WRECK.

One Fatally Hurt and Seven Injured in Illinois.

Decatur, Ill., March 4.—Three men were killed, one fatally hurt and seven others severely injured on Illinois Central trains one mile south of Oconee yesterday, when two freight trains collided in a heavy fog. It is said that the southbound train ran past the station at Pana, and failed to get orders. The operator at Pana made desperate efforts to stop the train by telephone but did not succeed.

Commission Form Defeated.

Hiawatha, Kan., March 4.—An election here today resulted in the commission form of government being defeated by 75 votes.

SLUMP IN EGG PRICES

Increased Receipts, Due to Warm Weather, Cause Further Decline.

Poultry Still Very Firm---Potatoes Are Glutting the Market.

Eggs slumped during the week from 26 cents to 23@24 cents a dozen, wholesale.

Just now "eggs is eggs," there being little or no storage product in the market. The cold weather several days ago threatened to take the market out of the buyers' hands, but prices slumped when the warm spell happened along and the decline kept on with the continuation of the warm weather. The demand is excellent and stocks are being rapidly moved at the lowered values.

Chickens are still selling at the highest prices ever recorded at this time of the year, and geese, turkeys and ducks are bringing the same high values that were reached last week. All grades of meats are slightly higher. Butter is cheaper. The trade in vegetables and fruits is quiet. Potatoes are about unchanged although the better grades bring 45 cents instead of 40 cents which some houses obtained last week.

Buyers have exerted a bearish influence on the market. Encouraged by the recent success in breaking prices they have bought to bear all the pressure they could summon to keep eggs on a downward trend and their efforts have been successful. The warm weather has caused an easy feeling among buyers who have no reason to fear a shortage of receipts so long as favorable temperatures exist. The sudden advent of the warm weather found the market in a partially glutted condition as many dealers had stocked up during the preceding cold period. Receivers tried to keep the market free from accumulations by making fractional concessions and later they yielded to the extent of 1 cent but toward the close of the week the pressure of receipts forced a further concession of 1 cent and some eggs which receivers desired to move immediately were offered today 3 cents under the prices which prevailed toward the close of last week. The average reduction, however, was 2 cents.

The quality of the receipts is good, the percentage of strictly fresh laid eggs being unusually liberal for this time of the year.

A reduction in butter prices was inevitable after buyers failed to take hold at firmer prices last week. Consumers curtailed their purchases to meet their requirements and the trade lacked spirit. A reduction of 1 cent in the better grades stimulated activity among buyers and the tone of the market was considerably improved this week.

* * *

The cheese market is in a good condition. The demand is in excess of fresh receipts and sellers have had a big advantage. The outside demand keeps pace with local requirements. All descriptions are selling with equal freedom and the market has been kept almost bare of offerings. Although cheese prices are high, dealers say that values are no higher, comparatively, than other food products and that the market is on too sound a basis to warrant expectations of a material decline before another season's make is ready to be marketed.

Poultry, which experienced a sensational advance last week, was unchanged this week. Values held firm and there was no weakening of the tightened market. Chickens are selling higher than during the Civil war, and it is not unlikely that an additional advance will be registered. Despite the high prices, receipts of live and dressed poultry are insufficient to meet the needs of the market. Consumers willingly pay the current quotations and it is difficult to fill orders. Advices from country shippers to commission men indicate that producers have marked their stock at the high prices which have prevailed for many weeks having attracted offerings, and that there are no reserves on the farms. The supply of poultry on the farm, it is said, is smaller than it has ever been.

All meats are higher. The better grades of veals advanced 1 cent, despite the slump in prices of live calves at the stockyards of the country. Receivers seem unable to get a sufficient supply of fancy, meaty carcasses to meet the demand from butchers. The prices on the poorer grades of veal are unchanged. Values are at the highest levels in many months. The poorer grades of pork loins are unchanged, but the better grades are 1 cent higher. Lard advanced 1 cent. The poorer grades of beef are ½ cent higher and the better grades are ½ cent lower, due to a lessening in the popular demand. It seems to be a whim of a part of the public just now to choose the lower grades. The better grades of mutton are 1 cent higher and the cheaper grades were advanced ½ cent.

The potato market shows no improvement. The consumptive outlet is narrow and receipts continue to increase. Receivers were forced to shade values to keep stocks from accumulating. Buyers had little confidence in the situation and recessions, instead of stimulating the inquiry, had the effect, apparently, of causing purchasers to look for a further decline. New potatoes are meeting with better demand than old offerings and the demand is sufficiently broad to keep the market cleaned up. Sweet potatoes are in fair demand at firm prices. The season is about over, but consumers do not appear to have tired of them. The demand is equal to the supply, if not in excess of it.

The fruit and vegetable trade is proceeding along even lines in fair volume. Oranges and apples have attracted the most interest. Lemons have met with a moderate sale. There has been little activity in grapes, pineapples and cranberries.

* * *

The vegetable market last week was subject to considerable uncertainty, on account of belated trains. Southern vegetables sometimes failed to arrive or came in small quantities. This week, however, the warm weather aided railroads in improving transportation service and the receipts were more generous and the quality improved. Commission men did not have to deal with such a large volume of damaged supplies, and perishable stock could be held longer before effecting a sale than in the previous week.

REPLIES TO A. P. COOK

Grocer Declares Margin of Profit Allowed Is Too Small.

Fuel and Light Cannot Be Omitted From Consideration, He Says.

To the Editor of The Herald:

To some people, A. P. Cook's figures, telling people, who cannot afford the luxuries of life how to live on $26 a month may be convincing, but they are not so to grocers. I venture to say that if grocers sold their goods at the figures given by Mr. Cook and sold other articles of food on like margins of profit, the grocers of Duluth would not each make $26 a month on which to live and support their families.

What grocer will sell potatoes for 50 cents a bushel when he is forced to pay from 45 to 48 cents for them? I don't sell beans at 5 cents a pound at present prices and I haven't found any other grocers who do, though beans could be sold at that figure on a very small margin of profit. The lowest grade of flour I sell, brings $1.60 for fifty pounds and cannot be sold at a lower price. I don't know of any tea that sells at 20 cents a pound. The tea that I sell at 40 cents is a pretty low grade. At prevailing prices, the best I can do with sugar is to give seven and one-half pounds for 50 cents.

Of course, we understand that Mr. Cook says a person can only exist on the articles he specifies. I am not asking Mr. Cook how he would like to keep his family on the same sum, for I know he doesn't have to do so. Neither do I, and I don't intend to be forced to a $26-a-month basis by selling my goods on any such margin of profit as Mr. Cook allows and I don't believe other grocers will, either.

Mr. Cook admits that no provisions are made for fuel and light. One must certainly have fuel with which to cook the articles Mr. Cook names. One cannot bake bread or cook beans without a good hot fire. People without the means may go without light, but I doubt it.

Let me submit a revised set of figures and I will, as Mr. Cook does, disregard pepper, salt, lard and other articles which we regard as necessities, not to mention clothing:

COMPARISON OF A. P. COOK'S FIGURES AND GROCERS' FIGURES.

	Cook's.	Grocers'
50 pounds flour	$1.50	$1.60
1 bushel potatoes	.50	.55
2 pounds coffee	.30	.30
1 pound tea	.20	.40
5 pounds pork	.75	.75
1 quart syrup	.10	.10
6 pounds beans	.30	.36
4 pounds oatmeal	.24	.24
3 cans milk	.25	.25
9 pounds sugar	.50	.60
Yeast	.10	.10
Total	$4.75	$5.25
Food per month	18.00	20.20
Rent	8.00	8.00
Fuel		5.00
Light		.80
Grand total	$26.00	$34.00

I venture to say that not many of Mr. Cook's charges are living on the figures he gives. I have had occasion to fill county orders and the people demand a pretty high class of rations. They do not always get them from me, but perhaps they do from other grocers. FRED SJOSELIUS.

Fat Defeating Extraordinary

Margaret Knolly

SLENDER Margaret Knolly, now, if you please. The fascinating leading lady of the Bijou, now more fascinating than ever, astonished all her friends on Broadway the other day by presenting to their admiring gaze a svelt and willowy form in place of the plump, not to say fat, outlines with which she gaily sailed away to new triumphs and foreign shores last January. After a good deal of diplomatic cross-examination from interested fat acquaintances the secret was cautiously whispered to a few dear friends, with the result that everybody knows it now. It was not exercise, nor fasting, nor sea air, nor worry about her new venture that had brought about this wonderful willowy change in the charming Margaret; no, none of these; nothing but a simple mixture which all good druggists are familiar with and can supply at small cost, to-wit: One-half ounce Marmola, one-half ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and three and one-half ounces Peppermint Water. "Grown folks need a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime," explained the now slender Margaret. "It is simply wonderful. It takes off the fat quickly, as much as a pound a day, and keeps it off. You can eat what you like, too. In that respect it is unlike anything of the kind I ever heard of, and besides it has another splendid feature—it is entirely harmless, and will not cause wrinkles. I think it is about as essential a toilet article for the woman who is fat and wants to get thinner as face powder. In order to get the best results, however, you should buy the Marmola in the original package and mix it in with the other two ingredients after you get home."

We Announce Our Spring Exhibit of the New Models of the Red Cross Shoes

The exhibit includes all the fashionable high Shoes as well as plain Pumps, Ankle Strap Pumps, Instep Strap Pumps and Oxfords for street or dress wear.

The fashionable shoes this season are made in dull leathers, patent leathers and suede.

Styles were never more becoming, and you will like the extremely low effects that are so much in evidence this spring. Vamps are shorter than ever before, and ankle-straps will be much worn. You cannot realize how attractive this season's styles really are until you see them.

Correct Shoes have become an essential part of every well dressed woman's costume. Come in and see the new models for spring—for ... $3.50 to $4.00

LEFT LITTLE IN THE BANK

Almost Clean Sweep Made By a Couple of Sporty Boys.

Rich Farmers "Put Up" and Bank Is Now Financially Sound.

Topeka, Kan., March 4.—As bank looters, are F. W. Thomas and M. E. Church, formerly of Holyrood, Kan., entitled to the blue ribbon? Their bank had $118,000 deposits. Of this amount $100,000 is gone.

More remarkable still is the fact that Bank Commissioner Dolley had succeeded in making that same bank one of the strongest banks of its size in the state.

"These cashiers left little except the safe," said Dolley, "and yet the bank today has perhaps more money back of it than any small bank in Kansas. But some rich farmers around Holyrood are not so wealthy as they were a few weeks ago. Two or three of them are financially ruined, and several others are badly bent."

Expert examiners say there never was such a case of doctored books, forged papers and all around crookedness as this one. The operations had been running over a period of four years.

His Uncle Caught On.

F. W. Thomas, nephew of Byron L. Church, the president who was arrested in Kansas City, was formerly cashier of the bank. The bank commissioner says that several thousand dollars was gone before his uncle caught on. He was then discharged and the president's son, M. E. Church, was installed as cashier.

Some weeks ago Bank Commissioner Dolley says he found that young Church was a "high roller" and was playing the board of trade. He sent a special examiner out to look into the bank's affairs. On the surface everything looked fairly well. The records indicated that the cashier was somewhat careless. But when the examiner went to digging into the notes and securities he found that many of them, purporting to have been given by different farmers, were all signed by the same person. After convincing himself that the notes were forged he "braced" Cashier Church. The young man was very indignant at first, but finally broke down and said there was a $30,000 shortage. The examiner continued to dig, after taking charge of the bank, himself. He soon found a shortage of $60,000. He wanted to close the bank right then, but Bank Commissioner Dolley made a deal with some bankers at Ellsworth and they rehabilitated the bank, not however, until Byron L. Church, the president, gave them a deed to his fine 800-acre farm near Holyrood.

Bankers Grew Uneasy.

After the bank was launched by the new backers, another mine of trouble was developed. Cashier Church had accepted time deposits, issued the certificates and never made any record at all of them on the books. One farmer brought in a time certificate for $6,000. No record of it was on the books. The next day another farmer presented one for $11,000. No record. A few days later a California man sent one in for $13,000. No record. Several others for smaller amounts came in. More than $35,000 of such certificates showed up and there was not a scratch on a snigle book to show that they had ever been issued.

The Ellsworth bankers grew uneasy. The shortage was $35,000 more than they had figured. They wanted to turn the bank over to the state. But Bank Commissioner Dolley wouldn't have it. He held them to their bargain, but promised to help them out. He got an opinion from the attorney general that the directors of the bank, mostly rich farmers, were liable, both civilly and criminally. Dolley notified the directors to make good the $35,000 additional shortage. Some of them came through quickly. Others held back. Dolley served notice on the delinquents that he would be there on a certain day to have them arrested if they didn't come through. He and the attorney general were on their way to the train at Topeka to go out there for that purpose when a message was received that the delinquents had put up. Byron L. Church, the president, has not only lost his valuable 800-acre farm, but is now under arrest and is facing a term in prison. His son, M. E. Church, and nephew, F. W. Thomas, have gone. But the authorities expect to land them both within a short time. With the old man it was simply a case of putting too much trust in a couple of sporty boys.

VIKING CLUB TO REORGANIZE

West End Social Club May Again Become a Political Organization.

The Viking Republican club will reorganize, and a meeting has been called for Saturday evening at 301 Exchange building for the purpose. J. C. Wesenberg, secretary of the dormant organization, issued the call.

The Viking club has been out of business for some time. When politics failed to interest the members, some time ago, the club was made over into a social organization, and it is at this time purely social. An effort will be made at the meeting Saturday evening to change it once more into a political club. The movement is in line with the one started Tuesday at the meeting held at the courthouse by Jesse Turner, organizer of the National Republican club. The Viking club was one of the most powerful of the several city Republican clubs during the time it existed, and an effort will now be made to make it even stronger than before.

HUSBAND OF AMERICAN TO REPRESENT SPAIN.

Washington, March 4.—Senor Don Juan Riano, it is stated here, will succeed marquis de Villalobar as minister of Spain to the United States. Senor Riano formerly was secretary of the Spanish legation here and in 1904 married Miss Alward of Washington. Senor Riano is now Spain's consul general at Copenhagen.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Investigation of Commission Government Will Be Begun Soon.

Three Commercial Club Members to Work With Council Committee.

R. B. Knox, Leon C. Lum and A. C. Volk have been appointed by Chairman T. W. Hugo of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club as a committee to work jointly with the committee of three appointed recently by the city council to investigate the commission form of government with respect to the probability of its application to Duluth.

The council committee consists of Alderman Joseph Shartel, Charles R. Hoar and Watson S. Moore. Alderman Shartel will act as chairman of the joint committee and he will call a meeting soon to make plans for the investigation.

The members of the committee will make every effort to acquaint themselves thoroughly with conditions existing in cities which have adopted the commission form of government. Literature will be secured on the subject, results will be obtained from commission governed cities and some of the members of the committee will probably visit some such cities to see at first hand the results of the commission government. The investigation will probably take several months, after which the committees will report to the council and public affairs committee, respectively, on the data obtained and the probability of the application of the commission form of government to Duluth being successful.

STEALS TO SUPPORT MAN.

Girl 13 Years Old Tells Story of Faganism.

New York, March 4.—When Mary P. Okorney, 13 years old, and Mary Shadaer, 14, were arrested last night both carried big muffs with split linings and double skirts with false pockets in which were found jewelry, laces, silks and various trinkets to an amount in excess of $60.

Mary P. Okorney told the police of meeting a woman who invited her to her flat in Harlem. There, says Mary, the woman set out goods on a table in imitation of the counter of a department store and gave regular instructions to a numerous class in the art of stealing without attracting the attention of the saleswomen. A man she met at the flat induced her to run away with him, she said, and for three weeks they have been living in furnished rooms, she stealing to support him. He was arrested and gave his name as William Island Erbsland, 20 years old.

COMPANY E IS INSPECTED

Col. Gerlach and Capt. Bugge Are Pleased With the Showing.

Company E, the infant Duluth company of the Third regiment, M. N. G., was inspected last night by Col. Gerlach and Capt. J. Bugge of the regular army, and the militia boys acquitted themselves well under the eyes of the reviewing officers.

As in the inspection of Company C the previous night, the equipment of Company E was thoroughly examined and was pronounced up to the requirements. The inspection officers then watched the drill work conducted by Capt. Stiles, Lieut. Baumgartner and Second Lieut. Alroth.

Although the company is a comparatively new organization and has not had the benefit of years of drill as have the other two companies, the drill work was well executed. All of the formations were gone through with dispatch and precision and after the inspection, the regular army officers expressed themselves as well pleased with the showing.

Company A will be inspected by Col. Gerlach and Caut. Bugge tonight.

March the Most Trying Month

After the tedious strain of winter, which thins the blood and lowers the vitality, March, with its raw, rough winds and uncertain weather, is a month of extreme danger, especially to those who have allowed their systems to run down and have not kept their blood rich and healthy.

Invigorate the body and brain with the world's greatest tonic-stimulant, DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY, which enriches the blood and makes it course more quickly through the veins. It builds new tissues, aids digestion, quickens the heart's action, prevents decay and fortifies the system against disease germs.

Cures La Grippe.

"I used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey after a severe attack of La Grippe, and cheerfully testify to the beneficial effects resulting therefrom. I also firmly believe that it suse as directed will prevent the recurrence of this dread disease. It is an excellent tonic and the best whiskey for use in the family that I know of."—W. L. M. Austin, 31 W. Baker St., Atlanta, Ga.

Grippe and Pneumonia.

"I hereby wish to add my testimonial to the medical worth of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in cases where one is completely run down from Grippe and Pneumonia. I lately had attacks of both, and have never been so much benefited as by its use, and I cheerfully recommend it as a medicine to every one. I am now in my 75th year and have never received such relief. It makes one feel like a new person."—Mrs. M. E. Dillon, Salem, Va.

Doctor Recommends.

"I am 78 years of age and am troubled with dyspepsia and a weak heart. Every day before meals I take a dessert spoonful of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in sugar and water, and get the best results. Your Malt agrees with my stomach better than any other malt or rye whiskey I used before. Your whiskey is a general tonic and stimulant and a promoter of good digestion."—Dr. V. Caillat, Argos, Ind.

Vigorous at 82.

"For about two years I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it has been of great benefit to me. I was all run down and debilitated and nothing seemed to build me up. I read in the Boston Globe about Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and thought it would be just the right thing for me, and have found it so. I am 82 years of age."—Warren Cutler, Woburn, Mass.

Lung Trouble.

"After having been afflicted with a serious case of lung trouble and usea many remedies without result—in fact, I was unable to do any work whatever for two months—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended and I commenced taking the same. I desire to state that I am entirely cured, having been pronounced so by my physician. This testimonial is conscientiously given and without any solicitation whatsoever. I consider this the greatest medicine of the present age."—Walter Clarke, Bluefield, W. Va.

Tonic Stimulant.

"This is to certify that I have tried Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and I have no hesitancy to say that for a tonic stimulant it has no equal. Not only this, but it is pleasant to the taste and free from the principles which characterize the majority of tonic stimulants which make them so undesirable."—E. William Anderson, Summitville, Tenn.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is the greatest strength-builder and tonic-stimulant known to medicine. By its invigorating effect upon the physical and nervous forces it rebuilds the weakened tissues, in a gradual, healthy, natural manner. It is a wonderful remedy in the prevention and cure of consumption, pneumonia, grippe, bronchitis, coughs, colds, asthma, malaria, low fevers and all wasting, weakened and diseased conditions if taken as directed. It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system, is a promoter of health and longevity, makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong.

If in need of advice, write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, N. Y., stating your case fully. Our doctor will send you advice free, together with a valuable illustrated medical booklet, containing rare common sense rules for health which you cannot afford to be without and some of the many thousands of gratifying letters received from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young who have been cured and benefited by the use of this great medicine and who continue to enjoy good health. It is sold by druggists, grocers and dealers, or direct, $1.00 per large bottle.

NEW LEADERS IN TWO-MEN EVENTS

Detroit, Mich., March 4.—Two teams passed the 1,160 high mark in the two-men event of the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress today. J. Cook and W. Crewson of Sebring, Ohio, and H. Tolson and G. Turner of the same city rolled 1,203 and 1,166 respectively. This put Mouat and Johnson of Detroit, who held the lead for several days, back into third place.

Both Cook and Crewson of the new leaders rolled consistently, scoring 437, 390 and 376. Crewson had the high game with 233 in the first while Cook contributed 221 in the second.

The work of Larry Sutton of Rochester, N. Y., who won the individual championship at Pittsburg last year, was eagerly watched by the enthusiasts today. Sutton was scheduled to roll in the two-man and individual events. He won the championship last year with a total of 691, although it was necessary to roll off a tie with F. Bruggeman of Sioux City. The champion arrived yesterday and after looking over the alleys said that would take a larger score than 691 to win in the singles here.

The field in today's events was representative.

Among the cities represented were Cleveland, Milwaukee, Rochester, N. Y., Urbana, Ohio, Saginaw, Mich., toronto, Terre Haute, East St. Louis, Ills., Marshalltown, Iowa, Toledo and Columbus, Ohio, Washington, Pa., Aurora Ill., and several others.

There were four squads in the two-man event, nine in the individual and two in the five-man teams. The number to roll was larger than on previous days of the tournament.

FUNDS MUST BE SECURED

High School Boys Need Money to Attend Madison Tournament.

Subscriptions will be taken to send the basket ball team of the Duluth Central high school to Madison, Wis., where the team will play in the basket ball tournament that will decide the champion high school team of the West.

Central has a very strong team this season. It is probably the strongest team that has ever represented the school and has won its last eight games. The boys feel that they can make a very strong showing at Madison, if they are able to go, and for that reason some of the business men and merchants will be asked to contribute toward defraying the expenses of the team.

Duluth will represent Northern Minnesota at the tournament. To win this privilege it was necessary for Central to win the championship of this section of the state. The boys have accomplished this and are now anxious to go to Madison.

COPPERS HAVE STRONG TONE

Little Activity Is Shown, But Liquidation Seems to Be Over.

The market had a good opening today and the list acted well. The close was higher than at the opening, although trading was light. The market is dull, but the undertone is good and the prospects for a live market have been greatly enhanced by the strength in the metal market.

Copper metal advanced today ⅛c a pound to 13¾ for electrolytic, and this figure is said to be the general asking quotation of all of the leading producers. Transactions have been made at the new price and the inquiry is said to be heavy.

It is said that the proposed amalgamation of copper properties in the Butte district will go through, that the various mines will be merged with Anaconda as soon as the shareholders vote on the proposition to increase the capital stock. The basis upon which the transfer will be made will become public property, it is reported, in two or three weeks. As the result of these rumors Amalgamated was especially strong today. Butte Coalition, which will figure in the ferger, was the chief speculative feature on the Boston market today.

There was practically no selling pressure to the market today and there has been little pressure of any kind for several days. The buying power has been restricted, however, and the present market does not present a true criterion of its strength or weakness. Just now the public is not interested and the professionals are in a passive attitude toward the general list.

Trading on the local market was extremely light and the action was mainly confined to the cheaper issues.

Copper Queen sold at 59 cents; Shattuck at $20; Butte & Superior at $2.50; Calumet & Sonora at 19.25 and $19.50; Cliff at $1.56½; Rawhide Royal at 5 cents; St. Mary's at 23 cents; and Amazon-Montana at $5.75.

Amalgamated sold at $80.62½ up to $82; Lake at $77.75 up to $79; Butte Coalition $25.75 to $26.37½ and then at $26; Greene at $10.62½ and $10.75; Bronx at $9.87½ and $10; Ojibway at $10 and $11 and then $10.50; Superior & PIttsburg at 13.75 and $14; North Butte at $38.87½ to $39.75 and off ¾ point. Steel Common sold at $84.37½ to $85.37½ and off ⅜ point.

Thomas F. Cole of this city has secured control of all of the ground between the Lake and Bohemia properties in Upper Michigan. The tract comprises 320 acres. It was acquired partly from the St Mary's Mineral Land company and private holders. The ground probably will be the basis of a new copper company.

A Baby in the House

No joy or pleasure on this earth quite equals that which comes into the home when baby arrives. Who can describe the happiness of man and woman, joined in wedlock, as they look upon the delicate mite that is blood of their blood and flesh of their flesh? And who can depict the hopelessness and dejection that hover about the home where the wife is incapable of becoming a mother? Barrenness proceeds from some derangement of the distinctly feminine organs. Many of the common ailments known as "female troubles" cause it.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription overcomes barrenness by stamping out diseases of women, and by healing and curing ulceration. It tones up the system and restores strength.

It makes the baby's coming almost painless, and gives wonderful recuperative power to the patient. By making the mother strong and cheerful, it makes the little one healthy, vigorous and good natured.

Insist upon the medicine dealer giving you Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription when you ask for it. Substitutes are often dangerous.

For 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, you can get a free copy of that celebrated doctor book, newly revised, up-to-date edition—the Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, copiously illustrated with wood-cuts and colored plates. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness. They regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Tiny sugar-coated granules, easy to take as candy.

MINNESOTA CONSERVATION AND AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS,

St. Paul, March 16-19, 1910.

The first Minnesota Conservation and Agricultural Development Congress will be held in St. Paul's commodious Auditorium on March 16, 17, 18 and 19. A large agricultural exposition containing exhibits of the products of almost every county in the state will be one of the features. Models of good roads and model rooms for farm houses, completely furnished, will also be shown.

Men of National Prominence Will Speak.

Scientists and men prominent for their services in the cause of conservation and development will deliver addresses during the four days of the congress. State conservation and development, agricultural and industrial education, pure food, public health and sanitation, state advertising and settlement of farm lands, good roads, forestry and mines, drainage and water power, will be among the topics discussed.

This Congress means much for every community in Minnesota. Every farmer, every farmer's wife, every farmer's son, every citizen interested in Minnesota's agricultural, commercial and industrial life, will find it profitable to attend.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NEW BLOCKS IN BRAINERD

Quite a Boom in Building Is On in Crow Wing County Seat.

Typhoid Fever Situation Is Believed to Be Well in Hand.

Brainerd, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brainerd has a full-fledged building boom. A lease has been signed which insures the erection of one of the finest store buildings in the city. Thomas H. Beare will erect for the H. F. Michael company a building 50 by 100 feet, with an arcade front, full basement, and up-to-date in every particular, at 213-215 South Seventh street. It is expected that the Columbian block, which was destroyed by fire Oct. 26, will be rebuilt better than ever. R. R. Wise will also erect a building adjoining. These will be three stories high and will together cover a space 125 by 140 feet. The Coates Liquor company and J. E. Brady will erect a building 50 by 140, three stories in height. The ground floor and basement will be used for the wholesale and retail liquor business of the John Coates Liquor company, and the upper stories for flats.

The new government postoffice building will also be erected the coming season, it is said, and the Northern Pacific Railway company has appropriated $125,000 for a new foundry here. There will also be a number of dwellings erected, probably more than for a number of years.

Typhoid Situation Better.

The typhoid fever situation is improving. While there are some new cases, they are almost all the result of secondary infection; that is, infection of a second member of a family in which there has already been a case. But four deaths have occurred so far. A peculiar feature of the situation, which tends to throw doubt on the theory of the state board of health that Brainerd's infection comes from the city water, which is taken from the Mississippi river, and that this also causes the epidemic in Minneapolis, is the fact that few if any cases have been reported from Little Falls, which gets its water from the Mississippi river between the two cities where the fever exists.

The board of education has provided earthenware tanks for use in the schools, and spring water will be furnished for drinking purposes. The common drinking cup has been tabooed in the public schools and the pupils compelled to bring individual cups.

The hotel under construction by H. C. Damkroeger at Deerwood burned last night. There is no clue to the cause. The loss was $12,000, with an insurance of $9,000.

A large party of the general officials of the Northern Pacific railway was in Brainerd yesterday afternoon on a trip of inspection over the line.

SPORTSMEN EXONERATED

For Shipping Prairie Chicken to Minneapolis for Taft.

Willow City, N. D., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary D. I. Armstrong of the North Dakota game and fish commission makes public a statement concerning the investigation which has been carried on for some time past with reference to the shipment of prairie chickens out of the state for the Taft banquet in Minneapolis Sept. 18 last.

The statement exonerates the Dakota sportsmen who were instrumental in securing the bird, and also deplores the action of the Minneapolis committee in inveigling some of the state's best citizens into the violation of the law.

HUBBARD INTERCEDES.

Roycrofter Chief Asks for S. A. Phillips' Pardon.

St. Paul, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—An appeal for the pardon of S. A. Phillips, a former newspaper publisher, who is now in the state penitentiary at Stillwater, has been made to Governor Eberhart by Elbert Hubbard, head of "The Roycroft Fraternity." The letter requesting his release was sent from East Aurora, N. Y., and contains a promise for immediate work for Phillips in the event of his release.

Phillips was sentenced to the penitentiary from Ramsey county to serve a seven-year sentence on conviction of a charge of grand larceny in the first degree. With good behavior his time would ordinarily expire in July, 1913.

The board of pardons will act upon the application at its meeting in April.

For Catarrh

Medicine Free in Every Case Where It Fails to Relieve

Neglect or pessimism, we believe, is the greatest enemy the public has to contend with when applied to the loss or recovery of health. Practically every case of consumption might have been cured if hope had been maintained and proper treatment had been resorted to at the first symptom of the disease. Until the advanced stage is reached consumption is curable. Catarrh is responsible, we believe, for many cases of consumption. It is about catarrh we want to talk to you today, incidentally consumption, since the two are so closely allied.

We have a medicine made from a prescription of one of the most successful catarrh specialists known. We believe it is positively without an equal. We are so satisfied that we are right, that we will supply the medicine free in every instance where it is used according to directions, should it fail to give satisfaction in every particular. We want every one to try this medicine at our risk. There are no conditions attached to our offer. We put the user under no obligation to us whatever.

The medicine we want you to try is Rexall Mucu Tone. It is a catarrh remedy that goes direct to the seat of trouble. It is carried by the blood to every part of the system. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones up the mucous cells, and brings about a condition of health and strength that tends to prevent the germs of consumption from getting a start. Besides this, Rexall Mucu-Tone is a wonderful appetizer, digestive aid, and flesh builder. Its good effects are often felt from the very first dose. It is one of the largest and most satisfactory selling medicines that we have ever had anything to do with.

We know so much of the great good that it has done that we personally back it up with our reputation and money, which fact should be ample guarantee to satisfy anybody. Rexall Mucu-Tone comes in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. We urge you to try it. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Duluth only at our store—The Rexall Store. E. M. Tredway, 108 West Superior street.

MUST HAVE A LICENSE.

Non Resident Liquor Firms Hit By Michigan Law.

Houghton, Mich., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before doing business in this state, liquor concerns of other states selling liquors in this state must first procure a license in Michigan, according to the finding of a jury in circuit court here yesterday in a test case against Theodore Swenson, representative of a Milwaukee concern. The jury decides selling of liquor by the firm without a license is a direct violation of the Werner-Crampton liquor law of this state. Attorney Drought of Milwaukee, representing the affected company, and the Wisconsin Wholesale Liquor Dealers' association defended Swenson and announced after the verdict that the case will be appealed and, if necessary, go to the United States supreme court. The action is important to hundreds of foreign liquor dealers selling in this state without a license, and will be watched with interest.

MUCH FLOUR DELAYED.

Railroads Clogged With Output of Minneapolis Mills.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five thousand cars of flour, shipped out by the Minneapolis mills and billed East, are on the main lines or sidetracks of railroads between here and Chicago, according to estimates made by millers. The roads have been handling so great general business that the flour traffic has been backing up.

On the North-Western, the Milwaukee, the Soo's Chicago division between here and Manitowoc, and on the Great Western and St. Louis, there is a heavy south-and-east-bound movement of flour. The Soo and Burlington, it is said, are comparatively well along. The other roads have made efforts in the past few days to get the flour to destination, but there is still a great quantity that is behind ten days to three weeks in transit.

Approximately 1,500,000 barrels of flour is represented in the tonnage that is delayed. It stands for more than 6,500,000 bushels of wheat.

NOT WOMAN'S ASSAILANT.

Evidence Accumulates Suicide Did Not Attack Moorhead Girl.

Moorhead, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—George P. Norby, who committed suicide near the Crabbe farm, at the city limits of Fargo, a few days ago, was not the man who assaulted Selma Erickson in this city a week ago last Sunday.

In his search for evidence, Acting Chief of Police Erickson has learned from Eric Stafne, ex-railroad commissioner of North Dakota, living at Abercrombie, that Norby was continuously in the employ of Mr. Stafne from Jan. 26 until the day before he shot himself on the river bank near Fargo, and that Norby was on the Stafne farm at the time of the assault on Miss Erickson. Chief Erickson says that bits of evidence are coming to the surface in regard to the brutal assault and he hopes that ultimately there will grow out of the clues even more positive evidence than he has now.

The adjourned hearing of the State vs. Sheppard, who is under arrest in connection with the Erickson affair, will be called before Justice Malloy today.

SUES THE MILWAUKEE ROAD FOR SLIPPING ON CAR STEP.

Menominee, Mich., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A suit for damages has been started against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad by Edward J. Vanderboom, a deputy fire warden of Wisconsin, for injuries received at Horicon, where he slipped and fell on an icy car step. He alleges that his injuries are permanent and asks $6,000 damages. Vanderboom is a former captain of the University of Wisconsin football team and a well-known athlete.

TOSSED UPON PILOT.

Little Girl, Occupant of Rig, Struck By Train and Hurt.

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 4.—A serious and perhaps fatal accident occurred a half mile west of this village when Mrs. Douglas and three children were driving out of town in a cutter and approached a grade crossing of the St. Paul railroad ahead of an extra freight, which was running twenty-five miles an hour. The horses became unmanageable and headed directly for the oncoming engine, which struck the team, cutting both animals in two. The occupants were thrown far, and one child, a girl of 6 years was tossed upon the pilot of the engine, receiving a terrible cut across the forehead. All were hurt internally, and the little girl has not regained consciousness.

SEED CORN EXHIBIT.

Will Be Held at Stillwater, Minn., on Next Thursday.

Stillwater, Minn., March 4.—Special to The Herald.)—Arrangements have been completed for the seed corn exhibit for farmers of Washington county, Minn., and St. Croix county, Wis., and for the farmers' institute to follow the exhibit. Both events will be under the auspices of the Stillwater Citizens' association.

The seed corn exhibit will be held in Auditorium hall Thursday, March 10, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. The $70 silver loving cup, offered as a trophy by the Farmers' and Merchants State bank, fo this city, will be competed for by farmers of the two counties who are to make exhibitions of at least five samples.

LEAVE BRAINERD HOSPITAL.

Two Women Nurse Officials Will Try Fruit Farming.

Brainerd, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Laura G. Whittaker and Miss Mary A. Strangways, for a long time superintendent and assistant superintendent of nurses at the Northern Pacific hospital, left Tuesday for Prosser, Wash., where they have purchased fruit lands and where they will make their future home.

Miss Maud Manning will be superintendent and Miss Nellie Rose assistant superintendent of nurses at the hospital. Both are graduates of the nurses training school conducted at this hospital and are eminently fitted for the positions.

NATIONAL MILLERS MEET IN MINNEAPOLIS JUNE 22.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Members of the executive committee of the Millers' club of Minneapolis have fixed the dates for the convention of the Millers' National federation to be held in Minneapolis as Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 22, 23 and 24. It is twenty years since a national meeting of millers was held here.

It is expected that the gathering will be the greatest in point of attendance, and the most important in the history of the federation.

SAFE BLOWERS WAKE UP WISCONSIN TOWN.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 4.—Burglars blew the safe in Gus Emanuel's saloon at Fall Creek yesterday, but did not get a cent. The explosion aroused the village and nearly demolished the saloon building. The burglars escaped on a handcar to Altoona, where they broke into a poolroom, but took nothing but cigars. They then broke into Fred Lahman's saloon, securing $60, and escaped, leaving no trace.

PIONEER POTTER OF MINNESOTA IS BURIED.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. B. Kaufer, aged 86, one of the pioneers of this section, who came here in 1880 from Mankato, where he established the first pottery in Minnesota in 1859, was buried today. He was once president of the village board.

Mr. Kaufer was born at Warth-on-the-Main, near Frankfort, Havaria, Germany, in 1820, and came to America in 1850. He was married in 1853 in Indiana to Monika Fitterer, who died in 1902. Mr. Kaufer is survived by six children, namely: J. H. Kaufer of Calgary, L. A. Kaufer, Red Lake Falls; Philip A. Kaufer, Tacoma, Wash.; Emma K. Krost, Hammond, Ind.; Gertrude Zeh and Tillie Kaufer of Red Lake Falls.

Wagner; representative to grand lodge, George M. Bleecker; alternate to grand lodge, W. C. Leary; representative to state association, C. H. Connors; secretary, Guy L. Hutchins, re-elected; treasurer, A. P. Erickson.

Messenger Boy Becomes Chief.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—John M. Diegel has been appointed manager of the Minneapolis branch of the American District Telegraph company, to take the place of A. T. Williams. Mr. Diegel has been in the employ of the American District Telegraph company twenty-five years, starting as a messenger boy, in 1885. He has occupied every position in the Minneapolis branch of the company, and has been acting manager since Mr. Williams resigned several months ago.

Receiver for Lakota Bank.

Lakota, N. D., March 4.—Judge C. F. Templeton has appointed George A. Kellogg of this place receiver of the failed People's State bank. Mr. Kellogg was backed by the depositors and is the choice from all the candidates mentioned for the place. The fight against Mr. Kellogg was most bitter.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Marinette—The second bill to be rendered Marinette county by Samuel Cady, prosecutor in the recent grand jury investigation is for $1,848. His bill was for $2,533.

La Crosse—Congressman Esch has been assured that the $40,000 appropriation in the army bill to equip the Sparta artillery range with rifle pits and equipment will pass. This item has been favorably acted upon by both Hixson and had the hand lanced.

Rochester—The Metropolitan theater is under new management. L. R. Lefler has severed his relations with the popular Rochester playhouse and expects to leave the city within a short time. Mr. Reid resumes the management at once and will be in charge when the next bill, "Sweet Innisfallen," is presented.

Moorhead—Tuesday night the upper portion of the front wall of the Harris Bros.' building fell outward with a crash. Fortunately no one was injured and no damage was done outside of that to the wall, except in the breaking of one of the window lights.

Brainerd—St. Francis Catholic church will celebrate St. Patrick's day this year, as usual. The services will be held in the opera house. Hon. J. J. Regan of St. Paul, national vice president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, will be the orator of the occasion.

Aitkin—A. M. Smith of Minneapolis, who has a summer home on the shore of Mille Lacs lake at Wealthwood, says he will this year build a fine barn on the place, and in another year a new cottage will go up. The launch used last year will be replaced by a new one of different type, better suited to the shallow shores.

Winona—Bulletins have been issued to train employes of the Milwaukee & St. Paul road to the effect that hereafter until further notice passenger trains will not be allowed to exceed schedule time on the river division between La Crosse and Minneapolis.

Fergus Falls—Charles Behail, the mail clerk on No. 5, which was wrecked near this city Monday, is still very ill as a result of the shock, but is reported to be holding his own, and hopes are entertained of his recovery.

Elk River—The village of Lake Fremont, recently incorporated, has elected its first corps of officers, as follows: President, H. J. Mickelson; trustees, E. H. Foley, H. Swanson and Bert Wash; clerk, W. R. Hurtt; treasurer, Jay Smith; justices, George James and W. A. Smith; constables, Bert Briggs and Albert Borgett.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Minot, N. D.—One of the many unique devices that will be installed in the Virginia flats which are being constructed by W. M. Smart at Fifth and Ward streets at a cost of $35,000, will be an arrangement whereby the outside doors will be opened by electricity, through the pushing of a button in any one of the fourteen flats.

Aberdeen, S. D.—John A. Kaskey has arrived in the city to take up the duties of temporary transfer mail clerk, vice John T. Ronayne, resigned. Mr. Kaskey has been in the railway mail service for several years and came to Aberdeen from Atlantic, Mich.

Fargo, N. D.—Lloyd Worst, son of President Worst of the agricultural college, has returned to Seattle. He, with Charles Oswald of the agricultural college, spent last summer and the greater part of the winter in Sitka river, east of Cook's Inlet, Alaska.

Great Bend, N. D.—Not a train has entered Great Bend for twenty-three days. Most of the dealers are out of provisions and have no way of replenishing their stocks. The town is on the Southeastern Dakota division of the Northern Pacific.

Marion, N. D.—The Johnson Land company of St. Paul will stock 20,000 acres of land which they own here with ninety-six head of Holstein cattle and eventually increase it to 2,600 head. They will put $500,000 into the proposition and have their own creamery. Their idea in doing this is to attract attention of Iowa and Minnesota farmers to the dairy qualities of North Dakota soil.

Fargo, N. D.—After requesting the Fargo police department to apprehend Claude Baker, a 19-year-old lad who escaped from the state school at Whittier, Cal., two years ago, the California state officials refuse to send for him, holding that the expense would be too great.

Bismarck, N. D.—Gen. Peake has received word that Sergeant C. C. Wade of the Second Infantry has been assigned to duty in the office of the adjutant general, to take the place of Sergeant Bagley, recently promoted to a second lieutenancy in the Philippine scouts.

Grand Forks, N. D.—S. A. Barnard, who for the past five years has been a conductor with the Great Northern, has left for Havre, Mont., where he has accepted the position of trainmaster of the Montana division, working under Supt. P. F. Lowry, formerly of Grand Forks.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—John Vertin of Calumet is making arrangements to erect three fine new dwellings on the property which he recently acquired from the Calumet & Hecla Mining company on the southeast corner of Eighth and Elm street.

Houghton—Only twenty-six marriage licenses were issued during the month of February. This is a long way behind the record February of 1907, during which month the total was fifty-four.

Hancock—The Hancock division of the naval reserves is arranging for a social session and smoker to be held at the armory in Germania hall next Monday evening after the regular weekly drill.

Calumet—The Croatian club of Ljudevit Gaj has been organized at Painesdale with sixty-five prominent citizens of that place as charter members. The officers are as follows: President, Thomas Strizic; vice president, Frank Tomkovic; secretary, George Pintar; treasurer, Thomas Perlic; committee, Anton Stimac, George Gasparac, Matt Obramovic and Steve Jokovac.

Houghton—A skating and dancing party will be given in the Amphidrome next Tuesday night by Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F. The Quincy band will provide the skating music and for dancing Klinghammer's orchestra will play.

Hancock—Max Fisher intends to remodel his building on Quincy street, opposite the Hancock high school and now occupied by Guesse & Rein's delicatessen store. The structure will be brick veneered, and the second story will be turned into a modern flat.

Calumet—The Crystal Falls basket ball team will meet the Y. M. C. A. quint at the association gymnasium Saturday evening in the first game of the season. Crystal Falls will meet the College of Mines team this week, concluding its Copper country tour in the metropolis.

Orrine Does Cure DRUNKENNESS

This is a positive fact, known to tens of thousands of wives and mothers of this land. They know Orrine is a reliable remedy for the cure of drunkenness, because it has restored their loved ones to lives of sobriety and usefulness. Every one of these women bought Orrine with full confidence that it would effect a cure or their money would be refunded to them if it failed. This guarantee is in each box. No other remedy for the cure of drunkenness is sold with this liberal guarantee, but Orrine has been so uniformly successful that the makers want the buyers to know that they have full protection if it should fail in any instance. We never publish letters of patients, but recently this letter came to us from Dr. Nolte, Eighth and Race streets, Philadelphia, Pa. Read it and you will readily appreciate why Orrine is so well thought of:

"I have had a remarkable case of inebriacy under my personal observation. The patient drank heavily for fifteen years and reached a degraded condition, which caused the breaking up of his family and separation from his wife. Every hope was given up of ever saving the man from his strong desire for drink, and only a mother's interest finally persuaded him to voluntarily take treatment for his diseased condition. It was my pleasure to recommend Orrine, your liquor habit cure, and the treatment was taken faithfully. This was two years ago, and the patient is now in a healthy condition and still abstains from the use of stimulants. I have sold Orrine for a number of years and have always found it to be satisfactory. I believe you have an exceptionally good treatment for this disease."

Orrine is prepared in two forms. No. 1, a powder, absolutely tasteless and odorless, given secretly in food or drink. Orrine No. 2, in pill form, is for those who wish to cure themselves. Orrine costs only $1 a box. The guarantee is in each box. Write for Free Orrine Booklet (mailed in plain, sealed envelope) to Orrine company, 457 Orrine building, Washington, D. C. Orrine is for sale in this city by W. A. Abbett, 129 West Superior street, and 930 East Second street, also 101 West Fourth street.

They know Orrine is a reliable and efficacious remedy for drunkenness and they will not offer you a substitute.

WOOD TURNING WORK.

Excellent Results Achieved By Eveleth High Pupils.

Eveleth, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Good work is being done by members of the junior and senior classes in wood-turning under the direction of instructor Harry L. L. Yons, and many difficult exercises are being completed in quick time and show accurate work. The many articles being made by the pupils are being hung up in the manual training room, and the many visitors to that department are loud in their praise of the wood-turning work, which branch of manual training was introduced for the first time in the local schools last September. The juniors and seniors are taking much interest in the work and are showing unusual progress in the wood-turning exercises.

WEIRICK OUT OF RACE.

Hibbing Physician Not Candidate for President of Village.

Hibbing, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. E. H. Weirick, ex-president of the village board, whose name has been persistently used to head one of the tickets in the village election Tuesday, March 8, left Thursday for a two weeks' visit in the Twin Cities and at West Baden. Before leaving Dr. Weirick said that he would not be a candidate for mayor and gave as his reasons that there would be too much for him to do at the hospital the coming summer.

HAVE GUNS FOR ANNOYER.

Virginia Women Said to Be Armed for Troublesome Man.

Virginia, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several young women have been annoyed of evenings lately by a man who is said to have accosted them on the streets as they were going home and offered to "see" them home. In some cases he is said to have caught hold of them and they ran screaming from his presence.

The nuisance is described as a man of large proportions, who wears his hat well down over his eyes so that his features are not recognizable. It is said that several of the young ladies about town are now carrying revolvers to protect themselves in case they are molested.

The police are also on the lookout for the man.

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jefferson, Iowa.—"When my baby was just two months old I was completely run down and my internal organs were in terrible shape. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and mother wrote and told you just how I was. I began to gain at once and now I am real well."—Mrs. W. H. BURGER, 700 Cherry St., Jefferson, Iowa.

Another Woman Cured.

Glenwood, Iowa.—"About three years ago I had falling and other female troubles, and I was nothing but skin and bones. I was so sick I could not do my own work. Within six months I was made sound and well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will always tell my friends that your remedies cured me, and you can publish my letter."—Mrs. C. W. DUNN, Glenwood, Iowa.

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ills, just try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years this famous remedy has been the standard for all forms of female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, fibroid tumors, ulceration, inflammation, irregularities, backache, etc.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

COW FALLS DOWN SPRUCE SHAFT NO. 6

Drop of 200 Feet Reduces Bossy to Sausage Meat.

Eveleth, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was an accident out of the ordinary at the Spruce mine a few days ago, when a cow fell down the shaft.

The animal strayed into the open door of the shaft unbeknown to any of the men and as the shaft was open, fell to its death. The animal dropped 200 feet and the body when found was reduced to a pulp. Luckily none of the employes were struck by the falling animal.

SAYS ANOTHER FRAMED REPORT

Member of Virginia Board Believes Wasgatt Is Only Cat's Paw.

Virginia, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much interest is manifested in tonight's meeting of the board of education as A. J. Wasgatt, public examiner, is expected to explain certain matters in his report on the books of the district recently submitted by him to the board.

Blames Another For Report.

"No word has as yet been received from Mr. Wasgatt as to whether he will be present at the meeting tonight, and I do not look for his appearance," said one of the members of the board. "In my opinion Mr. Wasgatt had little to do with the framing of the report as submitted to the board. The report was written by a reckless, financial adventurer, and rubber-stamped by a public official, who had reported favorably on the same matters less than two months previous to the last examination of the books of the district, to lend dignity to the effusion. The report was gotten up to create a sensation in the Wolvin building, Duluth, and is full of errors, misstatements, deliberate falsehoods, sneaking innuendoes and derogatory insinuations against persons and acts, intended to damage the reputations and impugn the financial standing of a number of honest public officials, who have given freely of their time, energy, best thought and good will to advance the interests of public education in Virginia.

Report Born of Spite.

"You may say for me that the report was born of local spite and malice, fostered in hate, by those who think more of dollars than they do of education. It has been put forth to serve no good public policy, but to advance the private interests of a renegade adventurer, a person wholly devoid of honor, to show to his master his wonderful sagacity and 'proficient work' on the books of the Virginia school district.

"The board has nothing to conceal and the books of the district are open at all times for a thorough investigation."

IRON REPORTED WEST OF COOK

Drills Said to Have Disclosed a Very Fine Body.

Virginia, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Iron ore is reported to have been found on property in 63-19-36 lying about five miles west of Cook on the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad.

Drills have been put to work and it is said that the outlook is most favorable for a good find.

The members of the present township board—Dan E. Springer, D. M. Mouser, Thomas Trongrove and Capt. S. E. Helps—have all signified their intentions of running again and are active candidates. Other prominent men of the township are being urged by their friends to run.

EVELETH BRIEFS.

Eveleth, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Elks will hold their annual election of officers this evening.

Many local and out-of-town people attended the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Sax in honor of their son, who was recently born.

The statues donated to the Holy Family church by Francis Brooks and Mrs. A. W. Wasiewieski, purchased from an Eastern ornament concern, arrived yesterday and were set up, and add to the appearance of the church. The interior of the curch and the equipment is being cleaned and the church will have its formal opening Easter week.

Joseph J. Thibault returned Thursday from California points, where he visited for some time with close relatives.

REMOVING OLD DOCK.

Fifty Men at Work Dismantling Two Harbors Affair.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of tearing down No. 2 ore dock is about half completed and rebuilding will be commenced about the last of the month. About fifty men are employed in the work.

The Duluth & Iron Range is building an addition to its office at the ore docks for the accommodation of the increased working force expected this year. A part of the work heretofore done at Highland scale is to be handled here.

A large brick vault for the storage of records is also being built.

One of Barnett & Record Co.'s derricks on No. 2 ore dock collapsed Thursday while lifting a heavy timber. The engine house was damaged some but no one was injured.

NOVEL PARCEL SHOWER.

Is Given at Nashwauk for Duluth Girl About to Wed.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A novel parcel shower was given Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 in the kindergarten of the school building by the faculty of the school in honor of Miss Clara Hanson of Duluth, a member of the Keewatin faculty. Music and games were special features of the evening. About 8:30, to the tune of Lohengrin's wedding march, parcels representing white snowballs were brought in on a sled drawn by Miss Doran and Miss Waller. After marching several times around the kindergarten circle, the sled with its contents was deposited at the feet of the bride-to-be, who opened the parcels amidst the shouts and general applause of the guests. Light refreshments were served on the kindergarten tables, which were daintily decorated with cupids and flowers. At the ringing of the 9 o'clock gong the merry-making ceased.

Miss Hanson received the heartiest good wishes of the Neshwauk faculty, who deeply regret her departure. She leaves for Duluth Saturday morning and is succeeded by Miss Helen Madden of the Superior normal.

The Nashwauk Study club, which was organized last November, meets in the high school room of the school building every Wednesday afternoon at 4 p. m.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another village ticket has appeared. It is called the People's ticket and is made up as follows: President, Archie McWilliams; clerk, Oscar Johnston; trustees, W. A. Gordon, Pasco Vura, Charles Campbell; treasurer, Henry Hogan; justice of the peace, Adam Kolemaine; constables, William Hayes and Thomas Vougan. With the exception of Mr. Hogan, who was president last year, none of the candidates have held office before.

PLAN INDIAN SCHOOL.

To Be Built By Government Thirty-Five Miles From Ore.

Virginia, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new Indian school is soon to be established about thirty-five miles west of Ore by the government. Albert B. Reagan, superintendent and special distributing agent, has been here this week purchasing lumber and other material for the erection of three buildings at that point. Nearly fifty Indian children have already been enrolled and a considerable number more will enter the schools as soon as accommodations are afforded.

VIRGINIA BRIEFS.

Virginia, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Peter Richard and Miss Maudy Duley, both of Gheen, were married Wednesday by Judge James P. Carey. The couple returned to Gheen.

Judge J. B. Middlecoff of Duluth held probate court at the city hall Wednesday. Hereafter Judge Middlecoff will hold regular sessions of court here on the first Tuesday of each month.

W. H. Eaton expended $25 in his campaign for mayor at the recent election, $5 for filing fee and $20 for printing. Frank Weber, the successful candidate for alderman from the Sixth ward, expended $15, $5 for filing fee and $10 for printing.

Charles Sarff of the Virginia Store company has been confined to his home the past few days on account of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Williams will entertain the retiring M. E. church choir at their home on Central avenue tonight.

EVELETH STUDENT HAS A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

Eveleth, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—While at work at his lathe in the manual training room, Percy Pryor, a sophomore, had his hand caught in the whirling machinery. His overshirt and undershirt were torn to shreds and his skin was scratched to some extent. His hand was quickly released from the machinery by some nearby pupils and the electric current turned off, stopping the motion of the lathe.

The program to have been given this evening by the Crescent Literary society in the high school auditorium was postponed to next Friday evening.

Grand Rapids Bank Elects.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The First National bank has elected the following officers: F. P. Sheldon, president; A. G. Wedge, Jr., vice president; P. J. Sheldon, second vice president; C. E. Aiken, cashier; J. G. Peterson, assistant cashier. The institution shows a healthy increase in business and the stockholders are well pleased with the conduct of the business by Mr. Aiken.

Two Virginia Funerals.

Virginia, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of the 2-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Van Fleet, who died Tuesday night, was held from the family home, 418 Walnut street, yesterday afternoon, Rev. Henry E. Neff of the Presbyterian church officiating, followed by interment in Greenwood cemetery.

The funeral of Verl Lorain, the 2-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Guskell, who died Wednesday morning, was held from the family home at the Oliver location yesterday forenoon, Rev. Henry E. Neff officiating, followed by interment in Greenwood cemetery.

"DOWN WITH THE GERMS."

If you could observe the extreme care with which the modern surgeon cleanses hands and instruments before an operation, you would be impressed with the danger of germs and the importance of absolute cleanliness in its relation to health.

The slogan of modern medical science is "Away with the germs." Germs thrive and multiply wherever they can find a lodging place in grease or dirt, but where things are scrupulously clean germs find it hard to live. The easiest and surest way to keep things clean lies in the use of Gold Dust washing powder. Gold Dust goes deep after dirt and routs out every germ and hidden impurity. It is the sanitary cleanser.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—David Warfield in "The Music Master." (See notice below.)

WARFIELD IN "THE MUSIC MASTER"

Famous Belasco Star Delights Large Audience at the Lyceum.

Alternately snivelling and chuckling, some 1,200 people at the Lyceum last evening, lived with David Warfield, through three hours of the life of "The Music Master," the creature of the fertile brain of Charles Klein. They were ably assisted in this by the efforts of David Belasco, New York's most artistic producer.

It was a most audience. The dainty handkerchiefs of the fair members of the audience were entirely inadequate to stem the floods, and frequently the sonorous "blow" of a male escort, could be heard, mingled with the mild, unobstrusive "sniff" of his companion. Duluth hasn't had such a good, whole-souled cry since the first "East Lynne" company left its watery trail over the kerosene circuits of the Wild and Woolly West.

And yet it wasn't all weepy—far from it. Just when the collective throat of the audience was filling up, and the tension was becoming too great, a comedy line would turn the tears into a chuckle. There was none of the "bad taste" left by a problem play, and no depressing effect such as an Ibsen drama leaves. The touches of pathos are deftly given.

Duluth has been reading of the successes of David Warfield for several years, and much was expected of him last night. That the audience was not disappointed, is a big tribute to "Belasco's Gold Mine." By the end of the second act it was enthusiastic, which is "going some" for a Duluth audience.

The story of "The Music Master" is about too well known to need repetition. Briefly, the plot deals with the life of a famous orchestra leader of Leipsic, who was too much wrapped up in his work to preserve his home intact. His wife elopes to America, taking their little girl with her. This transpires before the opening of the play, which is simply a picture of the life of the orchestra leader, now bent on revenge, in New York. How he finds his daughter and foregoes his revenge, is well told.

David Warfield's art has not been overrated. He has, to a rare degree, that power of getting across the footlights and reaching the sympathies of his hearers. His portrayal of the choking, blinding rage that grips the old musician when he finally confronts the friend who broke up his home, is a wonderful little bit of acting.

Some dramatic critic in Butte—yes Butte—had the temerity to criticise the company supporting Mr. Warfield, and said some rude things regarding the actors and actresses supporting the famous star.

The criticism was hardly merited, judging from last night's performance. There are some weak spots in the company, but as a whole it is far above the average company sent out from New York.

Miss Janet Dunbar, as Helen Stanton, Mr. Warfield's leading woman, is rather disappointing at first. She has a prepossessing appearance, but a tendency to recite her lines in a sweet-girl-graduate style, mars her work in the first act. She shows herself fully equal to the greater demands on the role in the last two acts, however, and forgets herself in the part.

It would be difficult to replace Augusto Arimini, Francis Gaillard and Bernhardt Vanderneyer in the roles of the three musician friends of the music master. Mr. Belasco has wisely chosen an Italian, a Frenchman and a German to fill these parts and there are no false notes in their work, even to the spaghetti eating of Signor Tagliafico.

Thomas H. Wilson has a good bit well handled, in the role of Al Costello, the "barker" for the "at-'em-alive" museum. Marie Bates also made a distinct hit in the role of Miss Houston of Houston street, a faded gentlewoman. The other members of the company ought to pass muster, even in Butte.

"The Music Master" will be repeated tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night.

Even if the high cost of living forces one to the upper regions of the house, it is worth seeing.

Lyceum Notes.

"The Great Divide," William Vaughn Moody's extraordinarily successful drama of American life, which has been declared by leading critics to be the best American play yet written, will be presented under the direction of Henry Miller at the Lyceum March 11 and 12. "The Great Divide" has just closed an engagement of over 600 performances in New York, and is perhaps the most successful dramatic achievement of any American playwright.

* * *

The selection of the cast to interpret the old characters in "The Time, the Place and the Girl," which will be seen at the Lyceum Sunday and Monday, with a matinee Sunday, has always been a very trying proposition for the reason that artists of both dramatic and musical ability had to be considered, as both are of the most importance in the "play with music." Ordinarily an artist who has a musical reputation is all that is needed in most of the musical comedies for the plot of the play does not amount to enough to bother with, but not so with this popular favorite for the dramatic portion of the play is of more consequence than is the musical. The production is also a most important factor, and in this event it is transported in two special baggage cars.

Miss May Robson will be seen on the stage of the Lyceum March 8 in the charming comedy, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." Miss Robson is well known to the theater-going public, and therefore needs no introduction. In the role of Aunt Mary in this comedy she has a part well suited to her.

The supporting company is a strong one. Her leading man is Jack Storey, while the remainder of the cast contains many well-known and prominent people. The same cast and production will be seen here as played at the Garden theater, New York.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Death Comes During Night to Simon Koziarack of Gnesen.

Mrs. Koziarack of Gnesen found her husband dead in bed yesterday morning when she went to call him. He was 64 years of age, and a member of the Catholic Order of St. Joseph. The funeral will take place from his home. He is survived by his wife, four daughters and three brothers.

MAKES LOGGERS HUSTLE.

Unexpected Thaw Is Playing Havoc With Snow in the Woods.

Spooner, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unexpected change in the weather is making loggers in this vicinity hustle to get their logs to the banks of the streams before the snow is gone. The snow is disappearing rapidly, and unless a cold spell comes before the snow is melted, logging will be at a standstill.

Cass Lake Man Dead.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lewis Burt, aged 75, died at his home here of paralysis. He leaves a wife and nine children. The body was taken to Monahga, Minn., for burial.

BALLINGER'S LAWYER PINS PINCHOT DOWN TO DIRECT CHARGES

after a perusal of the list Mr. Pinchot said:

"The fact of my own knowledge is Mr. Ballinger's letter to the president, of Nov. 15, with other letters. These letters contain misstatements which I have already shown and am prepared further to show."

Mr. Vertrees: "You have testified here already by inference and innuendo Now state what you personally know Mr. Ballinger said or did."

Mr. Pinchot: "The letter of Nov. 15."

Mr. Vertrees: "What else?"

Mr. Pinchot: "I never discussed the Cunningham cases with Mr. Ballinger. The only knowledge I have at first hand is limited to writings that are not disputed."

Questioned as to the reprimand he gave Assistant Law Officer Shaw and Assistant Forester Price, Mr. Pinchot admitted that "at heart" he approved of the motives of the two in doing what they did, but did not approve of their method of doing it."

Mr. Pinchot denied that either he, or any of his people owned stock in the Pocahontas Coal company.

"The family has some stock in a coal company in Illinois," he added, "but I have not."

Were Fairly Friendly.

Mr. Pinchot said that up to the time he sent Glavis to President Taft the relations between himself and Mr. Ballinger had been "fairly friendly, not more than that."

He was not more unfriendly because he knew Mr. Ballinger's views to conservation differed from his own.

"Then you were unfriendly?"

"No, I distrusted him."

"You mean distrusted his policies?"

"I distrusted his policies and what he would do."

"So, Mr. Pinchot," said Mr. Vertrees, "after all that statement you made to the committee when you took the stand, all you can cite against Mr. Ballinger of your own knowledge is the letter of Nov. 15 to the president?"

"I said I expected to prove some of the things I charged by other witnesses."

Balked by Committee Rule.

Referring to his testimony that Mr. Ballinger, as commissioner of the land office, protested against the creation of the Chugach forest reserve in Alaska, in which some of the Cunningham claims are located, Mr. Pinchot said he had never read Mr. Ballinger's letter of protest and did not know what reasons he gave in the letter.

Mr. Vertrees: "Don't you think it would have been only fair to have read it before submitting it here, with the inferences that might be drawn from your testimony?"

Mr. Pinchot: "My knowledge of Mr. Ballinger's position was based on an interview with him in Mr. Garfield's office, and I understood it to be reference to what we have since come to call conservation."

Mr. Pinchot declared that while the letter of protest had been on file with the committee for some time, a regulation of the committee permitting counsel only to examine the documents had prevented him reading it.

A long discussion ensued as to the modification of the rule, but the matter was put over for decision in executive session.

STRIKE CLOUD LOOMS MORE GRIMLY ON THE QUAKER CITY HORIZON

tice to its men to quit at 5 o'clock this afternoon and remain away until further notice.

While the city authorities have been working for a week perfecting plans for the proposed gigantic strike, Director of Public Safety Henry Clay, the head of the police force, says he believes that not more than 20,000 men will quit work.

A board of arbitration composed of master and journeymen bricklayers, met today at the request of the latter, who wish to find some means to participate in the sympathetic strike without endangering an agreement with the employers. The bricklayers' organization is unaffiliated with the Central Labor Union and is one of the few labor bodies incorporated under state laws.

Brewery Men Hesitate.

The union brewery workers, numbering 2,000 men, have referred to their national officers the question of a sympathetic strike. The brewery men are working under an agreement won after a hard fight, and are hesitating about going into a sympathetic strike without the sanction of the national organization.

The leaders on both sides of the big labor contest are receiving hundreds of telegrams from all over the United States giving moral support and indorsement.

THE HERPES COMES OUT

Frequently Shows Itself in the Same Place Every Year.

The herpes very frequently shows itself in identically the same spot every year. When it comes out, a little poslam should be at once applied, and this annoying skin affection will quickly vanish. Poslam is the new skin remedy which has cured thousands of the worst cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. The terrible itching attending eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. Those who use poslam for these minor skin troubles should immediately secure one of the special 50-cent packages recently adopted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent package and the regular $2 jar may be obtained at the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, the A. E. Holmberg Drug Co., in Superior, and other leading drug stores.

Samples for experimental purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

DULUTH PREPARING FOR VISITS FROM AIRSHIPS

An aeroplane landing may be built on the Torrey building.

That is the statement made by Whitney Wall today.

"If the buildings in the East are being fitted with aeroplane landings," said Mr. Wall, "Duluth will also have an air stopping station.

"At the present time we are thinking seriously of having such a platform constructed on the roof of the building. If the statements made in the East can be taken seriously, it will not be very long before an aeroplane station will be quite useful. If the station is needed in Duluth, even some time in the future, the management of the building is ready to place Duluth in the class of up-to-date cities of the country.

"I am looking into the proposition seriously," and Mr. Wall never batted an eye when he made the statement. "Down East they are really going into the matter seriously. If the stories are true, every prominent city in the effete part of the country will have its aeroplane station. We are rettling pretty prominent. I think that we might as well have an aeroplane station. If there is any chance of any airships hitting this town, why we sure want a station to receive the travelers in the proper spirit."

SELL CHURCH TO CONTRACTOR

First Swedish Baptist Congregation Will Erect a New Structure.

The deal for the sale of the First Swedish Baptist church at Nineteenth avenue west and First street, was completed last evening when Richard Hanson, a contractor, purchased the old building and lot from the trustees of the church for a consideration of $6,500. The deal was sanctioned by the congregation.

To Mr. Hanson the contract for the erection of the superstructure of the new church was awarded. The contract price was given out as $14,000. He is expected to have the structure completed by Aug. 1, but the contract does not call for heating, plumbing, or electric wiring. These contracts will be let separately.

Mr. Hanson expects to put a crew of men at work on the job at once.

NELSON DIES OF INJURIES

Ole Nelson, who was injured yesterday at the Missabe ore docks by being struck on the head by a heavy bucket, died this morning at St. Mary's hospital, where he was taken immediately after the accident. Nelson was 40 years old and lived at 1924½ West Fourth street. He was employed by the Barnett & Record company, which is doing repair work on the dock.

The delegates representing the local lodge are Charles E. Dice, A. Farrington, W. W. Allen, W. L. Homerishous and E. H. Miller.

RAILROADS

SETTLERS WILL RUSH TO WEST

E. Hinkley, passenger agent of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, is here today looking for Southern and Western passenger business.

According to his statement, much of the Western country will be developed the present year, both by the government and the railroads, and as a consequence much of the land that has been arid for years will be taken up for settlement.

"The railroad officials look for a great movement to the West the coming season, not so much the general travel, as a movement of people who are going to the West to make their homes there," said Mr. Hinkley. "Western railroads are in constant touch with the land development and conservation ideas of the West, and this season you will see the taking over of thousands of acres of land by homeseekers. Added to this, there will be many acres opened that has heretofore been in possession of the government.

"Throughout Arizona there will be many acres of arid land reclaimed the present year. Farming is recognized as one of the great industries out there, and if the information that has come to the railroads is correct there will be a big rush of settlement to Arizona."

Railroad Notes.

A. M. Thompson, traveling passenger agent of the Erie, with headquarters at St. Paul, is a railroad visitor today. East and West business is very good at the present time, according to Mr. Thompson's statement, with the indications pointing to a large increase in the passenger travel.

* * *

W. L. Hathaway, district passenger agent of the Rock Island lines, is a visitor to the city today. Mr. Hathaway also predicts an increase of passenger travel over all of the Western lines.

TAKEN UP BY ARBITRATORS

Chicago, March 4.—The wage dispute between the Switchmen's Union of North America and the eight railroads involved in the controversy was taken up today by a board of arbitration as provided by the Erdman act. The board consists of Attorney S. S. Gregory of Chicago, Carl R. Gray of St. Louis, vice president of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad, and S. E. Heberling, vice president of the Switchmen's union. After both sides had outlined their plan of testimony the board adjourned until next Wednesday morning.

LARIMORE PLANNING ON STARTING STARCH FACTORY

Larimore, N. D., March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Larimore has become so enthusiastic over its potato growing record of the past few years that the Commercial club has launched a movement for the purpose of bringing about the establishment of a potato starch factory. On March 28 when the next meeting will be held, a special committee composed of A. StoneHouse, H. F. Arnold and Glay Larimore, will report on the feasibility of the plan, and upon that report depends the action that will be taken.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

A cruel story runs on wheels, and every hand oils the wheels as they run.

—George Eliot.

MORE ALDRICH CHICANERY.

While the organization is against them, and apparently the president also, Senators Cummins and Clapp point to a real peril in their minority report against the administration's interstate commerce commission bill, and they should have popular support if they can't have official support.

As the bill stands it gives the interstate commerce commission greater powers, but sets over it a new court of commerce which is given power to nullify its use of the new privileges. Five well-paid judges are provided to do work which in the last three and a half years has yielded only twenty-six cases; and these judges are given absolute power over the commission. The commission asked Senator Aldrich to amend the bill so as to provide that the new court should have no greater powers than those now held by the circuit court. When Attorney General Wickersham was appealed to the argument struck him so forcibly that he wrote such a provision into the bill. The bill came out of committee, however, with this amendment eliminated. This in effect provides a new commission, above the old one, with the absolute power of veto.

A commission face to face with the facts, and strongly impressed with the public's needs, can make orders; but a commission removed from the facts and the people's needs, a commission composed of men fed on the dry husks of legal precedent, is given power to make those orders inoperative.

No wonder the minority of the committee, standing for popular rights, opposes the bill in its present form. No wonder the majority, representing as it does Special Privileges and "vested rights," insists upon the bill as it is. And the president is with the majority.

"LIVING" AND "EXISTING."

Where Mr. Cook, clerk of the poor board, was unfortunate in his statement that a family of six can "live" on $26 a month was in his confusion of terms. He said a family could "live" on that, but he meant that such a family could "exist" on that sum. Overwhelmed by reproaches and by requests for light on his statement, he submitted to The Herald last night a schedule of food supplies coming to $18 a month which proves that he meant "existence," not "living"; and these are two very different things.

It is true that six people could exist on $18 worth of flour, potatoes, syrup, coffee, tea, oatmeal, beans, milk, sugar and yeast. In fact it is wonderful how little serves sometimes to keep body and soul together. But this is not the well-rounded diet that is needed for a physical and mental development that will permit people really to live.

The schedule submitted by the poor commissioner allows $8 a month for rent; and that isn't much help in finding a decent place for a family of six to live in. It includes nothing for light, fuel or medical attendance—nothing for mental or spiritual food, nothing for recreation or enjoyment; it provides only for the brute needs of bare subsistence. Yet it is better than starvation; and that is about the best that can be said for it.

WRONG VIEWS OF THE CENSUS.

When the enumerators begin the work of taking the federal census they will have the usual experience of running upon a lot of people who are not quite sure what a census is, and who suspect that it conceals some possibility of harm to them.

This apprehension is based on ignorance, of course, and the census bureau is taking steps to remove it by throwing light into the ignorance. It is asking clergymen, physicians, school teachers, employers and others who come in contact with large numbers of people to co-operate with the bureau by telling people the real facts and urging them to give full replies to the questions asked by the enumerators. Teachers are particularly requested to explain it to their pupils, so that they may make it clear to their parents.

To this end, the bureau has prepared a statement which should be of help in removing unnecessary apprehensions about the census. It explains that the Constitution requires a census of the population to be taken every ten years in order to reapportion state representation in the national house of representatives. It is the means also to ascertain the increase in the population, agriculture, industries and the resources of the nation since the last census.

It is emphatically declared that the information sought from the people of the United States is used solely for general statistical purposes. Though questions are asked of John Jones about himself, his family, his work, his business, his earnings, etc., John Jones will not appear in the census at all in any way that could be recognized by himself or anybody else. He will be part of a mass of figures covering the whole nation. Individual facts will not be published nor used in any way to disclose facts regarding any individual or enterprise. "The census is not," says the statement, "never has been and cannot be employed to obtain information that can be used in any way in the assessment of property for taxation, or for deportation proceedings, extradition measures, army or navy conscription, internal revenue investigations, compulsory school attendance, child-labor law prosecutions, quarantine regulations, or in any way to affect the life, liberty or property of any person."

That ought to make it clear enough. If you have been telling the assessor that your property is worth only $1,000 when in point of fact it is worth $1,000,000, you needn't be afraid to tell the census enumerator the truth. The assessor won't hear about it, and the only effect it can have upon him is to puzzle him about why his totals of wealth are so ridiculously small compared with the census totals.

To clinch it, it is explained that all the census officials are sworn to secrecy, and that if they violate that oath they are liable to a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment for two years or both.

So you needn't be afraid to tell the census man all about it.

ROCKEFELLER'S SURPLUS.

John D. Rockefeller is incorporating the Rockefeller foundation, and announces that while his plans are not complete, he proposes to use his enormous surplus to "bring about the greatest good to the greatest number."

He hasn't asked for advice, but it is hard to imagine any better way to use his money for the purpose named than to devote it to changing the conditions under which it is possible for one man to become a billionaire while millions become paupers, many more millions suffer for want of real necessaries, and the vast majority of the people are engaged in a ceaseless struggle to make both ends meet for the day's needs, haunted by specters of sickness, disability, want and old age so frightful that they dare not turn and face them.

If Rockefeller wants to use his billion to the best advantage, he might take notice that a poor official in Duluth is trying to tell people how to live on $26 a month, and use his fortune so to change economic, social and political conditions that nobody would have to live on $26 a month.

A MUNICIPAL LODGING HOUSE.

The Associated Charities and the Women's Council are going to ask for a municipal lodging house for the care of the waifs of fate who seek the shelter and food they are unable to buy. It is to be hoped that a way will be found to provide for this real need.

It is stated that an average of thirty nightly is cared for at the city jail, and that often there are more than a hundred. No doubt there are many in these pitiful ranks who deserve no help because they are there of their own free will. We suspect the proportion of this element is smaller than many suppose. Being a vagrant and a beggar, sleeping on cold floors and eating only when somebody kind enough to provide a meal is found must be about the hardest work in the world, and it isn't easy to believe that many choose it willingly. Yet however large the proportion of professional vagrants may be, there are always many who are in their ranks unwillingly, and anxious to get out of it by finding work.

The purpose of a municipal lodging house is to care for suffering humanity, for it is not good that men willing to work should be left to starve and freeze because some men are not willing to work. Beyond that, the function of such an institution would be to provide work whereby these men can earn the shelter and food they seek; and this serves two purposes: it permits the unfortunate to get help without parting with self-respect, and it separates the sheep from the goats by the test of work. The real professional vagrants quickly will disappear when it is known that in Duluth getting aid means doing work.

Whatever their condition and whatever brought them to it, penniless men who are hungry and cold should be helped; and the best way to do it is with a municipal lodging house with a workyard adjunct.

A FARCE.

The senate has appointed a special committee which is to investigate the cost of living.

Those who anticipate that it will produce any real facts or any theories of value are at liberty to do so, but they shouldn't build too much upon the anticipation. Above all, they shouldn't bet on it.

It isn't even certain that the committee will report that the cost of living is high. It is morally certain that it won't report any reasons for conditions that will go anywhere near the heart of the problem.

It isn't likely to find that the tariff has anything to do with it, though the tariff costs the American people more than three billions of dollars every year, only 10 per cent of which goes into the public treasury. The rest goes to specially privileged interests.

It isn't likely to find that trusts have anything to do with it, though through watered stock, control of distribution and monopoly of service the trusts are able to buy commodities from the producer for less than they are worth and to sell them to the consumer for more than they are worth.

It isn't likely to find that economic tyranny has anything to do with it, though the worker is dependent for the right to labor upon the will of a few and though these few get without earning the greater part of what he earns without getting.

It isn't likely to find that the Republican party has anything to do with it, though the conditions that created this high cost of living have been perpetrated and perpetuated by that party.

It isn't likely to find that Wall street has anything to do with it, though Wall street makes the sources of the people's wages, dividends and livelihood mere pawns in a great gambling game with huge profits which the people pay.

It isn't likely to find that any of these things have anything to do with the high cost of living. It will be interesting, then, to hear its reasons.

In the meantime, its hearings are not open to the public. While the departments of government have been called upon for figures and facts, American consuls abroad have been called upon for figures as to the cost of living in their locations. Which reminds us that at the beginning of the tariff struggle in congress American consuls sent in a large quantity of information of this character which Senator Aldrich hustled to his committee pigeon-holes with a promise to make it public in a few days. He never made it public, and if it hasn't been destroyed, it is in those pigeon-holes yet.

In point of fact, it is being made rather plain that the purpose of the inquiry will not be to find real causes for the people's hardships and to suggest remedies, but to compile material for the defense of the Republican party in the coming congressional campaign. That means that the inquiry will be a farce, and its product worthless.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

CONSUMER THE ONLY ONE HIT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I don't remember who said it, but some one well said that "any fool can write, but put thought in it, that's work."

I have read some mighty good articles on the high cost of living in your paper and also some mighty poor ones. A proprietor of a restaurant, a capitalist, a proprietor of a grocery store, have all come forth with the claim that the cost of living is not any higher, but, bless your heart, Mr. Wage Earner, you live "too high"; you demand too fancy cuts of meats, when in fact the cheap cuts were all gone before you got there. You eat too many fancy dishes; you live in too nice houses, and pay out too much money for rent, when as a matter of fact, you have got to pay out too much money for rent if you want to live in a house at all.

We all know beyond any question of a doubt, and it can be easily substantiated with figures, that there has been a material increase in cost of living, while wages have been at a standstill, and I know from personal experience, and I have ready figures to prove it, that my grocery and meat bill averaged $24.70 per mith in 1907 and 1908, and in 1909 the average was $29.80, and the increase was not due to over-indulgence in fancy meat cuts, either. In fact, we practiced economy, more in the last year or two than ever before.

The man working by the day and on a salary is the man who has a kick coming. The butcher, the grocery man, the hotel keeper and the restaurant proprietor should not "butt in." As long as they can rake in the coin and be left alone they ought to be satisfied, because if the so-called trust "soaks" them there is a chance for them to fall in line and by raising the price or cutting down the quantity or quality soak the consumer. What can the wage earner or the mann with the family do? He can pay the price asked or go without.

I walked into a butcher shop yesterday and asked the price of sirloin, and was answered 20 cents per pound. I walked just one block east to another butcher and asked him the same question and he answered me promptly, 15 cents, and he didn't "stutter" when he said it, either. He looked prosperous, too. Some of you restaurant proprietors explain that, I can't. Yours very truly. A HOUSEKEEPER.

Duluth, March 3.

FORGOT A NECESSITY.

To the Editor of The Herald.

In his formula for cheap living, I notice A. P. Cook has not even included 2 cents for one copy of The Evening Herald each month, much less each evening. I do not see how we can follow his suggestions for cheap living, nor how we can exist without The Herald for even a week, for I regard it as a necessity.

How to Regulate Trusts.

Life: Find a man who has a large amount of stock in some trust and is anxious to get more.

Tell him that if he will represent you in Washington you will pay him a large salary and respect him besides.

If he has a wife and a lot of marriageable daughters, he will undoubtedly accept.

As soon as he is established in Washington, surrounded by all the comforts which one never gets at home, go to him and tell him that you want the trusts regulated.

If he is a shrewd business man, he will greet you with a smile and say "certainly."

Thereupon he will appoint a commission to investigate the trusts and pay the commission a liberal salary with your money.

Wait a year or two. Then go to him again and ask him what the commission has done toward regulating the trusts.

Do not be afraid to approach him, for if he is also a shrewd politician, he will not curse or revile you for bothering him so much about your business, even though you are paying him to attend to it. He will greet you with a smile and a hearty handshake and admit that your solicitude is entirely warranted.

Thereupon he will appoint another commission not to supersede, but to supervise the first one, paying commission liberally with your money.

Wait until election day. Discharge your agent at Washington and replace him with another one who belongs to a different trust and a different political party.

Proceed as before until every consumer has been appointed to some investigating committee.

Lawlessness as Privilege.

Ex-Governor J. W. Folk in Saturday Evening Post: Lawlessness becomes a privilege when it is tolerated and not interfered with. To state it in another way, permission to violate law is privilege. That is true, whether the lawlessness be by corporate interests, or liquor interests, or gambling interests. The only way that the people can rule is through the laws their representatives make. If those laws are not enforced, then the will of the people is thwarted to the extent that their laws are nullified. If a law is a bad law, the remedy is to repeal it, not to disregard it; for if one law is ignored then the violation of other laws must be tolerated. Then comes graft on the part of some one for permitting the privilege of lawlessness. The privilege of lawlessness is never accorded where there is a profit made out of that privilege, without some one in authority exacting some kind of tribute for giving this privilege.

Agnes, I Love Thee!

I stood upon the ocean's briny shore
And with a fragile reed I traced upon the sand,
"Agnes, I love thee!"
The mad waves rolled by and blotted out the fair impression.
Frail reed! Cruel waves! Treacherous sand!
I'll trust to thee no more, but with a giant hand
I'll pluck from Norway's frozen shore her tallest pine;
I'll dip its top into the fiery crater of Vesuvius,
And on the high and burnished heavens I'll write,
"Agnes, I love thee!"
I'd like to see any dog-goned wave wash that out!

THE WEATHER.

CLOUDY

Still the fine weather continues and old fishermen are hauling their tackle out and looking it over, just from force of habit. The old stock expression, "Isn't this weather simply great?" doesn't even meet with a frosty acquiescense, so balmy is the air. The lowest temperature last night was 26 deg. and the weather man says continuance of the fine conditions may be expected for tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today was a fine winter day, clear, bright and sharp.

The sun rose this morning at 6:42 and it will set at 5:57, giving eleven hours and fifteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Fair weather and moderate temperatures are the rule in nearly all districts. A disturbance to the southward of Florida caused rains in that state during the past twenty-four hours. Other depressions overlie Western Mexico and British Columbia, while the barometer is highest over northeastern states. The isotherm of 32 deg. follows northern border states except that freezing temperatures also prevail in portions of Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Nevada.

"Indications are favorable for a continuance of mild weather at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

Following were the maximum temperatures for twenty-four hours and the minimum for twelve, ending at 7 a. m., today:

Too Busy.

Too busy to talk with a friend who calls,
Too busy to hear what he has to say,
Too busy, still, when the night time falls
To spend a while with his boy in play.
Too busy to eat in a decent place,
Too busy to sleep a night time through,
Never a pause in the driving race,
Work is all he has time to do.

Too busy to smile, too busy to sing,
Too busy to read or to see a show;
Too busy to love! What a dreadful thing
It is to be put in a lifetime so!
Too busy to dream on a summer's day,
Too busy to stroll down a shady lane,
Too busy a cheerful word to say,
Holding that all but work is vain.

Too busy to share in the joys of earth,
What is the sense of it anyhow?
Putting off everything here of worth,
Instead of living a full life now.
What is a dollar more or less
A step behind or a step ahead?
Live as you go, for the thing success
Means nothing the moment that you are dead.

—Detroit Free Press.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

The steamer Lady Elgin came to Superior in 1853 with a cargo of provisions for the Lake Shore railroad, which was then projected to some point in the northern part of Wisconsin. The tools and supplies were landed, but the railroad's land grant was declared forfeited. The schooner Algonquin, which now lies rotting to pieces on the Superior shore, was the principal trader to the Head of the Lakes in those days. The main route was between Duluth and Ontonagon.

Orrin T. Higgins, who died a few days ago at his home in Olean, N. Y., was practically a Duluth man, although he did not have his permanent residence here. He often spent months in the city and the neighboring woods. He has often been called the largest pine land owner in the North.

Part of the plant for developing the Diamond iron mine, ten miles northeast of La Prairie, is already on the ground and operations will begin immediately.

George H. Prudden, formerly with The Herald, is now associated with real estate and insurance firm of Myers & Whipple.

Miss Earhart has left for her mother's home in Pennsylvania, taking with her the three younger children of her sister, the late Mrs. Graff. They will remain in Pennsylvania for some time. The two older children will remain in Duluth.

Dr. George D. Swaine, for many years one of the leading surgeons of North Dakota and who has just completed a post graduate course in Chicago, has arrived in the city and will open an office in the Banning building.

General Manager W. S. Mellen of the Northern Pacific will be married on April 2 to Miss Gertrude Louise Jones, daughter of a well known real estate man of Superior. Their home will be in St. Paul.

TALKING ABOUT DULUTH.

That's the Situation Here.

Little Falls Transcript: Duluth has found in time, as other places sometimes find too late, that in order to hold the trade of the surrounding country it must provide a ready market for the products of that region. With any city and its tributary territory working co-operatively hand in hand, nothing can prevent the mutual benefits that will naturally accrue to both. The city may learn much from the farmer and the contrary is true, and when both city and farming communities work together for the common good, surprising results must follow.

A Live Body.

Eveleth Star: Duluth has one of the most active commercial bodies in this state. True it is that the men affiliated with the Commercial club are putting forth their very best efforts to make of Duluth one of the great cities of the Northwest. Viewing this Duluth force at this distance, there is an apparent harmony and co-operation of action that is always conducive to success. The commercial body of the Zenith City is evidenly composed of broad, liberal-minded men, keen and watchful of every opportunity that will add material benefits to the city and will reflect honor to their labors. There is scarcely a problem that confronts the best interests of the people that the club does not take up and solve, and when the solution is made it always redounds to the benefit of the city.

Wriggling Back Into Line.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Duluth News Tribune has suddenly discovered that Mr. Taft is the best president we ever had, and it is trying to break the way to set up a defense for the Aldrich-Cannon tariff law, which it so roundly scored until quite recently.

Just for a Day, Though.

Stillwater Gazette: It pays to advertise, all right, but occasionally the results are more than anticipated. Recently the Duluth papers boasted of the beautiful, balmy weather, and the next day they had a blizzard that came near consolidating Duluth and Superior.

Investigation a Safeguard.

Stillwater Gazette: Investigations show some fearful state of affairs in dairies, but recently at Duluth it was shown by the city health department that a meat market was much worse. The investigation of dairies, meat shops, bakeries, etc., is one of the best safeguards for good health, and the enforcement of the pure food laws is indorsed by the great majority of the people. Many of the abuses and impositions perpetrated on the American people are being corrected, and it may be demonstrated in a few short years that it is more profitable to be fair and honest with the people than it is to secure the almighty dollar by fraud and deceit. That will be a day for a great celebration when it arrives.

Wise Mr. Dunn.

Royalton Banner: Some innocent has asked why the Duluth News Tribune had ceased to boom Bob Dunn for the nomination for governor. Mr. Dunn probably did it himself. Doesn't wish to be queered right at the start. Get next?

Duluth at Bemidji.

Eveleth Star: Duluth sent to Bemidji a live set of delegates—a bunch of men who knew the value of co-operation, harmony and unity of action, and as a result a lasting impression was made upon the delegates from the northern counties.

Duluth Democrats United.

Eveleth Star: The Democrats of Duluth are said to be again united, but it would not appear, if judging from past history, that the union will last longer than the advent of the next election.

Bigoted Virtue.

Rev. John Hopkins Dennison: Sincerity, honesty and humility are nearer heaven than virtue, which is proud, jealous and bigoted.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Washington Star: "Why can't that prima donna sing more than twice a week?"

"I don't know," answered the impresario, "unless it's because she tires out her vocal chords arguing with me about salary."

Judge: Friend—What on earth are you going to do with that painting of yours?

Dauber—Can't you see? I'm rubbing a piece of raw meat over the rabbit in the foreground. Mrs. Alsoddle will be here today, and when she sees her pet dog smell of that rabbit, she'll buy it."

Brooklyn Life: Mistress—Why did you leave your last place?

New Cook—Th' missus was getting too independent.

St. Louis Times: Dentist—Don't you think that you had better take gas?

Patient—No. I would rather have a toothache than pay the gas bill.

Cleveland Leader: "Do you understand the English political situation?"

"No. There's only one thing I know less about."

"And that?"

"The American ditto."

Chicago News: Mack (an observing stranger)—Why is it that so many of the men in your town seem to bear a grudge against the minister?

Bachelor (a knowing resident)—Why, he's the man who married them.

Illustrated Bits: Reverend Gentleman—Do you know, my friend, that half the cases of cancer are caused by people smoking those foul, dirty, short, black clay pipes?

Son of Toil—And do you know, guvnor, but 'alf the black eyes are caused by folks not mindin' their own business?

Boston Globe: She—Don't you think woman's suffrage would be a fine thing?

He—I know I could always persuade my wife to vote as I wanted by telling her I intended voting the other way.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "You have a wife beater in jail here?"

"Yes."

"Here are some roses for him."

"Sorry, madam, but he doesn't accept any flowers less expensive than orchids."

Philadelphia Record: Nell — What caused the coolness between you and Jack?"

Belle—He told me he was unworthy of me.

Nell—Oh, they all say that.

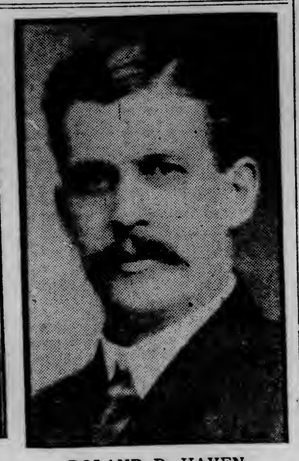
BUSINESS MEN OF THE WEST END GATHER AT ANNUAL BANQUET

Notable Assemblage at First Dinner of West End Commercial Club.

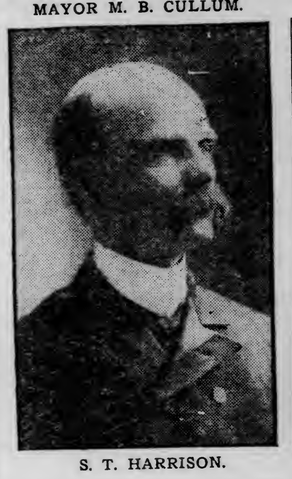
Mayor Cullum Indorses the Commission Form of Government.

Addresses By S. T. Harrison, C. P. Craig, D. M. Neill, C. S. Mitchell and Others.

MAYOR M. B. CULLUM.



ROLAND D. HAVEN.



S. T. HARRISON.

GEORGE M. JENSEN.

That it is "up to Duluth" to show, through her commercial bodies, a "God-Helps-Them-Who-Helps-Themselves" spirit, if she would come into her own, was the keynote of all of the sentiments expressed by a well selected list of speakers, last evening, at the initial banquet of the West End Commercial club.

The banquet was held at St. Jean Baptiste hall on West Third street, and was attended by 175 business men of the West end.

S. W. Hill, president of the new commercial body, which was organized about a year ago, acted in the capacity of toastmaster, and introduced the speakers, who dwelt briefly on a few of the many subjects, which the Commercial clubs of this city have been interested in. Several suggestions were made by the speakers as to the best way of bringing about the desired results, and all spoke enthusiastically of the future of the new West end organization.

Mr. Hill, in his opening remarks, gave a brief history of how the West End Commercial club was organized. It grew out of the old Duluth Business Men's association, he stated, which was formed over eight years ago. He pointed to the improvements effected through the medium of this association, recalling the time that the Northern Pacific railroad was forced to establish a station at Twentieth avenue and run its passenger trains through West Duluth and the West end by the railroad and warehouse commission, through the influence of this organization.

Politics Crept In.

The toastmaster then related how politics had crept into the affairs of the society and how after a short time the meetings were discontinued and how after a year or more a movement was begun to set the defunct organization on its feet again under the new cognomen of the West End Commercial club. The new club had just finished its first year last evening, according to the toastmaster. "While we have not done many of the things we would like to see accomplished," said Mr. Hill, "still we have had a fair measure of success for the first year."

Mr. Hill stated that he would like to see the business men of the West end take a hand in the affairs of the club for the purpose of advancing not only commercial interests, but also developing the city along the lines of better government. Mr. Hill introduced a number of speakers among whom were: S. T. Harrison, who talked on "The Functions of a Commercial Club;" Charles S. Mitchell of the News Tribune, who talked on "The Relations of a Newspaper to a City;" Charles P. Craig, who gave an address on "Agricultural Education;" D. M. Neill of Red Wing, president of the Federation of Commercial Clubs of Minnesota, who spoke of his work; Mayor M. B. Cullum, who gave a few remarks on "The Commission Form of Government;" Former Mayor R. D. Haven, whose subject was "The Northern Minnesota Development Association," and George M. Jensen, secretary of the club, who toasted the future of the organization.

Rev. Edward Erickson, the pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church of the West end delivered the invocation. The supper was an excellent one and was served by the ladies of the Rosary Society of St. Clement's Catholic church at the West end.

Several numbers on the program that met with much appreciation, were given by the Old Virginia male quartet. The singers are colored people. The quartet is composed of: W. L. Johnson, first tenor; F. E. Dixon, second tenor; H. L. Pittruase, baritone, and W. B. Richardson, basso. Charles Helmer's orchestra also delighted the audience with several selections.

Much credit is due the committee which arranged the banquet. Dr. O. A. Oredson was the chairman and the other members were Roy Hood and George M. Jensen.

S. T. HARRISON SPEAKS.

Attorney Tells of "The Functions of a Commercial Club.

S. T. Harrison, who spoke on the "Functions of a Commercial City," attributed to every commercial organization the fundamental duty of awakening in every citizen of the community a sense of public spirit. Not only, he said, should the club work for the benefit of the immediate community but it also should attempt to bring about conditions beneficial to the county, state, and nation.

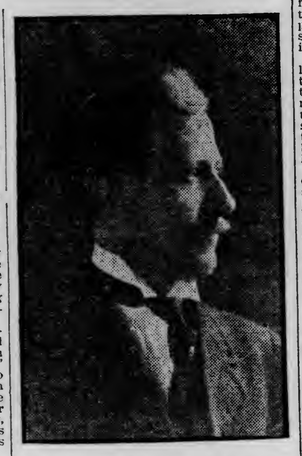
The functions of such an organization, he asserted, are both commercial and civic. "First, center attention on bringing new industries to the city," he said, "and then give attention to good government in a non-partisan way. We are living in a day where if any officer of the city, county or state, is not attending to his duty, you ought to see the commercial clubs appoint committees to investigate his case."

Mr. Harrison spoke of the transportation problem as being one of the primary topics to be considered by such a body. With such advantages as Duluth has, situated as it is at the Head of the Great Lakes, he said, that he saw no reason why its growth should not be greater than that of any other city in the country. He asserted that every man in the city should feel that he is a member of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club.

In speaking on good government, he alluded to the commission plan, stating that it was meeting with popularity where it had been tried. He showed where some of the present defects could be remedied if the new plan were inaugurated in this city. He spoke of the committee that the Duluth Commercial club had appointed to investigate the new plan with the view of having it tried in Duluth.

Mr. Harrison also toasted the women, stating that in his opinion, the moral thermometer of any city rose and fell in just the proportion that the fairer sex became interested in the affairs of the community. It used to be a disgrace for a woman to speak in public, he stated, but now some of the most polished and finished orators are to be found among the women.

Mr. Harrison closed his remarks by congratulating the members of the West End Commercial club upon the success of the first annual banquet. He expressed the hope, in closing, that he would have the opportunity of attending many more like the initial one.



REV. EDWARD ERICKSON.

THE NEWSPAPERS OF DULUTH

Charles S. Mitchell Talks on Their Relation to the City.

Charles S. Mitchell, editor of the Duluth News Tribune, was assigned the topic, "The Relations of a Newspaper to a City." He stated that the public press of Duluth merely reflected what the people thought, and he said that it was a delicate subject for a newspaper man to talk upon, but stated that he could safely say, that after several years in the game, he was of the opinion that Duluth had no occasion to be ashamed of her newspapers.

"The two dailies of Duluth," asserted Mr. Mitchell "are distinctly for Duluth."

In opening his talk, Mr. Mitchell said that he had always felt at home in the West end, that there was something in the atmosphere that made him "Cuddle up a little closer," not because that he knew so many citizens who lived there, but perhaps because the people were the most Democratic in the city.

"If you of the West end, don't take care of your own interests, nobody will take care of them for you," he declared. "See that you get your share of lighting, that you are properly policed." He spoke of the recently established branch library and neighborhood house at the West end, expressing the regret that the public school houses of Duluth could not be thrown open to the public for like purposes.

He characterized the public school system of this city as out-of-date. In other towns, he pointed out, children over 14 years old who are taken out of school to support the family are allowed privileges of a night school, but in this city, this is kept from them, and about 4 o'clock every day, the building is no longer of any service to the public. In other communities, the place is used like the Neighborhood House of the West end, and parents meet there to discuss matters of mutual interest.

He urged the West End Commercial club to go after more playgrounds, parks, cleaner streets and pointed out that in fact there was no end to the possible things that such an organization might do. "Toot Duluth's horn" he said in closing, "and Duluth will stand where she belongs and as her name implies 'The Zenith City.'"

"AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION."

Charles P. Craig Says It Is the Great Need of Northern Minnesota.

Charles P. Craig, in his talk on "Agricultural Education," declared the crying need of Minnesota today was a means of educating the tillers of the soil so that the productiveness of the farms could not only be doubled, but tripled.

According to figures produced by Mr. Craig, there are today in Minnesota 180,000 farms, in which 19,000,000 out of a possible 51,000,000 acres of land were tilled, from which the 1909 revenue was something over $430,000,000. The products of the farms exceed those of the manufactories or mines, in value, he asserts.

If the young farmers of the state were educated along agricultural lines, he stated, the income from the same number of farms could be tripled.

Duluth, he claimed, cannot always exist as a mining town, and there is no surer way of building up a metropolis at the Head of the Lakes, according to Mr. Craig, than to settle the farms of St. Louis county with educated farmers.

Agriculture, the speaker asserted, is related to other commercial topics, and yet in the state university and state agricultural schools, only one tenth of 1 per cent of the population of the state take advantage of the training along these lines offered, while 63 per cent of the population of the state are farmers.

"There is room for much study along this line in the Commercial clubs of Duluth," stated the speaker. "We have made great progress along these lines in the few years past and much good research work has been carried out in the colleges and at Washington, D. C., but it is only a start."

He asked the members of the West End club to investigate along these lines, and attempt to shape public sentiment for the broadening of such training, declaring that agriculture as a science should not only be taught in the university, but also in the common schools and in the rural districts.

In order to accomplish the desired end, Mr. Craig suggested that the proposition be put up to the legislature. "Get the matter started in your Commercial club," was his advice, "then through a conference of federated commercial clubs, frame up a bill incorporating some feasible scheme involving the good points of all of the suggested plans and get it passed."

He suggested that the normal schools which supply the teachers for the rural districts require the teachers to take a short agricultural course.

"GET TOGETHER."

D. M. Neill of Red Wing Speaks on The Value of Co-operation.

D. M. Neill, formerly of Red Wing, now temporary manager of the Zenith Telephone company of this city, and who is also president of the Federated Commercial Clubs of Minnesota, in greeting the members of the West End club as a representative of the state organization, stated that this was an age of organization.

"The time has passed," said the speaker, "when men do things individually. To start a new commercial club is often a delicate matter, and frequently it is a hard matter to get the men to come together for this purpose. But the whole secret of the success of any community is in working for things in common."

He stated that although he knew little of the local situation, he knew that the state federaion received better support from the clubs in the northern part of the state than from the prosperous cities in the southern section. This, he said, was not meant to flatter Duluthians, but had often been told to the people in Southern Minnesota.

"Communities are made of men," he declared, "and men in this part of the state never grow old, even if they do have a few gray hairs on their heads. They are more active and on the alert than the people in the southern part of the state."

Mr. Neill stated that it paid to advertise Minnesota lands and keep outside states from taking the citizens away to some place up in Canada or down in Florida, where the soil is less productive than right here in Minnesota.

He told of the commercial congress that would be held March 16 at St. Paul, and hoped that Duluth would be well represented.

THE MAYOR SPEAKS.

Expresses Himself as Favoring the Commission Form of Government.

"The Commission Form of Government" was the theme assigned to Mayor M. B. Cullum. He explained briefly that, as generally indorsed the new plan comprised five commissioners, elected at large from a city, who would have all the power now delegated to the mayor and common council.

The mayor spoke strongly in favor of the new plan provided that the initiative, referendum, and recall were incorporated in the scheme. He said that whatever he said was not meant to reflect on the integrity and honesty of past city officials, but he believed the new plan to be better.

"Duluth has been fortunate in its city government" said the mayor "and the city has had for years a council which has been above suspicion. Never, to my knowledge has any charge of bribery or misconduct been brought against any of our councilmen. But in comparing the two systems, I would favor the commission plan."

He claimed that with the initiative, recall and referendum, no corporation or interest would risk bribing or buying up the commissioners, because the commissioners could be put out of office, and if the measure was distasteful to the people, it would be voted down at a special election.

A good feature of the new plan would be the elimination of the party boss, which delivers many of the citizens into the hands of selfish interests, according to the mayor.

"CO-OPERATION."

Duluth's Interests Are Those of Northern Minnesota, Says Haven.

That Duluth's interest should be united with the interests of Northern Minnesota was the theme of the talk given by Former Mayor R. D. Haven in response to the toast, "The Northern Minnesota Development Association." He spoke very favorably of the recent gathering of the association at Bemidji, which he attended as a delegate from this city.

"The man in Bemidji who conceived the idea of consolidating the interests of all communities in Northern Minnesota did a wise thing," said the former mayor. "There were between 200 and 300 representatives there, and a better love feast and harmony meeting you never saw. You could not start a fight if you wanted to."

According to Mr. Haven, the interests of this city must be those of Northern Minnesota. "Around Duluth," he said, "we have an almost unlimited amount of undeveloped land and Duluthians have just commenced to come into their own. We of Duluth and Northern Minnesota can hardly appreciate what the future growth of this section will be.

Duluth has been somewhat handicapped because she has been discriminated against. Along this line he spoke of the unfairness of the present system of apportionment and urged that steps be taken by the next legislature to correct this glaring injustice.

He recommended many things that might occupy the attention of the newly organized West End Commercial club, such as good roads, better lighting, more adequate policing, etc. "Never in the history of the city," he said, "has there been a more opportune time to develop along these lines.

All sectional lines in the city should be obliterated. There should be no West end, West Duluth, or East end, but all should be known as Duluth, for the Zenith City is big enough for all of us."

SECRETARY SPEAKS.

George M. Jensen Predicts Bright Future for the West End.

George M. Jensen, secretary of the West End Commercial club was the last speaker of the evening. He told of the work that had been accomplished by commercial clubs and other organizations of this kind in the city in the past few years, and spoke in no uncertain way of the future that the West end had before it.

"We can many of us remember," stated Mr. Jensen, "when Superior street was a blazed trail and Garfield avenue a hunting ground. Many of us here tonight can hark back to the time of the boom days, those days when men who formerly owned acres of land about the city, woke up one morning not worth enough to buy a square meal."

Mr. Jensen said that he wanted to see every business man in the West end join the Commercial club and put his shoulder to the wheel and boost the civic welfare of that section of the city along. He hoped to soon see the time when the territory south of Superior street along the bay front would be dotted with small factories and the section north of Third street built up with many fine homes.

The Commercial club during the next year, said Mr. Jensen will try to get more water and gas improvements for the hillside, and will try to educate the citizens that the best pavement is not the cheapest.

HARVESTING ABOUT OVER

Ice Companies Rushing Last of Their Crop Into Storehouses.

Managers Say Duluth Is in No Danger of Ice Famine.

Even though the quantity of ice taken from Lake Superior this season falls far short of what it has been in seasons gone by, the Duluth ice dealers say that they have put up the frozen water in sufficient quantities so that there is but little danger of an ice famine.

According to the manager of one of the large companies, about 70,000 tons of ice is ample for the use of the residents of Duluth during the summer months. This amount and more, he thinks, has been put up by the local companies.

The price will not be advanced unless the summer proves unusually warm and long. The prices will remain at about the figure paid last summer.

Most of the ice has been put up at Spirit Lake. The ice in Lake Superior this year is said to be of poor quality, and the warm weather of the last week has not improved it.

The Endion Ice company is harvesting ice near Twenty-sixth avenue east and the Duluth Ice company is conducting work just off St. Croix avenue. The East End Ice company is not taking ice from the lake this year.

If the companies had not used the Spirit Lake ice earlier in the year, the managers think that Duluth surely would have had an ice famine during the coming summer. They think that the field in the lake will last but a few days, and while some of them are hustling the last of their product into the huge storehouses others have not attempted to harvest from the lake this year.

WARM WEATHER SPOILS SKATING

Public Rinks May Not Be Used Again This Year.

The eight public rinks which have been operated this winter under the direction of the park board have proved popular, it being estimated that they have been used by an average of 1,200 people daily. They have been in good condition since Thanksgiving, the warm weather of the last two days causing the first interruption.

Should there be another cold snap they will be fixed up again, but Secretary Henry Cleveland does not expect that there will be any more skating this season as the weather man informs him that it will be still warmer the next thirty-six hours.

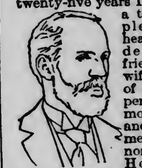
TERRIBLE SKIN HUMOR 25 YEARS

Business Man Suffered Agony—Head, Neck and Shoulders Covered—Became An Object of Dread—Consulted Most Able Doctors and Hospital but Got No Relief.

SURPRISINGLY QUICK CURE BY CUTICURA



"Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, so that to my friends, and even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the —— Hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura Remedies and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. S. F. Keyes, 147 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, 1909."

CURED BOILS

With Cuticura when Everything Else had Failed.

"I am very grateful for Cuticura as my daughter had been suffering for eleven months with awful great boils on her body. We tried everything which one could mention but nothing was any good. The boils made her very weak and ill and she had to leave her place. After using one tablet of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment, two vials of Cuticura Pills and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent she got quite well and has not had the boils since. I should have written to you before but have been waiting to see if she had any sign of any coming back. My daughter is eighteen years old. Mrs. Ellen Heather, Hillside Rd., Ash Common, nr. A DOCTOR'S SLEEP.

Found He Had to Leave Off Coffee.

Many persons do not realize that a bad stomach will cause insomnia.

Coffee drinking, being such an ancient and respectable form of dissipation, few realize that the drug—caffeine—contained in coffee and tea, is one of the principal causes of dyspepsia and nervous troubles.

Without their usual portion of coffee, the coffee topers are nervous, irritable and fretful. That's the way with a whiskey drinker. He has got to have his dram "to settles his nerves"—habit.

To leave off coffee is an easy matter if you want to try it, because Postum—well boiled according to directions—gives a gentle but natural support to the nerves and does not contain any drug—nothing but food.

Physicians know this to be true, as one from Ga. writes:

"I have cured myself of a long-standing case of Nervous Dyspepsia by leaving off coffee and using Postum," says the doctor.

"I also enjoy refreshing sleep, to which I had been an utter stranger for 20 years.

"In treating Dyspepsia in its various types, I find little trouble when I can induce patients to quit coffee and adopt Postum."

The doctor is right and "there's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

NEILL NOW UNDER FIRE

Charged With Suppressing Report on Child Labor in South.

Special Agent Found That the Children Received Much Benefit.

Washington, March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, is under fire before a committee appointed by Secretary Nagel to investigate Mr. Neill's disposition of a fund of $300,000 appropriated by congress for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of factory employes and especially children. Under authority of the act making the appropriation, a special agent was sent into the South to report upon the effect of the employment of children in the cotton mills of the Southern states.

It was asserted and frequently repeated during the discussion of the so-called Beveridge child labor bill that the sturdy mountaineers of the South were being morally and physically ruined because the children were taken from the magnificent "farms" and compelled to "slave" in the mills. The special agent who made the investigation failed to find these conditions. In the first place the farms were missing. Thousands of families, especially in Tennessee, were found to be living in the most miserable shacks largely built of unchinked logs without any sanitary appliances whatever and hundreds of them possessed neither a wash bowl or a comb. The children were in the most dilapidated state of unkempt misery having practically nothing to eat but fat pork and corn meal, and as a rule so ignorant that they had no knowledge whatever of the meaning of the alphabet. These children, report went on to show, were taken to the factory where they were properly clothed, housed, well fed and educated. The minimum wage paid to these children is reported to be $3 a week and few of them are employed more than a quarter of an hour out of each hour.

Mr. Neill absolutely refused to believe the report which was submitted to him and sent the agent down again for a second investigation. This resulted in a more emphatic recommendation that the employment of children be continued. It showed conclusively, at least that is as it appeared to the investigating committee that instead of depressing the rising generation in the mill sections of the South, the system is bringing to the front a far better class of citizens than has ever existed in those mountain regions. Hundreds of schedules were prepared giving complete details of the family history of the people visited and hundreds of photographs were taken showing the difference between life on the so-called "farms" and in the factory towns, and still Mr. Neill positively refused to accept the reports as authentic. He suppressed all of them apparently because they did not agree with the conditions as he had conceived them. For more than six months efforts have been made to compel the commissioner to publish the findings of the special agent whose labors have cost the government some $10,000 but without success. Finally an appeal was made to the secretary, and Mr. Nagel appointed a commission to ascertain the facts. This commission has about concluded its labors and it is said that the report to the secretary will be a very severe arraignment of the commissioner of labor and that it is likely to result in the enforced resignation of that gentleman.

In most of the states of the Union the court of a magistrate or justice of the peace has jurisdiction in civil suits only when the amount involved is less than $200. On the other hand the United States supreme court will listen to no appeal wherein the amount involved is less than $2,000. Unlike these courts the interstate commerce commission has neither a maximum nor a minmum. One day the whole board may sit to listen to arguments pro and con in a case involving hundreds of thousands of dollars. This was true in the matter of the alleged overcharge by the railroad of the Southwest for the transportation of cattle to the Chicago and Omaha markets.

Then, again, the case in issue may involve less than a dollar and in these trivial cases it does seem rather peculiar that the cost of printing the report and order of the commission should exceed nearly a thousand fold the amount involved. A day or two ago the commission rendered an opinin what is technically known as No. 2859, Amos Rehberg & Co. vs. Erie Railroad company, et al. The complaining company alleged that on one less than carload shipment of clothing weighing 300 pounds, shipped from New York to Janesville, Wis., four years ago they were compelled to pay $3.21 when the legal charge should have been $3.09. The railroad companies, who jointly handled this shipment, claimed that they had a rigfit to form the rate in the manner in which they did, instead of by combining to lower rates for the advantage of the shipper. Then again they set up a further claim that the shipper had been negligent in failing to file his complaint on time, but after reading the brief and listening to arguments on both sides the commission finally "ordered that the principle defendent, the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company, be, and it is hereby, authorized and directed, on or before the first day of April, 1910, to pay unto the complainant, Amos Rehbery & Co., the sum of 22 cents, with interest thereon at rate of 6 per cent per annum from Feb. 1, 1906, as reparation on account of an overcharge in rate on one less-than-carload shipment of clothing weighing 300 pounds, shipped from New York, N. Y., to Janesville, Wis., which rate so charged has been found by this commission to have been unreasonable, as more fully and at large appears in and by said report of the commission."

All of which goes to show that the old farmer who sued his neighbor for an overcharge of one cent and who spent $50 to win his fight is not the only individual in these United States who is willing to spend a large sum to maintain a principal, even though the result may be a trivial 22 cents at a cost of several hundred.

NO INDIGESTION OR SICK STOMACH

Gas, Heartburn, Dyspepsia and All Misery in Stomach Vanishes.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

TO CONTEST GUARDIANSHIP.

Differences Arise Over Millionaire Indian Boy.

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 4.—Robert Pitman, a fullblood Cherokee Indian, late of Sapulpa, Okla., but for a year past a resident of Colorado Springs, has had Former Sheriff O. P. Grimes of Colorado Springs appointed guardian of his 7-year-old son, Robert. The Pitmans entered land separately, the father entering for his son while he was yet an infant. A guardian was appointed and is still serving. A year ago Judge Little of El Paso county probate court appointed the father guardian, but his bondsmen have withdrawn because he can neither read nor write, hence Mr. Grimes' appointment.

The boy's land contains seventy-five oil wells and yields $100,000 a year income. The father contends that it should yield much more. The first guardian insists on serving and a contest between the two guardians is probable.

THREE KILLED IN FIGHT.

Alabama Cattleman Wreaks Feud Vengeance on Enemies.

Citronfile, Ala., March 4.—Joseph Stokes, Charles Goldman and David Gortman, farmers, were late yesterday afternoon shot and killed by Laurence Odom, a cattleman, at the latter's home, four miles from this place. After the shooting Odom surrendered to a deputy sheriff at Citronelle, who, fearing mob violence, telephoned Sheriff Drago at Mobile for assistance. The Mobile officers arrived at 11 o'clock and no further trouble is feared.

Odom says the killing was the result of an old feud. He says all parties were armed.

SNELL WAS DEVOTED SON

Disinherited, He Forbore His Father's Ire for Many Years.

Aversion of Eccentric Ascribed to Influence of Mabelle.

Clinton, Ill., March 4.—With the finality of the famous Col. Thomas Snell will case recorded, there is a vast amount of speculation throughout Central Illinois concerning the real cause for the mortal antipathy of the eccentric millionaire as displayed toward his only son, Richard. The son was always kindly disposed toward his aged father. It was the vindictive, quarrelsome, petulant sire who saw no good in the son.

This hatred did not always exist, but, on the contrary, when Richard returned home from Kansas City, where he managed a bank for his father, the old man spoke of the son proudly and toastfully. "The best son I ever had," he would say. "He made me more money than all the rest put together."

The aversion of the father toward the son was mentioned in all three trials during the will litigation. The arguments before the juries were full of it, especially in the final hearing when the prosecution relied upon this insane dislike as indicative of the mental weakness of the parent, and dwelt upon it as their most potent argument why the will should be declared invalid. The attorneys for the state also dwelt upon this unnatural feeling, but they insinuated that a good reason for it must exist or else Richard Snell would talk about it and satisfy the curiosity of the public.

Son Kept Silent.

With the same courtesy and deference toward his aged father that he had manifested from youth to manhood, the son did keep silent. He would never tell. The lawyers for the son were equally reticent and doubtless had received their instructions. Col. Snell would go from door to door and proclaim his feeling of hostility toward his son so that all the world would hear it, but Richard would never reply. At times he would try to quiet his father when he was particularly rancorous, but he would never argue with him or answer back. He betrayed a mobility of disposition that won the sincere admiration of every one conversant with this remarkable relation.

The Illinois supreme ccurt, in its wisdom, adverted to this phase of the case and praised the son for his filial forbearance under strong provocation, and all who are familiar with the case heartily applaud the testimonial from that august body. The bearing of Richard Snell was, indeed, remarkable. Often he was provoked beyond what the ordinary man would set as the limit of patience, but he always held his tongue and temper well in check.

Unfortunately his lawyers could not tell in open court the real reason for the antipathy, because of queer conditions imposed by the laws of Illinois. But now that the case is over and the estate will be divided according to relationship instead of the distribution so malevolently planned by the revengeful eccentric, it is fitting that the cause for the intense hatred be explained.

Mabelle is Blamed.

Intimate associates of Richard Snell were made acquainted confidentially with the remarkable caprice of the parent and with the end of the litigation this confidence is no longer insisted upon. It is now freely admitted that the reputed grandniece, Mabelle Snell McNamara of Kansas City, was the real reason for the old man's hatred of his son, and near-hatred of his daughter-in-law, and her three children. Not until after Col. Snell became cognizant of Mabelle's existence and began lavishing gifts upon her did the attitude towards his blood relations change.

It is not denied that the eccentric colonel was turbulent at times before he met Mabelle, and would storm and fret, but this exhibition was short lived and he would condone for it by extravagant compliments concerning his son and grandsons. But gradually there came a change. Richard ceased to be a son, as the old man told it. Instead he became a devil incarnate trying to rob and kill his parent. And this feeling was accentuated by the failure of the son to reply.

Friends of the family say that the mind of the senile eccentric had become completely poisoned towards his son and grandchildren. While the aged Lothario was hating Richard more and more, he grew more liberal towards Mabelle. He paid her expenses on trips to Europe and other points, gave her a farm in De Witt county, Ill., and city property in Fort Dodge, Iowa, and Kansas City, also gave her immense sums in cash.

Trial in May.

The suit filed by Richard Snell to set aside the deed to the farm given Mabelle is to be called in the May term of the De Witt county circuit court, and from all indications this trial may prove almost as entertaining as that of the will litigation. The remarkable influence of Mabelle over Col. Snell will no doubt be given a thorough exploitation. The lawyers for the son are now preparing for this case, and the outcome will be awaited with intense interest. It was thought by some that Mabelle Snell would try to contest the finding of the supreme court, as it nullifies several rich bequests mentioned in the will. Her attorneys say, however, that she will not take any action but will defend her title to the farm. She will try to prove that this tract was given to her in good faith and that there is no reason why it should be taken away from her.

The fees of the lawyers and the court costs in the Snell litigation will reach an immense figure. It is estimated that the attorneys who defended the will, may be allowed $50,000. The legal representatives of the son will receive as much, if not more. The court costs are estimated to aggregate $12,000.

FIENDISH HUSBAND

Held Wife's Hand on Hot Stove After Beating Her.

Hamilton, Ohio, March 4. — After beating his wife with his fists, Homer Richardson, of Eleventh street, grabbed her by the wrist and held her hand, palm down, on the lid of a red hot stove. The woman's hand was frightfully burned from the finger tips to the wrist. Richardson was arrested by Detective Rubie.

Thinness Is Embarrassing, Unhealthy and Not Natural—Formula Now Used Which Adds From One to Three Pounds a Week.

Thinness Is Embarrassing, Unhealthy and Not Natural—Formula Now Used Which Adds From One to Three a Week.

Every one ought to have some extra flesh on the bony structure of the body, both for the sake of health and self-esteem.

Most thin people are sensitive to the harsh, unfeeling criticisms which are constantly being hurled at them by the more fortunate well-figured persons.

Every one pities a thin, bony horse, but horses don't know it—while thin people are both pitied and ridiculed. It ought not to be so, but it is.

A well rounded figure, be it a man or woman, excites admiration; not only for the figure but for the bright eyes, pink cheeks, red lips, and vigorous carriage which accompany a well-nourished body.

Strength, health, beauty and sound flesh abound, if the blood and nerves get enough nourishment out of the food eaten.

This prescription aids nature; helps absorption, digestion and assimilation; helps distribute the blood and nerve elements which makes sound flesh. Get the ingredients and make it at home, and see how very fast you gain in weight.

In a half pint bottle, obtain three ounces of essence of pepsin, three ounces of syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol, shake and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound, (not cardamom). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before meals and one after meals. Also drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Weigh yourself before beginning.

DANGER OF STARVATION

Peril Which Threatens New York From Floods, Strikes or Blockades.

Storage Room for Week's Food Supply Known to Be Scarce.

New York, March 4.—That starvation would within a week threaten the millions of people on Manhattan Island, if floods, strikes or snow blockades should ever cut off their outside food supply, has been announced by statisticians, who have been making a study of the subject in this city. According to the results of this investigation, New Yorkers can store within the city's limits only rations enough to last the community for eight days at most, if no further food should be forthcoming from the farms outside. While over one billion pounds of meat are found to be consumed each year by New Yorkers, together with a billion and a half of eggs, 748,359,600 quarts of milk and almost five million barrels of flour, storage room for even a week's share of such a gigantic food supply is known to be scarce on this restricted island. With these startling facts in mind, the people of Gotham are today casting about to learn what possible cause could ever cut off their vital connections with the outside world.

Bloodless Bonnets.

Threatening to blight the crop of Easter bonnets that in a few weeks must bud forth on the avenues, 5,000 makers of their straw and braid foundations are talking strike to the horror of the milliners. Unless these artificers of the basic designs of women's headgear come to terms, the creators of the overlaid effects will have to disappoint hundreds of thousands of fair Easter Sunday paraders. In addition to this labor trouble, the milliners are this year facing a growing protest against the trophies of bird butchery with which they have been wont to set off the charms of the most gentle and tender hearted women of this town. Since the Audubon workers here have shown the horrors of this trade in the aigrette and other plumes, that are torn from the bloody backs of dying mother birds, many a woman has refused to have her new church bonnet made a cause for such cruelty. Now that the milliners are able to prepare the discarded plumage of the good old barnyard fowl to ornament the best of bonnets, New Yorkers are hoping that the other relics of barbarism will at last die out here.

Courts Clogged.

Never in the history of this town have the criminal courts been clogged as hopelessly as they are today, with 150 cases blocking the calendar and a jail full of the accused pleading for a hearing. While the men of the district attorney's new staff are scurrying about with shoe string expediting the long and complicated cases left by their predecessors to be tried, the judges sit sedately, and the law's delays seem to paralyze the whole cumbrous machinery of trial. To be even accused of crime is punishable by months of imprisonment in the dreary Tombs, according to the recent results of this system here, and yet no one has yet proposed a way to procure relief from this injustice. More courts must be provided for this metropolis soon, the judges agree or the prisons will overflow with the victims of the present criminal crush.

Pulpit Perils.

Calling this metropolis "the graveyard of ministers," leading laymen as well as members of the clergy are today starting an attempt to improve conditions which they declare menace the life and health of the heads of churches here. That the maddening whirl of the town is felt even in the parish and pulpit, is evidenced by the frequent cases of physical and mental breakdown that are recorded among New York ministers within the last few years. Unresponsiveness in the congregation and unappreciative returns for pastoral labors are counted as the chief causes of disappointment and prostration among the men who take church charges in this city. Unless the attitude of New Yorkers toward their spiritual guides can be changed, it is asserted that soon few ministers can be induced to put their necks in the yoke of church service within Gotham's limits.

Rhino Roars.

Gallons of cough syrup are being poured down the cavernous throat of the baby rhinoceros that for several months has been the pride of the keepers up in the Bronx Park zoo. Pneumonia penetrated the thick hide of the infant rhino a few days ago and bred a series of sneezes and coughs that are causing stampede by man and beast about the curtained cage of the invalid. The zoo doctors declare their patient will recover while some expert care, and everyone in the vicinity is hoping that health or death will soon put a stop to the laryngitic roars of the young monster.

TITLE TO RICH LAND ATTACKED

Now Held By the Astors and Roosevelts in New York.

New York, March 4.—That the right of various members of the Astor and Roosevelt families to hold tittle to almost priceless pieces of property in this city is to be questioned in the supreme court by the heirs of Jacob I. Arden is certain.

Already there have been begun over 350 lawsuits by those heirs to recover what was formerly Arden's estate in Manhattan. He bought it for less than $2,000; today it is estimated to be worth more than $100,000,000.

The fact that the litigation has been begun was disclosed by the death of Mrs. Delia Morris Smith, at the age of 97, at her home, No. 31 East Sixty-first street. She was one of the heirs to the estate of Arden, who was her granduncle. Arden, who fought under Washington during the Revolution, owned a large farm at what is now Twelfth street and University place. He also was the owner of a big tract of land on part of which the new Pennsylvania railroad terminal station has been erected.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company is the chief defendant in the suits that have been begun by Rebecca Macdonald, Arden's grandniece, and others. Two of the heirs, nieces of Mrs. Smith, live at her former home in East Sixty-first street. Other heirs are scattered about the state.

The basis for the claims of the heirs is founded upon the will of Jacob Arden. This, it is alleged, gave his widow only the life use of the property, with the provisions that the estate should be kept intact for Mr. Arden's relatives—brothers and sisters and their descendants—and be partitioned after his death. Contrary to this trust, Mrs. Jacob Arden is charged with having mortgaged a share of the property and sold other parts of it for a fraction of what it was really worth. The title of the present owners will be attacked for this alleged violation of the will.

When Jacob Arden bought this property in 1799, many of New York's present thoroughfares were cow paths. Some of his other property is located at Nyack-on-the-Hudson, where he himself was trapped by British soldiers during the war of the colonies against England. For trying to destroy secret dispatches Arden was locked in his own cellar and the house set on fire by the British.

Luckily for him, his negro servant Sam, was hidden in a closet. Same came out as the soldiers rode away and released his master before the fire burned the house. For this rescue Arden vowed that his negro servant would live an easy life thereafter.

"When Mr. Arden died," Miss Bradley, his grandniece, of No. 31 East Sixty-first street, said, "he willed that the negro, Sam, should be buried in the same plot with him. Although it is not generally known, their bodies lie in a vault at this day at Twelfth street ,near University place.

IN THE DAY'S WORK AT WASHINGTON

Fog Signals for Lakes.

Washington, March 4.—Submarine bell signals to warn vessels from dangerous points during the prevalence of fog are to be established under the supervision and direction of the light board along the line of the United States and in the waters of the Great Lakes, if a bill reported from the senate committee on commerce is enacted into law. It was said in the committee that practically all of the first-class battleships of the United States and many ocean liners were now equipped with apparatus which enables them to determine their approximate location by receiving from under the water these bell signals sent from light vessels, buoys and shore stations.

Would Guard Wireless.

Officials of the navy department and of the department of commerce and labor believe amateur wireless telegraph and telephone operators may be controlled by legislation so that it will be "unhealthy" for them to interfere with wireless messages dispatched to and from vessels at sea. The subject has been taken up by the senate committee on commerce and the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries.

Appropriation Bill Reported.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, carrying $33,895,765, has been reported to the house. The bill is a reduction of $584,124 from the estimates submitted by the various departments, and a decrease of $549,754 from like appropriations for the current fiscal year. There are 14,595 salaries provided for in the bill, or 112 less than for the current year.

Knock Out the Flies.

A concerted, country-wide attack is to be made on the house fly this year, according to Chief Entomologist Howard, who testified before a house committee. When spring begins, hundreds of scientists, aided by laborers, drugs and chemicals and mechanical "killers," will try to drive the household pest out of existence. Dr. Howard says the campaign will be opened in the country districts and the department will issue a farmers' bulletin giving advice as to the ills the flies are responsible for and how to eradicate them.

Must Not Lower Lake Level.

Secretary of War Dickinson has refused to grant the request of the sanitary district of Chicago for permission to connect the Calumet river with the drainage canal, because of its injurious effect upon lake navigation. The commission is now wtaking 4,166 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan into the drainage canal and the new project would involve increasing that consumption to 10,000 feet per second, thereby lowering the level of Lakes Michigan and Huron six inches. The secretary says the matter is of sufficient importance to demand consideration by congress, the consent of which body must be sought before he will give his approval.

Saved a Soldier's Life.

Facing death from shot and shell in the Civil war was more agreeable to J. A. Stone, of Kemp, Tex., than facing it from what doctors said was consumption. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough, that stuck to me in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. I now weigh 178 pounds." For Coughs, Colds La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough and lung trouble, it's supreme. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

STEER BOATS FROM LAND

Oklahoma Young Men Have Invented a New Wireless System.

Now Being Exhibited Before Officials of the War Department.

Mutual, Okla., March 4.—Lee and Ray Clarke, young men living near Mutual, have invented an electrical apparatus which is now being exhibited before officials of the war department at Washington, which makes possible private communication by wireless telegraph and enables the operator to propel, guide and control any boat, carriage or other vehicle driven by electricity, steam or gasoline. The system is known as the "Wireless Selection," and the inventors say it is destined to become as useful and probably far more wonderful than the wireless telegraph system.

Its Messages Are Private.

Under the Marconi system of wireless messages can be heard by anyone with the proper instruments for receiving the waves, but with the Clark wireless the operator can select his receiver. He calls up any instrument desired and it records his message automatically, rendering the communication as private in nature as under the present telephone system, where the operator calls a certain number by means of certain wire connection. This is true also in the operation of any machine run by electricity, steam or gasoline. By this same selective power one or any number of machines can be operated, in any direction or at any speed, at will.

To demonstrate the powers of their machine the Clarks constructed in a little shop on their farm two small boats, driven by propellers and guided by rudders. These boats were fitted out with electric lights, placed in a lake about a quarter of a mile away, but in view of the operators, and from that distance they were guided with ease in any direction desired. The electric lights were lighted and extinguished at will, the demonstration being made by moonlight.

A Farm Wagon Run by It.

A heavy farm wagon was fitted out with the new appliance and the Clarks sat in their room and guided the wagon with the same precision as a man's hands are guided by the forces of his mind. An automobile was similarly handled, and many other demonstrations of like nature were made, thoroughly establishing the success of the invention.

Aside from actual demonstrations made by the Clarks at their farm they claim to be able to send out any given number of torpedo boats and operate them at will. These boats can be made to maneuver far out at sea and brought back one at a time or in any number desired. War balloons, airships and all other like craft can be governed in like manner. Distance will not serve to diminish the power or efficient operation of the machine any more than in wireless telegraphy.

Friends Furnish the Money.

A few weeks ago several friends of the Clarks were invited to the Clark farm to see the invention demonstrated. Responding to the invitation, several Mutual residents spent the greater part of a day observing the workings of the new invention, the patent for which had been applied for at that time, that being their first public exhibition. Responsible men of Mutual returned that night declaring that the invention was a perfect success. Great interest was manifest and for several days thereafter the Clark farm was a Mecca for hundreds of persons. A company had been organized here to provide the young men with funds. Then they bundled up their machines and went to Washington where demonstrations are to be given before government officials.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

RINK TALK HEARD AGAIN

New Building May Be Erected By Duluth Curling Club.

Warm Weather Brings the Season to an Abrupt Close.

Strenuous efforts will be made from now on by the members of the Duluth Curling club for a new rink to be ready for use when the season begins next winter.

The season this year may be finisned at the rink of the Western Curling club. The ice at the local rink has been ruined as a result of the recent warm weather and the curlers may be forced to finish their events on the ice of the West Duluth rink.

As the local rink is built high up on props, the wind and warmth by the sun creep underneath and play havoc with the ice.

At West Duluth the rink is built upon the ground and the ice is in fine condition, while at the Duluth club there is from one-fourth to one-half an inch of water.

Last year the season closed at the uptown rink on or about the first of March. At West Duluth the Scots continued to play the game until nearly the end of the same month.

Where the new rink will be erected is as yet unknown. All the members know is that a new home must be built, and the sooner the funds are raised and the building started the better for the game at this end of the city.

A meeting will be called soon and the matter again taken up.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE)

Here is a good one that was put over on that wise old eagle of the baseball world, Charles Comiskey.

Comiskey believed that John Schmirler, the tall, good looking boy who performed for the White Sox the latter part of last season, was a right-handed twirler. The discovery was made at Ogden, Utah.

Commy or Hugh Duffy, the new manager of the Sox, had until the warmup at Ogden, believed that the Wausau boy was a lad who pitched from the north side of the diamond.

The discovery necessitated the shifting of the Schmirler man from the squad he was with, as Commy has a special reason for wanting some of the southpaws in the squad that he placed Schmirler in, after the discovery.

Here is a case in point. A promising recruit signed and the wisest man in baseball did not even know that he was a lefthander.

When young men going up the baseball ladder hold out and their requests are not granted, they are exceedingly liable to pout and declare they will join the independents or outlaws.

They make a dreadful mistake when they carry such a threat into execution. Take the case of Schmirler. He is as promising as the average recruit that is drafted by a big league team. He was simply taken because some scout informed the Old Roman that the youngster looked good.

Comiskey never took the trouble to inquire further of the recruit. He has over thirty recruits in his squad. He is building a new baseball plant. He is one of the big moguls in the American league, and, then besides, Comiskey is one of the men who enjoy life.

So when a recruit gets to thinking of his importance, of the worry and anguish he is causing when he refuses to sign his contract, he had better think long and seriously on the case of Schmirler.

Richard Schell returned from Chicago yesterday. While in that splendid city of progress and industry, if not beauty and civic sweetness, Mr. Schell saw Battling Nelson, "the only man who lost a championship standing up."

There were 1,000 persons who stood outside the theater the night Richard saw the Battler. We hasten to explain—it was not because, forsooth, the people did not care to go in and see the man who had just been deposed from the championship; far be it from such, as Mr. Dick Warner would say; it was because these people could not crowd into the sardine box.

"And when he made his speech," said Mr. Schell, "the house broke into pandemonium."

Mr. Schell said he was positive that it was a little speech, for the Battler has been in the habit in the past, of getting away with long ones.

The Battling one really wants to fight again, thinks Mr. Schell. He will wager $5,000 against $1,000, that the Wolgast wild cat cannot put him out in twenty rounds. Furthermore, he will wager $1,000 against $5,000 that he can put the Wolgast person out in that length of time.

Bat will bet his money any way across the board, according to his statement, and in addition to this, will pay the German good money to get into the ring.

Is there any other beaten champion the public would pay the least attention to, when he began shouting revengeful shouts of coming back? There is not.

Lee Baker and Dave Smith fought two rounds in a New York state barn in the dark. Whether the Standard Oil trust was to blame, or whether the promoters of the scrap were just naturally careless and forgot to bring enough oil, the fact remains that the oil in the lamps burned out ofter the thirtieth round had been fought. The last two rounds were battled in the dark.

Neither man could see his finish—or the other fellow's finish.

In the National league they are touting Cincinnati to a place at the first division. They have done that early every season for a long, long and sad time past. The Germans are a very credulous race.

It is a cinch that wee Willie Keller will not be without a job, if he cares to get into the game the present season. His brains and knowledge will make him a very valuable asset for any manager. If he does not care to play baseball, he has those flats, you know.

Since John L. Sullivan has sailed for England, the general air of belligerency has somewhat cleared.

DICK SCHELL CHALLENGES

Ready to Post $1,000 That Dingle Capitol Is Unbeatable.

Yesterday Dick Schell, owner of the Dingle Capitol, conceded to be one of the very fastest motor boats in the Northwest, issued a formal challenge to race any boat in the world of six cylinder equipment for $1,000 a side, the money to be posted in reliable hands when the challenge is accepted.

It is now known that several of the large motor boat manufacturing companies of the country will send a number of speedy boats here this summer. Believing that the Dingle Capitol is as fast as any boat in the world with its cylinder capacity, Mr. Schell has issued the challenge which will stand for any boat that may be brought to the Head of the Lakes.

It is expected that some very good races will be arranged here the coming summer. Yesterday the boat club officials who have been looking after the motor boat interests of the club, received a letter from one of the New England motor boat manufacturers, inquiring as to the situation, and stating that in the event of an open race here the company would send to Duluth a new boat that is under construction. Four other manufacturing concerns have already been heard from, so that the open race is assured of a list of classy starters.

MILLER THROWS ADAMSON.

St. Paul, Minn., March 4.—Young Miller of St. Paul, who claims the welterweight wrestling championship, last night defeated Adamson of Chicago, middleweight, in two straight falls. Miller won the first fall in fifty-three minutes with a toe hold and scissors and the second fall in twenty-eight minutes with a scissors on the body and chancery on the head.

PRAISE FOR McGORTY

English Fight Critics Believe Oshkosh Boy Is Coming Champion.

Wisconsin Boy Has Put Away Some Good Scrappers in England.

A special news cable to the United States from England states that Eddie McGoorty, the Oshkosh, Wis., boy, who is very well known in this city through several fights here, is picked as the coming middleweight champion of the world.

McGoorty's victories have been very impressive on the other side of the water. He has met several of the best heavyweights of England, defeating Curran and Sergeant Sunshine, considered two of the best heavies on the other side of the water.

English critics believe that Eddie will be qualified to meet Billy Papke or Tom Thomas, the crack English middleweight champion, within a year, and if the Oshkosh boy continues to improve in the interim, he will stand a very excellent chance of beating both of these men.

McGoorty trained and fought here and made a number of friends among people who do not generally look upon pugilists as desirable acquaintances. He is quiet and unassuming and is one of the last boys in the world that any one would imagine to be a professional pugilist. He is the new type of fighter, expressed in the type of Jimmy Britt, Packey McFarland and James J. Corbett. The little man from Oshkosh is one of the very cleverest boxers in the ring today. It is said that he is developing strength and also a punch, which should make him one of the most dangerous men in the squared circle.

OUTLAW LEAGUE PLANNED IN EAST

New Baseball Organization Will Be Opened to Colored Players.

Boston, Mass., March 4.—The virtual completion of plans for a new baseball league, to embrace playing clubs in Boston, Providence, Brooklyn, Newark, Paterson and Trenton, N. J., Philadelphia and Baltimore and operating under holding company styled "United States Baseball League association, incorporated," was announced here last night.

The league has already signed over 100 players. It will open its season on May 1.

Being outside the National agreement, the league will open tie gates to colored players, three of whom have been signed for each team. Dr. G. H. A. Lawson of Wilmington, Del., is president of the association.

MAY OPPOSE GUARANTEE

"Minny" League Magnates Expected to Disagree at Coming Meeting.

Duluth and Superior Want $50 a Game Instead of $35.

There may be a warm contest at the coming meeting of the Minny league magnates over the attendance guarantee. Squalls are seen approaching on the baseball sea.

Duluth and Superior are in favor of the $50 attendance guarantee, which was voted on at the last meeting, but which was not in effect last season. Now the representatives of Wausau, Eau Claire and La Crosse are yelling that the enforcement of the $50 attendance guarantee would work a hardship to the smaller towns of the league.

It has been suggested that the schedule be arranged so that more games be played at Duluth and Superior, where the attendance is the largest of the league. A proposition will also come up, it is understood, where the mileage will be pooled, in the event that the little town teams are asked to travel more than the two Head of the Lakes teams.

M. J. Bellows will succeed F. J. Bryan as representative of the Wausau club and J. M. Norton will be the representative of the Rochester team. Mr. Bellows is a prominent hotel keeper of Wausau. Dr. C. H. Cremer, who heads the Red Wing club, is a well-known supporter of baseball.

It is reported today that John Wagner, who played third base on Duke O'Dea's Brandon team, will play the coming season in Superior. It is also reported that Frankie McGraw will be seen in a Superior uniform.

BOWLING SCORES

Last night in the City league bowling games the Big Duluths took two games out of three from the Majestics. The winning team aggregated 2,818 pins in the three games, while in the last game the Majestics scored 990 pins. Ferguson made the highest score of the evening in the third game with 227, while Brown secured the high average of 200.

The score in detail:

It was announced last night that the Capitol City Bowling club of St. Paul and the Arcades of Minneapolis would send bowling teams here some time within three or four weeks. The St. Paul teams will play teams selected from the City and Commercial Bowling leagues.

ORDEMANN AND PERSON

Heavyweights Matched for Finish Match at Lyceum Next Week.

Minneapolis Blacksmith Conceded One of the Three Great Wrestlers.

Henry Ordemann of Minneapolis, the young Norwegian blacksmith, whom many select as the successor to Frank Gotch as the greatest wrestler in the world, will meet Chris Person, Northwestern heavyweight champion, at the Lyceum theater next Thursday evening.

The match will be to a finish and will decide definitely the supremacy of the two men, for Ordemann and Person have never met, and the question of supremacy between the two has been a much disputed one for the past year.

In his wrestling career Ordemann has met the greatest men in the mat game. One of his greatest achievements was to hold the champion Pole to an hour and thirty-four minutes before a fall was secured. Zbyszko pronounced Ordemann the greatest man, next to Gotch, whom he has met in this country.

In addition to his great showing with the Pole, Ordemann has defeated Raoul de Rouen, Yankee Rogers, Charley Olson, Dr. Roller, Emil Klank and all the local wrestlers around Minneapolis.

Ordemann is just a young man and during the present year has just come into his own. He is fast and wonderfully strong and is one of the three great wrestlers in the world today. Ordemann has long wanted an opportunity to meet Person and at last Chris has consented to meet the big Minneapolis heavyweight.

The holding of the match at the Lyceum means that women will be admitted to the match. When the Pole wrestled Person there were a number of women present and they seemed to enjoy the contest.

The contest will be to a finish and will be for the Western heavyweight championship.

STAGG OFFERS SUGGESTIONS

Chicago Coach Would Make Many Changes in Football Rules.

Fayetteville, Ark., March 4.—Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago, who started yesterday to work with the University of Arkansas football squad, announced suggestions to be made in the game as follows: To keep seven men on the line of scrimmage, allowing a shifting of men on line and in back field in any formation; to allow the first man receiving the ball from center to run with it; to allow the forward pass over any part of the line of scrimmage; to eliminate the flying tackles; ends, when going down on punts, not to be body-checked; prohibiting in defense use of whole body or striking with shoulder; ball always to be in play when forward pass is made; to be free ball when touched by any one while in the air, and if it touches the ground before being touched by any player, it is free ball after being touched by defending side.

SAILOR JACK WILLING.

Marine Ready to Meet Mose Brown for Side Bet.

Yesterday Sailor Jack announced his willingness to meet Mose Brown, the welterweight wrestler of Virginia, for a side bet and winner-take-all purse. The Brown person has never been heard of in these parts, though he may be a good man.

The Shepperd-Sailor Jack match has been arranged and will be wrestled some time the present month before the Duluth Athletic club. The decisive victory of Young Miller last night at St. Paul, clears his title for the welterweight championship and makes Sailor Jack all the more anxious to meet the little St. Paul wonder for the title.

NO CHANGES IN THE LEADERS

Rochester Five Goes Into Second Place at Detroit Tournament.

Detroit, Mich., March 4.—The leaders in the three events of the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress remained unchanged as the result of yesterday's onslaught on the pins. New faces appeared, however in second place in the five-men teams and singles. The bowlers are keeping up excellent work and it is almost certain all former records will be broken during the meet.

The Libertys of Rochester, N. Y., proved best of the first squad in the five-men event, rolling 2,789, 14 pins below the 2,803 of the leading Colonials of Madison, Wis. Their score was good to nose out the Elks No. 31 from second place by two pins. Larry Sutton, individual champion of 1909, was the best with 181, 229 and 177. The team had hard luck, running into many splits and railroads.

The Godards of Saginaw, Mich., finished second in their squad and went into tenth place temporarily. The Royal Canadian five of Toronto was third with 2,632.

The tournament leaders in the two-men events are: Mouat-Johnson, Detroit, 1,160; Meyer-Smart, Cleveland, 1,149; Patterson-Funcke, Belleville, 1,148; Scherer-Huster, Erie, Pa., 1,145; Smalley-Bacon, Jackson, Mich., 1,130; Maeder-Ebner, Pittsburg, 1,127; Sage-Zimmerman, Chicago, 1,117; Lawrence-Smith, Detroit, 1,116; Gruber-Wahl, Cleveland, 1,113; Gruver-Gerloski, Grand Rapids, Mich., 1,112; Wirthling-Young, Cincinnati, 1,112; Gibson-Mitchell, Winnipeg, Man., 1,112.

Nationals Buy Park.

Washington, March 4.—The Washington baseball club of the American league yesterday purchased from the Totten estate the ball park it has used for some years. It is said the price was about $177,000. For the season of 1911 it is said new buildings will be erected on the grounds.

DULUTH BOYS WIN.

Boys' Department Y. M. C. A. Basket Ball Team Defeats Superior.

At the Carpenter gymnasium at Superior last night, the boys' department basket ball team of Duluth, defeated the Superior team by the score of 18 to 16.

At theend of the second half the score was 16 to 16. An extra five minutes was played, Simon, the Duluth center, throwing the basket that brought victory to the Duluth team.

In addition to his winning the game, Young Simon threw four baskets from the field and was in the game every minute of the time. The game was rough, but close and exciting at all times, Lebargo was the star of the Carpenter quint.

The lineup:

Duluth	Position	Carpenter
Huyck	f	Christianson
Johnson	f	Murphy
Simon	c	Hanson
Hallebeck	g	Lebargo
Maske	g	Holman

Goals from field, Duluth: Huyck 2; Simon 4; Hallenbeck 1; Superior: Murphy 2; Hanson 2; Lebargo 3; goals from fouls: Duluth, Maske 4; Superior: Lebargo 2.

Hockey Game Canceled.

The deciding championship hockey game between the Big Duluths and Adams has been indefinitely postponed, owing to the weather conditions. Until the weather becomes more settled no attempt will be made to play the third and deciding past-season game between the two teams.

E. P. HEARNE'S DAUGHTER SECURES HER DIVORCE.

New York, March 4.—Annie Theresa Hearne Heise, a daughter of Edwin P. Hearne, one of the founders of the United States Steel corporation, and a niece of Frank J. Hearne, one time president of the Colorado Coal, Fuel & Iron company, obtained a divorce yesterday from her husband, Rudolph John Heise, with whom she eloped against her parents' will eight years ago. She will resume her maiden name and is given the custody of her four children. Mrs. Heise accused her husband of squandering her fortune and of finally running away with a cloak model.

S.S.S. BEST TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

There is no way to cure Catarrh except to purify the blood, and thus do away with the cause. The symptoms may be benefited by the use of washes, inhalations, sprays, medicated tobaccos, etc., and through the use of such treatment catarrh sufferers receive temporary relief and comfort. External and local measures however cannot have any effect on the blood, and therefore their use alone is of no real curative value. Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease, and comes as the result of catarrhal matter and other impurities in the circulation. These morbid matters in the blood cause an inflammatory and irritated condition of the mucous membrane or tissue lining of the cavities of the body, producing an unhealthy secretion, ringing noises in the ears, stuffy feeling in the head and nose, headaches, hoarseness, bronchial affections, watery eyes, etc. S. S. S. is the best treatment for Catarrh because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. This medicine removes every particle of the catarrhal impurity from the circulation, making this vital fluid pure, fresh and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, because they are nourished with pure, health-giving blood, every symptom disappears, and soon S. S. S. produces a perfect cure. S. S. S. does not contain any habit-forming drugs, which really never can cure Catarrh, but often ruin the health. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is perhaps the most valuable private citizen in the workers for women's suffrage," said Mrs. Florence Kelley this morning at the Spalding. "She does things like this, for instance: One morning she woke up at 2 o'clock with a start and decided the thing most necessary to be done at that particular moment was to secure the Hippodrome, to be turned over to the striking shirtwaist girls from 1 o'clock in the afternoon to 7 in the evening, or some such hours, on condition that they listen for one hour to an address on suffrage by the Rev. Anna Shaw. Although the idea came to her at 2 a. m., and although Mrs. Belmont is an indefatigable worker, she wouldn't let herself get up until 4. At that hour she telephoned the manager of the Hippodrome. He wasn't up, call him. She telephoned the different labor unions. She telephoned the newspapers. What was the result? The shirtwaist strike became popular. Suffrage became popular. Mrs. Belmont was popular, and it was a great impetus to the interest in the movement. She wants no reward for her labors. She spends money like water. She doesn't want an office and she belongs to a little society for suffrage that none of us know about. She says it has no officers, but that she's the hello girl and does the work.

"But it isn't with such enthusiasm that most of the older workers have attained their convictions," said Mrs. Kelley, whose principal work in the world is the National Consumers' league. "But when you have worked for twenty years to mould public opinion against such crimes as child labor, sweating conditions, long hours for women and children, and have been told that you don't control votes and why worry yourselves and officials year after year with this useless procedure, when you have waited and worked and only after twelve years there is an opportunity to test a bad supreme court decision, the necessity for votes for women is borne in on you in a very real way."

But Mrs. Kelley talks little of suffrage and much of the Consumers' league. She has statistics at her tongue's end relating to every move of the Consumers' league since the City league was organized in New York, twenty years ago. She knows supreme court decisions, she knows state laws; she knows proposed legislation. She fairly dazzles one with the array of hard, unrelenting facts that she can present.

"When a branch of the league was organized in Massachusetts," said Mrs. Kelley, "and the plans and hopes were discussed, one man said, 'I want to tell you, so that you may not be too greatly disappointed, that you have mapped out a hundred years' work.' And one of the Boston women replied, 'Well, then, there isn't a minute to lose, is there,' and she took the night train for home and started at work. We have public opinion with us. We have a nation-wide organization, and there is always enough hay in front of the donkey's nose to lead him on one more step, and so we have encouragement enough to lead us on.

"The college girl in our public work is a factor that can in no way be left unconsidered. When I went to college we had a little economics, a little philosophy, a little logic, taught by a little woolly-headed failure of a minister, who wrote four little books that you couldn't tell apart if you tore the covers off, and we came forth from college feeling that we did our necessary work if we built more colleges for more prosperous girls. How different from the present generation! There is one young woman working in the league with us who graduated from college, and when her family went to Europe she went into New York laundries to work, and she worked in thirteen and learned actual conditions, and then used her college training to present that report of conditions so that it will command attention. There is your present generation. Another college graduate went into silk factories and worked in order to present her report at first hand and bring about better conditions. There is coming into our ranks just such women who are really trained in economics by their colleges."

Mrs. Kelley has been secretary of the National Consumers' league for ten years since its organization. She is in Duluth for the first time and will speak this evening at the Commercial club.

Briefly stated, the aim of the National Consumers' league is to organize an effective demand for goods made under right conditions. As a means to this end it endeavors:

1. To investigate existing conditions of production, and publish the results of its investigations.

2. To guarantee to the public goods found to have been made under conditions satisfactory to it, by attaching to them its label.

3. To appeal to the conscience of the purchasers as an offset to the continual appeal of advertisers to the credulity and cupidity of the public.

4. To co-operate with and encourage in every legitimate way those employers whose work is done under humane and enlightened conditions.

5. To procure further legislation for the protection of purchasers and employes.

6. To co-operate with the officials whose duty it is to investigate the conditions of production and distribution, or to enforce laws and ordinances dealing with these conditions.

7. To form organizations of purchasers for the purposes above set forth.

The subject of Mrs. Kelley's lecture this evening will be "Ten Years' Program of the Consumers' League." Her lecture will be at 8 o'clock and will be free. Men and women are invited to attend. Mrs. Kelley has come to Duluth under the auspices of the women's council and the lecture will be under the auspices of that organization and the Commercial club.

Mrs. Kelley is in great demand as a speaker and will go from Duluth to the Twin Cities to address organizations there and will later go to Madison. She left New York in February on the present lecture tour.

WED IN EAST.

Miss Lapham Becomes Bride of Marshall Shores.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Shores of Tacoma, Wash., are in Duluth after a six weeks' tour of Eastern cities, and are guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Walker of 2103 East First street.

While in Buffalo they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Lapham, 149 Highland avenue, who have issued cards announcing the marriage of their daughter Maude to Marshall Fairchild Shores, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Shores. Mr. Shores and his bride will make their home in the West. Mr. Lapham is comptroller for the Lackawanna Steel company.

MEETINGS OF LAYMEN

A. V. Snell, Missionary Worker, Will Interest Duluth Business Men.

A. V. Snell, whohas been conducting meetings of the laymen's missionary movement through cities of the Southwest, Kansas City, Witchita, and Denver, is in the city. In all of these cities Mr. Snell says the meetings have been very successful.

Mr. Snell is looking over the situation and he will return to Duluth next month. Meetings will be conducted here on April 22, 23 and 24. On the evening of April 22 the banquet will be held, and it is expected that 1,000 men will sit down at the board. Kansas City had 1,850 at the banquet, according to Mr. Snell, and he believes Duluth will have over 1,000 citizens at the opening meeting.

Mr. Snell says that over 1,200 business men marched through the streets of Kansas City. The movement is interdenominational, and it is expected all the Duluth churches will join in the movement.

The object of the meetings is the uniting of business men in religious meetings and work. Local and national speakers will address the convention.

GOOD GAME EXPECTED.

A great indoor baseball game is looked for Saturday night, when Zenith council, which is the U. C. T. lodge of this city, will pit its team against the team of the Superior council. A real and up-to-date baseball game is looked for. A dance will follow the game.

In the recent initiation of the Zenith council there have been a number of baseball players taken into the fold of the lodge. These players will play in the game Saturday night and it is expected that they will make a good showing.

Superior is said to have a very good team and a close and interesting game should result.

INDIAN CHIEFS BLEW OUT THE GAS IN WASHINGTON

Two Delegates From Chippewa Tribe Found Dead in Bed.

Window Closed and Gas Was Flowing From Open Jet.

Washington, March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Bay-Bum-Mah-Ji-Wa-Skung, who signed the treaty of 1866 between the Chippewa Indians and the United States, and second oldest chief of the tribe, and Chief A-Ni-Wuy-Wak-Ausk, of the same tribe, were found dead this morning in a room at the Halladay house here.

Gas was flowing from an open jet, and both windows and door were closed.

The two chiefs arrived in Washington yesterday from Orr, Minn., with Chiefs Day-Bwa-Wun-Dung, and Mah-Chi-Skung and P. N. Pequette, an Indian missionary, who came as interpreter for the party.

Reaching Washington yesterday morning, they went immediately to the capitol to see Senator Clapp. The senator, however, was busy, and made an appointment with them for this morning.

The Indian chiefs and Mr. Pequette passed through Duluth Tuesday of this week on their way to Washington. They said they were going to protest to the president against the high cost of living and also to ask the commissioner of Indian affairs for money which they said their tribe should receive for lands.

The chiefs came from the Net Lake reservation near Orr. At the St. Louis hotel, where they were quartered while in Duluth, they appeared to be well up on modern inventions, but they were evidently ignorant of the uses of gas.

MUNICIPAL COURT GRIST

Oscar Brussell Pays $50 and Costs for Illegally Selling "Digesto."

Lumberjack Complains of Old Brass Watch Game Being Worked.

Oscar Brussell, arrested recently for conducting a blind pig at Munger, a station on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad above Proctor, entered a plea of guilty in police court and was sentenced to a fine of $50 and costs or sixty days in the county jail. He paid his fine.

The officers found numerous bottles of "Digesto" lying about his place. They had received reports of men getting drunk in the locality and started an investigation.

It was also claimed that after they got loaded on "Digsto" the tipplers went into the D., M. & N passenger station, erected within the last year, and refused to allow any one to enter to wait for a train. They tried it once too often, telling the officers who were on their trail that they were lords of all they surveyed. The deputies swept the floor with them and arrested Brussell for selling liquor without a license.

With the first of the lumberjacks coming in after the spring break-up, which will soon be general in the lumber camps, the police are beginning to get complaints of old swindle games being worked on the men coming down with fat rolls in their pockets. The first to be heard from is the selling of a brass watch for a good price on the representation that it is a valuable timepiece. Sam Bradley told the detectives that he had paid $8.25 for what he thought was a 21-jewel movement in a 20-year warranted hunting case. He claimed to have purchased it from Leon Solomon of 512 West Superior street. It was a cheap brass affair, according to the police, and high at $2. Another brass watch deal was also reported.

* * *

Thomas O'Brien, arrested Wednesday night with two grips packed full of assorted dry goods and novelties in his possession, entered a plea of guilty in police court this morning to vagrancy and was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 or spend fifty days in the county jail. He didn't have the cash. O'Brien is on parole from the district court, having been arrested before for stealing flour from the Universal Milling company, it is said. It is probable that he will be sent away on the old charge on the grounds that he has violated his parole.

* * *

May Davis, arrested last week in the rooming house at Sixth avenue west and Superior street conducted by Ed Douglas, was found guilty in police court yesterday of being an immoral woman. The charge of selling liquor without a license, of which Douglas was convicted, was dismissed as to her, after which she was tried on the statutory charge. She was fined $75 and costs, which was paid.

* * *

Malcolm Stewart, brought back from Montana by Sheriff Bates to answer a charge of embezzling $1,700 from the Universal Milling company, was arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon. He asked for an examination, which was set for March 10 at 10 o'clock.

* * *

Peter Miller was arrested yesterday noon on the charge of being drunk before he had been out of the county jail a day after serving two months. He begged so hard to be given his freedom this morning that the court let him go. He promised to be good for ever so long.

PRIMUS BUTTER

Butter is the most important relish of the meal. It gives the appetizing taste to meats, vegetables, and, often dessert. Primus Butter inspires appetite, and thus less is required for food enjoyment and nutrition. It is the butter for the fastidious taste as well as the economical purse. There is more real butter to the pound—the water is worked—is squeezed out.

If you want the best, get Primus Butter.

HOW GOOD HOUSEKEEPERS ARRANGE SATURDAY WORK

All Ordering of Food is Done on the Last Day of the Week.

Staurday to a careful housekeeper is unique in a weekly calendar if she has a regular routine, for she will find that on the last day of the week there are many duties to finish, so the new week may begin with nothing undone. For instance, even in the matter of ordering the daily meals more details are necessary on Saturday. Then, too, a point should be made of using all the little left-over dishes. Cooked food is not likely to keep over Sunday until Monday and, even if it would, the probabilities are that Sunday's cooking will have its own "left-overs" to be eaten on Monday. Therefore, unless small portions are converted into appetizing and attractive relishes for luncheon, and even for dinner on Saturday, there will be a waste of material and corresponding swelling of the weekly accounts.

In the hands of an intelligent cook such relishes may be made palatable and will furnish variety in the weekly menu.

As to the routine for Saturday, a housewife should give her orders after inspecting the refrigerator and pantry with the cook.

All ordering for Sunday should be done on Saturday, so for two days the housekeeper need not again enter her kitchen. Nothing should be bought on Sunday, and so there is no occasion for Sunday conferences with the cook.

The menu for each meal may be decided upon before marketing on Saturday and all arranged until after breakfast on Monday. A housekeeper who follows this system insures a rest for herself as well as for the cook.

Fresh linen should be put on the beds Saturday morning to save extra work of changing on Sunday. For the Sabath should be made easy for the maids, as well as employers. Cleaning the rooms that need refreshing must not be delayed until Sunday, but done on Saturday, that none may be required on Sunday where the household staff is limited.

A housekeeper who tries to lighten the duties of her cook and maids on Sunday finds that to send breakfast trays to the room instead of waiting for the family to assemble in the dining room that morning enables the waitress to get through earlier, as this saves laying the table.

BEEF, PORK, LAMB, POULTRY

The reputation of this concern for handling the highest grade meats is further emphasized by the extreme moderateness of prices.

No matter how the market runs we sell all goods in our line at WAY DOOWN prices.

THE BEST ON THE MARKET, "HIAWATHA."

BUY QUALITY

This is the time of the year when the shelf in your cellar begins to look empty and you must go to your grocer for canned fruits, jellies, etc. To get the best values for your money you should buy the best grade of canned goods he has. They cost more, but are worth it every time. Cheap goods cost less, but are seldom worth what they cost, and are often dangerous, besides.

Here are a few points about the HIAWATHA Brand which we carry. The fruit is the best that money can buy. Every can is enameled inside to prevent the fruit from coming in contact with the tin; no solder is used in closing the cans, and lastly, we guarantee every can to be satisfactory, or your money back.

HELD SERVICES IN WOODSHED

Rev. D. G. Cole Finds Door of Church Locked Against Him.

In an interview regarding what he proposed to do after having a church locked against him by an opposing faction, Rev. D. G. Cole said today: "I made arrangements to make a peaceful and lawful entry into the church last night to conduct devotional service, as is our custom on Thursday evenings, but was informed that Mr. Brown had put a padlock on the outside of the door. A few of the members of the Salter club, a club for boys and girls, went with me, and we held a short service in a small addition to the main building, where the fuel is kept. Matches were struck in order to assist us.

"After dismissal, a meeting was held at which the advisability of forming a Peoples' church was considered. It was unanimously agreed to go ahead and pledges were taken. The first services will be held next Sunday at a place to be announced later.

"The people are with me and we will come out all right. I shall take the matter to the courts and endeavor to obtain justice, without resorting to any more attempts to get my rights by opposing unfair people."

CREAMERY AND OPEN MARKET

West Duluth Commercial Club Interested in Farmers' Projects.

Will West Duluth be a distributing center for the Producers' Co-operative Market association of Duluth?

This question and that of the proposed creamery for West Duluth, will probably be the main themes under discussion at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club this evening.

It is understood that the promoters of the market association are entertaining plans to make their headquarters at West Duluth, and that on the city lots at Ramsey street and the Northern Pacific right-of-way a number of buildings will be erected for this purpose.

West Duluth, it is understood, would be the most favorable spot in the city for such a distributing center. Even without the completion of the cutoff to the Morris Thompson road, this section of the city is quite easily accessible to the farmers back of the Duluth hills, who may be induced to bring their produce to West Duluth to sell in the public market.

The creamery proposition at West Duluth is again being agitated. It is proposed to establish a co-operative creamery at West Duluth, which would distribute milk at the restaurants and homes, the surplus to be used in butter making. This plan it is said is meeting with much favor and means a large saving both to the farmer and the consumer.

The concern may be a stock company in which West Duluth business men will have an interest in common with the farmers near Adolph and vicinity. This plan was indorsed at a meeting of the Adolph Farmers' club last Sunday.

With the Curlers.

At the West Duluth curling rink last evening, three games were played all in the Burns event. Ittis defeated Holland, 17 to 3; Miller bested Zauft, 17 to 11; and Olson took Wade into camp by a score of 20 to 7. Tonight there will be games played in each of the Hendrickson, Bagley and Burns events. In the Hendrickson affair, Wade and Clark will clash for a chance at the semi-finals; in the Bagley, Rockwell will meet Keyes; and in the Burns event, Macauley will play Miller and Evered will meet Ittis.

GRANDSONS PALLBEARERS.

Funeral of James P. Shannon Will Be Held From Residence.

With six of his grandsons as pallbearers, the funeral of James P. Shannon, 78 years old, who died yesterday, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the family residence, with Rev. A. J. Hoag officiating and interment at Oneota cemetery.

The grandsons who will act as pallbearers are Nelson Earl and Melville Leader and Clarence, James and Allen Brouse. Mr. Shannon formerly lived in Kingston, Ont., and was one of a family of fourteen children. His father served in the revolution on the American side.

Besides his wife he is survived by the following children: Mrs. George W. Leader, 605 South Sixty-eighth avenue west; Mrs. Archie Boyd, 301 South Seventy-first avenue west; Mrs. Allen Brouse, Sixty-fourth avenue west; Mrs. A. J. Lindgren, 4827 West Sixth street; Miss Edith Shannon, who lives at home; Dr. S. S. Shannon of Barnum, Minn., formerly of West Duluth; George D. Shannon of Isle Royale, Mich., and Hiram Shannon of Spencerville, Ont.

LEG IS BROKEN.

Arthur St. Germaine Is Injured During Ice Cutting Operations.

Arthur St. Germaine, foreman of the Duluth Ice company, who resides at Fifty-seventh avenue west and Sixth street, is suffering from a broken leg which he sustained yesterday while at work.

Mr. St. Germaine was superintending the ice cutting work on the lake at the foot of St. Croix avenue, when he became wedged between two pieces of ice. His limb was wrenched and the bone broken. He was hurried to St. Mary's hospital, where the fracture was reduced.

NEW COURT OF CATHOLIC FORESTERS ORGANIZED.

At a recent meeting the degree team of St. James Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters of West Duluth conferred the second degree upon the members of the newly organized court of St. Adelbert of Duluth.

St. Adelbert court, No. 3532, was organized by State Organizer Peter Loskiel the latter part of December, and Jan. 23 the members were initiated and they elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Rev. S. A. Ielek, pastor of the parish of St. Mary, Star of the Sea, in connection with which this court was organized, religious director; P. J. Voloshik, chief ranger; Joseph S. Hoppa, vice chief ranger; I. G. Zminski, past chief ranger; A. S. Lepak, recording secretary; G. S. Maleski, financial secretary; M. W. Koneczny, treasurer; Dr. F. J. Lepak, medical examiner; J. A. Hoppa and J. J. Maleski, guides, and V. P. Michalek, A. J. Nowak and Frank Butrym, trustees.

Evangelistic Meetings.

Evangelistic meetings will be held at the Westminster Presbyterian church, Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street, every evening next week. A number of prominent speakers from the city and from outside towns will assist Rev. J. G. Leitch, the pastor, in the work. Among the speakers who will assist are Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First M. E. church of Duluth and Rev. H. P. Garrett of Coleraine.

Festival for Poor.

A festival for the poor will be held Sunday evening at Our Savior's Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street. The proceeds from the affair will go to the needy families of the church, the funds to be distributed by Rev. J. A. Bjerke and a committee. In the program, the choir will take a prominent part and there will be an excellent program of special music, several solos and a talk by Rev. Mr. Bjerke. The Ladies' Aid society will serve refresh-

To Reorganize Club.

A reorganization of the boys' club of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church will take place this evening at a meeting in the church study, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street. The club was organized over a year ago and was successful until the attempt was made to merge the society with another club of the church. All boys under 15 years of age are eligible to membership.

MARKET IS FEATURELESS

Trading Light and Trend Narrow in Dull Session.

Long Lines Liquidated---Some Buying Toward the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 4.—Light trading characterized a dull and featureless market. May opened at $1.13 bid, went to $1.13⅛, declined to $1.12⅞ and then to $1.12¾ and returned to $1.13, sold up to $1.13¼ and declined to $1.13⅛, closing at $1.13¼ bid. The July option opened at $1.12⅞ and declined to $1.12⅝ and advanced to $1.13 and then to $1.13⅛ and closed at $1.13¼ bid. Flax was dull. May opened at $2.17½ and lost ¼c and advanced to $2.17½ at which bid price the option closed. July was $2.17½ nominal and September closed $1.70¼ bid.

Oats closed ⅜c off and rye and barley were unchanged. Cash closed ½c over the near option. Durum at the close was ⅜c up.

After the first hour the market simply marked time. Occasional fluctuations gave it a slightly irregular appearance. There was not much interest after the opening hour, and the market was without feature.

The opening was firm on favorable cables. Liverpool closing at ¼c lower to ⅜c higher. A better tone was evident in the foreign market, as there was less pressure to dispose of Argentinas.

May was active at the opening here, although on the Chicago board it was eclipsed by trading in July, which was steady on news of the firt.er cables. The July option weakened, however, with the feeding out of long lines and the market was sustained by good buying in May. The selling was scattered and came chiefly from commission houses. Toward close the professionals bought July for an upturn. No buying of a new nature appeared.

Cron damage reports were less insistent. A wire from Elkhart said that the crop in that neighborhood is excellent. Lyle, crop expert for Chapin, wired from Kansas City that his guess on the wheat crop of Kansas is 75,000,000 bu. Last year the crop was 87,000,000 bu, the largest on record. In 1908 the yield was 79,282,000 bu and in 1907 it was 65,000,000 bu. Lyle thinks Nebraska and Oklahoma present good prospects for a first-class crop. Sumner county, Kan., according to a message from a Kansas City trader, will show an abandonment of at least one-third of the acreage in that territory. Reports from scattered towns in Nebraska estimate damage to the growing crop in nearby fields at from 25 to 75 per cent.

The Van Dusen-Harrington company figures the farm reserves in the Northwest exclusive of seed requirements at 20 per cent or about 46,000,000 bu. There undoubtedly is considerable wheat on the farms and Duluth should begin to get a fair quantity of it as the cash basis here tops Minneapolis. No. 1 northern is ½c above the Duluth near option and in Minneapolis cash is selling at 1⅛c over, unchanged from yesterday. Of the twenty-three mills in Minneapolis fifteen are in operation. The demand for spot wheat is fair.

With cash wheat selling here higher than at Minneapolis, receipts at the Head of the Lakes are beginning to show an increase over the receipts last week, although they are not as heavy as in the forepart of February. The estimated increase of wheat here this week is 275,000 bu, compared with 210,000 by last week and 286,000 bu a year ago. The increase at Minneapolis this week is 575,000 bu. Stores of flax here, it is estimated, will increase 5,000 bu for the week, against a decrease of 3,000 bu last week and an increase of 11,000 bu a year ago.

The statement of the Modern Miller this week is bearish. That journal says that millers' reports from eleven states fail to confirm the rumors of excessive damage to the growing plant.

A bearish bit of news was Broomhall's estimate of the world's wheat shipments, exclusive of North America, at 10,400,000 against an actual shipment of 8,952,000 bu last week. Europe will take about 9,600,000 bu.

Car receipts:

	Today.	Last Year.
Duluth	22	65
Minneapolis	287	201
Winnipeg	139	233
Northwest	498	509
Chicago	14	82
Kansas City	65.000	45,000
St. Louis, bu	34,000	37,000

Primary receipts of wheat: 546,000 bu; last year, 440,000 bu; shipments, 214,000 bu; last year, 273,000 bu; clearances of wheat, 72,000 bu; oats, 330 bu; flour, 25,000 bli; wheat and flour, 180,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn: 598,000 bu; last year, 667,000 bu; shipments, 441,000 bu; last year, 576,000 bu; clearances of corn, 138,000 bu.

The Modern Miller said: "Reports from millers in eleven winter wheat states do not confirm extensive damage to the crop. Majority say too early to reveal injury. Reports from Eastern, Central, Southwest and extreme Southwest generally favorable as those from Nebraska. Damage seems confined to soft wintry wheat."

New York wired: "Fifteen loads of Manitobas worked on yesterday's dip. Export brokers are on the jump this morning again."

Toledo wired: "King says Missouri does not issue any March report. Secretary Ellis of the state board of agriculture says from personal observation in traveling over the state says wheat on the uplands in Western Missouri and Eastern Kansas is injured much from freezing and thawing. Some fields have been damaged 26 per cent."

Foreign markets closed: Liverpool, wheat ¼d lower to ⅜d higher; corn ¼d lower. Paris, wheat unchanged to ⅛c lower; flour ½c higher to ¼c lower. Budapest, wheat ⅜c higher. Berlin, close, wheat ¾c lower. Antwerp, wheat 1⅞c lower.

The proposition to change the closing hour of the Chicago Board of Trade from 1:15 o'clock to 1 o'clock was defeated. This probably settled the question for some time to come.

Lyle, writing from Superior, Neb., says: "In Lincoln I was told that I would see about the worst wheat in Nebraska on the route to this place. I came via Fairmont to Strang, then here. At Strang I found some damage, but it had been exaggerated. It is a flat, wet country there, and fields were soft after a fourth day of spring-like weather. Plant was pretty much alive, and I am sure it will come out in good shape under growing weather. Sections visited are large producers of wheat. Examination of plant shows it is well rooted. Saw no wheat bad enough for abandonment. Much corn in bad shape from having been down on the ground."

Bradstreet's clearances for week: Wheat, 2,046,000 bu; corn, 773,000 bu.

Broomhall's weekly world's shipments estimates: "Wheat and flour for Monday next, exclusive of North America, will be about 10,400,00 bu against 8,952,000 bu actual last week. Of the total world's shipments Europe will take about 9,600,000 bu. The total shipments last week were 10,432,000 bu, and those of a year ago 10,800,000 bu. Arrivals of breadstuffs into the United Kingdom will aggregate about 4,000,000 bu. Broomhall predicts that there will be a fair increase in the quantity of breadstuffs on passage to the United Kingdom."

Minneapolis shipped 50,243 barrels of flour yesterday and 59 cars of wheat. Wheat stocks are 7,113,411 bu.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Damage Stories Are Counterbalanced and Wheat Prices Sag.

Chicago, March 4.—Early trading in the wheat pit was on a down grade today after opening from ⅛c higher to ⅜c off. Sluggish demand for cash wheat and large pit offerings were the controlling factors in the first hour. Tales of damage in the growing fields were counterbalanced by other reports that crop conditions are good. May fell off from $1.13⅛ to 1.12⅜. Opening prices for May were ⅜c up to ⅜c off at $1.13⅛@1.12⅜.

The market regained all of the early loss during the final half of the day on covering by shorts, with strength freely of the more distant futures. May advanced to $1.13⅜. The close was firm at almost the top, with May up ⅛c at $1.13⅜.

Offerings dumped in the corn pit at the outset caused prices to fall ⅛@¾c immediately. The inability of the buyers to absorb the grain gave a still further dip to the market in the first hour. May prices falling from 63½@62¾c. Lack of shipping demand was also a heavy bearish factor. Opening figures for May were ⅛@⅝c off at 63⅛@63c.

A fairly steady tone prevailed in the last half, the late firmness in wheat having a bullish effect. The close was steady with May ⅛@¼c lower, at 63⅜@63½c.

Much liquidation in oats gave a heavy tone to that grain. Initial prices were ⅛@⅜c down and in the first hour prices sank fractionally lower. May traveling down from 45⅜ to 45⅛@45¼c. Opening figures for May were ⅛@⅜c off at 45⅜@45½c.

An easy start in the provisions pit, with prices unchanged to 2½c off for pork and lard, with ribs 2½c higher to 2½c lower, was followed by a sharp advance in prices for pork in the first hour. May pork ran up to $24.90, the other products gaining in a less degree. Strong conditions in the live hog market induced the change of sentiment in the provisions pit. Opening prices for the May products were: Pork, $24.67½@24.35; lard, $12.32½@12.35, and ribs $12.80@12.82½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Proves Nervous and Price Range Is Narrow.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 4.—Wheat was nervous and in a narrow range. A slightly firmer tone prevailed on account of light local receipts and a stronger cash market. May opened ⅛@¼c higher than yesterday's close and after fluctuating in a range of ¾c from high to low, closed ¼c higher than the opening. Local elevator stocks increased 575,000 bu for the week making the total about 7,113,000 bu July wheat was relatively weaker than the May option. Minneapolis today received 287 cars of wheat as compared with 201 cars a year ago, Duluth 72 against 65 cars, and Winnipeg 130 cars against 233 cars. May opened $1.12⅝, high $1.13, low $1.12¼, close $1.12⅞. July opened $1.12¾, high $1.12¾, low $1.12¼, close $1.12@1.12⅝.

Cash wheat was firmer today. Mills and elevators were both active buyers. Offerings were light. No. 1 northern sold for ⅛@1⅛c above the May option and No. 2 northern for ⅛@1⅛c under.

STOCKS ARE LETHARGIC

Market Opens With Hesitating Tone But Soon Takes Upward Turn.

Prices Inclined to Yield Late in Day and Close Is Heavy.

New York, March 4.—Prices of stocks moved within a narrow range with the opening today. The mixed gains and losses reflected a tone of hesitation. The copper industrials were firm. National Railways of Mexico first preferred, declined 1¼.

The market took an upward turn, a brisk demand arising for Reading, United States Steel and the copper stocks. Railroad stocks lagged in the movement and when realizing began, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central and St. Paul sold fractionally below yesterday's closing. Reading lost its rise of a point, and there was little left of a similar gain in American Smelting, and Amalgamated Copper lost 1⅜. Lackawanna broke 10 points, American Steel Foundries 1½ and Pullman 1¼.

Strength in specialties had a moderate sympathetic effect on the general list, which rose to the best prices. American Tobacco preferred gained 4, American Ice, 2½, Utah Copper, 2¼, Amalgamated Copper and Wisconsin Central 2. St. Louis & San Francisco preferred 2¼ and Anaconda, General Electric and Western Union 1. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed heavy and dull. The market was lethargic, but prices were inclined to yield late in the day. Only dormant stocks moved easily. Wells-Fargo Express rose 4¾ and Allis-Chalmers preferred 2, Chicago, St. Paul & Omaha fell 5½ and Union Pacific 1.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by Peter Norman, widower, of Virginia, Minnesota, mortgagor, to Sattler Liquor company, a corporation, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagee, bearing date December 17th, 1906, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of December, 1906, at 11:45 o'clock A. M., in Book 233 of Mortgages on page 66.

Said default consists in the nonpayment of $819.93 of the principal of the note referred to in said mortgage, together with $91.93 interest thereon.

The name of said Sattler Liquor company, which is a Minnesota corporation, has been duly changed since the execution and delivery of said mortgage, to Sattler Brothers company, which is now the name of said corporation.

By reason of such default, the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has ever been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

The property described in said mortgage and thereby mortgaged is the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter (SW¼ of NW¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (SE¼ of NE¼) of Section thirty (30), all in Township fifty-seven (57) north of Range twelve (12) west of the fourth principal meridian, in St. Louis County, Minnesota, containing eighty (80) acres.

There is claimed to be due and is due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of $402.86.

NOW THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises above described, which sale will be made at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the sheriff's office in the County Court House in Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on Monday, the 18th day of April, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage and taxes, if any, due on said premises, and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorneys' fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated this 3rd day of March, 1910.

PROPOSAL FOR PURCHASE OF BONDS.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council of the City of Duluth, Minnesota, will receive sealed proposals at the Council Chamber in the City Hall in the said City of Duluth at 7:30 o'clock in the evening on March 28, 1910, for the purchase of gold-bearing coupon bonds to the aggregate amount of $200,000 in denominations of $1,000, $500, $100 and $50 (except that where not inconsistent with this bids said bonds shall be in denomination of $1,000).

Of said bonds, $150,000 are issued for the purpose of extending the water and light plant of the City of Duluth, pursuant to authority of Section 236 of the Charter of the City of Duluth, said bonds having been authorized at the annual municipal election held February 1, 1910.

Of said bonds, $50,000 are issued for the permanent improvement revolving fund, pursuant to authority of Section 286 of the Charter of the City of Duluth.

All of said bonds are to be dated April 1, 1910, and will become due on April 1, 1940, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on April first and October first of each year according to interest coupons attached to each of said bonds: both principal and interest to be made payable in gold coin of the United States at the American Exchange National Bank of the City of New York: delivery of bonds and payment therefor to be made at the First National Bank of Duluth, Minnesota.

Said water and light bonds may be bid for under two plans as to time of delivery and payment therefor. First plan: $50,000 to be paid for July first, 1910; $50,000, August first, 1910, and $50,000, September first, 1910. Second plan: The entire issue to be paid for July first, 1910.

Said permanent improvement revolving fund bonds to be paid for within ten days after notice that the same are ready for delivery.

Bids may be made on either or both of said issues.

The sale of said bonds will be awarded to the highest responsible bidder at a sum not less than par value thereof, and interest accrued to the date of delivery. Such shall be by popular subscription and actual residents of the City of Duluth shall be preferred in case of bids otherwise equal, and any person, including any actual resident of the City of Duluth may bid on one or more of said bonds. All bids for said bonds shall be without condition or qualifications.

Each bidder is required to file with the city clerk prior to 2 o'clock p. m. of said day, a certified check on or a certificate of deposit of a national bank, payable to the order of the City of Duluth, without condition for an amount equal to one (1) per cent of the full face value of the bonds to be bid for, or a good and sufficient bond in the said sum to be approved by the common council of said city, and conditioned that the party making said bid will, if awarded the sale, take the bonds and pay for them according to the terms of said bid and the ordinance; and that in case of failure so to do, the City of Duluth shall have the right to sue upon said bond and to recover the full face thereof, which shall be and in said bond shall be stated as being the sum agreed upon as liquidated damages in case of a breach thereof. And a condition of said bond shall be that the principal and sureties thereon expressly waive all questions of irregularity or illegality in any manner affecting the issue of said bonds, the intention of the bond being to provide for the payment of said sum of money absolutely without any condition or defense thereto.

Said bonds and checks shall at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day be submitted by the city clerk to the city attorney for his opinion as to whether said checks and bonds conform to the conditions of the ordinance, and the bid of any person whose check or bond the city attorney shall deem to not be in legal form, according to the terms of the ordinance shall not be received unless such bidder shall have such check or bond corrected to meet the requirements of the city attorney or deposit a new bond or check duly approved by said attorney before 7:30 o'clock p. m. of said day.

In all cases of bids received and not accepted, the check or certificate received therewith shall thereupon be returned. In case said bonds are awarded to any bidder and the said bidder refuses to accept and pay for said bonds, or any part thereof, within ten (10) days after notice, oral or written, that same are ready for delivery, said delivery to be made at the First National Bank of Duluth, Minn., the said amount of the certificate of deposit or check so furnished to the city shall be retained by the City of Duluth, as its own, as and for liquidated damages for breach of the contract on the part of said bidder. In case any bidder furnishing such certificate of deposit or check shall take the said bonds, said sum shall be credited to him on account of the payment thereof. Each bidder must give his address, street and number.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved to the City of Duluth.
Dated Duluth, Minn., March 3, 1910.
H. W. CHEADLE,
City Clerk.
D. E. H., March 5, 12 and 19, 1910.

YOUNG'S ADROIT BID FOR SUPPORT BEFORE COUNTY OPTION MEN

Looked Upon as Plea for Nomination By the Republicans.

Neither of Great Parties Likely to Adopt County Option Plank.

Buckman May Be Next United States Marshal for Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the county option convention, which was the political event of the week in St. Paul, made no move looking to the candidacy of any one man for governor, E. T. Young, former attorney general, and who was defeated in the Republican convention two years ago for the gubernational nomination, made a most adroit bid for support before the convention. Young read a carefully prepared speech in which he expressed his fealty to the county option movement, but in which he extended the olive branch by declaring that he believed in the right of the individual to serve himself to liquor in his own home.

"My views of the question are so well known, and my record as attorney general is so much a matter of public knowledge, that the Republican state convention, if it nominates me for governor, will not have to commit itself to a county option plank to gain the support of the people behind the movement," is the plea that the politicians are putting into the mouth of Mr. Young as addressed to the Republicans of the state, who are anxious for party success. The former attorney general did not express himself in this language, and in fact, made no direct personal reference to any political ambitions that he may have. On the contrary his address was entirely devoted to a denunciation of the control held by alleged interests inimical to the public good over the law-making and executive departments. It was rumored before the convention that it would declare for Mr. Young for governor. At a conference held just before the convention met Wednesday morning, it was determined to take no action looking for the advancement of the political ambitions of any candidate. It was felt that it would weaken the movement to tie it up to any one's candidacy, and so the resolutions commit the movement to the support of only those men for governor, lieutenant governor and the legislature who are known advocates of the county option plan. Young returned from Mexico only the night before the county option convention convened, and the conference at which it was decided to eliminate all candidacies from the movement at the present time was held without his presence. He received a good many bouquets from the speakers during the convention, his record as attorney general as related to the regulation of the liquor business getting strong indorsement. His speech was well received, but politicians have it figured out that it was a plea for the nomination from the Republican state convention rather than for an indorsement from the county

GERMANS AFTER SOUTH POLE TOO

Will Send Expedition to Race With English and Americans.

Berlin, March 5.—The German Geographical society has decided to send out a South Polar discovery expedition, and so contest with the United States and Great Britain in the race through to the Antarctic. The German plans were made public today at a meeting of the society at which Dr. Nordenskjold, the Antarctic explorer, was present.

DETECTIVE DIES OF HIS WOUND

One Chicago Officer Shot in Black Hand Hunt Succumbs.

Chicago, March 5.—Detective John Wren, who with Detective Patrick Quinn was shot by three Italians yesterday, died today. Wren's death occurred at a few minutes after his wounded comrade had been carried to the dying officer's bedside that the men might bid each other good-by.

The detectives were shot down while pursuing the Italians who were believed to be connected with the "Black Hand" society. The murderers have not yet been caught.

EVA TANGUAY FINED FOR STABBING STAGE HAND.

Louisville, Ky., March 5.—Eva Tanguay, the actress, after a three hours' trial in police court, was fined $40 and costs on the complaint of Clarence Hess, a stage hand at Macauley's theater. Hess alleged that Miss Tanguay had jabbed him with a hat pin. Hess appeared in court, his physician testifying that the stage hand had three punctures in the lower abdomen.

CARDINAL WOLSEY IS HIS LAST ROLE

LOUIS JAMES.

TRY TO BALK SOCIALISTS

Berlin Police Forbid Any Kind of Gathering for Protest.

Ballot Law Demonstrations Are Scheduled for Sunday.

Berlin, March 5.—President Jagow of the Berlin police having forbidden the Socialists to hold an open air meeting that had been planned for tomorrow, the managing committee of the Socialist party today publicly invited all who believed in an equal, secret, direct and universal ballot to take a walk on Sunday toward Treptow park, a suburban assembly place, as a protest against the existing three class property voting system and the proposed amendments to the franchise law.

President Jagow subsequently announced that such a walk would be contrary to the spirit of the law, which requires that open air assemblages shall take place only with the permission of the police, and that the persons taking such walks or attempting to do so would be prevented by the police.

All the Socialist, Liberal and Radical journals, as well as some of the moderate newspapers, disapprove of the Prussian government's decision to prevent a public assembly making peaceful expression of a desire to have greater ballot privileges.

Meeting Is Permitted.

Essen, Rhenish Prussia, March 5.—The president of the local police has issued a permit for an open air meeting of Socialists tomorrow on the promise of the leaders that the meeting will be orderly. The purpose of the assemblage is to protest against the Prussian franchise law.

Gathering at Cassel.

Cassel, Prussia, March 5.—The radical and liberal parties have joined the Socialists in planning for a great open air meeting tomorrow in favor of equal suffrage.

INSURGENTS HAVE CHOSEN TICKET

Helgeson and Lauder to Run for Congress in North Dakota.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 5.—The Insurgent Republicans, by selecting H. T. Helgeson of Milton, and W. S. Lauder of Wahpeton, as their congressional candidates, have brought to a close one of the hardest fights ever made in the state. U. L. Burdick of Munich is eliminated and he likely will formally withdraw from the field. B. G. Skulason of Grand Forks, who was also among the candidates, but who failed to receive recognition at the hands of the committee, will continue in the race.

By indorsing Lauder, the insurgents have given recognition to Johnson supporters, and in naming Helgeson, they give the northeastern part of the state recognition.

The slate as now made up, in addition to congressmen, follows: Senators, Thomas Marshall and A. J. Gronna; governor, James Buchanan; auditor, D. K. Brightbill, Cando; treasurer, B. L. Bickford, Bowbells; commissioners of railroads, O. P. N. Anderson and W. H. Stutsman.

This leaves the commissioner of insurance, the commissioner of labor, the secretary of state and one place on the railroad board still open.

In the platform adopted, the insurgents urge the election of United States senator by direct vote; indorse the primary election principle, and promise strengthening of the prohibition law.

The campaign committee will have headquarters in Grand Forks, and its officers are: Chairman, J. M. Devine, of Minot; vice chairman, H. N. Tucker of Courtney; secretary, Thomas Hall of Bismarck.

LIFE'S DRAMA HAS CLOSED

Last Curtain Is Rung Down for Louis James in Helena.

Body Will Be Taken to Home of His Wife in Kansas City.

Helena, Mont., March 5—Louis James' long career as an actor was ended by death here this morning, following an attack of heart failure last evening just before the curtain went up for a performance of "Henry the Eighth."

The body will be shipped tomorrow to Kansas City. The company will disband and Mrs. James will return to her home at Kansas City.

On the Stage Since 1864.

Kansas City, Mo., March 5.—Louis James, the actor, had for many years made his home in Kansas City, much of the time each year, although he also had a residence at Monmouth Beach, N. J. His second wife, Miss Aphie Hendricks, was a Kansas City woman, and for several seasons she has taken the leading role in all his plays.

Lewis James was born in Tremont, Ill., in 1842. His first engagement was with McAuley's Stock company, which he joined at Louisville, Ky., in 1864. Later for five years he was Lawrence Barrett's leading man. From 1886 to 1889 he starred with Joseph Jefferson and in the 90's he starred with Frederick Warde. In recent years he had been the star in Wagenhals and Kemper's productions of the "Two Orphans," "She Stoops to Conquer," "Virginius," the "Merchant of Venice" and "Merry Wives of Windsor."

At the time of his death Mr. James was playing "Henry the Eighth," taking the part of Cardinal Wolsey. Last week, while his company was stalled in a snowbound train in the West, they produced "The Merchant of Venice," to amused the passengers.

Mr. James' first wife, Miss Lillian Scanlan, whom he married in Philadelphia in 1871, died four years later.

MAY MAKE PEACE FOR B. & O. ROAD

Knapp and Neill Are Asked to Continue Efforts at Arbitration.

Baltimore, Md., March 5.—Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission and Commissioner of Labor Neill were asked to return here today to continue efforts to reach an amicable solution of the differences between the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company and the conductors and trainmen. The railroad officials would not deny that a promise of some concessions had been made.

SAYS FATHER-IN-LAW THREW HIM OUT IN SNOW.

Waukegan, Ill., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Answering his wife's divorce suit, L. A. Holden of Backus, Minn., blames his father-in-law for his troubles, saying he threw him out in the snow once.

FIFTY DIE IN SNOWSLIDE

Hundred Workmen Are Caught in Rush in British Columbia.

Second Disaster Is Imminent at Scene of Catastrope in Washington.

Vancouver, B. C., March 5.—In a snow slide early this morning between Rogers Pass station and Glacier, on the line of the Canadian Pacific in the Rocky mountains, fifty men were killed. All the victims were workmen for the railway company and more than half of them were Japanese.

The men were a working crew clearing away a small slide that had come down early in the evening. They were working a rotary engine when a large slide came down and carried them to their death in the canyon below.

At first it was believed that all of the 100 men engaged in the work had been killed, but during the morning it was found that many had escaped. The dead total is now estimated at fifty.

Passenger Trains Safe.

All passenger trains on the line are safe, though it will probably be a day or two before they are able to pass the place where the slide occurred.

Last night was one of the worst ever experienced in the railway section of the Canadian Rockies. There was a heavy storm of rain and sleet and sometimes snow.

A storm also occurred in the Arrow lakes. Communication with the East is down. A long section of telegraph line was carried away by the slide.

Second Slide Threatening.

Wellington, Wash., March 5.—All the bodies of the victims of the Wellington disaster will not be recovered for a month, according to a statement made by Supt. O'Neill today.

The danger of a second slide is imminent. The snow bank of the hotel is as high as the roof. Entrance to the building is gained through a tunnel from the front.

At Alvin the station agent was forced to leave on account of having no food. In Berne, five miles east of the tunnel, the engines of the road were starved out, and were forced to send a messenger over almost insurmountable obstacles to get help.

There is no confirmation of a report that six laborers were killed in the avalanche at Cascade, on the east slope of the mountains Thursday. Two men lost their lives in a slide there, Feb. 27.

Mines Damaged by Snowslides.

Winnipeg, Man., March 5.—The Wilcox and Ymir mines, near Nelson, B. C., have been badly damaged by snowslides. At the Wilcox mine the bunkhouse and dining room, with the boilers and dynamo plant and the superintendent's house, were wrecked. The financial loss is $100,000.

HEFFRON IS MADE BISHOP OF WINONA

St. Paul, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Archbishop Ireland today received a cablegram from Rome announcing the appointment of Rev. P. R. Heffron, director of the St. Paul Seminary, as bishop of Winona.

GARFIELD TO GO ON STAND

Former Secretary Will Be Next Witness in Land Office Inquiry.

Vertrees Will Impeach Testimony of Special Agent Jones.

Washington, March 5.—Before a diminished crowd, the cross-examination of Gifford Pinchot continued this morning and the course pursued yesterday by Mr. Vertrees of going over the testimony in detail gave no indication as to when the defense would finish with the witness.

Former Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield is now a daily attendant at the hearing. He will follow Mr. Pinchot on the witness stand.

A long executive session preceded the resumption of the hearing this morning.

Subpoenas have been issued at the request of Mr. Ballinger's counsel for United States Attorney Elmer E. Todd and Special Agent G. A. Parks, both of Seattle. Mr. Vertrees has announced that he expects to prove by District Attorney Todd that Special Agent Jones' testimony as to why criminal proceedings against the Cunningham claimants were not instituted was false. Special Agent Park will testify concerning Glavis' box in which twenty-four missing letters are supposed to have been found.

Mr. Pinchot said that Mr. Ballinger in testifying before the congressional committee, urged an amendment which would have let the Cunningham claims go to patent at $10 an acre, whereas all future claimants would be assessed "not less than $10 an acre."

It was shown, however, that Cunningham claims were the only ones that had gone to final entry in Alaska.

Asked whether congress could legislate against entries already made in good faith, Mr. Pinchot said that was a question for legal authority.

More Clashes With Counsel.

The witness and counsel soon began to clash again in the manner which delayed the proceedings to such an extent yesterday. Mr. Vertrees read to the witness a part of a message by President Roosevelt. Mr. Pinchot listened earnestly and then snapped back:

"You read in that message any insinuation that Mr. Roosevelt favored the patenting of claims not made in good faith?"

Attorney Vertrees: "I am insinuating nothing Mr. Roosevelt."

Mr. Pinchot: "That is not my name."

Mr. Vertrees: "Well, didn't Mr. Roosevelt say what I just read you?"

Mr. Pinchot: "Of course he did."

Nelson Gets Tired.

Senator Nelson grew impatient and declared that the meaning and intent of messages and everything else could be determined by the committee. Mr. Pepper protested that Mr. Vertrees' cross-examination was made up almost wholly of argumentative questions which called for argument.

"Oh, go on!" sighed the chairman wearily.

TRAIN DERAILED BY LANDSLIDE.

Easton, Pa., March 5.—A Lehigh Valley passenger train from Buffalo to New York ran into a landslide today near the government proving grounds Redington, nine miles west of this city. The locomotive and six cars, including the diner and two Pullmans, were thrown from the tracks. The superintendent's office in this city has issued a statement saying no passengers were injured.

PHILADELPHIA'S BIG STRIKE IS ON; CITY FEARS DISTURBANCES

PRESIDENT OF CENTRAL UNION IN PHILADELPHIA

JOHN J. MURPHY.

Number of Men Out Is Not Known---Non-Union Cab Drivers Quit.

Union Leaders Say Milk and Ice Deliveries Will Be Stopped Later.

Mayor Forbids Demonstration Planned in Favor of Strikers.

Philadelphia, March 5.—The general sympathetic strike, the supreme and final effort of organized labor to win the fight of the trolley men for recognition of their union, is now in full swing in this city.

Acting on the orders of the Committee of Ten of the Central Labor union, which is directing this demonstration of the power of union labor, workers in many trades have ceased work as a protest against the refusal of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company to adjust the grievances of striking conductors and motormen or treat with the officers of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes.

The number of men on strike cannot be ascertained. Labor leaders say they will not know definitely until tomorrow or Monday. Director of Public Safety Clay says not more than 20,000 walked out. The only assertion the strike leaders will make is that 75,000 workers are out. Officials at the city hall and Rapid Transit representatives scoffed at the idea that the latter number had gone out.

Big Plants Are Running.

They said mills in Kensington were still working and that such great plants as Baldwin, Cramps, Midvale steel works, Brill's car works and other large industrial establishments had not been crippled when the shifts of men were changed between midnight and morning. These plants, however, are open shop concerns.

The promise made by Timothy Healy, representative of the stationary firemen, who said he could cripple the power plants, apparently was not fulfilled. The power plants were operated and cars were running with extra policemen to guard against the trouble looked for by the department of public safety today and tomorrow.

Will Stop Milk Supply.

It was said by the union leaders today that they had directed that public facilities such as this morning's service of milk, ice and bread should not be curtailed, but that the men would go out after having notified their patrons supplies were to stop.

Union leaders also said that before nightfall many more of the unionized employes of the great manufacturing plants would be called out than the number that went out this morning.

A great majority of the men in the occupations affected by the general strike already had stopped work for

CUMMINS IS VOTED DOWN

Smoot Amendment to Postal Savings Bank Bill Adopted Unchanged.

Cummins Amendment Is Lost and the Final Vote to Come Soon.

Washington, March 5.—Today is expected to decide the fate of the postal savings bank bills in the senate, and though the ways have been smoothed as much as possible for its passage, its friends are by no means sanguine as to the result of the final vote.

This morning Senator Smoot's amendment was adopted by the senate, after Senator Cummins' amendment to the Smoot proposition had been voted down by 18 yeas and 40 nays.

Senator Smoot's amendment provides that the president, in case of war or other circumstances affecting the credit of the country, may order the use of postal savings bank funds for the issuing of bonds. The Cummins amendment restricted this power to times of war exclusively.

Under the senate practice the decision last week to vote on the bill on March 3 made the legislative day of that date continue until today.

TELLER ADMITS $60,000 THEFT

Thomas E. Larsen of Philadelphia Surrenders to the Police.

Philadelphia, March 5.—Thomas E. Larsen, receiving teller of the Philadelphia branch of the First National bank of Camden, N. J., surrendered to the police today on a charge of embezzling $60,000. Larsen confessed, the police say, and has agreed to do all he can to straighten out the books of the bank and take his punishment as speedily as possible.

According to the police, the teller has been taking the bank's money for seven years.

MERGE SUMATRA TOBACCO HOUSES

Seven Million Dollar Company Is Formed in Florida.

Pensacola, Fla., March 5.—The merger of all the Sumatra tobacco companies in Florida finally has been effected, according to information received here today from Quincy, the heart of the Sumatra tobacco industry. A corporation with a capital stock of $7,000,000 and to be known as the American Sumatra Tobacco company, has been formed to take over the absorbed plants. The active management of the corporation will be in the hands of F. Argimbau, secretary-treasurer, with headquarters in New York.

INDORSE CANNON AND THE NEW TARIFF LAW.

Danville, Ill., March 5.—At a meeting in this city the voters of the Eighth congressional district of Illinois, represented in congress by Speaker Cannon, indorsed the speaker's policies, called upon him again to be a candidate for congress, approved the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and paid high tribute to President Taft and Governor Dineen.

Accompanying the bodies were the other members of the original party, Chiefs Day-Ewa-Wun-Dung and Mah-Che-Skung and Rev. Q. M. Pequette, an Indian missionary.

MAKE DEMAND ON THIRTY-TWO ROADS

Firemen and Enginemen Want Bigger Pay and Change in Conditions.

New York, March 5.—The firemen and enginemen of the thirty-two Eastern railroads have submitted to the general managers' association a formal demand for an increase in wages. This demand is similar to that presented to the same roads last December by the conductors and the trainmen.

General Manager Stuart of the Erie refused to accept the demands as chairman of the General Managers' association, declaring that he would meet a committee of the Erie firemen, but that the Brotherhood would have to deal with each railroad separately and not through the General Managers' association, which he said had no agreement concerning wages. This reply is similar to that given the Conductors and Trainmen. Grand Master Carter of the Brotherhood of Firemen now will proceed to make a separate and similar demand on each of the railroads.

The proceeding involves about 50,000 firemen on the railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Baltimore & Ohio. The demands do not affect the enginemen belonging to the union who have been advanced from firemen.

The wage requests are for an increase to $3 a day from $2.60. Numerous changes in working conditions are asked also.

TWO ARE INDICTED FOR FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Ralph Jones Must Stand Trial for Killing Walter Whitehead.

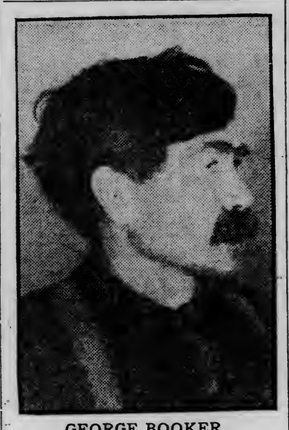
George Booker Accused of Killing Stepfather, Charles Clark.

The grand jury in its final report made shortly after the noon hour today to Judge William A. Cant, returned two indictments for murder in the first degree. One was against Ralph Jones for the alleged murder of Walter Whitehead, and the other is against George Booker, who is accused of killing his stepfather.

Two other indictments were made public. Bert Swanson is accused by the grand jury of the crime of larceny in the second degree, and Andrew Peterson is accused of grand larceny in the first degree. Swanson is said to have taken $103 from a man named Joseph Olson, and Andrew Peterson is said to have taken $33 from Matt Wuori.

This ends the work of the grand jury. In all, twenty indictments were returned. Of the twenty, sixteen were against persons not in custody.

Two indictments for murder means that during the present term of court there will be two murder trials. The state is about ready in the case of the state against Ralph Jones for the murder of Walter Whitehead, and Jones, it is said, is ready with his case. He will claim self-defense and it is understood that a negro lawyer from Minneapolis will defend him. The trouble took place Jan. 5 last. Jones and Whitehead had been playing at a game of chance at a local colored club and a difference arose. It is claimed that Jones stabbed Whitehead several times with a long knife. Whitehead died from the injuries. The knife with which the cutting was done disappeared, but it is now said to be in the possession of one of the deputy sheriffs. As both sides are about ready, this case will be one of the first of the criminal cases to be taken up at this term of court. The trial will be before Judge Cant.



GEORGE BOOKER.

George Booker is accused of killing his stepfather, Charles Clark. The death occurred outside the city limits. Booker told a strange tale on bringing the body back to the city and he was at once arrested. He claims that Clark was hurt in some way. He does not know just how and in attempting to explain, the police claim that he has told several different stories. Although accusing him of the crime of murder in the first degree, the grand jury makes no attempt to explain the manner of Clark's death.

MAY BE RETURNED TO STATE PRISON

Released from Stillwater Jan. 28, last, after serving most of a two-year sentence for highway robbery, Andrew Peterson was arrested again last night by Patrolman Dickman on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree. If convicted he will be sent back to state's prison for a long term of years.

Peterson is accused of stealing $30 from Matt Wuori, while he was sleeping in a chair in the saloon at 216 Lake avenue south. He was seen by another man who was standing in the barroom, who went after a policeman.

ANDREW PETERSON,

Who May Be Sent Back to Stillwater.

Peterson was found in the saloon of William Hesbeck, known as "High-toned William," spending money like a king. It is said that he was buying drinks for every one in the place with his newly acquired wealth. Immediately after relieving Wuori of his roll it is claimed that he marched to the bar and ordered a drink in a loud voice, emphasizing his demands by stabbing his knife deep in to the mahogany.

Peterson is said by the police to be a bad actor. The last time he was arrested he is claimed to have nearly killed the man he was robbing with a large rock, pounding him over the head with it. He was convicted and sent to Stillwater for two years April 21, 1908. He got out before the expiration of his term because of the allowance for good behavior.

DR. MITCHELL

Doing Great Work

At 325 West First Street.

Mr. Rudolph Anderson, 2826 Huron street west, Duluth, cured of stomach and kidney trouble of five years' standing.

Mr. Julius Grosso of Chisholm, Minn., cured of nervousness and stomach trouble of many years' standing. Recommended Dr. Mitchell's treatment.

Mrs. Rosie Veora of Hibbing, Minn., cured of womb and ovarian trouble, had been operated upon and had taken all kinds of medicine without getting relief. Was cured in a course of treatments by Dr. Mitchell.

Mr. Oscar Nelson of 2826 Huron street, Duluth, cured of appendicitis.

Ely Lafave, Two Harbors, Minn., says: "I recommended Dr. Mitchell's treatment to all sufferers from heart trouble, nervousness and stomach trouble, for I went to Dr. Mitchell after I had tried everything without getting relief and his treatment has worked wonders for me. I can enjoy life and feel that it is worth living. A number of my friends have also been cured by Dr. Mitchell. His treatment is a life saver and I am glad to give this unsolicited testimonial."

"A GOOD MAN," SAYS WARFIELD

Death of Louis James a Great Loss to American Stage.

"I never knew Lewis James personally and I never saw him act, but I greatly regret both," said David Warfield, when he was informed this morning of the death at Helena, Mont., of the Shakespearean star. Mr. Warfield will conclude an engagement in "The Music Master" here tonight.

"Louis James was a great and a good man, not only by reputation, but I understand, in fact," continued Mr. Warfield. "He was a deep student of the drama at its best and he was constantly striving to bring the stage up to a high plane and to bring the masses to an appreciation of the drama on that plane. His was a hard life, traveling about the country playing the hardest of roles. He was a faithful worker, a lover of his art and the American stage loses a good man in his death. I am very, very sorry."

IMPORTANCE OF MEDICAL INSPECTION IS SHOWN

First Reports Shows Many Children Suffering From Minor Ailments.

Card Index System Will Give Complete Physical Record of Pupils.

Dr. Charles W. Schroder, medical examiner, and Miss Tressa L. Beatty, visiting nurse, reported to the school board last night that there has been room for efficient work in medical inspection in the Duluth schools and that the system should be extended to the other schools of the city.

Out of 391 pupils examined during the month of February, not one in ten had ever been vaccinated. Decayed teeth were found in 157 children; 143 had enlarged tonsils, and 151 had enlarged glands, while other minor physical defects were found in other children—all defects easily remedied and not calling for immediate treatment, but attention to which will be beneficial to the children's health and their school work.

Dr. Schroder and Miss Beatty reported that conditions in the Franklin, Irving, Emerson, Jackson and Adams schools, in which they have been working, are good. Miss Beatty said that the parents of children are taking kindly to the medical inspection, and she is meeting with courtesy in her work. A number of children have been put under medical attendance since the work was begun, and other children have been treated in the homes, the parents—or the majority of them—co-operating with the physician and nurse in remedying the minor defects and ailments of their children.

Only twenty children have been excluded from school on account of contagious diseases. The five schools in which the medical inspection has been systematic, have been kept clear of contagious diseases and exclusions have been prompt. The Jefferson school was thoroughly examined one day. There have been fifteen emergency cases in the Jefferson, Washburn and Madison schools, in which the physician and nurse have been called upon. Fifty children in the Lowell school were also examined.

The physician reported that he and the nurse are handicapped in their work by lack of adequate quarters. They have managed to find room to carry on their work in the five schools in which they have been working, however, and they submitted their detailed report to show that the work has not been without results.

Dr. Schroder reported that he and Dr. Boyer have been working on a card form, on which it is hoped to show every child's condition from the time school is entered until the close of the school work. The card will be so devised that the condition of the child at each examination will be shown; all diseases during the school life of the child will be recorded; and at the end of the school work, the card will be a complete history of the physical condition of the child.

Dr. Schroder and Miss Beatty united in the recommendation that the medical inspection and visiting nurse service should be extended to the other schools of the city. They said that the number of emergency calls from the other schools indicated that there is room for medical inspection that would be beneficial.

In line with the campaign to secure good health among the school children of the city was a recommendation made last night by the committee on schools and teachers that sanitary drinking fountains be installed in the Endion school. In connection with the recommendation, Mr. Magner said that public drinking cups are now being used in the school and they are not conducive to the health of the children as they cannot help but spread any disease the children might have, especially mumps.

The board voted to install the fountain and the action is in line with the general policy of the board to replace the old-style drinking cups with modern sanitary fountains in all schools of the city.

SPRING TRADE OUTLOOK IS PROMISING

New York, March 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

With a somewhat severe winter drawing to a close and with the subsidence of excitment in the financial markets, the industrial and trade situation shows improvement and the outlook for the spring season is promising. It is an easy matter, of course, to pick flaws in the situation, certain aspects of which are unfavorable. Among these may be mentioned the decreasing excess of exports over imports the balance of trade in favor of this country during the current fiscal year being the smallest since 1906 and but for the foreign purchases of American securities during the recent decline, there would probably be heavy exports of gold. Then the bond market is unfavorable for large flotations, and this retards extensive works of construction. The Philadelphia strike is an ugly development, hurting trade in that city and injuring sentiment as well. The heavy liabilities of defaulting concerns during February, due, however, chiefly to four very large failures, is not a pleasant incident. A slight tendency to a reduction in building operations is to be noted. There is also considerable disposition to wait for congressional legislation and court decisions before entering upon large business commitments. But in spite of these things, the fact remains that a big volume of business, at least closely approximating normal, is being carried on.

Prospects of an active business in iron and steel multiply. It is true that the recent improvement in the trade has been largely sentimental, but it is believed that several important undertakings will be inaugurated with the advent of open weather, especially in structural lines.

The market for cotton goods is again back to the level preceding the latest advance, and trading is now engaged in with less regard to the cost of raw material. There has been a reduction in the price to 4 cents, the four-yard brown sheetings are now quoted at 6¼ cents. Somewhat similar developments are noted in woolen and worsted mills. Strong and weak features alternate in the day to day trading, and there is no lack of confidence in the belief that underlying financial and trade conditions are sound. The actual volume of business as a whole is not seriously below normal, but is evenly distributed.

Some New England shoe manufacturers have recently effected fair-sized sales of heavy goods, but in general, the market continued slow.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO BIG FIGHT

Announcement was made today that the Northern Pacific would run a special fight train from Duluth to the scene of the fight, which is undecided at the present time. The train is being gotten up by two private individuals, but will be made up of Northern Pacific equipment and will run over the tracks of the Northern Pacific, should the fight be held in San Francisco, as seems likely at the present time.

It is said that there are a very large number of people from the range who will make the trip and these with the people from Duluth will be counted upon to make up the train.

The Successor of the Gondola.

There has been much excitement in Venice in the past two years over the threatened invasion of the motor boat as a rival of the romantic gondola, and many lovers of things ancient and unchanging have decried the idea. One of the most important things to be considered when ordering a beverage for the home table is purity, which you will find to the highest degree in golden grain belt beer. This beverage is brewed from the best of nature's products, and deserves a place on your home table. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

FOUR PRISONERS ARE SENTENCED.

To sentence four prisoners Judge Martin Hughes this morning came down from the range.

John Makala drew three years at hard labor at the state prison at Stillwater for breaking into a box car at Virginia.

William Tourney was to have been sentenced, but as there was some misunderstanding on his part as to his pleading guilty to abusing a female child under the age of fourteen, sentence was postponed until the court could look more thoroughly into his case. Tourney claimed that he did not know he was pleading guilty to this charge.

Owing to the fact that Tony Komeder and John Zelnik could not speak English, sentence was postponed until this afternoon.

It is probable that Judge Hughes will not be in attendance at this term of court. The Virginia calendar is heavy and the judge has his hands full for the next six weeks.

The cases of the settlers against the St. Louis River Dam company are being tried there.

Ran From Chain Gang.

Soko Solomon, sent down from the range for ninety days, broke away from the chain gang this morning and James Oliver Rodney, the guard, fired a couple of shots over his head to frighten him. Soko broke away at Seventh avenue east and Second street, and was captured at Twentieth avenue east and London road.

TEACHERS GIVEN CERTIFICATES.

The returns from the state teachers' examinations for the February test have been announced and the following have been awarded certificates: Limited second grade—Agnes Strand, Stephania Polasky, Effie M. Pfeiffer, Katherine Neubauer and Helen M. Dodge; conditional second grade—Mary C. Sullivan, Mary Mahady, Julia Mahoney, Catherine McCurdy, Anna B. Lynnstad, Mrs. Nora Lynch, Esther Lofstrand, Anna L. Lang, Ella E. Jensen, Katherine Harrington, Emma E. Hanson, Mary E. Dettbarn, Fred B. Daily, Ethel M. Carroll, Mrs. F. A. Brubaker, Helma Berg, Emily A. Lofstrand, Mae E. Maloney and Luella M. Penrod.

SUPERIOR

NORMAL SCHOOL BASKET BALL TEAM WINS.

By defeating the River Falls normal school basket ball team last evening, the Superior normalites won the championship of the western part of the state, as far as normal schools are concerned. The local pedagogues piled up a score of 48 to 19 against the visitors.

Will Plan Campaign.

The La Follette supporters in Superior will gather at the Superior courtrooms this evening to perfect a permanent organization in Superior with the end in view of securing the re-election of Robert M. La Follette to the United States senate. Officers will be elected.

Friends Honor Him.

James McKellar, who has for the past seven years been general foreman at the Superior shipyards, will leave Wednesday for Kingston, Ont., where he will be superintendent for the Dominion government dry docks and shipyards. Last evening he was given a farewell banquet by nearly 100 of his friends. The affair was held at the Sons of Norway hall.

Was Seeing Things.

Andrew Suami is held at the Douglas county jail at Superior, awaiting an examination as to his sanity. He was picked up at the South end yesterday because he was going about with his head thrown back and gazing at what he called an aeroplane circling around a twenty-story building. He was arrested by an officer and booked as drunk.

DO IT FOR DULUTH

Did it ever occur to you, that by smoking none but home-made cigars, you would be assisting some cigarmaker of this city in gaining a livelihood?

It would be the means of employing at least 500 cigarmakers in our city.

This would mean a pay roll of about $10,000 per week. Pretty good sum of money to leave in our city, in place of sending it down East, don't you think so, Mr. Smoker?

To assist the smoker in making his selection, the following list of home-made cigars are highly recommended. Give them a trial.

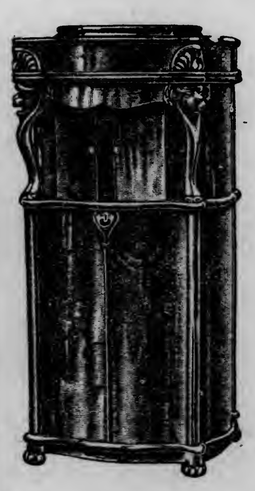
Columbia Grafonola

"De Luxe," $200 (With Regina Attachment, $225)

"Regent," $200 "Elite," $100



The Columbia Grafonola "De Luxe" $200.

With Regina Attachment and 12 Regina Tune-Discs, $225.

Built of Finest San Domingo mahogany. Full equipment of Indexed Record Albums.

The "Grafonola" marks the culmination of human inventive genius in the science of sound-reproduction. Here indeed is the one ideal and perfect musical instrument, long sought for and much desired—the evolution of years of costly experiment, and the crowning triumph of mechanical art in the reproduction of musical sound.

The Grafonola "De Luxe" is built of the finest selected San Domingo mahogany, hand-rubbed and brilliantly polished; it is gracefully appropriate in design, is entirely self-contained, and is utterly devoid of mechanical suggestion. As an interpreter or reproducer of music the Grafonola has no peer, possessing as it does the remarkable quality of practically unlimited versatility. The penetrating charm of a perfect violin solo, the poignant and sympathetic cadences of the 'cello, the dulcet tone of the wood-winds, the full, strong melody of the orchestra or band, and every finest modulation of the voices of the greatest singers in the world—all are reproduced equally well. The mechanical features of the Grafonola—at no time in evidence when the instrument is in operation—are perfect as only the acme of mechanical skill can make them. The record is inserted by merely lifting the hinged lid and placing the disc upon the turn-table, which accommodates any size or make of disc records. Through the Columbia patent tone-arm the tone-waves are led into a concealed sound-chamber, there amplified and projected toward the listener through an opening made by a pair of curved, sliding panels, regulatable at will, situated at the front of the cabinet.

Regina Attachment

The announcement that the Grafonola may be had with Regina attachment for the playing of metal discs will be met with enthusiasm by the host of music-lovers who find the Regina an indispensable factor in their musical enjoyment. The Regina is aptly named: It is the queen of the music-box family, and is to that class of music what the Grafonola proper is to its own wide domain of sound-reproduction. The two combined form an instrument of musical completeness and perfection hitherto unapproached.

A TRIBUTE TO EMMET

Irish of Duluth Honor Memory of Their Great Patriot.

More Than 1,200 People Attend Meeting at Cathedral Auditorium.

The celebration given last evening at the Cathedral auditorium of that great Irish patriot, Robert Emmet, was most successful in every way. The hall was packed to the doors, more than 1,200 people being in attendance.

The program rendered was one of the best ever arranged in the city and was greatly enjoyed by those in attendance. The auditorium was beautifully decorated in colors and around the hall were hung pictures of Ireland's greatest sons. The stage was adorned with a large picture of Robert Emmet, which was draped with the colors of Ireland and America. A large illuminated harp of green and gold, studded with many incandescent lights, occupied a prominent position on the stage.

"Echoes from Ireland," rendered by the Crusaders' orchestra, was much enjoyed. "Motherland," by the Cathedral high school glee club, was well rendered and appreciated.

Mrs. Edward P. Kreimer sang "Killarney." The old song was so well rendered that Mrs. Kreimer was forced to respond to an encore, which was enthusiastically called for.

"Kathleen Mavourneen" was sung by Miss Bessie Murphy of Virginia. The violin and harp accompaniment by the Misses Margaret and Josephine Murphy helped to make the number one of the most notable of the evening. Others who appeared on the program and whose efforts were not only appreciated but enthusiastically received were: Frank T. McNally and Edward Dillon. Mr. McNally contributed "Kelly, Burke and Shea." Edward Dillon's solo, "Ave Maria," was enjoyable in the extreme.

Joseph Murphy of Superior sang a few Irish songs and completely took the audience with his rendition of the same, being recalled three times.

The program as a whole was the best ever presented by Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, under whose auspices the celebration was given.

Address on Emmet.

James P. Boyle of Eveleth delivered the principal address, which was on "Robert Emmet."

The speaker told of the life and work of the man who is loved even to this day by Irish people all over the world. The address aroused the audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

Mr. Boyle said in part:

"We read in Irish history of men who laid down their lives for Ireland amid the roar and crash of battle, of others who perished by the headsman's ax or the halter of the hangman, of those whose eyes were closed forever in the gloom of English dungeons and of many whose hearts broke amid the sorrows of involuntary exile.

"They are neither forgotten nor unhonored. But when we speak of Robert Emmet the figure that rises before our eyes is that of a peculiarly lovable being, one who had youth, talent, social position, a fair share of fortune and bright prospects for the future when he embarked in the service of a cause that had been sunk in defeat and ruin.

"He might have escaped the country had his personal safety been all that he cared for, but within his heart was one affection that was coexistent with his love for Ireland, and that was his intense affection for Sarah Curran—a woman so fair and gentle and good that even a colder heart than his might have seen in her the personification of his beloved Erin. She returned his affection and knowing this he would not leave the country without an interview with her. The delay was fatal to his chances of escape. For more than a month he remained in concealment protected by the fidelity of his friends many of whom belonged to the humbler classes of life and one of whom in particular—Anne Devlin, from whom neither proffered bribes nor cruel torture could extort a single hint as to his place of abode, should ever be held in grateful remembrance by Irishmen.

"Finally, however, he was arrested and put on trial for high treason. He entered no defense beyond making a few remarks in the course of the proceedings with a view to the moral and political justification of his conduct. The jury without leaving the box returned a verdict of guilty against him, and then Emmet being asked why sentence of death should not be pronounced upon him, delivered the memorable speech, every line of which is known and dear to the hearts of the Irish race.

"At noon the following day he mounted the scaffold with firm and composed demeanor; a minute or two more and the lifeless body of one of the most gifted of God's creatures hung from the cross beams, strangled by the enemies of his country, cut off in the bloom of youth in the prime of his physical and intellectual powers because he had loved his land, hated her oppressors and striven to give freedom to her people.

"At his own request his epitaph was not written nor will it be until his country takes her stand among the nations of the earth, but wherever on the globe a few members of the scattered Irish race are to be found there are hearts that are thrilled by even the faintest allusion to the uninscribed grave stone and the unwritten epitaph."

ALUMNI IN FAVOR OF PLAN

Think Building Would Be Fitting Tribute to President Northrop.

Graduates of the state university who live here favor the movement started last week to erect a men's building on the varsity campus, as a tribute to the genius of President Cyrus Northrop, whose resignation was accepted conditionally a yearago.

Rev. J. C. Faries, a member of the class of 1886, said that Dr. Northrop holds a warm place in the hearts of those who have gone to the "U" during his presidency. Mr. Faries hoped that the needed sum, $400,000, would be subscribed within a year.

Rev. John Walker Powell, '93, declared that no more fitting tribute could be tendered Dr. Northrop, who by his labors has endeared himself to the citizens of the state as well as the alumni and students of the university.

ALLDS DEFIES HIS ACCUSERS

Makes Open Statement Regarding His Personal Affairs.

Albany, N. Y., March 5.—Senator Jonathan P. Allds grasped the nettle yesterday, but whether his boldness will save him from being stung, only another week can show. On the witness stand at the senate investigation he voluntarily opened his bank books and the records of his business transactions for the last nine years, and dared his accusers to find there anything to strengthen their assertion that in 1901 he took a $1,000 bribe.

He admitted that he was retained as attorney by the New York Central and Lackawanna railroads, two of the most important public service corporations in the state.

Allds' direct testimony, his counsel say, is nearly over, but his cross-examination and witnesses for his side will take some time and the examination will extend over into the third week in March.

BLACK HAND AFTER TENOR ENRICO CARUSO.

New York, March 5.—Enrico Caruso, the tenor, is quaking with something worse than stage fright. The Black Hand has demanded $15,000 or his life, in two successive letters. There is some disposition among his friends to regard the letters as an ill-judged practical joke, but Caruso is convinced that his days are numbered and will not venture out of his room without a bodyguard.

ONE PACKER IS TAKEN TO COURT

James H. Bathgate, Jr., Held in $2,500 Bail Under Indictment.

New York, March 5.—James H. Bathgate, Jr., of Orange, N. J., was arraigned in Jersey City yesterday on the indictment charging him and other beef packers with conspiracy in restraint of trade. He was held in $2,500 bail for trial. The bail was furnished. Bathgate is the New Jersey representative on the board of directors of the National Packing company and Swift & Co.

Prosecutor Garven will go to Washington on Monday to confer with Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee investigating the increased cost of living. He would not tell his purpose. Chemists and others employed in the cold storage investigations in Hudson county testified before the grand jury yesterday afternoon.

MURDERS MAN TO GET GUN TO KILL WOMAN.

Kansas City, Mo., March 5.—Louis Hilson, who in a fit of jealousy killed Mrs. Grace Gayou and then committed suicide here last Monday night, inflicted death also on William M. Kinder, night watchman at an ice plant, to obtain the revolver from which the fatal shots were fired. Kinder was killed with a hatchet.

PRODUCE MEN SAY THAT ROADS OVERCHARGE THEM.

Washington, March 5.—Charges that the Northern Pacific Railway company, the Great Northern Railway company and the Great Northern Express comptny are exacting excessive, oppressive and unfair rates on cream and butter have been made before the interstate commerce commission by the Minnesota Butter & Cream company and various other butter manufacturers in the Northwest.

Job for Payne, Jr.

Washington, March 5.—William K. Payne of New York has been appointed a deputy assistant attorney general in charge of government customs litigation, taking the place of H. Frank Lloyd, recently confirmed as assistant attorney general in charge of such business. Mr. Payne is a son of Representative Payne of New York.

Probe Steenerson Charges.

Washington, March 5.—The charge made on the floor of the house by Representative Steenerson, Republican, of Minnesota, that improper influences were at work to obtain the passage a ship subsidy bill through congress caused a special meeting of the house judiciary committee yesterday. As a result a sub-committee was appointed consisting of Representatives Sterling of Illinois, Malby of New York, Republicans, and Brantley of Georgia, Democrat, to hear Representative Steenerson and determine whether an investigation shall be made of the charges.

Pneumonia follows a cold but never follows the use of Foley's Honey and Tar which stops the cough, heals the lungs and expels the cold from the system. Sold by all druggists.

HEEDED NOT THE ORDERS OF COURT

Charles Berg Is Held in Contempt By District Judge.

Charles Berg was up before Judge Ensign of the district court late yesterday afternoon to show why he should not be held in contempt of court. Berg had been ordered to stay away from the house occupied by his wife and he evidently thought the court orders a joke for he visited the house on the night the order was served. After a severe lecture, Judge Ensign suspended sentence pending his good behavior.

Mrs. Berg in her complaint for divorce claims that her husband partakes freely of the flowing bowl and then comes home to smash furniture, drive her from the house and threaten the lives of her and the children.

JUDGE IS SENT TO PRISON FOR BRIBERY.

New York, March 5.—Convicted of bribery, City Magistrate Furlong, stood before the supreme court yesterday and heard Judge Kapper sentence him to Sing Sing for an indeterminate term, the maximum of which is two years and one month and the minimum one year. Judge Kapper said:

"This defendant's conviction forfeits office. It forever disqualifies him from holding office and deprives him of his citizenship. These facts, coupled with the recommendation of the jury for mercy, induce me to impose this sentence."

WICKERSHAM WILL ARGUE CASE HIMSELF.

Washington, March 5.—Attorney General Wickersham has announced his intention of making an argument for the government in the suit now before the supreme court for the dissolution of the Standard Oil company. The case has been set for March 14. Mr. Wickersham made an argument in the tobacco cases. Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, special counsel for the government in the Standard Oil suit, has completed his brief in the case, the first proof of which has been submitted to the attorney general.

FRANK DAY MAY RETURN TO THE STATE SENATE.

St. Paul, Minn., March 5.—Frank A. Day, who returned yesterday from a three-weeks' trip through the South, intimated that he might return to the senate from Martin county in the not distant future. He said that Mayor Gaynor of New York seems to be gaining ground very rapidly in the South as a presidential candidate, and the people are getting stronger for him every day."

Thirty-Three Killed.

Juneau, Alaska, March 3.—Thirty-three miners were killed as a result of Wednesday night's powder explosion in the Mexican shaft of the Treadwell gold mines. Twenty-three bodies were taken out soon after the explosion, eight others were found in a later search and two died in a hospital. The dead men were mostly foreigners.

"Sunkist" Orange Special

SUNKIST ORANGES

SUNKIST LEMONS

An Entire Trainload of Oranges Coming on Special Express Schedule for Special "Sunkist" Orange Sale

Week Beginning March 7 1910

Your dealer—every dealer—will be supplied with fresh picked "Sunkist" oranges.

Here is fruit that is fresh as that eaten by your California friends, for it comes to you as fast as this special express freight train can bring it. It has the right of way wherever possible. The California Fruit Growers' Exchange can allow "Sunkist" oranges to fully mature on the tree because they get them to you so quickly after picking.

Picked By Gloved Hands

Picked by experts wearing gloves to keep the deep tinted skin intact — thus insuring perfect oranges. "Sunkist" oranges are tree-ripened — observe the deep tinted skin — that's Nature's guarantee for the matured lusciousness within. There are no other oranges like these. Place them on your table at every meal. Your family will appreciate "Sunkist" oranges as they do no other food.

Physicians recommend oranges for their food value to brain and nerve cells.

Be Sure You Get "Sunkist" Oranges

In order that you get the choicest of the 5,000 groves in which "Sunkist" oranges are grown, be sure the oranges you buy are wrapped in tissue paper upon which is printed the "Sunkist" label. Oranges without this wrapper are not "Sunkist" oranges. Insist upon getting "Sunkist" oranges only—then you are insured of the finest fruit it is possible to grow.

"Sunkist" Lemons

are rich in strong lemon juices. They are thin-skinned, firm, tree-ripened and hand-picked. They answer every purpose better than any other lemon in the world. That's because they are carefully cultivated by most expert hands.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

SWOPE WILL PROBATED.

Estate Amounts to Approximately Four Million Dollars.

Kansas City, Mo., March 5.—Dr. E. L. Stewart, a bacteriologist, was the principal witness before the Swope grand jury yesterday. Dr. Stewart has stated that Dr. B. C. Hyde borrowed an active typhoid culture from him last November.

Col. Thomas Swope owned property in this county valued at $3,433,700, according to his will, which was probated yesterday. Property the late millionaire philanthropist owned in Tennessee, Kentucky and other states increases the total value of the estate to almost $4,000,000.

The largest bequests of the property situated here were made to the unmarried children of Mrs. Logan O. Swope, sister-in-law of Col. Swope, each of whom was given $410,000. Mrs. Frances Hyde, wife of Dr. B. C. Hyde, was given $276,000.

Chrisman Swope, nephew, who died since the death of Col. Swope, was a beneficiary to the extent of $410,000, but his share will now be divided equally among the other heirs. About $100,000 is given to charitable institutions.

AVERAGE MAN AND RELIGION

Pastor Will Give Series of Three Sermons on Novel Theme.

The attitude of the average man toward religion and the church will be the basis of a series of three sermons by Rev. John Walker Powell, pastor of the Endion Methodist church.

The first will be given tomorrow morning on the religion of the average man. The second will deal with the average man's creed, and the third will relate to the average man and the church.

HAVE ROW OVER PEARY.

Representatives and Geographers in Clash at Capitol.

Washington, March 5.—Proofs of Commander Peary's discovery of the North Pole caused a row in the subcommittee of the house committee on naval affairs yesterday. Two members of the National Geographic society appeared before the committee with copies of Mr. Peary's proofs to urge the granting of a suitable reward by congress to the noted explorer, but the committee declined to receive them in confidence, with the ultimate result that it was made known that unless the proofs are forthcoming to the full satisfaction of the committee, every bill introduced for the purpose of rewarding the North Pole discoverer will be pigeonholed.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

This year's senior class is the largest that ever graduated from Central. Last year's class surpassed all preceding classes in number, 112 graduating. This year there are about 122 who will graduate and at the end of the semester this number may be increased by some who are now making up back work.

Robert Donaldson is president of the 1910 class and takes much interest in its success. Donaldson was president of the class last year also and proved himself a capable leader.

All the Zenith work of the lower classes for their sections of the Zenith was handed in yesterday and the prize winners from the different classes announced.

In the junior class, the prize for the best story was awarded to Palmer Bevis. The title of his story is "The Mystery." For the best frontispiece Mildred Pruden drew the prize and Stanley Lamb's poem entitled "The City That Believes" was the winner.

The prize for the best story in the sophomore class was given to May Gibson, who wrote an Indian story, "A Tale of the Ojibways." John Currie was the winner in the contest for the best frontispiece and Dorothy Gibson for the best poem. Charles McDonald was awarded the prize for the best tail piece.

In the freshman class, Grace Kroman was awarded the frontispiece prize; Richard Cullum the best story, and George Cook the best tail piece. The best poem has not yet been decided upon, but will be awarded to either Sam Frantz or Marion Todd.

Much of the senior work is also in and Clifford Thorburn, editor-in-chief, says all the work will be in on time to avoid crowding as has happened to several former classes.

The Irving high school of West Duluth has sent a challenge to Central for a debate on the "Woman Suffrage Movement," the Central team to be picked from among the girls. Mr. Buck said this morning that the challenge had been accepted and a date will be set at a contestants' meeting next Tuesday.

All the girls in school are invited to try for the team and a large number have declared their intentions of doing so. Mr. Prakket, who is coaching the boys, will also have the coaching of the girls in his charge.

Just as chapel exercises were about to open Wednesday morning, Miss Taylor, who has been ill for the past few weeks appeared in the auditorium and was greeted with loud applause. Miss Taylor had not sufficiently recovered, however to resume her duties and returned home after chapel. She was also at school for a short time yesterday morning and says she will be ready to start work again Monday morning.

The pupils were rather surprised to learn of Arnold Olson's leaving school. Olson was a member of the football team the last two seasons and his loss will be felt next fall. Olson was popular at school and the good wishes of the whole school go with him.

* * *

Madeline Miller, vice president of the 1909 class was a visitor at school yesterday. Russel Holgate was a visitor Thursday.

* * *

On account of his many duties as editor-in-chief of the Zenith, Clifford Thorburn is unable to take the part assigned to him in the class play. Charles Kelley was changed from his part as Mr. Drew, to Thorburn's part as Jack Desmond. John Scanlon will act the part of Mr. Drew.

* * *

The pupils felt anything but blue last Monday when Mr. Buck spoke of the victories of the basket ball team at Ashland and of the debating team over Cloquet. The defeat of Nelson-Dewey Tuesday night added to the good feeling.

The basket ball team is in good shape at present and is very anxious to attend the Madison tournament.

Mr. Wheeler of the chemistry department was ill the latter part of the week and is now at his home in Minneapolis. He will not return until after the Easter vacation. Mr. Ulrich, who taught zoology and botany at Central last year is substituting for Mr. Wheeler.

* * *

Something new has been started in the form of character books. At first there were only one or two but now it seems all the girls in school are

The students are surely observing Lent as no social functions are being or will be held until after Easter. The sophomore spread has been set for April 1.

Mr. Wallace's United State's history classes took tests Wednesday and declare they were the hardest of the year.

* * *

It looks as though the sophomores are going to win the championship in the interclass league. The freshmen are fighting gamely, however, and may yet win out. "Morrey" Harris of the first team is coaching the freshmen and Ralph Waldron is helping the sophomores.

PHILADELPHIA'S BIG STRIKE IS ON; CITY FEARS DISTURBANCES

the day when the stop order went into effect last night. In the central part of the city the first persons to feel the effect of the mandate were the users of public hacks and taxicabs. Riders in these vehicles, when the clock struck midnight, were politely informed by the drivers that it would be necessary to walk the remainder of the way.

Non-Union Cabbies Quit.

Even the non-union "cabbies" whether from sympathy with the carmen or fear of injury, withdrew from the streets. The drivers of the two taxicab services in the city joined the ranks of the strikers and many late diners out were unable to obtain conveyances.

The printers remained at work, their committee voting not to join the strike, although many of the job men were anxious to join in the demonstration. Philadelphia thus will not be deprived of its newspapers.

The waiters in the fashionable hotels and cafes did not make as strong a showing as had been expected. Although a few walked out a majority of those employed in the big hotels continued to wait on tables after midnight.

Authorities Fear Violence.

More than the tie-up of business, the authorities fear the thronging of the thousands of idle persons on the streets and the disorder that almost inevitably ensues. Since the trolley strike was begun two weeks ago today, the greatest disturbances have occurred on the days when work was generally suspended—Sundays and Saturday afternoons.

A great meeting of organized labor scheduled at historic Independence Hall this afternoon to participate in a peaceful demonstration in behalf of the carmen's union, has been prohibited by a proclamation issued by the mayor, because a permit had not been applied for to hold the demonstration. It also had been planned that a monster street parade would follow the meeting.

Mayor Issues Proclamation.

The mayor in the proclamation says: "The hour of this assembly is fixed at 3 o'clock. No application has been presented for a permit, nor has permission been granted by lawful authority for the said assembly."

The mayor then reiterated his proclamation issued Feb. 20, calling upon persons using the streets to observe strictly the law in these respects: to use the streets for travel only; to make no unnecessary stops; not to loiter upon the streets; not to collect in crowds; to make no outcries, nor use insulting language; to move peaceably on about one's business.

Continuing, the mayor says:

"The intended assembly would be in violation of said proclamation and will endanger the public safety. All law abiding citizens are warned against assembling in Independence square or in the vicinity thereof, or the highways or any open property adjacent thereon, or in any other open locality, as the police have been ordered to disperse any and all such assemblages."

Few Ride on Cars.

The Rapid Transit company has nearly 1,000 street cars in operation today, out of a total of more than 2,000, but they are not carrying the same number of passengers as on other days of this week. The big strike has made thousands of people apprehensive of trouble, and they are not seeking injury by riding on the cars.

Exempts Some Unions.

The Committee of Ten has taken action which is calculated to prevent as far as possible real suffering by the general public. An order was issued exempting from the strike union employes of the city water works, the electric light plant, drivers of funeral carriages and employes in hospitals and homes.

"This order was thought to be no more than just to the public," said Secretary Charles Hope. "We desire to make our protest, but we do not wish to cause a serious condition which would result if these places were affected."

As for strike benefits, leaders estimated that the men who stopped work would receive from the national and local associations, $7 a week. The patternmakers and moulders will get $12 a week while out. Other strikers will receive $6. The national organizations as a rule are said to have a well filled treasury at present.

Bricklayers Go Out.

Waiting until the last moment to declare their attitude, Bricklayers' Union No. 1 of Pennsylvania last night voted unanimously to join in the general strike. For many reasons great importance had been attached to the decision made by this body. The organization is the only one of its kind in the city. It has 2,000 members, and is not affiliated with the Central Labor union. It is an independent body and is known as a conservative organization.

YOUNG'S ADROIT BID FOR SUPPORT BEFORE COUNTY OPTION MEN

optionists. Doubt is expressed in quarters, usually well informed, that Mr. Young can capture the nomination. While admittedly a strong man, his conduct of the office of attorney general estranged many of those who usually have a say when it comes to arranging the slates in advance of the conventions, and it is not considered probable that the regular Republican convention will listen to Mr. Young's friends.

Option Plank Improbable.

The conviction seemed so strong with the delegates at the close of the convention that there is little if any hope of either of the great political parties adopting a county option plank in their next state conventions and that an independent ticket is inevitable. It is conceded by nearly every one that the Democratic party, historically the party of personal liberty and opposed to all sumptuary legislation, cannot be expected to seize on the issue, and Governor Eberhart and his friends are apparently so intrenched behind the machinery of the Republican party that they will not yield up the reins of the party organization and permit its domination by an entirely new political faction differing with them on methods of control of the liquor traffic. Nothing remains therefore for the friends of county option but to continue to perfect their organization and, when the two regular political parties have made their nominations and adopted their platforms, to name candidates of their own for governor and lieutenant governor, indorsing such legislative candidates as are pledged to their platform. It is expected that the advocates of the doctrine will make every effort to press their views on both the Republican and Democratic state conventions and they are expected to constitute a respectable minority in the Republican state convention, but not sufficient to dominate its deliberations. Every indication points to the most spectacular campaign in the fall of 1910 that Minnesota has ever seen, and it is very generally admitted that all the chances of war favor the Democratic party being again victorious at the polls in November.

Representative J. N. Johnson of Canby, who presided over the county option convention for a time, is said by the leaders to be their choice for speaker of the next house. On the other hand reports from Yellow Medicine county say that Johnson will contest with Senator Virgil B. Seward for the Republican nomination for the senate. Johnson is personally noncommittal on the subject of his ambitions, but numbers of his friends at St. Paul this week greeted him as "Mr. Speaker." He is considered an able man and is said to be strong at home. He was a marked insurgent from Speaker Rockne's rule in the last house and was in disfavor with the members who organized and controlled the house. Johnson stood for advanced theories of government, including direct legislation, but failed to get his measures enacted into law.

Jacobson and Expediency.

Loud applause at the county option convention greeted President Youngdahl's designation of J. F. Jacobson of Lac qui Parle county as "the man who would rather be right than governor." It was admitedly a nice little bit of alliterative oratory, but the facts when disclosed somehow do not bear out the truth of the statement. "I have a pretty good memory," said a prominent Republican leader who was a spectator at the convention," and I don't recall an instance of where Mr. Jacobson refused to sacrifice principle to expediency in the campaign where he was a candidate for governor. It is remembered that his nomination was made possible by a combination of the liquor crowd with other interests in Minnesota, and Jake kept faith with his new-found friends by declining to take a stand against them in the campaign. After the election, when he had been defeated by Governor Johnson by nearly 30,00 votes, he told close friends that he had made the political mistake of his life; that had he grasped the new issue the day after he was nominated he would have been easily elected. Undoubtedly Jacobson is entitled to credit for remaining loyal to those who had brought about his nomination, but he is entitled to no crown of glory or harp of gold at this late date." This sentiment was echoed by a good many people who have fairly retentive memories, when Mr. Youngdahl in his zeal idealized the redoubtable Jacobson in the Auditorium meeting.

Jacobson and Young, both candidates before the last state Republican convention for the nomination for governor, the former successful only to be defeated at the election, and the latter to go down to defeat in the convention, are openly charged by Republican leaders with fomenting trouble in the Republican camp, simply in a desire to wreck vengeance on those whom they believe either in the convention or election played them false. Friends of Governor Eberhart are particularly bitter in their denunciation of the two leaders and insist that there is another day of reckoning coming for them provided they are ever again candidates before the Republican party for public office in a state-wide sense.

Strength of the Movement.

These leaders profess to believe that the magnitude of the county option movement is greatly overestimated by its leaders, and that when the real test comes at the polls its advocates will be found pretty generally lined up with their respective political parties prepared to follow their old leaders and to subscribe to their declarations of principles, even though, as is now expected, county option is not made a part of the declaration of faith of either party. Ramsey and Hennepin sent the largest proportionate number of delegtaes, variously estimated at 200 and 300 respectively. Kandiyohi had over 100, Wright and Goodhue had big delegations and the total estimate of 1,800 was made of delegates from the comparatively nearby counties with the large delegations named. There are undoubtedly counties where the sentiment favoring county option amounts to practically nothing and where its friends will have nothing to say as to the personnel of the delegations to the county conventions, while there are a dozen or more counties in the state where adherence to the county option faith will be made the absolute test of eligibility to one's desire to go to the Republican state convention. It is not expected that the issue will be put forward with any degree of vigor in the Republican primaries in Ramsey, Hennepin and St. Louis and the delegates from these counties will not care to cultivate the issue in the state convention. Well-informed Republican leaders insist that they have absolutely no fears of the county optionists capturing their state convention, and say, while they would be glad to have harmony, they prefer defeat at the election rather than victory at the cost of turning over the party management to the aposles of the new issue. "We can stand a beating just as well as any one else," one of them said at the close of the convention. "We have no more to lose than they and, besides, we Republican leaders in Minnesota are not unused to being trimmed about every two years. But we are not going to lose. These fellows may represent the churches and some temperance societies, but they come a long way from representing the Republican party of Minnesota."

Williams' Appointment.

Governor Eberhart has settled the fight for the place conceded to the county on the board of regents of the university. M. M. Williams of Little Falls was this week named to succeed the late S. M. Owen of Minneapolis. The considerations were said to enter into Mr. Williams' selection, the first and the paramount one being to placate the Lindbergh men in the Sixth district, who were up in arms over the appointment of H. A. Rider, their archenemy, as executive agent of the game and fish commission. The other was the recognition of the farmers on the board. It is now currently reported that both considerations sought were not reached. It is told that owing to a mix-up over the Little Falls postoffice Mr. Williams and Congressman Lindbergh are not so friendly as of yore. The congressman has recommended Ethan Brown for appointment as postmaster. The term of the incumbent expired Feb. 19, but the postmaster general is holding up the appointment to further discipline the Sixth district insurgent congressman. Mr. Williams is understood to be backing the incumbent for reappointment. There is said to be a feeling because of his action. Morrison county people smile when they read in the Twin City newspaper that Mr. Williams' appointment is a recognition of the farmers. They say he is the same kind of a farmer as Mr. Hill, the late Mr. Lowry, Mr. Hartley, Mr. Davidson, Mr. Severance and other tillers of the soil by proxy. The newspapers printed the story of Mr. Williams' avocation in good faith. Current reports are that they will not be bunkoed again. Williams has not held public office other than a service on the state forestry board to which he was reappointed by Governor Johnson.

A North Dakota Rumor.

There are reports from North Dakota that "Doc" Purcell, recently appointed United States senator for that state, may go on the Republican primary election ballot as a candidate for election to the senate. Senator Purcell is a Democrat and was appointed as such. It is understood that he will be a candidate for return to the senate. Under the North Dakota primary election law he can by a petition, signed by 300 persons, have his name put on the election ballot and be voted upon by the Republican electors as well as the Democrats. Should he get 40 per cent of the total vote his name will come regularly before the legislature to be voted upon. The law deos not make it mandatory upon members to vote for the party choice for the United States senate, but the moral effect of a big vote for Purcell in the Republican primaries would undoubtedly be of value in the fight when it comes on for settlement in the legislature.

Buckman for Marshal.

Late rumors connect Former Congressman C. B. Buckman of Little Falls with an appointment as United States marshal for Minnesota. Mr. Buckman was recently appointed deputy marshal to succeed H. A. Rider, appointed by the governor as executive agent of the game and fish commission. It is said that Mr. Buckman took the appointment more to keep a political rival from being appointed than because he wanted it for himself. Be this as it may, the story goes that the two Minnesota senators have agreed that when there is a vacancy in the marshal's office Mr. Buckman is to be named. Marshal W. H. Grimshaw has held the office a long time, his health has been precarious for several months and his resignation may be made in the interest of harmony. Mr. Buckman was defeated four years ago for return to congress by C. A. Lindbergh, who has since achieved almost national lame as an insurgent.

Dunn for the Legislature.

Republicans of the Forty-fifth district have about made up their minds that R. C. Dunn's present political ambition is to serve a term in the lower house of the legislature. Senator C. J. Swanson is sure of a return to the senate from the Forty-fifth, but the house positions are not so well apportioned. Isanti county will undoubtedly be conceded one member, Mille Lacs was without representation in the last house and its turn comes this year, and the other position will probably be left to a decision of the Sherburne county Republicans. Senator Swanson lives in Anoka county and this district will probably concede the right of the other three counties to fix it up among themselves. Andrew Davis, it is said, does not care materially about a reelection and Frank T. White is likewise said to be indifferent. One of these two or possibly C. D. Schwab of Clear Lake will likely be the third member. Mr. Dunn is universally popular in his district, and if he will consent to run the use of his name there is no doubt of his nomination and election. It is said that the former state auditor wants a place in the house to put forward his plans for good roads legislation. This is his primary object in seeking an election, but it is considered probable that his plans contemplate reforms in the selling of state lands, the development of Northern Minnesota and the paying off a few political scores.

Opsahl May Oppose Alderman.

The settlement of the Brainerd postoffice by the reappointment of N. H. Ingersoll in the face of violent opposition by Congressman Lindbergh is said to be bringing trouble for one of Mr. Ingersoll's closest personal and political friends in the person of Senator S. F. Alderman. J. J. Opsahl, the other aspirant for the postoffice, is credited with an intention to become an active and aggressive candidate for the Republican nomination to the senate in the Forty-eighth now held by Senator Alderman. He charges his defeat for the postoffice to Senator Alderman's influence with the two senators from Minnesota, and it is understood that he will have strong support from Lindbergh's Morrison county friends. It is claimed that he will split the Republican vote in Crow Wing and get the better end of the argument in Morrison. This result would give him the nomination. Cornelius O'Brien, a prominent Brainerd busfness man, is being talked of for the Democratic nomination in the Forty-eighth.

ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY

C. H. Van Dervort Given Maximum Fine By Judge Windom.

C. H. Van Dervort, manager of the Macbeth-Gardner company at 206 West Michigan street, arrested for having thirty-nine decaying sheep carcasses in his possession, entered a plea of guilty in police court yesterday afternoon. He was fined the limit, $100 and costs, by Judge W. L. Windom.

Deputy Government Inspector J. H. Lee, who was recently sworn in as a city deputy to give him more jurisdiction in the city, said that the spoiling mutton was being sent to a "freezer" to be doctored, the presumption being that after it was frozen to remove as much of the odor as possible, it was to be sold if possible.

This was denied by Mr. Van Dervort, who said that the carcasses were only being kept pending the arrival of the auditor of the company to check them up, as he had no authority to destroy them. In court yesterday the reason given for the plea of guilty was that the firm is unable to have the meat examined by experts to determine its actual condition. Inspector Lee stated that he had anticipated this and had six carcasses in cold storage where they could be examined at any time. He said no demand for an investigation of that kind has been made upon him at any time.

WEST END

SEVENTY-SEVEN NEW MEMBERS

Seventy-seven new members were admitted to the French Naturalization club of the West end last evening at the regular bi-weekly meeting held at the St. Jean Baptiste hall, on West Third street, near Twenty-fifth avenue.

The organization now embraces about 320 members and nearly 200 attended the meeting last evening. A brief business session was held, at which the new members were admitted, and this was followed by a social session and a wrestling match.

The meeting was opened by the singing of a French patriotic song. Musical numbers were given by J. De Froche, Joe Du Fresne, J. and Z. Le Fevre, and talks were given by M. J. Filiatrault, M. Loysel and J. Le Moignant. The social session took on the torm of a smoker.

One of the chief amusements of the evening was the wrestling match, in which H. Belanger took two straight falls from Martin Burdash in thirty-one minutes. The men wrestled catch-as-catch-can fashion. Burdash was the loser in the first fall in sixteen minutes and in the second one he lasted fifteen minutes.

Change Time of Service.

A change in the time for service has been announced at St. Paul's Lutheran church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street. Hereafter English services will be held in the evening instead of in the morning. The English services will be held on the first, third and fifth Sundays of each month. If the English services are well enough patronized, it is announced that they will be provided for every Sunday evening. A large new shield sign, in black and gold, has been hung on the church, a gift from the Luther guild of the church.

Resigns His Position.

A. L. Tetu, who has for the past eighteen years worked as general car foreman at the union depot, yesterday resigned his position. Mr. Tetu has not yet announced what his plans will be for the future. He has lived with his family in the West end for the past twenty-five years. They now reside at 2713 West Huron street.

West End Shortrails.

A "rat and rice" social is planned by the Young Ladies' Aid Society of the Zion Norwegian Lutheran church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, Wednesday, March 16.

Rev. A. Edstrom, former pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church at the West end, is in the city renewing acquaintances. He was pastor of the church for about six years.

Harry J. Hanley of Mandan, N. D., transacted business at the West end yesterday.

George Swanson of 2307 West First street who underwent an operation Thursday at a local hospital is said to be recovering.

William Peterson left yesterday for Mason City, Iowa, where he has purchased a farm and will live in the future.

Elmer Anderson returned yesterday from a trip to the Twin Cities.

Miss Jennie Goodwin of Shakopee, Minn., is the guest of relatives at the West end.

Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church who has been attending the county option convention at St. Paul returned to the West end last evening. He lives at 2212 West Third street.

"Men, Maids and Matchmakers" is the name of a play which the Christian Endeavor Society of the Second Presbyterian church is planning to present early in April. Rehearsals are now being held.

Rev. J. J. Daniels, pastor of the Swedish Mission church returned last evening from St. Paul where he attended the county option convention.

Counterfeits.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trademark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents, and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Conger Bros. of St. Paul, Minn., say: "Fletcher's Castoria is certainly full of merit and worthy of recommendation."

C. G. A. Loder, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "For 20 years we have sold Fletcher's Castoria and are pleased to state that it has given universal satisfaction."

The Scholtz Drug Co., of Denver, Colo., says: "Fletcher's Castoria has surely become a household word. Seemingly every family where there are children uses it."

Hoagland & Mansfield, of Boston, Mass., say: "We have nothing but good to say about your Castoria and we do not hesitate to give it our unqualified endorsement."

Riker's Drug Stores, of New York City, say: "Fletcher's Castoria is one of the oldest and most popular preparations in our stores. We have nothing but good to say about it."

Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., of St. Louis, Mo., says: "Of the thousands of patent medicines for which we have demand there are a very few of them that we can conscientiously recommend and your Castoria is included in this few."

D. R. Dyche & Co., of Chicago, Ills., say: "The increasing demand for your Castoria shows that a discriminating public is not slow to seek out a remedy of merit and once convinced that it does all and even more than claimed they do not hesitate to recommend it to their friends."

The Owl Drug Co., of San Francisco, Cal., says: "We have always been a believer in the 'original man protection' and have been particular never to sell anything but the genuine and original Castoria (Fletcher's). We have many calls every day for this article from people who say they would not be without it in their homes."

OBJECTS TO INSANE PLEA

Charles Moline on Trial for His Life Takes Exceptions to Claim.

Is Equally Positive That His Mother, Also Accused, Is Insane.

Rugby, N. D., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Moline on trial in the district court here for killing his father, objects to the plea of insanity his counsel has interposed in the hope of saving his life. During the tedious task of selecting a jury, which began yesterday morning and was resumed this morning, Moline became very restive under the questions his counsel asked prospective jurors about their views on the conviction of an insane person for murder. Once during the proceedings Moline became enraged and declared he was not insane, but he was equally positive that his mother, who is also accused of being implicated in the crime, is not right mentally.

Another Panel Ordered.

Before court adjourned last night a panel of thirty jurors had been exhausted and six were in the jury box when court adjourned. The judge directed that another panel be issued, returnable this morning.

It is expected a jury will be secured today and the opening statements of counsel may be made before court adjourns.

When the taking of testimony commences Monday morning a long string of witnesses will be on hand. Three of the witnesses will be Moline's brothers and sisters, who were present when the accused man is supposed to have mixed the poison which caused his father's death. The physicians attending, the sheriff and coroner of Pierce county, and Jack Daly, the Pierce county man who has just been freed from a long stay in the county jail, will also testify against Moline.

GREAT NORTHERN GATHERING TIES

Action Starts Reports of Railroad's Intentions as to Building.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Train crews are hauling ties to the material yards of the Great Northern in this city and before the work is completed in the neighborhood of 150,000 ties will be piled up there—enough to construct 100 miles of new railway. What the company wants with all this material in this section is creating comment. The road officials announce that these ties are to be used to replace the old ones on the Warroad branch, but as this line has new ties throughout its whole length with the exception of a few miles south of this city, this hardly seems possible.

There have been rumors in circulation that the Great Northern was going to build a line from Thief River Falls to Bagley in Clearwater county, southeast of this city, and run the passenger trains from Warroad over this cutoff to the Twin Cities, instead of by way of Crookston at at present. Then again surveyors have been all over the territory northeast of here this fall and the ties may be used in the construction of a line in that direction. There is no question but that this country will soon be occupied by a railway, and while it is generally believed that the Soo will get into this section first, it is possible that the Great Northern may not wait until competing lines occupy all the best territory, but will itself take the initial move.

WORKING FOR FACTORY.

Bemidji Commercial Club Trying to Secure Sugar Establishment.

Bemidji, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bemidji Commercial club is determined to do everything possible to secure for Bemidji a sugar beet factory and will leave nothing undone during the next few months to bring the matter to a definite point.

J. J. Opsahl, Al H. Jester and G. Carson have been appointed a committee to attend the Minnesota conservation congress, in St. Paul, with instructions to at that time consult F. H. Fiagel, president of the Carver County Sugar company, relative to the building of a sugar beet factory here, and to request him to visit Bemidji.

The Commercial club is desirous of demonstrating to the Carver County Sugar company at their factory at Chaska, that sugar beets raised in Beltrami county are unexcelled in their production of sugar.

ROCKLAND LOSS $30,000.

Fire in Michigan Town Most Disastrous in Its History.

Rockland, Mich., March 5.—The fire here early Wednesday was easily the most disastrous in the history of the town, the total loss being about $30,000.

The Isenberg building, which contained a meat market, general store and grocery, and the saloon of Richard Callahan, suffered the greatest loss, being the larger portion of the block destroyed. The village hall or opera house was located in the upper floor extending over the saloon and the Isenberg store. The Dubuque building, adjoining, occupied by La Plante's liquor store, was completely destroyed, involving a loss of $2,000 or $3,000. The dwelling house belonging to Robert Eave was scorched on one side nearest the buildings destroyed, and the windows on that side were broken, but otherwise was not badly damaged, while a blacksmith shop owned by Robert Brown in the rear of the block was damaged to the extent of $200.

A log house one story high on the side of the block opposite to that occupied by the La Plante saloon was burned down. The family occupying it escaped safely, but lost a large portion of their furniture.

CARBON IS ACQUITTED.

St. Paul Man Accused of Pass Frauds Wins Verdict.

St. Paul, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Carbon is not guilty of larceny in the second degree in connection with the celebrated trip pass frauds. It took the jury five minutes to determine this. The second indictment against Carbon goes over until the March term of court.

Carbon was accused of obtaining transportation valued at $120 from the Great Northern railroad on Oct. 1 last, under the pretense that he was to use it in shipping laborers to the Great Northern construction work at Mount Vernon, Wash. It was alleged that Carbon disposed of this to one Gabriel J. Sarkis, a detective in the employ of the Great Northern, who represented himself as a laboring man.

IS AGAIN POSTPONED.

Interior Department Puts Off the Chippewa Land Opening.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The interior department again has postponed the opening to settlement of the ceded portion of the Chippewa lands, about 40,000 acres lying around Cass Lake and Deer River which were to have been opened March 13, according to advices received by the local land office.

The withdrawal of the land for a third time is made because the department needs the time to facilitate the exchange of allotments from lands in the limits of the national forest reserves for those outside.

This exchange cannot be effected in the time required, hence the department withdraws the tract from homestead entry one year or until March, 1911.

IDENTIFIES FIRE VICTIM.

Jesse Mots Lost His Life in Polk County Blaze.

Bemidji, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John Mendall claims that the unknown man who burned to death in the destruction of camp 6 at Chester, Polk county, Feb. 19, was her son by a former marriage and that his name was Jesse Mots.

KILLS HIMSELF WHEN PATROL WAGON COMES.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Determined to prevent his removal to a hospital for examination as to his sanity, George Will, aged 20, killed himself with a shotgun in front of his home Thursday afternoon, just as a patrol wagon backed up to the curb.

Will had just stepped to the sidewalk from the front door when he took his life. Although a physician stood at his side, the medical man did not anticipate any demonstration or unwillingness on the part of Will to go.

MINNESOTA MEN ARE IN NEW BOWESMONT, N. D., BANK

Bowesmont, N. D., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new bank here, taking the place of the one recently closed, has been opened. J. W. Wheeler of Crookston, Minn., is the principal stockholder, and the other stockholders are N. J. Nelson, East Grand Forks; Edward Florence, Humbolt, Minn.; J. F. McKay, Bowesmont; A. T. Everson, Bowesmont, and C. W. Clow, Backoo. The institution has a capital of $10,000 and is known as the First State bank of Bowesmont.

Ralph Sowle, the cashier of the old bank, now charged with forgery, left yesterday for Minneapolis.

SOO TRAIN DITCHED.

Kenmare, N. D., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The eastbound Soo passenger train on the road's wheat line went into the ditch at Norman, a blind siding east of here, yesterday afternoon, going through a switch some one had left open. All three coaches left the track. Fireman Russell had a leg broken while the passengers were badly shaken up but none seriously injured.

COMMERCIAL CLUB TO ELECT ON MONDAY.

East Grand Forks, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next Monday evening the Commercial club will hold its annual election of officers. At present there are two candidates for the position of president, J. C. Sherlock and G. A. E. Finlayson. Likewise there are two candidates for the office of vice president, N. J. Nelson and D. Arneson. J. R. Johnson is unopposed for treasurer, while J. H. McNichol has a clear field for secretary.

Hurt in Onamia Hotel Fire.

Pine River, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. F. Kline has returned home fro Onamia, Minn., where he sustained serious injurv in a hotel fire. When he awakened and tried to get from his room he found all avenues of escape cut off except the window and, in leaping to the ground from the second story, he sustained fractured ribs, slight internal injuries and a badly wrenched back.

Green Bay Avalanche Victim.

Green Bay, Wis., March 5.—Earl Longcoy, whose name is mentioned in the dispatches as among the known dead in the Great Northern train disaster, is a Green Bay boy. He left here about two months ago for Washington. His mother, Mrs. Lucy Longcoy, and sister, Nettie, left here last week to live with him and they probably arrived the day he was killed. Longecy was the sole support of his mother and sister. He was secretary to Division Supt. O'Neal.

East Grand Forks Man Dead.

East Grand Forks, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Nordlund, a resident of East Grand Forks the past six years, died yesterday following a long illness of consumption. He leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters and the funeral will be held Sunday afternoon.

Jury Disagrees In Damage Suit.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 5.—It took the jury in the case of Adolph Feller vs. the Soo railroad nineteen hours to come to the conclusion that it would be unable to agree on a verdict. Feller sued to recover $2,000 damages for the death of a team of horses which were killed near Kramer, N. D.

Deerwood License Fee.

Deerwood, Minn., March 5.—The village council passed an ordinance regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors. The license fee is placed at $1,000. There were three applicants for the one license which will be permitted, the applicants being H. C. Damkrueger, the proprietor of the new hotel being erected in the First addition; Gust W. Franson of Brainerd, and Harry J. Benson, formerly of Minneapolis.

Koochiching Fair.

Northome, Minn., March 5.—Special to The Herald.)—The directors of the Koochiching County Agricultural society met at Mizpah Wednesday and fixed the date for the next annual fair to be held at Northome on Sept. 12 and 13.

Threatens Murder and Suicide.

Windom, Minn., March 5.—F. Grobe, who operates a restaurant at Jeffers, became demented and threatened to commit suicide, after killing his family.

The sheriff was notified, who brought him into probate court at Windom, where Grobe was adjudged insane and committed to the asylum.

Dies at Walker Sanitarium.

Mankato, Minn., March 5.—Earl Bradley of this city died Wednesday at the sanitarium at Walker, where he has been spending several months taking treatment for tuberculosis. He was a son of Mrs. Emma V. Bradley, and was 27 years of age.

Calumet Elks Election.

Calumet, Mich., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Calumet lodge of Elks has elected officers for the ensping year, as follows: Exalted ruler, George Williams; leading knight, C. E. Thomas; loyal knight, Charles D. Hohl; lecturing knight, John J. Ellis, Jr.; secretary, Frank J. Distel, Jr.; treasurer, Frank J. Kohlhaase; tyler, Oyester Glaesen; trustee, for three years, John D. Wanderer Sent to Asylum.

Pembina, N. D., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Westbrook, who was recently taken in charge by county officials after he had wandered about the prairies, freezing both of his feet seriously, has been taken to the insane asylum at Jamestown.

North Dakota Field Meet.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dates for the annual field meet of the North Dakota high schools will be May 21 and 22 in Grand Forks under the direction of the University Athletic association.

Walks to Town Thinly Dressed.

Fertile, Minn., March 5.—Pending the determination as to his sanity Sorsen Sorrenson, a farmer living six miles from here is being detained by the authorities because of his strange action in walking to town the other night barefooted and clad only in his trousers and night shirt.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Fertile—Erick Hamery has returned from Montana, where he looked over the country and selected a claim near the Galata, taking 160 acres of homestead and 160 acres of desert land. Mr. Hamery in company with Martin Flom of Crookston bought a business lot in Galata and are having a building put up and will go into business of some kind.

St. Cloud—The rails and other material for building the spur car track to the Northern Pacific depot is on hand and work will be started just as soon as the ground dried up. The track will branch off from the Sauk Rapids line just across the first Great Northern crossing and will run across the field straight to the depot.

Brainerd—Spring water has been placed in the city schools. A contract has been made with J. M. Hayes to furnish water for the various buildings for one cent per pupil per month. This amounts to about $16.50 per month. The board of education has secured large earthen ware jars for use in each building.

Crookston—Little Raymond Brosseau, aged 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brosseau, of the Germania hotel, died just before midnight Wednesday night of brain fever, after an illness of about ten days. The funeral was held at 10:30 a. m. Friday from St. Anne's church.

Brainerd—Nelson Martineau, an old soldier, aged 80 years, died Thursday forenoon at the home of his daughter, 812 Fourth avenue. The funeral will be held Saturday.

Little Fork—The regular meeting of the Farmers' club will be held at the town hall on Saturday, March 19. The meeting will be of especial interest, and such important subjects as the future work along a dairy line, the shipping of vegetables, together with the outline of the work of the North Central Shippers' association, will be discussed.

Mankato—F. H. Pfeffer, who has held the local agency for the American Express company, has received a promotion in the appointment of route agent for that company in South Dakota and starts out on his new work Friday.

Stillwater—George A. Wilson, a young man who lives in Glen Haven, Mich., pleaded guilty in the municipal court Thursday morning to stealing an overcoat from George A. Carpenter of Hugo. He was committed to the county jail for thirty days in default of paying a fine of $15 and costs.

Middle River—R. J. McMahan has installed a toll line station in the Sjoberg store. Communication is now established over that line to Sandridge, Greenbush, Badger, Roseau and Warroad, and in a few days connections will be made with Crookston and points on the St. Vincent line.

Little Falls—Rev. W. H. North left Thursday for Livingston, Mont., from which city he has received a call to take charge of the Congregational church. Mr. North went to the western city to look over the field and to preach Sunday.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Grand Forks, N. D.—Louis Miller of Litchville, N. D., is being treated at the University health laboratory. This is the first time the Pasteur treatment for rabies has been used in North Dakota. Miller was bitten on the wrist three weeks ago.

Bismarck, N. D.—Twenty Northern Pacific freight cars ditched near Driscoll Thursday morning on account of a broken rail, held up for transcontinental passenger trains and six local trains six to ten hours. Two wrecking crews worked all day building tracks around the wreck. No one was hurt.

Fargo, N. D.—The Young Men's Christian association has added another feature to the physical department by introducing a class in fencing. George Henck, one of the popular business men of the city, who was for years connected with the German Turners' society of St. Paul, will have charge of the class.

Aberdeen, S. D.—F. W. Sallett of the Dakota Free Presse will erect a substantial brick building on the lot adjoining the Presse building at the corner of South Main street and Sixth avenue. The site of the new building is just north of the present paper office and is a choice piece of business property.

Devils Lake, N. D.—At the reorganization meeting of the Devils Lake Commercial club, which was very enthusiastic and largely attended, the following officers were elected: President, A. B. Kerlin; vice president, C. A. Dodge; treasurer, Ole Serumgard; board of directors, H. E. Baird, F. P. Mann, R. D. Daeley and the officers.

Minot, N. D.—Company D of the North Dakota National Guard was inspected Tuesday evening by Capt. E. S. Person, who was detailed for the occasion. Lieut. D. C. Mulick had charge of the company. The formality of inspection was gone through with in good form and the company was put through a number of maneuvers by the commanding officer.

Hillsboro, N. D.—Former Governor E. Y. Sarles of this city is organizing a trust, loan and savings company at Great Falls, Mont., with a capital of $200,000. Options have been secured on two desirable buildings and a state charter will be secured. The new concern will be ready to commence business April 15.

Grand Forks, N. D.—W. A. Collins has returned from Bismarck, where he represented the State Launderers' association at a hearing before the state railroad commission on the subject of express rates on laundry carriers. The laundry men are asking for a lower rate on the carriers.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—Fred Coughlin was bound over to trial in municipal court Thursday morning on the charge of non-support of his wife and abandonment. His bonds were fixed at $500.

Chippewa Falls—The remains of James O'Neill were laid to rest Thursday morning. Funeral services were held at Notre Dame church. Among those coming to attend the funeral were Charles O'Neill of Monches, Mrs. James Flynn of North Lake, Wis., and Joseph O'Neill of Clouquet, Minn.

Altonna—William Maxelmer, a fireman on the Omaha line running into Altoona, was seriously scalded on Tuesday, while in the performance of his duties. Later he went to his home in Chippewa Falls to get treatment.

Racine—The Daily Times hereafter will be published by the Times Publishing company, capitalized at $50,000, and with Judge John Goodland and Postmaster Gittings among the incorporators. W. S. Goodland will continue as editor. Mr. Gittings is an advisor of William Mitchell Lewis, Republican candidate for governor.

Two Rivers—Adam Kubilt, who last November left his wife and three children, taking $600 in savings from the bank, has returned home. When arrested he said he had returned home of his own free will after a trip to New York, Liverpool, Russia and Germany.

Milwaukee—Alleging that he treated her cruelly, Mrs. William A. Shaw has sued for divorce here. The couple was married in Hastings, Minn., in 1905, but removed to St. Paul and lived there a while before coming here.

Wausau—Mrs. Michael Jonas, 40 years old, committed suicide here Friday by drinking carbolic acid. She came here Thursday for medical treatment for nervousness. No reason for her act is known.

Green Bay—Six persons in the home of Thomas Cooke, four of them children, escaped in their night clothes from their burning home by means of a window at 2 o'clock Thursday morning.

Rib Lake—As he stopped to adjust a large belt, John Farrington, a millwright at the Rib Lake Lumber company's sawmill, was caught and whirled to death.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—A party of fourteen Osceola miners left Wednesday afternoon for at least ten different states in this country, while one or two will make the journey to Europe on a visit. The majority of the party, however, have left with the intention of securing work elsewhere.

Houghton—Frank Haun, aged 70, a pioneer of the Copper country and well known throughout the upper peninsula as a merchant, bank president and postmaster at Dollar Bay, died Wednesday night at the residence of his sister, Mrs. John Vivian, in East Houghton.

Hancock—At the joint meeting of the First Congregation of Israel and the Houghton County Hebrew Aid society held in the Rouleau hall, the matter of erecting a synagogue was discussed and considered in its various details, and it was decided to go ahead with the building as soon as possible in the spring.

Houghton—Word has been received by Otto H. Obenhoff of the death of his brother-in-law, Patrick Wildman of Quinnesec, who formerly lived in Houghton.

Laurium—The details of the celebration of Good Friday to be held at Mohawk under the auspices of W. E. Gladstone Lodge No. 473, have been arranged. The celebration will open with a parade in the afternoon.

Houghton—The board of education has decided to establish a system of medical inspection in the schools of Houghton and Portage townships, and Dr. J. T. Berry was appointed as medical inspector. The plan is an experiment.

Marquette—Marshal Manning has left for Minneapolis to get Morris Rorerer, who is accused of having stolen a horse and rig and goods valued at $400 from M. F. Goldberg.

Negaunee—Clarence Darrow, the noted Chicago attorney, will address the citizens of Negaunee and vicinity March 27. He will argue against prohibition.

Houghton—Joseph Croze has received a communication from the superintendent of the lighthouse service in the Great Lakes in connection with his projected wireless telephone installation on Portage lake. The superintendent approves Mr. Croze's plan and expresses the opinion that his superiors will also approve it to the extent of recommending it to congress.

BLOW TO THE JOY RIDERS

No More All Night Visits at Lakewood Pumping Station.

Joy riders, whether in sleighs, automobiles or wagons, will be given a frosty reception at the Lakewood pumping station in the future. That is, certain classes of joy riders will not be welcomed at all. Others, who have been accustomed to "sleeping it off" at the station, will be forced to journey to a hotel, or home if they dare. People who visit the station at respectable hours, without any malted or spirituous liquors to make bright the weary way, will be welcome, but even they will have to leave at midnight.

Stories of abuse of the visiting privilege at the pumping station have become so persistent and the abuses so flagrant that the board of water and light commissioners has called a halt. No more snuggling up to the fire with a large bottle after a long ride; no more hilarity, no more sleeps. The pumping station will be barren ground for the "joy riders" and there have been many of them in the past.

Following is the text of a resolution passed at the meeting of the board this week:

"Whereas, It has come to the knowledge of the board of water and light commissioners that parties visiting the Lakewood pumping station evenings have at various times remained at said station until nearly daylight of the succeeding day, and

"Whereas, It has also been reported to the board that certain parties have visited the station in an intoxicated condition, or have become intoxicated while there. It is therefore,

"Resolved, To instruct the chief engineer to require parties visiting the said station in the evening to leave the station not later than 12 midnight; and further that persons in an intoxicated condition shall not be permitted on the premises, nor shall parties carrying liquor with them be permitted the use of the premises nor shall any liquor be permitted to be drunk or remain on the premises."

COMPANY A IS INSPECTED.

The inspection of Company A, M. N. G., was held last night in the Armory by Col. Gerlach and Capt. Bugge of the regular army. Under Capt. Franklin and Lieutenants Lee and Westberry, sixty-six men were in line. The inspection and the drill were witnessed by a large crowd in the galleries.

"Your National Guard companies are in fine shape," said Capt. Bugge. "The equipment is complete and kept in the best of condition. The only improvement I can suggest is field duty."

OUT OF THE GLOOM

Many a Gloomy Countenance in Duluth Now Lightens With Happiness.

A bad back makes you gloomy.

Can't be happy with continual backache.

The aches and pains of a bad back

Are mostly due to sick kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

They have made many a happy home in Duluth.

Read what a grateful citizen says:

J. Vaughan, 5333 London Road, Lakeside, Duluth, says :"Some years ago I told in a public statement of the great benefit I had received from Doan's Kidney Pils. Kidney trouble had kept me in misery for a long time and I had dull, heavy pains through my loins that made me very restless at night. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and contained a sediment, resembling brick dust. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me at once and it was not long before I was entirely relieved. At this time I am glad to say that my cure has proven to be a permanent one."

FINDS NEW KIDNEY CURE

Dr. T. Frank Lynott, New York Specialist, discovers remarkable remedy.

At last a perfectly harmless and positive cure appears to have been found. Dr. T. Frank Lynott, formerly of the New York University, New York, later of the famous Bellevue hospital, and now a celebrated specialist in Chicago, has a very quick acting formula which has been approved by the best doctors.

The editor of The Herald saw the above clipping from the Inter Ocean and wanted to know of this new formula for curing kidney trouble.

Arrangements were then made by which Dr. Lynott offers Herald readers a free treatment. Dr. Lynott, however, says that he proposes to give the treatment only for a limited time to convince the public in every part of the United States of the positive wonderful efficacy of his treatment.

Furthermore, Dr. Lynott wants to make it clear that he has no "cure-all." He is a specialist in kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism, so please do not write to him unless you have one of these diseases. If you write at once, both the medical advice and the medicine are entirely free.

The editor of this paper, The Herald, feels that with such a free offer, anybody who stays sick with kidney trouble or rheumatism deserves to be sick.

I know that a good many free offers have been advertised where the public had to send money, but this free offer really IS A FREE OFFER. And remember that instead of getting an ordinary physician, you get the medical advice free direct from America's great of all specialists on these diseases. See Free treatment certificate at bottom of this page and get relief right now.

STOP!

Stop that back breaking, twisting, terrible, terrible unbearable agony! Oh, that awful, awful digging soreness—the back all bent, the joints stiff, the heart-wringing pain—stop that pain RIGHT NOW!

Yes, Write For the Free Treatment—

a REAL Free Treatment that will give you relief—relief at once—not next week, not tomorrow, but relief—AT ONCE—immediately after starting the treatment. It is so simple, so mild, yet so scientific and so sure—this treatment for rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble. Write now, today.

See the Free Certificate Below—Sign it and send it today. No money—no obligation. At last you can get relief and, if you write at once, you get the treatment absolutely free. Just think—a genuine free treatment by America's and Europe's leading specialist—absolutely free—really and genuinely free to convince the public.

If you have Kidney or Bladder Trouble or Rheumatism (the cause of those pains), then it's your loss if you suffer any longer. When Dr. Lynott says free, he means free—not one cent to pay; and it is "up to you" whether you want the best medical advice and medicine all without a cent of cost. Don't miss this wonderfully liberal offer. See the Free Trial Certificate at the bottom of this page.

LOOK at these poor sufferers all bent with nerve-racking pain—they are victims of kidney trouble; they think it is a rheumatic twitch. Friends say they grumble, but considering their awful pain, they bear up most bravely.

Oh, it is terrible that there should be such suffering, when you can be relieved so quickly, so surely, so simply, and right now, free of charge.

Writing of Dr. T. Frank Lynott, who gives the medical advice free, a brother specialist writes as follows:

"I have for years been considered an authority on urinary diseases; but I must confess my respect, my profound sense of esteem, for Dr. Lynott, whose wonderful success in treating urinary diseases has surprised us all. Dr. Lynott, by the way, is making a most remarkable free offer—the most genuine and generous offer ever made by a high grade physician. It seems to me the medical world ought not to be jealous of his success, but should praise him for what he has done and is doing for humanity."

Dr. T. Frank Lynott WATCH These Symptoms!

whose photo is printed here, is, as you perhaps know, a great authority on kidney and bladder trouble and rheumatism. Rarely before has a physician of such high standing offered to treat patients by mail. But Dr. Lynott wants the people to get the benefit of this free treatment.

His cures have extended over America and Europe. In fact, Dr. Lynott received a special diploma on urinary diseases from the great New York University—of which the famous Bellevue Hospital, New York, is now an honored part.

Trouble in the kidneys begins slowly, slowly. It creeps upon the unsuspecting patient like a thief in the night. Slowly, slowly those stinging, racking pains foist themselves upon the sufferer; gradually, gradually the pains increase into a daily nightly, constant, endless torture. Watch the symptoms, and cure yourself. Here are the principal symptoms of uric acid disease:

The Symptoms

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic Trouble.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Constipation or liver trouble.
9—Pain or soreness under right ribs.
10—Swelling in any part of the body.
11—Palpitation or pain around the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain or soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

CAN THIS MAN READ YOUR LIFE?

The rich, poor, exalted and humble seek his advice on Business, Marriage, Friends, Enemies, Changes, Speculations, Love Affairs, Journeys and all Events of Life.

MANY SAY HE REVEALS THEIR LIVES WITH AMAZING ACCURACY.

Free Test Readings Will be Sent for a Short Time to all Herald Readers.

Has the veil of mystery that has so long shrouded the ancient sciences been raised at last? Can it be that a system has been perfected that reveals with reasonable accuracy the character and disposition of an individual, and so outlines the life as to assist in avoiding errors and taking advantage of opportunities?

Roxroy, a man who has for twenty years been delving into the mysteries of the occult, making a scientific study of the various methods of reading the lives of people, seems to have reached a higher round in the ladder of fame than his predecessors. Letters are pouring in to his office from all parts of the world telling of the benefits derived from his advice. Many of his patrons look upon him as a man gifted with some strange, mysterious power, but he modestly asserts that what he accomplishes is due alone to an understanding of natural laws.

He is a man of kindly feeling toward humanity, and his manner and tone immediately impress one with his sincere belief in his work. A huge stack of grateful letters from people who have received readings from him adds to other convincing proofs a to his ability. Even astrologers and palmists admit that his system surpasses anything yet introduced.

The Rev. G. C. H. Hasskarl, Ph. D., pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, in a letter to Prof. Roxroy, says: "You are certainly the greatest specialist and master of your profession. Every one consulting you will marvel at the correctness of your detailed personal readings and advice. The most sceptical will consult you again and again after corresponding with you once."

If you wish to take advantage of Roxroy's generous offer and obtain a free reading, send your date, month and year of birth, state whether (Mr. Mrs. or Miss) and also copy the following verse in your own handwriting:

I have heard of your power
To read people's lives.
And would ask what for me
You have to advise?

Be sure to give your correct name, birth date and address and write plainly. Send your letter to ROXROY, Department 54B, No. 177a Kensington High street, London, W., England. If you wish, you may inclose 10 cents (U. S. A. stamps) to pay postage, clerical work, etc. Do not inclose coins or silver in letters.

Note—Under the new postal regulations you can send a sealed letter to England for only 2 cents postage.

WASGATT FAILS TO BE ON HAND

Expected Sensations at Virginia Board Meet Not in Evidence.

Virginia, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. J. Wasgatt, public examiner, who was cited to appear before the board of education at its meeting last night, did not put in an appearance and as a result the board took no official action on his report of the books of the district further than to appoint a committee composed of Joseph Roskilly, Supt. Lafayette Bliss and Clerk J. H. Fleming, who were instructed to appear before County Auditor Holden and go over the report as submitted by Mr. Wasgatt. A good-sized crowd attended the meeting of the board, expecting to hear something sensational, but as Mr. Wasgatt did not appear the meeting was tame in the extreme.

Supt. Bliss reported the daily attendance of the school as being 1,963 and the night school 330.

Michael Bonner and Andy Olson were appointed as judges of election.

James Sampson was chosen as superintendent of construction on the new technical high school building.

Oliver Iron Mining Company to Make Life Pleasanter for Employes.

Hibbing, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Iron Mining company is installing a new system of boarding camps and have already installed camps at the Leonard mine and several are being built at the Hull-Rust.

These camps of the Hibbing district will be directly in charge of Col. E. M. Kennedy. It is the company's intention to establish boarding camps which will help the care of the men employed at the mines and also to become good American citizens.

E. A. Ferrin, representative for the Gas Machinery company of Cleveland, Ohio, is in the city for a few days to meet the light and water commission and present the proposition of installing a gas plant in Hibbing. The matter will most likely be taken up and settled definitely in the course of a few days.

The Winston-Dean company have started to move their machine from the Monroe-Tener mine to the Buffalo-Susquehanna mine, where they will begin stripping operations in the course of a few weeks. The stripping of the Buffalo-Susquehanna mine will mean in time the abandonment of the tracks now used by th Missabe now entering Hibbing.

MANY CANDIDATES

Expected to Join Branch of Two Harbors Order.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—When a ceremonial session of the Order of the Knights of Khorassan, an offshoot of the Knights of Pythias, held here about the middle of next month, it is expected there will be quite a number of candidates anxious to try this branch of Pythianism.

At last Thursday's meeting of the local Knights of Pythias a letter was read from A. M. Fenton, an officer of the Duluth Temple of the Order of Khorassan, asking for information as to the number expected to cross "the burning sands" here and as to the plans for such an event.

Mr. Fenton said the Duluth temple desired to know at once as to what can be done so that proper preparations can be made to exemplify the work, and have notices sent to all range lodges of the Knights of Pythias. It is expected that all applications will be made out and sent in before the next meeting, which is to be held March 10. H. M. Beckett has been appointed treasurer to receive applications and money, which must accompany the application.

NEGRO IS BOUND OVER.

Dusky Grand Rapids Man Alleged to Have Flashed Cutlery.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tom Chambers, colored, has been bound over to the grand jury on an attempted assault charge. It is alleged that Thursday evening in James Peck's saloon the dusky one drew a piece of cutlery popular with his race and threatened to "do things" to a crowd of men, which resulted in his arrest and a hearing before Court Commissioner Pratt. The accused has been shining shoes at the Pokegama hotel.

PROBINSKI NOMINATED.

Heads the Village Ticket Put Up in Bovey.

Bovey, Minn., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Without opposition at the caucus last night, Frank Pobinski was renominated village president. Two ballots were required to select a candidate for recorder. On the first ballot Harry Toppings was given 43 votes, Victor Komulainen 68 and I. A. Myers 37. Myers dropped out and on a second ballot Mr. Toppings was given 72 votes and Komulainen 85 and declared the choice of he voters.

The nominees for trustees are Harry Lowe, E. Enstrom and Frank Carson, a peculiarity of the nominating being that Casson showed almost no strength until the third ballot. For treasurer C. W. Knapp, received 50 votes and C. M. King 93, the latter being declared the nominee of the caucus. The township caucus will be held this evening.

IS DYING IN FLORIDA

Rev. J. L. Murphy, formerly pastor of the St. John's English Lutheran church of this city, is dangerously ill of Bright's disease at De Land, Fla. He is confined to his home and there is little hope of his final recovery. After leaving Duluth last October, Rev. and Mrs. Murphy went to the mountains of Tennessee and Virginia in the belief that the invigorating mountain air would prove of benefit. Later they went to Florida to find a milder climate, but he is now confined to the house in a much weakened condition. A wide circle of Duluth friends and acquaintances will regret to learn of Rev. Murphy's serious illness.

JOHNSON IS A "KIDDER"

Black Champion an Artist in Taunting and Goading Opponent.

Young Corbett, Kid McCoy and Papke Also Clever Ring "Joshers."

Boston, Mass., March 5.—One of these days the sporting world will prefix the title of "Champion Kidder" to the name of Jack Johnson, for, if a fighter ever took keep delight in worrying an opponent with tongue and gesture, it is that same Li'l Artha.

It is almost a gold mine to brass tacks that Johnson never saw the lines, "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," which the poet Longfellow borrowed from Cicero, but he exemplifies them in about every bout in which he engages—presumably an acquirement of ring experience rather than book learning.

Take Jack's recent fight with Ketchel, for instance. While the middleweight champion, as he calls himself, was game to the core, Johnson's "golden smile" and his ever-ready ring repartee got poor Stan so rattled that he hardly knew what he was doing. He clean forgot about his famous shift and the instructions from his corner that he was not to rush the champion.

Time and again, in response to the taunts of Johnson, Ketchel tore in like a wild steer only to receive the shower of straight lefts in the face the champion had in readiness for him. Stan's blind swings, several of which nearly took him through the ropes, served but to add to Johnson's merriment and the further discomfiture of his undersized opponent.

Al Kaufman Slow.

Then again there's that matinee Johnson had with Al Kaufman. Al is as good natured as a cow chewing her cud, but, though big and strong, he is also as slow as a heavily loaded freight. Of this Johnson was well aware. He knew Al like a well-thumbed book and the verbal knocks he handed the big German about "slow freights," "cold molasses" and "slow turtles" were particularly raw. They had the desired effect, and, of course, Kaufman finally got rattled. Well, Johnson won, and that easily.

As that affair down at Sydney with Tommy Burns, it won't soon be forgotten. A lot of people got an awful jar; were kind of shook down a bit along with Tommy, for they thought the Canadian was going to win. As every one knows, Tommy never had a chance—he was outpunched and outgeneraled to the queen's taste. Johnson had on his enamel leather "kiddin'" shoes when he entered the ring, and before the end of the first round had the then champion so riled that he hardly knew what he was doing.

"I am going to put you out, you pup," was Johnson's opening shot, and there was no humor back of it, either. "I had to chase you around the world, but now I've got you." "Who ever told you that you could fight?" The vicious shafts of the negro all bore fruit. Remember how Tommy walked into those right-hand uppercuts; what a target he was when Johnson really tried to hit him? Tommy, in his blind rage, allowed himself to be coaxed into range time and time again of blows he might have otherwise escaped or guarded against.

When Papke Won.

Let's go back to that day in September, 1908, when Stanley Ketchel received a fearful whipping at the hands of Bill Papke and temporarily lost the crown of middleweight champion, which he has of late refused to defend. Like Johnson, Papke fully comprehends the advantages of the talk game, and the breeze he sent to the champion on that day contributed its share toward his defeat.

The "Tunderbolt," as Billy is known, had a special brand of talkfest prepared for the occasion, sort of a reservoir of adjectives he had been slurring up since that day earlier in the same year when Ketchell had put one over. This, their second meeting, lasted twelve rounds, Stan taking the full count on his back. During the thirty-six minutes of actual combat, Papke's fists but beat time for his tongue. The lashing he gave Ketchell had the latter sky high for fully half the distance.

But it was a great lesson for Stan, and while Boston holds that the so-called middleweight champion is scared half out of his wits every time he hears Langford has boarded a railroad train for parts unknown, he wasn't scared to meet Papke again, and, what's more, won back his title. This last time Ketch just closed his ears, opened his eyes and waded in from the rub-knuckles, never giving Papke time or opportunity for any conversational warfare.

Corbett and McGovern.

There are certain fights and fistic happenings that will always bear retelling; I am going back to that Young Corbett vs. Terry McGovern affair at Hartford, Conn., in 1901, a famous instance wherein talk won a fight. Terry was one of the most excitable chaps that ever entered a ring, having more than an abundance of the quick temper and ready wit that tradition attaches to the inhabitants of the emerald isle.

Young Corbett, you may well believe, was fully "hep" to this state of affairs and studied out a program of abuse previous to the battle that he knew would hit the fiery Terry in a most vulnerable spot.

What Corbett actually said may well be left unsaid, but it is history that from the first bell he turned loose a torrent of torrid adjectives, vitriolic quips, and hits that aroused McGovern to a pitch of fury as never before. In a twinkling, from one of the most formidable fighters of his day, he became practically helpless, and in the short space of two rounds was a beaten man, all due to the Denver boy's talk. Corbett's gift of gab more than his fists won that fight.

Peter Maher.

In the balloon gas department must go the name of Kid McCoy, one of the ring's great clever men with both fist and tongue. It was on the night of Jan. 1, 1900, that the Kid got in one. Peter Maher was the other entertainer, and the game was on in earnest down at Coney Island, N. Y. They clinched in the second round and McCoy held Peter's arm so he could not move, looking the Irishman in the eye and smiling that malicious rainbow chaser that only the Kid can put on when he has a mind, he sneeringly said:

"Well, you big pug, I see you are in the newspapers hollering for sympathy because your wife is sick. Well, when I get through with you, you'll want more sympathy than ever." Now, as a matter of fact, Peter's wife was critically ill, and when he heard this insult, Maher became frantic with resentment, and, of course, that helped McCoy beat him.

When it was over—five rounds was enough—McCoy came across to Peter's corner and held out his hand. "What I said in the clinch doesn't go," he whispered. "I only said it as a matter of business, you know." This made Peter madder than ever, for he realized that he had allowed himself to be fooled out of a possible victory. But as it helped to revive him, and the Kid didn't charge anything, the last remark of the wily Shelby was undoubtedly intended as a kindness and peace offering.

It should be said for Maher, however, that he was not a deficient ring conversationalist himself, for when he and Gus Ruhlin had their first meeting in New York May 2, 1899, a mill that went to a 20-round draw, in the midst of a hot rally the Irishman started something on his own account. "Ha, ha, you Dutchman," he cried "I'll make you quit!" It didn't work very well, however, for Ruhlin promptly snorted back: "Blast you! I'm no Dutchman; I'm an American, and I'll make you quit, Irish!" and followed it up with three hot swings to Maher's ribs that fairly made them crack.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE)

Thursday night's victory of Frank Gotch over Henry Ordemann, at Des Moines, Iowa, showed beyond doubt that the able farmer from Iowa is in a class by himself in the modern wrestling game.

With the exception of Yussiff Mahmout, now recognized as one of the greatest grapplers of the game, and Zbyszko, who because of his almost superhuman strength and freak proportions, is one of the hardest men in the world to pin to the mat, Henry Ordemann is next to Gotch in the wrestling game. Yet see what Gotch did to him at Des Moines.

When Gotch was here with the Jeffries show, he said to the writer that Ordemann was one of the greatest wrestlers in the business. "He is a good clean boy," said Frank. "and I would like nothing better than to see him champion, if I can hold the title until I retire."

Gotch taught Ordemann many of the tricks of the mat game. It is only natural, therefore, that Frank should like to see Ordemann at the top. With only two men outside of Gotch who can beat Ordemann, it was supposed that he would give Gotch one of the best fights of the Humboldt man's career; Henry didn't though, which only goes to show how far Gotch is ahead of the parade.

The Iowan is the most brilliant general on the mat that the game has ever produced. Wonderfully strong and powerful, he does not depend upon brute strength, as do the giants that have come from Europe. Gotch has the agility of a middleweight boxer, and he prances around the mat like a ballet dancer at August rehearsals.

It is the combination of many greatnesses that make Gotch the invincible king of the mat. Zbyszko is undoubtedly stronger than Gotch, and Karl Lehto, the big Finn, if all the things that have been said about him are true, must be stronger than Gotch in some parts of his body.

But it is not strength alone that wins for Gotch. He has no weakness, which makes it hard for his opponents to defeat him. He is the best general of them all, and given a sudden strength test, where it required a certain amount to be lifted in a flash of thought, Gotch would probably show the most concentrated strength.

Students of wrestling to this day claim that Yussiff Mahmout is a stronger man than Gotch. He picked Gotch up in that Chicago match and threw the champion to the mat. But when the two men struck the canvas Gotch had a hold clamped on the Bulgarian. Then he concentrated his strength and threw the Bulgarian before the foreigner exactly knew what had happened.

It is the brain as well as brawn, agility and intuition of what the other man is going to do, that wins for Gotch. He is a past master of the game and all its tricks; he is a wizard at any style the other man attempts, and the wrestling world marvels at the ease at which Gotch defeats his opponents.

If John Holdout Kling is really permitted to come back into the ranks of the Cubs the coming season, there will be those followers of baseball in plenty who will stake the long bunch of winter's savings on the chances of the West Side beauties.

Baseball has been more prolific in the matter of "come backs" than has the fighting game. Instance the come back of the bold and defiant Pittsburg pirates the present season. Then there was the near come back of the New York Giants, last season, when the stupidity of one Merkle, made fanatics out of 40,000 respectable business men.

Archer caught excellent baseball last season; yet, for some reason, he is not Johnny Kling. Kling has that occult something that puts it on the other fellow. Many games he has won in the past by not catching perfect mechanical baseball, but rather by turning some little trick of the brain and imagination that not one in 100 backstops would think of.

That is the reason that students of baseball, those who know the capabilities of the Kling boy, will believe that the Cubs have an excellent chance to win the pennant with John in the pad and mask.

It is generally believed, continuing the talk of great teams, that Duluth will get off strong in front of the baseball barrier the present season. With the wealth of material at the command of Darby P. H. O'Brien, there is every reasoh to believe that he will select a team that will be as capable as the team of last season.

It isn't the number of players that are at the command of Darby; some teams might have half a hundred players, and yet not come in the 1-2-3 magic circle. It is the little personal remarks that have come floating in, from time to time, regarding some of the players that will try out for the team.

Mr. Kuehnow has tried hard for a good collection of baseball players and if the opinion of those who have had an opportunity to know something about the situation is worth anything the team that will represent Duluth the present season will be in the hunt from the parade to the wire.

Reports from along the line, those reports that are spread from mouth to mouth, do tell that Uncle Joe Killilan is gathering together a most scrumptious bunch, down Winona way. They say, Artha O'Dea included, that the "crab" will have some team when the season opens with a rush.

It is altogether too easy to draw aside the curtain of prediction, but from where we stand, brother fan, it looks like a good chance to think Duluth and Winona will get away to a good start when the baseball barrier goes up.

What the new members of the league will do, will be a guess, more so than in regard to last year's members of the league. But of the six members of the league which were also members last season, it does look like a good pike on Duluth and Winona—excuse us, Mister, this is no prediction.

We should have some prosperous little league the coming summer. When the early robin singeth and makes glad the heart of man, then the thoughts of youth turn to baseball, as does the busy mind of the business man, and, forsooth, sometimes that of the maid.

The robin is getting ready to sing and already the mind of man is turning baseballwards. Already the teams of the big chiefs are on the preliminary warpath; soon the teams of the little tribes will move off the reservations in search of wampum, and then, indeed, will there be excitement, yells, curdling at junctures, when the scalping of the enemy is luscious and sweet to look upon.

Surely, Brother, this baseball is a scrumptious game.

The challenge yesterday of Mr. Schell was direct and to the point. We sincerely hope that the genial Richard will make it stick. He has imbibed the "Do It For Duluth" spirit, and his boat will ever be ready to show visiting motor boat drivers that here at the Head of the Lakes we have a craft that is trimmed for action.

Last summer at White Bear, Richard showed the motor boat owners that a Duluth boat could show a disappearing stern to the fastest of the St. Paul crowd. Such things are helpful to us in this part of the state, though not in the material nature of the veto of the tonnage tax; still helpful, nevertheless, and do much to advertise our fair little city.

There are many of us who are glad to see Mr. Schell show the true and proper sporting spirit.

TERMS AGREED UPON.

Dick Shepperd Satisfied With Details of Match With Sailor Jack.

A letter has been received from Dick Shepperd, the Pipestone welterweight, stating that all details of the match between him and Sailor Jack, the crack Duluth wrestler, are satisfactory to him and that he will be in Duluth on the evening of March 18, ready to put up a great bout with the Sailor boy.

Young Miller has written that he will meet the Sailor, if the Duluth man is able to dispose of Shepperd. Sailor Jack is in training for his bout with Shepperd, for the winning of the match means that he will have a chance to wrestle young Miller for the world's welter title.

Spaldings Plan Trip.

The Spalding Inter-city basket team, which includes players from both Duluth and Superior, will play the Ascensions, a strong team of Minneapolis, at the Mill City Tuesday evening. The team is reported to be very strong.

DAVID HOLDS TITLE.

Wins City Pool Championship From Challenger Ed Beers.

The city championship pool match between Mike David, the champion, and Ed Beers, challenger for the title, was concluded last night at the Central billiard hall, the score being, David, 1,000 points; Beers, 975.

The match was close and well played throughout. Beers held the lead in most of the games, only the improved form shown by David in the last game enabling him to hold his title.

The detailed score of the series of

David 200 158 104 84 154 100 100 100-1000
Beers 157 243 100 100 72 114 107 82- 975

WRESTLERS FALL INTO PRESS BOX; ONE QUITS.

Omaha, Neb., March 5.—After wrestling 1 hour and 10 minutes without a fall, last night, Zbyszko, the Pole, was given the decision over Jess Westergaard after the latter had been severely injured and was unable to continue. The men fell from the mat into the press box, the Pole on top. Westergaard received a severely sprained ankle and his seconds declined to let him go on again, forfeiting the match.

Top Row—E. Olson, Nelson, C. Olson, A. Olson, A. Grenner. Middle Row—H. Grenner, Geistman, Manager, "Al" Olson, Captain. Bottow Row—Erickson, Pearling.

The Adams hockey team has gone through the season with but two defeats. Both of these defeats were administered by the Big Duluths. At the present time the Adams are tied in the city championship series with the Big Duluths, each team having won one game. Weather permitting, the third and decisive game will be played off in the near future.

O'DEA SIGNS LARGE SQUAD

Duke Has Likely Bunch of Baseball Recruits Ready for Trip.

To show that Duke O'Dea is not letting any grass grow under his feet, it is only necessary to mention the large list of players he has signed. Arthur has retained most of the players that were with the team last year, and in addition has picked up a number of fast youngsters, many of whom he hopes will make good from the start.

Here are some of the players that are under contract to the Superior team at the present time: Omar Bunn, Frank Carroll, M. J. Chaffee, Dave Bancroft, Adam Vogt, Arthur Whalen, J. A. McCulloch, Walter Baertschi, Ivan Snyder, William Donovan, George Wilde, James G. Lavelle, Dolly Gray, Thomas Carey, Elmer Barnes, Albert Peterson, T. L. Jensen, Lloyd Irwin, James Leighty, Ottis Shinn, Arthur Caldwell, Carl Payne and the inimitable Arthur himself.

A training trip has been arranged. The men will report at Jacksonville, Ill., April 4, and will go from there to Hannibal, Mo.; Quincy, Ill.; Burlington, Iowa; Keokuk, Iowa; Ottumwa, Iowa, and Waterloo, Iowa.

The Duke stated yesterday that he believed he had some very good material, and if the youngsters worked out right he would start the season right with the leaders. O'Dea may play the first sack, depending on how he feels on the spring trip.

Stagehand Attacks Wrestler.

Toledo, Ohio, March 5.—One of the fiercest bouts witnessed in this section was pulled off at a local theater last night when Walter Willoughby went up against Jerry Galvin. The latter outweighed the former and tried to rough it with the result that Willoughby was thrown into the footlights on a foul. The set so angered one of the stagehands that he attacked Galvin, and would have handled the latter very roughly had not the spectators interfered.

PROPOSED RULES.

Stagg Finds That They Will Not Work Out in Real Football.

Fayetteville, Ark., March 5.—Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago, sent the University of Arkansas squad through the various suggestions for changes in the present football rules.

The suggestion that ends going down under play will not be allowed to get closer than five yards of a man receiving the ball until after he has touched it, was tried out. Coach Stagg questions the suggestion because of the possibility of wrangling over the question as to whether the ends stopped five yards away from the man receiving the kick.

The suggestion to prevent backs from pushing the runner with the ball until he hits the line was found unsatisfactory as the result was that the entire attack was centered on one point and formed a mass play. The suggestion to place opposing lines further apart was found to result in rushes that were even more fierce than ordinary.

BOWLING AVERAGES

Server, "the youthful wonder," and Brown are in the lead for the individual standing of the City Bowling league, though these two men have rolled but twelve and six games respectively. Sam Olsen and C. Berini are the real leaders of the league, for both these men have taken part in a large number of games. Stigler and Otterson are also well up and are right on the heels of Olsen and Berini.

The Fitwells are leading in the team standing and the Majestics in the total number of pins. The Fitwells have won 34 games out of 57 played, while the Majestics have rolled a total of 52,183 in 57 games, being an average of 915 pins per game.

GELDING SHOWS CLASS.

Harry W. Wins Three-Cornered Race From Miss Hartford.

Harry W won three out of four heats on the ice yesterday from Miss Hartford and Bumble Bee. The race was for a purse of $150, each owner staking $50 on his horse. Miss Hartford was the favorite, and the defeat of the speedy mare was rather a surprise.

The races yesterday are the first races of the season in which Harry W has shown his real class. His work yesterday stamps the gelding as one of the best nags at the Head of the Lakes.

Summaries of yesterday's events:

RED WING FLYER COMING.

Speedy Motor Boat Will Race Dick Schell's Dingle Capitol.

It was stated yesterday on the best of authority that the Red Wing Flyer will be here this summer, fitted with a new six-cylinder engine, ready to race Dick Schell's Dingle Capitol. The statement was made after the challenge of Mr. Schell was read in the Evening Herald.

The Red Wing Flyer is the property of the Red Wing Manufacturing company and is said to be one of the speediest in the West. Great interest is already being shown in the races that are being planned for the Head of the Lakes.

GOTCH PUTS AN IRISH CHAMPION TO THE MAT.

Sioux City, Iowa, March 5.—Frank Gotch, world's champion wrestler, easily defeated Con O'Kelley here last night. Gotch won two straight falls from the Irish champion, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall. The first bout lasted 29 minutes and the second went 5 minutes.

Johnson Not Coming.

Word has been received by Harry Pierce, business manager of the Lyceum, that Jack Johnson, world's champion heavyweight, will not be seen at the Head of the Lakes this season. The need of a rest was the reason given by Johnson for the canceling of the Duluth date.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE LYCEUM

"The Great Divide" Will Be Seen in Duluth at Three Performances---"The Time, The Place and The Girl," and May Robson.

Henry Miller, though one of America's best known and most capable actors for over a quarter of a century, has won new fame as a producing manager through his several highly successful productions during the last few seasons. The most important of these, "The Great Divide," comes to the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Miller says: "In casting my productions I have always held that to be a good actor, speaking histrionically, is infinitely easier than to be a bad one. This is a proposition that may sound strange to many critics and reviewers who find nothing but fault in the methods used and results obtained by the majority of players. They may be right in their contentions; probably they are, but that does not prove the untenableness of the foregoing. The assertion I make is not that all actors are highly successful in the practice of their art, but that they should be. One of the great pities of life is that most folk insist upon doing things the hardest way, and therefore the wrong way.

"It is much easier to do a thing right than wrong, whether it be a simple daily duty, a momentous business transaction, or the delineation of a character in a play. Although this truth is obvious, it is amazing how many persons fail to do it. Actors are particularly prone to overlook this natural law. Years of observation have taught me that very few exponents of dramatic portrayal ever concern themselves with the self-evident. They go out of their way to do the unnatural and 'stagy' thing. I think some explanation of this lies in the common designation of their calling. Being called 'actors,' they think it incumbent upon themselves to 'act' and many of them do it with energy, persistence and conscientiousness worthy of a better cause. That the art has been known as acting has done it harm from which it may never recover. When a man or woman studies a part, the sole idea should be the natural and therefore proper portrayal of character, the comporting of self in the matter that common sense and intelligence would dictate, without absurd posturing and grimacing or self-consciousness and awkward concern.

The Main Requirement.

"The main requirement for those who would be good actors is that they do on the stage what they would do in ordinary life under the same circumstances. This applies to character as well as straight work. This does not mean that an actor's performance should be without variety. The rule would not restrict one to his own possibly commonplace daily routine and gesture. It is merely that, after studying the character intelligently and understanding its intricacies and attributes he should speak its lines and assume its attitudes in a manner entirely natural to himself.

"We often hear of subtlety in acting, and of inspiration. In the last analysis it is the bad actors who are subtle and inspired, for only by some curious psychological process could some of them arrive at the amazingly unhuman and intelligent conclusions they present. What is commonly called subtlety is nothing more than a well developed and properly directed intelligence, which studies a character and situations closely, arriving at a conclusion by process of mind and expressing thoughts and emotions under rational mental direction. The subtle actor is simply one who knows what to do and has sufficient self-restraint to do it in a perfectly natural way. I hold that the bad actor does not know what to do, or if he has some slight inkling of the 'how to do it,' he leaves his intelligence at home, walks all around the right way of doing it, and thus as a natural consequence produces results that were never conceived by the playwright or dreamed of in the philosophy of the playgoer. It takes genuine 'subtlety' to attain some of the remarkable effects produced by some who regard themselves as finished actors.

"Some persons may take exceptions to the foregoing hypothesis and conclusion by saying that many players who meet the above requirements have risen to no great fame and give no promise of stepping into the ranks of the immortals. The subject in hand is good acting, not 'genius.' We are considering the man or woman who plays the ordinary part, not the tragedy king or queen—the second old man, the leading juvenile, the woman who takes a 'character part.' It is in this rank and file where this line of intelligence or the lack of it is more noticed. Genius is a matter of personality and temperament as well as of intellect and training. Two actors might play the same part in exactly the same way, identical in gesture, inflection, in movement and in business, and one might awake the audience to clamorous enthusiasm, while the other would leave it cold and unresponsive. The first has within him that illuminating spirit that lays bare the soul of the character. Intelligence and common sense are but a part of his equipment. Behind them are the qualities that mark the man of destiny. Yet the mind and discretion of the other, when placed outside the shadow cast by genius might render him conspicuous and place him in a revered position.

"Frequently the critics say, 'He gave an intellectual performance, but his work was not convincing.' That man probably suffered limitations of temperament through which he was unsuited to the role in hand. Some very good actors, more's the pity, are unfortunate in their personality to this extent. When one fails to make a good impression for this reason, it is hard for him that critics and spectators do not give him his due for technical merit. It is remarkable how few persons are able to judge an actor's work strictly on its worth as representing that which it is expected to reproduce.

"The majority of those who attend the theater are open to impressions only. If the general effect of a player's work is pleasing, they praise. What may be its value technically, they neither know nor care. If he is 'unsuited to the role,' he gets no credit and scant sympathy. Therefore, after all is said, it would seem that personality is the great force in acting, just as it is in the pulpit, the senate or the counting house."

MAY ROBSON

In "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" Coming to Duluth.

"The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," a new American comedy by Anne Warner, will be seen at the Lyceum theater, Tuesday evening, March 8.

May Robson, the well-known comedienne, has the title role in this delightful comedy, and comes here after two seasons on the road, where it has been indorsed by all the critics as one of the best comedies ever presented on the stage.

The story of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" concerns a maiden aunt who lives in the country and hates the city. Her nephew, Jack, is attending college in the city, and between times, manages to get into all kinds of scrapes, the last one being with a cabman whom he beats up pretty badly. To get out of this, it is necessary to get $500 from his Aunt Mary, or, according to a published report in a morning paper, the cabman's wife will sue him for $5,000.

While Jack is explaining all this to his aunt, her lawyer arrives and informs her a girl whom Jack met while in Chicago, and who comes from Kalamazoo, has sued Jack for $25,000 breach of promise. This is too much for Aunt Mary, who sends Jack away and will have nothing to do with him. Jack goes back to New York to live with his chum, Bob, who has a very pretty sister, Betty, with whom Jack is desperately in love, but who will have nothing to do with him until he will mend his ways. It being Betty's birthday, the boys have decided to give her a dinner and while everything is being prepared, a telegram comes to the house announcing that Aunt Mary is on her way to the city. The boys rush madly off to meet her. Betty sends her maid away and takes her place so she can look after Aunt Mary. In some way or other the boys miss the train and Aunt Mary arrives alone. While waiting in the parlor she picks up a copy of the evening paper and on the front page sees the picture of the girl from Kalamazoo, and her own nephew. Betty then comes in and shows Aunt Mary to her room.

In the meantime the boys arrive. They, too, have seen the evening paper, and tell the footman not to allow a copy to come into the house. Aunt Mary comes in and is introduced to the boys. Then Jack, for the first time, finds out that one of them had written his aunt telling her he had the measles. After dinner an automobile ride is suggested. This Aunt Mary thoroughly enjoys, even to the cigarettes and drinks, and at 4 in the morning, when the boys are tired out, she still wants to go.

After spending a week or so in New York, Aunt Mary returns to the country, only to find life there too slow. She sends for Betty, and on her arrival, the first thing she asks for is cigarettes as she is dying to smell one. She also wants to play poker. Jack not knowing Betty is at his aunt's, comes down to see her and explains all. In the meantime, Aunt Mary has fixed everything with the girl from Kalamazoo. Jack tells Aunt Mary of his love for Betty, and all is forgiven. Aunt Mary calls in her two old servants, gives them the house, and tells them to get married. She goes back to New York and buys a house for Jack and Betty.

In selecting a company to support Miss Robson, Mr. Sire has surrounded her with a strong cast. The production is complete in every detail.

Lyceum Notes.

David Warfield will close his engagement at the Lyceum tonight. A big house greeted him last evening, and the engagement will prove one of the most successful of the theatrical season in Duluth.

* * *

The Franklin Stock company will appear at the Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday of next week, following May Robson in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

* * *

Al H. Wilson's new songs, "Love Thoughts," "Erin's Isle," "The Banshee," "The Nightingale Song" and "Little Jimmy Murphy," are a pleasing feature of his new musical comedy, "Metz in Ireland," one of the attractions booked for this city during the coming month.

It seems especially appropriate at this time to revive Henry VIII, as the interest aroused recently in England by the great church pageant depicting many of the important ecclesiastical events in this monarch's life, as well as those of his daughter, Elizabeth, revived a curiosity concerning this many sided ruler that to a certain extent justifies the announcement that Louis James will present that historical drama here in the very near future.

An especially well balanced company headed by Aphie James will give life and color to this dramatic treat, and the scenic investure will be in appropriate keeping with the immensity of the presentation.

"The Golden Butterfly," De Koven and Smith's new comic opera, was especially written for Miss Van Studdiford, for whom Mr. De Koven also wrote "Red Feather" and "Maid Marian." Miss Van Studdiford, who is the star of the new operatic offering, will appear here in the title role. The company supporting her this season numbers seventy-five people, including a special orchestra.

* * *

Mabel Wright, who plays Molly Wood in "The Virginian," sketches cleverly, and the beauty of the autumn woods had tempted her to transfer some of the wonderful coloring to canvas. She was surrounded by her models from the brilliantly colored trees and busily painting one morning in Toronto, when the maid came to tidy up her room. Miss Wright apologized for all the seeming litter, but the maid hastened to reassure her with a hearty "That's all rigat, ma'am, I'll just as soon work for actresses as some Christians."

* * *

In "A Woman's Way" which Grace George brings to the Lyceum in the near future, the case of woe in wedlock is presented jocosely, although it is about the impending separation of a husband and wife by divorce. The man has taken a gay widow "joy riding" in an automobile, an accident has exposed his escapade and the wife is expected to bring a divorce suit. The gist of the play is that she doesn't take her grievance to court, but settles it in her own singular way. She loves the culprit, and doesn't wish to lose him, unless he really loves the widow better than herself, in which case she will give him up. She enters into a competition to bring about his choice and invites her rival to her home, and the contest is briskly waged until the final curtain. Many well known people are included in the supporting cast.

* * *

One of the most striking features of "The Wolf," Eugene Walter's great play, which will shortly be again presented at the Lyceum, is the finale of the third act, which is played on a dark stage, with the moon hiding behind dense clouds. The fight between the two principal characters is not clearly seen by the audience, but the exchange of defiance, the scuffle with the sound of a falling body at last are heard, and, until the winner in the fight reveals his face by the glare of a match, with which he is calmly lighting a cigarette, the audience is in doubt as to the outcome. "The Wolf" is a drama of the Canadian backwoods, and when presented here, will have an exceptionally strong cast headed by Andrew Robson, the actor who succeeded Charles Coghlan as the star in "The Royal Box," and latter took James K. Hackett's place in "Richard Carvel."

AT THE BIJOU

Robert Hilliard Will Present Miss Anne Blancke and Company in "Freckles," Beginning Monday Afternoon---Other American and European Features.

There is not a question as to the quality of vaudeville that Duluth is getting these days, as the best of European and American talent is appearing each week. The circuit has grown to such a size that Messrs. Sullivan and Considine can offer the best of acts.

The bill commencing Monday should be a proof of the above statement. Heading the program, Robert Hilliard will present the celebrated little actress, Miss Annie Blancke, and a clever company of four people in "Freckles, a Child of the Curb," taken from the short story, "The Proof," written by Porter Emerson Browne and dramatized by J. Frank Davis and Mr. Hilliard.

The Buffalo Evening News said of it: "For the first time on any stage, 'Freckles,' a one-act play dramatized by J. Frank Davis, assisted by Robert Hilliard, from 'The Proof,' a short story by Porter Emerson Brown, was presented yesterday, with Annie Blancke in the title role. The principal features are the cataract of slang which pours from Freckles' tongue and the excellent stage pictures of Madison Square park, New York. Mr. Hilliard, one of the best known actors in America, has personally attended to the staging of the piece, and he has good reason to feel proud of the results. The story is simplicity itself. Freckles, a ragged urchin of the curbs, on his way to his 'job' in a collar factory, rattles into Madison Square park on one roller skate, takes a tumble, has his skate stolen and strikes up an acquaintance with a decrepit, down-and-out veteran who fought with Hooker. Freckles' father was another of Hooker's veterans, and the old fellow in the park and Freckles become so chummy that Freckles buys 'hot dogs' for the old man, punches the 'hot dog' man for getting fresh and performs other Samaritan-like acts which one might expect from a youngster of his kind. The veteran, it seems, had a son who has been missing since war times. While Freckles and the old fellow are condoling with one another over their troubles, Freckles' factory boss comes along and fires the lad for being late to work. There is more talk and slang from Freckles, and finally the veteran, desiring to intercede in Freckles' behalf, looks up the factory owner. The factory owner is the veteran's long-missing son."

A spectacular feature and scenic novelty will be the Wheelers, who have something new to offer in their latest novelty, "Fun on the Boulevard." The act is a juggling novelty and both artists are clever and introduce tricks which are handled with amazing dexterity. A special set of scenery is carried, which gives the act a most elaborate mounting.

A musical offering that is out of the ordinary will be Musical Lowe, "The Paderewski of the Xylophone."

A pair of dancers who should be popular with the Bijou patrons will be Wood and Lawson. They are dancers who are seldomed equalled on the vaudeville stage, and besides being experts in the dancing line, they both have excellent singing voices and sing several of the new songs that are now popular in the bigger cities.

An European feature novelty that will be one of the foremost attractions of the week, will be the Velde trio of European gymnasts and their looping the loop dogs. The act is a distinct novelty and different from anything that has ever appeared at the Bijou. The novelty consists of astounding feats of equilibrium and the sensational looping the loop by trained dogs, which follow one another in rapid succession. The Velde trio and their dogs have just finished an entire season's run at the winter gardens, Berlin, Germany, and are considered to be one of the foremost novelties in European vaudeville.

Earl Morse will sing the very newest song hit entitled "Chicago." This song is away from anything in the illustrated song line and will be sung in Duluth for the first time the coming week.

A complete set of exclusive motion pictures will conclude the performance. Matinees will be given daily at 2:45 and night performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by eother telephone. A special school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon and night. Children under 14 years of age are admitted for 5 cents. Performances are given on Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

"THE CHILDREN OF DESTINY" HANGING IN THE BALANCE—A POLISH STUDY IN PSYCHOLOGY—MRS. PAT CAMPBELL IN VAUDEVILLE—THE POPULARITY OF SHAKESPEARE.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Sydney Rosenfeld's new play in four acts, produced at the Savoy theater, is entitled "Children of Destiny." In the cast are Laura Nelson Hall, Orrin Johnson, Frank Reicher—brother of Hedwig and long with E. H. Sothern—Theodore Freibus, Harry Davenport and Frederick Truesdell.

Interesting in connection with the cast is the fact that Laura Nelson Hall, who plays the leading part, is the divorced wife of Frederick Tuesdell, who plays a breezy American correspondent in the play. The divorce is quite recent, and when the play was cast there was some embarrassment about the engagement of Truesdell on account of Miss Hall's previous relationship to the actor. The matter was delicately broached to her, and the actress is reported to have replied:

"He was not a good husband, but he is a good actor!"

And Mr. Truesdell got the part.

The piece was staged in Mr. Harris' best manner, and it was played with extraordinary vim; but despite the apparent enthusiasm which some of the scenes evoked, its fate hangs in the balance. The subject itself is salacious and the manner of treatment none of the best. In the first act the long arm of coincidence is glaringly conspicuous.

The scene of the first act is laid in Washington, the remaining three acts taking place at Monte Carlo. Rose Hamlin discovers that she is an illegitimate daughter by the Italian count, Ettore Varesi, and, being jilted by her fiance on that account, determines to live a life of sensual pleasures.

She turns up at Monte Carlo under another name and with a dubious reputation. There she falls in love with Edwin Ford, a romantic youth, who tries to forget an unhappy love affair in libations of absinthe and passes as a moral derelict. He responds to an appointment with Rose at her villa—for she is rich, as the count has settled 2,000,000 florins upon her—and in her luxurious boudoir the hapless lady prepares to throw herself into his embraces.

Before doing so, however, she informs him that, notwithstanding her reputation, she has remained a good woman up to the present. In a regular Romeo and Juliet scene of ardent diction Ford recoils from the temptation of sullying the honor of the girl he has suddenly learned to love, feeling himself unworthy even to touch her lips with a kiss. He hastens from her presence and seeks consolation in the apartment of his friend Garvin, the corespondent of a big New York daily, who is writing up the fast life of Monte Carlo, with special reference to Rose's picturesque career. Through Garvin's diplomatic management the impeacable Rose is safely deposited in the arms of her Edwin as the curtain comes down on the final scene.

The admirable acting was ideal in the part of Edwin Ford and Miss Hall was impressive in the leading feminine role of Rose Hamlin, to which her dashing personality lent a vivid interest. Truesdell's playing of the lively newspaper man could hardly have been improved upon, and Frank Reicher's count, Dorothy Dorr's Mrs. Hamlin, mother of Rose, and Harry Davenport's comedy creation of an old beau were among the really worthy performances of the season. Friebus had an ungracious part in the fiance of Rose, who, because he learns of her illegitimate birth, breaks his engagement to her; but he was artistically true to his role, which earned him no honors.

Independent of the acting, the best part of the performance was the literary polish of the dialogue, on which the author had bestowed evident care. Some speeches were long, but they were pregnant with philosophic aphorisms and scintillated with flashes of wit.

The whole thing is improbable, however, and though it has a rich surface finish, it denotes no clear knowledge of character and lacks intelligent motivation.

The author was enthusiastically called before the curtain, and in a little speech admitted that he had been guilty in the past of writing plays regardless of whether the first act was played first or last, but he hoped that in this case he had not been negligent of the prime condition of logical sequence. Even Henry B. Harris, the manager, had to come out and bow his acknowledgements, but I doubt whether the enthusiasm survived the tame last act.

One of the most remarkable tendencies of the times, theatrically speaking, is shown in the frequency with which plays find their way on the stage, which are peculiar for nothing so much as their melancholy character. Last week the New theater produced "The Witch," a story of Salem witchcraft, and at the Hackett a special performance was given of a four-act piece entitled "The Snow Storm." It was translated from the Polish of Stanislaus Przybishewski by Herman Bernstein, and is described in the program as "a psychological drama." That excuses many shortcomings in the eyes of some people, and, truly, it was psychological enough, though it lacked action and movement, and was stamped with the peculiar depression of the Polish temperament.

The entire action takes place in the morning room of one Thaddeus, a young Polish nobleman, who, with his brother, Kazimir, is the only survivor of the once powerful family. Kazimir is a dreamer, and Thaddeus a melancholy Hamlet, fated to be ensnared in the meshes of a supposedly beautiful siren. Her name is Eva, and he had an affair with her before his marriage to the young and vivacious Bronka, who loves him devoutedly.

The four acts are taken up in showing the hopeless struggle of the enchanted Thaddeus to escape the lure of Eva, who has been invited to the house during the temporary absence of Thaddeus by Bronka herself. Bronka becomes desperately unhappy, and in turn draws Kazimir into the vortex of her unhappiness. Kazimir loves her in secret and with a pure heart.

Seeing whither things are tending with Thaddeus and Eva he is consumed with pity for the distressed young wife, confesses his love to her and follows her to the icy pond, in which she has previously ordered the gardener to cut a hole. Thaddeus has gone away with Eva. The play ends as Kazimir and Bronka walk out arm in arm to the dark hole in the frozen pond.

The theme suggests Rosmersholm, and Ibsen's influence is distinctly traceable in the play, though Ibsen's power of drawing character, of using theatrical effects and pervading the whole spirit of his work with his insidious interest is wanting. It exercised a peculiar spell, but its vagueness will keep it from being recognized as a remarkable play. The performance was interesting for the extraordinary ability displayed by the young actress who played Bronka. She is a Western product and her name is Sara Piala. She is not pretty. A decided brunette with rather plain features and a small frame, she manifested remarkable emotional powers and startled the few critics who attended the performance—for it was Sunday night—as well as several managers who were present especially to watch her work.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has made her vaudeville debut, and is appearing at one of the vaudeville houses in a one-act dramalet entitled, "Expiation," which is another grewsome theatrical nightmare. The scene, of course, is laid in Russia, and Mrs. Campbell plays a patriot who pretends love to a cruel governor whom she holds responsible for the death of her family. As the situation develops the woman asks to be fastened in the irons used for prisoners, and then in turn playfully fastens them on the governor. Having got him in the irons and the position of a good target, she cries "For justice and Russia!" and shoots him dead.

Mrs. Pat is not popular with the critics, and they have been anything but kind to her in their comments. But the piece is always loudly applauded. Whether it be the hypnotism of Mrs. Campbell's stately beauty and rich, sonorous contralto voice, or the shock of the tragedy which is responsible must be left to conjecture.

At the academy of music, Sothern and Marlowe, in Shakesperean plays, are meeting with extraordinary success. The first week they appeared in "The Taming of the Shrew," and the ticket speculators overran the sidewalk in front of the theater, which is as sure a sign of a feast as to see buzzards floating in the air. The academy is patronized by the East side population, and the prices are always "popular." As the engagement is for ten weeks or such a matter, it will be seen that Shakespeare has a mightier following among the half-submerged and the people of the sweatshop regions than on the other side presented "The Merchant of Venice."

Nothing has been heard further of Julia Marlowe appearing as Hamlet this season, and the project seems to have been postponed for the present. It was reported that in this production Sothern would play the Polonius for its comedy.

Theory at present is for a new leading woman or two. Leading women are scarce. As soon as one develops, some manager takes her up and stars her. Result, a critical shortness of the market. Now Henry B. Harris declares that he is about to start a search for a suitable leading lady, and to that end is going to look over every stock company that he can possibly reach. Incidental to this announcement, another manager has engaged the leading lady of a Los Angeles stock company whom he saw in a new play. He purchased the rights to the play and stipulated that the leading actress should go with the deal. She started immediately for New York and is already rehearsing at one of the theaters here.

"None So Blind" has not proved suitable to John Mason, and he will shortly appear in a play from the Danish of Sophus Michaelis, entitled "A Son of the People," which was first seen at the Irving Place German theater this season, under the title of "A Revolutionary Wedding." The scene of the play is Paris during the Revolution.

Strangely enough, Mason will first present this play at the New theater, and with his own company. This is due to the fact that the New theater management has been disappointed in getting another play ready in time for the regular premiere night. The Danish author is now in New York and will remain until the first performance in English of his drama. Meanwhile he has disposed of another play to the Shuberts, dealing with Napoleon and entitled "St. Helena."

In this connection an announcement is likely to be soon forthcoming that Liebler & Co. will succeed Harrison Grey Fiske and Lee Shubert in the management of John Mason. The arrangement is thought to be contingent on whether "A Son of the People" scores a hit or not.

It is doubtful whether the New theater will produce Maeterlinck's fantastic play, "The Bluebeard," as announced, since the Belgian author has expressed his opposition to the arrangement for some reason not yet made clear. All that is known about it is that Maeterlinck has declared that he will not allow the New theater to produce it. His "Sister Beatrice" is now in rehearsal at this playhouse and is the piece that has been postponed for a couple of weeks, a part of which John Mason is to have for his "Son of the People."

James K. Hackett had the option on "The Bluebeard" and forfeited $5,000 for not producing it. That was four years ago. Now an English manager holds the rights at $20,000, having paid Maeterlinck $10,000 for them. The piece is said to be a tremendous success. Winthrop Ames, the manager of the New theater, was the only bidder at the Englishman's price, and the matter was regarded as settled until the author assumed an attitude of opposition to its production by the New theater. For six years the play went begging among English-speaking managers, although fifty companies were playing it in Russia.

• • •

An interesting case is likely ere long to come in for a good deal of publicity. It relates to a dispute over the original authorship of "Paid in Full." Florence Gerard, an actress, claims that the play was elaborated from a one-act play of hers, which embodies the vital situation of Walter's famous drama and suggests all the other acts. The suit has been on trial before a United States commissioner in this city for some time. Miss Gerard is suing for all the profits of the play, alleging that she gave her playlet to Robert Hunter, a theatrical manager, who with her consent turned it over to Walter for expansion into a four-act play, and for use by Katherine Grey. Miss Grey did not care for it after Walter elaborated it, and it went the rounds of the managerial offices until Wagenhals and Kemper finally produced it. The defense attempted to show that the situation is identical with plays written previous to Miss Gerard's drama, and called Augustus Thomas, La Gallienne and one of the critics here to substantiate the claim that the theme was not original with her.

FRED MACE,
Comedian of "The Time, The Place and The Girl" Company.

All theatrical people are considered to be more or less philanthropic, and Fred Mace, the comedian with "The Time, The Place and The Girl," which will be seen at the Lyceum Sunday and Monday with a special Sunday matinee, is one of the many who devote more time to the cause than do others, but he is not the kind to brag about it. He does it because he enjoys the work. In a very recent interview with a Milwaukee newspaper man, the comedian had the following to say on the subject: "I know every one has some favorite way of enjoying themselves, but there is no happier way than doing something for the poor and needy. The more interest taken the more happiness one will enjoy."

"You have no doubt witnessed many pitiful examples of suffering," said the reporter.

"Yes, indeed," replied the comedian, "some of them are really heart breaking, and yet some of these cases, no matter how sad, have a funny side to them. Last year in Chicago my attention was called to a family that lived a short distance from the theater who were in extreme financial stress apparently, so I took a trip around to the miserably furnished home and found the report was true and that they were hungry. I made myself acquainted with the poor half starved looking woman, and presently gave her two five-dollar bills and told her to spend it as she thought best. A few days later I returned to the house to see how they were getting along but they seemed to look about the same as they did on my first visit, so I said to the lady: 'Did you buy some meat and groceries with the money I left you?'

"Well—er I—I spent some of it for food,' replied the mother hesitatingly, 'but you see sir, it was more money than we had seen all at once for so long, and it looked like such a good chance, that we took the four little babies up town and had three dozen cabinet photographs taken of them, the dear little things.'" company to support Mrs. Fiske in Ibsen's "Pillars of Society." He will play the role of Illimar Tonessen. He had considerable experience with George Edwardes's companies in London, and recently played in "The Noble Spaniard."

George W. Lederer has secured a play entitled "The Cheater," of which Louis Mann is the adapter. Mr. Mann encountered the play in a German theater last summer, and immediately acquired the rights. He has sold his version to Lederer and H. H. Frazee, a part owner of the Cort theater, Chicago. When Mr. Mann plays his engagement at McVicker's theater, Chicago, next month, "The Cheater" will be placed in rehearsal under his direction, although he, of course, is not to act in it.

At a meeting of the finance committee of the Actors' Fund of America Daniel Frohman, the president of the fund, appointed A. L. Erlanger as national chairman of the Actors' Fund benefits, which will be given in all the large cities of the United States and Canada, on a day selected by Mr. Erlanger during the week of April 25, in advance of the Actors' Fund fair in New York, which opens on May 9. These benefits are to be given the same day in Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City, New Orleans, Denver, San Francisco Los Angeles, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Chicago, Buffalo, Rochester, Toronto and Montreal. The arrangements will be placed in each of these cities in the hands of the respective local managers.

The first performance in English of Henri Bernstein's drama, "Baccarat," with an American company headed by Madame Marietta Olly, was given last Monday night at Providence, R. I., before a distinguished audience by the Messrs. Shubert. The play by the author of "The Thief," "Sampson" and "Israel," was doubly interesting, for it not only marked the premier of a drama which has attracted attention in every capital of Europe, but the first appearance in English of Madame Olly, who is believed to be destined to occupy a position on our stage as that of her distinguished predecessors from Europe who have established themselves in this country, namely Modjeska, Rhea, Januaschek and Nazimova.

"Baccarat" is an intense drama of the Bernstein type. It's story in brief tells of Helene de Brechebel, which role Madame Olly plays, a young French woman who marries for financial reasons and is bored by domestic conditions. She loves Robert Dufrese, who is a society gambler. The latter loses his fortune and a sum of money belonging to his employer, and when Helen learns that he intends to kill himself she offers his aid. Helene gives herself to a former admirer who agrees to furnish the money, tries to reach Robert in time to prevent him from killing himself, but is too late. An emotional drama of intense interest, Providence gave "Baccarat" strong indorsement and repeatedly recalled Madame Olly and the other members of the company, which includes Thurlow Bergen, Albert Gran, John Emerson, Melville Stewart, Franklyn Hurleigh, Willis Martin, Donah Benrimo, Caroline Harris, Roslyn Mundell and Melvina Longfellow. "Baccarat" is to be taken into New York by the Shuberts in a few weeks.

Blanche Ring has registered another New York hit, making even more of a personal success than she did in "The Midnight Sons." On the occasion of her metropolitan opening in "The Yankee Girl," seats were at a premium, the house being sold out days in advance. Remick and Maurice Shapiro.

The story that Sam Bernard was to essay a serious role has, like the proverbial lamb, turned up, bringing its tail behind. Mr. Bernard declares that it is mostly "tale."

"A comedian I always have been and always will be. There never was a greater demand for comedy than to-day; and I believe, too, that the German comedian has the call. In 'The Girl and the Wizard' I have two serious scenes, but they terminate in a laugh. It is the contrast which makes the laugh all the more enjoyable."

While Miss Flora Wilson, the concert singer, was on her recent tour of the West, she was entertained by Senator Smoot in Logan, and was the guest of honor at a banquet given on Thanksgiving eve to the football teams, representing Logan and the University of Utah, who were going to have their annual contest the next day.

Miss Wilson was received with deafening college cheers from the two teams when she responded to the toast "The Artist Daughter of the Sectretary of Agriculture." Much to her surprise she was called upon for a speech, but her experience as a Washington hostess and her concert appearances had given her a rare training in self-possession and adaptability to circumstances. The cantatrice has spoken often on the subject of her chosen vocation, and is to give lectures this summer before Chautauqua bodies and teachers' conventions.

With little outward perturbation, therefore, Miss Wilson told the college boys of her father's efforts to have her five brothers graduate from college.

"I'll put them all through," said he, "if it takes my last eight acres of land," and he did. One of the brothers, William, for eight years professor of horticulture at the Iowa State University, was a great football player. He was captain of his team during his senior year, and had a reputation even in the East.

Miss Wilson made a hit with the boys. She went to the game the next day, and they went to her concert.

people waiting their turns to enter the car. The rush never stopped and it was a constant flow of people all day until time for the lecture.

"Long before the lecture hour, people were waiting to have the doors open, and within a half hour every inch of space was taken in the largest hall in town. They monopolized every inch of standing room and we were finally forced to turn away several hundreds. About 600 were crowded within the four walls. A great crowd remained afterward to learn more and ask questions."

"Take Northwest to the People."

President Hill believes that if all the people do not go to the Northwest, the Northwest can be taken to all the people. This is the idea of James J. Hill, his father, and President Hill is carrying it out most effectively.

This campaign will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars this year. The entire country will share in the benefits. James J. Hill, in his address President Taft's day at the Montana state fair, said: "Sometimes people wonder why I take such an interest in this subject. Well, let me tell you, I take that interest in it because the cultivation of the soil is the foundation upon which the prosperity and even the life of our people must depend, not only now but for all time."

And this is why President Hill of the Great Northern, carrying on his father's work, is taking the Northwest to the people who do not go to the Northwest.

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"As an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wiltshire of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended." For sale by all druggists.

Sure Remedy for Coughs and Colds

What to Do in Quickly Curing Even the Worst Cases Without Doctor's Aid.

It isn't necessary to run to the doctor every time you get a cough or a cold, neither do you need to dose and dope yourself with poisonous, brain-dulling opiates and dangerous drugs, such as so many of the so-called "cough cures" contain. Just do as the doctors do. Use the same sort of treatment they prescribe. Take a little gentle laxative and send or go to the drug store for a bottle of Salubrin, which the best doctors say should be used in all affections of the throat, lungs and air passages because it's safe and cures a cold up right quick and to stay cured. Salubrin is a standard preparation originated by great doctors in Sweden and now listed in official hand books of drugs authorized for use by physicians.

Salubrin is sold everywhere by druggists for 50 cents per bottle. Just get a bottle today and use it as directed, and see your cold just simply vanish.

"SHOW CROP WEALTH—SPARE NO EXPENSE"

President L. W. Hill of Great Northern in Campaign on Treasures of Northwest—Hundreds of Thousands to Be Spent This Year on Publicity, Land Shows and Art.

Searchlights of publicity are being turned on the vast wealth of agricultural possibilities of Montana, Washington, North Dakota and Oregon by President Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern railroad.

The high cost of living—or "the cost of high living"—has developed a feeling of unrest in every crowded center.

You can hear twice as much talk of "back to the soil" in the large cities today as you heard a year ago.

Land hunger, which economists tell us always exists with American people, has been aroused to an acute stage.

There is knowledge, more or less vague, of the possibilities of independent wealth, the simple life and all the charms of agriculture in the great northern stretches of the country.

President Hill proposes to take advantage of this land hunger and give the public specific facts instead of vague generalities—to let the people know, for instance, that 20,000,000 acres of tillable land is yet available in Montana, and that any citizen of the United States may yet possess himself of 320 acres of this productive land under the homestead laws.

Cost Not Counted.

Cost is not to be reckoned in this great campaign. It will be on a scale hitherto not attempted.

The newspaper and magazine press will be used. Land shows now being given in the large cities will be continued until the whole country has had an opportunity to see the big red apples, the heavy heads of wheat, oats, rye, barley and the great big potatoes ten inches long and weighing four pounds each, onions five inches in diameter weighing two pounds, yet of the finest quality, and the luxuriant grasses that flourish in these states.

Large and beautifully illuminated pictures are sent to these shows. These pictures are now in preparation and several of them are going out from the Great Northern railway offices. Moving picture machines will be used to illustrate actual life on the farms of these states—tilling, etc., all reproduced in motion.

For territories in which show rooms are not available, exhibition cars are already in service. These large cars are lined with exhibits of the fruits, grain and grass, just as the show rooms are. The cars, like the show rooms, are in charge of men thoroughly familiar with all this territory and lecturers who give interesting addresses on every phase of agriculture.

An especial reason for holding these exhibitions at this time is that during the present year the United States government will open 4,000,000 acres of land in the state of Montana to homeseekers. The Savoy district in that state was opened the first of this year, and there is already a large settlement there. The Great Rocky Boy reservation, from which the Indians have departed, was thrown open on March 1. Homesteads of 320 acres each are awaiting settlers without lottery or drawing for first choice, but on assignment by the government agents.

President Hill's Idea.

The land show is part of this great publicity campaign and is President Hill's idea.

The permanent exhibition in St. Paul is a mecca for thousands passing through the gateway to the Northwest. This exhibition is at 288 Sibley street, two doors from the Union station.

As high as 30,000 people a day pass through the Union station at St. Paul, and the most of this number visit the Great Northern Land Show.

It is an exhibit of interest to women and children as well as to all men—all homeseekers. Everybody is made at home and invited to spend as much time there as he wishes. A writing room and other conveniences add to the comfort of the visitors.

10,000 Daily at the Boston Show.

A similar exhibit is now in progress at 201 Washington street, Boston, and 10,000 people a day are passing through this exhibit.

The Chicago show was opened at 220 South Clark street, March 1, by General Immigration Agent E. C. Leedy.

Judging from the interest shown in the recent land show held in Chicago, the Great Northern exhibition will prove as successful there as in Boston.

Another exhibit has just been closed at Philadelphia with an attendance averaging 5,000 people a day. Farmers for a 1,000 miles around came to Philadelphia to see this land show. One prominent farmer said to Mr. Leedy: "This is the best thing Philadelphia has had since the exposition in '76." Other shows have been held recently at Springfield, Mo., the "Dry Farming Congress" at Billings, Mont., and the International corn exposition at Omaha, Neb.

Like a Circus Day.

One of the exhibition cars is now touring Pennsylvania with an exhibition of the products of the Flathead valley, Montana and Eastern Washington. At Lewistown, Pa., D. K. Kitchell in charge gives the idea of the popularity of information about the Northwest, in this form. Mr. Kitchell reports as follows:

"The car has been advertised at Youngsville, Penn., and billed for fifteen miles back in the country. As a result, it has brought in town, which is a place of only about 2,000 inhabitants, one of the biggest crowds they have known in a long time.

"The little narrow gauge line from Sugar Grove and vicinity brought in a special train load. The train was held until after the evening lecture. All day long the center of the town and around the depot had the appearance of a fair or circus day on account of the innumerable rigs and wagons of ruralists who had driven into Youngsville for the express purpose of visiting the car and attending the lecture.

"Scarcely was the car in readiness before the throngs were in attendance and it is no exaggeration to say that at times there were fully 100

SYDNEY ROSENFELD'S NEW PLAY IS PRODUCED IN NEW YORK

LAURA HALL AND ORRIN JOHNSON IN "CHILDREN OF DESTINY."

Henry Harris has just put on at the Savoy theater in New York, Sydney Rosenfeld's new play, "Children of Destiny." The children in the case are a young girl whose fiance has cast her off suddenly with the statement that he has discovered a cloud on her birth and who seeks deliberately in the half world of the continent surcease of sorrow; and a young man, the victim of misfortune, seeking like nepenthe in the gay world of Monte Carlo. Drawn together by their common lot of sorrow, they fall in love and marry. Mr. Harris claims that the play has a "powerful moral uplift."

CHURN DRILLS FOR CACTUS

To Ascertain Extent of Mineralized Schist Body—Location for Third Working Shaft to Be Selected —New Hoist to Be Installed.

Globe, Ariz., March 5.—A Star churn drill is expected to arrive within the next few days for use at the Cactus property, located on Pinto creek, sixteen miles southwest of Globe. The first work for which the drill is intended will be that of ascertaining the exact extent of the mineralized schist body, which will enable the management to select a location for a third working shaft on the Cactus property.

The development work on the third, fourth and fifth levels of the Hamilton shaft has shown a uniform copper content throughout the mineralized area, and the Calumet & Globe shaft, located on the adjoining property on the west, developed mineralized schist at a depth of 275 feet, assaying about 2 per cent copper. The encountering of high grade carbonate ore in the Pinto shaft located on the Pinto property adjoining the Cactus on the northwest, is a favorable indication of the extension of an ore body in that direction, and the underground level work south of the Hamilton shaft shows the copper value to be continuous in the southern portion of the altered schist area. The capping of dacite in the vicinity of the Pinto and Calumet & Globe shafts gives promise of an extension of the mineralized schist in these directions of considerably greater extent than is evident from the surface indications.

The drifts being driven from the Hamilton to the Pinto shaft will enable the management to prosecute the exploratory work much more expeditiously than is possible under present conditions, and will thus insure a rapid extension of the mine workings beyond the present limits and a thorough exploration of the area which, as yet, is unknown with respect to its mineral value. The territory east of the present workings will also undoubtedly show a considerable extent of the mineralized area, as the altered schist extends for a distance of several hundred feet in this direction and shows some mineralization at the surface.

With the installation of a new hoist at the Pinto shaft, it will be possible to hoist easily all the ground broken in the various drifts, thus permitting the development to progress at the rate of about 4,000 feet every month. However, pending the further development of the Pinto property, two compartments of the Hamilton will be utilized in the hoisting of the material from the seventeen working faces already in readiness for advancement.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Bald Mountain Companies to Resume as Non-Union Properties With Same Hours and Union Wages —Minnesota Mines Company Resumes.

Deadwood, S. D., March 5.—It is announced that the Bald Mountain mining companies that have been idle for the last six weeks through labor troubles expect to resume as non-union properties. Preparations are being made by the Golden Reward, Mogul, Imperial, Portland and one or two smaller properties. When the companies ceased operations in January they announced that they would reopen only on the non-union basis. The shutdown affected, exclusive of the Homestake, something like 800 men in the hills. The companies which plan resuming next month employ over 500. A considerable number of these have either severed their conections with the Western Federation and signed up as non-union employes on the new card system or have notified the companies of their intention of returning to work when they resume, as non-union men. Both the Golden Reward and Mogul sent written notices to those of their employes that they wished to take back requesting them to signify their intentions before Feb. 21, or their names would be dropped from the payrolls. The full complement of employes will be made up with men secured from the outside, notably Joplin, Mo., and other metal camps. No announcement has been made as to wages or working hours, but it is understood that the present conditions of eight hour shifts and union wages will be maintained.

ACTIVE IN COEUR D'ALENES

Much Development in Progress—North Bunker Hill Driving Biggest Tunnel in Wardner District—Almost Unlimited Capital is Invested.

Spokane, Wash., March 5.—North Bunker Hill Mining company has received a deed issued by the council of Wardner, Idaho, for ground in the city limits, over which there has been controversy for several years. This action gives the company possession of all surface rights. Workmen are now extending a tunnel from the Wardner side of the gulch through Haystack peak to the company's ledge, to be cut at a depth of 1,000 feet. Electricity will be used in driving the tunnel, which is one of the big pieces of mining work started in the Wardner district this year.

Reports come from Wallace that sufficient ore is exposed at the Black Horse property to keep the mill in operation for years. Development work has been halted and the management will push the construction of the mill. No more development will be done until the company is paying dividends. There is in sight a total length of 600 feet of ore varying from 4 to 14 feet in width, and proved to a depth of 1,000 feet. Some of this ore is clean and can be sorted out after passing through the crusher, the lower grade being handled in the mill. At total length of tunnel of more than a mile has been run at a cost exceeding $50,000.

Iron Mountain Tunnel company, operating in the Carter district of the Coeur d'Alenes, has taken a bond on the Iron Mountain mine, where it has expended $260,000 in development, while the dividends paid amount to $507,500. The capitalization has been increased from $1,600,000 to $2,000,000, the number of shares being reduced to 200,000, having a par value of $10 each. A 3,600-foot tunnel has cut veins at a depth of 1,600 feet. It is estimated that 200,000 tons of zinc, lead and silver ore have been blocked out in a new vein opened by the bondholders. The average value of the ore, by assay test, is 36 per cent zinc, 12 ounces of silver and 8 per cent lead. The officers of the company are William Q. Ranft of Boston, president; Thomas C. Marshall of Missoula, Mont., vice president; S. B. Vrooman of Philadelphia, treasurer, and E. L. Freeman of Missoula, secretary.

What is believed to be one of the largest lead-silver strikes in the Coeur d'Alenes has been made by the leasers of the Jack Waite property at Murray. At a depth of 150 feet a ledge 30 feet wide has been opened, showing solid ore nine feet of which is said to be clean shipping and the other 21 feet of milling grade. For 1,500 feet along the surface solid ore is shown.

Monarch raise, 854 feet, the longest in the Coeur d'Alene district, has been completed. The company has large quantities of ore blocked out, and has been awaiting the finishing of the raise before beginning large shipments. E. P. Spalding, manager, said early in February that the company planned to run the mill full blast as soon as the raise broke through.

AT THE SUPERIOR & GLOBE

Recent Increase in Flow of Water Being Satisfactorily Taken Care of—National Following Course Predicted by Adjoining Properties.

Globe, Ariz., March 5.—A slight increase in the water seepage in the north crosscut from the 650-foot level of the Superior & Globe shaft has caused some additional building during the past week. This increase is due to the encountering of faulted ground at a distance of 235 feet from the shaft, accompanied by an apparent alteration of the diabase and the occurrence of considerable iron oxide through a length of five or six feet. A large boiler, however, will be added to the hoisting equipment within a few days and no further difficulty is expected for the time being, at least. In case of any great increase in the flow, steps will be taken to afford better means of conveying the water to the surface. As no water has appeared south of the shaft, it will probably be some time before a pump will be necessary to handle the water. At the present distance of 230 feet from the shaft in the south crosscut, the diabase continues dry. The occurrence of occasional quartz stringers through the formation is an interesting feature of this part of the workings.

National.

The Williams shaft of the National Mining Exploration company is now in black shale and slate at the depth of 580 feet, having passed through the quartzite at 570 feet into the shale overlying the limestone at the depth of 500 feet, quartzite has prevailed down to the shale which occurs as a seam, separating the quartzite and slate and lying nearly horizontal. This occurrence, however, is simply a repetition of the geological history exposed in the course of shaft sinking at the neighboring properties of the district, where later developments were made in a continuation of the quartzite and of ore bodies at the Superior & Boston and Arizona Commercial mines.

Arizona-Michigan.

Hard diorite and quartzite continue as the formations in which the crosscuts from the Telfair shaft of the Arizona-Michigan Mining company are being driven. In the quartzite first encountered as a rather soft material, 364 feet from the shaft, the resistance to the attacks of the drills has increased continually as the drier part of the formation has been reached. From its present face, an advance of nearly 400 feet will be required to intersect the De Wett vein, which outcrops over 900 feet north of the shaft. About the same distance from the present face of the south crosscut will bring the work into the locality in which the Old Dominion vein is assumed to lie at the 500-foot level. The hardness of the formation, however, makes the advance so slow that the question of the feasibility of exploring this vein by means of a second shaft is still a debated one among the directors. The 500 feet driven in each direction from the Telfair shaft have passed through ground of exceptional hardness for the entire distance, with the exception of only a few feet where an occasional slip gave access to the water seepage.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

South Quincy Company Organized to Explore Properties Along Portage Lake Opposite Quincy Mine—Rock From Tecumseh Mine to Have Mill Test—Arcadian Still Diamond Drilling.

Houghton, Mich., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—New York and Boston interests have organized what will be known as the South Quincy company to take title to and explore the old Montezuma, South Side and Dacotah properties, comprising 759 acres along the Portage lake, and lying directly opposite the Quincy mine in the presumed horizon of the Kearsarge, Pewabic, Hancock and Atlantic lodes. The new company is capitalized at 200,000 shares, par value $25, of which 120,000 shares will be issued. The property owners will receive $600,000 in cash and 40,000 shares of stock in full payment for their holdings, leaving the company in possession of $200,000 cash and 80,000 shares of treasury stock to begin operations with. The several tracts comprising this property have been explored to a small extent by diamond drilling and test pitting in years past, and some very good showings of copper were had, but the development of the property was never seriously attempted. Charles S. Herzig is president, B. H. Scheftels, treasurer, and W. Murdock Wiley, secretary of the new company. Public offerings of the stock will be made in a few days at $10 per share.

La Salle.

La Salle has made all preparations for a mill test on rock from its Tecumseh mine and the first of these shipments are expected to go forward in a few days. A large stockpile has accumulated in the course of opening work done in the past, and it is from this that most of the rock will be taken. This rock carries considerable copper and though a high average yield is probable in the mill test about to begin it is not likely that the yield in the future milling will continue high, and that a recovery of more than sixteen to eighteen pounds fine copper per ton of rock will be had.

Arcadian.

Arcadian continues engaged in diamond drilling, with the two drill outfits in service. The No. 2 drill hole has been sunk to a depth of 1,650 feet without disclosing anything of promise and the work there has ceased and the drill removed to a new site, where it is thought the extension of the Baltic and Superior lodes will be encountered. The No. 3 drill hole to the northward is sinking steadily and thus far discloses nothing of value.

Keweenaw.

Keweenaw continues its exploratory operations in the Mandan property and shaft sinking in the Kearsarge horizon. The exploratory work is being conducted in the horizons of the Calumet conglomerate and Osceola amygdaloid oldes, and though nearly every point of attack has yielded a showing of copper there has been nothing in the developments to warrant further investigation by shaft sinking. Over on the Kearsarge lode, the shaft has attained a depth of seventy-five feet and the showing there is probably the best yet obtained in any of the work yet done on this property. The Kearsarge lode at this point shows a width of eighteen to twenty feet, of which about one-half is found to carry copper in commercial quantity. There has been a slow but steady improvement at depth in this shaft.

New Baltic.

New Baltic's No. 3 drill hole located about a thousand feet north of the No. 2, or discovery hole, has attained a depth of 550 feet and is thought to be bottomed within 100 feet of the so-called New Baltic lode recently disclosed on this property. Drilling operations have been rather slow. The character of the cores yielded by No. 3 hole are cause for considerable encouragement and it is confidently expected that the east bed of the New Baltic lode will be found well mineralized at this point. The showing in this lode in the No. 2 hole was very good, a total width of seventy-five feet being demonstrated with from ten to twelve feet in the lode carrying copper in rather sensational quantities.

Mohawk.

Mohawk has again resumed drifting at the 300-foot level in the No. 6 shaft and a fine showing of copper ground is being obtained. The lode has been opened latterly for a distance of about eighty feet and apparently is improving with further opening work. Shaft sinking for the next level is again under way.

Laurium.

Laurium's operations on the Kearsarge lode are proving very encouraging. The shaft has attained a depth of 300 feet, and continues sinking without interruption, no attempt being made to open up latterly within the lode. A second shaft is planned, and will probably be started early next summer.

Lake.

Lake is engaged in the creation of lateral openings at the several levels from the second to the sixth inclusive, and as in the past, some very fine runs of ground are being opened. The developments at the third and fourth levels are particularly encouraging. The new lode continues to receive attention by drifting at the sixth level and is showing ground of only ordinary richness. The shaft is sinking around a depth of 940 feet. Mill shipments have been steady for more than a month past, in which time the rock from the Lake mine was given a very thorough test, and the present yield of thirty-four pounds mineral per ton of rock milled is probably more representative of what there is in the mine than was the first yield of eighty pounds mineral per ton of rock obtained in the initial test several months ago, and though less than one-half as great is nevertheless the greatest yield obtained from any amygdaloid mine in this district, not even excepting such properties as the Wolverine, Ahmeek and Superior, the Lake rock being milled absolutely without selection.

BUTTE OUTPUT IS REDUCED

New Low Record of Production in February Caused by Strike of Hoisting Engineers—Talk of Merger of East Butte and Davis-Daly—Tuolumne Rumor Denied.

Butte, Mont., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The strike of hoisting engineers, which tied up many of the Butte mines from one to two weeks, caused a new low record of production for the Butte district in February. The total for all the producing companies was about 13,927,000 pounds, against a normal monthly output of 28,000,000 to 30,000,000 pounds. The total tonnage of ore and pounds of copper produced by different companies during the month were as follows:

Companies—	Tons of Ore.	Pounds of Copper.
Boston & Montana..	60,500	4,200,000
Anaconda	50,000	3,100,000
Butte Coalition	31,000	2,100,000

Decision in Smelter Case.

Mining men from the Atlantic to the Pacific will be interested in the decision just handed down by Federal Judge William H. Hunt in favor of the defendant smelting companies in the celebrated Hugh Magone case. The case was first brought to public attention a few years ago when Magone applied for an injunction to restrain milling and smelting companies operating in this city and Anaconda from polluting the Deer Lodge river and demanding damages for injury claimed to have been done to his land in the Deer Lodge valley Judge Hunt referred the matter to the master-in-chancery to hear evidence. On his findings, Judge Hunt refused to issue the injunction, but Magone is given judgment for $572.50. Magone demanded damages on account of tailings and other waste distributed over his farm through irrigation ditches. Judge Hunt held that Magone was not entitled to any such damages but may collect for injury done by the overflow of the river upon his land. The court held that the chief damage resulted from the use of polluted water in the irrigation ditches and that there was no foundation that Magone had rights as a riparian owner. Judge Hunt pointed out in his decision that the prior appropriator has the right as against a subsequent appropriator to use the water for mining and smelting as well as for irrigation purposes. He says that in the enjoyment of this right there is also necessarily included the right of pollution of the water to some extent, provided the use makes pollution necessary—very light perhaps, if the use is for irrigation, but often times comparatively serious if the use for mining or smelting. The judge points out that defendants' appropriations were several years earlier than the appropriation made by complainant. He says that complainant knew of the earlier right and their uses, and the pollution of the stream has been no greater than was necessarily and unavoidably connected with the successful operation of the defendants' smelters. The Anaconda Copper company was included in the suit, but the judge held that it had done no substantial damage and dismissed it from the action. The percentages of payment fixed by the court against the companies involved were: Colorado Smelting & Mining company, 24 per cent, the Colusa-Parrot Mining & Smelting company, 16 per cent; Parrot Silver & Copper company, 18 2-3 per cent; Montana Ore Purchasing company, 24 per cent; Butte & Boston Consolidated Mining company, 17 1-3 per cent. The court gave the defendants sixty days in which to make the payment, and if at the end of that time payment is not made an injunction will issue.

Davis-Daly.

A story is in evirculation in the East to the effect that a movement is on foot looking to a consolidation of the East Butte and Davis-Daly interests, it being stated that a brokerage firm of Boston is willing to pay the proposed assessment of Davis-Daly on condition that it be given control of the Heinze company, and the expenditure of the money received from the assessment. The Davis-Daly company is capitalized for 670,00 shares, of which 70,000 shares are in the treasury, so that the Davis-Daly people take the view that the Boston brokerage firm which controls East Butte would very willingly pay say a $3 assessment in order to get control of the property. There seems to be a well-founded report that an effort to raise $150000 have failed and now President Heinze proposes to sell the 70,000 shares of treasury stock to replenish the treasury and thus escape levying an assessment. Just as soon as the proposed tramway is built from the Colorado mine to connect with the railway, the shipment of Davis-Daly ore to the Basin concentrator will be commenced and the company begin to earn money.

Tuolumne Rumor Denied.

Another story is out concerning Tuolumne. It has been stated that North Butte is not to be taken into the merger, but that Tuolumne will. Both the North Butte and the Tuolumne people deny the story and among people supposed to be well posted in what is transpiring in mining circles there is a belief that there is nothing to the story. A majority of the stock of the Tuolumne is owned by a few people and it has been deposited in the First National bank of this city for the past three years, just to show the general public that the control of the company is not for sale—at least, such is the reason given by an official of the company.

The Tuolumne Copper Mining company has filed its annual statement as required by law. The capital stock of the company is $800,000, fully paid up, while the assets consist of mining property claimed to the value of $400,000, cash $142,444.24, machinery, etc., $43,918.50, miscellaneous items $4,500, making a total of $590,862.74. There are no liabilities.

The Anaconda Meeting.

Ben B. Thayer, president of the Anaconda Copper Mining company, and C. F. Kelley, chief counsel of the Amalgamated Copper company, have arrived in this city from New York to make preparations for the meeting of the Anaconda company on March 23 for the purpose of increasing the stock of the company and completing the plans for the merger of the Butte mines. There is not the least shadow of a doubt but what the plans as agreed on will go through without serious opposition, if any at all. In this connection it may be mentioned that a special meeting of the Boston & Montana company is called for March 26, three days after the Anaconda meeting, for the purpose, as set out in the notice, to consider a proposition to sell and dispose of the

THE GIROUX CONSOLIDATED

Work on Big Shaft and Sinking Below 1,000-Foot Level Being Reached—Boston-Ely Proving Width of Ore Body.

Ely, Nev., March 5.—At the Giroux shaft on the Giroux Consolidated the principal work continues to be that of retimbering the big five-compartment structure and sinking below the 1,000-foot level. No news has been received here as to when the contemplated reduction plant will be commenced, or where its location is to be. This will not be determined, more than likely, until it has been learned how much water can be developed in the shaft when the 1,200-foot level is reached. On the spur track, grading for which was completed last month, the steel has been laid and material for the shaft is now being hauled over the Nevada Northern road and right to the shaft without transfer. In the work of retimbering they are making about ten feet a day, so that it will be at least two months more before the shaft will be complete. About the same time the shaft will be finished down to the 1,200-foot level and the big pumps will be ready for installation as soon as this work is done. Some time in the spring the construction of the permanent hoisting plant will be commenced; meanwhile, the temporary plant is working in splendid shape.

There is but little change in the situation at the Boston-Ely since the mine got into the ore last week. They are continuing the north drift where they encountered the ore, and it is intended to drive through the ore as far as it will last before sinking again to the water line thirty feet below the present drift. The jasperoid was first entered in the shaft at a depth of 862 feet, and at 1,062 feet the shaft passed through the jasperoid, and it was here that they first got the ore. The jasperoid, therefore, has been proved to be 200 feet thick. They went through it first in a vertical direction and now they are going through it horizontally. It was first intended to sink a winze from the drift to the water level, but it was subsequently decided by the management to determine the width of the ore body.

The showing at the Clipper shaft on the Ely Central is growing better every day. That shaft has commercial ore—not a little of it, but a great big body of it. At a depth of 130 feet, samples assayed returned 1.55 per cent in copper tenor and down to the 120-foot level the Clipper shaft has passed through seventy-two feet of sulphite ore, the ore having been first encountered at the 58-foot point. The samples, which showed this result, were taken as all samples in the Ely Central are taken. They comprise material from the four sides of the shaft to a height of two feet from the bottom of the hole and the stuff in the bottom as well. Assays include everything in the shaft. At a depth of 125 feet a similar sample was taken, and the assays on this showed 1.20 per cent copper. This is one of the biggest developments in the Ely Camp. It gives to the Ely Central the possibility of a steam shovel pit. The Clipper is not being sunk in a narrow ledge as is evidenced by the fact that while it has been sunk vertically, it has been in the ore for seventy-two feet. If the ore were a narrow ledge, it would have pitched out of the shaft long before this. There has been some small lateral work in the shaft, but it is sufficient to prove a big, extensive ore body exists at this point on Ely Central ground and the shaft proves the ore lies so near the surface that steam shoveling may be possible. Dr. Walter Harvey Weed, the eminent geologist, has pronounced the Clipper ore similar in every respect to that of the Boundary district in British Columbia. These ores carry no barren flux, are not only in demand by the smelters, but because they carry no barren flux they are treated at lowest cost and a low percentage of ore can be handled at a profit.

GOOD HEADWAY AT LIVE OAK

Six Working Faces Steadily Advancing Through Commercial Ore—Work on the Cordova Property Will Await Churn Drill Prospecting.

Globe, Ariz., March 5.—According to the headway being made in the work of installing the large air compressor at the Live Oak mine, this machinery should be in operation within a few days. Practically the only work to be done to accomplish this is the installation of the boilers and the connecting of the pipes.

Four drifts and two raises being driven at present will be continued with air drills, but the intention is to start other raises from the third level at the junction of the various drifts west of the main one which connects with the shaft and the Sulphide tunnel.

The tramming will continue to be done through this tunnel and the air pipes will also enter the mine through this adit, which is 1,200 feet long. Te six working faces have been advanced for the past week in disseminated chalcocite of a uniform copper content averaging 2.6 per cent. These workings extend from Drift No. 306 westward, the raises only being put up from this drift. Drift No. 308 is 312 feet long; Drift No. 310 measures 238 feet and southwest Drifts Nos. 311 and 313 are respectively 150 feet and 71 feet long.

Cordova.

On the Eureka group of claims of the Cordova Copper company, located in the Miami mining district and adjoining the Miami, New Kensingtone and Live Oak properties, operations on the Sullivan shaft, on the east end of the group, have been suspended for the present, while the churn drill work is in progress.

At the first churn drill location near the Jennie shaft, about 300 feet of sulphide ore was drilled through and the hole now being sunk at a point 500 feet east of the first location is 225 feet deep and from the sixty-foot point has been in ground carrying considerable chalcocite. The results of the drill work on the Eureka group thus far have been most encouraging and at the present rate of development, by means of churn drills which has become so popular in the Miami district, the Cordova property should be proven of considerable value, from a mineralogical standpoint, within the next few months.

Warrior.

Shipments of ore from the mine of the Warrior Development company have been made at the rate of 100 tons daily during the month of February. This ore is chrysocolla and averages about 10 per cent copper.

The advance work now in progress on the 300-foot level of the mine consists of putting up a raise in Block No. 28, and of driving a drift westward. The raise measures fifty feet and is in ore of good commercial grade. The west drift is opening up a body of high grade copper ore, the dimensions of which can be in no measure determined at the present stage of development.

The Star churn drill is now working at its second location on the Montgomery claim. The drill hole is fifty feet deep and is in dacite. Sinking is progressing at the rate of about twenty-eight feet a day. The Warrior Development company is employing about seventy-five men in mining and surface work.

WORK AT BONANZA CIRCLE

New Ore on 1000-Foot Level of Superior & Pittsburg Proven to be Good Sized Body of Rich Oxide Ore.

Bisbee, Ariz., March 5.—No unusual development is reported from the Calumet & Arizona shafts this week. Normal shipments of ore are being made to the smelters and the productions for February has been to the usual standard. At the Cole shaft of the S. & P. company, the new ore body found on the 1,000 level has been proven to be a good sized body of rich oxide ore. The work on the bottom levels at the Cole continues to look very encouraging.

At the Hoatson the 1,300 drift is being pushed through to the Briggs shaft. There have been no new developments there recently. A new head frame is being designed for this shaft. It will be of steel and will replace the wooden frame there at present. It will be ready to install in about four months.

At the Junction shaft the 150 level has been pushed very rapidly towards the Hoatson and will connect with that shaft during the coming week. This drift has been advanced at the rate of about nine feet per day for over a month, which is pretty fast driving. The sulphide ore body south of the shaft has developed very nicely under recent explorations and is practically proven now on three levels.

At the Briggs shaft the 1,2 level is being cut, sinking, of course, being stopped while this is under way. As soon as the station is cut, sinking will be resumed.

The entire output of ore from the Copper Queen mines is now being hoisted through one shaft—the Sacramento—and the big hoisting engine is handling the output easily with plenty of capacityto spare. The ore is being sent to the surface at the rate of three tons per minute. Most of the ore is delivered to the Sacramento through the 400 and 1,400 levels, and the last connection with the Sacramento was made on the 1,400 level from the Lowell. The power used for transporting the ore cars to the Sacramento is electric locomotives, and the ore cars are roller bearing, which have proven a great success.

GREAT PROGRESS AT MIAMI

Over Eight Hundred Men Employed at Wonderful Copper Deposit—Concrete Foundations For Concentrator of 2000 Tons Capacity Are Completed.

Globe, Ariz., March 5.—At the mine of the Miami Copper company a force of over 800 men is being employed in general mining, surface and construction work. This is probably the maximum number of men that will be employed by the Miami Copper company during its present period of construction work.

On the 370-foot level, the drift being driven westward into the Captain claim, where the three churn drills are now prospecting, is advancing rapidly. So well organized and swift is the Miami Copper company's system of underground work that it is possible to explore with drifts the ground under the drill locations almost as soon as the sinking of the various drill locations is completed. In this way, the general information obtained by the drills work is quickly supported or modified by the drifting underground.

The concrete foundations for a concentrator with a daily capacity of 2,000 tons of ore are completed, but the erecting of the steel framework to support the corrugated iron walls is being delayed by the fact that a car of necessary materials has gone astray. The grading for the foundations of three additional units is practically done. For the present, the building of the concentrator and the equipment will not be constructed to include these three units, but the foundations for the additional units will be put in, so that the daily capacity of the concentrator may, at any time desired, be quickly increased to 3,000 tons.

The grading for the tramway to connect the power house and railroad on Miami Flat with the mine on top of the hill is nearing completion, and several hundred feet of narrow gauge track have already been laid. The excavation for the foundation of the new hoisting plant at shaft No. 4 is almost finished. A geared hoisting engine, operated by re-heated compressed air, will be installed there. The new two-story general office building now under construction a short distance east of the officials' messhouse will probably not be ready for occupation before April 1. The construction of the main power house on Miami Flat is progressing rapidly. Three 600-horse power boilers are already on the ground ready for shipment to the mine.

CONTROL OF TINTIC MINES

By Cole-Ryan Syndicate Likely to be Taken at Early Date, Despite Denial by E. R. Woolley of Salt Lake.

New York, March 5.—Last week the statement was published in the Mining Financial News that control of Colorado Mining and Iron Blossom of the Tintic district is under option to the Cole-Ryan syndicate and that the option probably will be exercised before April 1, the date on which the new International Smelter, in Pine canyon, Tuoole county, Utah, owned by the Cole-Ryan interests, begins operations. The control of Colorado and Iron Blossom was reported to have been sought by the Cole-Ryan people because of the superior fluxing qualities of the ores from these two mines. Following the publication in these columns, Ernest R. Wooley of Salt Lake issued an emphatic denial of the report, asserting it to be his knowledge that no option is outstanding in these two properties, which are owned by the Knight interests of Utah, and that none is being negotiated.

It was learned during this week that in spite of Mr. Wooley's denial, the chances for Colorado Mining and Iron Blossom passing to Cole-Ryan control are very much better than ever they have been, and negotiations looking to that end have been carried on at more or less frequent intervals during the last year or so. On account of the probability of the control passing either to the Cole-Ryan people or to the International Smelting Interests before April 1, a bullish disposition has developed in the markets toward these two stocks, and both show strength with probabilities of early advances.

AQUARIUM MADE A BURNING GLASS.

The placing of an aquarium containing gold fish in the window of Haupt Brothers' store at Roosevelt street and Central avenue, was the cause of a small fire this morning, which was extinguished immediately after it started.

The sun shining through the aquarium concentrated its rays on some paper in the window, having the same effect as a burning glass. One of the employes in the store noticed the paper smoking and upon investigation found it to have resulted from this.

TRAPPER RETURNS FROM SUCCESSFUL TRIP.

John Davidson, a pioneer trapper of West Duluth, returned yesterday from Canada, where he met with considerable success, securing hides and furs valued at nearly $1,000. He has gone to the Twin Cities to dispose of them.

Mr. Davidson says that there is plenty of snow and ice in the region of Black Bay and that he will go back for more furs. Last year he brought back furs and hides valued at $1,200.

WILL TALK OVER PLANS FOR CREAMERY.

A committee comprising P. H. Martin, Thomas Olafson, F. W. Jolitz and A. M. Swingle of the West Duluth Commercial club will meet Sunday, March 13, with the Farmers' club at Adolph, Minn., to confer upon the co-operative creamery plans. This was decided upon at the meeting of the Commercial club last evening.

Musical at Church.

A pleasing musicale was given last evening at the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the church. The program was arranged and given under the direction of Mrs. B. H. Smith and R. Abbott.

Card Club Entertained.

The members of the D. M. club were entertained yesterday afternoon at the heme of Mrs. Roy Baker of West Duluth. Cut flowers and ferns were used in the decorations. Honors were won by Mrs. Murden and Mrs. Graves. Light refreshments were served.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party in honor of Madame Rock was tendered to her by her friends last evening at her home, 623 North Fifty-sixth avenue west by the members of Modern hive, No. 893, Ladies of the Maccabees. The guests were: Mrs. Pickard, Mrs. Bassett, Mrs. Carlson, Mrs. White, Mrs. Rooney, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Loomis, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Little, Mrs. King, Mrs. Pine, Mrs. Burnett, Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Lutsku.

West Duluth Briefs.

Mrs. David Sang, wife of Former Alderman Sang of the Eighth ward, is reported to be dangerously ill at her home, 428 North Fifty-eighth avenue west.

Anton Ness has purchased the confectionery store at 5628 Grand avenue west, which was formerly owned and conducted by John Carlson. He will assume charge Monday.

Rev. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, will preach tomorrow evening at the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church at West Duluth.

No games were curled last evening at the West Duluth Curling rink. The events scheduled for last evening will be played off tonight.

Rev. W. G. Boyle returned last evening from St. Paul, where he attended the county option convention as a delegate from the Asbury M. E. church.

Miss Josephine McBride of 305 North Central avenue, will leave for Spokane next week. She intends to make her future home on the western coast.

L. A. Barnes returned last evening from St. Paul, where he attended a meeting of the state league of Republican clubs. He will give a talk on the result of the conference at the meeting of the West Duluth Republican club this evening.

Stanislaus Butts, an employe at the blast furnace, fell a few feet from a roof on a shed at the blast furnace, sustaining painful though not serious bruises. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital after the accident, which happened yesterday afternoon.

The Holy Apostles' church choir will meet this evening for rehearsal in the vestry rooms. The choir will be vested at both services tomorrow.

Hurst, Watch repairing, W. Duluth.

According to advices received yesterday from Wabash, Ind., Charles G. Futter, of 623 North Fifty-seventh avenue west, who left the city last Saturday to take a position in the Indiana town, is seriously ill.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Cullum of 620 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church had charge of a home-cooking sale, held today at Spencer's pharmacy.

The program for the entertainment to be given at Great Eastern hall, March 17, by the young people of the St. James Catholic church, has been completed. Hon. John Brennan will be the principal speaker.

Mrs. Frank M. Cashin is at Sturgeon Lake on a visit with relatives.

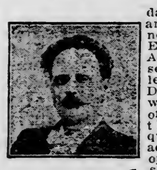
LOBECK TO SPEAK ON COUNTY OPTION

Alexandria Legislator Will Address Series of Temperance Meetings.



E. E. LOBECK.

Beginning Sunday, March 13, and and continuing for nearly two weeks, E. E. Lobeck of Alexandria, representative in the legislature from Douglas county, will give a series of addresses on the temperance question and will advocate county option for Minnesota.

Mr. Lobeck has spent two terms in the legislature and has been a successful speaker and an advocate of important bills. He is thoroughly conversant with the county option question, and his address on the general theme, "The Legislature and County Option," should be interesting.

Mr. Lobeck's itinerary, so far as it is arranged, follows:

Sunday, March 13—Morning: Swedish Evengelic Lutheran church, Fifty-sixth avenue west and Grhor street. 3 p. m.—Bethany Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street. Union meeting, special music. 8 p. m.—(Announced later.)

Monday, March 14 to Saturday, March 19—On the range.

Sunday, March 20—Morning: Second Presbyterian church, West end.

3 p. m.—Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street. Union meeting (English), special music.

8 p. m.—First Norwegian Lutheran church, First avenue east and First street.

Monday, March 21—8 p. m.: Finnish hall, St. Croix avenue.

Tuesday, March 22—8 p. m.: Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street.

Wednesday, March 23—8 p. m.: Two Harbors.

Thursday, March 24—8 p. m.: Great Eastern hall, I. O. G. T., Scandinavian mass meeting.

MAYOR ROSE TO ADDRESS NEGAUNEE PEOPLE SUNDAY

Negaunee, Mich., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—David S. Rose, mayor of Milwaukee, will open the campaign for the "wets" in the McDonald opera house Sunday afternoon.

Clarence Darrow, the noted Chicago attorney, will speak here March 27. He will argue against prohibition.

DEATHS.

RENNE—Carl O. Renne, 31 years of age, died last night at St. Mary's hospital. The young man has been stopping at 221 West Sixth street. The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of Flood & Horgan and will be sent to his former home at Fertile, Minn., for interment. He was a clerk in the employ of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company He came here in December.

TWOHY—Edwin Twohy, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Con Twohy, formerly of the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company, died yesterday in the Yakima Valley, Wash. He was 18 years of age. The family moved to the coast last fall in an effort to benefit his health by a change of climate. The funeral will take place tomorrow.

BROWN—Mrs. Catherine Brown died yesterday at her home, 4731 Pitt street, Lakeside. Mrs. Brown, who was 51 years of age at the time of her death, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wakeland. Mr. Wakeland was one of the oldest settlers in Duluth. She is survived by her husband, but no children. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, and interment will be at Park Hill cemetery. The services will be conducted by Rev. Albert R. Parker.

SUNNE NOT MURDERED FOR HIS MONEY IN DESERT

Suspicion That He Met With Foul Play Is Unfounded.

Started Off Alone Into Death Valley in Spite of Warnings.

CARL SUNNE.

The sad news of the finding of the skeleton of her son, Carl Sunne, who died of thirst in the deadly Amargosa desert of Death Valley, Cal., reached Mrs. Sunne on her seventieth birthday. The cablegram was sent to her home in Norway yesterday by L. M. Hanson of 618 Ninth avenue east who started a search for the unfortunate young man last July.

The last entries on the parched leaves of the diary found beside the parched bones on the burning sands show that he died of thirst after suffering terrible agonies, and was not murdered for money as had at one time been supposed.

Much plausible color was given the murder theory by the circumstances surrounding his disappearance. He was last seen in Goldfield with a rancher or cattleman of bad reputation trailing him. It was stated that he had at least $500 in cash in his pockets.

At the same time Sunne disappeared the rancher also dropped from sight. He immediately started upon a debauch, spending money with a free hand, whereas he was thought to be without funds at the time he was seen with the Duluthian. The sheriff started an investigation of the circumstances, but before he had an opportunity to arrest him, the suspect committed suicide, making it impossible to get any information from him.

Sunne stopped with Capt. John Walsh of the headquarters fire department nearly three years. Mr. Walsh stated yesterday afternoon that Sunne was known in the West as Andrew Lark, but he was at a loss to explain the reason for the alias.

Left Here Last Spring.

Mr. Walsh states that Sunne left his home at 519 West Second street last Decoration day, explaining that he was going to St. Paul and might be gone several weeks. He says that he appeared to be worried over something before he left for the Twin Cities, but took no one into his confidence. He was heard from in St. Paul, and cards were later received from Montana and Goldfield, Nev., where he took up two claims.

Advices from the West show that he was employed by a fruit house, and that it was in furtherance of his work that he wanted to cross the desert; despite repeated warnings that many men more hardened and experienced than he had paid the toll for their venture with their lives.

The postmaster and his wife at Death Valley Junction, which derives its name from the valley of shadows where many brave men have breathed their last in undescribable agony, warned him not to try to make it alone. He is said to have claimed that it would be better walking at night, when it was cool, and that he could easily make it before the sun was high the next morning.

With his canteen filled with water he started out alone. He evidently walked until exhausted and lay down to sleep. He lost his bearings and resuming his journey traveled in a circle, ending up at the ranchman's home which he had left the night before. Despite this experience he was not to be daunted. The same evening he struck out again. That was the last seen of him alive.

Hearing nothing from him for weeks his parents became alarmed for his safety. They communicated with Mr. Hanson, with whom he made his home when he first came to the United States, and the Norwegian consul at New York. The search was started immediately and ended Feb. 24, with the finding of the bleached skeleton on the sands by Charles Lee, and Indian runner, who was seeking his remains.

Sunne was well-known in Duluth. He was first employed by H. B. Knudson, and later went to work for Simon Clark when he was in the grocery business. When Mr. Clark took charge of the ship chandlery business started by G. A. Tomlinson, he took Sunne with him. Later Sunne went into the ness for himself. He opened the small store across from the Armory, on Second avenue east and First street and also sold supplies on a wholesale basis to hotels and boarding houses. He was a likable young man and made numerous friends during the three or four years he remained in Duluth, who will be shocked to hear of his tragic end in the Death Valley desert. Those who knew him intimately state that his habits were most exemplary.

What disposition will be made of the remains is as yet unknown. The cablegram sent to his home yesterday by Mr. Hanson asks advice upon this subject and if so desired the young man will be laid to rest in the land of his fathers across the sea. Otherwise, the interment will probably be in Mr. Hanson's private lot. The remains are at Death Valley Junction.

CITY BRIEFS

Duluth Made Blank Books.
Thwing-Stewart Co. Phone 114.

Merrow-Doherty.

A marriage license was issued at Superior yesterday to Miss Zella M. Merrow and H. J. Doherty, both of this city.

Some Blue-Blooded Cattle.

M. J. Fearer returned today from a trip to New York. He brought back forty-eight registered Holstein heifers for B. E. Baker's farm near Spooner.

Stop Only at Big Towns.

Because of heavy business between St. Paul and Pacific coast points, the Northern Pacific passenger department has announced that several towns will be eliminated as stopping places. This applies only to Trains Nos. 1 and 2. The following stops only will be made by the two trains, beginning tomorrow: St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Superior, Billings, Logan, Buttte, Missoula, Spokane Pacific coast terminals and points beyond. It is stated that the heavy through business of the Northern Pacific is the cause of the elimination of some of the stopping points.

Error in Advertisement.

Lyon's tooth powder was advertised by Freimuth at 16 cents when the copy said 19 cents, which was the price intended.

I. O. O. F. Dinner.

The social meeting and banquet of Duluth Lodge No. 28, I. O. O. F., will be held Friday evening, March 11, instead of Monday evening, March 7, as was previously stated.

Market Doing Business.

The Producers' Co-Operative Market association is doing business today. M. J. Fearer, the manager, has temporary headquarters in the Armory. He already has 100,000 bushels of potatoes for sale and most of them will go to retailers, which will be the plan of business until the market is more firmly established.

THREE BOYS RUN AWAY

Three of the six boys brought to the police station yesterday for stealing billiard balls from the vacant house at 707 East First street, were not on hand when the roll was called in juvenile court this morning. They ran away from home yesterday afternoon or evening, seeking parts unknown. The police are searching for them and have notified the officers in surrounding towns to be on the lookout for the trio of youthful offenders and adventurers. The officers say that they have been bad before. They are Frank Leitheizer, Hugh Wilson and Arthur Bushman. Leitheizer shipped down the lakes last summer on a freighter, and was caught at the Canadian Soo. He was accompanied by another boy. They were brought back after much correspondence with the outside authorities and considerable delay.

TOMMY BURNS TALKS FIGHT

Fat and Portly Ex-Champion Hurls Challenge at Jack Johnson.

(By W. W. Naughton.)

San Francisco, Cal., March 5.—Can Tommy Burns come back? This is the question the Australian sports are asking. After twelve months of ease and indolence, the lure of the ring is strong upon the Canadian and he wants to fight again.

Since his defeat by Johnson the Australians have seen Tommy grow into a portly personage. Much automobiling and high feeding gave Tommy an obese appearance, and it suddenly occurred to him a month or two ago that if he did not begin working off the avoirdupois he would be eligible for the Antipodean Fat Man's club.

That Tommy has not found the process of reducing the easiest thing in the world is suggested in one of his letters to the writer. He says:

"They can say what they like, but theatrical work is the worst thing in the world for a fighter."

Tommy means, of course, that fat forms and the wind becomes thick when a fellow deserts the roped enclosure for the footlights.

That Tommy does not consider his case entirely hopeless is shown by his bellicose utterances. He wants to fight any man living. Jack Johnson for choice. Tommy's Australian friend, Promoter Hugh McIntosh hah made an offer of $40,000 for a Johnson-Burns fight, the same to take place after the Johnson-Jeffries affair. Burns is willing to fight on a winner-take-all basis and McIntcsh sends word that the offer stands good no matter how Johnson comes in his battle with Jeffries. McIntosh also offers to pay all of Johnson's expenses during the Australian trip.

It isn't likely that the bout will come to a head, however, unless there is a shrinkage in Johnson's demands for an increase in McIntosh's offer. When Burns and Johnson fought before Tommy received $30,000. Johnson says he must have the same amount for his share before he will become a party to the Australian match.

Personally, I do not think Burns has great expectations of securing a return date with Johnson, and I have reason for thinking that one of the important engagements of 1910 will be a 20-round fight between Tommy Burns and Sam Langford at the National Sporting club, London, next June or July.

Woodman, manager of Langford, has practically closed with the English match maker for the contest named, and Burns has told his friends in England that about the only thing likely to spoil the Langford-Burns prospect would be a sudden resolve on the part of Jack Johnson to accept McIntosh's offer for Burns-Johnson contest.

Some little time ago an Australian cablegram conveyed the news that Burns and Bill Lang, old man Fitzsimmons' most recent conqueror, had been signed up to box at McIntosh's Sydney stadium. No confirmation of this announcement has been received, and, while it is quite possible that the Lang-Burns match has been made, a suspicion exists that the cable has simply garbled the fact of a Langford-Burns match engaging the attention of the English fight arrangers.

If the announcement that Lang and Burns are to fight in Sydney is correct, Burns' future as a ring man will depend upon the result. If Lang disposes of Burns, and such a thing is among the possibilities, the Burns Langford affair will probably fall through and any further reference Tommy Burns may make to a return match with Johnson will sound more ridiculous than they do now.

And in the meantime, while Burns is quite an idol in Australia, it is the opinion of Antipodeans, who have had wide experience in such matters, that Tommy Burns by one year of retirement has spoiled himself as a fighter.

Word comes from Australia that there is a keen desire out that way to bid welcome to Stanley Ketchel, but, judging from the Michigander's present tactics, he is in no hurry to journey to the land of the golden fleece.

McIntosh has placed all kinds of propositions before Ketchel, but without, and it is learned from a private source that Tommy Burns would like nothing better than to have Ketchel under his wing during a round-the-world tour that would begin in Australia and end in the United States.

With all respect to foreign inducements, the official prospect is brighter for Ketchel in his own country than in any part of the world. When he elects to begin an earnest course of preparation he will command more matches than any other man in his particular line.

NEW GRADES IN RADISSON

Full Grammar Course Will Be Given in Park Point School.

Addition Will Probably Be Built on Oneota School.

The Radisson school on Park Point will have eight grades next year, instead of five, as at present, if the change is practicable, a four-room addition will be built to the Oneota school and the seventh and eighth grades will be installed, and the school board will purchase sites in the vicinity of Fortieth avenue west and Fifth street and Twelfth avenue east and Eighth street, as a resulting of last night's meeting of the board.

The committee on schools and teachers and the committee of maintenance of buildings and grounds submitted a joint report as a result of the hearing last Saturday on the Radisson and Oneota school matters. The committee reported in favor of the change in the Radisson school and the securing of a site and the erection of a new building as soon as possible in the vicinity of Fortieth avenue west and Fifth street, but gave as its opinion that the new school would relieve congestion at the Oneota school sufficiently, Mr. Barnes dissenting in the latter opinion.

The Oneota school matter caused the only discussion, the other two recommendations of the committee being concurred in. Capt. Stevens opposed the erection of an addition to the Oneota school, asserting that if anything should be done, the school should be torn down and a new building erected when possible. His view was not shared by others, notably residents of the district who were present at the meeting. They said the old school is in fairly good condition, and if the addition were built, a modern heating plant installed and the toilet rooms placed inside of the building, it would serve for many years to come.

Mr. Cobb took the same view. He said the building was shaky in some respects, but that an addition would brace it up and by comparatively little work the school could be put in good condition for years.

"If the people out there are satisfied with a lean-to on the old building, which has been an eye-sore to the school board for years, by all means give it to them," said Capt. Stevens.

The matter was finally closed by being referred to the committee on buildings and grounds to estimate the cost and determine the advisability of the change being made, the report to be made at a future meeting. It was the sense of the meeting that the addition should be built if practicable. The changes in the Radisson school will be made before the opening of the next school year.

• • • •

The school board and the city clashed last night—at least the board clashed with the city, although the city was absent from the meeting. The clerk presented a number of notices of special assessments, chief of which was one for over $1,000 for Sixth street paving and one for $381.10 for the paving of Garfield avenue.

The members of the board did not like the idea of being presented with batches of assessments without having any notice of the improvements being contemplated. At one time, all school property was exempt from assessments for public improvements, they being paid out of the permanent improvement fund of the city. The present city attorney's office has notified the city that the school district should be assessed for improvements and that plan is now being carried out.

This matter was referred to the finance committee to confer with city officials and secure an agreement that the school board should be consulted in the matter of big improvements, before they are made, for it might at times be necessary to include assessments for improvements in the levy. The effect is the same on the taxpayer whether such assessments are paid by the school board or the city, but the board wants notice of improvements before assessments are paid. The paying of assessments by the school district is purely a voluntary act, for the district could not be sued for special assessments and the property could not be sold for assessments because it is public property.

The chemical laboratory again came up for discussion last night, Capt. Stevens urging that it should be moved from inside of the main building to a room which could be erected over the boiler room at a cost of about $6,000. The matter was laid over until a future meeting.

The committee on maintenance of buildings and grounds reported that work on the new Washington and Fairmont schools is progressing well and the Fairmont school will probably be completed May 1.

Ashland Coal High.

Ashland, Wis., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The feature of the local coal situation is the fact that for weeks past every pound of coal has been sold from the docks of Ashland and local consumers now buy coal shipped in from Superior plus the freight. This brings the price of hard coal up to $9 at Ashland.

Ashland Flour Mill Elects.

Ashland, Wis., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ashland Flouring Milling company elected officers this week as follows: Directors, Senator James A. Stout of Menomonie, and D. O. Wright and W. C. Ribeneck of the same city, and C. N. Cramer and Peter Hansen of Ashland. Senator Stout is president of the company, C. H. Bryan being the local manager. The flouring mill was built about five years ago by local capital but is now controlled by Menomonie parties.

FORMER BASEBALL STAR RELEGATED

A year ago last fall the one player who was the talk of the baseball world was one, Harry Covaleskie, a coal miner from Pennsylvania. Practically unheard of, he joined the Philadelphia Nationals and at once jumped into fame by winning three games in six days from the New York Giants. The New Yorkers had eight games scheduled for the final week with the Phillies. If they won six of those contests they would win the pennant, which was hanging in the balance as the result of Merkle's failure to touch second base in a game with Chicago. Three times Manager Murray sent the young left hander against the Giants, and three times he won. The last time he faced the mighty Mathewson and won 3 to 2. In the ninth inning New York had a man on third with one out and yet failed to score.

With such a record, Manager Murray was sure he had the greatest left-hander of the age, but his dream was due to be shattered. When springtime came around Coveleskie delivered a no-hit game in practice, but after that he rarely pitched a creditable game, his record for the season being six victories and ten defeats. Now he is sent along with Corridon to Cincinnati in exchange for the veteran "splitter," Ewing, and Breman, a bush league recruit. He is another example of the old saying; "It's not what you were, it's what you are today." At that, Coveleskie is liable to come back next season and pitch great ball. He must have the stuff to do what he did against the Giants, and very likely he hurt his pitching arm in the spring and never really regained its use.

THE TIMES ARE OUT OF JOINT.

"The times are out of joint," says the pessimist, gloomily.

Yes, they are out of joint; beautifully out of joint: but it isn't anything to be pessimistic about.

The times are out of joint because the people are getting tired of the wrong way in which they were jointed. They are out of joint because the people, by their unrest and discontent, have unjointed them for the purpose of rejointing them in a better way.

Before the times got out of joint was when the pessimist might have luxuriated in his gloom; not now.

Then the government was in full control of an organization that has prostituted it to the corrupt service of Special Privilege. The voters were partisans, not patriots. The party aim was the profit of the organization, not the good of the country. Men belonged to parties because of habit or inheritance, and supported them because they always had supported them. Parties formed for great purposes had achieved those purposes, but lived on in spite of their lack of great purpose. Special Privilege was in the saddle and riding hard; but it was riding for a fall.

On the surface, there isn't much change now. The same organization is still in control of the government, and it is still using the government for the promotion of prosperity in the mass at the cost of the masses. The same party exists, still without a purpose, and nominally its membership is as large as ever. But this is only on the surface, and the surface is a shell; a shell that grows thinner and weaker every day, and that presently will burst to give new birth to government of the people, by the people and for the people. The hold of the vice regents of Special Privilege weakens. Their hold on the people is gone entirely. Changes that have been gestating in the womb of time are about to be born. The people are awake, alert, class conscious. The hoodwink of partisanship has dropped from their eyes, and thus the god of things as they are has lost his most powerful weapon.

What a few years ago was merely party disloyalty now is recognized as patriotism. Men dare to defy their party organization, and they find the people supporting them in their defiance. The party organization, corrupt and rotten, is a mere skeleton from which the flesh of unthinking party allegiance has been stripped by the force of public intelligence.

Men who used to think only in terms of party good think now in terms of the common good. Men who confused the end of good government with the means of "party solidarity" have emerged from their confusion, and see clearly that the party is only a means, not an end; and that when it ceases to be practicable as a means it ceases to deserve honor and support. The change has come so subtly, though swiftly, that many do not realize that it has come; but it has come, and it is the best thing that has come in many a day.

With the people seeing clearly, and determined that government shall cease to be a means of exploiting the many for the benefit of the few and shall become the means of prospering the many even if it withdraws from the few the unfair privileges they have usurped, it is no time for pessimism. It is a time for courageous and sunlit optimism.

The times are, indeed, out of joint; but the people have deliberately put them out of joint because they were wrong, and they are going as deliberately to rejoint them the way they should be.

THE GRAND FORKS RESULT.

Those who judge by surface indications only will think that the recent refusal of the people of Grand Forks to approve the adoption of the commission plan of government is a defeat for the new system of city administration which is attracting so much attention in Duluth and elsewhere.

As a matter of fact, the result in Grand Forks really is a victory for the commission plan, because the form in which it was proposed to the voters of that city was incomplete and dangerous. If it had been adopted it would have made little if any improvement over the old form and if it had been adopted and turned out to be worse than the old plan word would have gone out that the commission plan had proved a failure.

There are two fundamental features of the commission plan of city administration: first, the concentration of authority in a few hands, with the elimination of partisan consideration in selecting officials: second, close control of this authority by the people. Concentration without popular control is dangerous, and it opens the way to mischief as great as is possible under the old form of government, faulty and inefficient though it is.

The real reason for the defeat of the plan in Grand Forks was told in a dispatch from that city to The Herald the other day, as follows: "Under the present law, such features as the recall, initiative and referendum are lacking, and this was why the voters of Grand Forks rejected it." And this was reason in plenty.

Under the real commission plan, the ward system and the system of partisan selection of officials are done away with. Government is placed in the hands of a few commissioners, each in charge of a department. These commissioners are selected not because they are Republicans or Democrats, but because they are proper men for the high responsibilities which they seek.

This is placing in the hands of a few power that under the old form is divided among many. The object is concentration of responsibility, lack of which is the weakness of the old system. That being gained at the cost of concentration of power, this cost is offset by giving the voters direct and intimate control over the actions of the commissioners. If they propose to do something regarding which public approval is doubtful, that matter can be referred to the voters; and that is the referendum. If they refuse to do something that the people seem to want, the people by vote can command them to do it; and that is the initiative. If one or more of them abuse their powers and privileges, the voters can decide to remove them and put others in the places; and that is the recall.

These three essential details of the commission form of government were omitted by the North Dakota legislature from the law providing for the commission form of government, and in these circumstances Grand Forks did well to reject the defective plan.

What should be done in North Dakota is to compel the legislature to authorize the real commission plan, which includes the initiative, the referendum and the recall.

HEROES AND HEROISM.

Most people seem to think that the age of heroism is a past age. Talk of heroes and heroism makes such people think of knights and warriors and the days of chivalry. Yet heroism did not die with chivalry, and there are more heroes in the world today than there ever were before.

Because, you see, there is more than one kind of heroism. The fireman who rescues people from a burning building at the risk of his own life is as great a hero as any swashbuckler who ever wore sword and buckler. The policeman who stops a runaway, braves a frenzied mob or beards a desperate criminal in his liar, is as brave as any hero who ever crossed swords for the fair fame of his lady.

But it may easily be that in winning bread for his wife and children, in facing the many problems of existence, in struggling against adversity, in fighting sickness and in winning the fight for staunch character and self-respect, a policeman or a fireman or a hod-carrier or a brakeman or a plumber or a bookkeeper or a clerk is a greater hero than the fireman who dashes into a burning building, the policeman who faces down a mob, the soldier who stands to his colors in a rain of hostile lead, or the knight who fought the fabled dragon.

The man who goes off to work in the dim morning, with a dinner pail in his hand, leaving his heart with the wife and kids at home, doesn't look much like a hero, but very often he acts like one. He faces the world every day, alone and unaided. He wins from its reluctant grasp the money needed to feed and clothe those confiding dear ones at home. He works with little thought of reward for himself, but all for the peace and happiness and contentment of those whose lives depend upon his health and strength. He does battle every day just as truly as ever mailed knight or tinseled soldier did battle.

"Many a woman fails to see the hero-husband she has, who fights the battles of life better than any fiction idol." This inscription under a picture of a plain man in homely clothes battling with a dragon is what put us in mind of this thought of heroism. It also put us in mind of another aspect of the subject: that there are heroines as well as heroes, and just as many of them. The man who goes forth to work in the morning is a hero, but he leaves a heroine behind him. He leaves a wife who has to make his earnings span the necessities of the family, and who must develop skill and ingenuity to do it that are as great as some people use to win millions. She has to bring up the children, to see that they are kept unspotted from the world, to see that they learn the right things and avoid the wrong things, to see that they are clothed and fed out of the slender earnings that the hero-husband's toil wins from the world.

Oh, there are plenty of heroes nowadays; more than ever were before in all the world, because there are more people. The high cost of living makes heroes every day that are as noble as any the world ever has produced, and requires sacrifices as exalted as any the world ever has exacted.

The truth is that the man who does his duty bravely and honestly is a hero, and this no matter whether he wears buttons of brass or bone, blue coat or brown, fine apparel or plain, tinselled uniform or toil-stained overalls. And the woman who does her duty bravely and honestly is a heroine, whatever her state in life. It's the heart within, and not the apparel without, that counts.

ON EARLY RISING.

The St. Louis Times makes a great to-do about the story of John Marshall, postmaster at Bonne Terre, Mo., who for thirteen years has "followed the Spartan-like practice of rising from his bed at 4:30 o'clock and delivering the mails to the train which passes through the town at that unreasonable hour." "During all that time," continues the Times, "Mr. Marshall never overslept once, nor did he feel an ache in the back or in his head sufficient to induce him to neglect his duties. The mail was always at the station on time, and John Marshall always delivered it there."

This is indeed creditable to Postmaster Marshall. It is interesting, too, to know that Postmaster Marshall has had good health during the past thirteen years, and that if he has had a headache or a crick in the back he hasn't let it interfere with his duty of getting the mail on that 4:30 train. Of course he knew that if he failed there would be prompt complaint about it, and that the postoffice department would promptly inform him that if he didn't do his duty somebody would be put in his place that would do it. But it is good to know that the fair village of Bonne Terre has a faithful postmaster, and it is particularly interesting to know that early rising is such an unusual thing in St. Louis that its newspapers publish editorials about specific cases of it.

For in other places early rising is no amazingly unusual thing. There are so many people who rise early in Duluth that we never thought before of writing an editorial about it. Perhaps the postmaster here doesn't have to get up at an early hour to put the mail on the early train, but somebody does.

And all over the city there are people who get up at early hours to pursue their daily tasks, and think nothing of it. Did you ever give a thought to the thousands of housewives who rise at the shrill voice of the alarm clock every morning at hours when lots of people are just beginning their real sleep? They are wives of workers who must be at their tasks with full dinner pails at an hour when darkness still prevails in the winter months; so their wives must get up hours before daylight to begin the daily round of labor that does not cease until it is bedtime again. These are quite as worthy of praise, quite as deserving of honor, and quite as much entitled to have editorials written about them as a postmaster who, to hold his job, rolls out of bed at an early hour to deliver the mail to the train, and then probably turns in again to sleep until 8 o'clock.

Praise of the thousands of faithful housewives whose early rising is a daily duty which they never shirk until complete exhaustion or illness keeps them in bed should be sung quite as earnestly as the St. Louis Times sings the praises of Postmaster Marshall. These early risers do have headaches and backaches; often the round of daily toil involved in the care of a houshold sends them at night to bed so tired that the quickly flitting night brings morning so soon that their bones still ache with weariness. But the alarm clock sounds its shrill command just the same, and they rise and attack their drudgery as heartily as though they were just back from a month's vacation, and they drown thought of their weariness and forget their aching limbs and backs in bursts of cheery song.

It is a task made light by love, and childless mothers might even envy the fate of a mother who has the privilege of toiling for her children, even though that involves rising at an unseasonable hour to a day of drudgery, as it often does.

THE SISTERS WAR AND WANT.

Discussing the insanely stupid competition among nations to see which can squander the most money on vast armaments, the Cleveland Plain Dealer notes that the secretary of the navy is planning a battleship with 34,000 tons displacement, with a dozen 14-inch guns, six fighting turrets, 11-inch steel for citadel and armor belt, with many torpedo tubes and dozens of small calibre guns for a torpedo defense battery, at a cost of $18,000,000. And the Cleveland newspaper adds:

> Great Britain is still building Dreadnaughts with feverish haste. Germany is trying to equal the British navy. We are pouring hundreds of millions into the same losing game. Japan strains every effort to hold its place in naval rivalry. The great powers are putting billions of dollars into armaments meant to destroy each other, which are profitless burdens except in great crises, and which in a few years become obsolete and have to be replaced with ships still more costly.
> Think of what $18,000,000 would do in the saving of lives by establishing tuberculosis sanitariums, in watering deserts and draining swamps, in making coal mines fit to work in or in providing for the proper protection of our great national resources. Think of all the lives and property that might be saved, the sum might be added to the total of human happiness, if all our naval budgets could be turned into useful and productive channels.

Yes, think of it! It's worth thinking about. Think what it would mean if the millions of able-bodied men who are withdrawn from productive industries for the worse than useless purposes of war were returned to productive industries and their magnificent labor usefully applied. Think what it would mean if the taxes wrung from the people to support army and navy were devoted to the common good. This is a billion-dollar country now, and 75 per cent of its annual billion of expense goes to the purposes of war; while pitiful amounts are dealt out grudgingly for the development of waterways and roads, for the conquest of disease, for the protection of workers, for the safeguarding and cultivation of the remaining supply of timber, for the conservation of the people's heritage of natural wealth.

While you are about it, too, you might contemplate the fact that besides the taxes that go to the government, the American people are taxed $3,000,000,000 a year by the protective tariff, all of which goes to build up the enormous fortunes which are the nation's greatest menace. Think what it would mean if that $3,000,000,000 a year were applied to reducing the cost of living, or to increasing the wages of workers so they could better grapple with that cost. Think what it would mean if the tremendous taxes imposed upon the people to pay dividends on watered stock were repealed, or if those taxes were devoted to the welfare of the people instead of to the excessive profit of stock-gamblers, buccaneers and thimble-riggers of high finance. You might think, too, what it would mean if the people, the real creators of wealth, had the benefit of the wealth they create, instead of having a slender share of it doled back to them in wages that are wholly insufficient to meet the needs of reasonably decent human living.

There is plenty to think about in connection of the wastes due to a wrong objective of government, and there is much need of thinking about them.

THE BETHEL SOCIETY.

Everybody in Duluth is familiar with the wide range of work done by the Duluth Bethel society, which gets close to the needs of the unfortunate in a way that few other organizations equal. Everybody, too, is glad to praise its work and to approve it. The Bethel society is very glad to be praised and approved, but just now it is interested in a more tangible expression of popular friendship. Ever since the panic of 1907 it has been struggling under a burden of debt. It needs $5,000 to clean this debt off the slate and to meet its obligations for the current year.

This is the substance of an appeal now being made to the generousity of the citizens of Duluth, and it is an appeal that will not go unheeded. The Bethel is doing splendid work in caring for the unfortunate, and it should be supported in that work liberally.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

ANOTHER BRICK FOR MR. COOK.

To the Editor of The Herald:

One of the most absurd things that has yet been given to the public to digest is the statement of Mr. Cook, that a laboring man can live on $26 per month, and to justify his assertion he has actually put figures on paper to substantiate his statement.

Now if Mr. Cook had said that a laboring man can exist on $26 per month, we would have believed him, but when he says he can live, we will take immediate exception to it.

We notice that he has five pounds of pork at 15 cents per pound per week. Isn't that a liberal supply of meat for a family of six and a laboring man at that? I am afraid if a man would eat that much meat he would immediately start to grow bristles and perhaps squeal as other hogs do.

What would his family look like after comsuming five-sixths of a pound of pork per week? No doubt they would immediately begin rooting each other from the trough.

Now hogs are selling for $10, live weight, in Chicago, and this makes them cost 15 cents dressed f.o.b., Chicago first cost, and after the beef trust gets it to the butcher, and then they make their profit, we think if one got pork for 15 cents per pound it would be the spare ribs or feet.

A family must have butter and eggs and milk and fruit, and, unless they have some fruit to eat, there will be sickness in the family and then there are doctors' bills to pay and fuel and clothing, all of which cost, not little, but a great deal, even if it is minimized to the lowest possible amount. There is street car fare and support to churches and a thousand and one things that are not luxuries, and for one to live he must have them.

If Mr. Cook will come out and state that a family might possibly keep from starving to death on $26 per month, but that he cannot live like a white man, he will make many friends whom he has now lost, and may save himself the trouble of explaining to some of these fellows face to face. It has been said that God loves the laboring man for He made so many of them.

May God speed the day when his "full dinner pail" will cost about one-third of what it does today, and then he can live on $26 per month, and not till then. WILL G. STARKEY.

Duluth, March 4.

In fairness to Mr. Cook, it should be stated that "exist" was what he meant, whether he made it clear or not. He said that the figures he gave were merely for those who were unable to earn any more than the amount mentioned.—The Editor.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Kansas City Times: "If the people bust the beef trust it may make lumber cheaper too."

"How?"

"If people don't eat meat they won't consume toothpicks."

Cleveland Leader: Dr. A.—How is it that you are so successful?

Dr. B.—I confine myself to office practice.

Dr. A.—But what's the answer?

Dr. B.—People who are able to walk to the office aren't very sick—they just think they are.

Birmingham Age-Herald: "He says he is an average man."

"That's what he tells everybody."

"Insufferably conceited, don't you think?"

Judge: Artist—Be careful, because the paint is fresh!

Mollycoddle (with finger on painting he is examining in studio)—Never mind; I shall wash my hands later.

Cleveland Leader: "You used to say, dad, that I was a budding genius."

"Well, you turned out to be a blooming idiot!"

Pele Mele: Enraged Creditor—I've had enough of mounting all these stairs every day to collect this bill.

Debtor—Well, I can tell you a piece of news that will please you. After tomorrow I'm going to live in the basement.

Birmingham Age-Herald: "When he was a boy he wore a large patch on his trousers without a trace of embarrassment."

"And now that he is a very rich man?"

"He carries a large blot on his reputation."

Harper's Monthly: Little Bessie—Mamma, how'll I know I'm naughty?

Mother—Your conscience will tell you, dear.

Little Bessie—I don't care about what it tells me—will it tell you?

Chicago Tribune: Tommy—You treat your doll jes' as if you was her real mammy, don't you?

Kitty (seriously offended)—Indeed I don't! I never spank her a bit!

Boston Transcript: Hogan—Pwhat makes ye swally all your dinner in two minutes, Grogan? Are yez atin' on a bet?

Grogan—It's for the good av me dyspepsy, Moike. Sure the dochter tould me to rist an hour after atin', and how else am Oi goin' to get the hour to rist in onless Oi ate like the devil?

Catholic Standard and Times: "Pardon me," began the new acquaintance, "but are you the Mr. Cadley Nuritch who wrote that magazine article last month for us?"

"Yes," interrupted Nuritch, "but, of course, you'll understand that I don't make a business of that sort of thing."

"Of course, I know that. I read the article."

Houston Post: "What makes the trust magnate look so worried?"

"He has just read that the American farmer is very prosperous, and he feels that he must have overlooked something."

Chicago Daily News: "They say," remarked young Sapleigh, "that death loves a shining mark, doncher know."

"Oh, well, don't let that worry you," retorted Miss Sharp. "You are not so brilliant."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "How about your cook? When I saw you last month you were quite dissatisfied with her."

"Was I?" responded the hostess wearily. "I've been dissatisfied with five or six cooks since then."

The Impecunious Shopper.

I am a woman, so of course I love a bargain well;
I joy to read the daily ads of what
there is to sell.
And if I had the money I should haste to buy a lot
Of stuff I didn't need. Oh, yes, I should,
as like as not!

I'd buy silk stockings, No. 8, a dozen
in a box,
And hats with plumes a-waving off,
and foolish, frilly frocks;
Some pairs of dainty boots, size 3,
"Marked down from six to four,"
And gloves and gloves and gloves—
kid, silk, and suede galore!

But, Oh, I cannot spare the cash because we have to eat,
And I cannot find a market that has bargain sales of meat!
"A tender sirloin, part price off," "Veal cutlets strictly calf,"
"Roasts warranted at cost," and "Hams marked smartly down to half."

"Bargains in meat!" Oh, much I'd like to see a truthful ad
Like that. I'd go to market then, serene and blithe and glad.
But where, ah where, is such a thing?
Nowhere! So I repeat
I can't have nifty clothes because my family has to eat!

THE WEATHER.

Yes, the heat is rather oppressive, but then Duluth people should not kick at the warm weather, remembering the suffering caused by the blizzards in Kentucky and the intense cold in California and other Arctic regions. The heat can be borne and Duluth is fortunate in having a climate where such bitter weather is not experienced.

The weather man holds out no hope of cooler weather, but predicts about the same temperatures for tonight, although some clouds should moderate the intense heat of the sun.

A year ago today it was springlike. The sun rose this morning at 6:40, and will set at 5:59, making eleven hours and nineteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The barometer continues low over extreme Western Canada and Western Mexico, while pressures are high over Atlantic and Pacific coast states. During the past twenty-four hours these conditions were attended by generally fair and mild weather for the season in practically all districts. A disturbance apparently central over the West Indies caused heavy rain over Southern Florida. Light rains also fell over Oregon and Washington. Freezing temperatures still prevail throughout most Northern border states.

"Indications favor further mild weather at the Head of the Lakes during tonight and Sunday."

Following were the maximum temperatures for the last twenty-four hours and the minimum for the last twelve, ending at 7 a. m.:

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Cost of Living.

When the various investigating committees appointed by congress and state legislatures shall have finished their tasks and duly reported their findings, how much better off shall we be; how much farther along on the road to national economy and thrift and to the proper oversight of trusts? Shall we be able to place responsibility for a situation that vexes us all upon a certain group of men or "interests" or upon the tariff or upon other legislation or the lack of it?

Well, time will tell. But meanwhile people generally would better make up their minds to pay the fiddler, and I suspect most of us are more ready to order our choice cuts and our dainty fabrics than we are to pay for them. The franker course is to own up that we prefer the comforts and even luxuries of civilization to the rigorous regimen of a barbarous or semi-barbarous age. Why not avow our preference, face the music, and pay the bills that our cravings for creature comforts have tempted us to contract?

"Sir," said the landlady to the boarder, who for the third time during a single meal asked for another help of butter, "Sir, did you know that butter is now 38 cents a pound?" "Well, madam," said the unabashed boarder, still extending his plate, "good butter is worth it."

Yes, fifty years of Europe are better than a cycle of Cathay. And yet, why do we spend our time considering this subject from the material point of view only? Are we talking now about the cost of living or the cost of existence? That latter cost can in due time be determined by experts who will figure it out per capita and compare the result with the prices that prevailed ten or twenty years ago.

But the cost of real living, dollars and cents can no more measure than they can produce the beautiful tints that gild the sky at sunrise or sunset. The cost of real living is life. Perhaps some man who reads this owes his very physical existence to his mother. Willingly she, like hosts of gallant women through the centuries, underwent uncomplainingly martyrdom in order that a man child might be brought into the world. And whether or not your mother died that you might live, you and countless other men grew from babyhood into boyhood and on into youth and manhood because at every stage of your development parents and teachers and very likely grandparents, and may be older brothers and sisters, were ready to give time, money, care, love, prayer and even life itself in unstinted measure for you.

In the larger arena of national life we find that this principle holds true. If the backward and benighted people on this globe are beginning to keep step with the modern world, if real life is taking the place of apathy and stagnation, it is because wise colonial administrators, intrepid empire builders and heroic and devoted missionaries have not counted their own lives dear unto themselves, but have gone into the jungles and the forests, and into great heathen cities in order to represent decency and freedom, a well-ordered society and the ideals of the kingdom of God.

So we live because others have been prodigal of life in our behalf. And in an even higher sense we live when we have learned to pour out our life for the brethren. No one realizes life in its sweetest and richest phases until he has contributed something that cost him time or effort or sacrifice to the life of someone else. In no other way does he so quickly become a partaker of the divine nature which is constantly pouring itself out upon the world of men.

You can exist or you can live. In the one case you will have to pay the market price for what you put into your mouth or on your back. In the other you pay for what you get sometimes in blood and tears always in some offering that represents the outgo of that which is best in you, but the returns will be worth all they cost.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Daily Press: When they are yours they are nerves; when somebody else's, temper.

A thing that makes for a tremendous love affair is to put it in a novel.

If a person really understood himself he might have a chance to understand other people.

Wealth causes more moral diseases than it cures physical ones, but nobody is afraid of it.

Nothing discourages a woman more about her husband than for him not to take any interest in whom the richest girl is going to marry when he doesn't know either of them.

Goaded.

Puck: Saving became a passion with the man and the woman. No privation was too great, if so be by it they might add to their accumulations. And they labored jointly. The woman's sacrifice was in every respect equal to that of the man.

But when they had amassed $10,000 the man, because he had the power, took the money and purchased with it, not the automobile which he had led his faithful wife to expect, but a home.

"Brute!" she cried, and when next a mob of suffragettes came that way she joined them. Who could blame her?

•••The new city council convened last night and Aldermen-elect Sorenson, James Dingwell, D. J. Sinclair, George F. Ash, T. W. Hugo, C. O. Nelson and T. B. Perry took the oath of office. The council proceeded to the election of a president. Alderman C. A. Long was elected on the first ballot, but refused to serve, and T. W. Hugo was elected on the fourth ballot by a vote of 7 to 4 for Alderman J. J. Costello. Alderman Long was elected vice president, and the veteran Charles E. Budden was again chosen city clerk. Alderman M. J. Davis tendered his resignation which was accepted. The council proceeded to elect his successor, votes being cast for Robert Louden, Joseph A. Mannheim and John K. Shaw. Mannheim was elected on the seventh ballot. Mayor-elect M. J. Davis then took the oath of office and delivered his first message. He stated emphatically that all liquor laws, whether state or municipal, would be strictly enforced and the gamblers would have to go.

AN OPINION AND A REMINISCENCE

BY SAVOYARD.

The G. O. P. is preparing to practice deception, to open another package of cant. The whole country is aroused to protest against the high cost of living—the highest in the world, Christian or pagan. That is admitted all hands round. Food, clothing and shelter cost the American more than any other people, anywhere else, ever paid for them. You can buy American meats cheaper in London than in Chicago, cheaper in Liverpool than in Kansas City. You can buy a suit of clothes in London for one-half the price you are charged for the same suit in New York. You can rent for 24 shillings, or $6, a month, a better house in Manchester, Eng., than you can get for $25 a month in Boston, New England. The foreign farmer buys American made reapers, threshers, mowers, plows, harrows and other machinery and implements of husbandry cheaper than the same are sold to the American farmer. And for that last count of farm machinery the tariff is directly and absolutely responsible. You see these things are made of wood and steel. If the implement is made for export the manufacturer gets his steel and wood free of duty; but if the thing is made for, and sold to, the Iowa or Tennessee farmer, the manufacturer must use "protected" wood and steel.

Well, the Republican senate is going to investigate the thing, or pretend to. It is going to sit as a grand jury to scrutinize the crime of its own brat. Cabot Lodge is the foreman of this grand jury, and only the other day he said the tariff was innocent, and last summer he made a labored argument to show that there was no such person as a consumer. He declares the tariff has nothing to do with the price of beef. Then what is the use of a tariff on beef? It brings no revenue, and if it does not work to protect, why not wipe it out? And why not wipe out the tariff on shoes and other things made of leather? Shoes made in Massachusetts are sold abroad cheaper than the same shoes are sold at home. Watches made in Massachusetts are sold to the foreigner cheaper than to the American, and the list of tariff protected articles that are sold cheaper abroad than at home would fill columns of a newspaper. Thus it would seem that the chief benefit, or rather the sole benefit, conferred by the American tariff is upon the foreigner.

The bill bet 30 cents the Lodge whitewash committee brings in the tariff not guilty. That is what it is there for, and all it is there for; but the people will not pay a bit of attention to it.

There died some days ago in Massachusetts William Everett, youngest and favorite son of Edward Everett. No more scholarly man ever sat in the American congress than this son of an illustrious father, and had his physical equipment for the part been equal to Bourke Cockran's or William J. Bryan's, Dr. Everett might have ranked with them both as a platform speaker. He was a graduate of Harvard, a lawyer who never practiced, a clergyman who rarely preached, and a teacher who devoted fifty years of his seventy-one to training the minds of youth for the intellectual and moral battles of life.

Edward Everett was a Whig, and though he supported the administration of President Lincoln, he never accepted the ideas of the Republican party. He was the "orator of the academy," and his speeches were well-digested essays. He was a distinguished member of both houses of congress, secretary of state in President Fillmore's cabinet and minister to England during President Tyler's administration. As late as 1860 he was Whig enough to go on the national ticket, headed by John Bell of Tennessee, which carried Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

During the administration of President Taylor the Whigs of Massachusetts separated into "Cotton" Whigs and "Conscience" Whigs. The Cotton Whigs were for the Union with or without slavery. They were led by Daniel Webster. The Conscience Whigs were for the Union without slavery and against it with slavery. They were led by Charles Francis Adams. The followers of Webster were Rufus Choate, Robert C. Winthrop and Edward Everett, and to them adhered the great bulk of the party in Massachusetts and New England. Charles Sumner, Samuel Hoar, John A. Andrew, Wendell Phillips and that Concord set, with Ralph Waldo Emerson for chief, which lived in a home-made Utopia, with heads in the clouds and feet above the earth, followed Adams and the other Abolitionists. These latter were the gently who closed Faneuil Hall, which was built on money made in the African slave trade, to Daniel Webster, after his masterly "seventh of March" speech in behalf of the Union and the Constitution.

The Whigs were the majority party in Massachusetts, as the Federalists had been before them. Their regular convention nominated Robert C. Winthrop, a "Cotton" Whig, for governor, and the "Conscience" Whigs set up a candidate of their own. That was an opportunity for the Democrats, and they were swift to avail themselves of it.

The Democrats were led by Caleb Cushing and Ben Butler, a precious set that could have taught Dick Croker or Matt Quay a trick or two in the corrupt game of practical politics. They nominated George S. Boutwell for governor and a full state ticket. Then they went over to that immaculate crowd, that had enough conscience to load a freight train, and made this bargain: If there was no election by the people, and the thing was to be decided by the legislature, they would make this trade: The Democrats were to have the state offices and the United States senator for the short term, Webster having resigned, and the "Conscience" Whigs were to have the senator for the long term.

No ticket got a majority in the election by the people, and the legislature, which was controlled by the coalition, proceeded to elect the Democratic state ticket and Robert Rantoul for short term senator.

The "Conscience" Whigs then presented Charles Sumner for full term senator, and Cushing kicked on the ground that the trade implied a decent man for the succession, and there was a deadlock for months, but finally Cushing and Butler took their medicine and carried out their contract, and Sumner got to the senate to hurry up the war between the North and the South. Stephen A. Douglas said in the senate in 1854 that Sumner was ostracized when he first entered there for the corrupt methods by which he got his seat.

Here is what William Everett said about it years later, closing a newspaper interview: "I do not want you to go without repeating that it was Charles Sumner who deliberately cheated my father out of his seat in the United States senate."

Edward Everett was the candidate of the "Cotton" or regular Whigs for senator when the combine elected Sumner.

Edward Everett adhered to the Union cause, and his tongue and pen were powerful aids to Lincoln administration. Sumner represented what Massachusetts was pleased to call her conscience. Boutwell became a Republican and one of the managers on the part of the house of representatives that prosecuted the impeachment proceedings against Andy Johnson. Subsequently he was secretary of the treasury under Grant and senator in congress. But by 1900 he had returned to the Democratic party and spoke and voted for William J. Bryan. Adams also became a Democrat, or as near a Democrat as a son of John Quincy Adams could get to be. His boys, however, turned out to be real Democrats. Caleb Cushing never had any politics, except he was for the party in power at Washington. He was a man of powerful intellect, the most accomplished scholar of his day, a great lawyer, a successful diplomat, and doubtless he would have made an acceptable chief justice of the supreme court had not a Republican senate rejected his nomination when President Grant proposed him for that exalted position. It was said of him that he had advised every federal administration the last fifty years of his life and that his counsel was ever sage. He presided over the famous Democratic national convention at Charleston in 1860, and when the split came he supported John C. Breckinridge, as did Ben Butler, who voted fifty-seven times for the nomination of Jefferson Davis for president as a delegate from Massachusetts at Charleston.

William Everett, though not a party man, supported Republican tickets with voice, vote and pen until he mugwumped. The "Mulligan Letters" were too much for him and with him went a son of Hoar, a son of Andrew, a son of Garrison, a son of Quincy, the sons of Adams, and George Fred Williams. In 1890 they carried Massachusetts for the Democrats, the first time and only time it was ever done in a congressional election. Everett, Hoar, Andrew and Williams were sent to congress, and there William Everett was an honor to American statesmanship and an inspiration to American patriotism. I wish I had space to review that brief and brilliant congressional career. I may take it up again.

Well, the Democratic party played the devil, as usual and of course. They had the choice between a great thinker like William Everett and a blatant demagogue like Jerry Simpson. They drummed the mugwumps out of the party and miscegenated with the Pops. And that is how it came that for sixteen years the Democratic party has not set a formidable squadron in the field of national politics.

O, the folly of it!

Corn Meal for the Hair.

A young lady dropped into the parlors of a Fifth avenue hair specialist the other day, says The Beauty Magazine. The French woman in charge condescended to tell some of the secrets of the profession. "My pompadour treatment is the most successful thing in vogue," she said. "The hair is taken down, shaken out and wet with gasoline. It dries quickly, and when put up is found free from grease and dust. The gasoline should be used with the greatest care and never at night or in presence of a lighted gas jet or lamp. It takes a very few drops, the quantity depending on the color and the texture of the hair. With blond hair I follow this up with the corn meal-brushing, a very coarse grade of yellow corn meal being shaken on the hair and then carefully brushed out. It is astonishing to see how fluffy the hair appears after this treatment, and for days it remains in position, requiring no rats, puffs or braids." Asked what was the safest and best home preparation for keeping the hair healthy and restoring prematurely gray hair to its natural color, "Madame" spoke very highly of the liquid tonic and hair food known as HAY'S HAIR HEALTH. This preparation has been on the market over twenty years and can be found at all good drug stores in 50-cent and $1 bottles. Its great successes comes from the fact that it nourishes the roots of the hair.

SANTAL CAPSULES MIDY — CATARRH OF THE BLADDER Relieved in 24 Hours. Each Capsule bears the name MIDY. Beware of counterfeits

THE SPIRIT OF AMERICA. By Henry Van Dyke, professor of English at Princeton university. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.50 net.

This book is composed of lectures given at the University of Paris on the Hyde foundation. From an American interpretation of the spirit of American life to a foreign audience, one would expect a rose-tinged picture. From a scholar, such as the author of this book, one would expect exactness and candor. From a charming essayist, such as the author of "Days Off", one would expect information, illumination and entertainment. They are all here in this book, together with the freshness and charm that are usual qualities in Dr. Van Dyke's books; a fact which we like to think has some relationship with his love of the broad, free, out-of-doors and his intimacy with candid, honest, sham-hating nature.

Dr. Van Dyke leads ingeniously and philosophically to this true reflection: "The popular impression of America which is derived only or chiefly from the observation of American travelers is and must be deficient, superficial, and in many ways misleading." He presents the correct view that the soul of America today is the soul which created it; that instead of the flood of immigration having absorbed and changed the original stock, the original stock has absorbed and assimilated the flood of immigration and made it over in its own likeness. "It may be confidently affirmed that the foreign immigration of the past has been transformed into American material, and that the immigrant of the present is passing through the same process without any alarming interruption." This process continues in spite of "occasional symptoms of local dyspepsia in the large cities." "Influences" and "ideas" have been since before the Revolution, a spirit of America, the soul of a people, and it is this which has made the United States and which still animates and controls it.

The first and most potent factor in the soul of the American people is the "spirit of self-reliance. This was the dominant and formative factor in their early history. It controlled through all the changes and growth of two centuries, and it remains today the most vital and irrepressible quality in the soul of America. • • • It is the thing you hear or wherever you hear it the thing which it utters is the same—the inward conviction of a people that they have the right and the ability and consequently the duty to regulate their own life, to direct their own property and to pursue their own happiness, according to the light which they possess."

It is merely an individual opinion, but it seems to us that Dr. Van Dyke is a little too much inclined in his insistence upon the inviolability of state rights in his discussion of a form of government which was a compromise between the need of compact organization and the mutual jealousies of thirteen of the present forty-six states. The question of the strength and permanence of the union was settled finally forty-five years ago. The growth of business on a national scope, unaccompanied by a corresponding growth of power adequately to cope with it, gives timeliness to the question whether, in the interests of the common good, something of that which is conceded to the forgotten jealousies of the thirteen original states may not have to be sacrificed to the need of properly safeguarding economic liberty and the common good of society; and that question is yet to be settled. It is true that "the day when the Union will absorb and obliterate the states is not in sight," but not to be too slow at all. It is true the day when that survival of a long-cold jealousy between a few states must give way to the demand for effective regulation of industrial feudalism, as the ideal of individual liberty must in part give way to the need of enlarging governmental exertions for the common welfare of society.

Another ingredient of the American spirit is the spirit of fair play," which has been a thing of much slower growth than the spirit of self-reliance. It was not in the Puritans, who interpreted "liberty of conscience as the right to practice their own form of worship and to persecute all others." The interpretation of the Declaration of Independence is "equality of opportunity, and while it is idle to say that it has worked out—yet—ideally, "the real desire and purpose, the aim and temper of the American people," have made the spirit of fair play "one of the creative and controlling factors of America."

While energy is a quality by which the spirit of America is best known in Europe, Dr. Van Dyke takes issue with the European view that industrial achievement is the sum of our aspirations, and he proves his theory by instances that one could have wished were more numerous. Will power is his interpretation of this factor, and he gives it third place in this illuminated catalogue of the details of the spirit of America: "That vital energy of nature which makes an ideal of activity and efficiency." Incidentally, in connection with the characteristic American passion for bigness that inventory of so many things that are finer and better than mere magnitude, it is a satisfaction to note that Dr. Van Dyke takes occasion to give tariff abuses a good whack, as they deserve.

The fourth factor he finds to be "the love of common order—a life shared with one's fellow citizens under the benign influence of good laws, a life which is controlled by principles of harmony and fruitful in efforts to a common end." "A keen appreciation of the value of personal development" is the fifth quality in the spirit of America, and its finest flower is in the facilities offered for education, a provision which springs "from a deep instinct of prudence reminding a nation in which the people are the sovereign that it must attend to the 'education of the prince.'" As to education, be it said, Dr. Van Dyke is no friend of the "utilitarian" theory of education, and he regards as a peril the idea that the schools may be reorganized to produce well-equipped farmers and mechanics and housewives instead of only doctors, lawyers, teachers and those whose practical education is yet to be gained when they leave school.

Self-expression, through literature, is the final subject in this survey of American life. It has been slower to make itself felt than the other qualities of the spirit of America, perhaps because the babble of effects of the other qualities have drowned it out and discouraged it. However, Dr. Van Dyke says that compared with other young races it hasn't been slow at all. His comparison with the ancient Hebrews and Romans is hardly fair, for it is between a people which brought to this soil a fairly matured civilization and peoples which had to create a civilization before they gained an intellectual footing. However, Dr. Van Dyke admits that the American people were slower than might have been expected, and offers as reasons their appreciation that a national literature could not be made to order but must grow, and the fact that they already had more books than they could read. Neither reason seems to satisfy. There are more books to read now than there were when America was begun, yet America is producing books of her own. While it is true that a literature must grow, the real trouble has been that the American people were too busy with material things to grow one. As Dr. Van Dyke says, "real pioneers are sometimes poets at heart, but they seldom write their poetry." While he denies that American literature is not distinctively American, he admits that "the full, complete life of America still lacks an adequate expression in literature."

The book concludes with a rapid but just and appreciative review of American letters which, perhaps without intent, makes the New England school of Hawthorne, Emerson, Whittier, Longfellow, Holmes and Lowell shine so brilliantly as to make the literary growth of other places and other times seem more sparse and straggly than it does when it stands alone. Broadly, he finds clearly revealed in American literature four dominant American traits—"a strong religious feeling, a sincere love of nature, a vivid sense of humor, and a deep sentiment of humanity."

The view point is novel. We have had America analyzed by Americans before, but largely for American readers; and we have had it analyzed by "foreigners" for foreigners. Written by an American in France, for a French audience, these lectures are the product of a keen, warm intellectuality whose ideas have suffered a slight sea change, due no doubt to the clearer perspective of distance, which allows the details of the picture to drop into their proper relation to each other. The result is a highly entertaining book of unique value.

SALLY BISHOP. A romance. By E. Temple Thurston, author of "City of Beautiful Nonsense," "Traffic," etc. New York: Mitchell Kennerley. $1.50.

Mr. Thurston is a sad rebel and a bitter jouster. He loves to riot in rebellion against the canon of conventionality, and to tilt at the marionettes that cringe to them. Being an author, he has the pleasure of creating people and making them play this merry dangerous game for him. Being a skilful writer and expert stage manager of literary creations, he does it well. Always the result is delightfully startling and exhilarating, though with the inevitable depression that is the reaction from indulgence in mental stimulants. For Mr. Thurston hasn't the cheerful outlook upon life that we could wish for him. The only joke this book makes is in calling itself a "romance."

Sally Bishop was a typist—one of those poor human insects that are deluded by the splendors of that "huge, carnivorous plant," the city—in this case London—which "only displays its attractions in order to gain its prey. They are drawn by the colors of the petals, they come to the honeyed perfume of its scent, but once caught in the prison of its embrace, there is only the slow poison of forced labor that eats its deadly way into the very heart of their vitality." Thus Mr. Thurston; though a better case for work and the city could easily be made, granting the poisonous nature of drudgery, and that poisonous drudgery is the bitter lot of most city workers. Sally, much alarmed but piquantly interested, let Jack Traill, a stranger, make her acquaintance by the offer of an umbrella on the bus from Piccadilly Circus to Hammersmith. She is virtuous, but he is a man; the adventure has its thrills. Sally was a lone typist in London because her father, an incompetent Episcopal priest, had come to grief through having over-estimated the amount of wine needed for a communion service, and being forced by the rules of his faith to drink the remainder—a ribald pathetic incident in which Mr. Thurston tilts at another convention. That was why Sally was a sweater in the emancipated ranks of women bread-winners—emancipated from everything but toil, trouble, suffering, hardship and temptation. So Sally was a victim when Traill was lonesome and coveted manly spoil. A tired street walker, whom he had helped, but whose suggestion of living with him he had spurned, had given him an idea. Traill was masterful, cruel, all man; Sally was trustful, all woman; too trustful, too loving, too much of a woman. She went to his rooms because she "trusted him as a gentleman," but something—propinquity, circumstance, Sally herself, the torrential call of sex, some brute atavism in Traill—wouldn't let him be one. He tried it, with the result of bringing Sally, unable to live without him, tapping at his door, through which she emerged three years later, rejected and outcast, while Traill danced attendance on another woman with matrimonial inclination. Of course Sally's pitiful fate came piteously and inevitably on. Her three happy years, in spite of all the innocent arts she used—arts strangely like those of her painted sister in the street—drew to an end. That is enough to tell of the story. It is a very plain spoken story, a very unmoral story with a very strong moral. And a conventional moral at that, Mr. Thurston, much as it might grieve you to be told it. It is rather a pity that a man able and so clever and so keen-sighted as Mr.Thurston should have become embittered to the point where anything established is a challenge to battle, and a little inconsistent, too, in a man who can say that "the very wind that blows has its assured direction and carries the pollen of this flower to the heart of that." It is a stark, sorrowful story, with a good deal of brilliant, bitter philosophy and grim humor. It grips the interest with its vivid fascination and won't let it go.

KINGS IN EXILE. By Charles G. D. Roberts, author of "The Backwoodsmen," etc. Pictures by Paul Bransom. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.50.

Here is an exceptionally entertaining book of stories about wild animals in captivity—of a buffalo, a puma, a moose, an Alaskan timber-wolf, an eagle, an octopus, a seal, a tame wolf born in captivity, and a bear. The stories tell about the capture of these monarchs of the wilds, of their experiences in civilization—if a cage is civilization, as some seem to think,—of their revolt against cramping captivity. Mr. Robert's books are full of wild nature's rugged strength. His pictures of animal life are true, and as a rule they fail to make the absurd demand upon credulity of asking the reader to listen to animals telling their own stories as human beings might. Mr. Roberts is a careful observer, a skilled and painstaking reporter of what he sees, and he writes lively stories in a vivid, forceful and entertaining style.

CRAG-NEST. A romance of the days of Sheridan's Ride. By T. C. De Leon, author of "The Puritan's Daughter," "Belles, Beaux and Brains of the '60s," etc. Illustrated. New York: G. W. Dillingham company. $1.50.

This is a wartime novel, written by a Southerner, but without prejudice. Indeed, a Northern writer could not have treated the Confederates more decently than Mr. De Leon has treated the "Yanks" in this story. The story begins with a vivid picture of the Southern social side in the early years before war had devastated the fair Valley of Virginia. Its people are all Calverts and Courtenays and Dandridges descended from long lines of Maryland and Virginia first families. A little later and the star of the Confederacy, having reached its zenith, was falling rapidly, hastened by Vicksburg and Gettysburg, and the valley of the Shenandoah was swept by fire and sword. In this background of war, a couple of pleasant love stories are tangled up and untangled, while the war orchestra crashes Wagnerian music. The story has its climax at Cedar Creek, where Sheridan made his famous ride from Winchester, "twenty miles away."

THE LOSING GAME. By Will Payne. New York: G. W. Dillingham company. $1.50.

John Pound and Emma Raymond formed an interesting pair. They worked in an establishment which supplied market quotations to the tickers, and there was no great over-supply of scruples between them, but plenty of ingenuity. Pound had had some experience in wire-tapping, and Emma had had hard luck enough to be willing to take a long chance. They took plenty of chances, and for a time made good—made very good indeed, from a financial viewpoint. Emma had the better head of the two, and her grit and wit had much to do with the success of the partnership, which presently became matrimonial. It is a very fascinating tale of their exciting adventures as soldiers of fortune; of how Pound, after he had millions in sight from a system of bucketshops in the Northwest, with headquarters at St. Paul, had his head enlarged by success and forgot how much he owed Emma; and of how Emma, after he had dropped her and taken a fool for a wife, planned and perpetrated a characteristically ingenious and efficient revenge. The story, which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post serially, is not only very absorbing, but it carries an unobtruded moral which its title divulges.

SOMETHING ABOUT SINGLEFOOT. By John Hicks, LL.D., author of "The Man From Oshkosh." New York: Cochrane Publishing company. $1.50 net.

There is, to tell the truth, a good deal about Singlefoot in this book, for it contains 440 pages. Its author sings enchantingly of Oshkosh, a name whose syllables fall as soothingly on the ear as the soft, sweet sound of a fool drinking into March hush. Singlefoot was an Oshkosh pioneer, and he made a lot of money and got married. Then his wife was burned up in a dreadful fire, and afterward he went East and married a girl whose face had been carried in his imagination all the years, only to find that she took off her hair and her teeth when she was in the matrimonial state. About that time he was ruined, so putting it all together he concluded to cut his throat. And that was the finish of Singlefoot; though it took 440 compact pages of story to bring it about.

THE JOURNAL OF AMERICAN HISTORY. No. 1, 1910. Edited by Francis Trevelyan Miller, editor-in-chief. New York: The Journal of American History corporation, 165 Broadway. 75 cents.

The spring number of this quarterly journal is the "American Progress" issue, and it contains a vast amount of valuable and interesting patriotic and historical matter, beautifully printed and lavishly illustrated. The scope of the Journal includes "the life stories of men and events that have entered into the building of the Western continent, original researches into authentic sources, American, British and European archives, private journals, diaries and documents, fugitive papers, reproductions from rare prints and works of art, etc. The list of contents is too large even to be described briefly here, but it is remarkably full and comprehensive. There are a large numbers of pictures, including many reproductions in color of famous and historical paintings and engravings. Arthur Manley Wickwire, formerly a Duluth lawyer, and now practicing in New York, contributes an interesting article on genealogy.

Two successful American romanticists met under alien skies when Harold MacGrath, on his way around the world, called on George Horton, the American consul-general at Athens. The author of "The Goose Girl" and the author of "Like Another Helen" swapped stories by the hour of the old days when they were newspaper men together in Chicago. A collection of Mr. Horton's poems will be published later on this year.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, the very stanchest of suffragists, as every one knows who remembers her rebuttal a year or two ago of the "anti" arguments of Mrs. Humphrey Ward, went to her first meeting of women's suffrage only on the assurance of her good friend, Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson, that she would see it conducted on a liberal, friendly spirit without bitterness or extravagance. At that meeting Mrs. Howe was relieved and delighted to meet such other men among her friends as Lloyd Garrison Wendell Phillips, and James Fremont Clark, and such a woman as Marla Mitchell, and very soon she was joining the colonel in his suffrage convictions. Although this was many years ago, Mrs. Howe and Col. Higginson have only recently contributed their interesting views on a matter generally considered to be as interesting as the suffrage—immortality—each of them having written a chapter for the nine-author book on this subject which the Harpers have published under the title "In After Days."

Maurice Hewlett, whose latest book published in America was a classic story of Helen of Troy brought out by the Harpers under the title "The Ruinous Face," has an article in the current Fortnightly Review, entitled "The Labor Party and the Future," which is a reprint of an address to workmen delivered by Mr. Hewlett recently at Leisecter. In the course of his praise and argument the novelist writes: "Now history teaches me that when there comes a fair stand-up fight upon a plain issue between the poor who work and the rich who work them, the poor always win. They always have won and they always will—it is in the very nature of the case. • • • I think that you are perfectly right to devote your first efforts as a party to the necessities of your class and the maintenance of your class rights. You owe that to the women you have married, or hope to marry, to the children you have begotten or hope to beget. But those necessities of yours got or getting, and your liberties upheld or in the way to be so, I would have you remember, masters of England as you are to be, that you are ruling for the good of all classes, and still more for the good of England. • • • I do assure you that if you can, as a great party, insure (as you only can) that henceforth there shall be an end of war and warmongering in Europe, every man of you can go to his grave thanking his God that he has been allowed so proud a privilige as to have had a share in it. I can imagine no greater since Christianity was first ushered into the world."

John Kendrick Bangs has a happy habit of telling some of the very best of his stories with the joke in them upon himself. One evening recently, being a guest in a town where an expected lecturer had failed to arrive, Mr. Bangs came to the rescue with a friendly offer to substitute a reading from his very latest book of farces. The distracted hostess was not only relieved, but plainly delighted at the change. Her manner of expressing herself, however, was unfortunate. When the rescuer entered the room bearing a copy of "The Real Thing" in one hand she grasped the other warmly. "Dear Mr. Bangs," she said, gratefully, "you have come! This makes our disappointment complete!"

Another volume of short stories by Jack London will make its appearance next week. Under the title of "Lost Face," Mr. London has reflected a number of his most characteristic stories, all of them dealing with the fierce passions aroused by the struggle for existence. "Lost Face" is also the title of the first story, the tale of a Russian fur thief who fell among savages while he was striving, as he had striven for years, to win back to real civilization. The captive's escape from torture was the occasion of the thief's "Lost Face," the title by which he was ever after known among his kinsmen. The story in its wonderful simplicity and directness is in its way typical of all that follow.

In "An Interrupted Friendship," by Mrs. Voynich, which The Macmillan Company publishes this week, one of the most striking characters in recent English fiction reappears. When Mrs. Voynich wrote "The Gadfly" thirteen years ago, she passed very briefly over one episode in the tragic career of that ill-fated genius. Now she treats in her new novel somewhat at greater length of this episode, showing us the Gadfly in a new light. It is, however, incorrect to describe the novel as a sequel since it parallels instead of following the former story.

It is not improbable that "Tower of Ivory," a new novel by Mrs. Atherton which the Macmillan Company publishes this week, will come to be regarded as the most important of this novelist's works. At bottom, it is a keen analysis of a type of young Englishman, which has figured little or none in fiction but which will at once be recognized as very real and very significant. Mrs. Atherton has made her study of her hero as close as possible, and the whole man stands before us in all the good and evil of his nature. To describe "Tower of Ivory," however, as a psychological novel would be grossly inaccurate. Mrs. Atherton has a vigorous story to tell and tells it with all the skill in narrative which her former works have shown.

Among the Magazines.

In her discussion of "The Change in the Feminine Ideal," with which the Atlantic for March opens, Mrs. Deland gives the conservatives much aid and comfort, for which she is apt to suffer correspondingly at the hands which are raised in defense of women's rights. Hardly less attention will be attracted by Prof. Edward A. Ross's illuminating paper in the same number on "The Suppression of Important News," which presents against the newspapers a succession of damaging charges, while a third notable paper is the discussion of "Federal Railroad Regulation" up to date by William Z. Ripley. James M. Hubard, in "Stanley's Africa Then and Now," gives an interesting sketch of the development of the dark continent; Hollis Godfrey continues his series of papers on the city dweller with "The Problem of City Housing Abroad." There are two articles of purely literary interest: "Anatole France: an Imaginary Interview," by Claude C. Washburn, and "The Dramatic Unities," by Brander Matthews. A particularly trenchant paper by Ernest C. Richardson treats of "Our Superiority in Religion" not without sarcasm. The second installment of Gideon Welles's diary of the Reconstruction Period" carries the story to the heart of Johnson's administration, while Gen. Schaff brings his human story of the wilderness campaign within a few days or two of the close. Notable among the stories are Miss Agnes Repplier's "The Third Generation, "Out of the Deep," by Paul Mariett, and "Mr. John's Miss Best," by Mary Borden Turner.

The March Wide World Magazine upholds its reputation as being unique among present day periodical literature. It contains twenty stories of adventure, sport, travel, etc., each one of which is brimful of interest and excitement. An excellent article on the fascinating sport of "Moose Calling" is contributed by Arthur H. Hesketh-Prichard and "After Polar Bears in the Arctic" will tingle the blood of every one who has ever held a gun. "Making Old Masters" reveals some of the secrets of modern picture faking. Lieut. R. S. Keyes continues his account of how Boatswain Jurashka of the United States navy was captured by Filipinos. Altogether the March Wide World is remarkable value for 10 cents—not a dull line from cover to cover.

The March Strand is full of good things. Capital stories by well-known authors—including W. W. Jacobs and A. E. W. Mason—interspersed with attractive articles go to make an excellent number of this favorite magazine. "The Hand of the Actor" should be read by every one who takes an interest in expression. It is contributed by David Belasco, George Arliss, H. B. Irving, Forbes Robertson and other well known theatrical lights. Prof. Ward supplies a "nature" article and Constance Clyde writes upon "Freaks of Eyesight." Some beautiful examples of flashlight photography, reproduced in sepia, constitute the color section for this month.

The March number of the North American Review presents a varied and interesting table of contents to the reader. Edward G. Lowry, Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, analyzes in an interesting way "One Year of Mr. Taft." Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster of Connecticut, writes upon "The Democratic Ideal and the Christian Church." Judge Peter S. Grosscup contributes "Prosperity with Justice—Working Toward a Solution." Edwin H. Blashfield, the well-known artist, speaks of "The Actual State of Art Among Us." W. M. Acworth contributes an article up on "Railroad Accounting in America vs. England." Rear-Admiral C. F. Goodrich, U. S. N., concludes his article on "Mr Newberry's Naval Reforms." W. D. Howells contributes a brilliant article on Mr. Ruben's Georgia Election," and "Britannicus" writes upon "England and Socialism." Senator George Sutherland treats of "The Internal and External Powers of the National Government." Alcide Ebray, formerly consul-general of France at New York, writes upon "The Republic and Diplomacy in France." Dr. Edward Berdoe contributes an article on "The Claim for 'Absolute Freedom' for Vivisection" and Sydney Brooks writes upon "The British Elections."

Perhaps the most perplexing municipal problem that confronts each of our great American cities today is "The Police Question." The Metropolitan has sent Carl Hovey to many of our greatest cities which the problem is vexing, with instructions to find out what is the trouble and to tell its readers the truth about the matter. The police of Cleveland, Toledo and Boston are discussed in the current issue, and to say that it makes absorbing reading is putting it mildly. Another series of articles on a subject, which is also far-reaching in its appeal and has attracted great attention, is "The Conquest of Poverty." The present instalment, by Garnet Warren, tells what the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America are doing to solve the appalling problem. Mrs. Kenneth Brown, author of "Haremlik" and a Greek herself, born and bred in the heart of Turkey, gives an interesting and true picture of "Turkish Women at Home." No American artist has won and deserved greater fame at home and abroad than the late James MacNeill Whistler. Surely none was so peculiar, both in habits of life and methods of work. Harper Pennington, for a number of years his pupil in "The Whistler I Knew," gives a close-range portrait of the eccentric painter.

There is a thrill of adventure in the historic narrative of "When Minnesota Bled," told in the National Magazine for March, by a witness of the terrible Indian massacre of 1862 with all the vividness of skilful word-painting, and the simple force of personal recollections of a horrible border war, and possesses all the value of positive historical narrative added to the thrilling interest of a tale of adventure. The Story of Auto Town, by W. C. Jenkins, is a graphic description of Detroit and the expansion and growth of the automobile industry, which now represents approximately $50,000,000. The chapters of Capt. Coffin's logbook, kept in the Ziegler Polar expedition, takes one right up among the icebergs, and almost compel the reader to shiver with the chill and the thrill of actual facts related without any garnishment of rhetoric or fine words. It is like "being there." The succeeding chapters of "Hum" once more remind one of the intense interest awakened in "the Dark Continent" and the thread of the story is followed with almost breathless attention. "Come Back to Erin," by Catherine Frances Cavanagh, and "A Well Shod Conspiracy," by L. B. Kinder, are short stories full of those thrills and tense situations which delight all readers of good fiction.

The first article in the March issue of Success Magazine is "Noses," by Dr. Woods Hutchinson. The article entitled "English Rugby Football," by Henry Beach Needham, shows the superiority of the English game over the American. The fourth installment of the interesting series, "The Power Behind the Republic," by Charles Edward Russell, is entitled "The Machine That Makes Slums, That Makes Bad Business and May Make Worse Things." There is a timely article by Walter Weyl, entitled, "Old-Age Pensions." Dr. Marden's editorial for the month is "How to be Popular." Joan Schafer has something to say on "The Waste of Overeating." John Luther Long has written another charming story called "Baby Grand." "Who's Who in Nevada," by Barton Wood Currie is a story full of laughs and sighs. Louise Forsslund's charming love story is called "The Other Girl's Picture." James Oppenheim's story is "The Vision of Stiny Bolinsky." The serial romance, "The Shears of Destiny," by Leroy Scott, is continued, and increases in interest and excitement in this month's installment. "The Sky Man," by Henry Kitchell Webster, is concluded with the March number. There are poems by Blakeney Grey, Charles Buxton Goin, and Lewis Worthington Smith.

The second installment of H. L. Gantt's series of papers on the compensation of workmen and its relation to efficiency of operation occupies the leading place in The Engineering Magazine for March. The special subject treated is the proper operation of piece-work system, and Mr. Gantt here begins an exposition of his methods of training workmen and determining equitable rates of compensation which will be continued through several succeeding numbers. An important illustrated feature is H. Birchard Taylor's review of the development of the hydraulic reaction turbine in America. Gen. A. Jones writes of the living forms which attack wooden submarine structures and of preventative measures against their ravages and also against rust. Franz zur Nedden presents the third of his papers on the design, construction and operation of centrifugal pumps, and A. Hamilton Church in the sixth instalment of his series on organization by production factors discusses the future and use of control accounts. M. M. Sloan continues his discussion of the industrial applications of reinforced concrete, extending it to include the structural details of roofs, skylights, stairs, etc.

The Popular Science Monthly for March contains the following articles: "Insects and Entomologists, Their Relations to the Community at Large," by Prof. John B. Smith; "The Second Law of Thermodynamics, Its Basis in Intuition and Common Sense," by Prof. W. S. Franklin; "Vision in Some of Its Relations to Man," by Prof. Robert DeC. Ward; "The Structure of the World-stuff," by Prof. Horace Clark Richards; "The Relation of Sewage to Public Health," by Alfred Hayes, Jr.; International Coinage," by Theodore F. Van Wagenen; "The Hubbard Glacier, Alaska," by Prof. Lawrence Martin; "The Work of the Carnegie Institution"; "The Life of Peter Lesley"; "Scientific Items."

In the issue of Harper's Weekly for Feb. 26, appears an account of one "Pussyfoot" Johnson, by Victor Rousseau, telling of the exploits of this famous detective agent of the Indian department in the West. Under the title "The Waste in the Porterhouse," H. S. Grindley tells of the nutrient values of the different beef cuts. William Barclay Parsons writes upon "New York's Traffic Problem." Theodosius S. Dayton describes "The Romance of Eight Bells"—the famous bells of old St. Michael's church, at Charleston. This issue also contains an article by Henry Wellington Wack, entitled "The Everlasting Briton," illustrated by photographs by Thomas Browne; a story by William Hamilton Osborne, and photographs, with the usual editorials and humor pages, and dramatic and financial reviews.

Under the general title of "The Lady," Emily James Putnam begins

SOCIETY

Lent is being observed in Duluth. Devout people are attending the Lenten services at church and those less devout are devoutly studying fashion sheets and advance notices of what is to be. There are few diversions promised. The local concert by the Minnesota Glee club promises to be the most popular affair of the month among the school and college people home for the holidays. The members of the club will be guests in Duluth homes during their trip to the city and a number of informal affairs will be planned in their honor. The Duluth concert will be given at the high school under the auspices of the high school alumni association Wednesday evening, March 23.

Many of the women's clubs of the city are preparing for the wind up of the club year. Aside from club meetings and the entertainment of the spring seamstress and a few informal affairs there is little going on.

THE WEEK'S AFFAIRS

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Whyte entertained the members of their bridal party and a few other guests at dinner Wednesday evening at their home on Eighteenth avenue east. The hostess wore her bridal gown and the guests, who were attendants at her wedding in the autumn wore the gowns of that occasion. The appointments were in yellow and covers were placed for the following guests:

Misses—
Swift, St. Clair,
Ostrom, Rebecca Bailey.
Paine,
Messrs—
Brewer, Welch,
Taussig, McBride,
W. S. Telford, Ray Higgins.

A number of Minnesota people were entertained at a delightful musicale in New York recently, by Miss Jennie Ralston and George Ralston, who formerly lived in Duluth, at their home at Riverside park. A number of the guests are in the East studying music, others of them have achieved success in their professional life. Among the Duluth people present were Miss Ann Worthington, the stage name of Miss Mollie Woods, known to many Duluthians and Miss Rena Vivienne and her mother, Mrs. Smith, who are now in New York; Mrs. Fred Reynolds and her daughter, Miss Gladys Reynolds; Miss Daisy Bassett, John Koneczny, George Suffell and Fred J. Chipman, formerly of this city and Miss Meinhug, who was East for a few weeks and has returned from her trip.

Miss Rena Vivienne, who has been studying in Berlin for two years, has returned to America, called here by a special cable from the Savage offices, and is now with her mother, Mrs. Smith, in New York. No plans for her further professional life have been announced, but it is anticipated that Miss Vivienne will soon be featured in one of the Savage productions. Duluthians, who have seen and visited with Miss Vivienne since her return, are enthusiastic in praise of her continued growth in her artistic life and anticipate great things for her future.

Mrs. Julius H. Barnes entertained informally at a children's party Tuesday afternoon in honor of her little son, Robert Barnes.

Mrs. Florence Kelley was the guest of honor at a luncheon at the Commercial club yesterday at 1 o'clock. Besides the guest of honor covers were laid for:

Mesdames—

While in Buffalo they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Lapham, 149 Highland avenue, who have issued cards announcing the marriage of their daughter, Maude, to Marshall Fairchild Shores, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Shores. Mr. Shores and his bride will make their home in the West. Mr. Lapham is comptroller for the Lackawanna Steel company.

MARCH WEDDINGS

The wedding of Miss Rosella Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harmony Bartlett, to Percy Payne took place Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents at Fifty-seventh avenue east. The house was prettily decorated in pink carnations and ferns, and the service was read at 7 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Hunt of the First Christian church. The bride wore a pretty white gown and carried a bouquet of violets. Mr. and Mrs. Payne will be at home after March 10 at 525 East Sixth street.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Boston of Two Harbors, Minn.; Miss Olga Ketchison of Milnor, N. D.; Fred Bartlett of Laurel, Miss.; Mrs. Perry Payne of St. Paul; Mrs. S. Payne of Spooner, Wis., and Mrs. Camp of Denver, Colo.

The wedding of Miss Julia D. Johnson and Roland D. Warner took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Thomas of Sixtieth avenue east. The wedding service was read by the Rev. Alexander Milne of Pilgrim Congregational church. Mr. Warner and his bride will be at home in this city.

The marriage of Miss Christiana Christianson and Joseph C. Anderson took place Thursday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christianson, 2421 West Superior street. Rev. J. W. Loughridge read the marriage service. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will be at home at 2125 West Fourth street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Oreckovsky of West Third street have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Lena, to Barney Davidson of Chicago. The wedding will take place March 15.

IN A FOOL'S PARADISE

America Sixty Years Behind England in Labor Laws, Says Speaker.

Minimum Scale Secured in New York Will Not Support Worker.

"If the American woman would come out of the fool's paradise in which she now seems reasonably content, pleased with the landscape and satisfied with the faces around her, we might sooner secure the laws that make conditions of labor for women more nearly possible. As it is, the state of Minnesota and many other states of the Union are sixty years behind England in its labor laws, thirty years back of Germany and behind many, in fact, most, of the European nations."

So said Mrs. Florence Kelley last evening in a lecture at the Commercial club on "Ten Years' Program of the National Consumers' League," in telling of what had been accomplished in improving the conditions of labor among the women and children of America, and what it is hoped will soon be accomplished.

"At present those of us who have worked in New York know that the minimum wage that we thought satisfactory, $6 a week for a woman 18 years of age or more, with a year's mercantile experience, is absolutely inadequate for her to live. If she struggles on in the effort she does not live. Her physical resistance is broken down and the result is three paths crowded with American womanhood leading to the tubercular sanitoria, to the asylums for the mildly insane, and to the life of the streets. When we realize that as the indirect employers of these women and children of the stores and factories, we are responsible, then we may hope to have American law equal to England's in this respect.

"Although, I am sure that it is of little or no commercial value for a merchant to be on the 'white list' of the Consumers' league which includes the establishments that live up to the standard that the league requests, yet the merchants of New York, who are not on the list are perfectly miserable. They will do many other things that we do not ask rather than those that we do. They will install lockers and shower baths, they will establish a vacation home for their employes, they will have lunch rooms or a dozen other things, rather than come up to the conditions of wage and number of hours which they must satisfy to be placed on our 'white list.'

"In Illinois, where we secured a law limiting the number of hours that women may labor, it was tested by a case at the supreme court and the judge decided that inasmuch as woman was a citizen the right of contract could not be taken from her. She was not a citizen in that she could pay her taxes by work on the roads, and not a citizen in that she could work underground in mines, which has always been prohibited, nor that she could be called to the militia, but her right of contract, so decided this Illinois judge, could not be taken from her. Since that decision in a case we have had before the supreme court of the United States, it was decided that it was not only the right, but the duty of the state to protect its citizens by limiting the number of hours of labor. This decision was secured through a brief containing the results of world-wide investigation on the ratio of fatigue and disease. Several cases are now pending in various states, and the Chicago decision is to be tested again and the decision is promised for Tuesday of next week."

Mrs. Kelley told in detail of the dire results working girls suffer from the conditions that must exist when there is no law regulating the number of hours of labor for women, and impressed upon her hearers their responsibility as the indirect employers of the women and children suffering from the conditions.

The assembly room of the Commercial club was well-filled with men and women to hear the lecturer who came to the city under the auspices of the Women's Council.

LECTURE ON WAGNER'S OPERA

Mrs. Stella Prince-Stocker Will Talk on "The Niebelungen Ring."

Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the assembly room of the Young Women's Christian association Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker will present a lecture recital before the members on Wagner's opera "The Niebelungen Ring." Mrs. Stocker will present this lecture for the first time in Duluth. Much interest has been aroused this winter in her lecture recital on opera and Monday's meeting promises to be especially well attended. Duluth women not members of the society will be admitted to this lecture on payment of the usual guest fee.

This lecture-recital especially emphasizes those features of the cycle which bear directly on the history of the ring which was forged from the golden treasure that Alberich stole from the Rhine maidens and which finally brought about the destruction of Walhalla.

The ring story includes how Alberich got possession of the treasure; the curse of the ring; first view of Walhalla; appearance of the giants Fafner and Fasolt; Wotan visits Niebelheim and gets possession of the ring, the magic helmet and the mass of gold but he is forced to give them to the giants; the parentage of Siegfried; Bruennhilde tries to assist his father, is denounced by Wotan and placed under a spell on a fire-encircled rock; Siegfried forges his father's broken sword, kills the dragon, and thus gets possession of the ring and magic helmet; he releases Bruennhilde and gives her the ring, but while under a spell, takes it from her again; at the close of Goetterdaemmerung, it is returned to the Rhine maidens.

A few of the many books on Wagnerian subjects to be found in the Duluth library are: "The Music Dramas of Richard Wagner," Lavignac; "Wagner and Reform Drama," Dannreuther; "Studies in the Wagnerian Drama," Krehbeil; "My Musical Memories," Hawels; "Art, Life and Theories," Wagner.

Meeting of Church Circle.

The Endion Circle of the First Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. Daniel Andrews, 1026 East Superior street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Capt. Bogardus Again Hits the Bull's Eye.

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed he says:—"I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well-known kidney medicines all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subject to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney ills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers." Sold by all druggists.

NORMAL NOTES

The winter term closed on Friday of this week and no school will be held until Tuesday, March 15, when all the students are expected to enroll for the spring term.

Examinations in most of the subjects were given on Thursday and Friday. Some of the senior girls were made happy by Dr. Kline's announcement to his class in history and philosophy of education, that, because of the excellence in recitation, they would be excused from the final examination on Friday morning.

Preparations are being made in each of the two literary societies for a preliminary to the declamatory contest to be given before the school on March 25.

This first contest will take place before the members of each society. Judges will be appointed to select the three best speakers from each and these last six will enter the final contest. Prizes are offered by the school. A purse of $5 will be given to the speaker gaining first place and $3 to the student who carries off second honors.

The following members have entered the preliminary from the Greysolon society: Pearl Elevitch, Ruby McMinn, Mabel Fix, Kata, Kitcham, Mildred Chisholm, Gladys Goldsmith, Gladys Stoddard, Rae Potter, Frieda Hanson, Ruth Hamblin and Astrid Dahle.

The following members of the Thalian society will take part: Florence Ryan, Harriet Martin, Mary Myron, Marie Angemeier, Rebecca Snyder, Ruby Haigh, Mary O'Brien, Winifred Leonard, Rebecca Walker.

The girls have selected their own material for the contest and are to prepare it without aid.

President Bohannon has been away the entire week at Indianapolis, attending a meeting of the National Educational association.

Supt. M. A. Morse of Buhl, was a visitor at School on Wednesday.

The Thalian Literary society held a business meeting at recess on Tuesday. The coming declamatory contest was discussed and a program committee for the next term consisting of Misses Harriet Martin, Marie Angermeier and Rebecca Walker was appointed.

A notice has ben posted on the bulletin board announcing that the final examination in spelling will be given the seniors on the afternoon of March 17. Before graduation every senior is required to pass this examination with an average of 100 per cent. The words are selected from a list of 1,000 compiled by Miss Carey of the English department.

Dr. Kline gave his writing class a test last Tuesday and the following girls have completed the course satisfactorily: Elsie Becker, Pearl Elevitch, Emma Kremer, Maude Cullen, Laura Gronseth, Landra Mitchell, Elizabeth Ostlund, Agnes Olson, Josie Cohen, Edna Carroll, Signy Bergford.

Many of the teachers and students whose homes are not in this city have made arrangements to leave for the coming vacation. Of the teachers: Miss Palmer will go to Fort Dodge, Iowa; Miss Godfrey and Miss Ely to St. Paul, Miss Murray to Minneapolis, Miss Post to Milwaukee, and Miss Crow to Grand Rapids, Mich. The students who will leave the city are: Florence Ryan, Ironwood, Mich.; Margaret Kelly, Montreal, Wis.; Evelyn Storm, Maude Cullen, Edna Baker, Winnifred Wright, Amy Gilbertson, Hildegarde Snyder, Brainerd; Isabel Jayce, Virginia, Wis.; Alice McCarthy, Coleraine; Margaret Raleigh, Ruth Raleigh, Eveleth; Katie Ketcham, Capitola Cater, Hermans; Minnie Campagin, Harriet Martin, Bessie Schaffer, Edna Schaffer, Tower; Charlotte Gianotti, Ely; Lois Guinn, Mapleton; Helen Coburn, Twin Cities; Christine McMillan, Cloquet; Florence Fuller, Aurora; Effie Pfeiffer, Tower; Mary Savolinen, Virginia; Mira Childs, Hibbing and Dora Tonkin, Ely.

Miss Charlotte Gianotti and Miss Dora Tonkin have completed their course of study.

Miss Guilliard as president of the Duluth-Superior branch of the International Kindergarten union is busy ing plans relative to the coming to Duluth of Dr. Luther H. Gulick of New York. Dr. Gulick speaks in Duluth and Superior, Wednesday, April 6, and on account of his prominence as a speaker and educator his coming is looked forward to with much eagerness and interest.

The following books have been added to the library during the last two weeks:

Cubberly—"Certification of Teachers, Fifth Year Book of the Society for Study of Education."

Dodge—"Progress of Geography in Schools: First Year Book." Part II.

Devine—"Social Forces."

Farnsworth — "Education Through Music."

Felmenger — "Experimental Psychology of Music."

George—"Junior Republic."

Henderson—"Education with Relation to Sex." 2v.

NEW MAINS ON GARFIELD AVENUE

At a meeting of the board of water and light commissioners this week, a petition for the laying of a new 12-inch water pipe and a new gas pipe on lower Garfield avenue was granted, contingent on the sale of the bond issue now pending.

At the present time, a 12-inch iron pipe supplies Garfield avenue to a point about 1,000 feet north of the gas plant. From there on to Pine street, the service is by 6-inch kalomine pipe. The petition asked the replacement of the kalomine pipe with iron pipe and also the laying of a gas main from the gas plant to Pine street.

The amount of water pipe to be laid is about 4,450 feet and 3,450 feet of gas pipe will go down, the two pipes being laid together from the gas plant south. The improvement will cost about $12,000.

Shriner Special.

A special train for Shriners will leave Duluth April 8, for New Orleans, via the Omaha and Illinois Central. Arrangements for the through special train have been completed by A. M. Fenton, freight and passenger district agent for the Omaha at Duluth.

The train will include sleepers, a diner, buffet and library car and will be one of the finest trains ever run out of Duluth. The train will run direct from Duluth to New Orleans and will also return here intact. Over 100 Duluth Shriners will make the trip to New Orleans, according to the present indications.

A Tea Party.

DEAR, sweet, little Grace,
With clean hands and face,
And apron as white as snow;
She's giving a tea
At a quarter past three,
And that's why she's fixed up so.

The Lion, the Lamb and the Mad March Hare.

BY MAUD WALKER.

An old lion, a regular March lion such as we read so much about, lay napping in his cave near to a mountain side. His was a cozy place to sleep, and though the winds of March blew and blew like the breath of some great beast, old Mr. Lion did not heed them, for he was so well-housed in his fine cave that he cared not a straw about Mr. March's winds.

And so the March winds blew and blew. But pretty soon Mr. Lion was awakened by a soft voice in his ear. It was a dear little white lamb, a Spring lamb, such as we read so much about. And he was a very intimate friend of old Mr. Lion's, which may sound very strange, indeed, a lion and a lamb being intimate friends. But such they were, as you will soon see. But, before going further, I must tell you that they were not the ordinary lion and lamb. They were the Spring lion and lamb, and usually come out about the first of March, as you may have heard about.

Well, when Master White Lamb whispered softly to Mr. Lion, the latter stirred in his sleep, saying, "Who's here?"

"It is I, your old friend of the Springtime," explained Master White Lamb, "and I have come to pay you my annual March visit. You will see that I am a few days late, but I shall explain the cause of delay."

Old Mr. Lion was now wide awake, and sitting up, staring at his little friend whom he had not seen for twelve months. "Ah," he exclaimed, "you are a sight to make one's heart leap for joy. I have been looking for you for, lo! these several days. And why have you been so delayed? The month of March is now advanced almost a week. I was beginning to get a bit anxious on your account—fearing some sprite had waylaid you and led you off into danger."

"Good, old friend that you are!" declared Master White Lamb fervently. "And now for the explanation concerning my late arrival: I was detained from getting here by none other than the Mad March Hare."

Old Mr. Lion sat bolt upright. "What?" he gasped. "Is that crazy creature hereabouts? Why, he's always the terror of the land during this month, and I've been wondering how we can be rid of him for once and for all. He's a menace to our happiness, for he is likely to pop up at the most unexpected time. For instance; last spring while I was walking out across the meadow at the foot of the mountain, enjoying the bright morning sunshine and fresh southern breezes, whom did I see capering about just in my path but that Mad March Hare! And he made as if to fly at me, and I will admit, lion that I am, noted for boldness and bravery, I was a bit—ahem, a bit afraid. One can never tell just what that crazy fellow will do. Why, he might scratch one's eyes out. And how could one get about in search for food without his eyes? Ah, no sir-ee, I don't want to come face to face with that Mad March Hare."

"That's just the way I felt concerning him, too," said Master White Lamb. "I was late in getting here on his account. Three times have I tried to reach your cave, and three times have I been driven back by that lunatic, Mad March Hare. He has taken up his station in the meadow at the foot of this mountain, and there he cuts up the most andacious capers you ever saw. He will pop out from behind a dry tuft of grass, ears up and eyes shining. Again he'll leap in your path, face full of insolence and his teeth showing between his lips. Oh, he certainly deserves the name people have given him. If ever a creature was mad it is he."

"Yes, there can be no doubt of that," agreed Mr. Lion. "But I wonder how we can get rid of him. He is a great annoyance to us."

"I've been thinking of a plan," said Master White Lamb. "You may think it a plan as crazy as the Hare himself, but I truly believe it will work successfully. Shall I explain it to you?"

"To be sure, go on. If you can conceive of any way by which we can rid ourselves—and the country, too, of course—of that mad fellow, I shall be only too happy to assist you in following it out," said Mr. Lion. "But be seated here on this soft stone. The one you occupy is as hard as flint. You know there is such a difference in the substance of stone, my dear friend. That seat you now occupy is never comfortable; it's granite. But this one, of limestone, is like sitting on moss, if you will excuse the far-fetched comparison."

Master White Lamb exchanged the seat of granite for the one of limestone; then, very comfortable, he began to unfold his plan to be rid of the Mad March Hare. "It is this," he said; "suppose we go to the meadow and behave just as crazy as himself. That will astonish him so that he will at once cease his own capers to watch us at ours. Then we will be safe in making advances to him, pretending a desire to be friends. Then, once we have gotten him to associate with us, we'll lead him far away, by some circuitous path, to the other side of the world, and while he is asleep we'll steal off, leaving him in another land. Then we'll be forever rid of him, and no harm done to him, either."

"A splendid plan," declared Mr. Lion, enthusiastically. "You may be only a lamb, but you're a wise one, all right. We'll proceed to carry out your plan at once. It will be successful, I am sure."

"I am glad you like it, friend," said Master White Lamb, his face flushed from the pleasure he felt at having the hearty approval of so great a creature as Mr. Lion, the bold and the brave.

And then they proceeded to carry out Master White Lamb's plan. They hurried to the meadow at the foot of the mountain, and on the way arranged as to their manner of conduct. Arriving in the very center of the wide and deep meadow, they began to jump about and to make queer cries. The old lion roared till the mountains echoed again and again. The lamb bleated, mingling his noisy cry with that of his companion. Indeed, the very meadow seemed alive with their merry madness.

In the shadow of a clump of bushes sat the Mad March Hare, watching the antics of the lion and the lamb. "Well, upon my ears," he said to himself, "that does beat all that I ever saw. I may be a fellow fond of wild capers, but I never behaved like that. What can have possessed the two? I believe I'll join them in their frolic and ascertain what has got into their blood. It can't be the March weather, for that is not unusual. It must be something they have eaten."

And so it happened that a little while after the lion and the lamb had begun their wild antics in the meadow they were gratified to see the Mad March Hare advancing cautiously towards them. Always before he had made himself offensive, not to say forbidding, by rushing at them in a most wild fashion. But on this occasion he came creeping gently forward, holding his ears, which formerly had been so aggressive, back against his neck. And there was anything but boldness or audacity in his movements.

"See the change in his demeanor!" whispered Mr. Lion. "He seems sane enough now."

"At least, he's careful," replied Master White Lamb. "Let's continue our mad actions. He'll soon be with us to learn the reason of our having become mad like himself."

A few seconds later the Mad March Hare had come within a few feet of Mr. Lion and Master White Lamb, and lifting up a paw, spoke:

"March friends," he said, "may I have a part in your frolic? You seem very gay today. Is there some occasion for festivity?"

"Only that we have become, like yourself, mad," laughed Master White Lamb. "Yes, like yourself, we are a couple of loonies," roared Mr. Lion. Then they all laughed heartily.

"But I am not a couple of loonies," explained the Mad March Hare. "I am only one poor creature, making merry by himself, and called mad by the rest of the world. But, shall I join you in your merry games?"

"If it pleases you to do so," said Master White Lamb. "I guess my bold and brave companion here, Mr. Lion, has no objection."

"Oh, none in the least," declared Mr. Lion. Then he laughed in his sleeve, as the saying goes. "Come on, Mad March Hare, and be just as crazy as you like. We're in for fun today."

So saying Mr. Lion gave the Mad March Hare a hearty clap on the shoulder, and they all set to playing "Pussy wants a corner," using old stumps for corners. And when at last the sun went down Master White Lamb and Mr. Lion remembered they had forgotten to lead the Mad March Hare to "the other side of the world." But they had been having so much pleasure in his jolly company that they had forgotten to fear him, and no longer wished to be rid of him. In fact, they wished very much to make him a constant companion, and invited him to join them in their cave on the mountain side for supper, which the Mad March Hare readily accepted. And as the three sat around the supper table Master White Lamb and Mr. Lion told the Mad March Hare of their plan to be rid of him and of their final decision to ask him to be one of them, "for," declared Mr. Lion, cordially, "we have discovered you are no more mad than the rest of the world, and we like you very much."

"See the change in his demeanor," whispered Mr. Lion. "He seems sane enough now."

Tommy's Joy.

I LIKE it when the evening
Of darkness settles down,
For then I know my Daddy
Is coming home from town.

"I meet him at the gateway
(Unless it rains, you know),
And hand in hand together
Up to the house we go.

"There's Mamma, always smiling,
And Daddy, dear, and me,
To sit around the open fire
And chat till time for tea.

"Oh, we're all so happy
When the darkness settles down
For then we know dear Daddy
Is coming home from town."

Something About Our First Doctors.

A Little Lesson in Early Science.

THE science of medicine and healing was practiced by the Egyptians in the very early ages. They believed that several divinities presided over disease, the Goddess Isis, wife and sister of Osiris, being the greatest of those possessing the power of healing the sick and restoring life.

The science of medicine was divided into two classes. The first (because considered the most powerful) was the practice of conjurations, "dissolving the charms of the gods by prayer" and revelations received by the sufferers during solitary confinement in the temples. Of course, the priests had charge of this work. To the second class belonged the ordinary practitioners, who resorted to the use of medicine.

The Egyptians must be given credit for giving to the world the first oculists, since they had a fair knowledge of the diseases of the eye, and were, comparatively speaking, very successful in the treatment of certain ailments of that organ. History chronicles the fact that the Egyptian doctors were "summoned to foreign courts" to practice their science of medicine, and were believed to be very successful in the treatment of fevers as well as diseases of the eye.

The ancient Egyptians held a peculiar theory regarding the development of the heart. They thought that up to the age of 50 years the heart increased in weight about two drams annually, and after that it decreased in weight about the same amount each year. Through this continuous loss old age set in, and at about 70 years of age man died. Another of their curious beliefs was that demons ruled over the body, and that only on account of the poisons forced into the human body by these wicked agents did mankind need food and drink. Such sustenance was necessary to strengthen the human sufficiently to throw off the effects of the demons' poisons. Otherwise a man would not need such rebuilding.

The ancient Egyptians resorted to dissection, and were very well acquainted with anatomy. Especially did they make a "study of the heart, the lymphatic glands and the crystalline lens of the eye."

In India the practice of medicine probably dates farther back than in Egypt. In the earlier ages the priests were the "doctors" and "healers," and their knowledge came entirely from their own soil. But in later centuries they borrowed from the Greeks. The study and practice of the Hindu physicians were controlled by certain regulations which would be well to follow even in this advanced age. Those undertaking the practice of medicine were required to possess "a fine person, decorum, chastity, consideration for the sick, generosity, diligence, temperance, freedom from boasting, veracity, secrecy, amiability, a desire for knowledge which scorns not even the lessons of an enemy, and, above all, reflection and independence of thought."

To quote further: "A physician who desires success in his practice, his own profit, a good name and finally a place in heaven, must pray daily for the welfare of all living creatures, first of all the Brahmans and the sacred cow. • • • The physician should wear his hair short, keep his nails clean and cut close and wear a sweet-smelling dress. Let his speech be soft, clear and pleasant. Transactions in the house should not be bruited abroad."

From the above it will be seen that the Hindu doctor of ancient times had to be a man of presence and talents, combined with cleanliness and virtue.

The Ancients' Idea of the Comet.

AS we are so often visited by comets—those tramps of the universe—it may be interesting to the young folks to know something about the theories held by the ancients regarding these mysterious bodies, with their streamers of light extending across the heavens. The following extract is quoted from an exhaustive and authentic work, a "History of the Universe:"

"The term 'comet,' derived from the Latin coma, or hair, applied to celestial bodies, which appear to have a hairy appendage, goes back to the time of the Romans. A similar word, 'cometa,' was used by Cicero, Tibullus and other ancient writers.

"While the ancients distinguished between comets and meteors, yet they believed them to be of the same nature, and to be found in the earth's atmosphere not far above the clouds or at all events much lower than the moon. The earlier and Pythagorean view, however, was much more correct, according to modern doctrine, for it held that comets were bodies with long periods of revolution, which idea, like others of Pythagoras, probably came from Eastern philosophers of unknown nationality. Apollonius, the Myndian, believed that the Chaldeans were responsible for this notion of the comets, for they spoke of them as travelers that penetrated far into the upper or most distant celestial space. Aristotle even believed that the Milky Way was a vast comet which perpetually reproduced itself.

"The comet could not be regarded otherwise than as a divine omen to announce some remarkable event or to forbode evil, particularly pestilence and war. Indeed, for many years the deaths of monarchs was believed to be announced by these brilliant messengers in the sky."

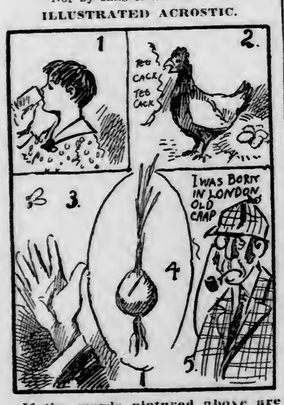
ILLUSTRATED ACROSTIC.



If the words pictured above are rightly guessed their initial letters will spell the name of the author of the greatest story for youths ever written.

ZIGZAG PUZZLE.

This zigzag contains nine words of five letters each. If the words are rightly guessed and written one below another, their zigzag letters, beginning with the upper left-hand letter and ending with the lower left-hand letter, will spell the name of a mechanic. The cross-words are: 1. A soft, white substance which easily crumbles. 2. Bodies of water entirely surrounded by land. 3. Certain kinds of fowls. 4. Sea vessels. 5. A serpent. 6. That which we make with the vocal organs. 7. A small aquatic animal having fine fur. 8. That which children do while at school. 9. Something we buy at the jeweler's shop.

RIDDLES.

A word of three syllables, seek till you find,
Which has in it twenty-six letters combined?
(Alphabet.)

Four and twenty white horses, now they gallop, now they canter, and now they stand still.

HIDDEN PROVERB.

A well-known proverb is hidden in the following six sentences. Each sentence contains but one word of the proverb, and if the right words are guessed, and written together, the proverb will be complete:

Let every one speak the truth.
Don't let one cloud darken your sky.
The boy who has good judgment is lucky indeed.
A bee is always industrious.
Silver coin is heavier to carry than paper money.
Let the lining of fine garments be of good quality.

CURTAILINGS.

1. Triply curtail a piece of thick, soft paper and leave a spot of ink on paper. 2. Curtail something used by an inventor in showing his invention and leave the prevailing style. 3. Doubly curtail a small, sharp instrument used for chopping and leave to bring a chicken from an egg. 4. Doubly curtail a rabbit's house and leave a woodman's poor habitation.

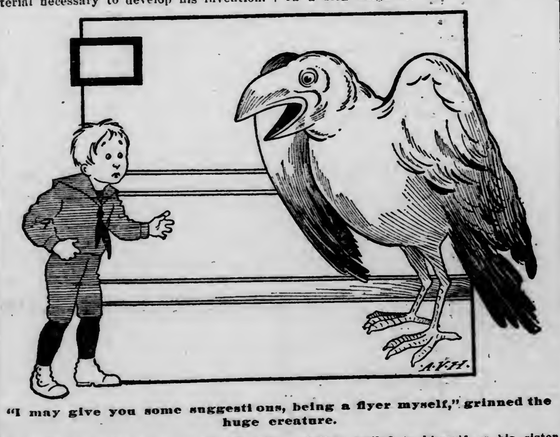
Arthur's Airship.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

"YOU ought to be ashamed of yourself, trying to make something to fly," declared Gracie Drew to her brother Arthur. The latter was very busily engaged building an airship. His workshop was an empty stable, which was not a very comfortable place when the March winds blew. But Arthur, an enthusiast on the subject of aeroplanes, did not notice weather. He was too full of the invention of a ship to fly through the clouds to think about climatic conditions, and he worked both early and late, cold or warm. For many months Arthur had studied every available scrap of information pertaining to the subject in which he was so deeply interested, and his indulgent father had supplied him with money to buy the material necessary to develop his invention.



"I may give you some suggestions, being a flyer myself," grinned the huge creature.

"I know I'll make a machine to fly all right," he said to his sister, who stood watching him while he worked on the evening of this story. "I have in my head an invention which will be a great help to aerial navigators. It is a new idea, and one that will make a noise in the world when seen in use."

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, trying to make something to fly," repeated Gracie.

"And why?" asked Arthur, pausing in his work.

"Because, if God had intended people to fly, He would have had them grow wings, like birds," said Gracie. "It's wicked for men to try to fly. Only birds should do that."

Arthur laughed. "And what do you say about express trains, and the fastgoing ocean steamers? Were people intended to fly across land like that? Were we not just made with feet to walk and run? We hadn't steamers or trains growing onto us—to help us to go fast. I can't see the difference between an airship and a steam car, only one is an old invention and the other is a new one. And both are necessary to man in this age of rapid transit. So, I shall yet give to the world a great invention, one which will give wings to men, so to speak."

"Well, and what will the birds say, when men come flying through the clouds, maybe frightening the very life out of them?"

And Gracie looked the indignation she felt. "I don't think it right for people to try to take the place of birds," she went on. "And I hope all inventions of airships will fail. Steam cars and ocean steamers are fast enough, and quite enough for the world. And you ought to be ashamed to try to build an airship." Then Gracie left the workshop and went to the house where her mother awaited her, as they were going to make a call on a sick neighbor.

Arthur smiled to himself as his sister departed. "Just like a girl," he mused. "Such childish philosophy," he went on, "this thinking no person should try to fly. Why, we should use the wits God has given us, and invent everything possible that is conducive to man's comfort and convenience. Well, this airship of mine will be worth while," he said, looking over some plans he had carefully drawn. "And she'll make speed, too." Then he bent himself to work again, not stopping till he heard the tinkle of a little bell. It was the cook ringing his supper bell, calling him to the evening meal. His thoughtful mother had instituted the plan of letting Arthur work till meal time, and then ringing a bell to rouse him to the consciousness that it was time to replenish wasted energy by partaking of a good meal. And Arthur, a healthy boy, never delayed in his shop after the tinkle of that mealtime bell. Laying aside his work, and carefully locking the shop (carrying the plans to the house with him) Arthur went to his supper. During the meal he discussed his work with his father who had brought home several magazines and papers containing exhaustive articles on the latest inventions in aeroplanes. "I don't see anything suggesting my invention," said Arthur happily. "Gee, I guess the other fellows haven't gotten that bee in their bonnets yet, which is a lucky thing for me."

"Maybe that's because your idea is no good," said Gracie, sarcastically from the other end of the table. She could not forgive Arthur for "trying to fly," as she put it. "Maybe they have thought of your plan long ago, but find it no good."

"I like your grammar," smiled Arthur. "But we'll let that pass. It is mamma's and teacher's business to look after your language. My business is to invent a new attachment to the present airship which will make it a success in any wind or weather. And it will be found practicable, my invention will; but as to it's being 'no good'—well, we'll see about that later. Still, I must say, you have a very bad way of expressing yourself." And Arthur looked teasingly at his young sister.

After supper was over Arthur thought he would lie down and nap for half an hour, then repair to his shop and work till 9 o'clock. On Saturday he always tried to put in a busy day. And this was Saturday. He went into the living room and threw himself on the couch, and was soon lost in slumber. His parents and Gracie were in the library entertaining some callers, and Arthur was undisturbed.

After sleeping for half an hour a strange thing happened to Arthur. The door leading from the hall into the room where he lay was opened and a huge bird flew in. "Come, show me the plans for your airship," said the monster fowl, flapping his wings.

Arthur, somewhat frightened, sat up and stared at the creature before him. "And why should I show my plans to you?" he asked, addressing the bird.

"I may give you some suggestions, being a flyer myself," grinned the huge creature, again flapping his wings.

"Very well, then, come with me."

And Arthur arose and led the way to his workshop. Opening the door he ushered in the bird, saying to him: "Here are my plans," and he took from his pocket the plans drawn on paper, "and here is my model." And he removed a canvas cover from the model he was working on. "Now, examine it, you flyer, and tell me what you think of it."

The bird hopped around the work-bench, eyeing first this point and that point. At last he spoke: "You poor simpleton! Here you have a hundred little wheels, screws, levers, bands, all the things known in modern machinery, and still you couldn't fly a mile, if at all. And here am I, with just these," and the bird flapped his great wings, "and I can raise them so, and away I go, over mountains, meadows, rivers, lakes, without stopping to oil my machinery or to supply gas or gasoline to it to give it power. Ah, I am the only flying machine that will ever work successfully, for I am the invention of the Great God!"

"Ah, you've been listening to that foolish sister of mine," said Arthur. "She's silly on the subject of flying. But you have another guess coming, my fine flyer, after you see my airship at work. When I fly through the clouds, leaving you far behind me, you will see that I, also, the invention of the Great God, have made a great invention of my own. Had it not been intended for man to do these things, the ideas of such inventions would never have entered his mind. But why should I waste time talking to a bird? Why, you know nothing but to fly and to eat," he continued, turning heatedly to the great fowl. "I'll bid you good night, for I have work to do."

"Ah, work to do," laughed the bird. "But after all the work of centuries, not one of you inventors will ever get a machine to do this." And the bird raised his huge wings, spread them out till they covered the shop floor. "See, I am going to fly, carrying you, barn, airship and all, with me. Such is my power." And before Arthur could cry out against it, the bird had risen, lifting the barn and its contents to the sky. Arthur grew dizzy and felt that he would give the world to be back on earth again. Then the sensation of falling came over him, and he realized the bird had let go of him, and that he was rapidly descending to earth. A sick fear seized him, and just as he was about to strike the earth he opened his eyes, rubbed them and sat up. "Gee! Where am I?" was his first question. Then he looked about him. He was sitting on the side of the couch in the living room of his own home, and the voices of his parents and sister came from the library adjoining. "Ah, one of those infernal inventor's dreams," he said, rising. "Guess I have worked long enough on my airship model tonight. I'm getting wookey. Must go and chat awhile with my dear family. Then I'll go to bed and take a good rest. Wonder what Gracie would say should I tell her of that horrible bird—the thing I saw and talked with in my dream! Well, she's too much of a girl to see the humor of it, so I'll enjoy the memory of it alone. Gee, but I'm glad I didn't hit earth after that fall! Guess I'd better take it as a warning and be careful about going up in my airship—after I have it done—till it has been thoroughly tested. That was surely an inventor's dream, and no mistake."

Written for the Herald by E. J. Edwards ("Holland")

(Copyright, 1910, by E. J. Edwards.)

HEYBURN and Weeks, Mondell and Carter, Smith and Beveridge, Dixon and Lever, to say nothing of La Follette—these are the names of present day federal senators and representatives who are destined to be heard of often in the near future when congress gets down to real business on the conservation of national resources proposition which of late months has been keeping most of us up late o' nights discussing it in all its various phases.

These are the men who will undoubtedly lead in the debates that will take place on the divers conservation bills now before congress—bills that call for all manner of conserving in all parts of the country. There are bills expressing the popular idea of conservation, which undoubtedly confines itself to forestry, to coal, oil and phosphate, lands on the public domains and to water power. There are bills which express the sentiment of Eastern members of congress and have to do with deeper harbors and better facilities for the navigation of rivers; and many a Middle Western congressman's interest in this nationally new and enthralling subject centers chiefly in bills looking towards the establishment and maintenance of deep waterways, reaching thousands of miles inland from the Gulf of Mexico. But whatever the phase of conservation soon to be under running discussion in the capitol, it is pretty certain that Heyburn and Weeks et al. will be found in the midst of the fray, some, of course, fighting for and some forninst. And with such men as Heyburn and La Follette taking a lively interest in the legislative scuffles, it is fairly certain to prophesy that some hard and stinging blows will be delivered one way and another.

A Man of Picturesque Opinions.

Just as the Wisconsin senator is one of the most radical supporters of a broad conservation policy, so the Idaho toga-wearer is everywhere recognized as one of the leading opponents of conservation in its varied phases. Also, he is pretty generally recognized as a man of most decided opinions, a characteristic which seems to have grown with his years, which now number 57, and which began back in Pennsylvania in Quaker-settled Delaware county, the senator's parents having been of that faith, and, like most Quaker parents, having seen to it that their son had a good education before going out into the world on his own hook. The senator is a large man physically, notwithstanding the fact that his height is not above the average. His face is rotund and florid, and he is a faultless dresser. Altogether, it is not an uncommon thing for visitors in the senate galleries to express surprise that the Far Western and comparatively new state of Idaho should be represented in the senate by a man of the social type of Senator Heyburn.

Senator Heyburn, during his congressional career, has never hesitated to land a body blow on the forest service when opportunity offered. One of these attempts by him proved somewhat of a boomerang. A few years ago, while making a speech in the senate against the forestry bureau, he charged that the forest service was packing various conventions in Western states with forest rangers and charging the expenses of their trips to and from the conventions to the account of "hay and grain." This particular item proved a source of considerable sarcasm on the part of the senator and served to mystify the forest service itself not a little.

After considerable investigation the mystery was finally explained, but the senator did not tell the explanation to the senate. It transpired that at the various conventions in the West devoted mainly to irrigation, reclamation, grazing and forestry, it had been the custom of the convention promoters to invite the various governmental services to have well informed experts in attendance to answer any questions that might arise. In response to these invitations, the forest service had been sending rangers to the "grazing" conventions and charging the expenses up to "grazing," under which sub-head appropriations had been made by congress. Some one of Sanotor Heyburn's over-zealous friends stumbled across this item and in telling it to the senator had interpreted it to mean "hay and grain."

How Heyburn Astonished the President.

On another occasion Senator Heyburn went to the White House to see President Roosevelt for the purpose of protesting against the inclusion of certain lands in Idaho within the boundaries of a forest reserve. During the course of the conversation President Roosevelt sent for Gifford Pinchot, then chief forester of the government, and, with a map of Idaho before them, the three men set about to settle the mooted question.

Senator Hedburn proved particularly insistent during the argument that he knew exactly what he was talking about while the president and Mr. Pinchot did not.

"Why, I know this Bitter Root reserve from beginning to end," said the senator. "I have been all over it. Why, see here," he added, pointing triumphantly at the map, "here are the Grassy mountains, eminently suited for grazing purposes and not at all suitable for forestry."

The president and Mr. Pinchot looked with astonishment for the mountains Senator Heyburn had discovered and which they had never heard of before.

"You had better look again, senator," finally broke in Mr. Pinchot. "As I read the map it says 'Craggy mountains.'"

Senator Hayburn, who had for the moment discarded his spectacles, was not nonplussed for an instant. He completely ignored the incident, and went right on with his argument as though nothing out of the ordinary had happened.

It is fair to set down Senator Heyburn as an extremist in those matters in which he is most interested. Quite recently, as the country doubtless still remembers, he went hot foot after Virginia for daring to place in Statuary Hall, in the national capitol, a bust of Gen. Rebert E. Lee, and a little later he opposed a loan of government tents to a Confederate veterans' reunion. When the tariff bill was under consideration last summer he came out flatfootedly for the very highest tariff rates that could be imposed on every article in the bill. And about that time, being deeply stirred by the attitude of the press of the country towards the tariff bill and himself, he made a speech to the senate about the "jokesmiths of the press gallery" who, he said, were the guests of the senate. He took the position that the press had no right to express a discourteous opinion of the senate or a senator than it could, with propriety, similarly discuss its host, if a guest under a private roof. The senator indicated somewhat hotly that he was in favor of throwing the press gallery out of doors.

But probably the best illustration of the Idaho man's extreme tendencies was furnished by him when he became a candidate for re-election to the senate a few years ago. Then he wrote a book about himself thirty-four pages long, contining his complete congressional record. In it he laid claim to a fondness for politics and the law, and, after inserting thirty pages of index, concluded the document by saying:

"It would be impossible in this brief statement to attempt to give an adequate idea of what Mr. Heyburn has said in discussing the many questions above enumerated. Those who desire full copies of such of his speeches as have been published in separate form will be supplied on application."

Senator Carter—His Way.

Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana, who is the only member of the senate boasting a goatee of respectable dimensions, and who is further distinguished as one of the two chairmen of the Republican national committee since the war who have ever suffered defeat, is regarded by the extreme friends of conservation as one of their shrewdest opponents. Let there be a storm of any kind in the senate, and Senator Carter, who is only 55, but whose snow white hair and goatee make him look at least a decade older, can be depended upon to arise in his seat and, with profound indignation, or the greatest suavity, proceed almost sanctimoniously to pour oil on the troubled waters. He has, as a constituency, not only one of the greatest sheep grazing sections of the country, which frequently comes into conflict with the forestry service, but some large timber owners; and a story of how he tried to work in his constituency's interests on a group of Washington newspaper men who were proceeding through Montana in charge of forestry and reclamation agents with a view to "boosting" the work of those branches of the government, is told with great gusto by the participants.

Arriving in Helena, Mont., early one Sunday morning, after a long hard ride over mountainous western country, the party found Senator Carter's private se cretary on the depot platform. This gentleman proceeded to upbraid the crowd for sneaking into Helena without letting anybody know about it.

"Senator Carter will be terribly disappointed," said the secretary, "for he is preparing to leave Helena on the next train, and would have been glad to have reminded or and entertained you had he known you were coming. However, I would be glad to have you go to the club with me to get washed up and partake of refreshments."

Humanly enough the party followed the secretary to the club, each one of them feeling very badly at the great disappointment their unannounced arrival would cause the senator. But no sooner were they cleaned up, than the secretary rushed in, stating that he had found the senator, who had determined to remain over a train and entertain them as best he could on such short notice. So they were invited to enter automobiles and ride out a couple of miles to the Hotel Broadwater for a swim. The secretary said the senator was awaiting them there, and immediately the sympathy which had hitherto been extended to the senator turned into joy at the prospect of seeing him after all.

Actually after an hour's dip in the water, in the midst of which the senator had calmly suggested to his secretary that he "rustle up some of the boys to join us at lunch," the party was ushered into a private dining room. The table was laden with flowers and all kinds of food. Within the room had been assembled practically all of the federal officials stationed at Helena, all of the leading sheep and cattle owners and timber men, and a goodly number of other personal friends of the senator. The party thereupon sat down and ate a meal composed of nine courses, which was perfect in every appointment.

"The senator certainly had us 'buffaloed' until it came to that meal," said one of the participants recently. "It was then, however, that he overplayed his hand. There was not a man in the party who was not willing to make a bet that there was not a hotel in Washington itself which could have prepared a meal like that without at least a week's notice."

Ever since he went to Montana to live, in 1882, Senator Carter has been a big man there, politically, and from the time that the territory was admitted to statehood he has been a rather steady figure in national politics and national events; territorial delegate, Montana's first congressman, twice a senator, commissioner of the general land office, delegate to Republican national conventions, Republican national committee chairman and president of the board of commissioners of the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

Montana's Offset for Carter.

Montana's other senatorial representative, Joseph M. Dixon, is chairman of the senate committee on conservation, and he ardently upholds the Pinchot ideas of conservation as his colleagues opposes them. Mr. Dixon admits openly that he should be numbered among the men and women who have been made conservationists by the government's late chief forester.

"In a general way," he told me," the conservation propaganda first promulgated by Mr. Pinchot brought the matter forcibly to my attention. In the earlier stages I read some of his articles with only passing interest. Specifically, my attention was called by a little incident of every day life. Some years ago, in the town in Western Montana, where I live, I had occasion to purchase a very small quantity of Oak lumber for use in a house I was building. I think it was for thresholds for some doorways. When I got the bill, I was astonished at the price charged by the local dealer, and called his attention to what I supposed was a mere clerical error. He had charged me at the rate of $100 per thousand feet.

"To my great surprise, he informed me that the charge was not only correct, but that he had charged me only actual cost. He said, 'Oak lumberq is hard to get at any figure; the supply is almost exhausted.' I remembered that only a few years before, in my boyhood days in North Carolina, "I had seen splendid big oak trees burned for firewood and split into rails for fencing, and in clearing "new ground" rolled in heaps and burned to get the logs out of the way of the plow. But my youthful recollections didn't change his argument on the price charged. I investigated farther and found his statements were true."

In downright shrewdness and political sagacity, Senator Dixon is a typical product of the Western states. There is nothing "flossy" about him. He makes little noise, and never starts anything he cannot finish.

In the last session of congress he was one of those Republicans who joined hands in the filibuster against the practice of the senate of considering the appropriation bills in committee almost exclusively. At that time the appropriation committees were in the hands of the "elder statesmen," and the younger senators, who, nevertheless, had to vote for these bills in order to pass them, were practically compelled to lend their acquiescense without knowing what they were voting for.

It fell to Senator Dixon's lot to quiz the members of the senate committee on naval affairs about the provisions of their appropriation bill. He did not lay claim to knowing much about the navy, so he made the members of the committee make his speech for him. He would merely seize upon an item in the appropriation bill and ask what it was for. When he got an answer, he would inquire into the ramifications of his newly acquired piece of information with such minuteness that the members of the committee were kept on their feet most of the day, while Mr. Dixon kept the machine going by interposing a question now and then. It was one of the best pieces of "hazing" ever perpetrated on the "old guard"—and by a "youngster" in the early forties at that.

In the last national campaign Senator Dixon was made chairman of the speaker's bureau of the western division of the Republican National committee, headquarters in Chicago. It was generally conceded who the fate of the Republican national ticket lay in the Middle and Far West, where William J. Bryan was making his principal fight, and where Mr. Taft was comparatively unknown, except as a political protege of Theodore Roosevelt. Senator Dixon began operations by pulling off his coat and sticking pegs all over a map of the Western United States where he knew the most dangerous political situation lay. Into these sections he subsequently sent President Taft, Governor Hughes of New York and Senator Beveridge of Indiana to preach the faith of Republicanism, and he followed them up with a host of rapid-fire speakers, who brought in the votes.

An Orphan Who Has Made Good.

Wyoming's sole member of the house, Frank W. Mondell, by reason of the fact that he is chairman of the house committee on public lands, is another Westerner who will figure prominently in the conservation free-for-all. Incidentally, Mr. Mondell is to be numbered among the orphans who have made good, despite their great handicap of having been early bereft of parents. He was left alone in the world before he had reached his sixth year, and thereafter, until he was 18, he divided his time and energies between farm work and convenient district schools. Then he took to wandering up and down the West, finally locating in Wyoming in the late eighties. And the first thing he did after alighting was to help build the town of Newcastle; the next year he became its mayor, and since then he has been one of his state's "favorite sons."

"Mr. Mondell is the type of man who would be listened to with close attention in almost any assembly. Notwithstanding the fact that he is one of the smallest men in the house, he has a voice which penetrates the uttermost recesses of the house without any apparent effort on the part of its owner. Added thereto a choice vocabulary and the art of logic, Mr. Mondell stands high in the ranks of forceful speakers in the house. He rarely uses gesture, but depends upon the modulations of physical attitude in speaking and his voice for oratorical effect. His physical attitude in speaking, and his physical size are not dissimiliar to that of Representative John Dalzell of Pennsylvania.

Mr Mondell is a fearless fighter, and he sticks to his opinion with tenacity, especially on conservation subjects, concerning which he is one of the frankest men in congress. He has been set down as one of the most ardent opponents of the policy, but on the other hand, he points with considerable pride to the fact that when he was assistant public land commissioner of the government, he had maps drawn for several existing forest reserves. Recently, when President Taft wanted Mr. Mondell to introduce the administration's conservation bills in the house, the Wyoming representative announced that he would introduce two of tnem, of which he approved, but would not stand sponsor for seven others, the intent of which did not command his sympathy.

Mr. Mondell is a politician of more than ordinary ability. Before he made politics his main hobby, he was engaged in the coal business in all of its various, phases from the mine to the consumer. He is 49 years old.

A Voice From a Desert.

Representative Sylvester C. Smith of California, whose high cheek bones, florid complexion and sandy colored hair strongly suggest kilts and bagpipes, though their owner never makes mention of a probable Scotch ancestry, is sure to be prominent in the conservation talk, as he has been in all similar discussions in the past. If one were to try to find out what Mr. Smith hates most, he would have a hard time deciding between the alleged vagaries of the forestry service and the indiscriminate immigration of the Japanese which obtained until the Japanese government began keeping their laborers at home something over a year ago. Mr. Smith has been one of the most outspoken of the California national legislators on this latter subject.

Mr. Smith is a Californian by way of an Iowa farm, and his first work in his new home was farming and school teaching combined. Then he became a lawyer and finally a newspaper editor. He still owns the leading newspaper of his home city, Bakersville, and has made a great success of it, notwithstanding the fact that many inhabitants of his district are coyotes on the Great Mohave desert.

It is now twenty years since he started the Bakersfield Echo, which played a prominent part in the newspaper field during a famous fight among irrigationists over their respective riparian rights. This was long before conservation as a national policy was ever thought of. The question involved concerned the rights of land owners both up and down stream to the use of water from a river for irrigation purposes. The fight was so hot that, in one campaign, the contestants sought to pledge candidates for the supreme court of the state in advance, to render a decision on one side or the other. On this occasion the Echo, which reflected the sentiments of Mr. Smith, took a position which was subsequently sustained by the courts, by which all the users of water got their just share.

Recently Mr. Smith had his paper propound the question: "What is conservation?" He now is sitting up nights frantically trying to catalogue the various answers.

A Dyed-in-the-Wool Pinchotist.

One of the most noted advocates of the policy of conservation during the Roosevelt and Taft administrations has been Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana. In and out of season he has defended every phase of conservation, not only on the floor of the senate, but also in his public speeches throughout the country. It is no secret to say that the senator began making "heavy" speeches on this subject before he had mastered the technicalities of the various phases of conservation. When he had a speech to deliver on conservation in the early days of his championship he would get hold of some expert on the subject, find out what he wanted to know and then "pump" a speech into his audience. By this method the senator added to his sum total of knowledge gradually and became one of the best informed conservationists in congress.

Representative John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, who is the author of the only bill for an Appalachian forest reserve which has yet commanded, with any degree of unanimity, the support of Eastern members of the house from Maine to Florida, and so is interested deeply in conservation from the Eastern viewpoint, is one of the big men of the house, both physically and mentally. He is a six-footer in height, built in proportion, and is regarded as one of the sixteen-inch guns on the Republican side in a debate.

He has an all-around penchant for legislation. He is a banker and a broker, and an all-around business man, with a liking for naval affairs as a side issue. When the emergency currency bill was before the house, and that body had some reason to sus-

THE BERTILLON SYSTEM AND WHAT IT MEANS TO A PROFESSIONAL CRIMINAL

So Perfect "The Only Way to Beat It Is By Dying."

What the Inventor Hoped It Would Mean to Society.

Wanted It Also Used to Prevent Fraud at Elections.

(By James E. Walsh.)

Every once in a while we pick up a newspaper or a magazine and in it we run across an article describing the Bertillon system, generally written by some embryonic student who has simply read a text-book on the subject, taken out some of the photographs showing how a criminal is measured, and then gone to work and framed up a fairly interesting story. .

How few people there are who really know what the system is, and what strange and childish ideas they have in regard to it. They think it is something every officer knows, or if he doesn't, he can at least learn it in a month or two. What they don't know is that it takes about four years to become an expert Bertillon operator, and that it is a profession the same as law or medicine.

Now, in this article I am not going to tell how a criminal is measured. I am going to try to show what the system is and what it was really meant for.

The Bertillon system is at present a police science. That is but part of what it was originally intended for, but this part is the only one that has ever been used, and it was brought out in 1882 by Alphonse Bertillon, chief of the identification bureau of the Paris police department, the one man who has made police work a science and a profession.

Dr. Bertillon experimented several years before he perfected his system, and during those years he had but one great idea in his mind, to give to the world a method of identification so accurate that a human being described by his system but once, would be recognized always during life. Even after a death the measurement of certain bones would reveal the person's true name and history.

The doctor's reasons for his system, given in his own words, are these: "A very considerable portion of the crimes and wrongs which disturb the order of human society result, either directly or indirectly, from the apparent impossibility of distinguishing in every case with unerring certainty one individual from another. It is for this reason especially that so many of the professional and habitual criminals who abound in every land have hitherto gone 'unwhipt of justice.' Men would be unlikely to render themselves liable to penalties of the law if they knew that wherever they might flee, their identity could not fail to be discovered. A sure means of identification would not only have the effect of deterring from crime in general, but evidently nullify all attempts of whatever kind of a substitution of persons."

Previous to the birth of the Bertillon system the only means of identification known was by photography and a description of the prominent scars and tattoo marks, for criminals, you know, are like salt water sailors, there are very few of them who have not a design or two tattooed on their arms or chest. Of course these methods were a very poor means for a future identification, for a person's looks will change as they grow older, a little acid will change the shape of a scar, and a clever tattooer can cover an old design with a new one entirely different. So you can readily see how this system, the fruit of Dr. Bertillon's years of patient study, meant so much toward the suppression of crime the world over. It will also show us if a criminal is a first offender or a professional. Suppose John Doe is arrested for a crime. He is measured or signalized and his identification card and photograph are sent away to the central bureau at Washington, D. C. In a week, at the most, the answer comes back that this man John Doe is unknown to them. Then we know that this is, beyond a reasonable doubt, John Doe's first offense, and when John comes up before the court for sentence he will probably be let go on six months or a year's probation, for the court is always lenient with first offenders.

But on the other hand, suppose we get a report that John Doe, whose photo and measurements were received from our department, is no other than John Green, alias John Brown and a dozen other names, and that he has done time in two or three different prisons, you may be sure that when he comes up for sentence he will get the maximum penalty, for the court believes, and rightly too, that society will never be safe as long as John is allowed to run at large.

The Bertillon system is in use today in every country in the world. It was brought to the United States in 1887 by Maj. R. W. McClaughry, then warden of the Illinois state prison at Joliet, at the present time warden of the United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, which has become the home of so many of our crooked bankers and high financiers.

At that time the system was entirely in French, but a little later it was translated into English by Merwin Snell, member of the Anthropological society of Washington, D. C. This was done under the personal supervision of Maj. McClaughry, who has done much to make the system what it is today in this country.

Dr. Bertillon when he first started to perfect his system would have liked to broaden it so that it would take in everybody. By that I mean he would have the measurements of every male person in the country taken, then have a national central bureau where the identification card of each of these men would be filed away. These measurements then would take the place of passports at every national frontier. They would appear on all life insurance policies, permits and other papers whose value depends upon the establishment of personal identity. As the originator of this system says: "It would then be possible to find any person at once when ever desired, whether for his own good or that of society at large, in whatever place he might be and however he might alter his appearance or his name. Crime could thus be rooted out, elections purified, immigration laws effectively enforced, innumerable misunderstandings and much injustice prevented, and all business relations greatly facilitated. But while this ultimate aim and destiny of signalism may still be far from realization, it has an enormous practical utility even under existing circumstances, and is already in operation on a large scale as a police science, an effective means of recognizing criminals, thus protecting the innocent and insuring the punishment of the guilty."

There are three parts to the Bertillon system.

The first is the anthropometrical or the measurements of the bony structure of the criminal. This part is really the A, B, C of the system and is something every police officer ought to know how to do, but alas how few do know. About one in 100 knows how it is done, and in the United States there are about two dozen men who know how to do it correctly.

The second part of the system, known as the morphological or descriptive part, deals with a description of the form, gait, mental and moral qualities. This is also called the verbal portrait. Take two officers knowing this part of the system thoroughly, one will describe a crook to the other, giving him the color of the criminal's eyes and hair, the shape of the forehead, nose, chin and ear, his height and build, peculiarities of speech, etc. and the other officer ought to be able to pick this man out immediately no matter how large a crowd he was in, the moment he saw him. How many police officers in the United States can do this? Probably half a dozen.

The third or last part of the system is known as the pathological or signalment of peculiar marks. This takes in the peculiarities of the surface of the body caused by disease, accident, deformity or artificial disfigurement, such as moles, scars, amputations and tattooing. This part is the least important of the three because with the exception of the amputations, the moles, scars and tattooing, can be altered by artificial means.

When Bertillon got his system working in Paris he revolutionized the police department. All the old-fashioned methods were done away with. He organized an officers' school with an hour or two for study every day. Inside of a year every one of those officers knew his methods of detecting criminals, and Paris has had ever since the greatest police force in the world. Scotland Yard next adopted it, and then in order comes Berlin, Vienna, St. Petersburg and Rome. And now every city of any size in the Old World has its identification department and its officers' school. How far behind the Old World we are! Yet with the establishment of a national bureau of identification at Washington and taking some of the largest cities of the country into the association, we have taken at least a short step forward toward the suppression of crime. What a wonderful gift Bertillon gave to society! He never wasted his time over theories, like Lombrosio, the Italian criminologist. He did not try to prove all criminals were born criminals and degenerates. He gave no thought to the theory that because a man or a woman committed a crime during their life that their children must necessarily be criminals. He simply went along and tried to perfect a system under which it did not pay to commit a crime, knowing that you would be speedily apprehended and brought to justice. Dr. Bertillon has done more to purify society than any other one scientist in this century. His system has put more men behind the bars than any other known agency. Thousands of crooks have cursed the system and the first time they were "bertillioned." Many a fugitive from justice, fleeing from a serious offense, would commit a smaller one in some city far away from the scene of his crime, thinking to get laid away in the county jail until the hue and cry was over, only to find that when his short term was up that the officers would be waiting at the door to take him back to where he fled from. As an old ex-convict said: "The only way you can beat the system is to die." Of course, no sane man expects that we are going to eradicate crime, for you will always find a man who is willing to take a chance in order to live (as he thinks) easily. But it is comforting to know that if that man attempts to commit another crime he will be as well known to the police all over the country as though he carried the brand of Cain upon his brow.

Bertillon has not lived in vain, and his system will go on, with but few alterations (for it is nearly perfect), until such a time—and I am afraid we will never see the day—when there will be no more criminals to measure or to "mug."

A SCHOOL ON A ROOF

A Real Fresh Air Experiment in Chicago Proves That "Out Doors" is Good for Children Winter or Summer.

By SHERMAN C. KINGSLEY,
Superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago.

(Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.)

You cannot have consumption in three rooms, on $5 a week with any success. The poor cannot afford it; the community cannot afford it. The entire budget of the best financed charity organization in the world cannot adequately provide milk, eggs, diet, sleeping appliances for porches, better quarters, rent, an equivalent for wages which will give necessary rest and cessation from toil to the victims of this disease. The only salvation is prevention. We have to execute flank movements and cut it off.

The open air school now carried on by the United Charities of Chicago is one such effort. Last summer the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute conducted such a school for thirty children for about as many days. It gathered in a group of limp, pallid, physically blighted children. They were listless, inattentive, uninterested and uninteresting. A thirty-days' regime of intelligent care and feeding, of exercise and rest, resulted in an average gain of seven pounds, and in the opinion of the teachers made the pupils an average group of children in alertness, ability to sit up and take instruction and to keep up sustained interest in their work. Some people thought that this was all very well as a warm weather enterprise, but that it should be put aside with summer clothing and the approach of cold weather. To convince these doubters and to clinch progress already made, it seemed very desirable that the experiment be continued here, as it has been elsewhere, during the winter.

This was made possible by a grant of $2,500 from the Elizabeth McCormick memorial fund, a memorial to a child, who, although she lived but twelve years, displayed exceptional traits of character. Her interest and sympathy for the unfortunate, her thought and activities in their behalf would have done credit to a person of much maturer years. The trustees of the fund are wisely encouraging movements that promise far-reaching social significance. The board of education is co-operating with the open air school enterprise by furnishing the teacher, desks and school equipment.

Although the different ages of the children make it substantially an ungraded class, and nothwithstanding the division of time necessary to this modified school regime, the teacher, has undertaken the work with a spirit and zeal that are insuring success.

The school has aroused a great deal of interest through the press and among educators and philanthropists. It is one of many forces that will doubtless result in more fresh air and better health not only for this class of children, but for all children in the public schools. Often school ventilating systems will not work unless the windows are shut; consequently they are kept shut. Then the ventilators fail to work anyway. Loyalty to a ventilating system seems like a bad case of misplaced veneration.

The floor of the building on which the school is situated is 40 by 50 feet. The portion within the inclosure is about 30 by 50 feet. The tent in which the desks are located is made of asbestos board so that it is fireproof and stands the test of wind and storm. The windows about the sides lift so that there is an open zone around the tent. In fair weather the children take their rest hour in the open. Meals are served in the dining room, two floors below, and the daily bath is taken in bath rooms in the building proper.

The Eskimo suits have not been used in any similar school. During their rest period the children are also wrapped in blankets but restless children often displace the blankets and become more or less exposed, while the warm, loose-fitting suits stay in place. Moccasins similar to those used by lumbermen are worn.

This was probably the one school in the city of Chicago where the boys and girls refused to take a vacation. They came back, every one, asking that the school go on during the Christmas vacation. On this account alone the Open Air School of Chicago is unique.

The daily routine of the school is as follows:

7:30 to 8 a. m.—Rise and dress.
8 a. m.—Breakfast at home.
9 a. m.—Arrive at school.
9 to 9:30 a. m.—Bath (cold).
9:30 to 10 a. m.—Lunch.
10 to 11:45 a. m.—Study, recitations and breathing exercises.
11:45 to 12 a. m.—Wash face and hands ready for dinner.
12 to 12:30 p. m.—Dinner.
12:30 to 12:45 p. m.—Prepare for rest period, brush teeth, etc.
12:45 to 2 p. m.—Rest.
2 to 2:30 p. m.—Study and recitations.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

The working people are much concerned in what are the causes of high prices. It is surely a deplorable act upon the part of the government to allow a few persons to enhance the price of the food of the worker to the point where the wages are so depreciated that they will not buy for him the needs of life in exchange for his labor expended in the production of profits for the employer. And yet the same government claims the right to restrain the worker from doing anything that would be injurious to the interest of the employer, who at this time is robbing him by raising the price on the goods that the worker must have in order to live.

Who is to blame? What are we to give as the cause? There are many seemingly learned men who write for periodicals lengthy articles on this question, and yet they do not name a cause, nor do they point a way out of the difficulty. They rant upon such questions as "surplus of gold," "revision of the tariff," and the foolishness of the housewife in expending the wage of the husband upon the choice cuts of beef, and buying things in general that do not come within the purchasing power of the wife of a man who has to labor for a living. The working man has been reviled in many ways, but the climax is reached when these loggerheads assail the right of the worker to eat good and pure food.

There are some of us who believe that the present form of industry has grown so large that it commands the position of being the dictator in commercial affairs, dictating to the government what it shall and what it shall not do. We also believe that the present form of government is lending what little power it has left to the employing class that they may further exploit the worker, to the end that what little independence he may enjoy may be taken from him by the scheming employer.

We were taught when we were young that this government was one of the people, that its aims were to serve the interests of the people, and that it would not protect the scheming few in their attempt to rob the majority of their rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. There are a few people who own the factories, another few who own the railroads, another few who own the mines and the land, and it is within the power of these people to do as they like.

Jur Armour fell heir to $50,000,000 at the death of his father. It is said that the sum left him has grown to be $300,000,000, five times greater in the space of ten years. This seems that every dollar that was left to him has in the course of one year added 50 cents to it. It must be easily seen that, when a person has the sum of $50,000,000 and he can add $25,000,000 to it for ten years, its must come through their ability to tax the foodstuffs of the worker. Armour is owner of the large packing plants of Chicago and the present high prices we are compelled to pay for meat would lead us to believe that much of this fortune has been made by paying more for the meat than it cost to place it upon the market.

We also find, in the production of coal, that the cost of production at the mines, as compared with the price the consumer is forced to pay, is so great that it cannot be considered as profit but as robbery. That bituminous coal, on an average, can be mined and loaded on cars for $1.20 per ton shows, when comparison is made of its cost price and its selling price, that there is a large margin that should be called by some other name than profit.

When one gains insight into the method in which the business of the country is conducted, he feels as though he would like to hurl epithets of hatred and anger at individuals. But these individuals are not to blame; they are creatures of circumstances as well as we. We should take a broader view of the constitution of our system of industry; then we would find that the system is to blame and not individual men.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

district south of here, has resulted in opening up an eighteen-inch vein of high grade material containing gold and galena ores that run rich. The vein was found in a 25-foot drift run from a 35-foot shaft. It is expected that it will widen. Two shipments of smelting ore have been sent out and good results obtained.

The Minnesota Mines company working in the Maitland district has resumed operations on an open shop basis.

The Gertie Tin Mining company, whose property is at Hill City, is about to resume, after several months diligent refitting of the plant and installing of new machinery, which will give a capacity of 100 tons a day. The mine is well opened up, considerable tin ore being broken down and in shape to take to the mill. The dump contains a large amount of milling ore.

President Fred B. Hitchings of Chicago, has sent word that 25 per cent of the necessary funds for the Bismarck Mining company, which took over the Globe property, has been secured and practically all the remainder of the $50,000 necessary has been pledged. When this money is all in hand work will be begun.

In the district lying between Maitland and Carbonite camp, Charles Johnson has been running a tunnel on his property and has driven it single-handed for over 200 feet. He has penetrated a 40-foot ledge of ore, tests of which show it to be milling grade, and is now arranging to sink a shaft on the vein and open up the ore bodies.

Adjoining this ground, Dennis Renault and Harry Francis of Custer, sank a shaft nearly to quartzite, when they were obliged to quit on account of water. They sank through the flat formation in a silicious ore that is promising, and from the bottom of the shaft put down a diamond drill that penetrated a 10-foot ore shoot that showed gold ore that ran better than $10 a ton. They are making efforts to continue the shaft to quartzite.

Plans are being drawn by the officers of the Wasp No. 3 Mining company, for a new treatment plant to take the place of the one destroyed by fire on Yellow Creek last month. The new mill will be equipped with rolls to crush dry. It will have a capacity of at least 300 tons a day.

East Gem Case Decided.

The East Gem mine case has been decided in favor of Maurice Eisenburg and against the H. L. Frank estate, the court finding that Eisenburg is entitled to an eighth interest in the property. Eisenburg and the late H. L. Frank had a lease on the property. Later Frank bought the property and sold it to the North Butte. It was Frank's contention that Eisenburg's interest ceased with the lease and that he bought the property on his own account and with his own money.

East Butte.

Official reports show that the East Butte Copper Mining company and the Pittsmont smelter are turning out copper at a rate of about 7,000,000 pounds per annum. It is stated that whenever the market justifies it, the company will double the production. In October, November, December and January the total output was 2,315,775 pounds, which is at the rate of 6,947,228 pounds a year. The East Butte mine and the Pittsmont smelter were not interfered with durin the engineers' trouble.

Receiver for Hypocka.

An order of court has been made appointing a receiver for Heinze's Hypocka Mining company. The appointment was made in order to collect an unsatisfied judgment of $12,500 secured against the company by an employe, who was injured while at work in the Minnie Healy mine under the Heinze ownership. The company was capitalized with 4,000 shares of stock of a par value of $25 per share. Only a few shares were issued as Heinze retained 3,925 shares. Under the laws of Montana, the stockholders are liable for the full par value of the stock and it is proposed to ask Heinze to pay for the shares he owned in the company.

LEADERS IN THE GREAT CONGRESSIONAL CONSERVATION BATTLE

pect that Wall street had had its finger in the framing of the senate side of the so-called Aldrich-Vreeland bill, Mr. Weeks was one of those chosen to see to it that the wishes of the house were carried out. Just because he was a first-class business man, Speaker Cannon put Mr. Weeks on the committee on agriculture in the last congress, for the purpose of straightening out the Appalachian forest reserve bill on a business basis. In this session of congress, Speaker Cannon made Mr. Weeks chairman of the house committee on postoffices. The postoffice department is the one big commercial business of the government, and it is showing such an enormous deficit each year that a lack of business principles in its operation is openly charged by many persons. If Mr. Weeks can unravel this situation successfully, he will leave a lasting monument to his efficiency as a business member of the house.

Originally, Mr. Weeks intended to enter the United States navy. He is a graduate of the naval academy at Annapolis, and is commander of the naval militia of the state of Massachusetts, with which he served as a lieutenant in the volunteer navy during the Spanish-American war, commanding the Second division of the auxiliary navy.

A "Boy" Conservationist.

South of Mason and Dixon's line one of the recognized champions of conservation is a young South Carolina representative, Asbury F. Lever. Mr. Lever was exceedingly prominent when the Appalachian forest reserve bill was up for consideration in the last congress. He admits that he received his inspiration as a conservationist by observing the relations of nature and commerce in his own home state.

"In my district," said Mr. Lever, "is located one of the largest cotton mills of the world. These mills give employment to several thousand men and, in fact, the 'mill town' consists of about 10,000 souls. The mills are run by electricity developed from water power from the Broad river, on whose banks, twenty miles above Columbia, I was born.

"I can well remember as a small boy asking my father why it was that in the summer and fall of each year certain large rocks in the river bed rose above the top of the water, while during the winter and spring months they could never be seen.

"'That is low water, my boy,' he would reply. 'When those rocks come in view it means there is not much water in the river.'

"As I grew older," continued Mr. Lever, "I saw for myself that these rocks were beginning to show higher and higher out of the water each year and that they sometimes remained in view even in the winter months. On the other hand we would have floods at times which would bury them out of sight and I began to inquire the reason why. I soon found that at the headwaters of the river in the mountains the country was being deforestated and the explanation was easy. Without trees there was nothing to hold back the water of the wet months for the dry months to come. I became a friend of forestration at once, for I realized the commercial importance of water power to my state. That started me on conservation and I have been deeply interested in forestry and kindred subjects ever since."

Mr. Lever is 35 years old, and doesn't look it by several years. And, like not a few of the other men who will be prominent in the various conservation debates, he was born and brought up on a farm. He began his public career as private secretary to the man he succeeded four congresses ago.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side, either to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all druggists.

THE MEN AND WOMEN

Who Enjoy the Choicest Products of the World's Commerce.

Knowledge of What is Best More Important Than Wealth Without It.

It must be apparent to every one that qualities of the highest order are necessary to enable the best of the products of modern commerce to attain to universal acceptance. However loudly heralded, they may not hope for world-wide pre-eminence unless they meet with the general approval, not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and enjoying the choicest products. Their commendation, consequently, becomes important to others, since to meet the requirements of the well informed of all countries the method of manufacture must be of the most perfect order and the combination the most excellent of its kind. After thirty years of general usage, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is everywhere accepted as the best of family laxatives. Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the laxative and carminative principles of plants known to act most beneficially on the system, but also to the method of manufacture of the California Fig Syrup Co., which ensures that uniformity and purity essential in a remedy intended for family use. It cleanses and sweetens the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects. To get the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, buy the genuine only; the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package. Price, 50 cents per bottle.

SLUMP AT THE CLOSE

Wheat Prices Continue to Sag in Spite of Crop Scare.

Flax Has Advance on Crusher Buying, But Falls Back.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 5.—After a steady session the wheat market slumped sharply at the close today.

May opened at $1.13⅛, lost ¼c and then went to $1.13¼, sold at $1.13⅜ off to $1.13 and then at $1.12⅝, at which bid price the option closed. There was no trading in the July option here, which closed $1.12¾ bid.

Flax was moderately active, about 15,000 bu changing hands. May opened at $2.17½ and went to $2.18¾ on buying by Minneapolis crushers, sold at $2.18½ and $2.18¾ and eased off to $2.17½ on offerings toward the close, which was $2.17½. The September option was $1.70 at the opening and $1.70¼ bid at the close. July was $2.17½ nominal.

The market opened soft and active. Toward midday it showed a little strength, reflecting the buying of the July option in Chicago, but when the professionals dumped this option toward the close, values slid downward. The session was dull here after the early hours, and little interest was manifested.

Crop reports from the West and Southwest were contradictory. Some alleged heavy damage and others denied that much damage had occurred. Reports from east of the Missouri river are favorable. It will take several weeks of spring weather to determine the actual damage in the Southwest. F. D. Coburn, writing to T. H. Hagen, said that Kansas soil is recuperative and that often the fields which look dead in the spring, return the best crops in the fall. An estimate from a Kansas City trader of the Kansas wheat crop was 75 per cent of normal. His system of arriving at conclusions was not added. Nebraska sent in a batch of damage reports also McPherson, Kan., sent in the biggest damage report, claiming a loss of 50 per cent in the neighborhood.

Crop scare reports didn't have much influence on today's market, the buying resulting from buying of May by Bartlett-Patton and Barrell. The shorts in July ran to cover. Others closed up commitments over Sunday. Toward the close, however, the market lost its advance and sagged lower than the opening.

The foreign market was weak, futures were neglected and shipments were too heavy to permit a favorable movement. Export bids here are out of line, and there is not much prospect of any export business for some time. The outlook for continued shipments from competitors of this country is excellent. There was no export business reported here today.

The weather is not favorable for the bull side of the market. The sun was shining all over the winter wheat belt, and extremely warm weather for this season prevailed in the West and Southwest. The weather conditions helped to take the edge off wheat. Every day like the present adds to the recuperative power of the damaged crop. Any freezing weather would give a different aspect to the situation.

The corn market, which is demoralized, is the biggest factor in the general market. So much low-grade stuff is in the country that elevators have big stocks and the demand has fallen off. The effect on the wheat market is bearish. The local oats and barley markets were especially active today.

The disparity in the values of cash wheat here and in Minneapolis was reflected in the sudden increase of receipts here. On track today were 116 cars against 73 last year. The Soo had not been heard from when the report was posted. Yesterday less than 50 cars were inspected. The wheat stocks amount to 4,987,000 bu, having increased 208,000 bu in six days. Wheat stocks at Minneapolis increased 150,000 bu in one day.

Cash here was ½@1c over the near option and in Minneapolis the premium was the same. Buyers were slow to take and local elevators are acquiring most of the supplies.

Oats closed ½c off, rye was unchanged and barley closed 1c off.

The Chicago Tribune says that A. D. Thompson of the Duluth Board of Trade wired John Barrett that he had never seen such a weak situation in wheat.

T. H. Hagen of Stair, Christensen & Timerman received the following letter today from F. D. Coburn, secretary of the Kansas agricultural board: "Replying to your letter of March 1, I would say that I know nothing about the condition of the growing wheat in Kansas and that is practically the situation of everybody else. I have read alarming newspaper reports, emanating from God knows where, but they are perennial, and it should be remembered that this is one of the favorite seasons of the year to kill off Kansas wheat. Oftentimes fields pronounced dead now, are among the best yielders at harvest time and owing to the marvelous recuperating powers of Kansas land, even when wheat appears worthless, farmers are mighty slow about disturbing it or plowing it up, for it nearly always can be depended on to come out creditably. No one can tell about the condition of wheat at this time, but when spring opens up we shall make a thorough canvass of the situation and then the growers should be able to say just how the plant came through the winter.

"Very truly yours,

"F. D. COBURN."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The steadier American cables than was expected and the comparative strength in Winnipeg wheat was offset here by the continued large La Plata offerings and values at the start were unchanged to ½d lower. Following the opening, the market was dull but heavy with prices off a further ¼d to ¾d. Offerings were larger, due to the Bradstreet's statement of American exports and predictions of large world's shipments this week and a liberal increase in the amount on passage. Russia continues to offer freely. At the close the market was easy and ¾d to ¼d lower than yesterday. Corn was neglected and nominally unchanged.

Finley, Barrell & company's crop report follows:

Argentina—Wheat offerings are fairly liberal, with arrivals showing much low-grade quality. Foreign prospects continue excellent. Weather clear and favorable.

Australia—A free export movement continues, and vessels are loading wheat freely. Interior marketings are lighter, however.

India—The excellent prospects of growing wheat crop together with largely increased acreage now officially admitted by the government, is causing free offerings of new Kurrachee wheat at liberal discounts.

Europe and United Kingdom—Unseasonably mild weather is general on the Continent and British Isles. Wheat is progressing favorably, but many fear its rank growth. Spring seeding has begun in Hungary. Prospects in Germany are very favorable.

Russia—Movement to Baltic ports from interior is large, and only limited because of the poor condition of country roads. The growing plant is largely without snow protection.

United States—As advised in our last week's report, conservatism this early in the season. From the reports we have received this week, coupled with the investigations conducted by disinterested parties in whom we have implicit confidence, we are satisfied that Eastern and Southern Kansas, Southwestern Nebraska and Northwestern Missouri have experienced considerable crop damage, Kansas being the worst. Growing weather has been experienced, and under its influence the plant is beginning to show unmistakeable signs of life. Snow and rain in the northern half of the belt have almost entirely disappeared, and throughout Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, reports are very good. It is still too early to estimate in percentages the damage which winter killing has wrought.

Winnipeg got 67 cars of oats, 8 of barley and 7 of flax. Minneapolis got 29 cars of corn, 22 of oats and 30 of flax. Total wheat stocks at Minneapolis amount to 7,302,542 bu. Flour shipments from Minneapolis were 53,938 bu.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Price Advances in Spite of Bearish News.

Chicago, March 5.—Despite a preponderance of bearish news the wheat market made a substantial advance during early trading today after opening unchanged to ⅜c down. The bulge was due to a mild stampede among shorts and was brought out by moderate purchasing of May by commission houses. After opening at $1.12⅞@1.13¾, that delivery advanced to $1.13⅝. Low cables, mild weather in the Southwest and heaviness of cash grain were factors responsible for the easy opening.

The market held firm at the advance until the final half hour when a severe break occurred on general profit-taking induced by favorable crop reports. May declined from $1.13⅜ to $1.12, while July sold off from $1.05⅝@1.05¾ to $1.03⅜. The close was weak at almost the lowest point, May being ⅞c lower at $1.12⅝.

Corn advanced sharply early in the session owing to buying by smaller shorts, and was inspired by demand from a leading elevator interest. May delivery advanced to 63¾c after opening a shade to ¼@⅜c lower at 63¼@63⅜c. The decline at the start was due to the weakness of wheat and to poor demand for the cash grain.

Late in the day the market reacted again with wheat, May selling off from 64c to 63c. The close was weak with May ¾c lower at 63@63¼c.

After opening easy in sympathy with wheat and corn the oats market developed slight firmness following the course of other grains. Trading was slow. May sold up to 45¾c after opening ¼ to ⅜@⅝ lower at 45¾ to 45¾c.

Provisions failed to respond to 5c advance in live hogs, the market developing considerable weakness owing to liberal realizing sales. Pork showed the greatest weakness and declined 22½c from the opening marks. Initial quotations were unchanged to 5c higher, the May products opening as follows: Pork, $24.90; lard, $13.42½; ribs, 12.55@12.87½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Further Liquidation Makes Wheat Still Easier.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 5.—Further liquidation made wheat still easier today. May opened ⅜@½c lower than yesterday's close, and after fluctuating in a range of 1¼c, closed ⅛@⅜c below the opening. Scalping profits were generally accepted. Local elevator stocks of wheat increased 150,000 bu for the one day. July wheat was relatively weak on the lack of confidence in the damage reports from the Southwest. Minneapolis today received 244 cars of wheat, as compared with 285 cars a year ago; Duluth, 49 cars against 42 cars and Winnipeg 148 cars against 194 cars. May opened $1.12⅛@1.12¾; high, $1.13¼; low, $1.12; closed $1.12¾. July opened $1.12⅛; high, $1.13@1.13⅛; low, $1.11⅜@1.11⅞; closed, $1.12.

Cash wheat had an easier undertone although premiums were steady. Elevators were the principal buyers. Demand was slow and several cars were carried over Sunday. No. 1 northern sold for ½@1½c above the May option and No. 2 northern ½@1½c. Cash prices in truck: No. 1 northern, $1.12⅜; to arrive, $1.12⅜@1.13¾; No. 2 northern, $1.10⅜@1.11⅜; to arrive, $1.10⅜@1.11⅜; No. 3 wheat, $1.06⅜@1.09⅜. No. 3 yellow corn, 55¾@57¾c. No. 3 white oats, 42⅞@43⅜c. No. 2 rye, 74⅜@75¾c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,699 tons. There was no change in the situation today. Demand continued good, shipments heavy and prices firm. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $22.00@22.50.

The flour market continued dull. Demand was slow, shipments fairly heavy and prices firm. Shipments, 53,993 bbl. First patents in wood, f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.50@5.70; second patents, 5:30@5.50; first clears, $4.45@4.55; second clears, $3.20@3.50.

Flax—Receipts, 30 cars; year ago, 28; shipments, 4. Demand was strong for both spot and to arrive at 1c above the Duluth May option. Closing price, $2.18¾.

Barley—Receipts, 52 cars; year ago, 63 cars; shipments, 51 cars. The market was steadily today. Demand was good for both feeding and malting barley at unchanged prices. Closing range, 57@65c.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Uncertain Movements at the Opening Followed By Townward Trend.

Rally Occurs in the Second Hour and Close Is Firm.

New York, March 5.—A wavering and uncertain movement of prices accompanied the opening dealings in stocks today, which were small. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred rose 1¼ and American Locomotive ¾. Insignificant fractional changes were shown otherwise.

The trend of prices turned downward. Reading, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and Western Union falling a point below yesterday's closing, and the rest of the leaders a large fraction. American Express moved up 13 points and St. Louis & San Francisco preferred 2¼.

The market closed firm. There was some rallying in the second hour which resulted in establishing small gains where there had been losses. Erie and Union Drygoods rose 1¼. St. Louis & San Francisco first preferred 1¾, the second preferred 4½ and Federal Mining 3. American Cotton Oil, Pacific Telephone and Illinois Central fell 1. United States Steel sold up to 65¾.

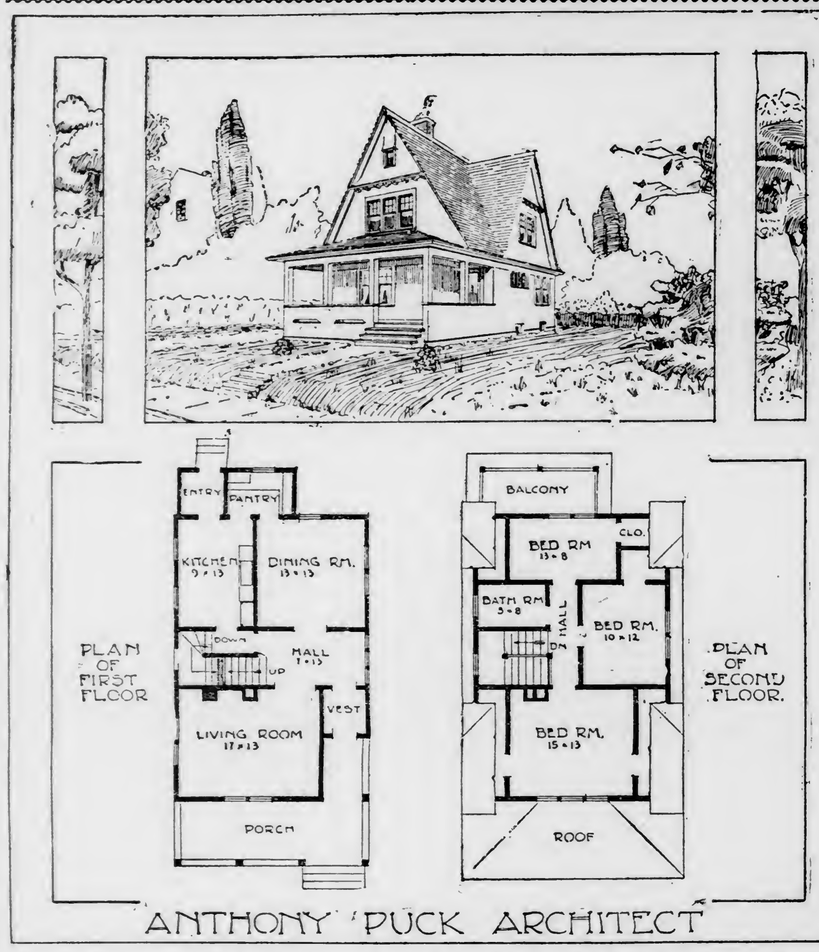
Fortunes have been made in Duluth real estate in the past twenty years. Greater fortunes are to be made in the coming years. Duluth is just in its infancy. It is becoming more prosperous commercially and industriously each year; it is growing rapidly in population; Duluth dirt is increasing in value by leaps and bounds. Get wise.

ARE YOU PLANNING TO BUILD? HERE IS A MODEST HOME COSTING $3,000



A home as illustrated above is estimated to cost, complete with full basement heating, and plumbing, $3,000.

The construction is of wood, finished on the outside with siding and shingles. The basement is of concrete with cement floor.

In design, the exterior is simple and in good taste. The wide porch, and the steep gabled roof are features that add greatly to the attractiveness of its exterior appearance.

The plans show a compact, cozy and homelike arrangement; an ideal plan for a small family without a servant. Entering the roomy reception hall, one would be impressed with the spacious appearance of the first floor plan. The kitchen is accessible from the hall and the living rooms being separated by the hall greater privacy is possible than is usual in plans of this size. A particularly good feature of the plans is the stairway arrangement which is both attractive and convenient, giving easy ascent to the second floor and direct access to the basement staircase and kitchen from the front portion of the house. An outside entrance is provided to the basement by a door at the stair landing at same level as the ground. The kitchen arrangement is practical and convenient.

Three good bedrooms with full ceiling height to all walls, a bathroom and a generous allotment of closet space are possible in the second story plan.

A house built as above shown should make a comfortable home and an inexpensive house to build and maintain.

Duluth, Minn.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS AND MANY DO NOT HEAR

Some Property Held High But There Are Many Bargains.

Some Superior Street Lease Deals Said to Be in the Air.

The real estate market is still adjusting itself and not many deals are being signed. There are all kinds of deals in the air—deals for business property, residence property, suburban acres and farm lands, but the dealers are meeting with difficulty in pinning prospective customers down to paying over money and in keeping prospective sellers' figures down to a reasonable basis.

There is no doubt of the general tone of the market. It is the best it has been for many years at this season of the year. Inquiry is strong for all classes of property and the only fact that keeps the number of deals down is the wide divergence of opinion as to values. Yet, while some people are holding their property at prices that are in anticipation of future profits, there are other real bargains in the market.

Some people don't seem to realize that opportunity doesn't bang loudly on their doors every day. When they see a real opportunity to make money on a quick turn or within the course of a year or two, they hem and haw, sleep on it for a week or two, decide that they can afford it and come around to close the deal only to find that some more business-like man has come before them and has snapped up the bargain.

No man with the germ of procrastination in his system can hope to make big profits in the real estate market or anywhere else. He is the man who keeps his money in a sock and increases his wad by nickles, where he could be increasing it by large, round dollars, if he had a little foresight and a little business method in his makeup.

Real estate bargains do not stay in the market long. There are too many people with money behind them, who are ready to step into the market at the moment's notice, sure of themselves and their judgment, to pick up any loose opportunities vainly knocking at somebody else's door. They kidnap the opportunities and when the favored ones stretch a few times and open the door, the golden chances have gone.

Inquiry is strong for all classes of property. Much of it comes from local people, but Eastern investors are more numerous in the market than ever before. They have appointed shrewd real estate dealers as their agents and those same dealers are the ones, who pick up opportunities readily. They know the market, know values in every part of the city, recognize bargains at a glance and don't hesitate very long over cinching bargains for their clients. They know the baneful effects of procrastination in a market like that in Duluth today and they do not let good opportunities slip by for want of business methods.

The number of Eastern investors in the market is growing and the fact proves that Duluth is looked upon as a city of destiny in the East. Local people are always the last to awaken to a city's possibilities and when they finally do awaken, they are likely to find that much of the good property has already been picked up by people, who are ready to wait long years for big profits and who will not transfer their titles for any consideration. When men of large means buy real estate, they have faith in the future of the city in which they buy, and they are ready to rest on their own judgment and wait for that future.

West Duluth bids fair to come into its own soon. The purchase of a site for the Hanna coal dock recently, the coming of the Canadian Northern, the certain effect the location of the steel plant at Spirit Lake will have on the suburb, all have turned the eyes of the people with foresight to the opportunities, which are being held out in that undeveloped section of the city. West Duluth is primarily a manufacturing section of the city in which there is a large level expense, with room for track and yards. People have never realized the fact fully and now the inquiry is running toward manufacturing plant sites in that district.

• • •

There are practically no Superior street titles on the market, but there is said to be a number of deals in leases in the air which should bring out some results in the next few weeks. Leases have gone up in value proportionately with the increase in property values and long-term leases will bring good prices in the market now.

• • •

On the whole, nobody is worrying much about the situation. The law of supply and demand governments the real estate market, as well as every other market, and when the demand so far exceeds the supply as it does in the Duluth market at present, one cannot help but feel that big things are coming.

Wealth Awaits You

In the fertile lands of the Texas Gulf Coast country.

For an outlay of three hundred dollars—$25.00 down, and payments spread over a term of nearly five years—you can own a ten-acre fruit land—which when planted with Satsuma Oranges, Magnolia Figs and Grape Fruit will net you from $3,000 to $5,000 a year.

Satsuma Oranges—a hardy luscious fruit for which there is an ever-increasing demand, can be grown more successfully on this soil than in California, and they ripen a full two months earlier. Magnolia Figs, a new fruit improved by grafting, until it is almost seedless and skinless, has already almost ousted the old tough-skinned fig from the market.

As An Investment It Is a Rare Opportunity.

Considering the location, the fertility of the soil, easily producing crops netting from $200 to several hundred dollars per acre—THIS LAND—at the rate it is now being bought up by fruit growers and investors—is cheap at $100 per acre, and will in a few years sell up to $200 and $300 per acre, same as in California.

Get in line before these tracts are all gone, investigate this introductory offer today; and a few years from now you will be independently well off.

COST OF BUILDING MATERIALS WILL BE HIGHER IN DULUTH THIS YEAR THAN IT WAS LAST SEASON

Keen Competition Between Contractors May Affect It, However.

Same Wages That Prevailed Last Year Will Be Paid.

Carpenters' Wages Not to Demand Increase in Minimun Scale.

In this day of discussions on the high cost of living, the cost of building is interesting a comparatively small number. It is of prime importance to some, however, who are busy investigating the subject with a view to building.

Like the cost of all other commodities, the cost of building materials has generally increased. In a few items, notably brick, there has been no change, but in no case has there been a lowering of the prices that prevailed a year ago. In some cases those commodities in which prices are fixed by monopolies, the increase in prices has been nation-wide. In other cases, where prices are fixed by local conditions, by the dominating influence of supply and demand, the condition is purely local.

Although the prevailing prices of materials is a very vital consideration in determining the cost of a completed building, one must not lose sight of the fact that the final cost of the whole is determined largely by local conditions. During rush times, mechanics in the building trades are inclined to hold out for higher money, contractors are inclined to bid high because they know if they do not get one job they will get another. They are independent of the close competition that must naturally come out during dull times when there are many after each job and each one dead anxious to get it.

A few months ago the outlook was for a tremendous building boom in Duluth. Since that time the stock market has taken a slump, which has driven many a budding capitalist out of the building class. The city is little the less prosperous and the outlook for the ultimate future is just as bright, but for the present architects' sketches are going unthumbed and people are not calling very loudly for completed plans.

Under such conditions, contractors are inclined to bid on a closer margin of profit than they would if the expected building boom were to materialize and there were to be profitable jobs for everybody. Competition between contractors will be more keen and the owner of the building will reap the benefit.

Labor Conditions.

The present outlook has an effect on labor conditions. The same wages prevail in the building trades now that prevailed a year ago. New scales are usually fixed cities, May 1, and, although Duluth is an "open city" in the building line, the prevailing wages are those which were paid under the union plan. A month or two ago, the carpenters, who are supposed to be working at present under a minimum wage of 45 cents an hour, were talking of demanding a minimum of 50 cents an hour. Although the unions are not officially recognized by the builders' exchange, the action of the union would count for much with the contractors, as the unions have been kept alive and have been gathering in members despite the lack of recognition.

In rush times, a strike of carpenters would be a serious matter to building, for a large percentage of the men working at the trade in the city are union men and if they should walk out, the contractors would be seriously inconvenienced. As it is, the carpenters are said to have reconsidered the presentation of their demands, for from the present outlook, men will not be greatly in demand, while there may be work for everybody.

However, the complete cost of a building may be a subject for much speculation. As to the cost of materials, there is a certainty and if that can be said to govern the cost of completed buildings, buildings erected in Duluth this year will cost more than similar buildings did a year ago.

Lumber Prices Higher.

Lumber, the price of which is governed largely by local conditions, may be said to be generally 10 per cent higher. The increase in some grades has been less, but in some grades it has been more. In many items, the prevailing prices are the same as they were a year ago, but in none are they less.

There is a scarcity of certain lengths and when one or two mills have a monopoly of any certain lengths, they usually take advantage of the fact to boost the price. For instance, 2x4x18 pieces are scarce in the market. One or two mills hold practically all of that particular class. The result has been an increase within the past few months, and dealers must submit to it, for they cannot get those particular lengths elsewhere.

Finishing lumber is 10 per cent higher than a year ago, caused by an increase of $5 a thousand on nearly all grades of shop lumber. There has been no material advance in the lower grades of rough lumber, most of the increase going into the upper grades. The increase in the price of shop lumber has sent sashes and doors up 10 per cent or so and the same applies to all finishings.

The Brick Market.

While brick is higher in the local market than in the Twin Cities or in many other cities throughout the country, the prices prevailing here now are the same as they were a year ago. In figuring on the cost of brick work in Duluth, many people do not stop to consider that brick prices are governed by local conditions. There is no brick factory in Duluth and Superior, the nearest factory being at St. Paul, with an average freight rate of $4 to be considered. Take the freight rates from prices in the Duluth market and they do not differ much from the prices in other sections of the country where no freight charges are paid.

In Minneapolis or St. Paul, brick is loaded on the wagons at the factories and carted to the buildings. In Duluth, the freight rates and drayage charges must be added to the factory prices in St. Paul or Minneapolis and the prices are naturally so much higher.

Much of the brick in the local market comes from St. Paul and Minneapolis, but some comes frim Chicago, while Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania supply certain grades. Thus freight rates, which are avoided in communities near to brick yards, are an important item in fixing brick prices here, where the freight rates sometimes equal the original cost of the brick.

Brick stocks are running low at present in certain grades, and prices are holding stiff, as the demand is always heavy at this time of the year. Later on in the season, when the demand increases and the factories are running at capacity, there will be an easing off in price, but that will not come until the middle of June or the first of July. Local demand generally and the demand for certain classes of brick figure largely in the market price, which is, on the whole, at about the same figure as it was a year ago.

Much Cement in Market.

The cement market is in rather a queer position. Although the demand for cement has increased remarkably in the last few years, the price has gone down, and last year cement prices were lower than in the history of the use of the material. On its face, it would appear that the condition was a direct refutation of the law of supply and demand, but the explanation is simple. When reinforced concrete as a building material began to come into vogue, and when concrete began to attract people on account of its advantages for many classes of work, people began to see fortunes in the industry. Plants sprang up like magic all over the country, and their combined output glutted the market. The demand continued great, but the supply overshadowed it. The factories began to make cement faster than it could be used, and the law of supply and demand was proved by the drop in prices.

Last year many cement factories ran on half capacity all the year, and yet perhaps there was more cement used in the country than ever before. If railroad work starts in heavily and the demand for cement increases proportionately to the increase of the past few years, conditions will so adjust themselves that the output of the different plants will be absorbed and cement prices will go up again.

For the present, prices this year will be about the same as last. Prices in Duluth are a little higher than in other parts of the country on account of the freight rates. That condition will disappear in the next year by the erection of the proposed cement plant by the Universal Portland Cement company here and in that industry Duluth will be on the same basis as other communities in which the material is manufactured.

Glass is Away Up.

One of the most pronounced increases in building material during the past year has been in the price of glass. Glass of all grades has gone up tremendously. Glazed windows cost from 25 per cent to 40 per cent more than they did a year ago. Plate glass has gone up from 20 to 25 per cent. One sash and door manufacturer said yesterday that the increase in window glass has been 52 per cent in the last ninety days.

The increase on paint amounts to about 5 per cent on all grades. The increase is attributed to an increase in linseed oil, which has gone up about 20 per cent in the last year. Lead has also gone up.

Pipe costs are responsible for the increase in plumbing and heating bids on buildings to be put up this year. The United States Steel corporation, which controls almost the entire output of pipe in this country now, has added about 10 per cent to prices, which will go into the plumbing bills submitted to the ultimate consumers. The increase was made possible by a new combination between the National Tube company and the Western Tube company, and the United States Steel corporation is the dominating influence in the combine. The increase applies to all grades of iron and lead pipe. There is consolation in the fact that labor is no higher and the cost of enamel goods and fixtures of all kinds is unchanged.

PREVAILING PRICES OF BUILDING MATERIALS COMPARED TO PRICES LAST YEAR.

Lumber, generally 10 per cent higher.
Brick, unchanged.
Cement, unchanged to lower.
Glazed windows, 25 to 40 per cent higher.
Paint, 5 per cent higher.
Plumbing and heating supplies and fixtures—enamel goods and fixtures, unchanged; lead and iron pipe, 10 per cent higher.
Labor, unchanged to higher.

BUILDING HOLDS OFF

Many Sketches Out But Prospective Builders Are Slow in Deciding.

Front of Superior Street Building Will Be Remodeled.

Building continues to hold off, and while some architects are busy others are merely waiting for prospective clients to make up their minds. Sketches innumerable have been prepared during the winter, but the work is coming out slowly and the building boom that was freely predicted earlier in the winter bids fair not to materialize, although predictions were founded on substantial prospects.

The building at 3-5-7-9 East Superior street, for which R. B. Knox & Co. are agents, will be extensively remodeled this year. Bray & Nystrom, architects, are now receiving bids for the work on the two stores at 7-9 and plans will be out soon for the remainder of the work.

The entire front of the first floor of the building will be taken out and a new front constructed. The interior of the stores will be entirely remodeled and the building will be made thoroughly modern in that respect.

Nearly all architects in the city are preparing sketches for the proposed new St. Clement's church at the West end. The sketches will be submitted March 10 and a selection will be made. The church will be a beautiful structure, and there is much competition for the commission to prepare the plans.

* * *

Architect Austin Terryberry is preparing plans for a new store building for Shreiner Bros. & Moulton of Two Harbors, whose store was recently destroyed by fire. The new building will be a two-story brick structure, 65 by 120 feet, and will be modern in every respect. It will cost, complete, about $25,000.

* * *

Building Inspector S. M. Kielley has issued the following permits during the week for work to cost $1,000 or over:

Knute Breon, frame dwelling on the south side of Restormel street, between Atlantic avenue and unplatted lands, $1,400.

Herman Johnson, frame dwelling on the north side of Devonshire street, between Michigan and Pacific avenues, $3,000.

Hanford Investment company, frame dwelling on the south side of Seventh street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues east, $1,700.

Jacob E. Decker, interior alteration of building on the south side of Michigan street, between First and Second avenues west, $1,000.

MATERIALS ARE GIVEN A TEST

Interesting Results Obtained in Experiments Conducted at Chicago.

Some interesting tests were made recently by the United States geological survey in the fire underwriters' laboratories in Chicago of the fire resisting qualities of various building materials, says the Southern Lumberman.

"The materials were subjected to two hours of heat and were then exposed to a strea mof water. The report says the trials were unusually severe and that not one of the different kinds of materials passed perfectly, but the temperature to which they were subjected were greater than that to be expected at any ordinary fire. One of the principal points demonstrated was the low transmission quality of cement, mortars and concretes. Bricks sustained the test the longest and showed the greatest resisting powers. Fifty per cent of the new brick split, while from 60 to 70 per cent of the old brick were not damaged. The hydraulic pressed brick proved to be better than the sand and lime variety. The various natural building stones were so seriously damaged that no compartive figures were made.

"Such service tests as there are valuable chiefly in establishing a standard for the manufacturer of building material to work to. Cement which showed such low heat transmission qualities in these tests was the very thing that stood best in the San Franciscо fire, the fire that put all building materials to the greatest test in actual experience.

"Along with the publication of this report here comes a story from Pittsburg of the destruction of an office building erected in modern steel construction twelve years ago. This was the first of the big steel frame structudes in the country to be dismantled, and it was torn down only to make room for a larger and more modern building. This has proven the claims of the steel men as to the durability of this kind of building. The material is reported to be in just as good condition when uncovered to the elements as it was when it was erected twelve years ago. The rivets were tight and even grillage upon which the beam columns rested, and which were under the ground, was in perfect condition. This same material will be used again in the construction of another office building in a different section of the city."

When you invest in stocks, you get a certificate that may prove to be nothing but a souvenir. When you buy Duluth real estate you get something that you can see and tread upon—something that cannot disappear until the earth is destroyed. Government bonds are supposed to be the safest of investments, but they are no safer than Duluth real estate and they don't give the large returns. Get wise.

IDAHO FRUIT FARMS
Get an irrigated fruit or general purpose farm in the famous Snake River Valley of Sunny Southern Idaho.
No hard storms, blizzards or cyclones. Apples, pears, peaches, prunes, grapes, cherries, strawberries and all small fruit produce wonderful returns. These fruits sold in the New York market come from Southern Idaho.
This country produces enormous yields of all varieties of vegetables, corn, oats, barley, wheat and fruits. Idaho fruits, from this and other sections, have received the highest awards at all notable and national expositions during the last few years. Bearing orchards yield their owners from $500 to $1,000 an acre annually. While waiting for your orchards to come into bearing you can raise sugar beets, potatoes, onions, alfalfa or any other crops you choose, between the rows. This can be done the first year. Alfalfa yields from 6 to 10 tons per acre and is worth $10 per ton at the farm, or can be used in feeding cows, hogs, sheep and horses.
You can acquire this land either by homestead entry, under the Carey Act (and any entries you have previously made under any of the other land laws of the United States, does not bar you from entry under this act), or you can purchase from previous entrymen. You can locate by "power of attorney," and no residence required till six months after water is turned on. Perpetual water rights go with this land and you can hire your improvements made by other parties, if you choose.
Further particulars furnished if you desire.

ACTIVITY IN EAST END

Restricted Residence District Is Extending Its Bounds Rapidly.

Deeds Filed With Register of Deeds' Office During Week.

There has been some considerable activity in residence property during the past week, most of it in the way of negotiations. A few deals have been closed, however.

In East end restricted property, the movement, which has been in progress for several years continues unabated. The district is extending its limits as all available property is taken up within former limits and the movement eastward and northward continues.

The most important sale in the class of property reported this week was that of the northwest corner of Twenty-sixth avenue east and Third street, 100 by 140 feet, by the Estate of Johnathan Rees to C. W. Stillson. The consideration was not named in the deed. The deal was made through Stryker, Manley & Buck.

GOOD PLANS WILL SAVE MONEY

Building Without Aid of Architect Is Usually Poor Economy.

Now and then some man tries to build his house without plans, says a writer in a real estate exchange. Have you noticed the usual result? Have you noticed in what an irregular manner the work proceeds? Have you noticed how many mistakes are made and how much work is torn down and done over all because of a lack of proper plans for guidance and a systematic arrangement of details? Have you noticed how long it takes the foreman to lay out the work and how slow the workmen were to comprehend his orders? Have you ever stopped to consider what the time so spent at the prevailing wage scale was costing the owner? Also, have you ever noticed that the second time a man builds he almost without exception obtains complete plans?

Would you try to have a piece of machinery made without complete drawings of all its working parts? No. Then why try to erect that most complicated structure, a modern house, which involves not only important structural problems, but has an artistic element to consider as well, without complete working plans.

Properly drawn plans will save on the cost of the house, forestall the needless care and worry over details and accomplish the building of a house that is strong and pleasing to look upon, in a systematic labor saving manner. Furthermore, completely drawn plans will enable the owner to take competitive bids on the work, thereby saving on the cost and let his contract on a businesslike basis. Knowing at the start just what he will get in the finished structure.

GOOD MARKET FOR LUMBER

Outlook for Northern Minnesota Mills Is Bright This Season.

R. M. Weyerhaeuser, in charge of the Cloquet business of the Weyerhaeuser interests, stated today that the outlook for the lumber business was very bright as to prices and demand.

"Right now the outlook for the lumber business is very good," said Mr. Weyerhaeuser. "There are indications that there will be an increased demand for lumber in the West. The blocking of the Great Northern by the snowslide should prevent shipments from the West, that is, along the line of that road, for some time, and that fact will naturally increase the sales of lumber in this section of the country.

"It is very hard, naturally, to predict the future of the lumber business. Right now things are in very good condition, with business shaping itself so that there should be a general increase in industrial activity. We believe the business will open up early and show a strong market with a strong demand from every part of the country."

STONE HOUSE IS POPULAR

Eastern Architects Are Using Cobblestones to Good Effect.

Combination in Frame Dwellings Has Most Artistic Results.

Wealthy persons in several Eastern states have adopted cobblestone as a building material, and a number of handsome and costly cobble dwellings have been finished in the vicinity of Philadelphia. The mountain districts of Pennsylvania abound in the material for the erection of cobble dwellings, and one of the more noted architects of the country makes a specialty of designs for bungalows and summer homes erected from this material. The John C. Bullitt mansion near Paoli is said to be the finest type of the cobble dwelling in Pennsylvania, and it is said no expense was spared to carry out the pleasing effect of the design. The dwelling is a rambling structure of a great deal of beauty, and a billiard cabin built of cobblestone is one of the features of the design. The stables, which are extensive; the sunnier porch and the winter sun parlors are types of quaint and charming designs in cobble work.

The evolution of cobble building in Pennsylvania is an interesting story. The builders tell us that there is nothing common or useless in the eyes of the optimistic man, who is able to find utilitarian and artistic possibilities in everything nature created, and Pennsylvanians earliest appreciated the stones which encumber field and pasture. For many years the farmer, with back-breaking toil gathered and heaped them in great piles, with anathemas, and in these piles the snakes made their nests.

Architect Is Inspired.

Then came the architect one day who was not bound with the fetters of conventionality. In his search for that which was novel and unknown he came across one of those piles, and while he sat on a stump and mused of the heart-rending toil it represented, his mind was flooded with inspiration. The plans for the next house he drew provided or a wide porch with supports and posts built of these same rough and generally useless stones. When the house was finished it satisfied both his artistic soul and his patron. Then straightway he proceeded to build another house with a great stone chimney on the outside. This, too, he pronounced good, and so the use of the cobblestones came into excellent repute among the architectural clan. The stonepiles melted, the snakes were forced to find a new refuge in which to nurse their brood; even the stone walls which the farmers had had reared with infinite patience and labor, because they had nothing else to build fences of, were carted away to become building material in the hands of masons.

Not while entire buildings of cobblestones are now popular, inordinary building construction it is found that the most artistic manner of using field stone is to employ them in connection with frame houses. A combination of wood and stone may be made more effective than either material used alone.

Used for Roofing.

A stone port-cochere is another suggestion which is growing in favor both in frame houses and the house that is not of wood but of plaster, with a tile roof, and the combination seems equally effective.

In addition to the use of cobblestones as an integral part of the house, many and charming ways are being found of utilizing them in other parts of the country or suburban home. Very effective and massive gate posts are being made from them, and the list of possibilities includes summer houses, well-houses, sun dials and similar accessories to an artistic whole. It is not as yet really appreciated by the owners of the suburban and country homes.

Cobblestone floors and cobblestone roofs are a distinctly Pennsylvania fad. It is not unusual now to find a summer house, or a tiny lake house, with a curious and indestructible roof, formed of little smooth cobblestones about the size of hen's eggs, laid in cement. The same effect is carried out in the floors of summer houses or in porch extensions, where tiny cobbles are imbedded in cement and form a more novel and picturesque feature than the present craze for floors of quaint tiles.

ECONOMY IN USING LUMBER

Old-Time Carpenter Is Often Careless in His Use of Material.

The old-time carpenter is the greatest obstacle against the economical use of lumber out in the country places. He has been brought to think that a house cannot be built right unless it has the best of lumber and plenty of it in its construction. In certain respects this looks to be true, but he has not learned, and don't seem to care to learn, the ways of using it economically. He will use an upper grade of lumber where a lower grade will answer, and will be just as good for the purpose. Then again, he is actually wasteful in his use of material. He will cut off short lengths of finish in two, that ought to be used where long lengths are really needed. But if the dealer sends out these short lengths on a bill he will object to having them, simply because it will require him to think a little more and prepare his work for using them. As a matter of fact, any good carpenter can use time on a job in the use of these different short lengths.

It is often the case that you will set a workman engaged in cutting up a lot of sixteen-foot siding on the ground, to be handed up to his partner on a scaffold to be recut again and fitted; and so on with other lumber as well. Look at the average house and you can readily see that fully one-third of the siding on it is of short lengths. Now this short length business may not be so much of an economy to the lumber dealer as it is to the manufacturer, and still it is an economy of cost to the dealer and consumer alike.

ASHLAND ELKS MADE MONEY WITH MINSTRELS.

Ashland, Wis., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local Elks took in about $900 this week at their three minstrel shows. The Elks' clubhouse of this city is one of the best in the state, costing about $30,000, but it has been hampered by a floating debt, which the minstrel show is expected to clear up.

FORTUNE IN AUTOMOBILES

Duluth People Have Spent Nearly $100,000 During Past Week.

Dealers Report Busiest Season in the History of the Trade.

Duluth people have, during the week just past, spent nearly $100,000 in automobiles. The week was the biggest week ever experienced by local automobile agents.

To be exact the amount spent during the week so far as can be learned, was $85,000. The sunlight and warmth brought them out, and it seemed to the dealers as though every man, woman and child in the city, wanted a car. Never before have the local agents put in so busy a week. It has been one demonstration after another, and the way they have signed up for cars has surprised even the most optimistic of the agents who long ago predicted the biggest year in the history of the trade at the Head of the Lakes. The $85,000 does not include those who have had care coming all winter, but just the amount spent by Duluthians during the past week.

While there have been a few of the more expensive cars sold, it was the car from $1,250 to $1,500 that was purchased by the majority of last week's purchasers. That means that the sales have been more numerous and that with the cars coming for early delivery, Duluth will have as many automobiles on her streets during the coming year as any town of like size in the entire country.

Yesterday afternoon when the several garages were visited by a reporter, the proprietors in nearly every case were too busy to talk. All had more demonstrations on than they could handle, and the garages were indeed busy places.

Those who have cars got the fever with the first of the spring sun, and all were on hand clamoring for them. The mechanics were doing the best they could, but they could not get everybody's car out at once. "They sure have got us going," said one man under a huge touring car, "and I suppose that from now on it is day and night for us."

The increase in the number of cars on the street during the week has been noticeable. The new owners are out trying their machines and the older owners are getting their joy wagons on the street as fast as possible. The limousine bodies are disappearing and the open touring body is taking its place for the summer months.

Every automobile dealer in town is as busy as the proverbial bee and the repair men are rushed off their feet. The paint shops are full to overflowing with cars and the industry speaks well for the general prosperity of the city. It is all a rush now and the rush, according to the dealers, will continue indefinitely.

At least two new garages may be erected on East Superior street. It is well known among autoists that Duluth could stand easily two additional structures for the storing of automobiles. One real estate firm is figuring on a building for a Minneapolis man between Third and Sixth avenues east and a local man may build a building further east on the same street. Owing to the fact that there are going to be several hundred new owners in the Zenith City this season, the garages are indeed a necessity.

* * *

Many autoists have as yet neglected to take out their 1910 state license. Last year the licenses were red. This year they are black.

* * *

Owing to the fact that they are hounded once it becomes known that they have purchased a car, a great number of people have asked the agent to keep the matter quiet for the time being. One agent said, in referring to the matter: "When some forty-six insurance agents descend on a person for insurance on a car, the thing ceases to be a joke, and I don't blame the men for wishing to keep the matter quiet. While the car is on the way they place their insurance for themselves and then make it known generally that the insurance has been taken out. One man located in one of the city's largest buildings has pasted on his door:

"The insurance on my car has been taken out, thank God." This man says that his scheme has given wonderful results and suggests the same method to others.

Harry Merritt has a new Hudson roadster.

Dr. Warner has the first 1910 Reo seen in the city this year. The Reo is one of the best of the medium priced cars. W. Buchannan of the Duluth Motor Car company is the agent.

The Mutual Automobile company reports the sale of twenty-one Hudsons, fourteen Chalmers-Detroit cars, seven Thomas Flyers, six Overlands.

The Ohio car was seen in Duluth during last week for the first time. It is a big strong looking car and created much favorable talk. Jack Plotnicky and Bert Daugherty have secured the agency for this territory.

* * *

Rhodes & McNamara have sold a number of E. M. F. cars during the week. D. A. Reed, resident engineer of the Soo line and N. J. Upham, the real estate man, are among the number who have this car coming.

* * *

W. J. West of Hibbing has purchased an Interstate from the Duluth Motor Car company. This is the first season for the Interstate in this city and it looks good.

LOGGING ROADS IN BAD SHAPE

Continuance of Mild Weather Will Seriously Interfere With Operations.

Logging roads in the smaller camps, where the roads are made of snow, are in bad shape and the loggers are finding it extremely difficult, and in some cases impossible, to get logs to the landings at the railroad tracks. If the present weather continues, the ice roads will give way and then it will be very difficult to get logs from the camps to the tracks.

At the office of Curry & Whyte it was stated that many of the smaller camps were getting logs to the landing stages with the utmost difficulty. In many places the snow roads have entirely melted away, leaving great patches that the sleds must be dragged over with great labor. Then in many places the roads have broken through and new paths must be broken around the bad places.

With the ice roads the condition is not so bad. Log hauling is going on steadily at the present time, but lumbermen here say that it will be a question of another day or two of the present weather at the best, when the ice logging roads will give way and make heavy hauling impossible.

Lumbermen say there is a large supply of logs at the camp piles at the present time. The melting of the snow and ice will mean that these logs will be delayed in shipment. It will be extremely difficult to haul them to the tracks, once the ice and snow begin to go.

However, lumbermen believe that the present weather will not continue, and that the roads will become firm with the first drop of the mercury.

NORTH LAKE IS THE FEATURE

Michigan Copper Issue Has Good Advance on Heavy Buying.

North Lake was the feature of the copper market which was quiet today. Stocks marked time and there was little interest manifested in the leaders and the general list. There was some liquidation in the nature of profit taking early in the morning, but values firmed and the close was about on a level with the evening. The trend of stocks either way was insignificant.

Longs made an attack on the shorts in North Lake. The heavy buying movement caused a rush to cover of some people, who had expected North Lake to take a drop after its recent bulge, and who had sold short. The issue opened at $18.87½ and went steadily forward. Its march was halted at $25.25 and the issue declined on profit taking to $23.75. It went to $24.12½ when shorts attempted to take advantage of the decline. South Lake advanced in sympathy, going from $11.50 to $13.75, receding to $12.50 and advancing to $13.25.

Amalgamated sold at $81.87½ off to $81.25 and back to the opening. Giroux sold at $10, Greene at $10.75, Lake at $78 to $80 and off ¾ point, North Butte at $39.25, Ojibway at $14, Bohemia at $14 up to $15 and off ¼ point, Steel common at $84.87½ up to $85.62½.

Butte-Ballaklava sold at $10.12½, Cactus at $5.62½, Red Warrior at $2.50, Calumet & Corbin at 75 cents, Calumet and Hecnora at $16 and Arnazon at $5.37½ up to $5.62½ and down to $5.50. Calumet & Montana was offered freely from $1.25 down to $1.18¾ with no takers, and Calumet & Corbin closed Curb Cars. The Trono sold paid Butte-Alex Scott was offered at $7.50 down to $7.25 with no buyers. Butte & Superior was offered at $2.43¾. National was 53 cents bid.

The local market was quiet, 1,835 shares being traded in during the short session.

A letter has been received by a Duluth man from a writer at Sonora, Mexico. The letter said that C. T. Brown, a mining engineer of Secorro, N. M., has examined the Calumet & Sonora property and has said that it is the richest property of its kind that he has ever inspected. He said the management is excellent and that the mine has been opened up and developed with dispatch.

A Night Alarm.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. Foley's Honey and Tar has saved many little lives. No opiates. Sold by all druggists.

PART OF HAND IS AMPUTATED

Physicians amputated part of the hand and a toe of Herbert Webster, 19 years of age, who was nearly electrocuted yesterday afternoon while watching the horse races on the lake from the fire escape on the second floor of the R. R. Forward building, Second avenue east and Superior street.

The escape of the young man from immediate death is miraculous. In his excitement over the races he threw his hands over his head, one of them coming in contact with the wire.

"TURPENTINE KING" WOULD DIVORCE BEAUTY.

New York, March 5.—William D. Dickey has been appointed a referee to take testimony in a suit for divorce brought by John Wright Hunt, wealthy man of Savannah, Los Angeles and New York, and who is sometimes called the "Turpentine King," against his wife, Henrietta, formerly Miss Babcock of Detroit, Mich., famed for her beauty. Mr. Hunt is 69, and Mrs. Hunt 28 years old. As corespondent, the husband named Alexander Tcherdiaff, who styles himself "prince" and claims kinship with the czar. The Hunts were married eight years ago. Mrs. Hunt denies the charges through counsel.

Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: I have used Foley's Kidney Remedy and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life." Sold by all druggists.

MUSICAL PROGRAM AT MASONIC TEMPLE.

The members of Aad temples, A. A. O. M. S., entertained last evening at the Masonic temple. A. F. M. Custance was in charge of the program, which gave much pleasure, and was followed by a drill by Aad patrol and an informal dancing party.

The high school choir sang a chorus from "Pirate of Penzance," which was well given and called for an encore. Dan Cole sang "Sweetheart," Miss Alice Sjoselius a song entitled "Madcap Marjorie," and Charles O. Applehagen sang, by request, "Big Chief." Messrs. Cole, Bjorkquist, Applehagen and Don Gearhart sang "Trip to Fairyland."

Much merriment was caused by a short sketch entitled "Anxiety," or "The Candidates' Wives," relating real experiences "When Pain and Anguish Wring the Brow," and "Cry Baby," sung by "Some of Them."

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or consitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR LICENSE TO SELL LAND.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.

In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Hugh Fessenden Kendall, Jr., and Donald Russell Kendall, wards.

The petition of Hugh Fessenden Kendall, as representative of the above named wards, having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that for reasons stated in said petition, it is necessary and for the best interests of the estate of said wards and of all persons interested therein, to sell certain property of said wards in said petition described, and praying that license be to Hugh Fessenden Kendall granted to sell the said land;

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 14th day of March, 1910, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald, according to law.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., February 18th, 1910.

By the Court,

J. B. MIDDLECOFF, Judge of Probate.

(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)

Duluth Evening Herald, Feb. 19, 26, March 5, 1910.

Office of the Comptroller, City of Duluth, Feb. 26, 1910.

Notice is hereby given, That an assessment levied to defray in part the expense of paving and otherwise improving Garfield avenue, in said city, from the end of the viaduct to Pine avenue, according to benefits, is now payable at the office of the City Treasurer.

A penalty of ten (10) per cent will be added if payment is not made on or before March 31, 1910, and the said assessment will then bear interest at the rate of six (6) per cent from February 24, 1910, to date of payment.

W. S. McCORMICK, City Comptroller.

(Seal.)

D. E. H., Feb. 26 and March 5, 1910. D 499.

Notice.

At a meeting of the undersigned proprietors of Chinese restaurants in the city of Duluth, after discussing the question of the high cost of food served to our patrons and that we are actually serving meals at a loss, we have agreed to raise our prices materially; otherwise we will become bankrupt or forced out of business.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this fifth day of March, 1910.

WANTED—ANY AMBITIOUS YOUNG man under 35 years old, should read this advertisement. The United States navy is an excellent training institution. For such training as it furnishes you free, you'd pay tuition and expenses at a manual training school. Besides having a chance to learn a trade in the navy, you breathe pure sea air; have good, wholesome food, and plenty of it free; have medical care and attention if sick; are made strong and healthy by systematic exercises and athletics. You don't work any harder than in the factory, office or farm, and have more leisure, while no occupation offers better pay and none gives more rapid promotion. Your pay begins the day you enlist. Nearest recruiting station to you is Postoffice building, Duluth, Minn. Send for interesting free booklet telling everything you want to know about the training and opportunities in the navy. If you delay, you may be put on the waiting list; vacancies are limited, and applications will be considered in their order. Either go to above recruiting office immediately, or send for booklet and instructions to Bureau of Navigation, Box 204 Navy Department, Washington D. C.

WANTED—WANT A BETTER PLACE? Government salaries are high, steady and sure. Work is pleasant and promotion easy. Liberal vacations. No pull needed. Hundreds of vacancies every week, in all parts of the United States. Our paper tells you just how you can get one of these fine positions. Only 10 cents for six months' trial. Money back on request. Send dime or stamps today to desk 302, Civil Service Record, Washington, D. C.

PROPOSAL FOR PURCHASE OF BONDS.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council of the City of Duluth, Minnesota, will receive sealed proposals at the Council Chamber in the City Hall in the City of Duluth at 7:30 o'clock in the evening on March 28, 1910, for the purchase of gold-bearing coupon bonds to the aggregate amount of $200,000 in denominations of $1,000, $500, $100 and $50 (except that where not inconsistent with the bids said bonds shall be in denomination of $1,000).

Of said bonds, $150,000 are issued for the purpose of extending the water and light plant of the City of Duluth, pursuant to authority of Section 286 of the Charter of the City of Duluth, said bonds having been authorized at the annual municipal election held February 1, 1910.

Of said bonds, $50,000 are issued for the permanent improvement revolving fund, pursuant to authority of Section 286 of the Charter of the City of Duluth.

All of said bonds are to be dated April 1, 1910, and will become due on April 1, 1940, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on April first and October first of each year according to interest coupons attached to each of said bonds; both principal and interest to be made payable in gold coin of the United States at the American Exchange National Bank of the City of New York; delivery of bonds and payment therefor to be made at the First National Bank of Duluth, Minnesota.

Said water and light bonds may be bid for under two plans as to time of delivery and payment therefor. First plan: $50,000 to be paid for July first, 1910; $50,000, August first, 1910, and $50,000, September first, 1910. Second plan: The entire issue to be paid for July first, 1910.

Said permanent improvement revolving fund bonds to be paid for within ten days after notice that the same are ready for delivery.

Bids may be made on either or both of said issues.

The sale of said bonds will be awarded to the highest responsible bidder at a sum not less than par value thereof, and interest accrued to the date of delivery. Such shall be by popular subscription and actual residents of the City of Duluth shall be preferred in case of bids otherwise equal, and any person, including any actual resident of the City of Duluth may bid on one or more of said bonds. All bids for said bonds shall be without condition or qualification.

Each bidder is required to file with the city clerk prior to 2 o'clock p. m. of said day, a certified check on or a certificate of deposit of a national bank, payable to the order of the City of Duluth, without condition for an amount equal to one (1) per cent of the full face value of the bonds to be bid for, or a good and sufficient bond in the said sum to be approved by the common council of said city, and conditioned that the party making said bid will, if awarded the sale, take the bonds and pay for them according to the terms of said bid and the ordinance; and that in case of failure so to do, the City of Duluth shall have the right to sue upon said bond and to recover the full face thereof, which shall be and in said bond shall be stated as being the sum agreed upon as liquidated damages in case of a breach thereof. And a condition of said bond shall be that the principal and sureties thereon expressly waive all questions of irregularity or illegality in any manner affecting the issue of said bonds, the intention of the bond being to provide for the payment of said sum of money absolutely without any condition or defense thereto.

Said bonds and checks shall at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day be submitted by the city clerk to the city attorney for his opinion as to whether said checks and bonds conform to the conditions of the ordinance, and the bid of any person whose check or bond the city attorney shall deem to not be in legal form, according to the terms of the ordinance shall not be received unless such bidder shall have such check or bond corrected to meet the requirements of the city attorney or deposit a new bond or check duly approved by said attorney before 7:30 o'clock p. m. of said day.

In all cases of bids received and not accepted, the check or certificate received therewith shall thereupon be returned. In case said bonds are awarded to any bidder and the said bidder refuses to accept and pay for said bonds, or any part thereof, within ten (10) days after notice, oral or written, that same are ready for delivery, said delivery to be made at the First National Bank of Duluth, Minn., the said amount of the certificate of deposit or check so furnished to the city shall be retained by the City of Duluth, as its own, as and for liquidated damages for breach of the contract on the part of said bidder. In case any bidder furnishing such certificate of deposit or check shall take the said bonds, said sum shall be credited to him on account of the payment thereof. Each bidder must give his address, street and number.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved to the City of Duluth.

Dated Duluth, Minn., March 3, 1910.

H. W. CHEADLE,
City Clerk.

D. E. H., March 5, 12 and 19, 1910. D. 528.

Office of the Comptroller,
City of Duluth, Feb. 26, 1910.

Notice is hereby given, That an assessment levied to defray in full the expense of constructing plank sidewalk on Twenty-seventh avenue west, Sixty-first avenue west, Sixty-ninth avenue west, Seventy-first avenue west, Herman avenue, Purcell avenue, Earl street, Goldsmith street, Ash street, Huntington street, Waseca street, Raleigh street, Tacony street, Third street, Fifth street, Tenth street, Ninth street, Eighth street, Seventh street, Sixth street, Michigan street, Quince street, Lemon street, Mankato street, Victoria street, Wabasha street, Colorado street, Forty-seventh avenue east, Wallace avenue, Twenty-second avenue east, Twenty-first avenue east, Woodland avenue, Nineteenth avenue east, Twelfth avenue east, Third avenue east, St. Croix avenue and Seventh avenue west, in said city, according to benefits, is now payable at the office of the City Treasurer.

A penalty of ten (10) per cent will be added if payment is not made on or before March 30, 1910, and the said assessment will then bear interest at the rate of six (6) per cent from February 24, 1910, to date of payment.

W. S. McCORMICK,
City Comptroller.

PENNSYLVANIA GRAFT CONVICTIONS UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

Snyder and Shumaker Lose Appeal in Capitol Fraud Case.

State Begins Suit to Recover $5,000,000 Paid Out Illegally.

Dead Contractor's Name Is Involved in Actions in Equity.

Philadelphia, March 7.—The conviction of William P. Snyder and James M. Shumaker, charged with conspiracy to defraud the state in connection with the furnishing of the state capitol, was affirmed by the state supreme court here today.

Snyder was a former auditor general and Shumaker a former superintendent of public buildings and grounds.

Snyder and Shumaker were convicted in the Dauphin county court at Harrisburg on Dec. 18, 1908, and sentenced to serve two years each and to pay a fine of $500 each and the cost of prosecution.

Two Convicted Men Dead.

John H. Sanderson of Philadelphia, who had the furniture contract for the capitol, and William L. Mathus of Media, former state treasurer who paid the alleged fraudulent furniture bills, were convicted and received a similar sentence at the same time. Sanderson and Mathus have since died.

The case was carried to the superior court, which affirmed the Dauphin county decision. An appeal was then taken to the highest tribunal in the state.

State Seeks Recovery.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 7.—Actions in equity for the recovery by the state of at least $5,000,000 alleged to have been illegally paid to contractors for the furnishing of the new state capitol were entered in the Dauphin county court today by the attorney general's department. The actions are against the contractors, John H. Sanderson, deceased, and the Pennsylvania Construction company, the state officials having to do with the awards of the contracts and the approval of bills, Architect Joseph M. Huston, and the sureties of the contractors and state officials.

The suits are the outgrowth of the capitol investigation conducted in 1907, and are entirely separate from the criminal actions brought two years ago.

Millions in Overcharge.

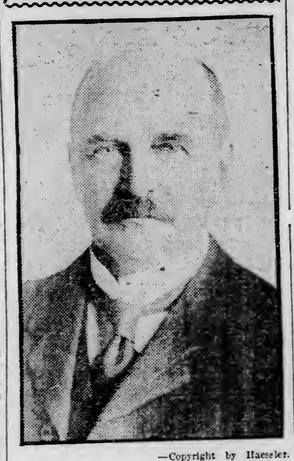
The commonwealth charges that Sanderson, the principal contractor, who died after his conviction, received more than $5,000,000 for furniture and equipment which was not worth more than $1,500,000, and that the Pennsylvania Construction company received $2,000,000 for metallic filing cases, wardrobes, etc., which were not worth more than $750,000.

MAY BE PEACE ON B. & O.

Commissioner Neill Continues Work as Mediator.

Baltimore, Md., March 7.—The efforts of the federal board of mediation to settle the controversy between the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and the conductors and trainmen were continued here today by Labor Commissioner Neill alone, his associate, Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission, having been kept away from town by the press of other business. Dr. Neill said he could not tell how long the conferences would continue, but that they might last several days. Indications point to an amicable adjustment of the differences.

IS IN TROUBLE WITH DR. WOODROW WILSON



—Copyright by Haeseler.

ANDREW F. WEST.

Andrew F. West is the dean of Princeton university. It is reported from Princeton that he may have to resign because of a controversy with President Woodrow Wilson. In fact, the report says that so divergent are the views of the two university officials that if Dean West does not resign, President Wilson must. The trouble is over the "quad" plan of President Wilson, which Dean West opposes. It finds much opposition among the alumni. Moses Taylor Pyne, one of the trustees, opposes the plan and Prof. Hidden is aligned with Dean West against it.

SKULASON IS IN THE RACE

Has Not Withdrawn From Congressional Contest in North Dakota.

Does Not Recognize Authority of Insurgent Elimination Committee.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Candidates for state offices from the Insurgent wing of the Republican party who failed to receive recognition at the hands of the so-called "elimination" committee, which has just completed its labors, do not take kindly to the action taken and will refuse to abide by its decision. B. G. Skulason of Grand Forks is one of the first to come out as opposed to the committee system of fixing the ticket, and says he will not recognize it.

Other of the Insurgent candidates who have been, to all intents and purposes, eliminated, are expected to take the same position that Mr. Skulason does, and this will lead to a rather bad

HILL ROAD WINS CASE

Northern Pacific Gets Order of Commerce Commission Thrown Out.

"Portland Gateway" Case Is Decided By Federal Supreme Court.

Washington, March 7.—The Northern Pacific Railway company today won its fight in the so-called "Portland gateway case" before the supreme court of the United States.

The controversy was whether the order of the interstate commerce commission requiring the Northern Pacific to enter into joint rates between Puget sound points and Eastern points via Portland, Or., should stand. The principle involved, it is said, reaches every section of the country.

The Northern Pacific resisted the order on the ground that the commission had no authority to issue the mandate. This attitude was taken because, it was contended, there already existed the company's own "satisfactory and reasonable" route to and from Puget sound points, by way of Billings, Mont., or St. Paul, Minn. The Northern Pacific asserted that the order was unjust because the effect was to turn over to a competitor, the Union Pacific, business which the plaintiff had provided facilities for doing itself.

STEAMER BURNS AT THE WHARF

Manhattan Is Totally Destroyed After Docking at Portland, Me.

Portland, Me., March 7.—Catching fire from some unknown cause shortly after she had arrived here from New York early today, the steamer Manhattan, owned by the Maine Steamship company, was totally destroyed. The loss is $150,000. One man of the crew is missing.

The steamer had been at the Franklin wharf on Commercial street about an hour when a blaze was discovered between decks, just forward of the engine bulkhead, over the coal bunkers on the port side. The flames were exposed to a strong wind and they swept through the cargo of freight. Within a few minutes the entire forward part of the ship was afire.

Six passengers and a crew of thirty-nine men were on board. With the exception of a fireman, all escaped and saved most of their effects.

The steamer Manhattan was built at Bath in 1897 for the Maine Steamship company. She was a wooden boat of 1,892 tons and 2,500-horse power. Her length was 233.5 feet, beam 40.7 feet and depth 24.5 feet.

Bulk Freighter Launched.

Detroit, Mich., March 7.—The bulk freighter Harry Yates was successfully launched Saturday at the St. Clair plant of the Great Lakes Engineering works. The new steamer, which is 524 feet over all, was christened by Miss Virginia A. Yates of Buffalo. The Yates is the property of the American Steamship company.

USES KNIFE ON BANKER

John P. Cudahy to Be Arraigned in Police Court Monday.

Finds Former Friend in His House and Attacks Him.

Kansas City, Mo., March 7.—John P. Cudahy, the millionaire society leader and clubman, who early yesterday morning assaulted Jere S. Lillis, bank president and former intimate friend, whom Cudahy found in his home, will be arraigned in police court one week from today. It was announced last night that Cudahy would be arraigned this morning, but through an agreement between his lawyers and the authorities the hearing was postponed one week.

Frank Walsh, Cudahy's attorney, said this morning that he did not know whether or not his client had left the city.

"I have no idea where Mr. Cudahy is," said Mr. Walsh.

No information could be obtained at the Cudahy home, 100 East Thirty-sixth street. Members of the family refused to be seen, and the servants referred callers to attorneys. At the Coates hotel, where Mr. Cudahy spent the greater part of yesterday, no information as to his whereabouts could be had. Attendants at St. Mary's hospital, where Mr. Lillis was taken, stated that the wounded man was resting well.

No Warrant Issued.

The prosecuting attorney announced this morning that no state warrant had been issued for Cudahy. It is said that Lillis will not prosecute him.

Cudahy went home unexpectedly early Sunday morning, and finding J. Lillis there, committed an assault upon the man which led to his arrest on a charge of disturbing the peace. He was released on $100 bond.

Lillis is said to have sustained cuts from a knife on his face, legs and one arm, made in criss-cross fashion. If

HOGS TRAVEL BY BOAT.

Innovation in Mississippi Traffic is Introduced.

New Orleans, La., March 7.—A novel sight has been presented at New Orleans during the last week. Old-time river steamers, usually connected with the transportation of cotton, came down stream from Louisiana and Mississippi points loaded down with squealing fat porkers. Steamboat loads of hogs were unknown before in New Orleans.

"SHOW ME" JUDGE SLAPPED ON THE NOSE BY WOMAN.

St. Louis, Mo., March 7.—When Mrs. Blanche Childress answered Judge Jeff Pollard's "show me" request by slapping him on the nose in the course of a trial in his court, to demonstrate the treatment given her by her husband in a controversy, the judge told her that no further practical demonstrations were necessary. He cried "Enough!"

The husband was fined $50 and costs on a charge of disturbing the peace.

MANY CRIMES LAID TO HYDE

He Is Accused of Three Murders and Eight Attempted Murders.

Eleven Indictments Are Returned in the Swope Investigation.

Kansas City, Mo., March 7.—Dr. B. Clark Hyde, against whom eleven indictments were returned by the grand jury Saturday, charging him with killing three members of the Swope family and attempting to kill eight other persons, will be arraigned early this week. Dr. Hyde will not be placed under arrest before he appears in the court room. He is already under a $50,000 bond on the charge of murdering Col. Thomas H. Swope.

Hyde was indicted on thirteen counts. Two indictments charge first degree murder in connection with the deaths of Col. Swope and of Chrisman Swope. Dr. Hyde is alleged to have given them strychnine tablets.

One indictment accuses Dr. Hyde of manslaughter by bleeding James M. Hunton, a cousin of Col. Swope, in a neglectful manner.

Intent to Murder.

Perhaps the most surprising of all the indictments returned are the eight

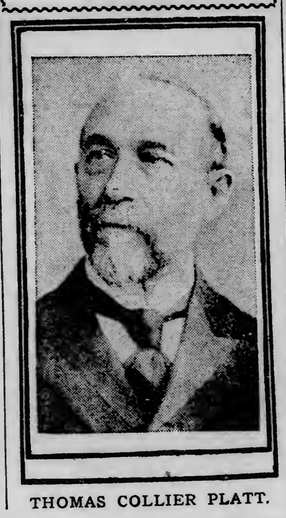
CANADA MAKES NO TARIFF PROMISES

No Decision Reached Regarding Reciprocity With the United States.

Ottawa, Ont., March 7.—Although no decision has been reached over the tariff controversy, the indications are that United States Tariff Commissioners Emmery and Pepper will go back to Washington without any assurance that Canada will give the United States the benefits of the Franco-Canadian treaty rates in return for a guarantee that the American maximum schedule will not be imposed against Canada on the last of this month.

A final exchange of views may be given at tomorrow's conference, but the negotiations may also be continued for several days.

EX-SENATOR FROM NEW YORK IS DEAD



THOMAS COLLIER PLATT.

PLATT DEAD IN NEW YORK

Former "Easy Boss" Dies Suddenly of Bright's Disease.

Leaders Say His Death Will Not Influence State Politics.

New York, March 7.—Thomas Collier Platt, formerly United States senator from New York and for many years a national figure in Republican politics, died at 3:46 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Abele on West Eleventh street, from whom he had rented three rooms for the last four years. Mrs. Abele had been his nurse.

Dr. Paul Auterbridge, his physician, said last night that the cause of death was chronic and acute Bright's disease. The body has been removed to the home of Frank H. Platt, his son, and will be taken Tuesday to Owego, N. Y., the senator's birthplace, where it will be buried. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the Presbyterian church in Owego.

End Came Suddenly.

The end was startlingly sudden. An

DECLINES TO DISCUSS IT

Cleveland, Pittsburg, Omaha and San Francisco Said to Be Selected.

Police Claim "General" Walkout in Quaker City Is Not Succeeding.

Situation There Is Declared Really to Have Nation-Wide Significance.

New York, March 7.—Labor circles heard the statement today that Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor is in Chicago for the purpose of consulting labor leaders, with the view of calling a strike of car men in Cleveland, Pittsburg, Omaha and San Francisco in sympathy with the Philadelphia car strike. The Philadelphia Traction company is said to be a large holder of securities in the traction companies in these cities.

Refuses to Discuss It.

Chicago, March 7.—President Gompers would neither affirm nor deny the report that his chief mission here was to consider the question of calling out the street car men in the four cities mentioned.

"It's a matter I don't care to discuss," was all the labor leader would say.

Real Test at Hand.

Philadelphia, March 7.—Today will see the real test in the attempt of labor leaders to bring about a general strike of working men in Philadelphia in sympathy with the striking street car employes. On the basis of Saturday's showing, employers and the police heads expect that the movement will be a failure. The labor leaders are confident, however, of the success of the movement, and they predict that

MAJORITY REPORT ON THE RAILROAD BILL IS MADE

Republican Platform Is Declared to Be Fully Lived Up To.

Senate Committee Finds Sherman Act Covers Most Evils Attacked.

Washington, March 7.—"Carefully preserving the principles so clearly enunciated in the Republican platform of 1908," is the way the majority of the senate committee on interstate commerce, which made its report today on the administration railroad bill, interprets the provision to permit common carriers to enter into traffic agreements.

The report is signed by Senators Elkins, Cullom, Aldrich, Koan, Crane and Nixon and will be printed with the minority report submitted a few days ago by Senators Clapp and Cummins, and the individual report of Senator Newlands.

Approval of the court of commerce feature is given prominence, although comment upon other provisions is far more interesting.

For instance, the report says that the effect of the traffic agreement provision is to relieve carriers from

HALF HUNDRED BODIES SECURED

Blasting Powder Is Being Used at Scene of Fatal Snowslide.

Wellington, Wash., March 7.—Fifty corpses have been removed from the wreckage carried down by the avalanche that destroyed two Great Northern trains last Tuesday. Forty-five of them have been sent to Everett and Seattle. Only three bodies were recovered yesterday, but several were exposed and these will be taken down to Scenic today.

Men at work clearing the tracks are making rapid progress. The two rotary plows that have been stalled west of here will be released before night, and with this addition to the show-fighting machinery it is believed that there will be little difficulty in clearing the tracks within a short time.

Blasting powder is being used with success in loosening the packed snow on the east side of the mountains.

Bombs Kill Two Clericals.

Lisbon, March 7.—Two bombs were hurled into a room where a party of Clerical candidates were dining today. The explosions killed two of the diners and wounded seven others, including the priest who was presiding.

IRREGULARITIES IN THE HANDLING OF PUBLIC FUNDS

REGULARS MAY GUARD THE MINT

War Department Has Men Ready to Send to Philadelphia If Needed.

Washington, March 7.—Under arms and ready to start at a moment's notice, the forty-fifth Coast Artillery at Fort Dupont, Del., is awaiting a flash from the war department to hurry to Philadelphia to protect the United States mint and other government property during strike riots. A train with a full crew and a locomotive with steam up stands ready to convey the soldiers to the scene of the disorders.

This action was taken at the request of the secretary of the treasury. So far as can be gathered, there has been no appeal from the municipal authorities at Philadelphia or the state officials of Pennsylvania for national troops.

Not for Police Duty.

These troops will take no part in police work beyond detending the mint and other government property. Precedent for this action of the national authorities is found in the case of the great Denver strike in 1903, when federal troops from Fort Logan were ordered into the city to safeguard the United States mint there. The appearance of the regulars had a quieting effect.

Guadeloupe Official Shot.

Pointe-a-Pitre, Guadeloupe, March 7.—P. M. Henry, the secretary general of Guadeloupe, was shot and seriously wounded while sitting on the veranda of his hotel today. The assailant, whose identity is not known, fired two shots and escaped.

Public Examiner Probes Virginia School Board and Village of Gilbert.

Censures Village Officials for Lack of System of Accounting.

Irregularities in the government of the village of Gilbert, Minn., and the misappropriation of the funds of School District No. 22, Virginia, are charged by Andrew J. Wasgatt, county examiner, in his reports filed today with County Auditor Halden.

According to the two reports which were filed separately, the affairs of the school district and of the village were badly tangled. In the school district the examiner states that salaries have been illegally paid and other money is not accounted for. He states also that the money may have been paid out legally in some instances, but that there are no bills or receipts, so far as he could find, that would show it. The total sum in question amounts to about $1,620.60.

At Gilbert the examiner found a queer state of affairs. The treasurer of the village had taken out no bond, so far as could be found. None of the village officers had properly qualified, in spite of the fact that the law requires official oaths.

Works on Percentage.

J. B. Thompson's salary for acting as treasurer of the village was on a basis of 2 per cent of the disbursements. There is no law or authority

ONEOTA CHURCH PLANNING ITS GOLDEN JUBILEE

Wife of First Pastor May Be Present at Celebration.

Drove to Duluth With Her Husband Fifty-Four Years Ago.

Mrs. Harriett Jones, formerly Mrs. James Peet, the wife of Rev. James Peet, who was the first pastor of what is now known as the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, and who is now living in St. Paul, may attend the semi-centennial celebration of the founding of the old Oneota M. E. church, Duluth's pioneer house of worship, to be held in April.

Rev. F. E. Stidd, pastor of the Merritt Memorial church, who is arranging the big celebration to take place next month, stated today that arrangements were being made to have the aged lady come to West Duluth to attend the meetings. If she is not able to attend, it is expected that a letter from her will be read at the celebration.

Rev. James Peet, the first pastor of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, once known as the Oneota M. E. church, has been dead for a number of years. His wife remarried and is now residing in the Twin Cities with her second husband. Mr. Peet established the church in 1856.

Rev. Mr. Peet, as quaintly described by Dr. J. M. Barnett, the first pastor of the old school Presbyterian church at Superior, was "an unordained local preacher of the Methodist Episcopal church, young and inexperienced, of fair ability and education, and strenuous for all of the forms of the Methodist Episcopal church, even in union meetings." At the same time that he conducted services in Oneota he also was preaching in Superior.

An interesting story is told of a trip that Rev. Mr. Peet made from St. Paul to Duluth at the request of Presiding Elder Brooks of the Saintly City. At that time he was teaching in a public school at about $30 per month. He consented to leave the school should he get an honorable release, which he finally secured.

Drove to Duluth.

The distance to Duluth from St. Paul was 180 miles, 130 of which was through a dense forest. Household goods were sold or given away, to be bought again at exorbitant prices. A team was engaged to take him and his wife with their effects through, guided by E. F. Ely, one of the pioneers of Duluth, who happened to be in St. Paul on business.

The start was made on Feb. 11, 1856.

REV. JAMES PEET,
First Pastor of Merritt Memorial Church.

MRS HARRIET JONES.
Wife of First Pastor of Merritt Memorial Church.

He was convinced that the load was too heavy and had to abandon a large part of it. They went by the way of the St. Croix river and followed an old Indian trail through a swamp for a considerable distance. It took nine days, in addition to Sunday, when they did not travel.

Once the sleigh was upset, throwing out Mrs. Peet, who was then in delicate health, and wedging her closely between two trees so that to release her they were compelled to fell one of the trees. They slept out of doors on the snow-covered ground by a camp fire. On Feb. 19, 1856, they reached Superior. Here they met with a cordial reception, and the people shared a portion of their household goods with the pastor. From Superior they came to Oneota. The story of Rev. and Mrs. Peet is one of suffering and sacrifice.

Mrs. Peet is now nearing her 85th birthday and is still strong of body and mind. In some of the writings which he left Mr. Peet spoke of the early settlement of Duluth in the following words: "A town was started at the base of Minnesota Point called Du-Luth. Some of the congregation would be so drunk that they could hardly sit in their seats. After a while others came and society greatly improved."

On July 6, 1856, Rev. Mr. Peet preached at the old Protestant Indian mission at La Pointe and organized a class of six persons at Bayfield.

The early history of the church at Oneota will be the subject of an address to be given at the approaching golden jubilee. On Sunday, April 10, Leonidas Merritt, who when a boy attended the services at the first church at Oneota, will give the address on this interesting topic. Jerome Merritt, a brother, was the recording steward of the church.

The committee having the celebration in charge has arranged to have a number of the old speakers present at the jubilee, among whom will be Rev. A. F. Thompson, who served between 1887 and 1889. He is now a superannuated pastor and resides at Minneapolis. Others are L. A. Richardson, who was pastor between 1895 and 1897, who was an Oneota boy and who now has a charge at Aitkin, Minn.; Rev. S. A. Briggs of Grand Rapids, 1904-08, the immediate predecessor of Rev. F. E. Stidd, the present pastor of the church.

The district conference of the Duluth district will be entertained at the Merritt Memorial M. E. church for two days, beginning April 4. Between April 7 and April 10 the celebration will be held. It will close with a platform meeting at which all of the old pastors who can will take part.

REV. F. E STIDD,
Present Pastor of Merritt Memorial Church.

THANKS TO MILLER.

West Duluth Republican Club Takes Notice of the Congressman's Work.

At the meeting of the West Duluth a committee of three, comprising J. E. Foubister, C. E. Johnson and George Mallory, was appointed to draw up a set of resolutions thanking Congressman Clarence B. Miller for some of the bills that he has introduced in congress and for the measures he has worked for.

The club also endorsed the idea of a central organization recently started in Duluth. At the next meeting, L. A. Barnes will introduce a resolution calling for a change in the by-laws of the club relating to the indorsement of candidates by the club before primary elections.

DEBATE ON SCHOOLS.

Educational Facilities in West Duluth Will Be Discussed By Lodge.

"Is West Duluth the most neglected part of the city as far as schools are concerned?"

This will be the subject of a debate which will be held Wednesday evening at Great Eastern hall on Central avenue, under the auspices of Old Hickory Camp, Modern Woodmen of America. The affair is in charge of the social and entertainment committee.

Thomas G. Lee for the affirmative, will read a paper on the question, in which he promises to show that the school situation is not as it ought to be. James Foubister, M. Tuskin and others will take part on the negative side of the question.

HIT BY FALLING BRICK.

Boy Slightly Injured While Passing Alworth Building on Michigan St.

Harry, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie of 6032 Raleigh street, was hit by a fragment of a falling brick, which dropped from the Alworth building Saturday afternoon. He was walking with his mother on Michigan street.

The blow knocked the boy down, the brck inflicting a scalp wound. Partly stunned he was carried to the office of a physician. The wound was found to be of a trivial nature.

MANY SMALL FIRES ARE REPORTED.

A salamander, used for drying plaster in an unfinished house at Fifty-second avenue west and Roosevelt street, was the innocent cause of a false fire alarm which was turned in Saturday night by a passerby, who saw the reflection of the flames and steam from the window. This is not the first instance that the firemen have been called out for the same reason.

This morning, the firemen were called out to a small fire on the Grassy Point bridge. The blaze, which evidently had caught from a spark from a passing engine, was extinguished with a few pails of water, before any great damage resulted.

The department made two runs yesterday, the damage being slight in each case. The first fire at 11:45 o'clock in the morning, was at the residence of J. D. Collier at 817 North Fifty-sixth avenue west and the second at 1.15 o'clock, at the same place. The fire in each instance was caused by sparks from the chimney of a neighbor's house.

Carhart Is Fined.

Joseph Carhart, 26 years old, a former health inspector, was fined $10 and costs, Saturday evening in the West Duluth justice court after having been found guilty of assault in the third degree upon the person of Alex Braleski. Braleski claimed that Carhart hit him with a rock.

Preaches First Sermon.

Rev. D. G. Cole, the deposed pastor of Plymouth Congregational church, preached to an audience of about fifty people at the first meeting of the congregation of the newly organized People's church last evening at Gilley's hall. In the morning his subject was "Conscious and Unconscious Selfishness."

West Duluth Briefs.

R. B. Gilmore has sold his blacksmith shop on Grand avenue to Ben Bonen, a former blacksmith in his employ. The business in the future will be conducted by the firm of Bonen & Lindquist.

A number of West Duluth young people spent Sunday at the power house near the Thomson dam. They were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Williams.

Zeke Kendall of Pike Lake, a former liveryman in Duluth, spent Sunday with friends in the western end of the city.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Plymouth Congregational church will be entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. C. Wakeman of 603 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Pearl, the 12-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Deroucfe of 616 South Sixty-ninth avenue west, who died yesterday. Interment was at Calvary cemetery.

Walter Merrill of Spokane, Wash., was the guest of friends at West Duluth, Sunday.

Mrs. Anna Dalburn was fined $3.50 in the West Duluth justice court Saturday evening for having assaulted Mrs. Mary Paquin, Friday evening, in front of 519 North Fifty-second avenue west.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TO HAVE SUMMER SCHOOL.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Red Lake county summer training school for teachers will be at Thief River Falls this year. The school will be in session four weeks, commencing July 5 and closing July 30. The work will cover a review of the common school and high school subjects and will be devoted largely, also, to the methods of teaching, organization and school hygiene. The study of agriculture will also have much attention.

The school will be in charge of J. A. Cederstrom of Wenthrop, Minn. He will be assisted by A. W. Mathewson of the state university, C. P. Stanley of Olivia, and Miss Edith M. Whitney of St. Cloud.

SELLING BOOZE BRINGS A FINE AND SENTENCE.

Mandan, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—It cost Adam Streitmater of Glen Ullin, this county, $200 and a stay of ninety days in the county jail to dispense liquor to the thirsty residents of his home town. When arraigned before Judge Crawford he pleaded guilty.

James Dean, arrested recently for forgery, pleaded guilty and will receive his sentence this week.

Swindler to Penitentiary.

La Moure, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred O. Kilen, who was arrested in Minneapolis, recently, pleaded guilty before Judge E. B. Goss and received a sentence of one year in the state penitentiary. Kilen was arrested for getting the best of a number of residents of Edgeley, La Moure county, and when brought back here immediately confessed his guilt.

Southern Strike Ended.

Savannah, Ga., March 7.—After being granted a 2½ cents an hour increase in pay, making the rate 39 cents, the boiler makers on the Central of Georgia railway returned to work this morning. The men have been on strike five weeks.

RAILROADS

WILL RUSH WORK ON NEW ORE DOCK

Piles Will Be Driven at Allouez Bay Early in the Spring.

D. M. Philbin, superintendent of the Lake Superior division of the Great Northern railway, stated today that work on the new steel ore dock that the Great Northern will construct at Allouez bay, will begin just as soon as the frost gets out of the ground.

At the present time there is a large amount of piling that has been delivered here by the Great Northern, so that the work of putting in the piling may be started without delay when the weather permits.

The dock will be modern in every respect and will be constructed entirely of steel, with the exception of the piling.

It is further stated that work will be rushed on the new dock, so that it will be ready for the 1911 season.

NO FOUNDATION FOR STRIKE TALK

Duluth Railroad Men Know Nothing of Rumored Labor Disturbances.

Rumors that have come over the wire from the coast, where it is stated that the engineers of both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads are seriously considering going out on strike, if their demands for increased pay are not granted, can find no verification locally.

This morning K. M. Nicoles, superintendent of the Lake Superior division of the Northern Pacific, and D. M. Philbin, superintendent of the Lake Superior division of the Great Northern, who have been out of the city, stated that as far as they know there is no foundation whatever for the telegraphic rumors of a strike.

Mr. Nicoles stated that he had heard nothing whatever about any strike movement being entertained. Mr. Philbin stated that he had not heard of any and did not think that the engineers and firemen were considering any such move.

Nothing can be learned of the strike talk in local railroad circles, and what talk there has been, to give rise to the rumors, must have been confined to some Pacific coast union of the order.

SHIPMENTS WILL GO THROUGH

Freight Service Not Interrupted By Washout on Great Northern.

General Traffic Manager Kenny of the Great Northern has wired W. J. Power, local freight agent of the road, that it is expected the washout on the Great Northern, in the Cascade mountains, will be repaired within a few days and that through shipments of freight over the Great Northern will continue.

Mr. Kenny states that if the damage to the road is not repaired within a few days, shippers can be assured that freight will be routed around the washout, arrangements having been made with the Northern Pacific.

There is a quanity of Duluth freight that is being held up by the washout on the Great Northern. It was for the assurance of shipping that the telegram from Mr. Kenny was sent. A large amount of freight, consigned over the GrGeat Northern was received here just before the washout, but there is still quite an amount of through freight that is being held up pending the repairing of the washed out section of track.

GOING TO BIG FIGHT.

Eighteen Hibbing Men Charter Private Pullman on Northwestern.

The Northwestern railroad has fitted out a hotel Pullman car that will carry eighteeen prominent Hibbing men to the big Jeffries-Johnson fight. The car has been paid for and will be stocked by the men who will employ their own cook and provide their own provisions.

WIFE DESERTER GIVEN YEAR IN PENITENTIARY.

Marinette, Wis., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—That there is a disposition to treat wife deserters severely was demonstrated in the local court when Peter Thyne was sentenced to one year at the state prison at Waupun for this offense. Sentence was suspended, however, to give Thyne a chance to take care of his wife and family.

SANDSTONE CANDIDATES.

Harmony Prevailed at the Caucus Held Last Saturday Night.

Sandstone, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable interest was manifested at the caucus at the village hall Saturday night to nominate candidates for the various offices to be filled in the village and town of Sandstone during the ensuing year. Harmony prevailed, however, all candidates named receiving liberal support.

The following ticket was named for the village: James Mulholland, president of the council; H. A. Sandwick, C. E. Pearson and Charles Edstrom, trustees; A. S. Webb, treasurer; E. J. Barnett, recorder; David Russell, justice of the peace; two years; Herman Lohman, constable, two years.

The town ticket is as follows: Andrew P. Edin, supervisor, two years; Adolph S. Larson, town clerk; J. F. Hawley, treasurer; A. H. Daniels, justice of the peace, two years; Gust E. Westberg, constable, two years.

It is expected several other tickets will be framed up before Tuesday and every indication points to a spirited election, the main issue being the license question, the temperance advocates working hard to keep the town "dry" again this year.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC MAY BUILD SOUTH LINE.

Westhope, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Towns along the Westhope-Antler branch of the Great Northern railroad are interested in the report that the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad will build a line from Regina, Sask., to Sherwood, N. D., to connect with a branch line of the Great Northern. A meeting of the representatives of the towns on this line has been called for Wednesday evening at Antler, where the matter will be gone over with a view to taking action that may result in bringing the Grand Trunk Pacific line to Antler instead of Sherwood. Antler, in Bottineau county, is twenty miles east of Sherwood, which is in Ward county.

DEER RIVER BOY DIES BEFORE AN OPERATION.

Deer River, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oscar, the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. McCallum, was removed to Bemidji Monday to be operated upon for appendicitis, but before the operation, on Tuesday he passed away. Interment was made here in Pine Ridge cemetery Thursday afternoon by a large following of friends of the family. Rev. Mr. Orrock read the service.

Aged Fisherman Dead.

Menominee, Mich., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—John R. Williams, the oldest fisherman of this county, died at his home in Ingalston, aged 91. He is survived by his wife, eight sons and forty-eight grandchildren.

LOWEST COST OF FUNERALS

Poor Must Pay at Least $47 for Burying Their Dead.

That $47 is the cheapest price at which a funeral can be conducted in Duluth, is the opinion of the committee that investigated the matter and reported at the meeting of the Associated Charities in Memorial hall in the courthouse this morning.

This amount provides for the proper care of the body, a plain black pine box with a rough pine box to serve as a covering, a hearse and one carriage.

Nearly all the undertakers in the city were visited and they seemed anxious to bring the cost down. The committee has not yet finished its work. The members will call a meeting of all the undertakers, confer with them and it is likely that a uniform low price will be set. The special rate will be for families in poor circumstances.

Special cases were the only other subjects of discussion.

FOUND IN SNOWDRIFT.

Body of Missing South Dakotan Has Been Located.

Wessington Springs, S. D., March 7.—Evar Lindberg, who had been missing since last November, was found in a snowdrift two miles east of here by a searching party. The body was sent to Wausa, Neb., where his wife and six children are.

Mr. Lindberg was last seen Nov. 16, coming from a bank in Miller S. D., where he had drawn considerable money. Foul play was suspected at the time of his disapearance, but the money, amounting to $70.46, including a draft for $50, was found on his person.

PINE RIVER WILL VOTE ON ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT.

Pine River, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The people of the village will vote at a special election March 22 to show their will as to whether the village council shall accept or reject a proposition made by H. A. and T. L. Arvig, two local men, to establish an electric light plant in the town. If the franchise is granted the applicants, the village will have a lighting plant in working order not later than Aug. 1.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"The Time, the Place and the Girl." (See notice below.)
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill.

NOW IS THE TIME

And Lyceum Is Place to See Good Musical Comedy.

The Lyceum is a good place, and now is a good time to take a girl, for "The Time, the Place and the Girl" is a very entertaining and clever show, filled with an original line of humor, that scintillates at times, and plenty of action and music. Added to the vehicle is the fact that the people in the cast are clever enough to make the most of clever lines.

Like most of the Adams and Hough shows, the present play has a plot. In that it is something on the fashion set by George M. Cohan, who introduced musical comedies with plots.

"The Time, the Place and the Girl" has to do with the winning of a stubborn miss and there are necessarily many ramifications to such an accomplishment.

Fred Mace is funny, which is saying enough, and as he has some clever lines, he made a big hit with yesterday's audiences. He maintains the pace through the three acts, never falling off for a moment.

Elizabeth Goodall has the part of the Red Cross nurse, the lady who is destined to get a cupid hammer-lock on the Happy Johnny Hicks person. After seeing Miss Goodall go through the part, you do not wonder that she clamps a half-nelson on the affections of the gay handler of the pasteboards. Miss Goodall is charming and her acting is natural and unaffected.

The girl in the case, the one who refused to the last to scrub the veranda steps, Miss Florence V. Smith, has a very pretty voice and appears to good advantage in the part, that of a girl with a will that must be handled with care, as is often the case with small creatures.

Miss Smith has several songs and she sings very well. She looks and acts the part, which helps considerably.

The scenery of "The Time, the Place and the Girl" is pretty, the music is good and the chorus well drilled. The show has not lost anything by its age, and furnished a very good evening's entertainment.

May Robson Coming.

Miss May Robson as Aunt Mary in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" is coming to the Lyceum tomorrow night.

The role of Aunt Mary as portrayed by Miss Robson fits her, and is one of the best she has ever had. The play is full of bright comedy lines, novel situations and that wholesome sweetness that appeals to everybody. There is no villainy, no risque situations, no one wronged, nothing but delightful fun, just the kind that keeps you chuckling throughout the evening. There is just a touch of pathos at times that gives one a chance to get ready for the laughs that follow. It is a delightful piece of work, the part of Aunt Mary as played by Miss Robson. To her character impersonations she brings a comprehension of the inner humor and the pictorial possibilities of phase or line, a telling reserve in pose and gesture, and an ease and fluency of quiet delivery.

The Stock Company.

The Franklin Stock company will play at the Lyceum both matinee and night Wednesday, offering the charming romantic play "Florida," a story of the Everglades.

The Franklin Stock company has recently been reorganized. Special scenery and effects will be used and the popular scale of prices of 10, 20 and 30 cents will prevail.

"The Great Divide."

In Henry Miller's production of "The Great Divide," which will again be seen in this city on Friday and Saturday matinee and night, two picturesque and decidedly unusual scenes are disclosed. One is a cactus farm in Southern Arizona and the other is a gold miner's hut built of rude stone on a plateau high up in the Catalina mountains. These scenes are veritable triumphs of art and form a striking contrast to the one in which the final act takes place, a typical New England home of the better class. No expense has been spared to make the production perfect in every detail and the cast selected and rehearsed by Mr. Miller gives a perfect performance of this truly great American play.

HOSPITAL MAY BE ENLARGED

A Children's Ward May Be Added to St. Mary's Hospital.

A special ward exclusively for children will probably be a new feature at St. Mary's hospital if the proposed addition is built. Plans have not yet been submitted, but it is likely that they will be asked for in a short time. The institution has been crowded the last few months and more floor space is needed. St. Mary's hospital was established in 1888 under charge of the Sisters of St. Benedict.

If you can shrink your head one-sixteenth in size, very well—otherwise the hat for you.

hour before the senator died his two sons, Frank and Edward, with their families, and his widowed son, Harry, with the latter's daughter Charlotte and son, Sherman, had left the house after their usual Sunday visit. The senator said at that time that he felt very well and thought he would read the Sunday papers. At 3 o'clock he was taken with a fainting fit and Dr. Auterbridge was hurriedly called. The family was notified and returned in haste.

Mr. Platt recovered from his first lapse, but sank into unconsciousness again at 3:30 and died fifteen minutes later. The relatives were all at his bedside.

Only last Wednesday Senator Platt was at his office downtown. For several years he had been in feeble health and latterly the use of his legs had almost deserted him, but his condition until Sunday was not looked upon as more serious than usual, although a physician called upon him daily.

Had Remarkable Vitality.

Thursday at breakfast the senator had a momentary fainting spell, but rallied quickly. A year ago his feebleness was markedly accentuated and his life was despaired of for a period, but with remarkable vitality he recovered and went about his business as usual.

His vitality was truly unusual. In spite of his feebleness he took an active interest in affairs and refused to neglect his business until the dictates of nature imposed a rest. He was out of bed at 7 o'clock every morning and always early at his office.

No Effect On Politics.

Political leaders united today in the expression that the passing of Former Senator Platt will be without influence on the course of New York state politics. His retirement from politics in 1908, when his name was left off the list of delegates to both national and state conventions, was absolute and complete.

Scores of friends called today at the home of Frank H. Platt, where the body of the dead senator lies. There will be no public funeral in this city. The body will be taken tomorrow to Owego, N. Y., where funeral services will be held Wednesday morning in the Presbyterian church. The former leader will be buried in the church yard beside the first Mrs. Platt.

The ex-senator was not in the larger meaning a rich man, and is said to have divided his fortune among his heirs at the time of his trouble with his second wife, who was Mrs. Janeway.

His successor as head of the United States Express company has not been selected.

Thomas Collier Platt, the "Easy Boss" of earlier and brighter days, was for many years not only the Republican leader of his state but a figure in national politics, shoulder to shoulder with men of such rank and reputation as the late Mathew Stanley Quay of Pennsylvania. Both men were of exceptional intellectual attainments, and both turned them, with signal success, to party organization. Quay died still a power; Platt outlived his time and felt himself in late years out of touch with the moving spirit of events.

Described by Blaine.

In "Twenty Years in Congress," James G. Blaine described Platt as "a business man of great personal popularity. He has an aptitude for public affairs and is a man of strong influence in his state. He is no debater, but has strong common sense and a quick judgment of men."

Yet, with all his native judgment, wide experience and skill as an organizer, it became the fate of Platt to win remembrance more for his associations with others than for anything he did of his own initiative.

Twice in his life, Platt was the center of the national stage—once when he resigned with Roscoe Conkling from the senate and was instantly nicknamed "me-to" Platt, and once when he induced Theodore Roosevelt to run for vice president with McKinley, very much against Roosevelt's better judgment and in the face of his repeated declarations that nothing could induce him to accept the nomination.

Mocked by Ironic Fate.

There could not be a better instance of Platt's skill in persuasion and manipulation, or of the irony that mocked his ripest wisdom, McKinley was shot; Roosevelt became president, and the days of Platt's domination in the state lapsed into senility. His bodily strength declined rapidly. He made a second marriage, which ended in the courts, and he was sued by Mae Wood, formerly a clerk in the government employ, for a divorce on the strength of a third marriage never proved to have taken place.

The episode with Conkling, which was not exceeded in public excitement, say the newspaper files of that day, by an event in the Civil war, was as follows:

Platt was elected to the senate in 1881. He and his colleague, Conkling, became embroiled with President Garfield in a bitter controversy over the appointment of William H. Robertson to be collector of the port of New York. The nomination was distasteful to the New York organization, and both Platt and Conkling refused to confirm it in the senate.

Clashed With Garfield.

Thereupon President Garfield withdrew all other New York nominations at their instance, among which were those of Stewart L. Woodford to be United States district attorney and Lou F. Payne, recently remembered as an "accelerator of public opinion," to be United States marshal.

Finding themselves in a hopeless deadlock, Platt and Conkling both resigned. Conkling was caught in the great blizzard of 1888 and died of exposure.

Platt was supposed to be frozen out of politics. Nothing of the sort. He turned his attention to building up influence in the southern tier of New York counties, became state leader again in 1894, and in 1897 was elected a second time to the United States senate, succeeding David Bennett Hill. He fell out with Governor Frank Black, and to defeat his renomination put forward Theodore Roosevelt. It was Roosevelt's rapid progress toward popularity and power that led Platt to suggest him for the vice presidency, hoping that in the quiet of that dignified office he might be forgotten.

Of Puritan Ancestry.

Platt was born in Oswego, Tioga county, New York, on July 15, 1833, of Puritan ancestry. He entered Yale college with the class of 1849, but left in the middle of his junior year because of ill health. His father wished him to study for the ministry, but he never advanced farther in that direction than to sing in the choir.

A brief apprenticeship at literature was succeeded by more congenial employment in business. He prospered in Michigan in the lumber trade, returned to Owega and became president of the Tioga National bank, was chosen a director and later president of the Southern Central Railroad company, and in 1879 was elected general manager and secretary of the United States Express company, of which company he became president in 1880, so remaining until his death.

In physique Platt, as a young man, was pleasant in appearance, delicately built, restless and nervous. In later years his visage took on grimness. By his first marriage to Ellen Barstow of Owega he had three sons, Frank H., Edward T. and Harry B. Platt.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, March 7.—There was more sudden and sharp contraction in the volume of business in pig iron in the Eastern district last week. With the exception of Pittsburg all distributive centers reported light sales. In the east 10,000 tons of foundry grades were sold, but in the Central West about 40,000 tons were placed under contract, including 20,000 tons of Bessemer, 5,000 tons of basic, and 10,000 tons of foundry grades by steel works and radiator and electrical equipment manufacturers. A large portion of the foundry grades under negotiations have been suspended although the inquiries have not been withdrawn from the market. Pipe works have been negotiating, but have closed few additional contracts.

In finished steel products there has been a larger volume of orders placed, but business has been spasmodic. The most satisfactory branch has been structural steel, both plain and fabricated. Orders were received for the latter during the last few days of February in sufficient amounts to bring up the tonnage for the month to 100,000 tons and the prospect is that March will be equally heavy. In the last week railroads have put out more inquiries for bridges, placing orders for about 6,000 tons and receiving bids for 12,000 tons additional. The principal bridge order was 2,500 tons for the C. H. & D.

Rail contracts have aggregated 32,000 tons, including 11,000 tons for the Chesapeake & Ohio railway and 10,000 tons for Alaska. Additional orders have been placed for 1,200 cars and 112 locomotives and specific inquiries put out for 10,000 cars and 200 locomotives. Railroads and car shops have placed orders for 50,000 tons of plain structural steel.

GOMPERS SAID TO BE PLANNING STRIKES IN FOUR OTHER CITIES

returns will show that between 100,000 to 150,000 failed to report for work today. The police say there are not 50,000 unionized workmen in Philadelphia.

While the central and many other sections of the city do not appear to be seriously affected by the general order to quit work, in the mill district of Kensington, where trade unionism is well entrenched, many industries have suspended operations. It looked like a general holiday in that great manufacturing center today.

Deliver Milk and Bread.

Special dispensations to the union drivers of milk and bread wagons enabled all householders to receive their usual quantities of these necessities today, but the fruit and produce dealers are handicapped by the joining of 500 of their drivers in the general walkout.

According to the figures of the union leaders, more than 4,000 drivers have ceased work. The hack drivers are conveying people to weddings and funerals, but are refusing all other fares. Cabs are scarce and there is practically no vehicle service from the railroad stations and ferries.

Building Trades Affected.

The most largely affected trades outside of textile workers in Kensington, Fairmount, Falls of Schuylkill, Manayunk and Port Richmond, who claim 30,000 men out, are the members of the various building trades, the leaders of which claim to have almost an equal number of men out.

In addition to these two large branches of organized labor, leaders in the movement claim there are 30,000 men in the miscellaneous unions on strike, together with many non-union workers who have quit work from sympathy with the strikers, or difficulty in securing adequate transportation.

Among those who went on strike today were eighteen organizations in the group of German trades unions, affecting nearly 7,000 men.

German Group Out.

These unions included musicians, job printers, textile workers, coppersmiths, coopers, carpenters, butchers, machinists, barbers, bartenders, slate roofers, cigar makers, boot and shoe workers carriage and wagon painters and metal polishers.

The brewery workers did not join the strike. A trade agreement was the obstacle.

Managers of all the theaters declare they will run as usual this week despite the strikes. Comparatively few amusement employes are out.

The shirtwaist workers who recently went to work after a seven weeks' strike decided to remain at work. Their sympathy is with the car men, but the organization treasury and the members' personal resources are depleted.

On Systematic Basis.

Following out plans adopted Saturday and yesterday, the strike will now be put on a systematic basis. The unions will place the usual pickets on duty, and a house to house canvass will be made to bring out union men who did not obey the general strike orders. Unorganized labor did not generally respond to the proclamation issued by the Committee of Ten. The union leaders expect to devise some plan of reaching these workers, who, compared with the number of union men, are in the great majority in Philadelphia.

There are many people who do not understand why the business and much of the industrial interests of Philadelphia should be paralyzed because of a controversy between the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company and several thousand of its motormen and conductors.

See Concerted Movement.

The reply of the union leaders is that they can see a concerted movement upon the part of big employers to crush organized labor. The labor spokesman points out that the stand taken by the car company against recognizing the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. Attention is likewise called to the fact that the Rapid Transit company is receiving hundreds of letters from big employers and associations bitterly antagonizing organized labor and giving the company moral support. There is a report that the general strike was inaugurated primarily to unionize Philadelphia and more particularly to place organized labor throughout the country on a sounder basis in the industrial world.

First Planned for Pittsburg.

A statement is published here today that this general labor movement was to have been started in Pittsburg, but that the trolley strike here gave a better opportunity to show labor's strength.

Several business organizations met today to consider plans to continue the efforts being made to bring an end to the strike. The transit company has turned a deaf ear to any propositions for arbitration, but it is hoped by the business men that they will be able to devise some plan for peace that will be satisfactory to both sides.

The police department today had 6,000 men on duty. The majority of the negro policemen who were engaged specially for the strike, have, however, been relieved. This was done so as not to add race riots to the troubles of the police.

USES KNIFE ON BANKER

he recovers he will be disfigured for life, physicians declare.

Before cutting Lillis, Cudahy is said to have bound him with a strong rope. One of Cudahy's chauffeurs was present. Neighbors heard screaming and groaning in the Cudahy home and called the Westport police station.

From the beginning to the end of the affair, Mrs. Cudahy was not in evidence.

Cudahy's attorneys admit the general facts in the case, but are unwilling to go into the details.

Married Edna Cowin.

Since Cudahy's marriage to Miss Edna Cowin, who was a society belle of Omaha, on Dec. 18, 1899, the family has been prominent here. They have five children.

Lillis is a bachelor, 47 years old. He is manager of the Western Exchange bank and prominent socially. He holds memberships in the Kansas City Country, Evanston, Golf and Elm Ridge Automobile clubs. Often he has been seen in club rooms in Cudahy's company.

Police are searching for John Moss, the chauffeur, who was present. It is rumored that he has hurried out of the city.

Extreme reticence was marked characteristic of every one connected with the case today.

Judge W. F. Johnson, attorney for Mr. Lillis, said he had not seen Mr. Lillis since last night.

"I called up the hospital on the telephone," said Judge Johnson, "and the attendants said Mr. Lillis was resting easy."

"We would appreciate a statement from Mr. Lillis," suggested a newspaper man.

"I do not believe Mr. Lillis would care to make a statement, at least not now," replied Judge Johnson. "In fact, I do not believe he is in shape to talk much. He has a severe cut or bruise across his lips that makes it difficult for him to speak."

Victim Has Improved.

It was rumored early in the day that Mr. Lillis had died of his injuries, but this proved untrue. At 11 o'clock he was reported by the hospital officials to have improved. The exact nature of his wounds could not be learned, as neither his physicians, nurses nor hospital physicians would discuss this phase of the case.

In fact, every one connected with the case who could be reached displayed a desire to dismiss the matter.

Henry Koehler, cashier of the Western Exchange bank, of which Mr. Lillis is president, said:

"I believe the thing has been grossly exaggerated. All that can be said has been covered in the papers. I am quite sure that Mr. Lillis' condition is not at all serious."

Although newspaper men were unable to secure an audience with Mr. Cudahy, it was learned that he had held a long conference with his attorneys in the apartments of Alexander New, his attorney.

Counsel Refuse to Talk.

Frank P. Walsh is associated with Mr. New in the case, but he, too, was reticent, and when asked for a statement referred his interviewers to Judge New. Judge New was equally non communicative.

"Yes, I am associated with Mr. Walsh in representing Mr. Cudahy," he said, "but I have absolutely nothing to say."

"Will Mr. Cudahy make a statement about his trouble with Mr. Lillis?" Mr. New was asked.

"Mr. Cudahy will make no statement for publication," was the answer.

Mr. New said he did not know whether the state would issue a warrant for Cudahy's arrest.

Formal Opening Display of New Dress Fabrics

For Spring 1910 starts today and will be continued all week. The showing is authoritative—because our entire stocks for the Spring season are NOW HERE. The exhibition represents the finest staples and novelties that the world has to offer. You could sit down comfortably and begin at 9 a. m. and be shown nothing but fashion's newest fancies till the bell rings at 5:30. The reputation of the S. & B. Co.'s dress stuffs extends far beyond this city, judging from the mail order business this department does. The display promises to be one of unusual magnificence. Here are a few of the new things you will see on display:

Imported French Boucle Suitings—In various shades of gray with a contrasting lighter tint of reseda, lilac and tan—$2.75 yard, and 45 inches wide.

Imported French Novelty Worsteds—For Spring Suits and Dresses, in a simmering assortment of new shades—$2.50 to $3.00 yard.

New Santoys—New Poplins, new Serges, new Panamas in both light and dark shades. Prices are most reasonable.

44-inch Basket Weave Suitings—In shades of light mahogany and tan, at $1.75 yard.

Basket Weave Suitings—In shades of new blue, tan, raisin, mahogany and reseda—$1.75 to $3.00.

New Silk Warp Henriettas—Imported from France—in self-colored scroll designs and pastel shades of pink, lavender, robin's egg blue, apricot and sea green—for imperial evening gowns—$2.00 yard, and 44 inches wide.

High Class Novelty Suitings—Two-tone basket weaves in raisin, Wistaria, reseda and new blue—50 inches wide and yard, $3.00.

New Black Goods

Fashion predicts unusual popularity for Black Dress Goods. This season Paris has put them in the limelight, which means on this side of the Atlantic—many black gowns, wraps and coats this season.

Here are a few hurried items:

Plain and fancy weaves in French Voiles—44 inches wide—$1.25 to $2.50 yard.

Plain Nun's Veiling—44 inches —75c to $1.75.

Plain French Serges—44 inches wide—$1.00 to $1.50 yard.

54-inch Black Serges—$1.50 to $2.50 yard.

Black Wool Peau de Soie—48 inches wide—$1.85 yard.

Black Silk Warp Henriettas—44 inches—$1.50 yard.

48-inch Baratea Weave—$1.50 and $2.00 yard.

Plain Black Wool Taffeta—$1.00 to $1.50 yard.

44-inch Diagonal Weave at $1.50 yard.

Many, many more that lack of space won't permit of description.

Women who intend to get the whole benefit of their Easter Dress, especially on Easter Sunday morn, must begin this week to perfect dressmaking plans. The first step is picking out the "makings."

Now is the "accepted time." S. & B. Co. is the "favored store."

Chic New Suits

Madam, the second floor contains a myriad of new and different Suits. Clever models of Paris inspiration—the finest product of the Master-designers of Gotham. Plain tailoring and shorter coats characterize the showing. Lapels are usually of the long and rolling variety. The scarcity of buttons is noticeable. New double-breasted effects have only one scant row of buttons.

Skirts are on the whole, plainer over the top and inclined to fullness as they reach the ground.

The New Elsie Janis Suit is designed for young people. The coat is semi-fitting and lined with blue and white checkt silk. The sailor collar is of the long and rolling variety, and faced with same silk. A unique silk sash gives this chic suit a very jaunty appearance that co-eds will admire immensely. The skirt is kilted—$29.50.

A Natty Spring Model that is altogether charming, shows a 34-inch coat—back and front have panels jointed at sides with straps and buttons—no pockets. Lapels and sleeves are button trimmed. The skirt has a shallow yoke front and back pleated. Panels trimmed on sides with straps and buttons. Colors are black and navy, and new tans and new green shades—$35.00.

N. B.—The price table of the suit division begins at $24.50 and up to $100, with scores of intermediate prices.

A noticeable 3-piece suit has a separate bodice to match coat and skirt and is made of shark cloth. Coat in semi-lines has long rolling collar, covered with silk messaline and fastens with 2 buttons. The skirt has a decided Frenchy four-piece yoke (with full skirt). The bodice is made of net to match—with all braided yoke and collar—$75.00.

Bench Made Suits

Occupy a compartment of their own and are in a class by themselves. A custom-made S. & B. Co. Easter Suit eliminates dressmaking worries—no tiresome fitting, no looking up styles. All there is to it is to step in front of the glass and admire its clinging faultless lines, picking out your color and thanking us that you made up your mind to look at those hand-made Suits before you decided on the "Suit Question."

We say it—with the reputation of the S. & B. Co. store back of the assertion—that our hand-made Suits are the best that money can buy from the Atlantic to the Pacific. You who wear them know their merits. You who do not are cordially invited to verify the above statements in their favor. From $50.00 up. We could go on describing Suits till sunrise tomorrow—so many and so different is the assortment that confronts us.

We suggest you call at your convenience and have the salespeople show you the Quality Suit Family of Duluth. Prices are most reasonable.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Arrangements for the women's session of the Conservation and Agricultural Development congress at St. Paul March 15-19, have been so far perfected as to make certain the presence of Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo, as the principal speaker. Mrs. Crane is one of the country's most famous club women. As a superintendent of the street cleaning department in Kalamazoo she gave the streets of her city a reputation for cleanliness second to none.

She toured the South on a pure food campaign, which gave splendid results, and it is of her that the late Robert G. Ingersoll said: "I do not belong to any church, but if I belonged to any, it would be yours." Mrs. Crane is to speak on "The American Woman, the Conserver of American Life."

In addition to this women's session, which is scheduled to begin at 4 p. m. Saturday, March 15, in the Auditorium, St. Paul, and which will be conducted entirely by the club women of the state, the club women are planning a reception to Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester, who is to address the congress that day.

Among the Duluth delegates who have been named by the governor to attend this meeting are Mrs. Jay Cooke Howard, Mrs. F. L. Barrows and Mrs. A. H. Bocklehurst. There is much interest among Duluth women in the movement.

STATE CONFERENCE

For Discussion of Conservation Congress Plans.

Mrs. Nella Williams of this city, president of the state organization of the Women's Relief corps attended the conference last week at St. Paul, at the call of Governor Eberhart, at which plans for the state conservation congress were discussed. Mrs. Williams represented the members of the W. R. C. of the state.

The women of Minnesota will enthusiastically take up the cause of conservation in Minnesota. Public-spirited women started the first conservation movement in the state resulting the setting aside of the Cass Lake park. It is in keeping with their attitude at that time that they have indorsed the movement started by Governor Eberhart and will do what they can to make it a success.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand of them were represented in the meeting held in the rooms of Mrs. Mary E. Starkweather, at the capitol Friday. The women had gathered at the invitation of the governor and listened to a short address from him on the purpose of the coming congress.

They heartily indorsed it, and decided to take a prominent part in the program.

A session of the women's congress will be held at the Auditorium at St. Paul, March 18. Mrs. C. G. Higbee, president of the women's clubs, will preside. On the evening of the same day, a reception will be tendered the governor by the women attending the congress. Other distinguished guests in the city will be invited to attend the reception.

The women present at the session represented the different women's club organizations of the state. Those present were:

Mrs. P. Starkweather; Mrs. R. R. Doerr, club woman; Mrs. C. G. Higbee, club woman; Miss Belle Jeffries, Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Washington Yale, D. R.; Miss G. Hickey, A. O. H.; Mrs. T. F. Kinney, Fifth division club women; Mrs. D. Badger, Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Bess Thomas, Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. M. Balto, Royal Nighbors; Mrs. F. B. Olson, Degree of Honor; Mrs. J. Larkin, Sunday school; Mrs. Lina Collins, Royal Neighbors; Mrs. Maud C. Stockwell, suffragette; Mrs. A. L. Duffy, Degree of Honor; Mrs. A. D. Loghead, D. A. R.; Nella Williams, W. R. C.; Mary Taylor, Eastern Star; Eva Waterman, W. C. T. U.

IN COLLEGE PLAY.

Lawrence Jaques to Be a College "Girl."

Lawrence Jaques of this city, who is attending the university, will be one of the college girls in the performance of "The Prof. and the Princess," which will be given by the university students in April. College men will assume the feminine roles in the comedy and the proceeds of the two performances will go toward the fund for the Northrop memorial which is the topic of greatest interest to the students. Every organization is interested in doing its part in raising the funds. The Minnesota union is back of the effort of presenting "The Prof. and the Princess," which is from the pen of Edgar M. Allen, one of the students.

FRITZI IS "SICK."

Timely Illness Interrupts "Prima Donna's" Tour.

Fritzi Scheff, leading woman in "The Prima Donna," playing in Detroit last week, left for New York suddenly and will not return to finish her engagement.

Mme. Scheff's sudden departure has caused considerable gossip in theatrical circles. It is understood that she will play with the Shuberts next season and it is rumored that her decision was the result of a quarrel with Mr. Dillingham, who is presenting "The Prima Donna." The difference is said to have been over her salary.

When Mme. Scheff fainted after the first act Tuesday night her understudy, Miss Aileen Hodgson, was put on and went through with the play. The following night Mme. Scheff appeared at the theater, but left suddenly a few minutes later and returned to her apartments in the Pontchartrain hotel.

When the play was half over the announcement was made by the manage-

MRS. ARCHIBALD DAVIS.

Mrs. Archibald Davis is the wife of Lieutenant-Commander Davis of the United States navy. She was Daisy Colton and is the daughter of Col. Colton now Governor of Porto Rico. Mrs. Davis at present resides in Philadelphia, but spends much of her time in New York.

ment that Miss Hodgson had made such a hit that she would be continued in the stellar role for the remainder of the week in Detroit. Mme. Scheff it was said, was suffering from a nervous breakdown. She was attended by Dr. P. C. McEwen, who remained with her until she left the hotel.

Heavily veiled she came down from her apartments, supported on each side by a maid. In an automobile she was hurried to the Michigan Central station, boarded a Pullman car with her retinue and was not accessible to newspaper men.

No announcement was made by Mme. Scheff as to her reason for breaking off in the middle of her engagement here.

TEA AT SHOP.

Miss Listman Entertaining at "Sign of the Samovar."

Russian tea is served during the afternoon and every one interested is invited to call at the shop any afternoon this week.

ART LECTURES.

Miss Carey to Give Three Before Club.

Miss Gertrude Carey, head of the art department of the high school presented a lecture this afternoon before the members of the art history class of the Twentieth Century club at the clubroom of the library. The lecture was the first "a series of three on "Composition and Design." The dates of the two remaining lectures are to be announced.

"THE AMAZONS."

Pinero's Comedy to Be Given Here.

Rehearsals are being held for "The Amazons," the farce written by Sir Arthur W. Pinero, the famous English dramatist, which will be given at the Lyceum theater March 31 under the auspices of St. John's Episcopal church, Lakeside. Many well known women will act as patronesses.

The scene of the play is laid in a park and an ancestral hall near London. The events of the play take place in a single September day. Mr. Pinero in "The Amazons" broke away from problems of morality, sociology and psychology which characterized "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith," and others. He wrote "The Amazons" as a mental stimulus after the exhaustion of creating the tragic story of Paula Tanqueray. In a whimsical mood of romance he dallied with the "mannish woman," in a light and gentle spirit of satire.

The cast of "The Amazons" follows: Barrington, Viscount Litterly, John A. Sinclair; Falfred, Earl of Tweenwayes, Allen Allensworth; Andre, Count de Grival, William Harrison; Rev. Roger Minchin, also Fitton, game keeper, Harvey Clapp, Youatt, a servant, H. Edward Walbank; Miriam, marchioness of Castlejordan, Mrs. T. L. Chapman; Lady Noeline Belturbet, Mrs. J. Cooke Howard; Lady Wilhelmina Belturbet, Miss Hazen Owen; Lady Thomasin Belturbet, Miss Lucile Bradley; Sergeant Shuter, Miss Senta Erd.

Lester Park Club.

The Lester Park Literary club will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. W. N. Vaughn's 5333 London road. The study of Japan will be continued, with Mrs D. N. Williams leader. The program is as follows: "Esthetic Japan," Mrs. Hollister; "Imperial University," Mrs. Pinkerton; "Education," Mrs. Palmer; "Interesting People and Places in Japan," Mrs. Goodrich.

FINE PROGRAM AT MASONIC TEMPLE

Horace W. Reyner and Pupils Have Charge of Free Concert.

The concert given yesterday afternoon at the Masonic temple by Horace W. Reyner and his pupils as one of the series of free entertainments offered by the Scottish Rite to the people of the city was well attended, every seat being occupied and some persons standing.

The program was worthy of the fine, appreciative audience and reflected great credit upon Mr. Reyner and the other performers. Miss Isabel Pearson was very fortunate in her selection of pieces for the organ and throughout the varied numbers proved herself a skillful organist with a mastery over that complicated and difficult instrument as well as an artist in interpretation. The dainty "Spring Song," by Hollins was in marked contrast with Lemmens "Triumphal March" and the "Grand Chorus" by Salome.

Walter Smith gave a very pleasant rendition of a selection from "Elijah" and handled with artistic skill the difficult problem of making a recitative part interesting, without the surroundings and rest of the oratorio the recitatives generally go unappreciated except to the musical few.

Owing to a severe cold Mrs. Leo Ball was unable to appear and a change in the program was necessary, Miss Edith Knowles singing her number and Mrs. Zimmerman, assisted by seven ladies' voices, sang Mendelssohn's "For My Soul Thirsteth." Both pieces were heartily applauded and finely rendered.

"O For a Burst of Song," by Allitsen, was sung by Horace Brown and, while the most pretentious piece on the program, it was given with a vigor and good taste which commended itself at once to the audience and was much appreciated.

It was reserved, however for a comparative stranger, Mrs. H. H. McFadyen, to carry off the artistic honors with her selections from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," her sweet, true, round, mezzo-soprano fitting well the spirit of the piece, the articulation clear and the modulation perfect, which combined with a graceful, unaffected manner made it a most pleasing number and deserving of the hearty encore which was responded to with Gounod's beautiful "There's a Green Hill Far Away."

Of course no person expects to appreciate organ music nor does any organist expect to receive appreciation; that is taken as a matter of fact, but the organ selections brought out the beauty of the tones of the instrument and when it is said that the program ended with Handel's great "Hallelujah Chorus" and that it was played by Mr. Reyner, nothing further need be mentioned. The program for next Sunday will be along similar lines and the concert that will conclude the series of regular performances, although there will be informal music every Sunday until the warm weather comes when people will prefer to be out of doors.

TWIN BROTHERS WIN SISTERS

Wife and Bride-to-Be Making Long Trip From Sunny Italy.

Duluth will shortly be the home of two happy families, marking the culmination of romances which had their beginning in far away Italy, where twin brothers wooed and won sisters.

One couple is already married and the other will be as soon as the prospective bride appears in the city. The necessary papers showing that they will not be paupers were signed at the city hall this morning by Mayor M. B. Cullum.

The twin brothers are Giovani Gianfrancesco and Vincenzo Gianfrancesco. The former is already married and the latter is anxiously waiting for Filomena to come to Duluth. The two sisters will make the trip to Duluth together.

The brothers have been in this country for some time. They are twenty-five years of age and bright, intelligent looking men. When brought to the mayor's office both were smiling happily and broke into cheerful laughs when asked a few brief questions by the chief executive of the city.

BOX CAR PATIENT IS RELEASED

Smallpox Victim, Who Had Trying Experience, Leaves the Pesthouse.

Edward Tappan, the smallpox patient found in a box car at Proctor, was released from the pest house this morning. His companion was allowed to go some time ago.

Tappan tried to reach Duluth from a station on the D., M. & N. on the passenger train, but as evidence of the disease were apparent on his face, they refused to carry him. He did the next best thing to get to town, and climbed into a box car. When he got to Proctor the doors of the car were sealed and he was imprisoned until midnight when he was taken to the other end of the city to the pest house.

Tappan wasn't vaccinated, but his companion showed a big scar and was immune although he had been exposed.

DENIES MAKING STATEMENTS

County Auditor Says He Did Not Talk Politics at Capital.

"I made no declaration of any kind and gave out no interviews at St. Paul," said County Auditor Odin Halden today in regard to a statement in a Minneapolis paper that he had "declared that it was time for the Republican party to break away from the liquor interests."

"I was at the state capital on business," said Mr. Halden, "and my visit had nothing to do with politics. I did not talk politics and the statements attributed to me were never made."

Mr. Halden has been ill at his home since his return from St. Paul and he did not see the statements in the Minneapolis paper until they were reprinted in a Duluth paper.

BARBER BILL CAME TO $3

But Andrew Olson Ordered It All and Had to Pay.

Andrew Olson, evidently unsophisticated in the ways of the world and barber shops in particular, complained to the police this morning that it cost him $3 to get out of the shop in the Lyceum building at Fifth avenue west and Superior street. He said that all he went in for was a haircut and shave, but that he was give nan exhaustive treatment. He didn't claim that he was forced into going the whole route but explained that he got a whole lot of things which he didn't understand. Every time he was asked if he wanted anything he admitted that he answered in the affirmative. He objected to paying when the check was presented to him, but finally came across with the cash. The police took the matter up with the assistant attorney ,but found that there was nothing that could be done to help Olson to get back any part of his $3.

Asylum Inmate Kills Herself.

Jamestown, N. D., March 7.—Mrs. Gertie A. Gremsgaard of Northwood, N. D., a patient in the state insane hospital of this city, committed suicide by hanging herself with strips torn from a sheet taken from her bed. She was 33 years of age.

NIGHT LETTER SERVICE

Established Between All Offices on the Postal Telegraph System.

New York, March 7.—The Postal Telegraph-Cable and North American Telegraph company has announced that beginning Monday, March 7, it will establish a night letter service between all offices on the Postal system in the United States. Messages of this new class will be known as "night letter-telegrams," and will be accepted over the counter or by telephone in the usual way.

The charge for a night letter-telegram of fifty words or less will be the same as the tolls charged on a regular day message of ten words, and for each additional ten words or less one-fifth of this rate will be charged.

These messages must be written in plain English; code or cipher words will not be accepted. They will be accepted at any time during the day or evening, up to midnight, for delivery at destination on the morning of the next ensuing day, either by mail or messenger at the option of the company.

In making this announcement, the Postal company reiterated the statement made recently by President Mackay that the company has no intention of entering into any combination with the Western Union and Bell Telephone company and that it intends to retain its independence and maintain active and aggressive competition in the telegraph field in the future as it has in the past.

BELLE FOURCHE LAND OPEN.

Second Visit of Irrigation Project Has Been Completed.

Washington, March 7.—The secretary of the interior has announced the completion of the second unit of the Belle Fourche, S. D., irrigation project, embracing 10,000 acres, divided into forty and eighty-acre farms. These farms now are available for entry under the provisions of the homestead and reclamation laws. No lottery system is to be employed, settlers being required, after making a choice of a farm, to file their entries in the local land office, and a cash payment of $3.50 per acre must be made at the time of filing to cover the first installment of the building, maintenance and operation charges.

The area opened to entry includes some of the choicest farms in this project, situated close to a railroad. The entire cost of water right for a forty-acre farm is $1,200, payable in ten annual installments of $120 each without interest on deferred payments.

WEST END

WILL NOT BUILD IN WEST END

Proposed Lutheran Hospital Will Be Erected in the East End.

The proposed Lutheran hospital, planned for Duluth next year, will not be erected in the West end or at West Duluth, as was the original intention, but will be built in the East end, between Fifth and Seventh avenues, on either Second, Third or Fourth streets.

The committee on the hospital, comprising Rev. Carl Solomonson, Rev. J. A. Krantz, H. Iverson of Carlton and H. G. Lofgren of Superior, will report at a conference meeting this evening at the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street.

It is proposed to purchase the property at once. It is expected that it will cost close to $20,000, and that the hospital, when completed, will represent an expenditure of about $100,000. At the meeting this evening the erection of an orphans' home will also be discussed. Rev. J. A. Krantz, president of the Minnesota conference, will preside.

SELECT PLANS FOR NEW CHURCH

St. Clement's Structure Will Be Duplicate of New Building at Minot.

Rev. Raymond Basel, assistant pastor of St. Clement's Catholic church at the West end, returned Saturday afternoon from a trip through the western part of Minnesota and the Dakotas, which he has taken to gather a few ideas, which might be valuable in selecting plans for the new church edifice for the local parish.

In many of the towns in the southern and western part of Minnesota and through the Dakotas new Catholic churches have been erected and many of these edifices are striking in architecture and beautiful in design. John Nolan, one of the local parishioners, accompanied Father Raymond on his trip.

Although no definite plans have been accepted for the new church which will be erected at the southeast corner of Third street and Twenty-first avenue west, it is understood that the new house of worship may correspond closely to St. Leo's Catholic church at Minot, N. D.

The churches at Grand Forks, N. D., St. Cloud and Collegeville, Minn., were also visited. The latter church, known as St. John's Abbey, is one of the most beautiful Catholic churches in the Northwest. The new church at St. Cloud is also a handsome structure, according to Father Raymond.

The plans for the Minot church have met with the most favor. This calls for a building with a fifty-six-foot frontage and running back 124 feet. The building space available for the new church at the West end is 70 by 140. If built with these plans, the cost would approximate $25,000.

MRS. MORRISON DIES.

Well-Known West End Resident Passes Away at Daughter's Home.

Mrs. Jane Morrison, 76 years old, died Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Close, 2824 West Third street. She was the widow of the late George Morrison, and had been a resident of the West end for the past twenty years, coming to Duluth from Michigan.

She leaves four children, two of whom are residents of this city. They are Mrs. Close of West Third street, Mrs. Lucy Penhale of Duluth, George W. Morrison of Bemidji, Minn., and Robert Morrison. Her son in Bemidji has been notified and will attend the funeral.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Close, with interment at Forest Hill cemetery.

Nelson Funeral Held.

The funeral of Ole Nelson, 40 years old, of 1924½ West Fourth street, who died Friday as a result of an accident at Ore Dock No. 3 of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, in which he sustained a fractured skull, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the undertaking parlors of Olson & Crawford, 2010 West Superior street, and later from the West Duluth Masonic temple. Rev. A. J. Hoag, pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, officiated and interment was made at Oneota cemetery.

West End Shortrails.

Mrs. Adrian Beckman of 1905 West Second street will entertain the Ladies' Aid Society of the Swedish Mission church at her home, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. A. F. Hunter, who has been ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. Y. Slocum of the West end, is reported to be convalescent.

Funeral services were held this morning for Margaret, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sullivan of 2721 Railroad street, who died esterday. The funeral was held from the residence with burial at Calvary cemetery.

The Young Ladies' Society of the Swedish Mission church will be entertained tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Victor Gustafson of 3817 West Third street.

Andrew Larson of St. Paul, formerly of this city, spent Sunday on a visit with friends in the West end. Mr. Larson was formerly a clerk at a West end drug store.

Rev. Father Augustine Brockmeyer, pastor of St. Clement's Catholic church, who has been confined for the past few weeks at St. Mary's hospital, is improving.

The Luther League of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will meet at the church parlors Thursday evening, and the choir will meet for rehearsal Friday night.

Miss Verna Lindsay returned last evening to her home in Ashland, Wis., after a visit at the home of Msr. N. Bailey of 2125 West Fourth street.

The trustees of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet tomorrow evening at the home of John F. Fredin of 3 North Eleventh avenue west.

The monthly meeting of the Sunday school teachers of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will be held at the church parlors tomorrow evening.

Progressive Lodge, No. 6, Degree of Honor, will entertain at cards tomorrow afternoon at Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

SIX COUPLES TIED IN MARATHON DANCE.

San Francisco, Cal., March 7.—Six men and six women were taken to a hospital Sunday after dancing without interruption for fourteen hours and forty-one minutes at the first annual "dancing Marathon" in San Francisco. The dance began at 10:50 o'clock Saturday night and was halted at 1:31 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The six couples remaining on the floor at the close will divide a purse of $140. The legs and backs of all were badly swollen and three of the women probably will be obliged to stay in the hospital for a week or more.

FRAT MEN HAZE BOLD BURGLAR

Raid on A. T. O. House Nets Thief Empty Purses and Love Letters.

Chicago, March 7.—After a burglar, who gave his name as James Clark, had ransacked Alpha Theta Omega fraternity house at daylight Sunday, and was escaping with his loot over the University of Chicago grounds, he was discovered by the janitor. The janitor's cries brought help and twenty students, most of them dressed only in pajamas, joined in the pursuit. The burglar was captured and taken back to the fraternity house, where he was forced to undergo a bath. Later he was turned over to the police. It was discovered that his loot consisted chiefly of empty purses and bundles of love letters.

DENIES CHARGES BY STEENERSON

Herrick of Ohio Demands Congressional Inquiry Into Lobby.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 7.—Denying in detail the charges made recently in congress by Congressman Steenerson against the Merchant Marine league, Former Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio has issued a lengthy statement demanding an inquiry by congress into the allegations.

Congressman Steenerson charged that the league was an organization of interested parties, who expected to get big contracts and "make money at shipbuilding and other enterprises stimulated by the proposed ship subsidy."

Steenerson Gives Letters.

Washington, March 7.—Letters which it is claimed were written for the purpose of intimidating the members of congress into voting for ship-subsidy legislation have been presented to the sub-committee of the house committee on judiciary by Representative Steenerson, Republican, of Minnesota, who is demanding an investigation of the alleged lobby in favor of the subsidy bill now before the house.

The letters, according to Mr. Steenerson's statements, indicate that a campaign has been begun to defeat certain members of the house who opposed ship-subsidy, himself among the number. It was stated that Representatives Kustermann and Lenroot of Wisconsin were prepared to substantiate these statements.

SERIOUS CLASHES.

Police and Socialists Come Together During Demonstrations.

Berlin, March 7.—Serious conflicts between the police and Socialists involving a lengthy list of wounded, were the outcome of most impressive open-air demonstrations against the suffrage bill carried out in Berlin and the other cities of Prussia Sunday. It is estimated that in Berlin alone 120,000 persons took part in what was called a "demonstrative stroll" in various ports of the city. The most disorder was in smaller towns.

AUDIENCE SEES GIRL FALL AND BREAK NECK.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 7.—Fifteen hundred people were horror-stricken at a local vaudeville theater Sunday afternoon when a performer named Augusta Passio, while perched on her brother's head, eighteen feet above the stage, lost her balance and fell head foremost to the floor, breaking her neck. She was rushed to the hospital and an operation was hurriedly performed, but she has little chance of recovery. The man was on a table piled twelve feet high and it was the final act. For the moment the audience thought it a part of the act, but when the girl's body crumbled in a heap and a cry came from her lips, the audience understood and for a moment there was a small panic.

A GOOD CHANGE.

A Change of Food Works Wonders.

The wrong food and drink causes a lot of trouble in this world. To change the food is the first duty of every person that is ill, particularly from stomach and nervous troubles. As an illustration: A lady in Mo. has, with her husband, been brought around to health again by leaving off coffee and some articles of food that did not agree with them. They began using Postum and Grape-Nuts food. She says:

"For a number of years I suffered with stomach and bowel trouble which kept getting worse until I was very ill most of the time. About four years ago I left off coffee and began taking Postum. My stomach and bowels improved right along, but I was so reduced in flesh and so nervous that the least thing would overcome me.

"Then I changed my food and began using Grape-Nuts in addition to Postum. I lived on these two principally for about four months. Day by day I gained in flesh and strength until now the nervous trouble has entirely disappeared and I feel that I owe my life and health to Postum and Grape-Nuts.

"Husband is 73 years old and he was troubled, for a long time, with occasional cramps, and slept badly. Finally I prevailed upon him to leave off coffee and take Postum. He had stood out for a long time, but after he tried Postum for a few days he found that he could sleep and that his cramps disappeared. He was satisfied and has never gone back to coffee.

"I have a brother in California who has been using Postum for several years; his whole family use it also because they have had such good results from it."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

SURVEY OF STATE STREAMS

Water Power Resources of Minnesota Will Be Determined Soon.

It is expected that by the first of next year, the Minnesota drainage commission and the United States geological survey, working in accordance with an act passed by the last state legislature, will have completed the survey of the lakes and streams of the state. About one-third of the work has been completed.

The work consists in getting data on the rivers and lakes, with a view to determining water power possibilities. Engineers have been in the field for five months and have done considerable work in Rum river, Crow river, Cannon river, Red Lake river, St. Louis river and Root river. Another party has been at work at Mille Lacs securing data by which to determine the storage possibilities of that body of water.

According to the United States geological report, Minnesota has a water-power resource of between 300,000 and 400,000-horse power. Only 152,000-horsepower has been developed. To date, the survey that is being made gives the following data: In Rum river there is a fall of 300 feet, of which about 20 has been utilized for water power; Crow Wing river has a fall of 25 feet, none of which has been used; only 77 feet of the 300-foot fall of Cannon river has been developed, and Red Lake river has a fall of 335 feet, of which only 36 feet has been developed.

GOMPERS ATTACKS THE SHERMAN LAW.

Chicago, March 7.—"If labor unions cannot live under the anti-trust law, the law will have to go," declared Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address here Sunday. Mr. Gompers discussed a recent decision of the federal court in Connecticut which assessed damages against the United Hatters of North America for injuring the business of a firm against which the union had a strike.

"The Sherman anti-trust law as it now exists is not an anti-trust law," he said. "It is an anti-association law. I hold that what one man or 100 men may do lawfully as individuals may be done by the same men collectively. To make the power of the employer absolute over the wage-earner is the purpose of the law as interpreted by the courts.

BIG TELEPHONE FIGHT.

Rival Lines Waging Battle in East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the city council tomorrow night two important franchise matters will be considered. One is the application of the Grand Forks Street Railway company for a franchise to operate in this city, while the other is that of the Tri-State Telephone company for permission to extend its sytem into East Grand Forks. A hard fight is being made against the Tri-State Telephone company, the Northwestern, or Bell company, being in the campaign. At the present time the Northwestern has the field alone.

The fact that most of the rural lines running out of East Grand Forks are on the Tri-State company wires makes the fight especially interesting, as the farmers are taking a hand in the matter and may boycott the city if the Tri-State fails in securing the coveted franchise.

FAMILY'S ILL LUCK.

Soo Brakeman Killed Friday; Last of Family Except Mother.

Park Falls, Wis., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Hadican, the Soo brakeman killed at Abbotsford, Wis., lived here. He was the only support of a widowed mother. Hard luck seems to follow this family, as ten years ago the senior Hadican had his back broken and lingered almost a year, and four years ago a boy took sick and died in twenty-four hours, and the last fatality cleans out the whole family excepting the aged mother.

MANITOBA DEBATERS WIN FROM NORTH DAKOTANS.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 7.—Manitoba university Friday evening evened up the score with North Dakota state university when they won the international debate. The question for debate was "Resolved, That trade unions are not in the highest interests of society in the United States and Canada." Manitoba debaters, J. G. Thorsen, Harry Dood and Percy Heywood, upheld the affirmative, while Harry Dickinson, Clyde Duffy and Albert Wold represented North Dakota. The debate was followed by a banquet and general jollification. The judges for the debate were W. P. Davies and Rev. F. M. McCoy of this city, and R. C. Johnson, Winnipeg.

HAVE RECOVERED BODY

Of the Minnesotan Drowned Recently at Newport News.

Brainerd, Minn., March 7.—Mrs. Alex Rose of Klondyke, while in Brainerd yesterday between trains, stated that the body of her brother, whose death by drowning at Newport News, was chronicled in the press some time ago has been found. It was not taken to his home in Scotland, but buried by the Masonic fraternity at Newport News.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL.

Aged Employe of Hennepin Mill Company Is Dead.

Little Falls, Minn., March 7.—George Coultas, aged 67, one of the oldest employes of the Hennepin paper mill, died Friday afternoon of injuries received while driving spruce logs to the mill.

One of the stakes on the sled used in hauling logs broke allowing the logs to slide from the rack. Mr. Coultas was caught by the falling logs and his right leg broken just above the knee.

He was hurried home and a physician called without avail.

Here Are New Silk and Dress Goods That Eloquently Herald the Advent of Spring

A colorful dress goods season is Spring 1910 to be. Rivaling Nature's own handiwork, designers have delved into the mysteries of color combinations, and their fondest hopes are materially realized in this gorgeous fabric array of philharmonic splendor.

At first glance here, the completeness of stocks, superiority of fabrics, distinctive individuality of designs and colors are apparent. Many women, after an inspection of other stores, have evinced great surprise at the surpassing beauty and exclusiveness of our fabrics. The good news spreads, crowds increase, and interest augments in the fabric store. This will be a week of unusual interest here for fashion followers who are planning Easter suits and dresses, and for critical examination we offer—

A special purchase made by our buyer while in New York of 150 sample pieces of 45-inch French serge, satin cloth, prunella, poplin and wool taffeta. These being samples, of course unusual care was taken in the weaving, so they represent the choicest fabrics of the market. Rumored Missabe May Be Extended From Coleraine to Aitkin County.

This Extension Would Tap a Rich Mineral and Timber Section in Vicinity.

Cohasset, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is rumored on what appears to be reliable authority, that the Duluth Missabe & Northern railway this season, will extend its line from its present terminus at Coleraine, in a southwesterly direction to the new mining district which has been under exploration for the past two years in the vicinity of Pokegama Lake. The report has it that the extension will cross the Great Northern road and the Mississippi river at or near Cohasset, as these newly discovered ore bodies lie just across the river and in the vicinity of this town, and that it is the Missabe's intention to push the extension to completion this season, and that the new terminus of the road will be in the vicinity of Shovel Lake, a new town on the new Soo line in the northwestern part of Aitkin county.

This is said to mean that it is the intention of the Missabe system to make a connection with the Soo, opening up a section of country rich in timber, mineral and agricultural resources, much of which is now isolated for want of railway facilities, or at least that portion of it lying between Pokegama Lake and the new Soo line is.

Industries at Cohasset.

At Cohasset, where it is said the Missabe line will cross the Great Northern, and the Mississippi river, are several flourishing industries in the way of mills and a very large woodenware factory, the latter running full capacity and away behind its orders. These plants are large shippers which makes Cohasset one of the busiest stations on the Great Northern line. Tributary to Cohasset are the waters of the Mississippi river and several other important streams and lakes, the Mississippi being navigable to steamboats for a hundred miles above this point, and it is said that there is virgin timber along these waters that is suitable for the demands of mills and factories at Cohasset, sufficient to keep the wheels turning for the next thirty years. All this material must be taken out of the river at Cohasset as the government dam below that town prevents its being taken further down by water.

Pokegama Lake Mines

That there are proven iron mines in the vicinity of Pokegama lake, is beyond question. The mining companies that have several properties in the district under lease have been paying royalties on them for some time past, and it was expected that the extension of the railroad to them would be made last year when the surveys were completed, as it is known that the royalties being paid annually by the mining companies on these idle mines are large.

The country through which the new road will travel is not rough or stony, as many would surmise, but is a nice lying stretch of territory and highly suited to settlement by farmers, for the soil is rich and productive as has been proven wherever tried.

At present Cohasset seems to be in the limelight as a coming important railway and steamboat point, as the place already has the start and is growing right along, the population having doubled in the last two years. The place gives employment to many men, and every house in the town is occupied with demands for more.

Hibbing Woman Going West.

Hibbing, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Mary Fahey has returned from a two months' visit at Cloquet. She will remain with her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Demgen, another month or six weeks, and then start for her home in Everett, Wash. On her way West she will stop over at St. Paul and visit her son, J. P. Fahey, for a month.

NOTES FROM ELY.

Ely, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. G. T. Ayers and wife, Mrs. O. W. Parker and Mrs. James Osborne comprised a theater party who visited Duluth on Friday.

David Ulter and family left on Saturday for the state of Washington, where Mr. Ulter has purchased a fruit farm.

Mrs. James Moonan was a Duluth visitor on Saturday.

The Misses Addie and Josephine Van Blarcom entertained a number of their friends on Friday evening at their home.

STRIPPERS GET A NEW MACHINE

Jones Bros. Order Plant Better Adapted to Work at Crosby Mine.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Jones Brothers Stripping company expect to make a few changes in their machines that will be more convenient for the kind of work they are doing at the Crosby mine.

Their large ninety-five ton Bucyrus shovel that is now at work in their open pit is too large for the work on account of the sandy dirt they are working in, and causes this large machine to sink below the surface. A new seventy-ton Bucyrus shovel is being bought by the company and will be here from South Milwaukee, Wis., and will be installed in place of the ninety-five. Joseph Rowan, a steam shovel runner will go with the old shovel to Middletown, Ohio, where Jones Brothers have a contract, and this shovel will be put into use there.

Nashwauk Notes.

Mrs. Hugh Riley, wife of the late Hugh Riley, who died after a lingering illness at the Grand Rapids hospital, returned to her home here Friday night, where she will remain with relatives. Mrs. Riley expects to sell her residence here, which is located on Lower Second street, and will leave for Hibbing to remain.

J. C. Ohles has recently completed a six-room residence on Fourth street, and it is being occupied by Mr. Hanson, formerly of Grand Rapids, a carpenter.

Frank Srog, one of the owners of the Phoenix saloon, was a business caller to Virginia and other range towns Saturday.

THE CRIPPLES' TICKET.

Makes Third in the Nashwauk Political Race.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The voters of Nashwauk have been surprised by the appearance of another ticket to be voted on Tuesday.

There are now three tickets in the field that will make things interesting. The last ticket that was put up Saturday is known as the "Cripples' ticket," as follows: President, Crockett Brown; trustees, Charles Kaminen, Wilbur Ohles and Charles McConnell; treasurer, A. Griffin; clerk, Arthur Lanto; constables, Alfred R. Nelson and Emil Hammerstein; justice of the peace, John L. Nelson.

LABORER DROPS DEAD.

Moses Pelto Gets Sudden Call at Mine in Ely.

Ely, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Moses Pelto, a Finnish laborer, dropped dead at the Pioneer mine on Thursday morning, while at work.

He was 58 years of age, and leaves a wife and family.

The high school students enjoyed a party in the high school auditorium on Friday evening. Games and dancing were the amusements of the evening, concluding with an elaborate lunch.

POIRIER IN DENIAL.

Virginian Says He Never Made Statements Attributed to Him.

Virginia, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Otto A. Poirier, a local attorney, is very much incensed over an alleged interview which was published in a Duluth and a Virginia paper on March 4, regarding the report of County Examiner Wasgatt on school matters. Mr. Poirier denies that he made remarks regarding Mr. Wasgatt or the statements quoted in the newspapers and feels that he and the school board are placed in a false position and he wants the matter understood and corrected.

"The examiner's report and the entire matter is in the hands of the school board for proper action and the same will be properly and fully determined after proper investigation by the auditor's office and the board," he said. "The remarks quoted in the papers were not made and are absolutely wrong and unfair to all parties concerned and are an injustice to Mr. Wasgatt and the school board and seem to have emanated from an unknown source.

"I regret exceedingly that they should be reported as coming from an interview with me."

SCHOOL ELECTION WAS TAME AFFAIR

Proposition to Bond Virginia School District Carried Easily.

Virginia, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposition to bond the school district in the sum of $150,000 for the completion of the new technical high school received almost unanimous support at the election held Saturday.

The total vote was 208, of which 201 were in favor of the bond issue and 7 against. The election was a quiet one and neither those in favor or those opposed to the issue did any hustling to get out the vote.

TO INTERVIEW COUNTY BOARD

Committee From the Virginia Commercial Club Is Coming to Duluth.

Virginia, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A committee from the Commercial club will go to Duluth tomorrow to confer with the county board in regard to the changes of the present plans of the new courthouse for Virginia. The committee is composed of President N. B. Arnold, A. C. Osborn, J. A. Kennedy, John Costin, B. F. Britts and J. D. Lamont.

The board of education has received from Tyrie, Bell & Chapman, architects for the new technical school building, a handsome steel table for the library room in which is held the regular session of the board.

Contractor Andrew Grande, who is constructing a warehouse near the Missabe tracks, has the building nearly completed. The building is 40 by 120 feet, three stories high and will be used by Mr. Grande for the storing of building material.

The Misses Bessie, Margaret and Josephine Murphy of this city took part in the Emmet's day program at Duluth Friday night, Miss Bessie singing while her sisters played harp and violin accompaniment.

Mike Schlals, a former resident of this city, but now located at Bayfield, Wis., last week sold his Beech street property to R. Fallenbenden.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church will meet for work with Mrs. W. W. Baldwin, 309 Lake Boulevard, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Jenvissatl, who have been at the Mayo hospital at Rochester, are expected home tonight.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Norwegian Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. Carlson at the home of Mrs. Andrew Nilson, 410 Locust street, Wednesday afternoon.

Ernest Metcalfe has returned from a trip of several months through the West.

Mrs. A. C. Osborn has gone to New York city for an extended visit with her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Liscomb have moved into the Biggins house on Cedar street.

The Study club met this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas Gill. Papers were read by Mrs. W. E. Hannaford, Mrs. O. P. Johnson and Mrs. J. L. Owens.

Mrs. E. B. Grignon entertained a small company of friends Thursday night at a Onija party.

NEW RAINY LAKE AGENT.

W. B. Wescott Succeeds W. W. Woodworth at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., March 7.—Special to The Herald.)—W. W. Woodward, who recently resigned as local agent of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway to accept the position of chief clerk for the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company, at Kinmount, left for that place Saturday. His family will take up their residence there in about a week.

Mr. Woodward has been succeeded as agent here by W. B. Wescott, who has held the position of cashier for the railway company here for the past several years.

Fred Bassette left yesterday morning for Hot Springs, Ark., expecting to be absent for about six weeks.

Senator P. R. Vail spent the day in Duluth on business.

Joseph Backus returned last night from a business visit to Duluth.

Frank Lavelle of the Palace hotel at Hibbing, spent Saturday in the city as a guest of Judge J. H. Fleming.

Sandy McDonald spent Saturday and Sunday at his home in Duluth.

NASHWAUK TO BENEFIT BY OPENING PROPERTY.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is currently reported that Pickands-Mather company will open its property a half a mile northwest of here on the old cemetery site.

If this proves true, this village will no doubt be one of the most prosperous of the range, as the mines that are located here now will all be working full force the coming season.

ROAD TO MUD LAKE NEEDS IMPROVING.

Virginia, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Commissioner Ryan of Hibbing, has spent several days in this vicinity looking after the road needs of the farmers in this end of the district. One of the roads demanding attention is the highway leading to the Mud lake district, in which are located some forty-five farmers whose only practicable means of exit is the road north to the Virginia-Mountain Iron road, making a distance of three miles to go to get to this city, where the building of a mile of road would give them easy access to a market center.

Chisholm Miner Buried.

Chisholm, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Matt Novoselac, a miner at the Glen mine, was held from St. Joseph's Catholic church, Rev. John Tscholl conducting the services. Interment was at Hibbing. The deceased was about 42 years of age and was born in Austria. He was a resident of Chisholm for the past four or five years.

IS BEING MOVED.

Hibbing, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Winston-Dear company, which has the contract for stripping the Buffalo and Susquehanna mine, has begun moving its equipment from the Monroe Tener at Chisholm and will begin stripping at the Buffalo within two weeks.

The Winston-Dear company has ordered a standard gauge outfit for the work of stripping the Buffalo and Susquehanna, but this cannot be secured for some months and the dinkey outfit will be used temporarily.

HOUSE MOVER IS CRUSHED TO DEATH

Hibbing, Minn., March 7. — (Special to The Herald.)—Ole Jensen, aged 61, met a tragic fate when his head and shoulders were crushed under a house he was moving from camp 2 of the Winston-Dear company.

Mr. Jensen had jacked one corner of the house, and then inserted his head and shoulders under the house, when some of his movements dislodged the jack and the house fell on him, crushing the upper part of his body so that he died instantly.

Mr. Jensen's son arrived Saturday from Minneapolis where he also has a sister living, to take charge of the body.

ANOTHER BAD FIRE RAGES AT GILBERT

Gilbert, Minn, March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another bad fire threatened this village last night, when the Gilbert Bakery broke out into a mass of flames that gave the citizens considerable fright because the water system is not yet installed.

The prompt arrival of the volunteer department under Chiefs Cosgrove and Silver and the prompt work by their assistants soon had the fire under control, confining it to the building in which it started and two barns in the rear. The bakery burned to the ground and the fire later spread to the barns in the rear of the bakery, destroying them and cremating two horses that were unable to escape. The fire spread in the direction of the Colvin-Robb lumber yards and the flames shot over the residences in the Pettit location and the More hospital and for a time the threatened buildings were thought to be in immediate danger of destruction, but a change in the course of the wind prevented the flames from doing harm.

Water was secured from the Pettit location and though other adequate fire fighting apparatus was unobtainable, the citizens with old-time bucket and hose brigades managed to put out the fire.

BETTER VILLAGE WILL BE RESULT

Chisholm, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A greater and bigger Chisholm is the slogan of both tickets in the field to be voted on tomorrow. They are called the village and the caucus tickets.

The two tickets follow:

Village.	Caucus.
E. N. Nelson...President	H. W. Fugure
C. A. Munro...Trustee	J. S. O'Neil
C. E. French....Trustee	J. Schweiger
Frank Kennedy.Trustee	B. Magnusson
E. I. Casey.....Recorder	J. F. Shellman
F. W. Hurt...Treasurer	B. Le Doux, Jr.
....Constable	Mike Heglund

Both are pledged not only for a greater Chisholm, but for purity in civic affairs and strict enforcement of the laws.

TWO AURORA TICKETS.

Interest in Tuesday's Election Has Become More Acute.

Aurora, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Politics, which have been dormant here this spring, suddenly livened up Saturday when the opposition ticket was announced. The first ticket to be in the field was, President, T. J. Nicholas; trustees, M. Lurn, John Grahek and Charles Hill; recorder, C. H. Graham; treasurer, J. W. Lang. Later Hill was replaced by Capt. Polglase as trustee. The opposition ticket is, President, Dr. Darrow; trustees, C. R. Hill, John Hudson and Peter Standahar; recorder, C. G. Vanderpoel; treasurer, Charles Olson, L. Tillmans has no opposition for justice of the peace.

In the town of White the following nominees are up: Supervisor, J. T. Vickers; clerk, F. O. Adamson and J. W. Lang; treasurer, C. R. Hill and Tony Pasich; overseer of highways, Chris Erickson; justice of peace, Frank Hill.

TROPICAL SNAKE IN BUNCH OF BANANAS.

Aurora, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—While pulling bananas from a bunch for a customer in West's store Saturday, Miss Anna Lundgren discovered a snake curled around the stock. The snake was killed by Mr. West. It was evidently of a Southern species called the copper snake, the bite of which is poisonous. It had a large flat head and measured nearly three feet in length.

Discusses World Wide Peace.

Eveleth, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. R. C. Johnson gave a very interesting and entertaining sermon on "World Wide Peace" in the Methodist church last evening before a large, appreciative and attentive congregation.

Rev. Philip A. Schwarz pastor of the First Presbyterian church, recently commenced a series of sermons devoted to studies of important Biblical characters and preached the second of the series on "Meriam" last evening before a very large congregation.

Weds Park Falls Woman.

Eveleth, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—William J. Brown of the Fayal location and Miss Cecile Tappin of Park Falls, Wis., were married Saturday evening by Rev. R. C. Johnson of the Methodist church at the parsonage.

Opposition Coleraine Ticket.

Coleraine, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A ticket in opposition to the caucus nominees has developed at the eleventh hour, headed by H. L. Kountz for president.

The other candidates on the opposition ticket are Edwin R. Blair, George Wilson and Dr. C. L. May for aldermen; Walter C. Ballinger for treasurer, and H. L. Cooper for justice of the peace. No opposition candidate is named for village recorder. W. J. Stock, the present recorder, will run for the office as an independent candidate, however, and Al H. Powers will be an independent candidate for alderman.

BIG CELEBRATION

Of St. Patrick's Day Planned By Hibbing Hibernians.

Hibbing, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of Division No. 3, Ancient Order of Hibernians, are arranging for a celebration of St. Patrick's day that will completely eclipse anything heretofore attempted in Northern Minnesota in honor of Erin's patron saint.

The Fisher company now playing at the Healy theater has ebeen engaged to put on "Kathleen Mavourneen" for the evening of March 17. This will be but one feature of the evening however, for a most notable program has been arranged. Judge Hughes will preside; James P. Boyle, the eloquent young lad from Minneapolis where he also has a sister living, to take charge of the body.

James P. Boyle, the eloquent young lad from Eveleth, will deliver an address, and between the acts of the play Irish specialties will be put on.

The officers of the Ancient Order of Hibernians are: Con Keppel, president; Jim Madden, vice president; John Sheehy, recording secretary; E. W. Lansing, financial secretary; J. J. Cox, treasurer, and M. P. Flannagan, chairman of the standing committee.

LARGE EVELETH FUNERAL.

Many Friends of Victim of Mine Accident Pay Tribute.

Eveleth, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Villamini Samini, who was killed in the No. 2 Adams mine, by the falling of some lagging, was held yesterday afternoon from the St. Patrick's church, Father Floyd officiating. Many friends of the deceased from Eveleth and the nearby towns attended and about seventy-five carriages followed the body to its final resting place in the Virginia cemetery. The Eveleth City band and the local Italian lodge of which the deceased was a member, followed in a body to the Virgima cemetery.

The deceased was about 24 years of age, single and very popular here, having resided in Eveleth for about a year, during which time he was employed at the Fayal and Adams mines. He is survived by a cousin, John Bartinelli, who resides here, and brothers and sisters who live in the old country.

TOWNSHIP OFFICERS NAMED AT EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the caucus held Saturday evening by the voters of the Missabe Mountain township, D. A. Springer, the present supervisor, was unanimously renominated for a term of three years. S. E. Helps, the present clerk, was renominated.

The fight for the treasurer's position proved very interesting, William Burke, the present incumbent, being nominated with 209 votes to Alfred Davey's 128. The overseer of the highway contest was also close, Anton Mustar, the present incumbent, securing 146 votes to Joseph Smolki's 79. For the positions of justices of peace, for which two offices are open, Justice Ed Moylan, the present incumbent, and A. E. MacInnis were unanimously nominated. For the position of constable Thomas J. Murphy was unanimously nominated by acclamation.

Clyde Campbell was appointed chairman of the caucus and City Engineer Frank A. Bowman of Gilbert, clerk; Alderman P. Cosgrove of Gilbert, J. P. N. Ward and B. Sherman, judges.

The citizens of the Pettit, Schley, Monica, Elba and Gilbert locations on the Gilbert end of the township, and the citizens of the Commodore, Franklin and Virginia locations on the Virginia end of the township, have formed the following ticket, under the title of the "Independent;" Supervisor Thomas A. Flannigan, the Pettit mine district superintendent; clerk, Ed Hatch, former Eveleth alderman; overseer of the highways, Anton Mustar, the present incumbent; justices of the peace, Edward Moylan, the present incumbent, and A. E. MacInnis; constable, Thomas J. Murphy; treasurer, Alfred Davey.

EVELETH IN BRIEFS.

Eveleth, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The play rendered in Finnish last evening in Urania hall by the Finnish Social club proved a dramatic as well as a financial success, and the large audience from Eveleth and nearby towns repeatedly applauded the fine dramatic performances of the actors.

G. Perlman left Saturday for Chicago, where he attended the wedding of his sister that was held yesterday.

The masquerade ball given Saturday evening under the auspices of the Carlisle orchestra in Walonlahde hall was very well attended and an enjoyable time had by all present.

Sam Siegel left yesterday in company with his brother John of Gilbert for a business trip to Minneapolis, St. Paul, Grand Rapids, Kansas City and Chicago and will be absent from the city about two weeks.

District Court Deputy U. G. Holloway and wife of Virginia were visiting with local acquaintances yesterday.

Reve R. C. Keranen of the Finnish Lutheran Concordia church visited with Virginia acquaintances yesterday.

Rev. Philip A. Schwarz of the First Presbyterian church returned Saturday from St. Paul and Southern Minnesota points after an absence of about a week.

Leaves Large Family.

Virginia, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Lewis J. Strindlund, who died Tuesday of tuberculosis, was held from the Scandinavian Mission church Friday afternoon followed by interment in Greenwood cemetery. Deceased was about 41 years of age and leaves a widower and several children.

IRREGULARITIES IN THE HANDLING OF PUBLIC FUNDS

for payment in this manner, according to the examiner's report. He searched the records of the council but failed to find any proceedings that would account for the strange manner of settling and drawing the salary.

Examiner Wasgatt found that it was the custom to allow the village officers to collect water rents and to allow them to keep a part of their collections as payment for their labor. They, it seems, were not required to make a detailed account of their collections.

Many of the bills were not signed or sworn to by the claimants as required by law. None of them bore the "o. k." of the village officer. No explanations of the character of work that was performed, was made. The nature of the improvements was not made known nor the street or avenue on which the work had been done. There was nothing on the books to show for the money paid out. The bills were very indefinite. They mentioned "labor," "labor on streets," "bill rendered," "as per bill," "lumber bill," "hardware bill," "salary," and other terms were used, that were to the mind of the examiner very indefinite.

The examiner recommends that the village adopt some system of keeping account of the money and that all the bills be itemized. He states that the present system is a very poor one.

There were no reports of work done for the village and he cites the instance of Frank A. Bowman, who was engaged to do some engineering work for the village. What the nature of the work was is unknown. It is presumed that it was to survey the site of the water works. The work, it is said, was finished long ago. The report continues: is illegal and is nothing more or less

"If the work for which Mr. Bowman was employed has been completed, the continuance of his salary as engineer si illegal and is nothing more or less than 'grafting.'"

Mr. Wasgatt recommends that a new system of bookkeeping be installed at once.

School District Report.

The report made on School District No. 22, Virginia, is very lengthy and goes into details. Some $1,620.60, Mr. Wasgatt states, has been paid out illegally. Of this amount he thinks that $358 can be accounted for.

Mr. Wasgatt calls attention to the illegal payments by Joseph Roskilly, while acting as director in May of 1909. The amount of these payments is $900. The examiner states that no attempt has been made to recover this money.

The report states that the payment of $112.50 to N. H. Homer was contrary to law. The amount was entered as salary. The payment of the same amount to Helen E. Coffman was also considered illegal. Both, it is said, had previously been paid in full. The amount of $74.10 for the building of tennis courts, was illegal, according to the examiner and was a misappropriation of funds. There is an item of $63.50 unaccounted for.

It is claimed that H. E. Fossness was paid $358 more than the work was worth. This item may be straightened out, however.

Mr. Wasgatt expresses the opinion that it is both irregular and improper for Prof. Bliss, superintendent of the Virginia schools, to pay wages, purchase books, purchase work of art, text-books, library books and conduct lecture courses with money belonging to the school district. He states that it is his opinion that many of the lectures were not given with an educational purpose and that they were given not under the auspices of the school, but under the auspices of the "Virginia lecture course committee," of which Prof. Bliss was treasurer.

The report states that supplies were bought indiscriminately without requisition or authority. The examiner suggests that a voucher system be adopted which will bear the "O. K." of a business agent who shall be appointed to look after the details of the work.

The report says that the minutes of the meetings held by the board, are sadly lacking in detail and that while the report of the treasurer balances as to totals, it does not show the distribution of the funds.

MANY CRIMES LAID TO HYDE

in connection with the alleged poisoning of the Swope family. In these Dr. Hyde is accused of poisoning with typhoid germs with intent to murder Margaret Swope, Stella Swope, Sarah Swope, Lucy Lee Swope, Nora Bell Dickson, Georgia Compton, Mildred Fox and Leonora Copridge, a colored girl. All these persons were stricken with typhoid fever while Dr. Hyde was attending the Swope family.

Three counts are contained in the indictment charging the poisoning of Margaret Swope. The first count charges that he attempted poisoning her by administering typhoid fever germs on or about Nov. 25. The second accuses him of trying to poison her by giving a hypodermic injection on Dec. 22. In the third count he is alleged to have attempted poisoning on Dec. 18 by giving her strychnine and other poisons.

Surprise Is Sprung.

Indictments in connection with the illness of the Misses Fox, Dickson, Compton and the Copridge girl came as a surprise. Miss Fox was a visitor at the Swope home during the illness of members of the family. The Misses Dickson and Compton were employed at the home as governess and seamstress respectively. The Copridge girl was a maid.

SKULASON IS IN THE RACE

complication before the campaign progresses very far.

Will Not Withdraw.

"The statement that I will withdraw from the congressional race because of action of the 'elimination' committee of the Insurgents in 'eliminating' me, is not founded on fact, says Mr. Skulason. "I refuse to abide by the decision of this committee. They never have had any authority over me or my candidacy. I had no voice in their selection or the meeting at which they were selected, and had no notice of this final meeting at which the ticket was decided upon. In legal parlance, they never had any jurisdiction over my person or the subject matter of my candidacy. The object of the primary law is, as I understand it, to let the people do the eliminating. It is so easy to get up an elimination committee that each candidate for public office could have one of his own."

T. R. Mockler of Bismarck has just announced his candidacy for congress, and proposes staying in the race to the finish.

the prohibition of the anti-trust act, while preserving unimpaired the control of the interstate commerce commission over all such agreements. It is declared that the provision is in exact compliance with the declaration in the Republican platform.

Bucks Party Platform.

After quoting the clause of the platform concerning such agreements, the report says:

"The contention that this declaration can only be complied with by requiring the approval of such aggreements by the interstate commerce commission before they become operative is, in the opinion of the committee, destitute of the slightest foundation.

"This section in question carefully preserves the principles clearly enunciated in the platform, and only by a willful distortion of language could it be contended that this carefully guarded provision involved any abandonment of the principle of competition between naturally competing lines."

The report indorses the proposed court of commerce.

Plenty to Do.

The claim that there will not be enough business to keep the tribunal occupied is not seriously considered by the commission.

The bill gives the attorney general entire charge and control of the interests of the government in all cases and proceedings in the court of commerce and in the supreme court on appealed cases. This is a change from the existing law.

To Investigate New Rates.

The provision for investigation by the commission of proposed increases in rates or changes in classification, as soon as they are filed, is supported; also the proposition that the commission should be empowered to postpone the effective date for a reasonable period to enable it to investigate the proposed action. The bill fixes this reasonable period at sixty days.

As to the provisions relating to through rates and through routes, the shipper's right to route shipments and the making of annual reports, the majority follows the line of argument advanced by Attorney General Wickersham in his published abstract of the bill.

Concerning the important sections relating to the purchase of competing lines, the report says:

"The provisions of the Shearman anti-trust law so completely cover that ground that the committee deemed it unnecessary to attempt a repetition of those prohibitions in this act.

Attention is called to the fact that the bill provides a means of ascertaining by judicial investigation and determination whether a bona fide contract proposed to be entered into respecting the acquisition of stock or property or railroads is in violation of the prohibitions of the Sherman act before large investments of capital are made in reliance upon a seeming, although possibly wholly illusory legality.

SALE OF NEW DULUTH LOTS

The New Duluth Company has decided that it will on the 21st day of March, 1910, place on sale between 350 and 400 lots in the First Division of its splendid Townsite of New Duluth, at prices ranging from $22.00 to $48.00 per front foot for business lots, and from $11.00 to $16.00 per front foot for residence lots.

This division of New Duluth is a table land, elevated about sixty feet above St. Louis river, which is near its southerly boundary, has a number of graded streets and sidewalks, has the advantages of schools and churches, is beautifully situated for residences and homes, of which it already has a large number, and adjoins Manufacturers' Division, which doubtless will in the near future be the location of many manufactories.

Commonwealth avenue and Grand avenue are designed to be the business streets of New Duluth.

The proximity of New Duluth to the development work of the United States Steel Corporation and the Interstate Bridge, and to its new steel plant, which it is beginning to construct, insures a large population in New Duluth before the end of the present year. The New Duluth Company can therefore recommend investments in New Duluth property to all.

For the sale of lots herein proposed, The New Duluth Company will receive applications until March 21st, 1910, from parties desiring to purchase. The applicant should state the number of lots he desires to purchase. That each applicant may be treated impartially as to choice of lots offered, a plan to be followed will be adopted on the morning of March 21st, to determine the order of his turn to make selection of lots. To entitle each applicant to his choice of lots, he or his representative must appear on March 21st, and in his turn exercise his choice of the lots. Ten per cent of purchase price must be paid on the selection of lots March 2st; within thirty days thereafter 10 per cent additional is to be paid on the delivery of land contract in the usual form for the lots sold. The terms of payment for the balance shall be as follows: One-fifth of purchase price in six months, one-fifth in twelve months, one-fifth in eighteen months, one-fifth in twenty-four months after date of sale with 6 per cent interest on all deferred payments.

Title to all lots sold is to be good. All land contracts issued for lots sold at this sale shall provide that if the purchaser shall construct a building to cost not less than $1,000 on any business lot, and not less than $500 on any residence lot, within one year from date of sale, that one-fifth of the purchase price of said lot represented by the installment maturing next after the completion of such building, shall be cancelled as an inducement for improving the property; providing the lot is free from liens or claims, which might jeopardize the company's security thereon for the balance of the purchase price.

A list of prices for all lots to be offered at this sale, and maps showing the location of the lots and its proximity to the New Steel Plant can be secured on application by mail or otherwise to

THE SURVIVAL OF THE UNFIT.

Quay died in the fullness of his power. Platt had the melancholy fate of outliving his power, and of lagging superfluous on the stage to realize that his undoing was the result of an act of his own which also did an unexpected great service to his country. When Platt conspired with others to make Theodore Roosevelt vice president, doubtless it was in the hope that he would be overwhelmed in the obscurity of that office, and in the certainty that he would be removed as an abstacle to the prosperity of the things Platt stood for in New York politics.

But President McKinley was shot and Roosevelt became president, and out of his administration, inspired and supported by the earnest and enlightened conscience of the people, came a new era in politics which swept from the face of the political world the power that made Platt what he was.

This is the irony of fate, indeed; yet so it was that though Quay died in the plentitude of his power in his state and the nation and high in the councils of the Republican party, Platt lived to see himself forgotten and ignored, except when the uneasy finger of suspicion probed into some ancient iniquity in which he had had a share. No longer the "easy boss", or any kind of boss; no longer chief whisperer in the "Amen corner," which indeed had itself disappeared with the system which lolled on its cushioned seats while it conspired to corrupt the fountain-heads of justice and the people's law; no longer able to keep a deft finger on the wires that manipulate affairs or a greedy hand beneath the spout out of which poured the profits of his cunning: thus Platt died unrespected, and, worse than that, unfeared.

Platt and Quay are gone, and the infamous misalliance between business and politics for which they stood is going. Too long the people trusted their affairs to the children of this incestuous marriage. They are doing it willingly no longer; and that they do it at all is due only to the survival, in the Taft administration, of the Hannaism which keeps Aldrich in power and Taft under his thumb.

It would be a fine thing if it could be said that Quayism and Plattism died with Quay and Platt; but the best that can be said is that Platt and Quay, dying, left the system for which they stood in a dying condition. Like Platt, it lags superfluous on the stage, decrepit, weakened in mind and body, clinging by instinct rather than by strength to the reins of government. Aldrich, who is more subtle in his methods, more of the general manager for Special Privilege and less of the direct political agent and doer of dirty work, is its chief connection with government, and Cannon, who is even more brutal and conscienceless in his methods, is its second connection with the machinery of government.

Quay is gone, and Platt is gone; and be sure Aldrich and Cannon, too, will go: and when they go, whether taken away by the hand of death or by the rude brush of political defeat, the people will sweep away the remnants of the coil of corruption that has made democracy a joke in this country and that has created an industrial feudalism more deadly than any political tyranny that ever drove free men into revolution.

THE POSTAL SAVINGS BANK.

The senate Saturday afternoon passed a postal savings bank bill, and that is a long step ahead.

It is true that the bill has been loaded with amendments coming from sources that make them legitimate objects of suspicion. It is also true that the bill will not be law until the house has passed it and the president has signed it. But if there is wrong in these amendments the house will be told about it, and the house is on the eve of an election before which it must face the people and give accounting for its use of the public trust imposed in its members. If the bill as passed isn't all it ought to be, it can be improved later; for it is easier to amend a law already on the statute book than it is to put it there, when it is a law extending to the people something they need and demand.

The postal savings bank is needed by the people, and it is demanded by them. The Herald was one of the first newspapers in the country—if not the first—to advocate it; and the demand for it has existed through the greater part of a generation.

It is believed that the creation of a postal savings bank will call out of hiding nearly a billion dollars of money that now never sees the inside of a bank vault. Deposited in the postoffices, this money will be redisposited in the national banks, to be available for circulation and as a basis for credit. As every dollar of actual cash is worth five dollars in credit, the postal savings bank means the addition to the available supply of money and credit of four or five billions of dollars, which will permit expansion of business and industry without the dubious resort to a central bank scheme which would increase Wall street's control of the finances of the country.

Many bankers have feared the postal savings bank because they believed it would draw deposits away from them. We do not believe it will work out that way. It will draw out of hiding millions of dollars that because the individual amounts are very small, or because the owners have feared private banks and haven't acquired the habit of saving, never reached any bank. Individual deposits are limited to $500, and the rate of interest is only 2 per cent, while private savings banks, which under present laws are nearly as safe as government banks, pay at least 3 per cent. Thousands of people who never have saved will learn to save through the postal savings bank, and when their deposits reach the maximum, many will withdraw them and put them in the private banks for the sake of the higher interest.

All of this providing, of course, the postal savings bank bill is not wrecked on the reefs toward which its enemies will try to steer it.

A POSSIBLE WAY OUT.

The February number of Public Affairs, the intelligent and interesting bulletin of the Duluth Commercial club, has this to say of the movement to get better service from the express companies:

> Requests have been sent out to the agents of express companies in Duluth for a conference upon delivery limits and other matters of which there has been complaint. Favorable replies have been received from four of the companies and others have indicated that they will enter the conference.
> It has been pointed out that while there is now no authority for prescribing terms, it would be feasible to obtain from the legislature authority for the common council to establish free delivery limits and to name the rates by ordinance for the whole city, governing state business only. If that course is followed, it would be optional with the express companies whether to adopt voluntarily the same regulations as to their interstate business.

Possibly all that is asked may be gained by a conference; probably, however, not so much will come out of it. Still, it is something to have the express companies consent to confer, because they would hardly do that unless they were prepared to concede something.

If the conference should fail, legislation unquestionably will be resorted to, and in that connection here is a suggestion that should be considered, and which is offered for that purpose:

Why would it not be possible to license express agents just as employment agents, for instance, are licensed now, and to make the issuing of licenses contingent upon the agreement of the agents to make such reasonable extensions of service as the city needs? If the city is not authorized by law to require such licenses, doubtless the legislature would willingly enact such authorization.

There are legal aspects to be considered, of course, but on the whole the idea seems feasible enough. If the express companies couldn't do business in Duluth without taking out licenses for their agents, and if the agents couldn't get licenses unless they agreed to give the service the city needs, the requirements of the situation would be met.

The express companies undoubtedly would claim that such regulation couldn't be made to apply to interstate business. Perhaps that is true, and perhaps it isn't. That would depend upon whether a package sent from New York to Duluth completes its interstate trip when it reaches the station or the express office, or whether that trip is not legally completed until it reaches the address of the consignee. And if that address were outside of the free delivery limits, surely there ought to be a way of compelling the express companies to complete that interstate trip, since they would assert so strenuously that it would not be completed until it is delivered.

At any rate, it seems entirely feasible and practicable to require the express agents to take out licenses, and to make those licenses contingent upon the agreement to give reasonably adequate service.

LUXURY, NEED AND THE TARIFF.

Says the St. Cloud Journal-Press, in a defense of the protective tariff system as it is applied by the Republican party: "The greatest amount of revenue is placed on the luxuries and is paid by the rich."

That is easy to say, but harder to prove. And even if it were susceptible of proof, it wouldn't reveal the whole story.

For the issue of the tariff is not based upon the amount of revenue derived from it, or even from what sources that revenue is raised. The real issue is the cost of the tariff to the people of this country, and whether that cost is not wholly out of the proportion to the admitted benefits of the tariff.

The cost of the tariff and the revenues derived from it are two very different things.

In many cases the tariff is prohibitive, and there is no revenue at all. Yet though the government gets no revenue, the people pay the cost just the same, because the protected manufacturers combine behind the tariff wall which insures them against foreign competition, to throttle domestic competition and raise prices to the unjust height permitted by the prohibitive tariff.

It is estimated that the cost of the tariff to the American people is from $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 a year. Taking the lower figure, which is unquestionably too low, it is an enormous charge to pay for the doubtful benefits of protection.

Out of that tremendous charge upon the people but a little over $300,000,000 a year gets into the public treasury. The remainder comes out of the pockets of the people and goes into the bank accounts of the beneficiaries of the tariff special privilege. Even if all the tariff revenue were paid by the rich on their luxuries it would be a small item, for it isn't the revenues that count, but the total cost. It is not hard to understand the high cost of living when it is realized that to the cost of everything they need to feed, clothe, shelter and warm themselves, the American people must add enough to make up that enormous tribute of $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 a year which is the cost to them of the protective tariff system.

Just a word as to the statement of the Journal-Press that "the greatest amount of revenue is placed on the luxuries and is paid by the rich." In 1908 the revenues derived from the tariff amounted to $329,110,915.39.

Of that total only $68,693,957.48 came from liquors, tobacco, jewelry, precious stones, silks and automobiles; and nearly as much, or $60,338,523.31, was derived from sugar and molasses. Though President Taft has assured the people that the tariff on food products does not affect their price because this is the greatest food-exporting nation in the world, the tariff yielded $19,181,915.95 from duties on agricultural products and provisions. Metals and manufactures of metals yielded $22,000,000 more and wool and manufactures of wool yielded $37,000,000. And these figures represent but a small fraction of the cost of the tariff on these necessary commodities.

About one-fourth of the tariff revenue is derived from luxuries, and the rest from necessities. And of the $3,000,000,000 which the tariff costs the American people above the revenues it yields, much more than 75 per cent comes from the actual necessaries of life.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

UNKINDEST CUT OF ALL.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In regard to Mr. Cook and his opinion that a family can exist on $26 a month, I must say that Mr. Cook has the right name—the same as that of the man who discovered the North Pole. If Mr. Cook had to cook $26 worth of food per month for a family of six, how would he go about it? Perhaps a family of six could exist on $26 per month where the cocoanuts grow, but not in Duluth. Respectfully,

ONE OF A FAMILY OF SIX.
Duluth, March 6.

MISUNDERSTOOD MR. COOK.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If many citizens of this town, who have been standing on one ear because A. P. Cook said a family of six could exist on $26 a month had taken the trouble to see what Mr. Webster's dictionary had to say on the subject, there would have been less heated discussion. Mr. Cook said "exist." He didn't say a family of six could live comfortably or luxuriously or even decently. His remark, I take it, applied to destitute persons who can keep alive on $26 a month. In other words, a family can be taken care of for that amount on a charitable basis, which does not contemplate the dispensation of anything except the barest necessities, since charity is supposed only to help others to help themselves. Mr. Cook used the word "exist" wisely.

There are a lot of people in this world who do considerable talking before they think. Some of these have thrown a few brickbats at Mr. Cook before they thought to distinguish between what Mr. Cook really said and what his serious-minded and sometimes quasi-humorous questioners thought he said. Respectfully,

M. R. T.

Old Age Pensions.

San Francisco Star: The Wall Street Journal, in a recent editorial, deplores the growing sentiment in favor of old age pensions and strongly condemns the old age pension law recently adopted by the British parliament as demoralizing and degrading to the pensioners, by "giving them something for nothing"—feeding them by charity, under another name.

Mr. Asquith, premier of England, justifies that law on the ground that the superannuated pensioners have rendered services to the United Kingdom as useful, as patriotic and as heroic as those rendered by her soldiers and sailors—that their lives have been devoted, through infinite trial and hardship, to the production of the wealth which has made Britain's greatness possible and that in their declining years they are as much entitled to the nation's bounty as are her old and disabled soldiers and sailors. His smile is a good one and hard to answer, but Mr. Lloyd-George and Winston Churchill, both of the present British cabinet, place their defense of the measure upon higher and more enduring grounds. They say that these pensioners are, in common with their fellow citizens, inalienably, the rightful owners of all the land of their country; that in their presence, industry and personal virtues have created and maintained the rental value of those lands; that, in view of these facts, which no intelligent man now disputes, they are entitled to receive, in some form, their share of the values that they have so produced, and that the old age pension pittance, so far from being "a gift of something for nothing," is indeed only a small fraction of what they have actually produced and earned.

There is no thought of charity in the old age pension law. It is a measure of justice, pure and simple, and falls far short of accomplishing the real demands of justice in the matter.

The landlords are the people who have been demoralized and degraded by being given something (ground rents) for nothing in the past, and the Wall Street Journal should be delighted to learn that, in America, as well as in Great Britain, that demoralizing and degrading influence will be speedily removed from them. The leaven of the philosophy of Henry George is, at last, "working downward and through."

Silver Threads Among the Gold.

Darling, I am growing old,
Silver threads among the gold,
Shine upon my brow today;
Life is fading fast away;
But my darling, you will be, will be—
Always young and fair to me—
Yes! my darling, you will be
Always young and fair to me.

CHORUS.
Darling, I am growing old,
Silver threads among the gold,
Shine upon my brow today;
Life is fading fast away.

When your hair is silver white,
And your cheeks no longer bright,
With the roses of the May;
I will kiss your lips and say—
Oh! my darling, mine alone, alone—
You have never older grown—
Yes! my darling, mine alone,
You have never older grown!

Love can never more grow old,
Locks may lose their brown and gold,
Cheeks may fade and hollow grow,
But the hearts that love will know
Never, never winter's frost and chills
Summer warmth is in them still—
Never winter's frost and chill,
Summer warmth is in them still.

Love is always young and fair—
What to us is silver hair,
Faded cheeks, or steps grown slow,
To the heart that beats below?
Since I kissed you mine alone, alone,
You have never older grown—
Since I kissed you mine alone,
You have never older grown.
—Eben B. Rexford.

Oh, You Country Editor!

From the Obar, N. Mex., Progress: We know it isn't exactly right to gloat over the misfortunes of others, but we just can't help asking the editor of a city paper how he would like to be a country editor in New Mexico, and one of these fine May mornings of a New Mexico January he were to hear a sweet 16-year-old voice calling him to the door, and outside the door he were to find a beautiful damsel on a snow-white charger, like an equestrian picture of Venus in her teens, and then, Mr. City Editor, if the picture were to hand you a dollar, and, with a smile that would charm a squirrel out of a tree, and make you feel like you were going straight to glory in a little red wagon, would say, "I want to subscribe for your paper," wouldn't you—No! no! Progress isn't for sale, and if ic was, the picture wouldn't go with the plant, anyway.

But, just the same, who wouldn't be a country editor in New Mexico, where such things happen in the subscription department, as the did in ours the other day?

The Surgeon's Hand.

Beneath the wrist there stirs a sun-
god's thought,
A strong magnet current swiftly flows
Through palm and finger-tip, and power bestows
On tiny blade of steel with promise fraught
Up toward the eye the charged blade is brought.
Marble, moonlit, the arched cornea shows,
The iris, lying lakelike in repose,
And the deep pupils where the soul is caught.
"Let there be light," he says—"Let there be light."
And, solemn as the sign of the cross, the hand
Performs the miracle. At that command
The passing thought leaps toward the blind man's night.
Symbolic, like a dove's flight to its nest,
The haloed hand drops down and is at rest.
—Mary Murdoch Mason in the Century.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday was a real March day, snow flurries, sunshine and a brisk wind blowing in gusts, furnishing climatic variations that were disconcerting and uncomfortable. Today the weather is colder than it has been for a week. A continuation of the prevailing brand of weather is promised.

A year ago today was one of those days worth a week in the Sunny South, The sun rose this morning at 6:37 and it will set at 6:02, giving eleven hours and twenty-five minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Somewhat colder weather prevails throughout the Western lake region, the Upper Mississippi, Missouri and Red river valleys as a result of an increase in pressure, the center of the high barometer overlying Kansas and Oklahoma. A disturbance central Sunday morning over Western Ontario has advanced to North Atlantic coast districts. During the past twenty-four hours this depression caused rain or snow and strong westerly winds in the lake region and North Atlantic states. Slight depressions also overlie Western Mexico and Alberta while an area of high barometer is high over Oregon and Washington.

"These conditions favor partly cloudy weather and slowly rising temperature at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

Following were the maximum temperatures for twenty-four hours and the minimum for twelve, ending at 7 a. m., today:

Old-Fashioned Home Lives.

Detroit Journal: Strange words, these which Mrs. Will A. Waite delivered before the properly amazed ladies of the Twentieth Century club on Thursday:

> If women—and some men—are parasites, it is because conditions make them parasites, not because they choose to be. Our modern middle-class houses and flats and even our mansions take their tone from the times.
> There are no longer heartside gatherings for either pranks or prayers. I wonder who could conduct family prayers before the cold comfort and hideousness of a gas log? The very construction of our houses makes the blood be weak. So our boys take to football and our girls to bridge and matinees, just as the laborer's children take to cheap theaters and dance halls.

Strange words, indeed, because of their disturbing accuracy. It is bad to be thus grievously and patently and unblushingly bored on the evenings when there is "nothing else to do" and we must stay home. It's bad when members of the family circle—father, mother, sister, brother—become frankly "uninteresting," save as units of a large and varied social group. It's bad when it ceases longer to be "fun" to play cards or billiards, or to read aloud, or just converse with one's children. And yet we didn't used to find it so. We used to occupy the "sitting room" more. Each didn't live and have his or her being in his or her respective room or part of the house. Perhaps it is as Mrs. Waite believes because the character of the structure we live in has changed. The modern apartment house offers a place here one may keep one's own clothes, sleep and receive one's mail. There isn't room for much more. It was never intended by the architect and the tenant that there be much more. Indeed, Mrs. Waite's concluding sentence epitomizes it brilliantly, though rather harshly, perhaps:

> Nowadays we are married in the church, our babies are born in the hospitals and we bury our dead from the undertaker's chapel.

There is something radically different—not necessarily radically wrong—with the modern social system that encompasses the home. The home that has always been the social unit is disintegrating. The social unit is now the individual. It shocks us, this revolutionary change, this wholesale desertion of the hearthstone. But may it not be a law, after all, of social evolution? May it not be the law that each individual now must work out his social, moral and intellectual career for himself? There is not much home life in the average robin's nest or fox's den. Fledglings and puppies are turned adrift when they are capable of providing themselves with food.

Is not all this, possibly, a penalty of woman's "economic freedom"? For what else is there in the home, after all, but the mother? And if she is not there—well, we turn back to the necessity of "marrying in the church" and "burying our dead from undertakers' chapels."

Privileges of Friendship.

Life: To be given the small room in the attic so that the spare chamber may be ready for possible, but unexpected, company.

To hear the completion of the family quarrel that he wishes his arrival had interrupted.

To hear both sides of the family quarrel separately.

To agree with both sides of the family quarrel when heard separately.

To walk from the station in rainy weather, because it is so bad for the family horses to be out in the rain.

To stay at home and take care of the children while the other guests are taken driving.

To make himself at home in the library without having been given the key to the book shelves.

To be joked about his personal appearance.

To be reminded of his youthful flirtations in the presence of new and entertaining young women.

To be told when to go to bed.

To be told when to stay at home.

In short—to be treated exactly like "one of the family" without the inalienable family right to say what he thinks of it.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

F. Greene, division superintendent of the Northern Pacific, has bought 160 acres in section 28, 48-15, on the St. Louis river, for $65 an acre. Gridley & Mishler have sold to local parties $20,000 worth of land in 48-15. Other deals are pending, and it is extremely hard to get property in that section, although high prices are offered.

A delegation headed by President Egan of the West Superior chamber of commerce attended the meeting of the Duluth chamber yesterday to ask cooperation from Duluth in securing excursion rates from Eastern points to the Head of the Lakes, the same as are issued for other cities. It was thought that a pull together would bring about this desired result. A committee was appointed to confer with the railroads.

Nine bids for erecting the Endion school building have been received by the board of education, ranging from $45,591 by Agnew & Co., up to $62,700 by Maurice O'Meara.

Secretary W. F. Phelps of the chamber of commerce has resigned and will leave Duluth April 1 for St. Paul, where he will become secretary of the St. Paul Industrial union on a three-year contract at $6,000 a year.

The Minnesota Mining company has been incorporated. The capital stock is $6,000,000 with a limit of indebtedness fixed at $1,000,000. The directors are C. A. Severance and F. B. Kellogg of St. Paul, H. B. Moore and W. T. Bailey of Duluth, and W. B. Parsons of Dodge Center. The stockholders include several millionaires residing outside of Minnesota. The general offices will be maintained in Duluth. The company controls a state lease of the famous section 16, 62-14, which is about four miles from Lake Vermilion and six from Tower.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Webber have returned from a short but very pleasant European trip.

FROM SOUTHERN MINNESOTA.

Goodhue County.

Red Wing Republican: There is but one rule for legislative apportionment bills worthy of anybody but a sneak thief. That rule is perfectly simple and obvious. As soon as the returns of each federal census are available, the state legislature should, at its next session, proceed to re-district the state on the basis of the population so shown. That is the essence of popular representation, and that is all there is to it. It is a matter of mathematics about which there is no difficulty and no room for argument. Whatever debate arises is always caused by the desire of some person or some localities either to secure more than their just share of influence in the legislature or to prevent somebody else from getting his just share.

These being the very simple facts, it is obvious that there is one and only one time to re-district the state; namely, immediately after the federal census, which will be taken this year. Any man who refuses to help forward the work as soon as this information is available is no better than a thief and should be banished from public life thereafter. Any man who attempts the gerrymander, for personal or party advantage, can easily be detected and ought to share the same fate. The failure of re-apportionment bills in this state in the past has been no slight stain upon its record. Let us do our duty in this matter hereafter, without excitement, argument, unnecessary haste or unnecessary delay.

Mower County.

"Farmer Ben" in Austin Transcript: I don't care what others think or say, I tell you Southern Minnesota has been hogs on this state apportionment. If we aint entitled to only so many in the legislater based on actual census returns of population then we ought to tote fair and let go of the cheat. Here we get a representative and a senator to a population only one-half or a third of some of the north deestricks. It aint fair, I don't care whose toes I tread on. If we could hold the one senator and one representative from Mower county we ought to count ourselves lucky. That would be givin' up one-third of what we have and let other counties in this section of the state give in the same way. I don't like anythin' that don't tote square to all concerned and from the specimens we've mostly sent from Mower county for the past decade we won't lose much if we cut down.

Rock County.

Luverne Herald: The first meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Bemidji last week is one of the most important moves made in recent years for the development of Minnesota. It is, of course, of special and particular importance to Northern Minnesota, but what is of benefit to one part of the state must necessarily benefit the whole state. Thirty counties were represented and joined the association, and hereafter instead of many vain and conflicting efforts being made to promote the development of the northern part of the state, a big concentrated effort will be launched. "In unity there is strength," and the people of the northern part of the state are to be congratulated upon finally realizing this fact.

McLeod County.

Hutchinson Leader (Dem.): A big meeting of representative men from all over Northern Minnesota was held at Bemidji last week to boom the agricultural possibilities of that region and to emphasize the very unfair and inadequate representation of the northern counties in the legislature. Northern Minnesota is growing very rapidly and a reapportionment should have been made at the last session—and would have been made but for the selfish attitude of southern members who feared they would be legislated out of office thereby.

A reapportionment would undoubtedly deprive some of the smaller southern counties of representation except in connection with other counties but the present arrangement is so unfair that there can be no valid reason why it should be opposed.

Washington County.

Stillwater Gazette: It required considerable agitation and conversation to produce a conservation congress at Bemidji, but it looks very much as if it was worth all it cost, and more too. The idea of permitting the outside world to know what we have within the borders of our state, is surely a good one, and the more we elaborate, elucidate, educate and advertise, the larger the number of people will be attracted to the North Star state. The northern portion of Minnesota demands a reapportionment. They claim they can show by the people within their midst that they are entitled to a large representation. There is little doubt on this question as it is self-evident that the growth of the northern portion of the great state of Minnesota has been far greater than in the southern portion. An increase in legislative power is demanded and it looks very much as if the population of the northern portion of the state was entitled to the same. A little insurging now, and then is relished by our northern men.

Blue Earth County.

Mankato Free Press: The Free Press stands for the square deal, and, therefore, is in favor of giving Northern Minnesota all the representation to which she is entitled in the legislature. Right is right and wrongs no one.

Woes of a Bashful Man.

Osseo, Wis., Recorder: A bashful young man in town was invited out to dinner. He was very much agitated. He sat opposite a mirror and discovered that he had forgotten to comb his hair. Then he dropped his fork on the floor, and as he stooped to pick it up he upset his coffee. Matters went from bad to worse, until finally in despair the young man quit eating and put his hands under the table. The loose end of the tablecloth was lying in his lap. When he touched it he turned pale. He thought it was his shirt and that he had forgotten to put the garment in his trousers. He hurriedly stuffed the supposed shirt inside his trousers. Afterward, when the family arose from the table there was a crash. The dishes lay in a broken mass on the floor. The young man pulled three feet of tablecloth out of his pants and flew to the woods.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Judge: Mrs. Gramercy—What is your opinion about the right of women to vote?

Mrs. Park—It's enough for me to know, my dear, that it is fashionable.

St. Louis Times: He—You haven't told me that you love me once today.

She—And you haven't asked me if I love you since last night.

Chicago Record-Herald: Agent at door—Good morning, madam. Here is the policy we made out for your husband.

Lady Inside—Well, he has backed out of going in.

"Sure," he replies. "My boys pasturize the cows every morning."

New York Sun: Elijah was being fed by the ravens. "On the vegetable wagon," he exclaimed, briefly. Herewith all agreed he had the only reasonably priced food.

Detroit Free Press: "She's original, anyway."

"Why so?"

"I was forced to offer her my left hand to shake yesterday and she didn't say: 'The left hand's nearest the heart.'"

Pittsburg Post: Mr. Close—If I realized I had any vices, my dear, I would swear off.

Mrs. Close—Then, for goodness sake, swear off that vise you have on your pocketbook.

Life: "Lottie, what would you do if you woke up some night and found a burglar in your room?"

"If he was hunting for money I'd get up and help him hunt."

Judge: "I am surprised, Bobby," said his father, reprovingly, "that you should strike your little brother. Don't you know that it is cowardly to hit one smaller than yourself?"

"Then why do you hit me, father?" inquired the boy, with an air of having the better of it.

Washington Star: "So you are studying telepathy?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; my object in life has been to find what people are thinking and then say it first. Any reliable system would simplify my labors immensely."

A Pair of Legs.

New York Globe: On Saturday, before he sat down to supper, Weston covered forty-nine miles of his walk back across the continent. His score for the week was 269 miles, or forty-five miles a day. He is now 1,000 miles on this side of San Francisco. His lusty heart shows no sign of weakening, although for more than seventy years it has been pumping away in his breast, and his lusty legs, all the better for the thousands of miles they have covered, operate with the old regularity.

Let others rely on horses, bicycles, automobiles or locomotives; the veteran pedestrian is satisfied with the instruments of transportation with which nature has equipped him. Mounted on them, he cares not for wind storm, or rain storm, or sand storm. That nimble stride that annihilates distance goes on with clocklike precision. It is said to be an era of young men. But what youngsters would be willing to try to put feet in the footsteps of this man whose years are more than the allotted three score and ten?

As the leading practitioner of the easiest way to have form of exercise, Mr. Weston is a stimulating example. The long road—this is golf course enough for him; the open sky—this is all the clubhouse he wants. He requires no nineteenth hole to lead him to pass the eighteenth. It is indeed fitting that this ancient but still effective pair of legs, with the small body and grizzled head atop of them, should be the recipient of distinguished honor along their route.

Certain Proof Will Be Made That Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Cure Stomach Trouble.

A Trial Package Sent Free.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made to give to the system, through the digestive tract and the stomach, the necessary chemicals not only to digest food, but to enrich the fluids of the body so that it may no longer suffer from dyspepsia or other stomach trouble.

We will send you a quantity of these tablets free, so that their power to cure may be proven to you.

Thousands upon thousands of people are using these tablets for the aid and cure of every known stomach disease. Know what you put into your stomach, and use discretion in doing so.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain fruit and vegetable essence, the pure concentrated tincture of Hydrastis, Golden Seal, which tone up and strengthen the mucous lining of the stomach, and increase the flow of gastric and other digestive juices; Lactose (extracted from milk); ux, to strengthen the nerves controlling the action of the stomach and to cure nervous dyspepsia; pure aseptic Pepsin of the highest digestive power and approved by the United States Phamacopoeia.

One of the ablest professors of the University of Michigan recently stated that this Pepsin was the only aseptic pepsin he had found that was absolutely pure—free from all animal impurities; Bismuth, to absorb gases and prevent fermentation. They are deliciously flavored with concentrated Jamaica Ginger—in itself a well known stomach tonic.

Liquid medicine lose their strength the longer they are kept, through evaporation, fermentation and chamical changes, hence Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized as the only true and logical manner of preserving the ingredients given above in their fullest strength.

If you really doubt the power of these tablets, take this advertisement to a druggist and ask his opinion or the formula.

It is due your stomach to give it the ingredients necessary to stop its trouble. It costs nothing to try. You know what you are taking, and the fame of these tablets prove their value. NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CASS COUNTY SHOWS NERVE

Representatives to Block Legislation Unless Reapportionment Is Granted.

Resolution to That Effect Adopted at Organization of County Association.

Walker, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cass County Development association was organized here Saturday, delegates from all sections of the county being present in response to the call issued by M. Koll, county member of the Northern Minnesota Development association.

The following officers were elected: President, Fred W. Smith; vice president, Charles La Du; secretary, F. A. Dare; treasurer, J. W. Bailey. An executive committee consisting of nine members is to be appointed by the president. Among the resolutions adopted was the following:

"Whereas, The development of this and other northern counties is retarded by the present unequal and unjust representation of Northern Minnesota in the legislature; be it

"Resolved, That we call upon our representatives in the legislature to block all legislation until a proper bill be enacted giving Northern Minnesota the representation to which it is entitled."

There were about fifty delegates to the meeting which was one of the most enthusiastic ever held in Cass county. The first annual meeting will be held at Pine River on June 28.

MAYOR RESSLER HAD SOME BEER

Contraband Fluid Found in Ice Box of Park Rapids Executive.

Park Rapids, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The meat market conducted by J. D. Ressler, president of the village board, called the mayor, came into the limelight Saturday, when some special Indian inspectors invaded the place Saturday and seized a case of beer stored in the ice box. The contraband fluid was taken to the postoffice and stored, to be used as evidence. Whether the beer was for private or public consumption did not develop. Meanwhile the mayor is being generally joshed by his friends. It is expected prosecution will follow under the order of Nov. 27, preventing the introduction of liquor into the Indian country.

SANDSTONE FOR ENLARGED SCHOOL

Election to Decide Upon Building Addition Results Favorably.

Sandstone, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question "Shall the School Board of Independent School District No. 5, of Pine county, be authorized to erect an addition to the schoolhouse located in the village of Sandstone?" was settled to the great satisfaction of the board at the special election Friday night by the largest vote polled in the history of the district. Out of the total of 464 votes registered, 294 were in favor and 170 against. The election was brought about because of needed room to accommodate the increasing attendance at the high school.

As the board thought it best to build an addition on the present site a number of citizens objected and therefore had an injunction served to restrain the board from erecting the new addition, as they favored two additional schoolhouses (one in Oldtown and one in Guntown), but the board could not see it that way and left it for the majority to decide. The hearing of the injunction will be held at Pine City today, and it is expected that no further trouble will be stirred up to delay the building of the addition which is to be of the same size as the present school.

CLOQUET TO HAVE EVENING IN JAPAN

Entertainment to Be Given By the Christian Endeavorers Wednesday Night.

Cloquet, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The citizens of Cloquet will have an opportunity to enjoy an evening in Japan, the occasion being an entertainment given by the Christian Endeavorers of the Presbyterian church in the church basement next Wednesday evening. The first part of the program consisting of musical numbers, to be rendered, follows:

Selection, mandolin club; vocal solo, Miss Caroline Erwin; guitar solo, F. A. Barrera; vocal solo, Miss Anna Michelson; selection, mandolin club.

The second part of the program will consist of the presentation of "The Japanese Wedding." The cast of characters is as follows: Bride, Dorothy Underhill; bridegroom, Lyman Sheean; bride's mother, Gertrude McNitt; bridegroom's mother, Mildred Riley; bride's father, C. W. Lowrie; bridegroom's father, Raymond Brack; go-between, Grace Cameron; bridesmaids, Merita Armstrong, Marie Fish, Margaret McCloud, Maude Seeley, Winnie Silvary, Rachel McMillan, Fay Redfield and Jennie Reynolds.

Lunch will be served by maidens dressed as Japanese at the conclusion of the play.

Invitations will be the next number in the Y. M. C. A. entertainment course. They will appear in the opera house Saturday evening, March 12.

ONTONAGON HENS RECORD BREAKERS.

Ontonagon, Mich., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Amos Conrad has come to the front again with another record breaker. During the month of February, twenty-eight days, from fifty hens he got forty-five dozen eggs. One of the hens set last month and out of twelve eggs he hatched eleven chickens, all good and healthy and they were hatched on the 23rd of the month, the day this section had such a blizzard.

REWARD CLOQUET PUPILS.

High School Boys' and Girls' Work Is Appreciated.

Cloquet, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Olesen, superintendent of the local schools, entertained the boys of the high school basket ball team and the girls of the debating team, Saturday night at his home on Fourth street. As a token of appreciation of the faithful work they have done for the school, the boys were presented with white sweaters with an eight-inch purple band around the bodies, bearing the white letters, B. C. B. The girls of the debating team were each given a handsome diploma, which fittingly expressed the esteem in which the work of the team is held by the faculty. These diplomas were signed by Miss Julia Merrill, principal of the high school, and by Peter Olesen, superintendent of the public schools. Purple and white ribbons, the colors of the school, were attached to the diplomas by a gilded seal.

MARRIED THREE TIMES.

Menominee Woman Just Dead Had Had Three Husbands.

Menominee, Mich., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Ida Peterson, widow of the late Martin Peterson, who died at the St. Joseph's hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, although but 30 years of age, was married three times. She was divorced from her first husband. She was married to Samuel Leanna, who died last Easter, and a few months ago married Martin Peterson, who passed away a short time ago with typhoid fever.

JANUARY CREAMERY REPORT.

Thief River Falls Institution Had Pretty Good Month.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of the local creamery for January shows an increase over the business of the same month one year ago. The total receipts were $2,397. The names of some eight farmers were given who received sums larger than $45 for their share of the business.

WARM WEATHER GLADDENS HEARTS OF THE FARMERS.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The extremely mild weather of the past week has completely broken up the winter and the winter roads. No snow can be found in the northwestern part of the state except in the woods or along the fences where it drifted during the winter. Farmers are trying to rush their grain into the elevators before the last of the snow disappears. It is stated also that there is little or no frost in the ground anywhere in the Red river valley, and that should winter not establish itself again within the next ten days, that seeding on the high places might be accomplished.

Hurt Sawing Wood.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—David Dyland, living near Strip, just north of this city, met with a serious accident recently. He was sawing wood with a circular saw and in some manner a block of wood was thrown with great force against his abdomen, seriously injuring him internally and crushing the hip bone almost beyond hope of mending. He was removed to the hospital and the chances for his recovery are very light indeed.

GETS NICE WINDFALL.

Wadena, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Hampkins, a well-known citizen of Bluffton, has fallen heir to a snug little fortune of $16,000 through the death of his father in Germany. The money has not yet arrived, but it is on the way.

NORTH DAKOTAN'S TRIAL COMMENCES

Charles Moline Facing Jury on Charge of Having Killed Father.

Rugby, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Moline is now on trial here on the charge of murdering his father, Frank Moline, a jury having been secured. This afternoon State's Attorney Schumann outlined the case to be presented by the prosecution. He said the state would endeavor to show that the murder was deliberately planned by Moline and his mother for the purpose of ding away with the possibility of losing property through the second marriage of Frank Moline.

The defense has called for three witnesses from Tracy, Minn., who are expected to tell of the easly signs of insanity in Charles Moline. The Moline family resided at Moline till April, 1902, when they removed to North Dakota. Tom Dasa, Peter Mangal and Dr. H. M. Wortman are the Tracy witnesses who are expected here to testify for the defendant. Moline is 23 years of age.

BITTEN BY MAD DOG.

Seven-Year-Old Boy of Calumet Has Arm Mangled.

Calumet, Mich., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Verville of Hancock was bitten Saturday by a dog which is supposed to have been mad. The boy was playing in the yard with the dog, when the animal seized him by the arm and dragged him across the lot. The boy's arm was badly mangled.

BOTH TOWNS FAVORED.

Winnipeg Junction and Dale Are to Have Postoffices.

Moorhead, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—For a number of months the people of Winnipeg Junction and Dale, which is the new town on the Northern Pacific line around Winnipeg Junction, have been squabbling over the matter of the postoffice. The towns are but two miles apart and the mail for Winnipeg Junction has to be carried a mile from Manitoba Junction, Dale, being on the line, wanted the office, and Winnipeg Junction wanted to retain it.

Congressman Steenerson has settled the question by giving them both offices, that is, Winnipeg Junction retains its postoffice and a new office is established at Dale. Andrew L. Jelsing has been named as postmaster at Dale.

ACCUSED CLOQUET SALOON KEEPER FREED.

Cloquet, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Erick Barthine, a saloon keeper on Dunlap island was arrested Friday night for selling liquor after hours. Felix White made the complaint. Barthine was brought before Judge W. H. Skemp Saturday morning in municipal court, but White failed to substantiate his claim. As Barthine could not be proven guilty, he was discharged. John C. Johnson, also a liquor dealer, was arrested the same night, on the same charge. His trial is set for today.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

HERE IS A REAL DYSPEPSIA CURE

No Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Headache Five Minutes Later.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your Stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomachs should take a little Diapepsin occasionally, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no Heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches Dizziness or Sick Stomach and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

BIBLE MAY BE TRUSTED

Apparent Contradictions May Be Reconciled By Average Man.

Rev. John Walker Powell Preaches First of Series of Sermons.

"The Average Man and the Bible," was Rev. John Walker Powell's subject yesterday for the first of a series of three sermons on "The Religion of the Average Man," at the Endion M. E. church.

In opening, Mr. Powell explained that by the general subject he suggests the religious problems and difficulties of the average man, his attitude toward spiritual things insofar as he has been able to understand, and the way in which the spiritual needs of the average man may best be met.

Mr. Powell said that there is a great deal of ignorance of the Bible throughout the world, but at the same time there is a great deal of interest in it and his experience has been that the announcement of a sermon on the Bible always brings out a large congregation.

"Now this problem is fundamental," said Mr. Powell. "It is true that Christianity is a living force in the world, and that it has a history of more than eighteen centuries, and that both the history and the present fact must be taken into account in answering the questions, what is Christianity and what are its credentials? Nevertheless, it is only through the Bible that we can know what Christianity really is and what it teaches. It claims to be based on the life and teachings of one who lived nineteen centuries ago. This life and these teachings are found in the Bible. Moreover, they grow out of a previous history also found in the Bible, and they both presuppose a certain way of thinking about God and man which is to be found here and only here. If for any reason, then, we cannot accept the Bible either as historically true or as religiously sound, we must set aside Christianity, or at least look further for the explanation of its place and influence in history. The average man is asking, therefore, concerning the Bible, first, is it historically trustworthy; second, are its ethical teachings sound; third, are its views of God and its spiritual conceptions worthy of acceptation? If so, why? If not, why not?

"It probably safe to say that a generation ago the average man had no doubt as to the general historical truth of the Biblical narratives, or as the the authority of its theological and spiritual teachings.

"The situation is far otherwise today. The average man knows little of the details of Biblical criticism. Of the documents that are said to make up the earlier books, of the disputes concerning the authorship of Isaiah or the Fourth Gospel, he cares little. But the echoes of these great controversies have reached his ears, and he feels that scholars themselves are uncertain on some questions as the date and origin of the Biblical books. That being the case, he does not see how he can be sure of their historical trustworthiness. Still greater has been the influence of modern scientific teaching in unsettling his belief."

Mr. Powell took up the different doubts, which have been raised against the Bible, but he said the Bible is such a large part in the world's literature that man cannot escape it. Jurisprudence and moral teachings are founded on it and he would not if he could, said Mr. Powell.

The average man is puzzled by the apparent contradictions of the Bible, said Mr. Powell, and adoptes the attitude that he is ready to believe if he can be shown how the apparent contradictions can be reconciled. The problem of the religious teacher is to point out the means of reconciliation and he said that can be done. The average man can read the Bible confidently and trustingly, he said, and cannot go far astray in his interpretation of it.

"LENTEN THOUGHTS"

Americans Sacrifice Life to the Dinner Table, Says Pastor.

Millions Live to Eat and Pay the Price in Disease.

"Lenton Thoughts" was the subject of a sermon preached by Rev. George R. Gebauer at the First Unitarian church, corner First street and Eighth avenue east, yesterday morning.

"We are in the midst of the Lenten season," he said. "Prayer and fasting are earnestly enjoined by some of the churches and practiced by the faithful. There is no wrong in fasting, it may even be commendable at this time of exorbitant meat prices, but I fail to see great virtue in it. I even think that the custom is rather difficult to reconcile with the Master's word and His practice. Yes, without wishing to find fault with the sincere intention of the church to honor the memory of Christ, history teaches abundantly that there is danger in starving the body for the sake of the soul. Extremes are rather apt to meet or to follow each other. The notion of forty days of abstinence suggests the thought of indulgence after Lent. It intimates perhaps to not a few, the idea that abstinence is for a season and indulgence is the natural life. Thus when the oppressive forty days are past, the abstainer is apt to become an indulger, who sees in the frivolities of life a natural and legitimate aim.

"But we may take a higher view of Lent. We may see in it not a season of enforced abstinence, but the symbol of a sane and moderate life, such as the Easter exemplified. He expressed his maxim of life in the words, "Is not your life more than meat and the body than raiment?" Of course the Great Teacher was misunderstood in this and the effect of His teaching has not always born the best fruit. It has induced men and women to idleness and carelessness and improvidence. But if we look at His words in the light of His life, we can not but see, that He simply put the things of life in proper perspective. Meat may be much, but the body is more; the body may be much, but life is more. He sees the folly of making eating and drinking and dressing the great end of life. He sees how men and women in the care for the body lose heir souls. The anxiety for the outward things of enjoyment was great in His day, but is it less today?

Millions Live to Eat.

"Think of the extravagance displayed at our banquets and dinners; think of the millions, who simply live to eat and drink, and who pay for it the price of disease and death. To everyone who in our day and country dies of starvation or slow underfeeding, perhaps ten perish through overfeeding. Many a housewife breaks down not because she has to feed a family of six on $26, but because she has to gorge a gluttonous husband with the choicest things the market can provide regardless of expense and work. It seems to me that especially in this land of plenty we sacrifice life on the altar of the dinner table. We may talk as much as we please about the poor peasantry of Europe who only once week get meat to eat, but do they not teach the overfed native of America a lesson? They are strong and rosy cheeked and healthy, when they set foot upon the soil of the land of abundance; they often are our strongest workmen. But when after a while they imitate the American in his way of living, they are apt to lose their healthy color and they become as dyspeptic as if they really were Americans.

"And what about dress? Does it not mean more than the body to millions? We are essentially still in the stage of savagery in this mater. Too many still dress rather for the sake of appearance than for comfort. Our working people, as an observer said, are better 'dressed' than the same class in Europe, but hardly so well 'clad.' And again, there is that large host of body worshippers in our day. Their shibboleth is 'hygiene.' And for health's sake they will wear out their bodies and starve their souls. When in some place infants are choked with dirt, in many a 'hygienic' family, babies are scrubbed and washed out of existence. Such people will feed themselves with microbe proof milk and germ proof bread and eat with antiseptic forks and knives and spoons and yet in the end catch every disease that blows cross the backyard. That does not mean that hygiene is not a good thing; it means that a weighty matter has been forgotten in the care of life. People who are everlastingly thinking of health, will rarely be healthy. People who will run away in fear from all sorts of diseases, are most likely to catch them. A calm mind is one of the prerequisites of good health. We must instinctively learn to treat our bodies properly, but not let the mere care of the body fill our mind to the exclusion of more helpful thought.

"The end of life is not in living, but in life, in life more abundant. And to this life all else must be subordinated. Food, raiment and body are the servants of life, and must never become its master. A sound, healthy mind will like a good master keep his servants well and hearty, so that they may serve him properly, but he will never become the slave of his servants, that in turn they may serve him. People who live in the upper stories of their selves, who do not worry about the body and its needs, generally are the most healthy. The child of God, the true man and woman, do not live for their body, but through their body for the soul.

"And this is what Lent teaches. Forget your lower self in your higher, your higher in your largest. Do not exist in your body, but live in your soul. Do not fret what you shall eat and drink, but have an eye to what your brother is forced to eat and drink. Abstain from the things you do not need and see that your brother has the things of living he needs. Abstain from anger and passion and hatred and indulge in kindness and mercy and love."

CONVENTION OF LAYMEN

Duluth Will Hear Speakers of National Reputation Next Month.

Last But One of Big Series of Missionary Gatherings.

The convention of the laymen's missionary movement at Duluth, to be held on April 22, 23 and 24, will be the last of a great series of conventions, over seventy-five in number, except that at St. Paul on April 26, 27 and 28.

Seventy-five of these conventions have been held in the United States, each state having at least one convention. The movement has been one of the greatest uprisings of men for missionary work that has ever been undertaken, and the success of this year's campaign has far exceeded the highest expectations of its promoters. New York city leads in the number registered, having somewhere near 3,300, while Kansas City leads the country in the number of men served at the banquet, having 1,850. Many unique features have been undertaken by the committees in the different cities of the country. In some cities Christian business men have paraded the streets, and the enthusiasm shown has amazed and deeply moved those who have been prone to scoff at the power and force of Christianity.

Slow moving New York has vied the conservative states in the South in arousing its men. Conservative states like Virginia and South Carolina have equally stirred with Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The opening convention was held in Buffalo, and the closing one will be held in St. Paul, after which a national convention will be held in Chicago, May 3 to 6, which will be limited to 5,000 delegates.

Only the largest city in each state have held these conventions, and Duluth is fortunate in having been selected as one of these places.

Origin of the Movement.

"I am often asked," said Secretary Snell, when interviewed at his headquarters today in the Y. M. C. A. building, "as to the genesis and significance of this movement. The movement is in fact, a direct result of the students' volunteer movement. At Nashville in 1906, a business man from Washington, D. C., John Sleman, was so aroused by the earnestness of the students there, and the great number that consecrated themselves for service on the foreign fields, that he felt that the business men of the country were challenged by this spirit to do something in helping to evangelize the world, and that if these students were willing to give their lives for such a great object, surely the business men ought to be willing to aid them in every possible way. The movement was started in New York City. The call was made for fifty business men to travel over the entire world at their own expense, investigate the mission fields and enterprise, and to report upon what they saw, the amount of work accomplished, and to make any recommendations that they saw fit. Sixty business men responded, and at their own expense, investigated every mission field. A few large conventions were held in the early part of the movement, one of which was at Minneapolis. These were so successful that it was determined to make a whirlwind campaign in 1909 and the spring of 1910. Men who have never before been interested in world-wide evangelization have taken part. Laymen who have never spoken, have occupied pulpits throughout the land.

"Large political and fraternal conventions have been held in this country at various times, but never before have the Christian men of different denominations come together as now. It is a wonderful sight to see some 1,800 men seated at a great banquet all moved by the same impulse, and with a similar object of bringing about the Christianization of the world."

"No collections are taken, and no subscription made at these meetings. The whole movement is educational in its true nature. Speakers of national and international fame will be present at the Duluth convention. Every denomination will be represented, and such e themes as the 'Evangelization of the World in This Generation,' 'America's Responsibility,' and other topics of similar import will be discussed.

"There is no question but that Duluth will have one of the most interesting programs of the entire list of cities thus far, and that with the territory covering all Northern Minnesota, and a large part of Northern Wisconsin, it will have from 1,000 to 1,500 men enrolled, and at least 1,200 at the opening banquet."

Every Protestant church in Duluth will take part. Committees are now being appointed and the work laid out. W. S. Moore is the president, and W. I. Prince, the secretary, of the local committee. It is fully expected that when finally completed the local co-operating committee alone will include over 200 men. A meeting f this committee will be held some time this week.

RESIGNS HIS PASTORATE

Rev. J. S. Kirtley Tenders Resignation as Pastor of First Baptist Church.

Gives Ill Health as Reason for His Unexpected Action.

The resignation of Rev. J. S. Kirtley of the First Baptist church, tendered Sunday morning at the close of the sermon, came as a complete surprise to the members of the congregation. The reason, as stated by the pastor, is ill health.

It has been known for some time that Mr. Kirtley was not enjoying the best of health. More than a year ago his physician suggested that he leave active work for a time. Mr. Kirtley has been pastor of the First Baptist church for two years. He came to Duluth soon after the congregation had moved to the beautiful new church at Ninth avenue east and First street.

Mr. Kirtley, during his stay in Duluth, has made many friends, both in and outside the church, who will learn with sincere regret of his departure from the city.

Mr. Kirtley will be Northwestern representative of the H. W. Dunning Tourist Company of Boston, and his headquarters will be in Minneapolis. The duties being entirely different, will give him a complete rest. He expects to go back to church work as soon as the condition of his health will permit. He will make a tour of Europe and will attend the world's missionary conference in Edinburgh and the "Passion Play."

The resignation as read to the congregation follows:

"The time has come when it seems necessary that the bonds which bind us together, as pastor and people, should be dissolved. When your call came to me in September, 1908, to become your pastor, it found me in such a depleted condition that I hesitated to come to you, because I did not feel equal to the taxing work of another pastorate at that time, and, in that view, my physician concurred.

"After some days, however, the duty to come seemed clear, and I was compelled to believe that the hand, on which I have always tried to depend for guidance, was leading me to Duluth.

"During my stay with you I have undergone still further depletion of strength, which has been all the greater because of my constant and painful consciousness of the fact that your great and promising work requires more vigor than it has been in my power to put into it. Had you not so thoughtfully and generously provided an early and restful vacation for me, in my trip to the Pacific coast last June, the step I am now taking, must, of necessity, have come sooner.

"I am fully convinced that it is my sacred duty to you, as well as to myself, to retire from the pastorate and take up some other kind of work for awhile. In this decision I am supported by the disinterested judgment of my physician, and, I need not assure you, I have been daily seeking the guidance of Him, whose I am and whom I serve. If I knew any other course I could pursue, with justice to myself and to you, I would spare myself this pain and spare you the inevitable break in the work incident to a change of pastors.

"I desire that you accept my resignation today and allow me to close my work the first of May or earlier than that, if I find that it will be too taxing upon my strength to coninue till that time.

"It is not easy to say these words and it will be still harder to sever my relations with you, for I have never, in my life, known a church with a nobler type of people and with better prospects for a great work, and your fellowship and friendship have brought me some of the choicest experiences of my life. I expect to see you grew rapidly, in all the strength of a true church of Jesus Christ, and I can sincerely say that all your interests, as a church and as individuals, will always be vitally dear to me.

"Lovingly your pastor and friend,

"J. S. KIRTLEY."

At a meeting of the church trustees held after the morning services the resignation was accepted and a committee appointed to draw up suitable resolutions expressing appreciation of Mr. Kirtley's services and expressing regret at his departure.

GIVES SHORT ADDRESS.

Rev. Samuel Semple Gives Brief Address at Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

Using as a text the words of the Hebrews, in which they denounced Moses for failing to lead them to the Promised Land, Rev. Samuel Semple of Titusville, Pa., delivered a short address at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. He said that forty years of wandering in the wilderness was the lot not only of the chosen people, but of every generation. Because no generation of men had been able to realize the Biblical promise of the coming of the kingdom of God, he said, there was no reason for discouragement.

Mr. Semple had an appointment at the Glen Avon Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock and he could give only about fifteen minutes to the Y. M. C. A. meeting. The Appollo Quartet and Bell Ringers gave a number of selections.

CROOKSTON MAN LUCKY.

Escaped With Slight Injury From Washington Train Disaster.

Crookston, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The only resident of this vicinity whose name appears in the casualty list of the disastrous snowslide in Washington is Pat Hull, who is described as having "a burned hand and a bruised head." Pat has been in the West for some time and just how he happened to be on the train at the time of the disaster is not known here.

Kills Germs

Nothing in medicine is known which accomplishes such vast good in so short a time with weak, broken-down, worn-out, diseased stomachs and sluggish, torpid, lazy livers, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—a standard remedy for germ-laden, impure blood. When you feel dull and sickish, the bile is not flowing right, and the whole system suffers. The organs lack power to convert food into energy. Bacterial germs thrive at the expense of the blood corpuscles. To escape worrisome stomach trouble and liver complaint, go to the aid of the blood corpuscles and kill off the germs that would otherwise invade your system.

Every day's delay means getting further away from health. Don't blunder. Use the intensely, effective, non-alcoholic---non-secret---Golden Medical Discovery---the standard stomach, liver and blood medicine for more than 40 years. Get the genuine bearing Dr. Pierce's fac-simile Signature as shown in cut.

Gravest diseases spring from bowel neglect. When the bowels quit working, the liver, sympathetically, goes on strike; the stomach gets out of order and the blood impure. The first aid and the best is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They move and strengthen the bowels and make them regular—curing constipation with its long train of resultant disorders.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

CLOSE RACE IN "MINNY"

Outlook for Fast Article of Ball in League This Year.

Rivalry Between Red Wing and Rochester Beginning to Show.

Manager A. W. Kuehnow of the Duluth White Sox said today that there is every indication that the coming season in the Minnesota-Wisconsin league will be the fastest season every known in Class D baseball circles and that the managers who are hoping to recruit winning teams from the semi-professional leagues of Chicago, may be disappointed in the swift article of baseball they will encounter up here.

Mr. Kuehnow also stated that the Duluth team should come up to the standard of the team that represented Duluth last season, and that he believed Winona would be stronger, and Eau Claire, La Crosse, Superior and Wausau fully as strong, if not stronger than last year.

It is stated that Mike Malloy, the new manager of the Red Wing club, has agreed to forfeit $100 to the directors of the club if Red Wing does not finish ahead of Rochester. There is an intense rivalry between the two towns that are about to become members of the Minny league, much the same as the rivalry that exists between Winona and La Crosse.

Wausau has signed Frank Du Chien, who was formerly with Racine. Last year he hit at a .303 clip. Du Chien is said to be a fast outfielder. Eau Claire has signed Fredman, Thrall and Benrud. It is expected that many of the members of last year's team will sign the present season.

It is generally expected that the schedule will comprise 126 games, as has been stated in these columns. The season will, according to present calculations, open a week earlier than the season of last year. The rough draft of the schedule is being worked out at the present time.

It is very probable that five umpires will be carried by the league the present season. Four umpires were kept busy last year with six clubs in the circuit, so that a fifth arbitrator will probably be secured to be used in emergencies. Anderson, McDermott, Arnold and Augur have been signed by President Elliott, who will probably sign the fifth indicator holder the present week.

Manager Kuehnow stated today that St. Joseph, Mo., has made an offer for Richard Thorsen, and that in all probability the West Duluth boy will be disposed of to the Western association team. St. Joe has been on the lookout for a player for some time, and when the manager of the team heard of Thorsen, he immediately made the offer to Mr. Kuehnow.

Don Marion left Saturday for Chicago, en route to St. Louis. He will report to the St. Louis Nationals, despite his difference over the question of salary, and will be given a thorough trial with the Bresnahan outfit.

BOWLING AVERAGES

Averages of the Commercial Bowling league show Massey leading the individual bowlers of the league with Olson, Otterson, Staudt and Stark in close pursuit. Massey has rolled in forty-five games and has maintained an average of 192. Olson has an average of 189.

In the team standing the Three Winners are leading, having played forty-eight games and won thirty-one, a percentage of .646. The Hilliards have one point over the Big Duluths for second place.

On the day after his arrival in Los Angeles, Jim almost caused a run on the bank by going there to deposit the proceeds of his trip. Such a crowd gathered before the bank building to see him that persons who saw it thought there was a "run" and the bank's credit was in danger until Jim came out waving a certificate of deposit for a good many thousand dollars.

HARD CONTEST IS EXPECTED

Ordemann and Person Are Old Rivals for Mat Honors.

Great interest is being shown in the wrestling match between Henry Ordemann, the great Minneapolis heavyweight, and Chris Person, which will be staged at the Lyceum theater Thursday evening. This will be the biggest wrestling event that has been seen here for the present season.

There is a long-stand feeling of rivalry between Ordemann and Person. The two men have come near meeting upon several occasions in the past, something cropping up at the last moment to prevent the match. Ordemann has come to be looked upon as at least the third greatest heavyweight in this country.

The management of the Duluth Athletic club has decided that women will be admitted to the contest, as the experiment was tried at the Person-Zbyszko match with a great deal of success. There was a large attendance of the gentler sex at that match, and they seemed to enjoy the show fully as much as their men companions.

In addition to the clash between Ordemann and Person, which promised to be spirited and hard fought from start to finish, there will be an attractive card arranged.

The famous Sailor Jack of Buffalo will give an exhibition of his ability and speed and another preliminary will precede the big event of the evening. The ticket sale opened this morning at the Lyceum.

LAST GAME OF SEASON.

THE ENGLISHMAN IS KNOCKED OUT

Jem Kendrick Is Beaten By Johnny Coulon for Second Time.

New Orleans, La., March 7.—Johnny Coulon, bantam weight champion, scored a knockout in the nineteenth round of his battle with Jem Kendrick, the English claimant of this title late yesterday afternoon.

This is Coulon's second victory over Kendrick within three weeks. In the first match he has given the decision at the end of the tenth round.

A crowd of about 10,000 people crowded the West Athletic club arena at McDonoughville, just across the river from New Orleans, and shouted themselves hoarse when the American put the Britisher down and practically out with a right just over the heart. Kendrick staggered to his feet in a tottering condition just before the referee counted him out. It was apparent, however, that he had been finished and the fight was awarded to Coulon. For the first five rounds the bout was fast and spirited, with honors even. After the fifth round, Coulon began to wear his opponent out and in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth rounds he was floored repeatedly. Coulon finished the fight unmarked and to all appearance as fresh as when he started.

COLEMAN IS MEMBER OF FOURTH ESTATE.

Hal Coleman, who will meet William Hatley at billiards this evening, played with Mr. Hatley in this city five years ago, when Mr. Hatley had rooms over Lanigan's chop house. At that time Coleman was advance man for Haverly's minstrels and was traveling ahead of the show.

Coleman's father was the owner of one of the big St. Louis German papers. The billiard player has also been in the newspaper business. He has a fund of reminiscences of the road, having been with some of the big shows of a few years ago.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE)

Those in Duluth who have in the past, been familiar with the gentle ways of Richard Ferris, that hero of romantic comedy and of strutting tragedy, will be surprised and even grieved to learn that Richard has gone into the prize fighting business.

Out Los Angeles way, according to rumor and report, Dick has secured a grapevine lock on a bundle of currency that would make a circus horse hesitate before hurdling. He was the manager of the recent aeroplane meet, and naturally being associated with aeroplanes, is getting up in society.

But he has reached out even more. He has telegraphed to Mr. Rickard and Mr. Gleason who seem to have some misunderstanding as to the location of the fight, and has asked these gentlemen whether they will not consider an offer of $150,000 to permit the fight to come to Los Angeles.

Whether Richard will pay the gladiators out of his own blue trousers pockets, or whether he has other venturesome Angelenos mixed with him in the project, the merry tick of the wire does not tell. Duluth and Minneapolis have both known Dick Ferris as a gink fond of display and sensations; but even his most ardent admirers in these two towns never for the instant dreamed that Richard would some day spring into the class of those important individuals who promote world's championship prize fights.

It has often been said, in the primer and in more solid literature, that comparisons are odious. But there are cases where it is to the point to draw the gentle simile. There is the case of Rochester, Minn., which next Sunday will be duly made a member of the Minny league. Rochester may be compared with the unmerry month of March, in that it came in like a lion and forsooth may go out like a lamb.

They have lighted the hall lights already and are announcing to the world that the small town will have a team that will give Darby O'Brien all he wants, right from the start, by gum.

Mr. Corrigan is the man who is reported to have made the high climbing talk. Last year Mr. Corrigan was over in the Wisconsin league somewhere. Naturally he is not familiar with the class of baseball he will be up against when the league season opens. Care and caution should therefore be all the more commendable on the part of the manager of the new club.

If there has not been a mistake made on the part of several of the managers of the Minny league, the present season will show the fastest baseball that these parts have ever known. At least four of the teams of the Minnesota-Wisconsin circuit have been strengthened, and from the bell to the wire the season promises to be a merry race, and withal, a fast one.

Therefore, and for that reason, Annette, we believe that Mr. Corrigan is taking a blind leap right plum in the face of modesty when he comes forth with the statement that he will be right at the shoulder of a team of the sizze of a town like Duluth.

Reports that have been wire wafted from Los Angeles, which at the present time is furnishing the world of sport with much news, say that James J. Jeffries has really got down to training and is sawing wood, not figuratively, but literally, brother.

Back of the old barn, down there on the old farm, the mortgage of which was lifted by the brawny earning power of Jeff, the big fisted fighter repairs, and industriously saws at the maple and unruly spruce. He saws, and saws, and saws, with a regularity that would make the raven of Eddie Poe extremely jealous.

Then he takes a tramp over the hills. He boxes with Bob Armstrong, a man who may be murdered if Jeff wins, for Bob is highly colored and many of his countrymen think he should be in the service of his own race.

This Armstrong person has observed with an air of wisdom that he prefers to be with a winner, which remark has called a storm of protest from the colored population on both sides of the Mason and Dixon line.

In the case of Mr. Jeffries with artistic effect, knocking the bean from the broad and glowing shoulders of Mr. Johnson, it may not be safe on the part of brother Armstrong to venture forth after dark, unless well protected by the gendarmes of the law.

Frank Leroy Chance, peerless leader of the Cubs, has resolved to deal prudently with fans the coming season and not take any more chances with the kind lady than the exigencies of the game require.

He has ordered that the Cub catchers wear shin guards the coming season, and that in every way the members of the team endeavor to keep from flirting with accident. In the past the Cubs have been nosed out of many a game, simply because some of the star hired men have been visiting the bone setter twice or three times a day.

Frank figures that with Johnny Kling in the game and fate holding an impartial scale, he has a very rosy chance of winning the fourth flag the coming season. Therefore he is going to be careful, extremely so.

Down in Minneapolis they are again on the hopeful pre-season trial of the elusive pennant. They have enthusiasm, if nothing deeper in Minneapolis. Each year the baseball scribes predict that the coming season is surely the one for the team to woo victory to the Flour City. But somehow or in some manner, the fans have been disappointed in their great expectations.

Now they are at it again, and it seems as if the very heat of their enthusiasm would bring a flag to a team of spavined veterans. Ill luck camped on the trail of the Millers last year, robbing them of what seemed a certain victory. Some do say that it was the umpires—at least Minneapolis lost.

LOCAL GOLFERS WILL GO SOUTH

Northland Members Will Play on Links of Augusta, Ga., Club.

Some of the members of the Northland Country club will play the Scotch game on the links of the Augusta, Ga., club in the near future. Among those who have announced their intention of entering the tournament at Augusta are: A. W. Hartman, president of the Duluth club; W. W. Walker, vice president; E. P. Alexander, secretary; R. T. Goodell, William Harrison, L. J. Hopkins, George Stone and Frederick L. Gilbert. Mr. Hopkins is at the present time in the South. He will meet the local golphers at Augusta.

The tournament begins on March 21. Many Northern clubs will be represented at the big annual affair. The Duluth men will remain in the Georgia city for about two weeks. The unusually warm weather of the past week has made many of the members of the Northland club anxious to play. The grounds are said to be now free from snow and it is possible that there will be be local games before the week is ended. Last year local records were broken for late playing and it looks now as though the players would be at the game very early this spring.

CONTEST FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Sophomores and Freshmen Basket Ball Teams Tied—Central Team Challenged.

The freshmen and sophomore basket ball teams of the Central high school, members of the interclass league, will meet tomorrow afternoon for the championship of the league. The championship of the interclass league lies between these two teams, and the winner of the game tomorrow will win the championship.

The teams will line up as follows:

Freshmen	Position	Sophomores
Kerns	f	Osman
Harris	f	Cook
Brown	c	Mars
Huttle	g	Jeronimus
Lawrence	g	S. Claire

Central has received a challenge from the strong Buffalo, Minn., high school basket ball team. This team has been defeated but once the present season and has won the championship of Wright county. The challenge will probably be accepted by the local team.

It is not known as yet whether Central will take part in the tournament at Madison, Wis. Funds have not been subscribed with any degree of enthusiasm as yet, and until some arrangements for defraying the exenenses of the team can be made, it will not be known whether Duluth will be represented at the big interscholastic tournament.

NEW LEADERS IN TWO EVENTS

Chicago Bowler Tops Individuals and Cincinnati Team Leads in Doubles.

Detroit, Mich., March 7.—New leaders in the individual and two-men events were the result of the brisk onslaught upon the pins yesterday in the tenth annual tournament of the American bowling congress.

Glen Fisher of Chicago, rolled 660 and took the lead in the singles, while Albert Dalker and Edward Wetterman of Cincinnati piled up 1,231 for first place in the doubles.

The Rovers of Buffalo, scored 2,770 and led the first squad in the five-men teams. This put them in seventh place for the present. The Brewed Malts of Sioux City, were next best with 2,721.

G. G. Fisher of Chicago is new leader in the individuals. He rolled 660 in one of the late squads and deposed Max Unger of Cleveland, who went to the fore yesterday with 649. Fisher bowled one of the most consistent series of the tournament. He opened with 233 and had 213 for his second game and 214 for the third.

Fisher now leads in the contest for the grand average prize with a total of 1,823 pins for his nine games.

Louis Semons of Chicago, who has been credited with 300 scores more than once, had the second best score of the day with 625.

Amateur Vaudeville.

There will be a free vaudeville performance in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. A. tonight at 8 o'clock.

The membership committee of the Y. M. C. A. is conducting a campaign for new members and is meeting with great success. This committee has planned a banquet for the members in charge of the campaign for this evening, and the vaudeville performance will be given immediately after the banquet.

All of the stunts in the performance are of high class and by local talent, and there is a great deal of interest being shown by the membership of the association.

The program follows:

Selection ..... Mandolin Orchestra.

POSTAL BANK BILL PASSED

Senate Adopts Measure and Sends It to the House for Action.

Delay in Committee Now on the Program---Outlook in General.

Washington, March 7.—The postal savings bank bill is to be sent to the house today, and it will be sent promptly to several weeks' oblivion in a committee while the administration railroad bill is given the center of the senate stage and the house drones on with appropriation bills to the accompaniment of political speeches made under the cloak of general debate. Dreary discussions probably will be the order of business for the next few days, or until congress has warmed to another of the administration policies.

Dividing practically upon party lines, the senate passed the administration postal savings bank bill last Saturday

Of the 72 votes cast, 50 were in favor of the bill and 22 against it. All the negative votes were cast by Democrats. Even Mr. McInery who had been with the Republicans throughout the consideration of the bill, in the end lined up with his party. Senator Chamberlain of Oregon was the only Democrat who stood with the Republicans in favor of the bill.

What It Provides.

As it goes to the house, the bill authorizes the various money order postoffices to accept sums of $1 or more from depositors and to deposit these sums in local banks where the money is to remain until needed in case of war or other exigencies. In case of such withdrawal, the funds are to be invested in government securities, but with the proviso that such securities shall not draw less than 2½ per cent interest. The control of the funds is vested in a board of trustees composed of the postmaster general, the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general.

The aggregate balance allowed to any depositor is $500 and no person is permitted to deposit more than $100 in any one month. The government is required to pay 2 per cent interest, and must exact not less than 2½ per cent from the banks, the extra ½ per cent being required for the payment of expenses and losses.

It is calculated that such a law would bring much money out of hiding and result in a fund ranging all the way from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

Railroad Bill Slow.

While the debate on the railroad bill is likely to stand over several weeks, Republican leaders in the senate have promised President Taft that it will be passed without material change. Unquestionably this attitude will provoke acrid discussion accompanied by condemnation of what is termed White House domination. Senators who recall the heated debate over the Hepburn bill predict even warmer exchanges over the Townsend-Elkins measure.

All of the reports which come from the senate committee on territories seem to indicate that the statehood bill is in trouble, and that Senator Beveridge will have difficulty in getting it passed. The exact cause for the delay is not apparent beyond the dissatisfaction with the qualifications for voting in the two proposed new states.

Rush Them Through Late.

Little is said concerning the conservation bills and the court injunction bill, which are on the president's program. The reason is said to be that leaders believe that if action on these measures is delayed, they can be brought to committees and passed with comparatively little debate in the last few days of the session, when all members will be anxious to get home to look after their campaigns.

Vesuvius In Action.

Naples, March 7.—Vesuvius has suddenly become active again. There has been a continuous eruption for the last thirty-six hours of red hot stones and ashes, this being accompanied by internal detonations. Several fissures have opened from which gas and lava are flowing in great quantities.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

Removing the outward symptoms is not all that is necessary to cure Contagious Blood Poison. The virulent germs which produce these external manifestations must be completely driven from the blood before a real cure can be effected. The least taint left in the circulation will sooner or later cause a fresh outbreak of the trouble, with all its hideous symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, copper-colored spots, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc. Only a blood purifier can cure Contagious Blood Poison. Medicines which merely check the symptoms for a time, because of their strong mineral nature, and leave the poison smouldering in the system, have brought disappointment to thousands. The disease always returns after such treatment. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison and cures it permanently. It goes into the blood, and removes every particle of the poison, making the circulation pure, rich and healthy, nor does S.S.S. leave the slightest trace of the disease for future outbreaks. S.S.S. does not contain any mineral ingredient, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, which are most valuable in their blood-purifying properties, and at the same time specifically adapted to building up the entire system. If you have Contagious Blood Poison S.S.S. will cure you because it will thoroughly purify your Blood. Home Treatment Book and any medical advice free to all.

CHINESE RESTAURANTS RAISE PRICES—CHOP SUEY UNCHANGED

There was gloom in certain social circles Saturday when some Duluth citizens perused the following advertisement in Saturday's papers: "At a meeting of the undersigned proprietors of Chinese restaurants in the city of Duluth, after discussing the question of the high cost of food served to our patrons and that we are actually serving meals at a loss, we have agreed to raise our prices materially; otherwise we will become bankrupt or forced out of business. (Signed) Chin Gin, Oregon restaurant; S. Huie, St. Paul restaurant; Ah Wong, Ohio restaurant; Him Kee, Omaha restaurant; Wong Pay, Royal restaurant; Young Sing, Washington restaurant; witness, Thomas J. Keon."

It was rumored that the chop suey houses were about to boost prices on bird nest soup, chop suey, fishes' stomachs and other delectables dear to the hearts of a certain younger set which delights in epicurean repasts.

'Twas a lugubrious crowd that sought the fantastically decorated apartments of several well known chop suey chefs Saturday night. Was the price of rice going up? Not that anybody had heard about. Some optimistic persons ventured a hopeful smile. How about that suey with Washington sauce? With many gestures it was explained that the prices were unchanged. The bill of fare, unashamed, was brought forth and eagerly scanned. Then was there rejoicing. Ah, yes, those were happy times, those closing hours Saturday. For the price of chop suey shall not go up tonight!

S. Huie, proprietor of the St. Paul restaurant, said that the cost of living is indeed high, although not as high in Chinese restaurants as other places. Still, said S. Huie, philosophically, one must make a profit for one is not in the charity business. S. Huie pointed out, and presented the bill of fare to prove it, that the price of dinners remains unchanged. When a gentleman desires a piece of meat by itself, however, he must pay 5 cents more than formerly. Still, said S. Huie, the price of regular meals has not gone up. The bill of fare said so.

One can get some meat, two or three vegetables, bread, coffee and a bit of desert for the small sum of two thin dimes or "two bits," as the case may be. This is as formerly. But if a gentleman wants pork chops in a hurry, when none are prepared, he must pay 20 cents instead of 15. Pork chops with eggs cost 20 cents instead of 25. Salt mackerel, however, which used to bring 25 cents, is now served for 20 cents.

Three fried eggs cost 20 cents instead of 15 cents, but one can get two for 15 cents, if that is all the coin one desires to spend. Three boiled eggs cost 20 cents instead of 15, and three chirred eggs 25 cents instead of 20.

S. Huie said these increases did not affect the chop suey houses; only restaurants. He added that although there had been a slight increase in meats and eggs, yet one can eat very cheaply—much more cheaply than elsewhere, in fact—at Chinese restaurants.

CANNOT FORCE LINE CONNECTION

Commerce Commission Cannot Act on Complaints By Branch Railroads.

Washington, March 7.—The interstate commerce commission does not have power to compel common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to grant a physical connection with "branch" railroads upon the complaint of the branch railroads itself, according to a decision announced today by the supreme court of the United States.

EXPECT ACTION FOR RESERVOIRS

Johnson and Kaercher Have Great Hopes of Power in the Minnesota.

Washington, March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Senator C. A. Johnson of St. Peter, Minn., and A. K. Kaercher of Ortonville, representatives of the Minnesota River Improvement & Power company, are in Washington and expressed themselves today as confident that the river and harbor bill to be passed next winter will contain a provision authorizing the construction of reservoirs, so that they can utilize power that will thus be developed. The war department has informed Messrs. Johnson and Kaercher that the survey of the Minnesota river now being conducted by Maj. Shunk will not be completed until next summer. It will be laid before congress at the December session, and an authorization for the improvement of the Minnesota river, as proposed, will undoubtedly be incorporated in the river and harbor bill.

IS BETWEEN TWO FIRES

Official Head of Chief Troyer Demanded at Democratic Meeting.

The Mayor Has Also Been Petitioned to Retain Him.

Mayor M. B. Cullum is between two hot fires on the question of the appointment of a chief of police.

Many have urged upon him the retention of Chief Troyer, declaring that he is the best man he could secure for the place, having more experience and better qualifications than any man in Duluth.

Another element demands his scalp. They claim that it was understood during the campaign, that Chief Troyer would be removed, even though no definite promises were made, and that the mayor received much support on that basis.

The growing belief, which has become almost a certainty, that there would be no change, has caused the latter element some concern. Yesterday a large meeting was held at the Lenox hotel, presided over by one of the most prominent aldermen in the city. It is understood that about seventy-five of the leading Democrats of the city attended.

"To the victor belongs the spoils," was the sentiment expressed. Strong arguments were put forth for the removal of the chief. The assertion was made that the Democrats had elected Mayor Cullum and that he owed it to the party to remove the chief.

The meeting appointed a committee to wait on Mayor Cullum this morning to demand the office of the chief of police. No particular man was indorsed, it is said. The delegation called shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, but Mayor Cullum said after the meeting that he had nothing to give out.

The alderman who called the meeting has been in the council for several years. Two other aldermen of the Democratic faith also attended.

STEAMER STRANDS IN A CORN FIELD

Water Is Falling and Ohio River Boat Is in Perilous Position.

Gallipolis, Ohio, March 7.—The steamer Virginia, which ran into a corn field at Willow Grove, forty miles north of here yesterday, and stranded, is in a perilous position today owing to the water falling. Strenuous efforts are being made to draw the steamer into deeper water. The boat belongs to the Pittsburg & Cincinnati packet line and is valued at $45,000.

WANTS BUTTER FROM NORTHWEST

Navy Department Will Open Bids for 1,000,000 Pounds March 15.

Washington, March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Proposals for the sale of 1,000,000 pounds of butter to the navy will be opened at the navy department in this city on March 15. The department is anxious to get bids from all the large Northwestern creameries, and notice to that effect has been sent out. Under the regulation the amount to be purchased from a single concern is limited to 45,000 pounds. It is further prescribed that all butter must score 94 and 95.

WOMAN'S THANKS HERO'S REWARD

Man Who Stopped Runaway Says That Is All the Pay He Wants.

Washington, March 7.—"They thanked me, and that was enough," said John O'Neill, a young bricklayer who yesterday risked his life to save from possible death a woman and little girl who were in a wagon behind a runaway horse.

Lying on his hospital cot suffering from a broken shoulder, cuts about the head and face and badly battered legs, O'Neill, when asked about the accident after he had regained consciousness, seemed to think he had sufficient reward for his heroism. The woman and child are unidentified, but the former called up the hospital last night and inquired as to O'Neill's condition.

ARMY CAPTAIN IS WOUNDED IN DUEL

French Scientist Gets Revenge for Belgian's Conduct in the Casino.

Nice, France, March 7.—Dr. Doyen, the French scientist, and Capt. Van Langendonck of the Belgian army, fought a duel in the Hippodrome at noon today. At the second attack Dr. Doyen pricked the captain's right forearm, whereupon the seconds stopped the combat. The duelists were reconciled.

The affair followed a scene in the Casino yesterday when the scientist accused the captain of having insulted Mme. Doyen.

LIGNITE MINE PLANT BURNED

Disastrous Blaze Visits Burlington, N. D., on Saturday.

Buford, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire at Burlington Saturday completely destroyed the equipment of the Lloyd lignite coal mine, putting it out of business for the time being. The engine house, tipple, weighing house and other buildings went down before the flames with a heavy loss.

At present the Lloyd coal mining crew is working in the Foxholm mine, and the demand is being cared for satisfactorily. In the Lloyd mine modern and up-to-date machinery will be installed to replace the burned equipment.

THREATENS PEACEMAKER.

North Dakotan in Jail for Resenting Interference in Fight.

Kenmare, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Becoming engaged in a quarrel with the owner of the Vadnias mine near this place, Edward Smith threatened to kill William Stevenson when the latter attempted to interfere. Edwards resented Williams' action, and, drawing a revolver, leveled it at the peacemaker's head with a threat to shoot it off if he did not immediately desist. Williams later swore out a warrant for Edwards' arrest, and he was taken to Minot and placed in the county jail.

CONSUMPTION VICTIM.

Change in Climate Did Not Save Wisconsin Man.

Mandan, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Benjamin Thorner died on his homestead near Flasher, this county, from tuberculosis. Three years ago Thorner came to North Dakota from Diamond Bluffs, Wis., filing on the homestead in the hopes that the change of climate would rid him of the disease. Up to this winter he seemed to gain, but lately the old trouble returned and death finally claimed the victim. His body was sent to Diamond Bluffs Saturday.

ACCUSED MURDERER'S HEARING ON MONDAY.

Carrington, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The preliminary hearing of Joe Slycord, charged with murder, is to be held here today. Slycord was arrested Dec. 16, but through continuances from time to time, he has as yet not been given a preliminary hearing. Slycord is accused of killing his employer on a farm near this city last December, being captured at his old home in Wisconsin.

SHRINER PROGRAM READY.

New Orleans Announces Plans for Coming Meeting.

New Orleans, La., March 7.—Copies of the official program of the Shriners' convention, which will be held in New Orleans next month, were issued today. A reception in honor of the several thousand members of the order, who will attend from all sections of North America, will be held Sunday, April 10. The three succeeding days will be devoted to business sessions, interspersed with pageants, steamer trips, banquets, street masking and other diversions. The convention will be brought to a close with a grand ball at the Old French opera house on the night of Wednesday, April 13.

SCHOOL SCANDAL HAS REDUCED ATTENDANCE.

Marinette, Wis., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trouble in Sevastapool school over the horsewhipping of a girl pupil by the teacher, which resulted in the student being expelled and the teacher fined, has resulted in the attendance at the school being [illegible] forty-five to fifteen. The costs of the case in the justice court amounted to $160 and an appeal will be made.

NORTHERN WISCONSIN LANDS MORE VALUABLE.

Ashland, Wis., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Farm lands in Northern Wisconsin are increasing in value, it is said, because of heavy crop production. The lands are selling rapidly and the investors and settlers are buying faster than ever before. Northern Wisconsin already is recognized as the best dairy district in the United States.

BEMIDJI'S MAYOR HAS DROPPED DAMAGE SUIT.

Bemidji, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The personal injury suit of Mayor John F. Pogue against the Great Northern railway, a claim for damages in the sum of $10,000 for injuries sustained in an automobile accident at Wilton, has been dismissed in the district court on motion of the plaintiff's attorney, to the surprise of all who have attended the court. The railway company is said to have settled out of court.

TELL PRINCE MONACO IS BEHIND THE TIMES.

Monte Carlo, Monaco, March 7.—Half of the subjects of the principality marched to the palace and waiting upon the prince of Monaco yesterday, demanded a Constitution, declaring that Monaco was the only absolute monarchy remaining on the face of the globe. The prince received a deputation from the crowd and promised to consider the question.

REFUSED TO COME BACK

Runaway Girl Would Not Return With Officer From Menomonie.

Sheriff Would Not Bring Her Unless Paid Full Mileage.

Because a widowed mother could not afford to advance a mileage of 10 cents per mile, amounting to about $39, to Sheriff Milton F. Swant of Menomonie, Wis., she has been unable to secure the return of her daughter, Selma Hanson, 16 years of age, who recently ran away from home.

The local police were asked to help secure the return of the girl, who has been living with her mother at 2011 West Superior street. They understood she had gone to Menomonie and asked the sheriff to locate her.

He found her in the city and called up Lieut. Fritz, in charge of the station at night, saying that he would bring her back if his expenses were paid. He was informed that this was agreeable. Later he called up, stating that he couldn't come unless he was paid at the rate of 10 cents per mile. Chief Troyer told him that he would send some one after the girl.

The mother advanced $15 for this purpose. Detective Toewe went to Menomonie to bring her back.

According to his story he states he found the girl working for the sheriff and that she would not return. He states that it looks as if she had been coached, as she told him when he went to see her that he had to have papers from the governor before he could take her from one state to another. There is no criminal charge against the girl, and if she refused to leave Menomonee all he could do was to leave here there, which he did.

The police say that the girl told the sheriff that she didn't want to go back, as her home surroundings were not of the best. This is said to be the reason given by the sheriff for refusing to bring her back.

The police state they cannot see any consistency in the position of the Wisconsin sheriff. They say that it was evidently proper for him to bring her back if he was paid at the rate of 10 cents per mile, but that it was not proper for her to leave with another officer when the sheriff didn't get any pay.

It was stated this morning that the girl has an aunt in Menomonie.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

NEW YORK MAY BE COMPETITOR

Many Cities Anxious to Hold International Aviation Championship Contests.

New York, March 7.—This city is likely to become a keen competitor for the international aviation championships to be held in this country next fall. Heretofore the most promising bidders in the field have been Los Angeles, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Washington and Baltimore, but now a number of prominent aviators have taken an interest in the Long Island motor parkway, where the Vanderbilt races have been held, and will bid for the aeroplane contest.

Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, and others prominently identified with the sport, have called the attention of the Aero club officers to the parkway, and the officials, including President Cortlandt Field Bishop, have just completed an investigating tour of the great fields, which are among the most beautiful in this part of the country. There is already a grandstand seating 5,000 people. One to hold 50,000 is planned if the Aero Club of America gives the parkway the races. The Long Island railroad has agreed to electrify its system.

NEW RECORDS ARE PREDICTED

High Scores in All Bowling Events Are Constantly Rising.

Detroit, Mich., March 7.—Another heavy schedule was the order today in the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress. From 8 a. m. to past midnight the fourteen alleys at the Wayne Gardens were expected to be constantly in use. Among the cities represented today were Columbus, Ohio; Canton, Ohio; Buffalo, N. Y.; Des Moines, Iowa; Sioux City, Iowa; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Quincy, Ill.; Wasiington and Baltimore.

The scores in all events are constantly rising. Officials are convinced that a new set of American Bowling congress records will be established before the tournament is finished.

Secretary A. L. Langtry of Milwaukee said that he thought it would take scores of 710 in the individuals, more than 1,300 in the two-man teams and close to 2,975 in the five-man event, to land the championship honors.

Will Fight Conley.

New Orleans, La., March 7.—Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, who won his second fight with Jem Kendrick here yesterday, expects to fight Frankie Conley as soon as a match can be arranged. Coulon says he is prepared to weigh in at 15 pounds, which was the ringside weight at yesterday's bout.

ESCAPED MISSOURI CONVICT UNDER ARREST IN MINOT.

Minot, N. D., March 7.—Slick Slater, alias Edward Smith, escaped convict from the Missouri state pen, was arrested here.

Smith was being tried in this county court for assault when the bailiff of the court recognized him from comparison with notices sent out by Missouri officials.

Smith escaped from the Missouri pen where he was serving a term for criminal assault committen in Kansas City. Tattoo marks led to the identification. Smith was working in a mine near Kenmare, and pulled a gun during a dispute with miners.

Saved a Soldier's Life.

Facing death from shot and shell in the Civil war was more agreeable to J. A. Stone, of Kemp, Tex., than facing it from what doctors said was consumption. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough, that stuck to me in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. I now weigh 178 pounds." For Coughs, Colds La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough and lung trouble, it's supreme. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Free Rink Still Open.

Skating is not all over in Duluth, despite the recent warm spell, which raised such havoc with the ice. The sheet at Lake Shore park at Twelfth avenue east was put in shape yesterday and will be in use until again destroyed by the ravages of Old Sol. It is not likely that any of the other free rinks will be fixed up again this year.

Employment Agent Arrested.

Albert Boline, an employment agent was arrested this morning charged with petty larceny. It is claimed that he sent a man to Hibbing as a cook and another as a cookee when there was no such jobs available. He entered a plea of not guilty in police court and will be tried next Monday. It is claimed that Boline has sent other men to places to act as cooks when no cooks were needed.

SUPERIOR

PIONEER DIES AT SOLON SPRINGS

Charles Lord Came to the Head of the Lakes in 1853.

Charles Lord, one of the first white men to come to the Head of the Lakes, died at his home in Solon Springs late Saturday, after a lingering illness. He was 84 years old. He came to Superior from Montreal in 1853, settling on Wisconsin Point. Later he conducted a bakery near the boundary of the Indian reservation at Fond du Lac.

A few years later he moved to Old Superior, where he was in business for a number of years before moving to Solon Springs. He is survived by two sons, Charles, Jr., and A. L. Lord. Mr. Lord was at one time clerk of the circuit court and had always taken a prominent part in politics.

CLAIMS WOMAN "TOUCHED" HIM

J. Jarondeau Misses $90 and Has Pearl Sifton Arrested.

Pearl Sifton, who is believed by the police to be an inmate of one of the Hammond avenue resorts, was arrested Saturday night at a rooming house at 1210 Tower avenue, charged with having stolen $90 from the person of J. Jarondeau. She will have a preliminary hearing in municipal court this afternoon.

The alleged robbery took place early Saturday evening. Jarondeau and the woman engaged a room at the rooming house late in the afternoon. The place is kept by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Topp, who are held as witnesses at the hearing this afternoon in municipal court.

File for Nomination.

Fred Tomlison, alderman from the Fifth ward, filed nomination papers for the office of mayor late Saturday with the city clerk. This makes three entries in the mayoralty race: Mayor F. R. Crumpton and F. Tomlison, who will be candidates for the Republican nomination and Charles W. Swanson, who is seeking the Socialist nomination. It is expected that Former Mayor Charles N. O'Hare will file today for the Democratic nomination for mayor.

Boom for La Follette.

At a meeting Saturday evening at the city hall, the preliminary steps on the part of the progressive Republicans in the Eleventh Congressional district to return Robert M. La Follette to the United States senate for another term were taken. Plans were outlined for the formation of a club to work for his re-election. A big meeting will be held some time in April, at which time addresses will be made by several prominent speakers.

New Business Block.

The contract for the erection of a $30,000 business block at the northwest corner of Tower avenue and Fifth street will be let this week. Two small frame buildings, one a news stand and the other a clothing store, now occupy the corner. The structure will be built for Ole Severson, a logging contractor of the East end. It will be two stories of brick and stone, with a fifty-foot frontage, running back from the street 125 feet.

Bryan Drunk Again.

William Jennings Bryan, not the great commoner, was handed a 60-day sentence this morning in the Superior municipal court, when he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness. Bryan is a familiar character to the police of both Superior and Duluth.

PROTECTION IN BUILDING

Danger From Fire Minimized in Cities By Proper Construction Methods.

Inspector S. M. Kielley Is in Favor of Universal Building Code.

S. M. Kielley, building inspector, is heartily in favor of the movement which has been started for a universal building code for the United States.

He declares that under the present system the insurance companies get everything and the community next to nothing. He believes that the law should be so constructed that buildings will have to be built properly, affording the maximum protection and the minimum danger from conflagrations.

The movement is being furthered by F. W. Fitzpatrick, executive officer of the International Society of State and Municipal Building Commissioners and Inspectors. He has sent out some interesting literature on the subject.

It is claimed that fire costs the people of this country an equivalent of a per capita tax of $8, while in Europe a fire loss of 50 cents per capita is considered high. Mr. Fitzpatrick says that the belief in cheap construction is the silliest of silly notions and that the only way to remedy it is to compel proper building by law.

He takes the position that a dangerous building should be labeled "dangerous," as is done in most municipalities with houses in which there are contagious diseases. He takes the position that the man who has his building labeled in that manner will have difficulty in getting tenants, forcing him to tear down the fire trap or repair it until it is at least in the ordinary class.

Another suggestion held forth is that the man who has a fire should be responsible for the damage done to his neighbors. He says that this is the plan followed in Europe with beneficial results.

Mr. Fitzpatrick urges a change in the system of taxing buildings in municipalities. He asserts that the man who puts up a modern fireproof building benefits the community, is costing the city less for fire protection and is doing his utmost to produce danger from fire. Yet it is said that he has to pay as much taxes as the man who endangers the community with a fire trap and makes an expensive fire department necessary. In fact he claims that the more a man puts into a building and the better he makes it, the more he is taxed.

SPECULATIVE MARKET STRONG

Whole List Benefits By Activity in Favorites of Professionals.

Speculative activity became more general today than for some time. The favorites were North Butte, the Lake issues, Butte Coalition, Steel common, Amalgamated and to a smaller extent, Calumet & Arizona. All of the so-called Cole-Ryan issues were strong.

The underlying strength in the market is chiefly speculative although there has been a fairly good investment demand. The foreigner has purchased liberally. In England the public is buying rubber shares wildly and the speculative excitement has spread to other stocks including American copper, railroads and industrials. This buying has had a good effect on this side. No decision was handed down today in the American Tobacco case and the delay in this event has given the market a stronger tone although if the decision is adverse the market will suffer correspondingly. That, however, is in the future and traders are keeping an eye on the present, preferring to let the future care for itself.

The local market was strong. The trading was better than for several weeks both in volume and character. Most of the issues traded in were high class stocks. The activity was broad and there was stirring up of almost the entire list. Butte-Ballaklava was heavily traded in, a local broker disposing of several hundred shares which appeared to be professionally owned. It was taken by two other brokers for themselves and customers. Amazon was in demand and sold up to its highest level.

The copper metal situation was slightly weaker, but the market did not feel the effect. The crop outlook appears good, despite reports of wheat damage, and the industrial business of the country is excellent despite serious labor troubles. The fact that these disturbances are chiefly local minimizes their deleterious effect.

Butte-Ballaklava sold at $10.37½ and $10.50; Butte-Alex Scott, full paid, at $7 and $7.12½; Cactus at $5; Live Oak at $19.62½ and $19.50; Red Warrior at $2.56¼; Butte & Superior at $2.56¼; Calumet & Montana at $1.18¾ down to $1.12½; Calumet & Corbin at 75 down to 74 cents; Calumet & Sonora at $19.50 and $19.75; Cliff at $1.50; Keating at $1.93¾; National at 55 and 54 cents, and Amazon-Montana at $5.75, $6 and $6.12½.

Amalgamated sold at $81.62½ up to $83.25; Butte Coalition at $26.25 up to $27.50; Calumet & Arizona at $72.50 up to $76 and down to $75.50; Giroux at $9.87½ up to $10.12½; Greene at $10.75; Lake at $79.50 off to $77.75; North Butte at $39 to $43.50; Superior & Pittsburg at $14.12½ and off ¼ point; Steel common at $85.37½ to $88.50; Bohemia at $15.50 to $16.50 and down to $15.16½; North Lake at $25 to $25.75 and off to $22.50 then up to $23.75.

Hayden, Stone & Co., say of North Butte:

"The action of the management in halving the dividend rate to $2 a share seems to have met with a good deal of favor. From a market standpoint this is undoubtedly the best action that could have been taken. The stock at these prices still nets 5 per cent, and a considerable surplus for development and construction.

"It has been pointed out that even now North Butte is paying as much as Amalgamated, selling at twice its price. This comparison, however, is rather fallacious. North Butte has only one shaft, and is developed on only two veins, whose values seem to be somewhat in question. Amalgamated has a dozen shafts, and as many veins, any one of which could drop out of sight and still leave the company a larger earner.

"There are, however, two very strong features about North Butte; first—the stock has twice before risen from 30 to 90, or 100. This fact alone gives it big possibilities in the eyes of traders.

"Secondly—the fact that it has been the usual experience at Butte mines, that after passing through a lean zone 400 to 600 feet in depth, rich ore has again been encountered. There is a very fair chance that in the next 200 or 400 feet, North Butte will again come into rich ore.

"These facts are apt to over-balance —for the time being—the most serious objection to the stock; viz: the impossibility of obtaining precise information regarding conditions at the property."

* * *

The assessment of $2 per share which will be paid by Live Oak stockholders April 1 will provide the company with $78,000 which will defray the proposed increased expense of the development work and provide for the payment of $10,800 on the property, due next December. The ore already blocked out has an estimated value of $1,875,000 or $35 a share.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is stronger. Lake is 13¾@14 cents and electrolytic is 13½@13⅝ cents per pound. A week ago the leading selling agencies reduced their asking price for electrolytic from 13¾ to 13½ cents. After making large sales at the lower price they withdrew from the market and probably will not be sellers again at less than 13¾ cents. For the first time in many months the foreign visible supply showed a decrease during the last half of February of 647 tons. This furnishes positive proof that European consumption is rapidly increasing, and that the heavy exports of the past few months have been fully justified by legitimate trade conditions.

"It has been reported recently that the agreement between the largest producers in the country to reduce production temporarily is not being lived up to, this being shown by the large output reported for the month of January. It must be remembered that the figures of the Copper Producers' association do not represent the current output of the mines but of the refineries. American production, as shown in their report for January, represented the output of Michigan smelters during January, and of those smelters located elsewhere, the product of which has to be treated electrolytically, as long ago as October or November. I have reason to believe that February, March and April production, as shown in the producers' association figures, will be considerably smaller than for the preceding three months. The decline in the output of Utah Copper and Nevada Consolidated in December will probably not show in the producers' association figures before April 10.

"The recent improvement in the statistical position of the metal gives basis for the belief that copper will sell above 14 cents by the middle of next month."

The Duluth-Toroda company has issued a report as a supplement to the exhaustive favorable report which was made some time ago by Dwight E. Woodbridge. The statement follows:

"The property is paid for in full and is absolutely free from all incumbrances, and consists of the following claims located in the Ballarat mining district. Okanagon county, Wash., known as the Bodie, Bodie No. 2, Little George, West Cliff and Crystal Bluff, containing eighty-six acres. The company has also acquired an adjoining claim to the north, containing about twenty acres, which is of great benefit to the company on account of being heavily timbered, and also for dumping grounds. It gives the company access to 600 feet more of the stream which flows through the property.

"There is a complete ten-stamp and cyanide mill costing $26,000 on the property in first-class condition, also five living houses, boarding houses, blacksmith shop, assay office and stables, all in first-class condition.

"Since purchasing this property, which was examined and favorably reported on by Dwight L. Woodbridge, we have shown up about 15,000 tons of ore, making about 50,000 tons in all, which will average $8 to $10 per ton, and a vein of high grade approximately 150 feet in length and from 18 to 36 inches in width, extending between the 200 and the 250-foot levels in depth. This ore runs from $40 to $70 per ton. The mine was in fair condition for mining, but since our purchase we have made the economical working of it much more efficient by reason of our having put in several raises between the different levels, whereby the ore comes down by gravity instead of manual labor. The efficiency of the mill has also been increased by the installation of a distributor for the sands and also agitation in the leaching tanks.

"Cost of mining and milling has been about $4 per ton, but this will be greatly reduced by the installation of an air compressor and drills which will be put in place at once. The capacity of the mill will also be increased from thirty to seventy-five tons a day by the installation of additional machinery."

Want Larger Building.

This afternoon at the courthouse, a delegation of Virginia citizens will appear before the county commissioners, sitting as a committee of the whole, and will argue in favor of enlarging the plans for a district court building at Virginia. The Virginia people claim that the expenditure of $100,000, as contemplated by the board will not provide the district court with adequate quarters on the range and they will ask the board to increase the appropriation.

SETTLERS SAIL FOR AMERICA

The first party of Holland farmers who are being brought to this country by Bishop McGolrick, in furtherance of his plan to settle the lands of Northern Minnesota with people from the larger cities of the country, sailed today.

These farmers are experts in dairying and have thoroughly studied the problems of intensive farming. They will be brought to America and will settle on farms in Mille Lacs county. They are expected to arrive in Minnesota about March 20.

These farmers will act as instructors to other settlers who will come later. The company behind Bishop McGolrick has several large tracts of land, which will be settled with poor people from the large cities of America.

HIGH WIND WRECKS SCHOOL BUILDING

Forest River, N. D., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a heavy wind early Sunday morning, the massive chimney of the school house here was blown down, completely wrecking the upper portion of the building.

Today the higher grades of the school are holding sessions in the Forest River hotel and will continue doing so for about a month, until the damage is repaired.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES MEET

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 7.—The joint conference board of the allied printing trades council met here today to discuss advancement of the use of union labels and similar matters. Six international unions, claiming a membership of 104,000, were represented, including the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union, International Typographical union, International Brotherhood of Book Binders, International Photo-Engravers' union and International Papermakers' union. The meeting was held at the headquarters of the pressmen's organization.

MUST RECOGNIZE COUNTY OPTION

Capt. C. C. Whitney of Marshall, Minn., former state printer and well known in state political circles, was a visitor in the city yesterday. Capt. Whitney takes a deep interest in state politics, and expressed an opinion upon the county option phase of politics, that is attracting attention at the present time.

"County option is something that is bound to be recognized with by the Republicans of the state," said Capt. Whitney. "I am inclined to the opinion that the Republican party will be compelled to inject a county option plank in its platform at the next Republican convention. The county option movement has attained a wide growth throughout the state and this growth will have to be recognized by the leaders of the Republican party."

Capt. Whitney expressed the opinion that the county option plank would find its way into the platform of the Republican party, simply through the recognition of the growing belief in county option over the state.

BOILER HOUSE BURNED.

Houghton, Mich., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire late Saturday night destroyed the boiler house of the Baltic mine at Redridge. The damage approximates $20,000. Water to fight the fire was obtained from the Salmon Trout dam, the regular supply being cut off by the fire. The efforts of the volunteer firemen were turned wholly to preventing the flames from reaching adjoining buildings.

GIDDING BACK FROM NEW YORK

J. M. Gidding arrived in Duluth yesterday from New York and is busy today with the assorting and arranging of thousands of dollars' worth of new merchandise, which has arrived from New York and other Eastern markets within the past day or two.

"We are going to show the most complete stock of ladies' wearables in the state this season," said Mr. Gidding, "and, while I know this is quite a statement to make, it will be borne out later when our spring opening is announced."

Mr. Gidding said the opening of the new store in New York would mean a great deal for Duluth, as hereafter the the new styles will be shown here simultaneously with those on Fifth avenue, New York.

"Our entry into the larger cities does not mean our Duluth store will have any less attention, but it will continue to be the father store, and nothing will be too good to bring here."

Mr. Gidding was at the Savoy hotel, New York for the past two months, and met many former residents of Duluth there.

IS ARRESTED FOR OBSTRUCTING STREET.

No obstructions will be allowed to block the streets unless permission is secured from the board of public works. Chief Troyer states that he is tired of asking that the streets be kept cleared and has told the patrolmen to arrest offenders in this respect. The chief says he has given warning after warning, but without effect. Saturday afternoon two men were arrested on this charge. They are James Gustafson and Robert Muir. They entered pleas of not guilty. Their trials were set for this afternoon.

SOUTH ST. PAUL STOCKMAN IS DROWNED IN MONTANA.

Miles City, Mont., March 7.—Ray McRae, formerly a well-known stock dealer of South St. Paul, was drowned in the high water of the Yellowstone river near Terry, Mont., Friday night. McRae conducted a large sheep ranch near where he lost his life.

CHILD SUCKS STEAM AND FORFEITS LIFE.

Hannah, N. D., March 7.—Elmer Ketter, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ketter, met death in a tragic manner. He was playing about the kitchen with a hammer. His mother had just taken this from him, when he turned about, and sucked the draught of boiling water from the tea kettle. He never regained consciousness, dying about ten hours later.

Hearing Again Postponed.

Rice Lake Falls, Minn., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The investigation of the charges of malfeasance in office brought against Auditor A. A. Latendresse and Chairman C. A. Lindquist of the county board, has been postponed again. Feb. 15 was the date orlginally set for the investigation. Before that date there was a postponement to Feb. 23, and later to March 1 and to March 3, and now comes the information that there won't be anything doing until March 23.

Receiver for Minot Reporter.

Minot, N. D., March 7.—The Minot Daily Reporter went into the hands of a receiver here Friday. Sam Clark was the editor until recently. A. V. Swanson, editor of the Equity News, takes temporary charge. The liabilities are about $11,000.

SHORTS IN WHEAT COVER

Price Rallies Toward the Close After Showing Weakness Earlier.

Cash Here Sells at 1c Over May---Mills Are Buyers.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 7.—The wheat market eased off today on liquidation, rallying toward the close when shorts covered heavily. The market took on the appearance of being oversold. The upturn, however, was not sufficient to carry the market back to the opening. May wheat closed ½c under Saturday's close and July closed with the same discrepancy.

May opened at $1.12½ asked, sold at $1.12⅝-¾, then at $1.12⅝, down to $1.12¾ and at $1.11¾, rallying to $1.12⅛ bid at the close. The July option was not traded in at the opening. It sold at $1.12⅛ at the close after offers had been made at $1.12⅜ and $1.11¾-⅞. Flax was dull. At the opening there were offers of May at $2.17½, but there was no demand. The close was $2.17½ bid. The July option was $2.17½ nominal, the September option $1.70 bid and the October option $1.64 asked.

The cash situation here became stronger toward the close. No. 1 northern sold at 1c over the near option, local mills being the purchasers. Nobody else wanted cash wheat at that quotation. The situation seemed to be somewhat strained.

Oats closed ⅝c off, rye and barley were unchanged.

Much of the liquidation in wheat appears to have been in the nature of a discount of the government's report tomorrow, which will give an estimate of the reserves on the farms. While there is a possibility of a surprise, yet few traders believe that the report will be other than bearish. They do not look for a downward acceleration in values, believing that the report has been thoroughly discounted and that the market will continue under the factors which at present dominate it. The government's estimate last year was 143,000,000 bu or 18.3 per cent. The report tomorrow, some traders believe, will show from 170,-660,000 to 175,000,000 bu in reserve or around 23 per cent. Reserves of corn and oats are unusually heavy and the report concerning these grains undoubtedly will be extremely bearish.

In the Northwest the farmer is making fairly heavy deliveries which are much in excess of deliveries at this period last year. Country roads will soon break up, but this factor will not interfere with receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, as the country elevators, especially in South Dakota, are said to be full of wheat. Most of the offerings in the sample market have gone to elevators, the millers' wants having been supplied by purchases made to arrive.

The wheat market today opened weak and declined from the start. Liquidation was fairly heavy but as the session were on offerings became lighter and the market was not subject to great pressure. There was little buying power, however, and no factors existed to inject confidence into the situation. The professional element was short and the entire crowd sold. There was moderate short buying around low levels. The liquidation in May at the outstart started sympathetic selling in July which had been fairly strong in comparison with May by reason of purchases of July made by sellers of May. The professionals began to liquidate July and the distant months sagged with little support except moderate buying by shorts.

The visible supply of wheat increased 268,000 bu, a bearish report. Wheat on passage increased 6,184,000 bu. which caused a depressing effect on the foreign market. Liverpool closed lower in the face of heavy shipments and liberal offerings. La Platas for distant shipment were firmer. There was no export business done here. Ames-Brooks said the foreigner was holding aloof from American markets and that no bids are being offered. World's shipments of wheat were 12,400,000 bu. against 10,-432,000 bu. last week.

The cash situation is slow and the crop damage reports, although numerous, were not in sufficient volume to overcome the influence of the cash market. Cash here was 1c over the near option and at Minneapolis cash was 1@1½c over. The Consolidated Elevator company, it was reported, closed one of its large mills there.

MARKET GOSSIP

Broomhall's Russian cable says: "The market continues firm. Stocks reports show some decrease as a result of bad roads and the recent large shipments. Reports from the south and central districts continue to come in less favorably as a result of the recent cold weather and light snow and it is estimated that a large area will eventually show deterioration."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—"Wheat market at the start was under pressure of the weaker American cables on Saturday and heavy shipments to the United Kingdom being 5,840,000 bu against 3,808,000 bu last week and the increase in the amount on passage. Weather is springlike and though stimulated increased offerings and values were ¼@½d lower. Following the opening the market was dull with nearby months heavy and the distant months higher on the steadiness of La Plata cargoes for distant shipments. At mid-day market was dull and ⅜d lower than Saturday."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Northwest Receipts and Crop Reports Send Wheat Lower.

Chicago, March 7.—Wheat fell off today under the influence of increased Northwestern arrivals and because of a multitude of favorable crop reports. Opening figures were unchanged to ⅞c lower. During the first hour May sloped down from $1.12⅜ to $1.11⅝. The selling was scattered, and buyers at times checked the decline, much grain being absorbed at the prevailing prices for May were unchanged to ⅜c down at $1.12⅜ to $1.12.

The market continued to drag throughout the day in the nearby delivery. May fell off from $1.12⅜ to $1.10⅛, under the influence of large offerings. The distant futures followed May for a time, but rallied from the bottom prices. The close was weak for May at $1.11¼@1.11⅜, a loss of 1⅛@1¼c from Saturday's finish, with September being ⅛@¼c down. Closing figures were at $1.03⅝ for July and 99⅝@99¾c for September.

In the corn pit, the bears controlled the early trades, prices being generally on a down grade, with support scattered. Opening figures were from ⅛@⅝c off, and for the first hour the tendency was to the lower levels. May opened ½@⅝c to ½@⅝c down to 62¾@62½c.

An increasingly heavy tone developed later in the corn pit. Prices fell off 1⅛@1¼c. May moved from 62⅜@62⅝c to 61⅝c, the close being weak, with May 1c off at 62@62½c.

Oats were easy with the other grains, although the fluctuations were within narrower limits. Some buying on the part of commission houses developed on the low point. May moved between 45@44⅜c, the opening figures which were unchanged to ¼c down.

Another advance in live hog prices in the packing centers brought higher prices for provisions at the outset. Pork advanced 5@17½c, lard 12½@15c and ribs 5@12½c. Lack of a pronounced buying demand caused an easier tone before the end of the first hour. Accordingly much of the opening gain dissolved. Initial figures for the May products were: Pork, $24.97½; lard, $13.45@13.47½; ribs, $12.87½@12.90.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Liquidation and Farm News Make the Prices Weaker.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 7.—Further liquidation and the anticipation of a bearish government report on the farm reserves made the market decidedly easier today. Local receipts were heavy, cables were weaker, the United States visible showed a small increase and the market was easier. Southwestern crop reports were contradictory.

May opened steady with Saturday's close to ¼c lower, and after fluctuating in a range of ⅞@1c closed ½c below the day's high point. Local elevator stocks increased 275,000 bushels for two days. Minneapolis today received 762 cars of wheat as compared with 445 cars a year ago; Duluth 87 cars against 69 cars and Winnipeg 132 cars against 248 cars. May opened $1.11⅞@1.12⅛, high $1.12⅛, low $1.11¾, close $1.11⅝. July opened $1.12, high $1.12, low $1.11, close 1.11½. Cash wheat was weak. Heavy receipts and a slow demand added to the easier market. Elevators were good buyers. No. 1 northern sold for 1c over May price to 1½c above and No. 2 northern at 2c discount below the No. 1 northern price. Closing prices on track: No. 1 northern, $1.12@1.12⅝; to arrive, $1.11⅞@1.12⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.10@1.10⅞; to arrive, $1.09@1.10⅞; No. 3 wheat, $1.06@1.08⅞. No. 3 yellow corn, 53¾@56¾c; No. 3 white oats, 42¼@42¾c. No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,343 tons. There was no change in the situation today. Demand was only fair, shipments heavy and prices firm. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $22@22.50.

Dullness continued to feature the flour trade. On account of a decline in wheat flour prices were quoted lower. Shipments, 60,501. First patents, in wood f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.20@5.10; first clears, $4.35@4.45;; second clears, $3.10@3.40.

Flax—Receipts, 74 cars, year ago, 33; shipments, 1. Demand continued strong for both spot and arrive and ¼c above the Duluth May option. Closed $2.17¼.

Barley—Receipts, 120 cars; year ago, 117; shipments, 42. An easier tone prevailed in the market today. Malting barley was especially slow and prices were 1 cent lower on this grade. Feeding barley was about steady. Offerings were liberal. Closing range, 57@64c.

Duluth Car Inspection.

Wheat—No. 1 hard, 1; No. 1 northern, 7; No. 2 northern, 25; No. 3, 2; total, 35. Last year, 69. Flax, none, last year, 4; barley, 18, last year, 20; oats, 32; rye, 4. Total, 141; on track, 147.

New York Money.

New York, March 7.—Money on call easy, 2¾@3 per cent; ruling rate, 2¾ per cent; closing bid, 2¾ per cent; offered at 3 per cent; time loans, strong; 60 days, 2½ per cent and 90 days 3¾ per cent; six months, 4 per cent. Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4½@5 per cent; sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84.70@4.84.85 for 60-day bills and at $4.87.75 for demand; commercial bills, $4.84⅛@4.84⅝; bar silver, 50¾c; Mexican dollars, 44c. Government bonds weak; railroad bonds irregular.

South St. Paul Livestock.

South St. Paul, Minn., March 7.—Cattle—Receipts, 1,400; market generally steady; steers, $4.00@7.50; cows and heifers, $2.50@5.25; calves, 10@15c lower at $2.50@7.50; stockers and feeders, strong to 10c higher at $2.75@6.00. Hogs—Receipts, 4,000; market 10@15c higher; range, $9.65@9.85; bulk, $9.70@9.75. Sheep—Receipts, 1,000; steady; sheep, $2.00@5.25; lambs, $5.00@8.85.

The Cotton Market.

New York, March 7.—Cotton opened easy, unchanged to 8 points lower, and quickly sold off to the net loss of 9@18 points under selling orders, attributed to rumors of bull clique liquidation on Saturday and because of a renewal of bear pressure encouraged by relatively easy cables. Covering checked the decline after stop-loss orders had been executed, and there was some bull support on which the market rallied to within 4@11 points of Saturday's closing figures.

Spot closed quiet, 10 lower; middling uplands 14.65; middling gulf, 14.9o; sales, 4,200 bales.

Futures closed steady. Closing bids: March, 14.51; April, 14.43; May, 14.46; June, 14.22; July, 14.24; August, 13.68; September, 12.89; October, 12.48; November, 12.30; December, 12.31.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, March 7.—The condition of the treasury at the beginning of business today was as follows:

Trust funds—Gold coin, $855,486,869; silver dollars, $486,270,000; silver dollars of 1890, $3,829000; silver certificates outstanding $486,270,000.

General fund—Standard silver dollars in general fund, $5,451,292; current liabilities, $99,325,973; working balance in treasury offices, $22,017,689; in banks to credit of treasurer of the United States, $35,461,342; subsidiary silver coin, $21,411,714; minor coin, $1,173,238. Total balance in general fund, $82,-661,385.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, March 7.—Cattle—Receipts estimated at 23,000; market steady to 10c higher; beeves, $5.00@8.20; Texas steers, $4.70@5.90; western steers, $4.75@6.55; stockers and feeders, $3.60@6.25; cows and heifers, $2.60@6.50; calves, $7.50@9.75. Hogs—Receipts estimated at 28,000; market 10c higher; light, $9.65@10.05; mixed, $9.75@10.15; heavy, $9.75@10.17½; rough, $9.76@9.90; good to choice, heavy, 0.17½; pigs, $8.90@9.75; bulk of sales, $9.95@10.10. Sheep—Receipts estimated at 16,000; market strong; native, $5.00@8.10; western, $5.50@8.15; yearlings, $7.15@8.80; lambs, native, $8.00@9.40; western, $8.00@9.40.

OBITUARY

Dr. Louis Klopsch, editor of the Christian Herald, and known the world over for his philanthropies, died this morning at the German hospital in New York city, following an operation on Friday last for an intestinal obstruction.

Kiron W. Remis, 75 years of age, who was a member of the Wisconsin legislature in 1858, died at Janesville, Wis., March 5. He had held many local political offices.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Tone Is Strong Under Aggressive Rise of Steel and Coppers.

Large Volume of Trading and Close Buoyant and Animated.

New York, March 7.—Interest in the opening stock market today was apathetic. Dealings were small, and changes were narrow and mixed. Utah Copper declined 1⅜ and Pacific Mail, ¾. St. Louis & San Francsico second preferred advanced ¾.

The tone of the market became strong under the influence of an advance in United States Steel and the copper stocks. Railroad stocks were in the main quiet, but advanced fractionally. United States Steel was pushed up 1½ to 87⅛. United States Rubber gained 3, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1¾, Minneapolis & St. Louis 1⅝ and Reading, Union Pacific, St. Paul, Atlantic Coast Line, Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis, Erie second preferred, Iowa Central preferred, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and American Car 1. United Railways and Investment fell and International Pump 2.

The aggressive strength shown by United States Steel and Union Pacific carried the list upward in sympathy. The gain in United States Steel reached 1⅞, Union Pacific 1⅝, the preferred 1½, American Ice 2¾, American Tobacco preferred and Third Avenue 1¾ and Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, International Pump, National Lead and United States Steel preferred 1. Prices were off a fraction at noon. Bonds were irregular.

Business fell off to a small proportion, but the market continued strong with Reading the latest feature. Reading touched 170½ a rise of 2⅛. Wisconsin Central also gained 2, Pressed Steel Car, 1¾ and Amalgamated Copper, ⅜.

The market closed buoyant and animated. Stocks continued to rise late in the day on a large volume of dealings. United States Steel gained 2⅝, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, 6½, Chesapeake & Ohio, Northern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Louisville & Nashville and American Hide & Leather preferred, 2, Chicago & Alton, and American Car, 1¾. Northwestern, 1⅝ and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, 1½.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss.

In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Charles Casey, Decedent.

THE PETITION of Edward Casey having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that William Charles Casey, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 12th day of February, 1910, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the son of said decedent, and praying that Letters of Administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to Emma Casey,

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this Court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said County, on Monday the 21st day of March, 1910, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this Order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald according to law, and that a copy of this Order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., February 21st, 1910.

By the Court,
J. M. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minnesota.)

Office of County Auditor, County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota.

To V. P. Chappel:

You are hereby notified that the following piece or parcel of land, situated in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lot number Four (4), Block number Four (4), Grove Hill Park, according to the recorded plat thereof is now assessed in your name.

That on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1903, at a sale of land pursuant to the real estate tax judgment duly given and made in and by the District Court in and for said County of St. Louis, on the 19th day of March, A. D. 1903, in proceedings to enforce the payment of taxes delinquent upon real estate for the year A. D. 1901, for said County of St. Louis, the above described piece or parcel of land was duly offered for sale, and no one bidding upon said offer an amount equal to that for which said piece or parcel was subject to be sold, to-wit: the sum of Fifty-nine cents, the same was duly bid in for the State of Minnesota for said sum.

That thereafter, and on the Eighth day of November, A. D. 1909, the said piece or parcel of land, not then having been redeemed from said sale, and having then become the absolute property of the State of Minnesota, was sold and conveyed at public sale by the County Auditor of said County pursuant to the order and direction of the State Auditor of the State of Minnesota, and in accordance with the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, for the sum of One Dollar and Fifty-three cents, duly paid to the County Treasurer of said County.

That the certificate of sale for said piece or parcel of land executed and delivered by said County Auditor upon said sale last above mentioned has been presented to me at my office by the holder thereof, for the purpose of having notice of expiration of time for redemption from said tax sale of said property given and served, and that the amount required to redeem said piece or parcel of land from said tax sale at the date of this notice, exclusive of the costs to accrue upon said notice, is the sum of One Dollar and Fifty-seven cents.

That the time for the redemption of said piece or parcel of land from said tax sale will expire sixty (60) days after the service of this notice and filing of proof of such service in my office.

Witness my hand and seal of office this Twentieth day of January, A. D. 1910.

O. HALDEN,
Auditor St. Louis County, Minnesota.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Eighty-four and 73-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Sutherland, unmarried, Mortgagor, to L. J. Emery, Mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of May, 1908, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of May, 1908, at 3 o'clock P. M., in Book 236 of Mortgages, on page 33, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The east half of the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section twenty-three, township fifty-one, range fourteen in St. Louis County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the Sheriff's office in the Court House, in the City of Duluth in said County and State, on the ninth day of April, 1910, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Eighty-four and 73-100 dollars and interest, and taxes in the sum of $2.81 paid by the mortgagee prior to the date hereof on said premises as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 14, A. D. 1910.

NOTICE OF THE EXPIRATION OF REDEMPTION—

Office of County Auditor, County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota.

To V. P. Chappel:

You are hereby notified that the following piece or parcel of land, situated in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lot number Three (3), Block number Four (4), Grove Hill Park, according to the recorded plat thereof, is now assessed in your name.

That on the 11th day of May, A. D., 1903, at a sale of land pursuant to the real estate tax judgment duly given and made in and by the District Court in and for said county of St. Louis, on the 19th day of March, A. D. 1903, in proceedings to enforce the payment of taxes delinquent upon real estate for the year A. D. 1901, for said county of St. Louis, the above described piece or parcel of land was duly offered for sale, and no one bidding upon said offer an amount equal to that for which said piece or parcel was subject to be sold, to-wit: the sum of Fifty-nine cents, the same was duly bid in for the State of Minnesota for said sum.

That thereafter, and on the Eighth day of November, A. D. 1909, the said piece or parcel of land, not then having been redeemed from said sale, and having then become the absolute property of the State of Minnesota, was sold

"Americans are curious, inquisitive, 'want to know.' They devour newspapers with their meals and imbibe magazines with their after-dinner coffee. That's why advertising is the tremendous force that it is."

The Duluth Herald is a habit in nearly every home in Duluth. It is a part of the family. It has a place at the table, in the sitting room and in the boudoir. It is the most forceful, most successful, most necessary advertising medium in the city.
